1. Acquisition by Government.

——Acquisition by Government.

See also, Land Acquisition Act, Ss. 23, 30,

—Land-lord is entitled to no compensation on account of the acquisition of the malik mukbuza land as he is not interested as land-lord therein, his commission being merely payment for the trouble of collecting the land revenue. A.I.R. 1939 Nag. 121=1939 N.L.J. 140 =I.L.R. (1941) Nag. 345=181 Ind. Cas. 915.

——Acquisition by Government.

Prima facie, the zamindar has the whole of the interest; it is for the tenure-holders to show what part of the interest the zamindar has diverted himself of in their favour. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 21=36 C.W.N. 866=140 Ind. Cas. 385.

——Acquisition by Government.

In the province of Agra, kankar is the property of Govt. and when land is acquired under Land Acquisition Act, the zamindar is not entitled to any compensation for kankar. (1931) A.L.J. 660= A.I.R. 1931 All. 394=53 A. 658=133 Ind. Cas. 611.

——Acquisition by Government.

The gountia's actual assessment to revenue is based on two factors and none other, namely, the quantity of raiyati lands and the quantity of bhogra lands. The gountia's payment varies inversely with the former and directly with the latter,

Held, that the Government is entitled to a share of the compensation paid for bhogra land under S. 14 of the Land Acquisition Act.

Held, also that once the land is acquired it rests in Government free from all encumbrances and entirely loses its bhogra character. Incidents of tenure of gountia traced. 11 P.L.T. 374=A.I.R. 1931 Pat. 131.

——Acquisition by Government—Compensation —Apportionment of—Communal lands.

Where, as in Southern Nigeria, lands are held by communities, their usufructuary rights are not affected by British occupation. The head-chief is no doubt authorised to convey a fee-simple but that is only in his capacity as a representative of all the interests affected—not because he is the owner himself. Where such lands are acquired by the Government, the head-chief is not entitled to be compensated otherwise than in his representative capacity. It is the members of the community who are in usufructuary occupation or in enjoyment of the usufruct that are entitled to compensation. A.I.R. 1921 P.C. 212 (P.C.)

2. Adimayavana.

——Adimayavana allowance—Grant in perpetuity —Evidence.

Held that the exhibits in the case coupled with the fact that the allowance has been enjoyed for more than three quarters of a century and has been received during all the time out of the land specified in the documents with the acquiescence of the successive stanis justified the conclusion that there was a valid grant of the allowance in perpetuity as a reward for services rendered, and that it was charged on the lands specified in the documents. 30 M. 203.

——Adimayavana tenure—Ejectment suit.

An Adimayavana tenure in Malabar is a permanent tenure and when lands are granted in that tenure for past services, they are not resumable. Quaere.— Whether they can be resumed if granted for future services, on the non-performance of such services, involving the necessity for having the tenants discharged by others. 27 M. 202.

3. Agraharam.

——Agraharam—Jodi—Liability for.

Agraharamdars are jointly and severally liable to the zamindar for Jodi due on the entire agraharam in the absence of any contract to which the zamindar is a party, apportioning the jodi on the various suti divisions of the agraharam made by the agraharmdars inter se. 33 M.L.W. 284=A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 51=129 Ind. Cas. 828.

4. Anubhavam tenure.

——Anubhavam tenure—Alienation—Forfeiture— Question of custom.

The question whether an anubhavam tenure has been forfeited by alienation, in view of conflict of decisions on the point, is possibly a question of custom rather than of law. A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 682= (1935) M.W.N. 866=42 M.L.W. 596=158 Ind. Cas. 228.

——Anubhavam tenure—Rule negativing such tenure where amount is fixed—Application of.

In applying the rule which negatives the existence of an anubhavam tenure when the amount to be taken by the grantee is fixed, the correct procedure is to see whether the substance of the transaction is that the grantee is entitled only to a definite quantity or the grantor is entitled only to a definite quantity, the grantee taking all the rest. The mere fact that from the terms of the documents, it is possible to work out arithmetically what the grantee will get is not sufficient to negative the existence of an anubhavam tenure. A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 682=(1935) M.W.N. 866=42 M.L.W. 596=158 Ind. Cas. 228.

——Anubhavam—Denial of title—Forfeiture.

The tenant holding lands on Anubhavam tenure does not forfeit them except by denial of title made directly to the land-lord. 29 Ind. Cas. 427 (Mad.)

5. Assessment.

——Assessment—Suti lease—Regulation 1 of 1808.

Village Chincholi was leased by Government in 1831, and the defendants khots were the successors-in-title of the lessee; plaintiff claimed to be the successor-in-title of a person who was in possession of the land in suit prior to the above-mentioned lease; plaintiff's title was traced to 1867: a considerable portion of the land was utilised for building purposes up to 1915; only the fixed annual payment was charged but in 1915-16 enhanced assessment was levied; plaintiff claimed that lands were suti and subject only to fixed annual payment and that the defendants were entitled to nothing more than the fixed payment.

Held, that the plaintiff was a sutidar of the lands in suit to which Regulation 1 of 1808 applied; that the lands in suit were subject to a perpetual fixed grain rental commuted into money payment and continued to be invariable until there had been a decennial valuation changing the commutation rate by Government that the tenure did not come to an end by reason of the change in the use of the lands, and that the rates fixed by the survey assessment did not amount to the decennial valuation contemplated in S. 41, Regn. 1 of 1808, and that the assessment in excess of the fixed annual payment levied invariably from the year 1867 could not be recovered by defendants. 118 Ind. Cas. 244=30 Bom. L.R. 992=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 457.

——Assessment—Right of Government.

The Government has right to levy assessment on all land within its jurisdiction unless it can be proved either by statute or by agreement, express or implied, that a particular portion of land is exempt from assessment. 115 Ind. Cas. 49=52 Mad. 25=29 M.L.W. 185=1928 M.W.N. 581=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 1176=56 M.L.J. 24.

6. Bhag.

——Bhag—Succession.

In Broach District, daughters and sisters of a bhagdar are excluded from inheriting bhag lands. The onus of proof rests on the party which denies the existence of this custom in any village in the Broach Collectorate. A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 434=34 Bom. L.R. 385.

7. Birt tenure.

——Birt tenure (Oudh).

A decree granting birt rights under the provisions of Circular No. 2 of 1861 is necessarily a grant of under-proprietary rights whether under-proprietary rights are or are not specially mentioned, and if a Settlement Officer forming his own opinion as to what the Circular meant proceeded to give title as birtias to persons under the provisions of that Circular that title can only be held to be title as the under-proprietor. 115 Ind Cas. 291=A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 358.

——Birt tenure (Oudh).

In the province of Oudh large proprietors let out lands on favourable terms on security of tenure. These grants of land are called Birt Bankati and various kinds of birts exist, the incidents of each of which differ from those of others.

In the present case, the defendant held the village Kundarwa under a birt grant created so long ago as 1802. The Pattah under which the birt-holders obtained the village declared that the land of the village was granted to get it cultivated and populated, for the purpose of clearing the jungle, making the land fit for cultivation, and bringing raiyat, which carried with it the duty of sinking wells, etc. It declared that "the birt-holder was to enjoy it for five or six years." A comparatively small but gradually ascending rent was fixed for next 4 years. After that he was to pay the revenue to the Sarkar prevalent in the Taluka and take the daswant prevalent in the Taluka. In 1871 the Extra Assistant Commissioner declared the birt-holder as an under-proprietor and made a decree upholding in express terms his "possession and occupation as an under-proprietor under the provisions of Circular 11 of 1862 in respect of the village Kundarwa,"

Held, the respondents birt-holders, as declared, in the village of Kundarwa held under-proprietary rights. 63 Ind. Cas. 694=26 C.W.N. 249=43 All. 355=48 I.A. 267=24 O.C. 123=1921 M.W.N. 359=8 O.L.J. 294=A.I.R. 1922 P.C. 41 (P.C.).

——Birt tenure—Status of Birtidar.

A Talukdar cannot put up to sale the rights of intermediate holders called Birtdars in execution of a rent decree obtained against sub-settlement holders. The rights of birtdars are altogether different from those of sub-settlement holders. No decree, therefore, can be passed against the birtdars for arrears of rent due by the sub-settlement holders. The amount payable by the under-proprietor to the superior land-lord though calculated on the basis of land revenue is not land revenue but rent. The mere entry in the revenue papers as occupancy holders does not convert their title of birtdars to that of occupancy tenants. 14 Ind. Cas. 117 (Oudh).

——Birt tenure—Heritable and transferable rights.

Persons holding under Birt tenures Oudh, i.e., tenures "known as the Bai Birt created by the Talukdar or proprietor for money paid," have a heritable and transferable rights as against the Talukdar in the villages in respect of which the birt has been created. 17 M.L.J. 400=9 Bom. L.R. 851=11 C.W.N. 913=6 C.L.J. 693=4 A.L.J. 737=29 A. 708=2 M.L.T. 402=34 I.A. 142 (P.C.)

8. Brahmottar.

——Brahmottar.

In Chota Nagpur Province, especially in the Manbhum District, the tenures known as talabi brahmottars among others take rank among the hereditary tenures at a fixed rent not liable to enhancement, these tenures escheating to the Crown and not to the zamindars. A.I.R. 1932 Pat. 157=11 Pat. 569=138 Ind. Cas. 419.

9. Cantonment tenure.

See also Cantonments.

——Cantonment—Land in — Presumption in respect of.

In the beginning of the 19th century one Lieutenant Young having built a house to quarter his regiment also appropriated a piece of land adjoining the same, situated within Cantonment limits and subject to Cantonment rules until 1874. When it was made over by the Military authorities to the Civil authorities sixty years had not elapsed since the acquisition of the land by the defendant:—

Held that the suit was not barred by limitation. A party who builds a house in Cantonments must be taken to have derived his title to occupy the land from the Military authorities and their power to make a grant of it can only be co-extensive with their own tenure of the property and no assignment by them can subsist beyond the period the land might remain subject to Cantonment regulations. 7 A.L.J. 1194= 8 Ind. Cas. 1096 (2)=33 A. 229.

10. Chakdari tenure.

——Chakdari tenure.

A "chakdar kasurkhawar" is an inferior proprietor of the land held by him in a zamindari and is not a mere occupancy tenant. The 'Chakdari' tenure occurs in the Multan and other adjoining districts of the South Punjabe. 34 P.R. 1868; Doie's Settlement Manual, paras. 165 to 171 and Multan District Gazetteer, Ref. 11 Lah. 287=12 L. L. J. 119=31 P.L.R. 592= A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 740.

——Chakdari tenure—Merger of.

Where the defendant had certain chakdari land, but when he acquired superior proprietary rights in the mahal, the Revenue Court ordered the chakdari land to be classed as khalsa land, on the ground that the under proprietary right merged in the superior proprietary rights,

Held, that this order by a Revenue Court cannot deprive the defendant of his under-proprietary rights and no question of merger can arise unless and until the under-proprietor acquires full proprietary rights in the mahal. 98 Ind. Cas. 677=2 Luck. 274=3 O.W.N. 900=8 L.R.A. Rev. 42=A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 18.

11. Chakran lands.

——Chakran lands (Bengal).

The fact that some wages are paid to the tenant in addition, would not change the chakran character of the holding. 103 Ind. Cas. 542=31 C.W.N. 552= A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 561.

——Chakran lands—Public and private.

There is no distinction between the rights acquired in respect of chakran lands which are of a private nature and those auquired in respect of chowkidari chakran lands which are of a public nature. 98 Ind. Cas. 862= 44 C. L. J. 271=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 46.

——Chakran lands—Resumption by Government.

The rights created by the Paiks who held the chakran tenure come to an end on the resumption of the land by Government and consequently the evidence as to the rate of rent paid by the tenant to the choukidar, chakran tenure-holder, is of no help to the tenant for proving that he is a tenant at fixed rent and that the rent is not liable to be enhanced. 91 Ind. Cas. 734= A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 661.

——Chakran lands—Authority to transfer.

The provision in a pattah by which the chowkidari chakran lands were granted to the effect that in case of the transfer of land, the incidental costs thereof shall be paid by the occupier without objection cannot by itself be construed as giving an express authority to make a transfer as contemplated by the provisions of the second paragraph of Cl. (1) of S. 11 of the Registration Act, VIII of 1819. 87 Ind. Cas. 529=41 C.L.J. 295=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 807.

——Chakran lands—Enhancement of rent.

The putnidar's interest in resumed chaukidari chakran lands which were comprised in his putni, is derived from the putni itself and from nothing else. The zamindar cannot therefore claim to vary the putni by enhancing the rent in respect of lands which were included in the original demise even assuming that the profits of these lands were not taken into account in fixing the rent. 67 Ind. Cas. 440=36 C. L. J. 145=26 C.W.N. 943=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 473.

——Chakran lands—Patni Mahal—Suit for possession—Specific performance of contract.

An action for possession of Chakran lands in Patni cannot be one for specific performance of a contract. If there is no scope for action for specific performance there is no possible ground, for a Zamindar to keep the Patnidars out of possession or to ask to do them anything except to pay the Collectorate assessment. 18 Ind. Cas. 239 (Cal.)

12. Communal ownership.

——Communal ownership — Incidents of—Effect of British occupation is not to destroy private rights — Public Lands Ordinance of 1903 of Southern Nigeria.

A mere change in sovereignty is not to be presumed as meant to disturb rights of private owners and the general terms of cession are prima facie to be construed accordingly. The introduction of the system of Crown grants, which was made subsequently, must be regarded as having been brought about mainly, if not exclusively, for conveyancing purposes, and not with a view to altering substantive titles already existing. Questions of difficulty may arise in individual instances as to the effect in law of the terms of particular documents. But when the broad question is raised as to what is meant by the provisions in the Public Lands Ordinance of 1903, that where the lands to be taken are the property of a native community the Head Chief may sell and convey it, the answer must be that he is to convey a full native title of usufruct, and that adequate compensation for what is so conveyed must be awarded for distribution among the members of the community entitled for apportionment as the native council of the district, with the sanction of the Governor, may determine. The chief is only the agent through whom the transaction is to take place and he is to be dealt with as representing, not only his own, but the other interest affected.

The title of the land occupied by a native community is prima facie based, not on such individual ownership as English Law has made familiar, but on a communal usufructuary occupation, which may be so complete as to reduce any radical right in the Sovereign to one which only extends to comparatively limited rights of administrative interference. There is no evidence that this kind of usufructuary title of the community was disturbed in law, either when the Benign Kings conquered Lagos or when the Cession to the British Crown took place in 1861. A.I.R. 1921 P.C. 212.

13. Dholi tenure.

See also, Custom (Punjab).

——Dholi and Bhonda—Definitions.

Dholi tenure is a rent-free land granted for the benefit of a temple, mosque or shrine or to a person for religious purposes and the grantee in such cases has to carry out certain specified duties. Bhonda land is granted on similar tenure but for secular services. 41 P.L.R. 672.

——Dholi tenure—Nature of.

Dholi tenure is a form of tenure known in the Punjab only for the benefit of the temple. On a grant in dholi, the proprietors continue to be proprietors of the land and the dholidar in right of the temple and his successors become tenants in perpetuity. Ordinarily such a tenure would not confer the right of taking mines and minerals on the tenant which, if intended to be given has to be given expressly. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 805=40 P.L.R. 110=I.L.R. (1938) Lah. 447=175 Ind. Cas. 92.

——Dholi tenure.

The dholi tenure is a peculiar kind of tenure to be found in the south-eastern districts of the Punjab. It is a rent-free grant of a small plot of land by the village community for the benefit of a temple, mosque or shrine, or to a person for a religious purpose. In the revenue records the proprietary body are recorded as the owners of the property and the grantee is recorded as a tenant in the column of cultivation. So long as the purpose for which the grant is made, is carried out, it cannot be resumed, but should the holder fail to carry out the duties of his office the proprietors can eject him and put in some one else under a like tenure. Tenure of this kind cannot be alienated by sale or mortgage, and any alienation of that character, if made by the dholidar, would be absolutely void. There is, therefore, no reason why the defendant should not be able to impeach the alienation, more especially because the office of dholidar is similar to that of a trustee, and it is open for one trustee to impeach the validity of an alienation made by his predecessor. 65 Ind. Cas. 252=2 Lah. 313=25 P.L.R. 1922=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 126.

14. Digwari tenure.

——Digwari tenure.

A digwari cannot either transfer the lands comprised in the digwari grant to another so as to create an interest in them by permanent lease, nor can he himself acquire any interest in the uncultivated land, such as jungle or waste land which is comprised within the Mouza. 59 Ind. Cas. 899 (Pat.).

——Digwari tenure—Incidents of—Digwari of Ghat Burrah—Position of—Suit for declaration of right—Jurisdiction of Civil Court.

There is a general usage on the death of the Digwar holding office to appoint his heir in his place as the successor to his office. The heir's claim, and the tenure of office are dependant on the approval of Government. The position of a Digwar of Ghat Burrah is that of an officer remunerated by the enjoyment of land. The Civil Court has no jurisdiction to reinstate a Digwar who has been dismissed by the Executive Government, as unfit for the discharge of his duties. But the position is different when the Commissioner decides against a claimant not in the exercise of his discretion but upon an erroneous view of the relative title of his opponent. In such case the Civil Courts can give a declaratory decree under S. 42 of the Sp. Rel. Act, to enable plaintiff to approach the Government with his claims and seek their decision on the question of the appointment of a successor to the office of Digwar. 43 Cal. 743=22 C.L.J. 419=20 C.W.N. 446=32 Ind. Cas. 437.

——Digwari tenure—Birbun—Nature.

A Digwari tenure in Birbun is similar to a Ghatwali tenure. Though not governed by ordinary rules of inheritance, the tenures are hereditary, but are subject to Government's approval of the heir. 18 C.W.N. 1036 =23 Ind. Cas. 849.

——Digwari tenure—Incidents of—Digwar, if entitled to minerals—Zemindari property—Rights of Government.

Digwari tenure which was granted originally in consideration of the performance of military service, to which police duties were attached is hereditary and inalienable. The digwar is appointed by the Government and is liable to be dismissed by the Government for misconduct. On dismissal, the next male heir, if fit for the office, is appointed.

The Zemindar of a permanently settled estate is entitled to the minerals underneath the lands held on digwari tenure in the absence of a separate settlement by Government with the digwar or of evidence that mineral rights had vested in the digwar before the permanent settlement or of a grant of such rights by the Zemindar since the settlement. To a suit by the Zemindar for a declaration of his rights to the minerals as against the digwar the Government is not a necessary party as it never claimed the minerals in the Zemindari. 39 Cal. 696=39 I.A. 133=16 C.W.N. 482=(1912) M.W.N. 425=11 M.L.T. 337=9 A.L.J. 462=15 C.L.J. 461=14 Bom. L.R. 445=23 M.L.J. 26=15 Ind. Cas. 219 (P.C.).

——Digwar of Ghat Tasra in Jheria—Police duties—Government control — Rights of the Zemindar—Right in sub-soil—Mokurari lease of under-ground rights granted by Digwar—Suit by Zemindar questioning—Government necessary party.

The Digwar of Tasra and Rabaraband in Jheria has been holding, under a tenure which is ancient and hereditary, subject to the payment to the Zemindar of a fixed rent only and on condition of the performance of certain police of public services for the due discharge of which the holder has been responsible to the Government which alone exercised the power of appointment to and dismissal from office. His position is analogous to that of the Ghatwals of Birdhum; the under-ground rights including mining rights belong to the Digwar; the right to receive the fixed rent alone being reserved to the Zemindar. Where therefore the Zemindar instituted a suit against the Digwar with the object of establishing his exclusive right to the sub-soil and minerals, Government has an interest in maintaining intact the mouzahs set apart for remuneration of the Digwar, and it has all along assumed itself to possess the right to do so. 12 C.W.N. 193=5 C.L.J. 583=34 Cal. 753.

——Evidence—Patta.

The facts that the patta has all along stood in the name of the plaintiff and his predecessors-in-title and they it was that were paying kist due to Govt, constitute prima facie evidence of the title to the land being in the plaintiff, more especially in the absence of any claim of original title in the defendants. A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 756=1943 M.W.N. 246=213 Ind. Cas. 204.

——Evidence — Patta — Construction — Land demised stated to be three bighas measuring by guess—Lessee, if entitled to 26 and a half bighas on the strength of this patta.

Where the patta gives the area of the land demised as measuring by guess three bighas, the lessee is not entitled on the strength of this patta to 26 and a half bighas of the land on the ground that such area is comprised within the boundaries of his patta. 61 C. 886= A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 28=154 Ind. Cas. 71.

——Evidence—Pattas—Home farm-land, when established.

Where it was proved by evidence that the zemindar was letting the suit land on lease from 1877 and the tenants were given sagupadi pattas which are not generally given to tenants who claim occupancy rights and although the zemindar had not been turning them out of the land altogether, he was dealing with the tenants as he liked.

Held, that the inference that the land had always been home farm-land of the zemindar was warranted by the evidence. A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 789=161 Ind. Cas. 757.

16. Fazendari tenure.

——Fazendari tenure.

The word Fazendari used in an agreement between a land-lord and tenant even though indicating the nature of the rent, does not necessarily decide the nature of the tenure which depends upon the agreement between the parties. 16 Bom. L.R. 720=27 Ind. Cas. 523.

——Fazendari—Meaning of.

The word Fazendari is used with reference to tenants holding under a private land-holder to indicate sometimes an indefeasible right to hold the property on payment of a small quit or ground-rent and sometimes any kind of tenure agreed upon, between the parties. 16 Bom. L.R. 723 (Note)=27 Ind. Cas 512.

——Fazendari tenure—Sub-letting—Nature of.

Fazendari tenures are perpetual, subject only to the payment of nominal rents to Government; and the holder thereunder might sub-let on any condition he pleases and the tenant does not necessarily take a permanent tenure unless specifically stipulated. 39 Bom. 316=16 Bom. L.R. 252=23 Ind. Cas. 880.

17. Free-hold tenure.

——"Free-hold tenure" — Meaning of—Incidents or attributes of "free-hold."

The term "free-hold" when used in a conveyance in India means an estate in land which is not liable to terminate after a fixed period of time and in which the owner has an estate as nearly as possible equivalent to absolute property. The liability to pay land revenue cannot affect the question as to whether the land is or is not free-hold. A free-hold land does not mean land held free from payment of revenue, though it is true that certain lands are free from assessment. Heritability and transferability are two of the most important attributes of free-hold land. 52 Bom. L.R. 636=I.L.R. 1950 Bom. 568.

18. Ganti tenure.

——Ganti tenure — Tenure created by previous settlement holder.

The temporary settlement holder of a mahal created a ganti interest in favour of certain persons. Subsequently the mahal was sold for arrears of revenue and purchased by plaintiff, whereupon the Settlement Officer settled the rent for the mahal on the basis of the rent payable by the gantidars, and plaintiff executed a kabuliyat stipulating to respect the recorded right of under tenure-holders and other persons; Held, that the plaintiff was bound to recognise the ganti tenure and could not question its existence. 24 C.W.N. 53=31 C.L.J. 78= 54 Ind. Cas. 719.

19. Gaontia rioti lands.

——Gaontia rioti lands—Status of—Whether stronger than occupancy-tenant.

Gaonti rioti fields constitute an agricultural holding analogous to an occupancy tenancy and the position of an occupier of such fields is not stronger than that of an occupancy-tenant. A. I. R. 1943 Nag. 217=1943 N.L.J. 283=I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 595=208 Ind. Cas. 159.

——Gaontia rioti lands—Zabti bhogra—Assessment of—If can be challenged in civil suit.

Once the assessment is made and left unchallenged, it becomes binding upon the co-sharers' gaontias. When no steps are taken to contest the assessment made at the time of the settlement, it cannot be challenged in a civil suit and a partition among the co-sharer gaontias does not put an end to the liability for zabti bhogra. A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 497=6 B. R. 218=185 Ind. Cas. 602.

20 (a) Accretion.

——Ghatwali tenure—Accretion.

The produce of an impartible estate does not necessarily belong to and form an accretion to the original property, and there is no distinction between realized rent and unrealized rent. In the absence of any intention on the part of the late ghatwal to treat the produce of the estate as an accretion to the ghatwali estate, the unrealized rents are liable in execution to attachment and sale. 97 Ind. Cas. 343=7 P.L.T. 626= A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 518.

20 (b) Alienability.

——Ghatwali tenure—Alienability.

Ghatwali tenures may be alienable by custom. But if the Government releases or abolishes the services in some effective and lawful manner the incident of inalienability will pass away. In Kharagdhi, Ghatwali tenures are alienable by custom. 80 Ind. Cas. 544=3 Pat. 915=6 P.L.T. 191=A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 210.

——Ghatwali tenure — Alienability — Ghatwali tenures are inalienable and indivisible — Actual appointment of next heir is not necessary— Nature and termination of the tenure — Law regarding ghatwali tenures in general considered— Hundwa estates are ghatwali in nature.

A Ghatwali tenure is inalienable and indivisible and cannot be sold in execution of a decree against the person of the incumbent of the office of ghatwal for the time being. Neither by the terms of the grant nor by the general law applying to such ghatwali tenures is an actual appointment of the next heir to be ghatwali in the rooms of his predecessor requisite, nor is actual performance of the stipulated ghatwali services from time to time necessary. Readiness and willingness to perform them when required may be inferred where there is no proof of refusal to perform and where performance within a reasonable time, if required, is not shown to have become impossible. Law relating to ghatwali tenures in general considered.

Hundwa tenure is a Government tenure. It is a perpetual and hereditary tenure, being a service tenure and ghatwali in nature.

To terminate the ghatwali character of the lands, it seems that it is necessary to find something done or omitted to be done on the part of the Government, as the grantors, which would have the legal effect of a surrender, and re-grant of the lands on new terms, or at any rate, of a release of the right to appoint the ghatwal and call for the performance of the services.

Where a tenure is created, as distinct from a personal employment the tenure-holder has such an interest in the rendering of the services as entitles him to such benefit of the tenure as accrues from his readiness and willingness to perform his obligation. The service is not a mere burden on the land. It constitutes a personal right which cannot be terminated on the ground merely of waiver by grantor or desuetude. 79 Ind. Cas. 825=28 C.W.N. 351=3 Pat, 183=5 P.L.T. 171=51 I.A. 37=34 M.L.T. 27=A.I.R. 1924 P.C. 5 (P.C.).

20 (c) Ascertaining surplus rents and profits.

——Ghatwali tenure—Ascertaining surplus rents and profits—Responsibility of preparing budget and determining surplus, whether lies with revenue authorities or Civil Court.

While determining the procedure in ascertaining and realisng the surplus rents and profits of a ghatwali, the distinction should be clearly borne in mind between the methods of administering an estate of which the profits were under attachment in execution of a decree of a Sub-Divisional Officer or inferior Court and the procedure in similar proceedings when the executing Court is a Subordinate Judge. The procedure followed in referring the budget to the Commissioner for settlement and final sanction is an appropriate procedure in the former class of cases. In the latter class of cases, it is for the Receiver to make an estimate of collections and expenditure which he is to submit for the approval of the Court and it is the duty of the Court to pass final orders settling the budget. In collecting and disbursing the income, the Receiver must be acting under the directions of the Court and not of the executive authorities.

Where, therefore, a Subordinate Judge rejects an objection of a decree-holder to certain items in a budget of receipts and expenditure for a ghatwali estate,without giving a finding on merits, on the ground that the responsibility of the preparation of the budget and the determination of the surplus available for attachment lay with the revenue authorities and not the Civil Court, such an order is erroneous. 5 B.R. 344=A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 242=180 Ind. Cas. 8.

20 (d) Bankura.

——Ghatwali tenure — Bankura — Succession—Rules as to.

The ordinary Hindu and Muhammadan rules of inheritance are not applicable to the Ghatwali tenure in Bankura, but it is held upon the condition of the approval of the heir, by Government. 9 C. 187 P. C. Rel. on. 24 Ind. Cas. 527 (Cal.).

20 (e) Defective appointment.

——Ghatwali tenure—Defective appointment.

If a person enters into a Ghatwali Jaghir, not having obtained the appointment which is required to make him the lawful holder of it, his possession is without title at all, and until by prescription or otherwise he acquires a right which he is capable of alienating the lack of a sanad of appointment is really the proof of the defect of his title, not of the completeness of it. 79 Ind. Cas. 825=28 C.W.N. 351=3 Pat. 183=5 P.L.T. 171=51 I.A. 37=34 M.L.T. 27=A. I. R. 1924 P.C. 5 (P. C.).

20 (f) Dismissal of ghatwal.

——Ghatwali tenure — Dismissal of ghatwal—Power to dismiss—For-feiture of tenure—Finality of order.

A Magistrate has jurisdiction to dismiss a ghatwal and in construing grants of this description, it should be presumed in the absence of evidence to the contrary that the officers of Govt. were acting within their authority.

Where a ghatwal has been rightly dismissed for misconduct, such dismissal involves as a necessary consequence the forfeiture of his tenure and the order must be treated as final and cannot be questioned in the Civil Court. 54 C.L.J. 325=A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 77=135 Ind. Cas. 275.

20 (g) Distinction between Kharagpur and Birbhum tenure.

——Ghatwali tenure—Distinction between Kharagpur and Birbhum tenure.

The ghatwali tenure in Taluka Dumri is in no way comparable to the Birbhum ghatwali tenures, and Reg. XXIX of 1814 does not apply to it, but in its origin it is rather of the nature of the Kharagpur ghatwalis. One of the main distinctions between these two classes is that the former are inalienable except with the consent of Government by whom the settlements were made and to whom the revenue is paid direct, whereas the latter are alienable subject to the consent of the land-lord to whom the rent or revenue is paid. The incidents that are proved to attach to the tenure are:—(1) that it is impartible and permanent, (2) that it descends by lineal primogeniture, and (3) that it is alienable at least with the consent of the Zemindar. 74 Ind. Cas. 668=4 P.L.T. 473=1923 P.H.C.C. 161=2 Pat. 685=A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 453.

20 (h) Execution.

——Ghatwali tenure—Execution—Appointment of Receiver.

The rents and profits other than surplus being earmarked for the payment of chowkidars, sardars and Government dues, an order may be made that the surplus be placed at the disposal of the creditors, for there can be no question that the creditors are entitled to that surplus in execution of their decrees, and that for this purpose a Receiver may be appointed. 76 Ind. Cas. 8=1923 P. H. C. C. 372=5 P.L.T. 34=3 Pat. 339=A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 269.

——Ghatwali tenure—Execution—Sale.

The only restriction attaching to the saleability in execution of a Ghatwali or Police tenure is the right of Government to prevent the sale on the ground that the Jahirdar or Ghatwal is liable to Government to render Police and public duties. 64 Ind. Cas. 522=2 P.L.T. 742.

——Ghatwali tenure — Execution of decree — Surplus profits realised by Ghatwal if can be attached.

A Ghatwali tenure by itself cannot be attached in execution though the surplus rents and profits realised by the Ghatwal may be attached as his personal property. 4 W.R. 5, 10 C.W.R. 260 Rel.

A receiver may be appointed in execution of a decree against the Ghatwal so that he might receive the rents and profits and apply it to the decree. 39 Cal. 1010=16 C.W.N. 802=14 Ind. Cas. 227.

20 (i) Fitness of Ghatwali.

——Ghatwali tenure—Fitness of ghatwali—Ghatwal property dismissed, cannot be re-instated by Court.

Per Manohar Lall, J.—The decision of fitness for the post of a ghatwal must ordinarily rest with the executive authorities subject to this important reservation that if the executive has simply made a pretence of dealing with the question of the fitness of the ghatwal who claims to be recognized as the next ghatwal and declares him unfit in an arbitrary manner or in a manner which the law would not recognize, then the Civil Courts are free to interfere.

Per Chatterji, J.—The Courts cannot do anything beyond giving a mere declaration. They cannot force the executive authorities to remove the one and appoint the other instead. A mere declaration, therefore, would be infructuous. Such declaration the Court should not grant.

The Court cannot re-instate a person in the land who has been properly dismissed from the office. 4 B.R. 633=A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 245=19 P.L.T. 519=17 Pat. 398=175 Ind. Cas. 854.

20 (j) Forfeiture.

——Ghatwali tenure—Forfeiture.

A hereditary ghatwali tenure, when can be forfeited by the Govt., explained. A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 245=17 Pat. 398=4 B.R. 633=19 P.L.T. 519=175 Ind. Cas. 854.

——Ghatwali tenure—Forfeiture.

Government has the power of appointing ghatwals and removing them. Upon removal for neglect of duty or mis-conduct the lands are forfeited to the Government. Birbhum Ghatwali tenures though hereditary are liable to be forfeited on the dismissal of the holder thereof. 84 Ind. Cas. 405=3 Pat. 673=A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 616.

—— Ghatwali tenure — Forfeiture — Ghatwal dismissed—No male heir—Forfeiture.

Where a Ghatwal is dismissed and has no male member of the family to succeed, the tenure is forfeited; and if a stranger should permanently be appointed to his place, no subsequently born son of the dismissed Ghatwal can claim it on the ground that the tenure is hereditary.

Government cannot disapprove of the heir of a Ghatwal or withhold sanction on any ground it likes and apart from the question of his fitness. 1 W.R. 321 and 5 Cal. 740 Dist. 18 C.W.N. 1036=23 Ind. Cas. 849.

20 (k) Ghatwal's interest.

——Ghatwali tenure—Ghatwal's interest—Nature of.

A ghatwal's interest may not necessarily be that of a subordinate tenure-holder. The fact that a land is within the ambit of one's zemindari does not necessarily show that the holder of the land is subordinate to the zemindari. His rights may be co-ordinate with him. A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 33=13 Pat. 517=1 B.R. 570=156 Ind. Cas. 136.

20 (l) Handwa Ghatwals.

——Ghatwali tenure—Handwa ghatwals — Status of before Permanent Settlement—Ghatwali coming into hands of successor—Surplus property accruing during life-time of predecessor—Whether can be followed for realizing rent for which he was liable—Such assets in hands of successor, if can be attached in execution of decree.

The status held by the Handwa ghatwals before the Permanent Settlement was that of talukdars who were declared to be the proprietors of the soil by Regulation VIII of 1793, but by reason of the fact that they did not take steps to have their taluqs separated from the Kharagpur zemindari either under the provisions of the aforesaid Regulation or the Regulation of 1801, their status was converted into one of dependent taluqdars. Their failure to apply for separation merely deprived them of the right to separation, other rights remaining unaffected and that they were declared to be the proprietors of the soil by S. 5, Permanent Settlement Regulation.

The position of the proprietor of the Kharagpur estate is that of a superior land-lord or one who is entitled to realise a certain rent from the Handwa ghatwals, but the holders of the Handwa properties have all the rights which usually go with the proprietorship of the soil.

Any surplus proceeds of the property which accrued due during the life-time of the predecessor and have now come into the successor's hands can be followed for the purpose of realising the rent for which he was liable in his life-time and the decree can be realised from the successor so far as she is in possession of those amounts. In every case, therefore, of this kind, it is a question of fact whether the succeeding ghatwal has come into possession of an asset of the deceased; and, if so, whether those assets are sufficient to pay off the rent that was due during the life-time of his predecessor. 1 B.R. 77=A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 306=14 Pat. 70=157 Ind. Cas. 433.

—— Ghatwali tenure — Handwa — Istimrari Mokkurari tenure—Permanent settlement — Alienation by holder—Heirs of holder—Rights of.

The Handwa and Chandwa estates were crown Ghatwalis holding the lands as military tenure directly under the British crown. The sanad issued to the holder by the British Government made the tenure one held directly under the Government, and resumable at the death of the life tenant. The sanction of the Government is necessary to validate the succession on the death of each holder. The permanent settlement of 1796 might destroy a military tenure by a new contract with the holder of the tenure but it does not affect the position of the tenure holder with whom the new settlement was not made.

The mere fact that the Ghatwali service had not been demanded or rendered does not show that the services could not be demanded by the Government. Where a Ghatwal had been for generations without rendering military services and the defacto holder of the Ghatwal mortgaged it, it is not open to his heirs to impugn the mortgage on the ground that it is inalienable. (1918) P.H.C.C. 305=47 Ind. Cas. 179.

20 (m) Heritability.

——Ghatwali tenure—Heritability.

Zemindar ghatwali tenures are heritable and descend from generation to generation. But the rule of inalienability may be qualified by local custom. (Nature and incidents of such tenure explained). A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 306=1 B. R. 77=14 Pat. 70=157 Ind. Cas. 433.

——Ghatwali tenure —Heritablity—Permanancy—Resumption—Dismissal.

A ghatwali tenure which has descended from father to son is a hereditary one even in the absence of words of inheritance. Held, also, that the tenure in the case was hereditary. 6 W.R. 199. On appeal 14 M.I.A. 247, Ref. to, and foll. Where lands are held subject to the payment of quit-rent and the performance of ghatwali services, and they were included in the permanent settlement in the mal lands of the zemindari and assessed only to the extent of the quit-rent paid to the zemindar, the inference to be drawn is that the tenure was a permanent one. The zemindar cannot at his option, dispense with the services and take the lands back. 13 M.I.A. 438 ref. to. The dismissal of a deputy appointed by Government itself cannot amount to the dismissal of the principal, and the dismissal of the son when acting as deputy for his father cannot disqualify his claim to inherit the tenure on his father's death as the son of his father. 9 C.W.N. 663.

20 (n) Incidents of.

——Ghatwali tenure—Incidents of—Incumbent unfit for office—Forfeiture—Legality—Duty of Government.

Per Manohar Lall, J.—A hereditary ghatwali tenure cannot be taken away from a family, because the incumbent at any time misconducts himself or proves unfit to discharge his duties, so long as there is some other member of the family fit for the post, and in the case of a minor so long as some suitable arrangement can be made for the performance of the necessary duties until the minor, comes of age. As soon as the ghatwal is dismissed for misconduct the result is not that the whole tenure is forfeited and, therefore, Govt. have a right to appoint any one whom they like. The case of the ghatwal cannot be treated as the case of a mere jagirdar who has "a jagir assigned for support and remuneration."

In a case where there is an express repudiation by the entire family to accept relation of ghatwali or where the ruling power may think that the incumbent who is being removed has left no heir who is capable of rendering even the vicarious services involved as a part of the obligations of the holder of the tenure, the ruling power in such a case would be justified in holding that these circumstances are themselves a ground for forfeiture in the persons of the entire family.

Per Chatterji, J.—Under S. 5, of the Bengal Regulation of 1814, notwithstanding the hereditary character of the ghatwali tenure, the Govt., in case of breach of the condition to payment, is at liberty to forfeit the tenure and to take it away from the family of the defaulting ghatwal. When, his tenure is forfeited, the Govt. has a right to make a new grant to any person whom it may consider fit. Ordinarily, the Govt. should consider and respect the hereditary claim of the next heir of the dismissed ghatwal but he cannot force such claim upon the Govt. ——Ghatwali tenure—Incident of—Non-payment of rent—Effect.

A Govt. ghatwali tenure is not liable to be sold in execution of a decree for rent, though deliberate and persistent default on the part of the ghatwal to pay rent may constitute misconduct in relation to his office, for which he is liable to dismissal by Govt. 10 B.R. 234=A.I.R. 1943 P.C. 185=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 463=56 M.L.W. 741=1944 O.W.N. 11=48 C.W.N. 275=I.L.R. ——Ghatwali tenure—Incidents of Government ghatwali—Estate of Handwa held to be Government ghatwali—Taluq included in zemindari of another, whether by itself shows that Government ghatwali has ceased to be so.

The incidents of a Govt. ghatwali are that it is hereditary, indivisible and inalienable but the rule as to inalienability may be relaxed by the Govt. in certain cases and the tenure may be alienated by the special permission of the Government. A Govt. ghatwal, while he enjoys certain special privileges, also suffers from this disability that he can, at any time, be dismissed by the Govt. for misconduct. If the ghatwal holds the ghatwali tenure subject to the payment of a fixed and established annual sum and to the performance of certain duties for the maintance of the public peace, he will be liable to be dismissed by the Govt. on failure to discharge either of these obligations:

Held, that the Handwa estate was, in its origin, and has continued to be a Govt. ghatwali estate possessing all the incidents of a Govt. ghatwali. It is true that the ghatwali services have now lost their importance and the Govt. have practically ceased to be interested in them but there was, however, no proof in the record of this case that the Govt. have ever done anything to terminate the ghatwali character of the land.

Unless the inclusion of the tenure and assessment of the zemindari lands can be shown to have amounted to a release by the Govt. of the ghatwali service or to a grant to a third party of the right to receive them and of the right to appoint a ghatwal, the tenure must remain as it originally was, a Govt. tenure. It cannot be said that the Govt. ghatwal whose taluq is included in the zemindari of another person cannot continue to be a Govt. ghatwal. A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 306 14 Pat. 70=1 B.R. 77=157 Ind. Cas. 433.

——Ghatwali tenure—Incidents of.

Prima facie, the incidents of a ghatwali tenure or holding would relate to such matters as, for example, its permanancy, fixity of rent, heritability, and liability to attachment and sale in execution of decrees, and the acquisition of a right of occupancy, not by the ghatwal but by a raiyat under him in ghatwal land may also be an incident contemplated by that section or by the analogous provision contained in 181 of the Ben. Ten. Act. 13 P.L.T. 781=A.I.R. 1933 Pat. 52=142 Ind. Cas. 673 (2).

——Ghatwali tenure—Incidents of.

Ghatwals are the proprietors of the land and there is nothing in the Bengal (Birbhum) Ghatwali Land Regulation (XXIX of 1814) to take away their rights, the exercise of which came to be restricted, having regard to the local requirements and customs of the Santal village. A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 533.

The mouzahs held by ghatwals or digwars may be within the zemindari of the Raja in the geographical limits of whose zemindari they are situate or the ghatwals or digwars may hold directly of the sovereign power as co-ordinate with rather than subordinate to the Raja. ——Ghatwali tenure—Incidents of—Succession.

Ghatwali tenure is ordinarily hereditary, the estate descending to such male member of the family as the Zemindar approved as competent, and it is the right of the family, so long as they have male members competent to perform the duties, to have one or more of them appointed Ghatwals. The member appointed however, does not hold on behalf of the family, and the other members of the family have no rights in the land while it is in his hands as Ghatwali.

Where the Zeminder on being released from the performance of Ghatwali duties gave the pattah to four Ghatwals members of a family, granting the lands (which were till then subject to the Ghatwali tenure) in perpetuity on an annual fixed juma, held, that the members of the family other than the four grantees took no beneficiary interest in the lands granted. 46 Cal. 362=24 M.L-T. 407=28 C.L.J 508=9 L.W. 60=21 Bom. ——Ghatwali Tenure—Kakwara Ghatwali tenure, if Govt. or zemindari ghatwali—Sale in execution of decree obtained by zemindar for arrears of rent and cess—Failure of ghatwals in previous litigation to set up defence that tenure was Govt. tenure—Whether res judicata—Inference from.

On granting a sanad in 1717 to the then ghatwals of Kakwara, by Captain James Browne, their tenure became a Govt. ghatwali tenure.

Per Chatterji and Shearer, JJ.; Manohar Lall, J. (Contra.)—At present the Kakwara ghatwali tenure is not a Govt. ghatwali. Under the zemindar of Kharagpur in Bihar, it is a zemindari ghatwali. In execution of a decree for arrears of rent and cess obtained by the zemindar, the tenure is liable to be sold.

Per Manohar Lall, J.—The failure of the defendants in the earlier litigations which were the subject of appeals to the High Court and to their Lordships of the Judicial Committee, to set up a defence that Kakwara was a Govt. ghatwali when the distinction between the status of a Govt. ghatwal and that of a zemindari ghatwal was not fully comprehended, does not preclude them in subsequent litigation from now contending that Kakwara is such a ghatwali. No inference can be drawn from the failure of the ghatwals in the previous litigation to assert rights of the existence of which they may not have been aware. ——Ghatwali tenure—Occupancy rights.

The incidents of a ghatwali tenure widely differ in the different parts of the country in the case of all service tenures, they generally differ and before coming to a conclusion as to whether occupancy rights have accrued in respect of ghatwali lands by reason of a custom or usage to that effect, such custom or usage must be pleaded and evidence led as incidents of a ghatwali tenure are inconsistent with a right of occupancy rights in land subject to such ghatwali tenure. On principle, the lands given to the ghatwali should be returned to the land-lord free from any incumbrance or rights in favour of any other person. 84 Ind. Cas. 383 =6 P. L. T. 534=1924 P. H. C. 20 (r) Shikami ghatwali.

——Ghatwali tenure—Shikami ghatwali, incidents of—Lease, if enures beyond his life—Burden of service.

A shikami ghatwali cannot take upon itself a higher right than that of the ghatwali itself.

By their nature, ghatwalis are inalienable and the shikami ghatwalis are likewise inalienable.

A lease granted by a shikami ghatwal of Morrow cannot enure beyond his lifetime, and consequently his heir can resume it.

Per Muhammad Noor, J.—The burden of service is upon the entire tenure. Shikami means belly and shikami tenure is a tenure which has been carved out from the head tenure by sub-infeudation. This carving out does not relieve the shikami tenure of the liability of the service which attaches to the tenure as a whole. Therefore, if inalienability is attached as a necessary incident to a ghatwali tenure, it is attached to the shikami tenure as well. 13 P.L.T. 224=A.I.R. 1933 Pat. 117=139 Ind. Cas. 858.

——Ghatwali tenure—Shikami Ghatwali.

20 (s) Status of particular ghatwal.

——Ghatwali tenure—Status of particular ghatwal

The status of a particular ghatwal is to be determined upon a construction of the particular grant from which they derived their title and cannot be decided merely upon the analogy of other ghatwali estate. A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 306=14 Pat. 70=1 B.R. 77=157 Ind. Cas. 433.

20 (t) Tabedari.

——Ghatwali tenure — Tabedari — If ghatwali — Incidents.

The tabedari tenures are a form of inferior ghatwali tenures. The holder has an absolute power of alienation and that absolute power of alienation forms an integral portion of the ghatwal's right and interest in the ghatwali. Ghatwali tenure is ordinarily hereditary, the estate descending to such male member of the family as the zemindar approves as competent to perform the duties, and the member appointed does not hold on behalf of the family, and the other members have no rights in the land while it is in his hands as ghatwal. The nature of the tenure is not altered by the fact that the services are no longer performed by the holder. 19 P.L.T. 246=4 B.R. 388=A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 375=174 Ind. Cas. 168.

——Ghatwali tenure—Tenures governed by Bengal Ghatwali Land Regulation (XXIX of 1814).

A person may be a mourashi mokarraridar and also a ghatwal. The distinction between a ghatwali within the Regulation and ghatwali which is outside the Regulation is that in the former case there is no tenure between the zamindar and the ghatwal who holds direct from the Government, while in the latter the tenure exists. In the former case, while the lands of the ghatwali are still deemed to be within the zamindari, the zamindar no longer pays the Government revenue for them and has, therefore, no claim to the under ground rights; his only right connected with these lands is to receive the difference between the rent paid by the ghatwal and the amount of the Government revenue which was assessed on this part of the zamindari. If the Government does not claim the mineral rights there is no one to whom they can belong but the ghatwal. But in the latter case the zamindar still pays the Government revenue on these lands and if the ghatwal claims the minerals he must show some transaction which grants him the minerals either expressly or by necessary implication. 90 Ind. Cas. 513 =4 Pat. 799=A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 103.

20 (v) Transfer of.

——Ghatwali—Transfer of—Transferable right granted after auction sale of.

25. Headmanship.

——Headmanship — Incidents of — Headman system—Nature of.

Village headmanship is a tenancy to which an office is attached or vice versa and in which not only the headman but the raiyats are also interested. A headman may surrender his own interest but he cannot surrender the interest of his successors nor can he terminate the tenancy and deprive the raiyats of their customary right to have a headman.

Per Macpherson, J.—Subject to the basic fact that the headmanship system is the indigenous system of village tenancy, the case of each village falls to be decided on its own facts. The 'village headman' as defined in the Chota Nagpur Ten. Act and especially the aboriginal village headman suffers severely from the confusion caused by inadvertent (and sometimes the interested) extension of a name such as pradhan to non-aboriginal or even mere non-agricultural holders of a lease with no permanent right to renewal, and again by the similar extension in popular parlance of the name 'thikadar' with its basic implication of temporary tenancy to persons who have a permanent right in their tenancy subject only to periodical reassessment which generally involves enhancement of rent. In accordance with custom, that is to say, the system, the village is entitled to have a pradhan, the preferential right in a vacancy appertaining to the members of the village family.

As to the headmanship itself, it is generally difficult or impossible to describe it in ordinary legal terms. Indeed, attempts in that regard to Chota Nagpur institutions have been attended with so much peril that the Legislature, in desperation described the Mundari khunt-kattidari tenancy as "neither a tenure nor a holding." But whether the headmanship is an office with a tenancy annexed or is a tenancy with an office conjoined or whatever it is, it is always exceedingly inexpedient to attempt to interpret it in terms of ideas alien to the environment, the only safe course being to get the facts clear and in close detail for an estate first and then for the particular village. ——Hundwa tenure.

Hundwa tenure is a Government tenure. It is perpetual and hereditary. It is a service tenure and ghatwali in nature. 79 Ind. Cas. 825=28 C.W.N. 351=3 Pat. 183=5 P.L.T. 171=51 I.A. 37=34 M.L.T. 27=A.I.R. 1924 P.C. 5 (P.C.).

27. Inam. See: Grants—Inam.

28. Istimrari Mukarrari.

——Istimrari Mukarrari.

The phrase "Istimrari Mukarrari" in a Patta in District Hazaribag does not per se convey an estate of inheritance. But the Court is competent to see whether the other terms of the instrument, the circumstances under which it was made or the subsequent conduct of the parties show that the intention was to make the grant hereditary. 84 Ind. Cas. 586=4 Pat. 139=6 P.L.T. 12=1924 P.H.C.C. 313=A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 216.

In Chota Nagpur the terms istimrari mukarrari lease means a lease for life. 78 Ind. Cas. 511=3 Pat. 534=1924 P.H.C.C. 158=A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 572.

29. Jagir—See also Grant—Jaghir.

——'Jaigir'—Grant of land—Presumption—Landlord's right of resumption.

"Jaigir" etymologically means "Jai" a place "gir" holding and implies a tenure created by Mahomedan Government in favour of its servants whereby public revenue was assigned in lieu of services. It may be an assignment of revenue alone or it may comprise land also. But the mere use of the word "Jaigir" in the absence of other evidence does not connote that Jaigirdar was granted the land which constituted the Jaigir. The land-lord is unquestionably entitled to resume the grant either because he bas dispensed with the servries or because the grantee is not inclined to continue performance of the services. But the land-lord can resume nothing more than what he granted. If he fails to prove that what he granted was the land itself he could only be entitled to resume the quit rent, in other words, he will be entitled to the full assessment of the rent. Every case should be decided on its own merits and there can be no presumption of law or reasonable inference that the grant is of land from the mere fact that the grantor was the landlord and the grantee a tenant of his estate and that the grant as described was a jaigir. I.L.R. (1949) Cut. 186=A.I.R. 1949 Orissa 31.

——Jaghir—Jagodih tenure.

Maintenance grants in Ramgarh and Chota Nagpur, like jaghirs, are resumable on failure of the lineal male descendants of the grantee.

The holders of the Jagodih tenure have the status of dependant talukdars holding under the Ramgarh Raj and are to be considered as lease holders only within S. 7 of Regulation VIII of 1793. The tenure is a jagir tenure held under the Ramgarh Estate and is resumable on failure of the lineal male descendants of the grantee and it is not a shamilat or shikmi tenure in the sense in which those terms are used by the Revenue Officer in the Record of Rights published in 1914. 94 Ind. Cas. 1007=A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 369.

——Jagir—New settlement.

Where the jaghir was specifically mentioned as a service tenure involving the performance of police and other duties and a new settlement with the Taluqdar showed that the rent was increased from Rs. 735 to Rs. 1,000 four villages were taken out of the Pargana and set apart for the maintenance of the widows of the previous holder, and a new patta was granted to him be the Maharaja and a new Parvana was issued to him at the zamindar's instance for possession of the jaghir.

Held, in the face of these facts it is idle to contend that the settlement with the Taluqdar was a continuance of the old tenure. Had the Taluqdar succeeded to the jaghir by right of inheritance the maintenance of the Ranis, the widows, would have exclusively devolved on him and the superior land-lord would have had no concern with it or the right to take away any part of the property to provide for their maintenance. The Maharaja's interference on behalf of the widows is explainable only on one hypothesis, viz., that he was making a new arrangement by virtue of a right recognized by the authorities.

Resumption in connection with these service tenures does not mean that on failure of the direct male line it "escheats" to the zamindar and becomes what is called his Sir or Khas property; the jaghir retains its character, but the zamindar becomes entitled to make a new settlement with the knowledge and sanction of the authorities. 82 Ind. Cas. 879=28 C. W. N. 145=33 M.L.T. 408=1923 M.W.N. 702=A.I.R. 1923 P.C. 217 (P. C.).

——Jagir—Hereditary tenure.

If descent from one to another heir, that is from father to son, is proved by long uninterrupted usage, the inference would be that the grant was one of inheritancee, because the descent from father to son is the strongest possible evidence of hereditary character. 18 C.L.J. 277=18 C.W.N. 297=21 Ind. Cas. 481.

——Jagir—Police tenure in Pachete Raj—Incidents of.

Police jagirs in Pachete Zamindari are hereditary though the Government could dismiss the heir and appoint a stranger if it so chose. The appointee in such a case takes by vismajor and not under the last holder. If the jagir is sold in execution, the heir of the jagirdar gets nothing. 3 Pat. L.W. 149=2Pat. L. 33. Kasavargam Tenure.

——Kasavargam tenure—Kasavargamdar doing Gurukkal service—If amounts to holding under temple.

Mere doing of Gurukkal service by a kasavaragamdar, in the absence of proof of title in the temple, will not raise a presumption that the kasavargamdar was holding under the temple though it was the only person whom he was serving. 13 Ind. Cas, 660 (Mad.).

——Kasavargam—Incidents of.

The following incidents of the Kasavargam tenancy are recognised by usage in the Tanjore District. (1) the Manaikat or site is the property of the Mirasdars; the kasavargamdar has no proprietary interest in it, but he is the owner of the building on it. (2) The kasavargamdar holds the Manaikat free of rent, or for a nominal rent on condition that he performs services as an artisan or otherwise for the mirasidars. (3) The kasavargamdar cannot transfer the Manaikat to another but on his death, it passes to his heirs. (4) The Mirasidar can eject the kasavargamdar forthwith if the latter refuses the customary services. (5) The kasavargamdar ejected must be compensated by the Mirasdar for any house erected on the land during the tenancy. 22 M.L.J. 1=10 M.L.T. 341=12 Ind. Cas. 414.

34. Kasbati Tenure.

——Kasbati—Leasehold interest—Pattas—Bombay Acts VI of 1862 and 1868—Cession of territory—Effect of.

The predecessor in title of the defendant had been kasbati of a village in Pargana Viramgan at the time of the cession of the Distract to the British Government of Bombay. The Government had granted pattas from time to succeeding kasbatis regulating the terms and conditions of the tenancy. The defendant claimed that he had a proprietary interest in the village. Held, that whatever rights the kasbatis might have had under the native Government, only a leasehold interest had been conferred on them by the British Government and that they had therefore no proprietary right. Bom. Act, VI of 1862 does not apply to kasbatis nor does Bombay Act VI of 1888 confer on a kasbati holding greater rights than those under the patta. 39 Bom. 625=42 I.A. 229=19 C. W. N. 1087=13 A. L. 35. Kattuguthagai.

——Kattuguthagai—Nature of.

The kattuguthagai tenure may be granted for diverse purposes and not merely for military services.

Kattuguthagai is in essence a lease or grant of land at a favourable rent and is not limited to an interest limited to revenue. There is nothing in the term itself from which one is entitled to infer that what was handed over was only the melvaram. 55 M.L.W. 356=A.I.R. 1942 P.C. 21=1942 M.W.N. 509=8 B.R. 685=I.L.R. 36. Kavimeras.

——Kavimeras—Karvetnagar zamindari — Right of payment out of melavaram—Collections, nature of.

The right to recover kavimeras from persons in possession of the different portions of the former karvetnagar zamindari is a right to receive a small fraction of the zamindar's melavaram in each village in the zamindari. The liability is not a personal one but is by virtue tenure. So long as any person is in possession of the village out of whose income the mera is payable, he is subject to the liability which is not one arising out of his having wrongly made a collection of what he was not entitled to collect but one arising from the fact that out of the collection which he is entitled to make as a zamindar, he is bound to make the disbursement and appropriate only the balance. In that sense and to that extent it is a personal liability and it is not one resting on a covenant but is in the nature of charge. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 47=1937 M.W.N. 899=176 Ind. Cas. 247=46 M.L.W. 358.

37. Kayamgeni.

——Kayamgeni tenure (South Kanera)—Burden of proof—Uniform payment of rent—Evidentiary value—Finding of permanancy—Second appeal—Interference.

When a person has once become a tenant under a land-lord, he could not, by merely denying the rights of the land-lord, convert his possession, permissive as it was originally, into adverse possession, against the land-lord.

When a tenant of lands in India, in a suit by his land-lord to eject him from them, sets up a defence that he has a right of permanent tenancy in the land, the onus of proving that he has such right is upon the tenant. This principle is applicable to South Kanara as to other parts of India.

Possession for a long period and payment of a uniform rate of rent might not by themselves, be enough to prove that the defendants are kayamgeni tenants and not liable to be ejected. But when the lower Courts have come to a finding upon these as well as other facts that a tenure is a kayamgeni tenure, the High Court cannot interfere in second appeal. (1930) M.W.N. 874=35 M.L.W. 400= A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 577=133 Ind. Cas. 369.

38. Khaekar tenure.

——Khaekar tenure—Rights of khaekars— Hissedar not in actual possession of khaekar land recorded in his name as khudkasht—If acquires title in it.

The pucca khaekars are, in all respects, equal to proprietors with the exception that they cannot sell their holding, and pay small sums called malikana, in addition to the quota of revenue due from the land recorded in their names. The proprietors or hissedars have no power to interfere with these khaekars or their land, waste or cultivated, and on the death of a khaekar without direct heirs, the lapsed holding reverts to the whole community of khaekars and not to the hissedar.

If a hissedar brings fallow land under plough and actually cultivates it himself, he will be entitled to retain possession of the same, but he can acquire no title in khaekar land which is not in his actual possession and is merely recorded in his name as khudkasht.

In pacca khaikari village, there is usually a ghar-pradhan, but it does not follow there from that if there is no ghar padhan in a village, the village is necessarily a kachacha khaikari village.

39. Khoti land.

——Khoti land.

A purchaser of Khoti Khasgi lands from one of the co-sharers Khots, would be liable to pay Faida unless he was able to show that by virtue of some custom or agreement amongst the Khots the Faida was not payable. 68 Ind. Cas. 335=24 Bom. L.R. 358=46 Bom. 819=A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 235.

——Khoti tenure—Khots have a right to cultivate land left dry in a river adjoining their land.

Where the Khots of a village claimed a right to occupy and cultivate land left dry in the river-bed as far as the middle of the bed opposite their villages: Held, that they were entitled to this right and that S. 37 of the Land Revenue Code was not a bar to such a right. Held, further, that the soil of land covered with water may, together with the water and the right of fishing therein, be specially appropriated to a third person, whether he has land or not on the border thereof or adjacent thereto. 31 B. 456=9 Bom. L.R. 719.

40. Khudkhast and Sir lands.

——Khudkhast and Sir lands.

Bakasht conveys the same meaning as khudkhast—It might imply raiyati lands temporarily come into possession of land-lord and under his cultivation.

The term 'bakasht' invented by the Revenue Officers to meet a certain contingency conveys to all intents and purposes the same meaning as khudkhast which is admittedly the same as sir or zerait. It might, however, imply raiyati lands that had temporarily come into the possession of the land-lord and were temporarily under cultivation. 97 Ind. Cas. 217=5 Pat. 735=53 I.A. 176=7 P.L.T. 483=31 C.W.N. 341=A.I.R. 1926 P.C. 60 (P.C.).

——Khudkhast—Purchase of sir rights.

Sir rights, though they can only be held by a proprietor, are something beyond and apart from the mere proprietary right. The right of a sir holder is a right to exclusive possession coupled with the fact that no person cultivating under him can acquire occupancy rights.

In a joint undivided village each proprietor may have his own separate sir although the proprietary rights in the whole village are joint.

The acquisition of sir rights by purchase is not allowed. Where the entire sir has been sold and the purchaser obtained actual cultivatory possession, the land is treated as his khudkhast and not as his sir.

The purchaser of the rights of three out of four joint holders of sir rights can be ejected by the fourth owner if he takes possession of that owner's portion. In such a case, a person jointly interested in the sir khata does not lose his sir rights. 80 Ind. Cas. 899=A.I.R. 1925 All. 93.

41. Khuntkatiar tenure holders.

——Khuntkatiar tenure holders—Status of—Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act.

Although there is no provision in the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act giving any permanent rights to khuntkatidar tenure-holders, it cannot be said that in every case when the khuntkatidars are entered in the khewat as tenure-holders it must be held as a matter of law that they are merely temporary tenure-holders. 223 Ind. Cas. 615=12 B.R. 446=1946 P.W.N. 262=27 P.L.T. 259=A.I.R. 1946 Pat. 313.

42. Kumaki lands.

——Kumaki lands.

In the case of lands in South Canara it is usual for pattadars to occupy lands adjoining their patta lands for the purpose of convenient enjoyment of their holdings under patta or for purpose of cultivation, etc. The Government generally grants such land known as kumki land on darkhast to the pattadars. When the land is kumki granted on darkhast, any right previously granted by the wargdor in favour of a tenant as regards the kumki land comes to an end, and even if there is a mortgage right on the land created by the wargdor it comes to an end as soon as the grant is made by the Government to the wargdor or any other person. 35 M.L.J. 120, Foll. 88 Ind. Cas. 924=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 1226.

——Kumaki land—South Kanara—Warg—Grant to wargdar—Effect of.

Where a wargdar mortgaged usufructuarily certain warg land and the adjoining kumaki land and subsequently the Government assigned the kumaki land on Dharghast to the mortgagor the lands so assigned belong to the mortgagor absolutely and do not enure to the benefit of the mortgagee. 8 M.L.W. 100=35 M.L.J. 120=49 Ind. Cas. 147.

——Kumaki land—South Kanara—Transfer of.

Kumaki lands are waste land adjoining warg lands, and a kumaki privilege is the right which the ryot holding the warg land has to collect the leaves for manure and to pasture his cattle as an assistance to the cultivation of the warg land. 28 M. 257 Ref. These kumaki privileges are extinguishable by Government, which may assign the land over which they are exercised to persons other than the holder. 12 M. 422; 28 M. 527, Ref. 15 Ind. Cas. 278 (Mad.).

43. Lakheraj tenure.

——Lakheraj tenure—Right of Government to assess to revenue—Limitation.

The right of the Govt. to assess lakheraj lands to revenue becomes barred by the lapse of sixty years A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 368=60 C.L.J. 477=62 C. 346=159 Ind. Cas. 98.

——Lakheraj tenure—Suit for resumption—Burden of proof.

In a suit to assess or resume a lakheraj tenure on the allegation that it came into existence since 1790, the burden is on the plaintiff to prove that the land was assessed to revenue, it is not enough for him to show that the lands fell within the geographical limits of his revenue-paying estate. A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 446=36 C.W.N. 215=59 C. 629=138 Ind. Cas. 157.

44. Manibaam (Madras).

——Manibaam — Madras Manibaam lands — Enfranchisement—Issue of inam title—Non-mention of cess—Whether relieves grantee of liability to pay it.

In a case where manibaam lands were enfranchised and inam title issued declaring that the quit rent imposed is to be paid to Govt., the non-mention of the cess in the inam title does not relieve the grantee from the liability to pay the cess even granting that previous to the enfranchisement, such liability existed. A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 718=(1935) M.W.N. 897=42 M.L.W. 583=160 Ind. Cas. 680.

45. Mulguzars.

——Mulguzars—Central Provinces—Whether de facto and de jure proprietors of land.

Obiter, per Niyogi, J.—The mulguzors are de facto and de jure proprietors of the mahal the land revenue of which they have agreed to pay by accepting the settlement, and the subordinate tenures like the absolute occupancy and the occupancy are carved out of his primary proprietary right. The definitions of the terms "land-lord" and "tenant" contained in the Ten. Act leave no manner of doubt that the origin of their relationship to each other is contract. It is true that the conditions of the contract are not left to be fixed by the parties themselves but they are regulated by statute. That, however, does not affect their fundamental relation being contractual. The limitations put by the Act upon the rights of the malguzars cannot be interpreted as negativing the right itself. Consequently the imposition by law of certain restrictions on the exercise of malguzari rights cannot be interpreted as involving the denial or annihilation of those rights. As the result of the proprietary award of 1864, the status which formed the basis of relation between the malguzars and ryots was replaced by contract, and the custom which regulated their relation by statute.

Obiter, per Bose, J.—(Creation of malguzari system in Central Provinces and its history traced.) A.I.R. (1940) Nag. 49=I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 348=1940 N. L. J. 121=186 Ind. Cas. 731 (F.B.).

46. Mirasi tenure.

——Mirasi tenure—Nature of.

Per Wassoodew, J.—The term "mirasdar" is usually applied to denote heritability and also permanency of occupation. It is undoubtedly qualified by the obligation assumed by the tenant to remain in possession so long as he pays the inamdar or the land-lord the customary rent or the rent agreed upon between them. So long as he does that, he can enjoy the land from generation to generation. A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 268=44 Bom. L. R. 534=I.L.R. (1942) Bom. 595=203 Ind. Cas. 238.

——Mirasi inam village.

Where, in a mirasi village, new tenants are introduced into uncultivated land, the melvaramdars alone are the land-lords of the village. Even if some payment described as thunduvaram is due to the mirasidars, this payment cannot be regarded as indicative of the character of the mirasidars as land-lords. It must be regarded as the customary payment due to the mirasidars on account of their preferential right in the village. The right to the thunduvaram can only be regarded as the present remnant of a customary right the origin of which is lost in obscurity and cannot be accurately analysed from the point of view of modern legal notions.

Where, in such a case, the tenants have been in possession for over a century without executing muchilikas, they cannot be regarded as ejectable at the option of the mirasidars or of anybody. A.I.R. 1934 Mad. 275 =154 Ind. Cas. 294.

——Mirasi tenure—Hereditary right—Onus of proof.

The nature and extent of mirasdars rights in Miras village vary from place to place in the Madras presidency and the onus is on the mirasdars to prove that any specified incident attaches to miras rights in any particular district. 'Miras' right to cultivable land does not mean absolute ownership; it is only a preferential right. The right of cultivable waste is again a matter for proof. So in the absence of any reliable evidence, apart from opinions expressed by some of the witnesses, no assumption can be made that, because the plaintiff is styled Ekabhogam mirasdar, and has hitherto been the sole pattadhar in a village close to the Chingleput border, he must have such rights and privileges. 32 M.L.W. 945=60 M.L.J. 137=A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 135=132 Ind. Cas. 117.

——Mirasi tenure.

Where the son and successor of a Vatandar was aware of a permanent lease made by his father and for over twenty years received the rent under the permanent lease from the lessee, Held, the lessee could not be evicted at least during the life-time of the vatandar who had so continued the permanent tenancy. 117 Ind. Cas. 438=31 Bom. L.R. 218=A.I.R. 1929 Bom. 174.

——Mirasi tenure—Incidents of.

The special incidents of mirasi tenures are somewhat varied in different villages. Sometimes the mirasidars have got some special rights over waste lands. Some portion of the village land is joint for all the mirasidars and is known as samudayam. Sometimes they are subject to a payment of kist to Government only if they cultivate and they have got the option to cultivate or not if they like. Where the land not held by the original mirasidars is leased out by Government to new tenants or non-mirasidars, the original mirasidars and their descendants have a right to get some special fee from the new tenants called swatanthrams. The mirasidars themselves are regarded as occupancy tenants and their under-tenants known as payakaris have in general no occupancy rights. The share paid by the payakaris is called thunduvaram. The mirasi right is held in shares, pangus, sometimes specified lands being allotted to each pangu and sometimes the pangus not being defined with reference to the lands. Where one Mirasidar is the sole tenant of all the lands of the village he is then known as ekabhogam Mirasidar. The muchilikas executed by the tenants in favour of the mirasidars where they indicate absolute rights of the mirasidar are described as swanubhogam muchilikas. 40 Mad. 410 (F.B.), Ref. 119 Ind. Cas. 577=29 M.L.W. 760=1929 M.W.N. 239=A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 529.

——Mirasi tenure—Suit for partition.

Samudayam tenure is a holding in common by the village community known as the mirasidars.

Karaiyeedu tenure consists in a system of shifting severalty of ownership the village lands being redistributed among the mirasidars at intervals. A suit brought for the partition of the village lands and for change to individual ownership lies whether the tenure of the village is Samudayam tenure or the Karaiyeedu tenure. 78 Ind. Cas. 37=20 M.L.W. 122=A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 741.

——Mirasi tenure—Grant of proprietary rights.

Plaintiffs were mirasidars under-defendants under Miraspatras of 1859 and 1864 which recited that the grantee would bring the land under cultivation. The quit rent was fixed as the assessment which would be imposed at the survey less the sum of Rs. 50. Beyond this no right was reserved to the Inamdars. The deed contained expressly that the Inamdars "have no right or claim whatsoever to the said lands," and allowed the grantee the right to recover any sort of tax or cess —Kulbab Kulkanu—from those who held under him. On the introduction of the Survey Settlement building fine was levied on the mirasidar under rules made under Ss. 65 and 48 of the Land Revenue Code. Plaintiff sued for declaration that he was not liable to pay the fine.

Held, the deed did in fact give the plaintiff rights which might be described as those of a sub-inamdar and they were entitled to a declaration that they were not liable to pay building fine to the inamdar and to an injunction restraining the Inamdar from collecting such fines through the collector. 76 Ind. Cas. 897= 24 Bom. L.R. 1040=A.I.R. 1923 Bom. 79.

——Mirasi tenure—Gramanatham Lands —Suit for recovery of possession by land-holder—Plaintiffs being one of the co-owners whether a bar—Gramanatham land whether communal property.

In a suit by the land-holder to recover possession of some Gramanatham land which was occupied by the defendant sometime in 1936, the defences were (1) that the plaintiff being one of the co-owners of the inam village in which the suit property was situated was not entitled to institute the suit in ejectment; (2) that plaintiff was not owner of the land and that it was communal property and he had therefore no title to eject; and (3) that the plaintiff had no possession within 12 years prior to date of institution of suit,

Held: (1) Apart from the fact that the plaintiff was recognised as the land-holder under the Madras Estates Land Act, he was entitled to institute a suit in ejectment against a trespasser.

(2) Gramanatham is not communal property in the sense in which village thrashing floor or burning grounds or other property is communal, that is property reserved for the use of the community. Further, this particular property in an inam village not being a communal poromboke plaintiff would be entitled to sue for recovery of possession. (1939) M.W.N 207, relied on.

(3) The present suit having been filed within 12 years from 1936 when the defendant admittedly trespassed into the property the suit was not barred. 62 M.L.W. 204=1949 M.W.N. 139=A.I.R. 1949 Mad. 814=(1949) 1 M.L.J. 290.

——Mirasi rights—Gramanatham — Proprietary rights in—Proof of.

To establish proprietary right to property registered as natham, there must be evidence that the same was dedicated or set apart for the purposes alleged. 115 Ind. Cas. 241=29 M.L.W. 229=56 M.L.J. 38.

——Mirasi—Gramanatham—Rights of Government and of Mirasdars—Grant of house site by Government—Mirasdar's suit for recovery—Recognition of mirasi rights by the State.

Per Wallis, C. J.—There is no general presumption of Mirasdar's ownership of Nattam in the absence of evidence of user, but where user is shown the presumption of ownership readily arises. Before the advent of British rule and especially under the Munammadan rule occupied Nattam was not generally recognised by Government as the private property of the Mirasdars and their ownership has not been established subsequently either by Government recognition or by judicial decisions. Per Wallis, C, J. and Ayling, J.—The preferential right of a mirasdar to cultivate waste does not entitle him to eject persons who have got Nattam from Government but entitles him to the sites if necessary. Per Ayling, J.—The rule is inapplicable in cases in which Mirasdars have prior to the grant by Government already acquired a title to the particular site either by previous grant or prescription. Though all the incidents of a Mirasi tenure may have a common origin in the status of the Mirasdar, none of them necessarily involves the other. Each requires to be separately established and recognition by the State whether express, or implied, is an indispensable condition for the enforcement of each. Per Kumaraswami Sastri, J.—In Mirasi villages the rights of Government over waste including Nattam and Cheri are subject to the rights of the Mirasdars. The nature and extent of such rights are not uniform throughout the Presidency but vary, and the onus is on the Mirasdars to prove that any specified incidents atttach to Mirasi rights in any particular district there being no presumption that Gramanatham is the exclusive property of the Mirasdars. The rights of Mirasdars over waste are not extinguished by the mere fact the Government grants pattas to strangers. 40 Mad. 410=32 M.L.J. (Sup.) 1=40 Ind. Cas. 909 (F.B.)

——Mirasi—Rights of Mirasdar—Irrigation—Government tank.

Where a part of the source of irrigation for a ryotwari village is a Government tank, Mirasdars who have from time immemorial cultivated their wet lands with the tank water, have a preferential right to irrigate from the tank, over the assignees of waste land from the Government. 51 Ind. Cas. 734 (Mad.)

——Mirasi—Chingleput District — Subordinate proprietors—Swatantram—Ullkudi.

In a mirasi tenure, produce of land is divided into (1) Melvaram or the Royal share, (2) Thunduvaram or Landlord's, share and (3) Kudiwaram or the occupant's share. The history of the Mirasi tenure in the Chingelput District discussed.

A Payakar whom a Mirasidar introduces for cultivation purposes, if he permanently settles in the village and his descendants enjoy the lands as tenants for about 100 years, becomes an Ullkudi Payakar with permanent rights of occupancy and acquires in a sense Kudivaram rights.

Swatantrams include Thunduvaram and mean a certain portion of the gross produce raised by Ullkudi tenants and due to the Mirasidar.

The presumption in the case of an Inamdar is that at the time of the grant of the inam, he is not the owner of the Kudivaram right. (20 Ind. Cas. 374 and 8 Ind. Cas. 365 Dis.)

But in the case of a Mirasidar in Chingleput District to whom an inam was granted long ago it cannot be said that there is a presumption against his owning the Kudivaram right.

A Mirasidar owning the Kudivaram right in the lands in the village is called an Ekabhogam Mirasidar. 1 M.L.W. 41=26 M.L.J. 169=23 Ind. Cas. 113.

47. Mokhasa.

——Mokhasa.

Mokhasa is a well-known tenure in Northern Sircars. It implies a tenure subject to service. 1930 M.W.N. 945.

——Mokhasa—Definition of.

Mokhasa is a well known tenure in the Northern Circars and is a tenure subject to service and consists of a village or land assigned to an individual either rent free or at a low quit rent on condition of service. 26 M. 403.

48. Mortgage.

——Mortgage—Not adhlaphi tenure.

One half of a certain area of land was sold and the vendee was to sink a well but not at his own expense, it being specifically agreed that the vendor would pay half of the total expenditure incurred on the sinking of the well and the preparation of the ground for cultivation. The vendee was to be in possession of half of the land not sold, and, out of the produce thereof, recover half of the expenditure which was payable by the vendor and the vendee was to keep strict accounts of the expenses and income.

Held, that the transaction was a lekhamukhi mortgage and an adhlaphi tenure was not created. 101 Ind. Cas. 549=9 L.L.J. 63=28 P.L.R. 123=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 828.

——Mortgage—Biswi mortgage.

Where land held by tenant is mortgaged by the proprietor to the tenant in consideration of money paid by the latter, it is not unusual for the tenant to appropriate a portion of the rent, for which he was originally liable, towards interest due on his loan and to pay the balance, known as paramsana, to the mortgagor. Biswi is the name usually given in Eastern Oudh to mortgages of this kind. The extinction of the right of redemption of this kind does not destroy the right of the mortgagor or his successors to claim the paramsana as rent for the paramsana does not fall within the rights to which the mortgagee is entitled. 67 Ind. Cas. 808=9 O. L. J. 141=A.I.R. 1922 Oudh 75.

49. Mukkaddami tenure.

——Mukkaddami tenure.

In the absence of any special evidence to the contrary, the fact of a person holding land under what is known as a 'mukkaddami' tenure does not imply that the mukkaddam has any heritable or transferable right in the holding. 1900 A.W.N. 197=23 A. 67.

50. Mukarrari lease.

——Mukarrari lease—Arrears of rent—Sale of tenure.

The land-lord has the right to sell the mukarrari tenure for arrears of rent. Such a right exists even if not expressly given in the kabuliyat. A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 566=8 B.R. 507=199 Ind. Cas. 169.

——Mukarrari lease—Record of rights showing another person as holding under zemindar — Suit for declaration of incorrectness of Record of Rights—Parties.

Where, according to the original mukarrari granted to the plaintiff's transferor, no right or interest was reserved by the zemindar except that to receive the rent reserved, and a subsequently prepared Record of Rights showed certain other persons as holding under the zemindar:

Held, that the Record of Rights was incorrect and a suit for declaration that the Record of Right was incorrect would not be bad for non-joinder of the villagers as parties to the suit. A.I.R. 1933 Pat. 259=144 Ind. Cas. 753.

——Mukarrari lease.

Though there is no presumption that a permanent lease should, at the same time, be mukarrari, the express mention of the word "mukarrari" is not necessary to create a permanent lease at a fixed rent. 58 C. 1046=A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 73=36 C.W.N. 178=134 Ind. Cas. 1130.

51. Mulgeni tenure.

——Mulgeni tenure—Sub-tenancy—Right of land-lord to recover rent.

A land-lord has the right to recover the rent on his lands direct from the permanent sub-tenants of the original mulgeni tenant. 22 Bom. L. R. 118=55 Ind. Cas. 540.

——Mulgeni — Death of tenant — Escheat to Government or to mulgar.

The rights of a mulgenidar do not escheat to the Government on his dying without issue but revert back to the mulgar from whom the mulgeni was acquired. A mulgeni is of the same character as a permanent lease. 30 A. 489; 17 C. 826; 1 C. 391 Dist. 42 Mad. 327=36 M.L.J. 207=(1919) M.W.N. 366=26 M.L.T. 270=49 Ind. Cas. 695.

——Mulgeni lease—Trees—Right of lessee to cut.

A mulgeni tenant in South Canara cannot cut trees existing at the date of the grant. A lessee can remove trees planted by him after the commencement of the lease, and trees and plants of spontaneous growth, provided he restores the land in status quo ante at the end of his lease. 29 M.L.J. 314=18 M.L.T. 218=(1915) M.W.N. 226=31 Ind. Cas. 12.

——Mulgeni—Registration.

The T. P. Act does not apply to mulgeni leases. When the defendant has been asserting for 40 years that he has mulgeni rights to the land, the inference is that the defendant had such rights though there is no registered lease. (1915) M. W. N. 271=28 Ind. Cas. 599.

——Mulgeni—Incidents of—South Canara.

The Mulgeni tenure is permanent, inheritable and also alienable in some cases by the conditions of the Mulgeni chit, but in all cases perpetual, though subject to forfeiture in some cases. The lessor has a reversion or a possibility of a reverter and a right to an annual rent but cannot determine the tenancy with notice nor will it be terminated by efflux of time. 5 M.L.T. 37=4 Ind. Cas. 1091.

——Mulgeni or Chalgeni tenure—Presumption.

In South Canara, there is no presumption that a tenancy is either chalgeni or mulgeni. Proof of immemorial possession at a uniform rent will raise a presumption in favour of mulgeni in which the onus will be on the land-lord to prove that the tenure was only chalgeni. 30 M. 528.

——Mulgeni tenure — Increase in Government assessment—Liability to pay — Mulgar liable to pay.

In the case of Mulgeni tenures in South Canara, if the Mulgenidar pays the increase of revenue, he is entitled to recover it back from the Mulgar (under S. 35 of the Revenue Recovery Act), in the absence of any provision in the Mulgeni Chit about the liability to pay the increase in Government assessment, the Mulgar being the "land-holder" within the meaning of the Revenue Recovery Act, even though it may be that both the Mulgar and the Mulgenidar will have to bear the burden in equitable proportion but for S. 35 of the Madras Revenue Recovery Act. 20 M.L.J. 640=8 M.L.T. 173=7 Ind. Cas. 321=1910 M.W.N. 333=34 Mad. 231 (F.B.).

——Mulgeni tenure—Increase in assessment—Liability to pay—Interest on arrears of rent payable in kind.

Under the terms of a Mulgeni lease executed on the 25th September 1869, the Mulgenidar (tenant) agreed to pay the mulgar (lessor) rent of five and a quarter khandies of rice every year, and the latter to pay the Government assessment of Rs. 6-14-6. It was also agreed that the rent settled should not be reduced or enhanced. At the revised survery settlement the assessment was increased to Rs. 16-12-0. The mulgar then having sued the tenant for the arrears of rent for six years preceding the suit, with interest, the tenant claimed refund of the increased assessment which he paid and for which the mulgar was liable:—

Held, (1) that the amount of assessment of Rs. 6-14-6 mentioned in the lease as being payable by the mulgar, must be deemed to refer to the assessment as it then existed irrespective of the question of its reduction or enhancement thereafter; that therefore, the mulgar remained liable to pay the enhanced assessment; (2) that as the rent was payable in kind, the arrears of rent were not such a debt as was contemplated by the interest Act, 1839 which required that it must be a debt or sum certain at the time when the promise was made to bring it within the operation of the Act, and there was no debt certain at that time because the market value of rice then need not have necessarily been the same as the market value at the time of the breach of the contract; (3) that neither was interest recoverable under S. 73 of the Indian Contract Act 1872, as damages for breach of contract to pay rent, since a suit to recover the money value of the rent in kind was a suit to recover unliquidated damages which were measured by the market value of the goods delivered under the contract on the day they ought to have been, but were not delivered, and interest could not run upon unliquidated damages. 12 Bom. L.R. 831=8 Ind. Cas. 411.

52. Mul-raiyati tenure.

——Mul-raiyati tenure — Sonthal Pergannas — When transferable—Whole or portion—Mustagir, rights of.

The rights of a mul-raiyat, who is a village headman or settlement holder in the Sonthal pergannas, are in their entirety transferable, saleable and attachable. The privilege which a mul-raiyat possesses of transfering his tenure must be exercised in respect of the whole tenure at the same time in other words, if he chooses to transfer his tenure, he must alienate the whole of his rights in the village including his right of managing the village and collecting the rent as also his right to the land in his possession. He cannot split up the tenure so as to part with a portion and retain the remainder. A sale of a portion of the tenure confers no title on the purchaser. The right of a mustagir is not absolutely restricted to the collection of rent from ordinary raiyats. The rights of a mul-raiyat and of a mustagir explained. 2 C. L. J. 77=32 C. 1014.

53. Nadgi tenure.

——Nadgi tenure—Neglect by tenant.

If a nadgi tenure-holder neglects to cultivate the land allows the hut to go into disrepair, carries away some of the building materials himself, and allows the rest to be stolen by others, he is liable to be evicted from his holding at the instance of the land-lord.

No definite rule can be laid down that the over-lord in nadgi tenure has to bear the expense of all improvements. 86 Ind. Cas. 24=27 Bom. L.R. 82= A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 178.

54. Nankar.

——Nankar—Grant—Presumption.

A right to nankar is as a rule, to be considered an under-proprietary right of a heritable and transferable nature though a person in receipt of such allowance cannot necessarily be considered to be the under-proprietor of lands of which he may be in possession. This will depend upon the circumstances of each case.

Where a nankar has not been decreed by a Settlement Court or where a person is not shown to have been in enjoyment thereof since the time when he lost his zemindari right and where it is shown that he has been granted those rights at a subsequent time it should be open to the zemindar to show that at the time when such grant was made it did not carry with it an estate of inheritance or transferability but was merely a grant of a personal character, limited to the life or lives of the person or persons to whom it has been granted. If, however, this is not proved by the land-lord and the mere fact that a nankar has been granted to the persons who were old proprietors is established then the presumption would be, unless shown to the contrary, that the grant was in lieu of old proprietary right of a heritable and transferable character. This would especially be the case where the person to whom the grant was made happened to be a former proprietor of the village and where the entry of the rights was to be found in the under-proprietary register. 115 Ind. Cas. 109=A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 348.

A Noabad Taluk is a tenure, the land being Khas Mahal land of Government. 20 C.W.N. 636=32 Ind. Cas. 752.

——Noabad Mahal—Nature of right.

A Noabad Mahal implies a herditary and transferable title in perpetuity subject to rent for all lands under cultivation. 18 C.W.N. 531=24 Ind. Cas. 65.

——Noabad Mahal — Temporary Settlement — Resettlement—Area, if must be same.

A temporary settlement-holder, especially an intermediate holder for 10 years, is not entitled to a settlement of the same area at the same rate, though he may have a preferential right to the fersh settlement the Government makes at the expiry of the old settlement. 13 C.W.N. 235=9 C.L.J. 265=4 Ind. Cas. 49.

——Noabad Mahal—Collector, power of—Government obligation of.

In a Noabad taluk, the Collector cannot, in subsequent years, during the pendency of a completed settlement interfere with the arrangement of the Settlement Officer.

The Government is not bound to include any lands in a Noabad talukdar's tenure according to the boundaries or dags of any former survey. 9 C.L.J. 265 =13 C.W.N. 235=4 Ind. Cas. 49.

——Noabad Mahal in Chittagong District—Incidents.

Where the question was whether a certain mahal, known as Mahal Noabad Taraf Joy Narain Ghosal in the District of Chittagong was a part of the permanently settled 'taraf' of the proprietor or consisted merely of ordinary 'noabad' lands temporarily settled and liable to periodical re-settlement and annexed to the proprietor's taraf for convenience only:—Held, — That the special history of the tenure from 1763 when it was created showed that the mahal was neither the one nor the other. The mere fact that a mahal is 'noabad' mahal does not necessarily attach to it the incidents of ordinary 'noabad' properties of later creation. All 'noabad' mahals of Chittagong have this in common that the proprietors have to pay rent or revenue to Government. But the incidents of different noabad mahals vary very greatly. The incidents of the present mahal determined, and held mainly upon the basis of a kabuliyat executed by the proprietors in favour of the Government in 1852, that the revenue was fixed in perpetuity on the hasila area only. 11 C.W.N. 928.

57. Non-transferable holding.

——Non-transferable holding—Surrender—Kabs possession.

A non-transferable occupancy holding was sold in execution of a money decree on the raiyat's refusal to leave possession; the transferee and the raiyat divided the holding between them. The transferee executed a conveyance for the portion retained by the raiyat who executed a deed of collusive surrender of the whole field in favour of the land-lord while remaining in possession. The land-lord's suit for khas possession failed as the surrender being unreal and did not terminate the tenancy. 20 C.W.N. 610=33 Ind. Cas. 611.

——Non-transferable holding—Talukdar, if can convert into transferable holding—Execution.

Held, that the tenure created under a compromise decree was not an under-proprietory tenure and could not be sold in execution. A Talukdar cannot convert a non-transferable tenure into a transferable one without the consent of the tenure holder. 12 O. C. 267=3 Ind. Cas. 868.

58. Occupancy right.

See also: Land tenures—Ryotwari—Occupancy rights.

——Occupancy rights—Assam Land and Revenue Regulation (1 of 1886)S. 71—Possession of pasuidar under trespasser — Co-sharers — Surrender by some.

The continuous possession for twelve years which is the subject of S. 6 of the Act VIII of 1869 must be possession under one and the same right. This right might have been in its inception joint with other person and by the death of co-sharers ultimately becomes a sole right without its continuous nature being affected.

Where there was a surrender by the co-sharers and a confirmatory patta was granted in favour of one of them:

Held, that the right was continuous for the purpose of S. 6. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 590=37 C.W.N. 1009=60 Cal. 1287=144 Ind. Cas. 808.

59. Opinion of settlement officers.

——Opinion of settlement officers—Value of.

It is now well-settled that opinions of officers expressed in Settlement Reports regarding the nature of a tenure, although entitled to weight, cannot form the basis of a judicial decision. A.I.R. 1948 Pat. 448.

60. Paikan land.

——Paikan land—Transfer without consent of temple authorities—Validity.

A transfer of the paikan land (i. e.) land held by Paiks of the temple on condition of rendering services to the deity, is not absolutely void. The temple authorities may consent to or acquiesce in the transfer. They may accept services from a non-paik transferee or if he is not capable of rendering services they may accept rent in cash from him. There is nothing to prevent the temple authorities from adopting these courses. A transfer without their consent and acquiescence which seeks to separate the obligations of the land from its enjoyment would certainly be voidable at the instance of the temple authorities.

Where the paikan land was attached and sold under the orders of the Court in execution proceedings without any objection being raised by the temple authorities and the auction-sale was not challenged within the period allowed by law, the title of the auction-purchaser cannot be disputed by the temple authorities by reason of the efflux of time, even if the auction sale was originally void. A. I. R. 1950 Assam 1.

61. Patni.

——Patni—Intermediate tenure.

A Zemindar can create an intermediate mirasi tenure between himself and a patnidar and such mirasidar can recover rent from the patnidar. 67 Ind. Cas. 105=34 C. L. J. 77.

——Patni—Intermediate tenure.

There is nothing opposed to law or custom to prevent a Zemindar to create an intermediate tenure between the patnidar and the darpatnidar and a suit for rent by such an intermediate tenure-holder will lie. 66. Ind. Cas. 200=34 C.L.J. 76.

——Patni tenure—Patni and darpatni—Durpatnidar and Zemindar.

A Durpatnidar, to whom Khut rent assessed on the proportion of land revenue payable to Government on that portion of the estate, should be paid by tenants holding Chakran lands under the Zemindar, is not a land-lord of the tenants by payment of khut rent; the Zemindar and not durpatnidar has the right to settle tenants during the Chakran tenancy but not after it is resumed by zemindar. The durpatnidar is entitled to khas possession as well as mesne profits. 22 C. L. J. 290=31 Ind. Cas. 249.

——Patni tenure—Right of co-sharer—Suit to recover rent—Other co-sharers if necessary parties.

Where the plaintiffs sued for a declaration that the defendants had no mirash right in the plaintiffs' patni lands, that the plaintiffs were entitled to get the said lands assessed to rent and for recovery of fair and equitable rent and it appeared that while some of the lands exclusively belonged to the plaintiffs as regards certain others they had merely the undivided interest as co-sharer.

Held, that the suit could be divided only as regards the plaintiffs' exclusive lands, and that it could not be proceeded with in the absence of the other co-sharers as regards the other lands. 34 C.W.N. 379=A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 693.

——Patni—Right to minerals.

In the absence of express words mukarrari leases and other grants do not carry with them the rights to ——Patni—River-beds included in patni tenure becoming culturable land—Such land resumed by Government and assessed—Zemindars accepting settlement of land—Rent settled, whether adds to patnidar's liability.

Where the beds of the rivers included in the original patni become culturable land and after such land is resumed by the Govt., the zemindar takes settlement of such land from the Govt. the rent settled in respect of that land in the resumption proceedings cannot add to the liabilities of the patnidars who are entitled to hold according to the original patni lease, while the representatives of the original zemindars continue to own the land. Hence the patnidars are entitled to a declaration that the rents assessed should be treated as Samil jamas with tenure rent as long as the representatives of the original lessors retain the superior interest.

Where the zemindar refuses to take settlement of the land and the patnidar pays the rents assessed in the resumption proceedings direct to the Govt., the patnidar is entitled to claim abatement to the extent to which it can be shown that he is paying twice over for the same land. But in the absence of any evidence as to the terms of the grant, or that the rate of rent was in any way affected by the consideration that there might be re-formation in the beds of existing rivers, it cannot be held that the patnidars are paying rent twice over for any part of the lands held by them. A..I.R. 1941 Cal. 242=199 Ind. Cas. 618.

——Patni—Sale of—Suit for khas possession—Onus.

Plaintiffs purchased a putni in execution of a decree for arrears of rent. Within 12 years of this purchase they sued for possession of the lands,

Held, that it was for the plaintiffs to show that the zemindar was in possession of these lands before the creation of the putni and that the possession of the defendants commenced after the putni came into existence or that such possession was not adverse.

The decision of the Judicial Committee in 39 Mad. 617 (P. C.) does not lay down any principle contrary to that laid down in 19 C.W.N. 18. 61 Ind. Cas. 469=25 C.W.N. 106=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 754.

——Patni—Transferee's rights—Completion.

The transferee's rights are perfected by transfer by the patnidar and are not contingent on payment of the fee and security under S. 6 (1) of the Patni Regulations, (15 C. 345 12 C. 622 F, 20 W. R. 380, con). The transferee may therefore claim the compensation money on acquisition by Government even though he has not registered his name in the books of the Zemindar. 16 C.L.J. 301=18 C.W.N. 103=17 Ind. Cas. 171.

——Patni—Zemindar's power to create intermediate tenure.

A Zemindar can create a tenure intermediate between his zemindary interest and a patni provided he does not thereby prejudice the position of the first tenant. 60 C. 1092=A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 543=144 Ind. Cas. 92.

——Permanent tenancy—Onus—Party appealing to Civil Court on ground that action of Revenue Board subjecting land to additional assessment was ultra vires—Burden of proof is on him.

The party appealing to the Civil Court has to establish that the Court has jurisdiction and that the Board of Revenue have acted ultra vires in subjecting the land included in the Permanent Settlement to an additional assessment. A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 574=176 Ind. Cas. 341.

——Permanent tenancy.

The mere fact that tenure holders are called jagirdars does not show that they have a permanent interest but tends the other way. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 21=36 C.W.N. 866=140 Ind. Cas. 385.

——Permanent tenancy—Miadi sarbarakar—Tenure, if permanent and heritable.

A miadi sarbarakar in Orissa has only a temporary tenure and for the period of settlement only. His tenure is neither permanent nor heritable and he cannot claim re-appointment as a matter of right. A.I.R. 1933 Pat. 74=11 Pat. 757=14 P.L.T. 743=141 Ind. Cas. 340.

——Permanent tenancy—Lessee can transfer interest in lease with consent of lessor—Such a transfer cannot create custom or vary the terms of lease.

During the period of the lease, the lessee has security of tenure and may, with the consent of the lessor, alienate his interest but his interest and that of his transferees is nonetheless temporary and for the period of the lease only and no amount of transference by contract, succession or inheritance during the period of the lease can create a "custom" to vary the terms of the lease and override the stipulation for a fixed period. A.I.R. 1933 Pat. 74=11 Pat. 757=14 P.L.T. 743=141 Ind. Cas. 340.

——Permanent tenancy—Suit for declaration of title—Onus of proof that lands were included in settled estate.

Where the plaintiffs sue for declaration of title to land alleging that the lands were dry lands at the time of the Permanent Settlement and were assessed as included within their permanent settled estates, the onus of proving that the lands were included within the estate and assessed at the time of the Permanent Settlement is on the plaintiffs. As it is a question of fact and not of law, it is to be proved in order to enable the plaintiffs to succeed in the suit. A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 239=34 C.W.N. 1113=133 Ind. Cas. 573.

——Permanent tenancy—Succession — Custom — Onus.

The rule of succession to a permanent tenure, heritable in its character, is, in the absence of a statute, terms of a grant, if any, or valid and binding custom to the cantrary, the same as is applicable to other properties left by a deceased tenant. If a special custom excluding collaterals from inheritance as regards a permanent tenure is pleaded, the party pleading such a custom must have the onus laid on it to prove by satisfactory evidence that such collaterals, though heirs under the personal law of the deceased tenant in respect of all other assets left by him, were excluded from inheritance as regards his rights in the permanent tenure. 119 Ind. Cas. 514=1929 A.L.J. 309=10 L.R.A. Rev. 138=A.I.R. 1929 All. 223.

——Permanent tenancy—Proof of.

The Court has to find whether the tenants' predecessors possessed occupancy rights at the inception of the relation of the parties, and not whether there was a subsequent change in those relations. When the origin of the tenancy is not known, evidence of the acts and conduct of the parties consitutes the best and the only evidence to prove the nature of the tenancy. The Court is entitled to infer from the continuance of land in the same hands at a low and unvarying rent, permanent rights of occupancy. 79 Ind. Cas. 619=1924 M. W. N. 487=A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 833=47 M.L. J. 598.

——Permanent tenancy—Long possession—Presumption.

Where plaintiff is in undisturbed possession of a tenure which was in existence for 75 years, from his purchase in 1879 till the partition proceedings. Held, that the tenure was parmanent. But it does not follow that the tenure is not liable for enhancement of rent. 37 Cal. 662=15 C.W.N. 45=7 Ind. Cas. 881.

——Permanent tenancy — Evidence — Characteristics.

Long possession at uniform rent, erection of expensive buildings without interferences, transfers by sale, gift, mortgage in succession, execution of receipts for rent, in which it is described as permanent, are indications to show the permanent nature of the tenancy. (28 C. 738 F. 3 C. 696, 16 C. 223, 21 A. 496, Dist.) In the case of a permanent tenancy at fixed rate no enhancement can be allowed. Permanent tenants cannot also be restrained from building or rebuilding their houses in the absence of a contract to the contrary. 197 P.W.R. 1912=209 P.L.R. 1912=121 P.R. 1912=17 Ind. Cas. 208.

63. Poramboke lands.

Where land has been registered as tope poramboke, prima facie the paramount title is with Government. Tree pattas not being issued to owners of the land on which the trees stand, the holder of tree patta in respect of land registered as tope poramboke is not owner thereof. 79 Ind. Cas. 881=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 143.

——Poramboke—In inam village — Burden of proof.

In an inam village belonging to the plaintiff, all lands within the ambit of the village prima facie belong to the plaintiff and it is for the defendant to raise the plea that the suit lands are communal poramboke lands and therefore do not belong to the plaintiff and to allege and prove the facts necessary to substantiate the contention. 81 Ind. Cas. 1021=20 M. L. W. 185=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 139.

64. Pradhan.

See also: (1) Chota Nagpur Ten. Act, 1908.
(2) Land Tenures—Headmanship.

——Pradhani tenure—Ingredients of—Hat-Injunction restraining the holding of Hat.

Where certain persons holding a pradhani tenure in respect of the entire village hold a hat in a few plots belonging to them, it does not amount to such use of land as can be held to withdraw an unreasonably large area from cultivation, as would justify the granting of an injunction, at the instance of the proprietor of the village, restraining those persons from holding the hat on these plots. A hat is a useful institution which is run for the benefit of all the villagers, and unless a proper case favouring an injunction is satisfactorily made out no injunction ought to issue. 62 C.L.J. 123=166 Ind. Cas. 878.

——Pradhan—Whether statutory tenure.

Prodhani tenures are not statutory tenures, and the incidents of any particular tenure must largely be the creature of custom or of contract. 62 C.L.J. 123=166 Ind. Cas. 878.

——Pradhan.

Tenants inducted by Pradhan cannot acquire rights by adverse possession against the land-lord. To define the status of a Pradhan in the Santhal Parganas is a somewhat difficult matter. He is not a tenure-holder in the ordinarily accepted sense, but he has all the attributes of a tenure-holder and possibly he has greater rights. The Pradhan although not a tenure-holder as defined in the Bengal Tenancy Act at the present day combines both the attributes of Jeth raiyat or head raiyat of a village and ijaradar or true tenure-holder 1921 P.H.C.C. 8=A.I.R. 1921 Pat. 67.

65. Rafa-tanki tenure.

——Rafa-tanki tenure.

The nature of the Rafa-tankidari interest is a question for determination in each case and they cannot be classed as a whole either as tenures or as raiyati holdings.

The status of Rafa-tankidars in the particular case was that of tenure-holders and the tenants under them were occupancy raiyats.

In 1838 during the resumption proceedings by the British Government a compromise was entered into between some of the Tankidars and the Government to the effect that on condition of their agreeing to pay rent at a certain fixed rate no enquiry would be made as to the liability of their interests to be resumed. The rates so fixed were known as Rafa-tanki, or compromise quit rents, and the holders of these lands came to be known as Rafa-tankidars. In many cases Rafa-tankidars belonged to the raiyati class, but this in itself is not sufficient to show that their interests were necessarily those of raiyats rather than tenure-holders. 105 Ind. Cas. 633=6 Pat. 698=9 P.L.T. 72=A.I.R. 1927 Pat. 209 (F.B.).

——Rafa—Tanikdars — Occupancy rights—Khurdah.

In the Khurdah Estate, and in zemindaries which at one time formed part of that Estate, Rafa-Tankidars are occupancy Rayats and not tenure holders. 5 Pat. L.J. 373=57 Ind. Cas. 225.

66. Rent-free.

——Rent-free—Revenue free and rent free lands—Distinction—Importance of, on question of onus.

The claim of a revenue-free title is obviously different from a claim that the lands are held rent-free. The latter proceeds on the assumption that the lands are included within the regularly assessed estate of the land-lord but the tenants are still entitled to hold them without payment of rent to the zamindar. If the lands are claimed to be revenue-free, that is, lakheraj in the strict sense of the word, it will be for the plaintiffs to show before they can succeed in their suits that the lands are comprised within their estate. On the other hand, if the defence is only a plea of rent-free title, the onus of proof will lie on the defendants, who will have to prove when and how they or their predecessors relieved themselves of the obligation to pay rent. A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 309=74 C.L.J. 574=46 C.W.N. 309 =200 Ind. Cas. 749.

——Rent-free.

Muafi or rent-free tenure may be analogous to that of tenancy but it is governed by different provisions of law. A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 25=1941 O.W.N. 1101=1941 R.D. 851=1941 A.W.R. 879=17 Luck. 215=196 Ind. Cas. 673.

——Rent-free—"Belagan," whether means rent-free holding.

Without deciding that "belagan" means generally in the District of Jharia all that the Court (in Letters Patent Appeal) held was that it could not take a different view from the Courts below having regard to the materials on the record, i. e., the word "belagan" as used in this district did not necessarily mean rent- free but that it meant a holding which is not paying rent, and such may be a rent-free holding or it may be a holding for which rent may later be assessed. A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 488=7 B.R. 750=194 Ind. Cas. 300.

——Rent-free.

Land-lord mortgaging land with possession cannot create right in tenant to hold the land rent-free. This can only be done by the mortgagee in possession but even that would not be binding against the mortgagor unless the settlement was made bona fide in the ordinary course of management. 5 B.R. 342=A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 258=180 Ind. Cas. 105.

——Rent-free—Long possession without payment of rent—Presumption.

Long possession without payment of rent may justify, in particular circumstances, an inference of a rent-free tenure. The onus is always on the side of the tenant to establish by satisfactory evidence that the tenure he holds is rent-free, when the land-lord has shown that the land is within the revenue paying estate. A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 755= 65 C.L.J. 474=172 Ind. Cas. 987.

——Rent-free tenure—Creation if.

A rent-free tenure is created when the proprietor of a land creates rights by which one person can hold it free of rent while the other is liable for the revenue and where such rights are created, the law as to rent-free grants applies. The law as to resumption as to rent-free tenures overrules, in view of Government interests contracts otherwise valid. In considering their effect considerations other than those applying to ordinary transactions must be taken into consideation. 1 O.L.J. 325=25 Ind. Cas. 594.

——Rent-free tenure—Long possession without payment rent.

From the evidence of long and uninterrupted possession without paying rent, the Court may presume the land to be granted rent-free, though possibly not revenue-free. There can be a rent-free grant of a permanently settled land and such a grant is binding on the grantor's heirs and successors.

In strictness 'Lakhiraj' indicates a freedom from liability to pay revenue but is often used loosely to indicate exemption from liability to pay rent. 18 C.L.J. 166=18 C.W.N. 913=21 Ind. Cas. 415.

——Resumption and forfeiture — Saranjam — Grant of royal share of revenue—Resumption of grant.

When a grant of the royal share of the revenue takes place and the grant is resumed by the Government afterwards, the Government do not acquire the mirasi or the occupancy right which is a heritable and transferable right in holdings of which the saranjamdar has become the khatedar during the continuance of the grant, either by surrender or forfeiture. 89 Ind. Cas. 539=49 Bom. 126=26 Bom. L.R. 1173=A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 197.

——Resumption and forfeiture.

Resumability of a tenure is different from its forfeiture on account of dismissal of its holder. 84 Ind. Cas. 405=3 Pat. 673=A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 616.

——Resumption and forfeiture— "Santhathi Brahmaswam" and "Adimayavana."

No custom in favour of a right of re-entry of land-lord who has granted lands on the tenures known as Santhathi Brahmaswam and Adimayavana is established. 65 Ind. Cas. 942=45 Mad. 394=15 M.L.W. 650=1922 M.W.N. 192=31 M.L.T. 1=A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 274=43 M.L.J. 1 (F.B.).

68 (a). Alienable and heritable.

——Ryotwari—Alienable and heritable.

The estate of a ryotwari proprietor is heritable and alienable. He has a sufficient estate to support a grant of an easement and he would be a capable grantor as understood in English Law, for the application of the doctrine of lost grant. (1936) M.W.N. 426=44 M.L.W. 139=A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 682=71 M.L.J. 187= 59 M. 979=164 Ind. Cas. 764.

68 (b). Evidence.

——Ryotwari—Evidence.

Where cerain land does not appear to have been assessed and there is no name given in col. 16 of the Survey and Settlement Register prepared under the Madras Surveys and Boundaries Act under the heading "Name of enjoyer," these facts, by themselves, do not prove that the land is not ryoti. A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 716=49 M.L.W. 238=(1939) M.W.N. 230.

68 (c). Irrigation rights.

——Ryotwari—Irrigation rights.

The right of the holder of wet land on ryotwari areas under Govt., whether it be based on contract or whether it be proprietary in its nature, is a right to the accustomed quantity of water and is subject to the right of the Govt. to control the supply and even to change the source provided there is no diminution of facilities. A ryot cannot prescribe for a right to take water from a particular source without regard to Govt. control and no declaration to this effect can be given unless the circumstances warrant the assumption that the Govt. has expressly divested itself of the control of sources of water supply.

A lost grant cannot be presumed as against the Govt. unless there is evidence of 60 years' user and never when the evidence shows positively that no such grant had been made less than 50 years' before the suit. (1936) M.W.N. 358=A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 692=162 Ind. Cas. 97.

——Ryotwari—Irrigation rights.

Under the general law prevailing in the Madras Presidency, the ryot is entitled to be given such supply of water as is necessary and sufficient for the irrigation of his registered wet fields. He has no right to insist that his supply shall come from any particular source or any other souree than that recognised by Govt.or that it shall come by any particular channel, nor can he prescribe against the Govt. for such right by user otherwise for any length of time. It is open to Govt. to alter at any time the manner and method by which it supplies the necessary water to him and he has no grievance or cause of action thereon. (Relationship between the Govt. and the wet ryot and the wet ryots inter se indicated). The wet ryot has a right as against other wet ryots and even subject to Govt.'s right to give him an equally efficient supply, as against Govt. to the protection of law for that supply, once it has passed into the channel ear-marked for his supply. One ryot cannot prescribe against another. His user of a particular channel is in no sense adverse to the user by another of another channel, since each uses it by authorisation of Govt. Nor is it an easement by which he is conveying property of his own over a servient tenement. It is an incident of ryotwari tenure. If the customary supply and manner of supplying according to this contractual or proprietary right has been interfered with, not by Govt. but by private parties such interference, prima facie is an invasion of a right and will give rise to a civil cause of action.

The doctrine of percolating water flowing under ground in undefined channels as settled by English decisions should not be applied to the water carried in the sandy bed of an Indian river in the dry months between monsoons. Necessary modifications must be made in the English Law of flowing water to make it applicable to the tropical countries.

When the whole of water supply has not been cut off, but only some of it, and when there has also been a general shortage of supply, it is very difficult for a party to prove the precise amount of diminution caused by the action of others or the precise amount of the particular damage caused by that diminution. Under such circumstances, the injured party has a cause of action apart from proof of actual damage and has a right to an injunction if he establishes prospective probable damage.

Per Pandalai, J.—Though there is no ownership to percolating water till it reaches a defined channel not even of the owner of soil under which it percolates and though there is, therefore, no infringement of any right of property by appropriating such percolating water yet it is possible for an owner to be guilty of a breach of contract, if, by appropriating under-ground percolating water from his land, he causes diminution of a supply which he is obliged by law to maintain. A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 284=33 M.L.W. 631=61 M.L.J. 563=54 M. 793=133 Ind. Cas. 507.

——Ryotwari—Irrigation rights.

Mirasdars who own wet lands from time immemorial have a preferential right to the supply of water from a Government tank in a village to the assignees of waste lands from Government who have since brought them under cultivation. 51 Ind. Cas. 734 (Mad.).

——Ryotwari—Irrigation rights.

A plaintiff, whose land is prevented from getting water by a dam erected by Government, can sue in a Civil Court to protect his right. (1914) M.W.N. 788=26 Ind. Cas. 18.

68 (d). Nature of holding.

——Ryotwari—Nature of holding.

There is absolutely no relation or analogy between the nature of Kumri lands in South Canara and ryotwari holdings. 80 Ind. Cas. 835=26 Bom. L.R. 639=20 M.L.W. 49=51 I.A. 257=1924 M.W.N. 572=35 M.L.T. 128=47 Mad. 572=29 C.W.N. 365=A.I.R. 1924 P.C. 150=47 M.L.J. 35 (P.C.)

68 (e). Occupancy right.

——Ryotwari — Occupancy right — Presumption against—Vernacular descriptions of tenure—Contract executed by predecessors of tenants negativing claim of occupancy—Onus.

There is no special rule as to burden of proof applicable to Tanjore temples on account either of their location or their management by the Collector up to 1860, or on account of anything except the agreements between the Collector and the ryots about 1830. 34 M.L.J. 234 Expl. The fact that land-holders had a tendency to get inserted in pattas and muchalikas terms negativing the existence of occupancy rights is not itself sufficient to justify a Court in refusing to consider on the merits and with reference to the burden of proof such terms in pattas and muchilikas of a date prior to the decision in 6 M.H.C.R. 164. There is a presumption against occupancy rights in a tenant of a ryotwari pattadar. Vernacular descriptions of tenures in Madras Presidency are elastic and their definitions derived from Wilson's Glossary, or other works of reference must be accepted with caution as corresponding at most to their normal meanings and subject in each particular case to revision in the light of its circumstances. (1920) M.W.N. 163=10 L.W. 525=53 Ind. Cas. 308.

——Ryotwari — Occupancy right — Pattadar—Long enjoyment and low and un-varying rent—Transfer of holdings by tenant—Effect of.

In the case of lands held under the ryotwari settlements the presumption is that the ryotwari pattadar is the owner of the land and the burden is on his tenants claiming a permanent right of occupancy to prove it. Mere length of enjoyment in the capacity of tenants or parukudies irrespective of their circumstances does not raise a presumption of occupancy right. The inference as to occupancy right depends on a consideration of the whole circumstances of the case and among these circumstances are the continuance of the lands in the same hands at low and unvarying rents and the recognition by the land-lord of the tenant's rights to transfer the holding.

The history of the ryotwari settlement considered. 36 M. L. J. 463=9 L. W. 453=26 M.L.T. 311=52 Ind. Cas. 247.

——Ryotwari—Occupancy right.

The right of an occupancy right as over-riding the proprietor's right to cultivate his own lands is of a special character and as such it is one which the party seeking to derogate is bound to establish.

When the defendants have been accepting leases from the plaintiff in respect of the suit lands and when the crops were attached, they failed to bring a suit to establish their right when their claim petition was rejected, the defendants have failed to make out their occupancy right. (1915) M.W.N. 277=28 Ind. Cas. 916.

68 (f). Pattadar's rights.

——Ryotwari—Pattadar—Rights of.

The rights of a pattadar holding land upon ryotwari tenure under the Government are not the same as those of an occupancy tenant under a land-holder of an estate. So it cannot be maintained that the occupant of land under the former tenure can by means of such occupation acquire by prescription a title under the latter tenure. 41 Ind. Cas. 167 (Mad.)

——Ryotwari—Pattadar—Tenants under—Claim of permanent occupancy—Onus.

If in a case of ryotwari land the under-tenants, under a Government pattadar, claim a permanent right of occupancy in the land the burden of proving their right is on the tenants. A permanent tenancy may owe its origin to a custom, contract or title. Where the under-tenants of a pattadar had been in possession from time immemorial digging wells and making expensive improvements and selling the wells with or without the lands and enjoying the properties hereditarily. Held, that they had proved a permanent right of occupancy. 43 Mad. 567=47 I.A. 76=18 A.L.J. 707=22 Bom. L.R. 578=(1920) M.W.N. 61=27 M.L.T. 102=11 L.W. 399=38=M.L.J. 476=56 Ind. Cas. 117 (P.C.)

[On appeal from 24 M.L.J. 571=13 M.L.T. 450=(1913) M.W.N. 434=20 Ind. Cas. 374.]

——Ryotwari tenure—Pattadar's rights—Government's rights to put an end to the tenure.

A ryotwari holder is entitled to hold the lands so long as he paid the revenue properly leviable from him; and in default he can be ousted only on legal process taken under Madras Act II of 1864. The Government after having once granted the lands to one person cannot subsequently take them away from him otherwise than by process taken under Madras Act II of 1864 and grant a fresh patta to another. 19 M. 156; 31 I. A. 207 foll. 15 M. L. J. 416=28 M. 505.

68 (g). Permanent tenancy.

——Ryotwari — Permanent tenancy — Onus of proof.

The onus of proving a permanent tenancy under a ryotwari Pattadar is on the tenant setting up such right. Where the ryot is a temple the trustees of which could not create a permanent lease of the temple lands, the presumption against the acquisition of occupancy rights by the raiyats is greater. Mere description by the tenants as kudikanaidars, Ulavadaikani mirasdars in the village could not confer occupancy rights on them. Nor does the fact that the tenants have made transfers of the holdings without objection or demur by the trustees confer a permanent occupancy right by estoppel. 23 M.L.T. 161=34 M.L.J. 234=7 M.L.W. 380=44 Ind. Cas. 894.

68 (h). Remission of assessment.

——Ryotwari—Remission of assessment on land used for cattle shed—Land not excluded from patta—Effect.

Where plaintiffs petitioned Government to allow them to use a portion of their own land as a cattle shed and a farm house free from rent and the Government allowed the remission but in the next pattah the portion of the land in question was included though the assessment thereof was deducted from the total amount of rent, Held, that the plaintiffs did not give up their interest in the land and place it at the disposal of the Government absolutely. 26 Ind. Cas. 961 (Mad.)

——Ryotwari tenure—Remission of assessment.

Where at the request of the ryots certain land occupied by them was exempted from assessment and classified as gramanatham, the ownership or title of the ryots is extinguished and it is not open to them, notwithstanding such classification, to retain the land. Where land is classified as poramboke nattam and is annexed to the village site, the land is at the disposal of Government and the latter may grant it to bona fide applicants for house-site. 13 M.L.J. 269.

68 (i). Resumption and regrant.

——Ryotwari—Resumption and re-grant of inam declared illegal—Refund of land revenue—Claim for—Maintainability—Patta—Effect of.

The Government resumed a devadayam inam and granted a ryotwari patta to a certain person in respect of it. The plaintiff derived his title from this person. The resumption by the Government was ultimately held to be illegal by a competent Civil Court. The plaintiff sued the Government for the recovery of the assessment which he had paid.

Held, that as the plaintiff had paid the revenue with knowledge that Government's right of resumption was in litigation there was no question of mistake,

Held, further that the issue of a patta not only did not convey the land in question from Government to the plaintiffs predecessor-in-interest but did not even create a contract in respect of the land between them and that the plaintiff was not entitled to refund of land-revenue paid. 23 M.L.J. 746 and 26 Mad. 268, Foll.; A.I.R. 1922 P.C. 403, Dist. 87 Ind. Cas. 644=1925 M.W.N. 481=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 859=48 M.L.J. 440.

68 (j). Right to vary assessment.

——Ryotwati tenure—Right to vary assessment.

The proprietorship of the ryotwari holder in his holding is subject to the prerogative which the Crown has, according to the common law of India, of imposing, by an executive act, assessment on land and varying it from time to time. The rigtt of the Government to assess land to land revenue and to vary it is not a right created or conferred by any statute, but the Crown possesses the prerogative of exacting from a subject holding arable land its share of the produce or the equivalent of such

68 (k). Tree patta.

Ryotwari—Tree patta—Land patta—Cancellation of tree patta—Effect of—Right of pattadar of land to trees.

Plaintiff held a patta of trees on suit land for 20 years and defendant held patta for land. The former patta was cancelled and defendant interfered with plaintiff's enjoyment of trees. In plaintiff's suit for recovery of trees it was held that the cancellation of the tree patta did not vest ownership of them in the defendant and plaintiff had a preferential claim. 36 Mad. 148=10 M.L.T. 488=(1911) 2 M.W.N. 532=22 M.L. J. 201=13 Ind. Cas. 37.

68 (l). Unassessed waste lands.

——Ryotwari tenure—Unassessed waste lands—Rights of Government—Penal assessment—Effect of.

Unassessed waste lands in Government ryotwari tracts are at the disposal of the Government till a patta is granted. When once patta is granted, the right of the Government is confined to the recovery of the revenue due in respect of it. The peneal or Sivajama assessment imposed by the Government on trespassers amounts to a condoning of the act of trespass, but does not amount to a recognition of any right, nor any undertaking on the part of the Government to permit the occupation for the future. 91 Ind. Cas. 503, Ref. to. 124 Ind. Cas. 607 (Mad.).

69. Saranjam tenure.

——Saranjam tenure—Nature and incidents of—Saranjam Rules—Effect and scope of—Adverse possession by stranger—Value of—Resumption by Government—Effect on nature of land.

It is clear that the whole structure of saranjam tenure is founded in the sovereign right, which can only be changed by conquest or treaty. So founded, jagirs and saranjams, with the feudal incidents connected with them, are granted or withheld at the will and pleasure of the sovereign power, and if granted, the fixity of tenure is always subject to interruption and revocation by resumption, whether temporary or absolute in character. No incident normally applicable to private rights between subject and subject can fetter or disturb the sovereign will. Thus adverse possession by a private person for however long a duration, is nugatory before a paramount resumption or a re-grant. The rules framed by the Government are only rules of convenience and cannot exhaust the general power or prevent the Government from making a decision or determination referential to a particular saranjam without altering the rules with regard to all of them. A saranjam tenure cannot be destroyed by adverse possession. When Government resume the grant by levying the full assessment payable, the land ceases to be saranjam land and becomes khalsa land. 49 Bom. L.R. 270=A.I.R. 1947 Bom. 340 (F.B.)

70. Sarabarakari.

——Sarabarakari — Classification of sarabarakari into maurasi and miadi—Protection of rights of proprietors among others.

The distinction between "maurasi sarabarakari" and "miadi sarabarakari" consisted only in this that the former had a permanent and heritable interest while the latter had a temporary tenure during the continuance of the lease, Sarabarakars who were found to be in possession of the tenures from generation to generation before 1803 were classified as the "maurasi sarabarakars" while those who could not prove the existence of such a tenure but who had nevertheless been found to be in long possession of the tenure and were in possession at the time of the settlement were recorded as "miadi sarabarakars". Therefore, the status of "miadi sarabarakars" under the first Provincial Settlement of 1837 was of a temporary nature during the continuance of the lease. The period of the first settlement was extended by 30 years and continued up to 1897 when a fresh settlement began. The classification of sarabarakars into "maurasi" and "miadi" (which means for a fixed term) must be construed to have been made with a view to protect the rights of proprietors among others. Government reserved to themselves rights in regard to public revenue only. 15 P.L.T. 639=A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 632=1 B.R. 88 (2)=152 Ind. Cas. 759.

——Sarabarakari — Miadi sarabarakars—Permanent and heritable right.

Miadi sarabarakars cannot claim any permanent and heritable right by being treated as sub-proprietors. If they have come to be noted as "sub-proprietors" in the Survey and Settlement Records, this fact will not alter share status as conferred on them by the document of their title, viz., their kabuliyat. 15 P.L.T. 639=A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 632=1 B.R. 88 (2)=152 Ind. Cas. 759.

——Sarabarakari—Incidents of—Khurda—Orissa.

Sarabarkars in Khurda are mere office holders, though in practice their position was hereditary. They have no heritable or transferable right in their office or in the Sarabarkari Jagir lands. They are liable to dismissal for mis-conduct and upon dismissal lose all rights in the Jagir lands. 46 Cal. 378=36 M. L. J. 18=25 M.L.T. 73=29 C.L.J. 175=9 M.L.W. 269=23 C.W.N. 343=21 Bom. [On appeal from 18 C.W.N. 74=22 Ind. Cas. 359].

71. Saunjhi tenure.

——Saunjhi tenure—Removal of saunjhidar—Jullundur City (Punjab).

The principle that a saunjhidar in a village can be removed only by the proprietary body does not apply to the case to a saunjhi or saunjhidar of Jullundur City within Municipal limits. A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 356=192 Ind. Cas. 429.

——Saunjhi tenure.

Under saunjhi tenure the saunjhidar is entitled to retain possession without paying any rent so long as he gives his services as purohit to the grantor. 109 Ind. Cas. 653=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 77.

72. Savaram.

——Savaram—Nature of.

Per Sundara Aiyar, J.—Savaram does not necessarily import absence of kudivaram in the cultivating ryot. It was compensation granted to the Zamindar or Revenue Officer by the Mahomedan Government. In some cases land exempt from payment of rent was granted. But if it was unavailable, the revenue of a portion of the lands for the assessment of which he was responsible was granted. Per Sadasiva Aiyar, J.—In consequence of certain lands being savaram the Courts may (but not must) presume that both Melvaram and Kudivaram belong to the Zamindar. 36 Mad. 168 =23 M.L. 73 (a). Alienability.

——Service tenure — Alienability — Cessation of service.

If the service cannot be enforced, the service tenure looses its character as a service tenure under the common law fetter of inalienability is removed and the land can consequently be alienated. 18 C.L.J. 277=18 C.W.N. 297=21 Ind. Cas. 481.

——Service tenure—Alienability—Resumption.

A right of forfeiture on alienation or inalienability cannot be inferred from the existence of a right of escheat in the land-lord on failure of the grantee's heirs. The custom must be proved by evidence. Resumability does not follow from alienability; the right of resumption and re-entry on alienation must be expressly given. 38 M.L.J. 275=27 M.L.T. 111=55 Ind. Cas. 380.

——Service tenure—Alienability—Palayam of Kannivadi.

Where the Palayam of Kannivadi was originally held in military and police service tenure and the two services were abolished in 1801 and 1816 by Lord Clive's Proclamation and by the Government of Madras respectively the tenure ceased to be a service tenure and consequently became alienable. 60 Ind. Cas. 953=20 A.L.J. 393=26 C.W.N. 106=48 I.A. 100=44 Mad. 575=34 C.L.J. 6=14 M.L.W. 49=1921 M.W.N. 352=A.I.R. 1922 P.C. 154=40 M.L.J. 537 (P.C.).

——Service tenure—Alienability—Palayam.

Lands held on service tenure are inalienable beyond the life-time of the holder. If an estate is freed from its connection with its public office and the services are abolished, it is subject to the same incidents of ownership and devolution as ordinary property. Where lands held on service tenures have been alienated, the subsequent enfranchisement of the lands from service will not validate the alienation so as to give an absolute interest to the alienee. 34 M.L.J. 17 and 24 Bom. 556, Rel.

An unsettled palayam held originally on condition of rendering military and police services, ceases to be inalienable on the abolition of such services by the British Government in spite of the omission of the Government to issue sanad under Regulation 25 of 1802 finally settling the peishcush payable by the holder of the estate. 1 I.A. 283 and 1 I.A. 268 Rel. 41 Mad. 749=34 M.L.J. 563=24 M.L.T. 1=8 L.W. 382=47 Ind. 73 (c). Chaukidari Chakran lands.

——Service tenure—Chaukidari Chakran lands —Resumption by Government.

Where chaukidari chakran lands situate in a Zemindari and included in the malguzari lands are resumed by Government the title of the Zemindar is not affected; but Tannadhari lands are Lakhiraj (rent-free) and resumption by Government puts an end to tittle of Zemindar. 44 Cal. 841=21 C.W.N. 609=32 M.L.J. 565=15 A.L.J. 390= 25 C.L.J. 499=19 Bom. ——Service tenure—Chaukidari chakran lands —Origin of tenure — Resumption — Rights of Zemindar or Government.

The nature of a grant of Chaukidari is not altered though some of the appointments of chaukidars are made with the approval of Government officers. Under Bengal Regulation 1 of 1793 S. (4) and VIII of 1793, S. 41 the option of resumption was reserved in the lands appropriated by Zemindar with Government's permission for remunerating chaukidars for services though such lands were not considered in the assessment of revenue being included in the mahal and annexed to malguzari lands. 42 Cal. 710=42 I.A. 30=19 C.W.N. 65=2 M.L.W. 11=17 M.L.T. 1=21 C.L.J. 31=17 Bom. L.R. 32=28 M.L.J. 457=26 Ind. Cas. 676 (P.C.)

——Service tenure—Chaukidar jagir for chaukidari work, grant of—Resumption.

Where a jagir is a chaukidar jagir granted to the village chaukidar in his capacity of chaukidar for services which are in their nature essentially public services and not private to the zemindar, the office is of a public nature and is not liable to resumption at the instance of the zemindar. Even if the zemindar had been accustomed to demand certain private services from chaukidar, he would not be entitled to resume the chaukidari land merely because those private services were no longer rendered so long as the holder of the land was the chaukidar of the village. It may be true that when the chaukidar receives pay from the chaukidari fund, the jagir becomes liable to resumption, but that resumption can only be made in accordance with the provisions of Part 2 of Act VI of 1870, and a suit for resumption of the chaukidari land on the ground that the chaukidar receives his remuneration in another way would not be cognizable in the Civil Courts. A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 507=17 Pat. 315=5 B.R. 93=4 C.L.T. 30=20 P.L.T, 93=178 Ind. Cas. 372.

73 (d). Denial of title—Ejectment.

——Service tenure—Denial of title.

If a service tenant renounces his character as a service tenant and denies the title of the land-lord to resume the land, the lease to him determines and no notice is necessary to eject him. 103 Ind. Cas. 542=31 C.W.N. 552=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 561.

73 (e). Description "Karsa chakran."

——Service tenure—Description "karsa chakran"—Meaning of.

Where the nature of the interest in land is described by the words "karsa chakran," it does not mean that it is a holding burdened with service but it means that the lands constituted a service tenure, the character of the lands being agricultural land. A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 49=39 C.W.N. 581=61 C.L.J. 143=161 Ind. Cas. 187.

73 (f). Dharmilla inam.

——Service tenure—Dharmilla Inam—Resumption.

An Inam granted by a zamindar to a servant for performing personal services is resumable when the services are dispensed with. So long as the servants do not commit any default in payment of rent and are willing to render the services stipulated for, they cannot be ejected. 14 M.L.T. 562=(1914) M.W.N. 179=21 Ind. Cas. 833.

73 (g). Digwar.

——Service tenure—Digwar.

See Land tenures—Digwari tenure.

73 (h). Ejectment.

——Service tenure—Ejectment—Refusal to perform service—Ejectment.

Certain person was recorded in the current Record of Rights as occupancy tenant. paying quit rent. Apart from the evidence showing that this entry was wrong, it was shown in the remark column that the person was holding service-tenure. The land-lord accepted the quit rent and instituted a suit for ejectment on refusal of the tenant to perform the services for which the tenure was created:

Held, the presumption about the correctness of the entry that the person was occupancy-tenant was rebutted by other inconsistent entry in the remark column. The tenant, therefore, was holding service tenure and on his ceasing to perform service, the land-lord was entitled to eject him and the acceptance of quit rent mentioned in the Record of Rights, did not deprive him of his right to do so. A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 587=7 B. R. 141=22 P.L.T. 216=6 C.L.T. 41=191 Ind. Cas. 89.

——Service tenure—Ejectment—Tenant refusing service—Liability to ejectment without quit notice.

Where the holder of a service-tenure refuses to perform the services on the ground that no service can be demanded from him, such tenant is liable to be ejected without a notice to quit. A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 362=5 B.R. 861=183 Ind. Cas. 80.

——Service tenures—Ejectment—Services no longer required—Tenants, if liable to be ejected—Assessment of rent.

Where the grant is subject to the burden of a service, the tenants are not liable to be ejected merely because the alleged service is no longer being rendered. If a grantor releases the services, or a portion of the services, upon which lands are held, the tenant may hold the land free of services; but the land-lord cannot put an end to the tenure and resume the land.

Where, in such a case, the service being the repairing of a bundh, the land-lord has made the performance of the service impossible by converting the land into agricultural lands, he cannot turn round and claim that the land be assessed with rent. 2 B.R. 6=A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 504=15 Pat. 46=17 P.L.T. 191=158 Ind. Cas. 621 (2).

——Service tenure—Ejectment—Liability to ejectment.

Per Odgers and Napier, JJ.—Where the holder of a service inam is found to be entitled to Kudivaram, tenants are bound to prove that they are not tenants from year to year, otherwise they are liable to be ejected on proper notice to quit. Case-law reviewed. A service tenure is not incompatible with a permanent right of occupancy as such a right does not amount to an alienation. 84 Ind. Cas. 799=19 M.L.W. 513=34 M.L.T. 175=1924 M.W.N. 466=A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 626=46 M.L.J. 515.

——Service tenure—Ejectment—Notice—Service, refusal to perform.

The tenant of a service tenure, who refuses to perform his service, is liable to be ejected even without a notice to quit. It is an incident of a service tenure that the holder thereof is liable to ejectment upon refusal to perform service; as this incident would be materially affected, and practically destroyed, if the provision of S. 155 of Bengal Tenancy Act relating to relief against forfeiture were made applicable, service tenures must be held to be excepted from the operation of S. 155 by virtue of S. 181 of the Act. When a case has been remanded by an Appellate Court, in an appeal against the decision given after the remand, fresh points which might and ought to have been urged before the remand, cannot be allowed to be taken. 2 C. L. J. 403. See also 13 M.L.J. 209.

73 (i). Grantor if can put an end to.

——Service tenure—Grantor if can put an end to.

A grant subject to a burden of service of patwari cannot be but an end to by the grantor whether the services of the holder of the grant are required or not. 13 B.L.R. 124 Rel. 19 C.L.J. 241=20 Ind. Cas. 69.

73 (j). Indicia.

——Service tenure—Indicia.

A tenant's ancestor was an occupancy raiyat; he did not hold a service-tenure but an occupancy holding the rent of which was settled at Rs. 53-2-6 annually.

He was appointed jeth-raiyat and on condition of rendering such services, he was permitted to deduct Rs. 12 from the amount of rent payable. This was not described in the Record of Rights as an incident of the tenure but as the mode in which the rent payable had been fixed. There was nothing in the entry from which it could be deduced that this holding was a jeth-raiyati jagir; the holding had been partitioned;

Held, that the occupancy-holding was not of the nature of service tenure, and the settlement of the original holding was not a grant of land burdened with services. As the zemindar had dispensed with the services of the jeth-raiyat, he was entitled to recover the rent of the sub-divided holding at the rate which was shown as payable in the Record of Rights and the tenants were no longer entitled to claim remission which they enjoyed on condition of rendering service as jeth-raiyat to the land-lord. A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 520=18 Pat. 502=6 B.R. 34=20 P.L.T. 659=184 Ind. Cas. 308 (S.B.)

Where the lands were granted to the defendants on conditions alleged by the plaintiff, namely, that out of their produce, they were to supply rations to the plaintiff's amlas whenever they visited the villages and any surplus was to be utilised by them:

Held, that a jagir like this was unusual but the principle of service-tenures was to be applied to this kind of tenure and the plaintiff need not prove the conditions when the record of rights itself gives sufficient indication of the status of the tenants and that refusal to perform the obligations by the tenant would entail the penalty of ejectment without notice.

Held, also that no fixed quantity of grain was deliverable by the defendants and it cannot be a raiyati holding. A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 319=15 P.L.T. 391 =150 Ind. Cas. 112.

——Service tenure—Indicia.

A clear distinction must be drawn between the grant of an estate burdened with certain duties and the grant of an office, the performance of whose duties, are remunerated by the use of certain lands; and a further distinction must also be drawn between a grant for services of a public nature and one for services, private or personal to the grantor. The former class grants in each instance are liable to resumption by the grantor, while the latter class are not so liable. 13 M.I.A. 438 and 22 C. 938, ref. to. 5 C.L.J. 583=12 C.W.N. 193=34 Cal. 753.

73 (k). Inference of permanent heritable character.

——Service tenure—Inference of permanent heritable character.

The holder of a service tenure had not produced any sanad nor had she proved otherwise that the grant was a grant of an estate burdened with certain services but merely contended relying upon the circumstances, that the land had been allowed to devolve from father to son and that the tenure was created from many years ago and lastly that the zemindar did not avail himself of the services but allowed her to hold on:

Held, that there was no justification in law for the inference that the grant was of a permanent heritable character. A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 362=5 B. R. 861=183 Ind. Cas. 80.

73 (l). Khairat Kusbrit tenure.

——Service tenures—(Bihar and Orissa) Khairat kusbrit tenure—Nature and incidents—Resumability on extinction of male line—Custom in Ramgarh Raj.

Khairat kusbrit is a tenure given on condition of the receiver maintaining the worship at a particular temple and is resumable if the condition is not properly fulfilled. According to the custom in the Ramagarh Estate, such tenure is resumable when the direct male line of the grantee becomes extinct. A.I.R. 1931 Pat. 224=12 P.L.T. 891=131 Ind. Cas. 788.

73 (m). Muafi Khidmati lands.

——Service tenure—Muafi khidmati lands, nature of—Difference between muafi khidmati and muafi khairati lands.

Muafi khidmati lands are lands held in lieu of services, and persons holding such lands are usually village servants or malguzar's servants. Muafi khairati lands, on the other hand, may be lands held free in lieu of service on condition of service by persons who are not tenants, or they may be lands held by persons who are tenants, but by favour of the mulguzar hold the lands rent-free or at a low rent. The difference between land given on condition of service and land given to a tenant, which is to be held rent-free as long as the tenant performed certain services is, that if the tenant ceases to perform service in the latter cases, the land-lord is entitled to recover the assessed rent though he cannot eject the tenant. A.I.R. 1933 Nag. 313=146 Ind. Cas. 404.

73 (n). Mullagiri land.

——Service tenures — Mullagiri land—Female, if can inherit mullagiri lands.

The duties of a Mulla are of a religious and not a secular nature and a female is incapable of performing the duties. Consequently, a female is not entitled to inherit what are called mullankl or mullagiri lands, that is, lands assigned for the remuneration of a village. A.I.R. 1935 Bom. 245=8 R. B. 22=37 Bom. L.R. 257=156 Ind. Cas. 656.

73 (o). Personal service.

——Service tenures—Personal service.

Where there is no duty or service of a persona nature imposed upon the grantee of the tenure and he is merely required to appoint Police patrols and to pay for them, the tenure is not a service tenure and not ghatwali in its nature. Mere compulsion to pay rent or revenue imposed upon the grantee does not make the tenure a service tenure. 80 Ind. Cas. 544=3 Pat. 915=6 P.L.T. 191=A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 210.

73 (p). Purakkudi service.

——Service tenure—Purakkudi service—Incidents of—Notice to quit—T. P. Act, S. 111.

In the case of purakkudi service it is the refusal or neglect to perform such service that determines the tenancy and the tenants render themselves liable to be evicted without notice to quit. S. 111, T. P. Act, has no application to the tenancy. 28 Ind. Cas. 915 (Mad.).

73 (q). Resumption.

——Service tenures—Resumption.

There seems to be a distinction between a case where there is a right to service of a public character, such as Chaukidari chakran, and one where the service is to a private person. In the former case, the zamindar himself is not or may not always be entitled to resume possession, whereas in the latter case, he can do so either when the service is not required or when the grantee has refused to perform the service. 58 C. 1359=35 C.W.N. 823= A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 221=135 Ind. Cas. 296.

——Service tenure—Resumption and re-grant—Rival claimant—Adverse possession by.

The grant of a title deed at the enfranchisement of a service inam (unlike the case of personal inam) confers a new title. The title cannot be questioned by persons unconnected either with the office or with the family of the grantee. The title conferred by enfranchisement is not necessarily confined to grants to persons either holding the office at the time of enfranchisement or those claiming the right to do so, though ordinarily as the land follows the office, the title would be conferred on the office-holder at the time of enfranchisement. It would be open to an outsider claiming an enfranchised service inam to show either that it was not an inam at all liable to resumption or that he had by prescription acquired a title to the property, good, not only as against the service holder, but also against the Government, so that the Government's power of disposition was lost. This would involve adverse possession for sixty years. 44 Mad. 643 (P. C.), interpreted and followed; 30 M.L.T. 334, Overruled. 91 Ind. Cas. 130= 1925 M.W.N. 218=48 Mad. 570=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 780=48 M.L.J. 470.

——Service tenure—Resumption.

Resumption is permissible only when the assets include the estate at the Permanent Settlement and the grant is for service in lieu of wages or is burdened with service which the grantee is unable to perform. The attendance on ceremonial and indefinite occasions is not a condition of the holding and non-performance does not result in forfeiture. 2 M.L.W. 483=(1915)M.W.N. 346=29 Ind. Cas.365.

[Affirmed by the Privy Council on appeal: 42 Mad. 589=50 Ind. Cas. 631.]

——Service Tenure—Resumption—Grant subject to burden of service or in lieu of wages—Test.

Held, by their Lordships that the following circumstances in the case namely, (1) that no office by any particular designation, but an obligation of a feudal character was imposed on the grantee; (2) the payment of a uniform rent for a period of 120 years; (3) the absence of any interference by the zemindar with the devolution of the property from heir to heir, and (4) an absence of even an attempt at resumption during all the time, determined the character of the grant as one subject merely to the burden of service, and not as one merely in lieu of wages. Where lands are held under a grant subject to the burden of service, so long as the holders of those grants are willing and able to perform the services, the zemindar has no right to put an end to the tenure whether the services are required or not. I. A. Sup., Vol. 181 at 185 ref. to. 3 A. L. J. 55=3 C.L.J. 1=10 C.W.N. 161=16 M.L.J. 1=8 Bom. L.R. 1=1 M.L.T. 3=29 M. 52=33 I. A. 46 (P. C.).

——Service tenure—Resumption—Digwars of Rarigurh—Dismissal by Government and resettlement with them as Saknitalukdars—Default, proof of.

The Digwari service in this case corresponded elosely with what in other cases have been termed Ghatwali. There is nothing in the use of the term Digwar to raise any presumption in favour of the contention that the holders of land by a service so named hold as personal servant of the Rajah, If anything, the presumption would seem to be the other way. The power of Government, although generally exercised through the Rajah, was always recognised as supreme with respect to the supervision over the Digwars in regard to the discharge by them of their police duties. The Rajah of Rarigurh never possessed or exercised a right to dismiss the Digwars and to resume the Digwari grants, save in cases of default; and by the terms under which persons held Digwari grants, no such power was given or reserved to the Rajah. The dismissal by Government of the Digwars and the substitution for them of a new system of rural police supposed to be of superior quality did not entitle Rajah to resume the lands for default. The subsequent settlement of the lands by Government, purporting to act under Act VIII of 1878 with the dismissed Digwars treating them as sakni talukdars, and imposing on them assessments for road and police purposes of an amount far beyond the burden which previously rested on the holding in the shape of supplying patrols, amounted to a continuance in the form imposed by statute of their public duties. There was no default. 12 C.W.N. 178.

73 (r). Right to hold adversely.

——Service tenure—Right to hold adversely—Onus.

Where a tenure is held to be a service tenure, the onus to prove that the holder of the same had the right to hold the tenure in his own right adversely to the zemindar is on the holder. A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 362=5 B.R. 861=183 Ind. Cas. 80.

74. Sub-soil rights.

——Sub-soil rights.

See also: (1) Grants—Mines and Minerals.
(2) Mines and Minerals.

A grant of tenure does not include mineral rights. A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 149=2 B.R. 585=163 Ind. Cas.169.

——Sub-soil rights—Right to minerals — Construction of words—Ochre and stone—Adverse possession of stone, whether implies adverse possession of ochre.

With regard to right to minerals, patni tenures are generally on the same footing as other permanent heritable and transferable tenures created by a zemindar, and the sub-soil rights will only pass under a patni, as in the case of the other tenures referred to, when granted in express terms.

The words 'chaya hrad' (shades and lakes) daro bast hukuk (with all rights) are not sufficient to pass sub-soil rights to the grantee.

The stone and the ochre must be regarded as separate portions of the sub-soil, of which there may be separate ownership and separate possession.

There can be separate ownership of different strata of the sub-soil, at all events where minerals are involved.

Adverse possession of ochre cannot be presumed from adverse possession of the superincumbent stratum of stone and gravel. A.I.R. 1931 P.C. 162= 35 C.W.N. 870=(1931) A.L.J. 566=34 M.L.W. 1= 54 C.L.J. 137=33 Bom. L.R. 1273=58 I. A. 228=59 Cal. 80=132 Ind. Cas. 610=61 M.L.J. 632 (P.C.)

——Sub-soil rights—Zemindari—Adverse possession of sub-soil—Conduct of parties.

Though long possession of land situated within zemindari may be good evidence of title to surface rights, the question as to sub-soil rights stands upon a different footing. If a claimant to sub-soil rights holds under the zemindar, or by a grant emanating from him, even though his power may be permanent, heritable and transferable, he must still prove the express inclusion of the sub-soil rights.

In considering whether the holders of an estate which fromed part of a parent estate are entitled to sub-soil rights as against the owners of the latter, the conduct of the parties, if approximately, contemporaneous with the severance of the estates, might be of some evidentiary value, but conduct after the lapse of a long period when no one has any certain idea of what the real rights are, is not of much value.

Long possession and enjoyment of surface rights in villages forming part of a zemindari is not evidence of adverse possession of the sub-soil. A.I.R. 1931 P. C. 89=53 C.L.J. 333=35 C.W.N. 521=(1931) M.W.N. 435=33 M.L.W. 707=33 Bom. L.R. 885=61 M.L.J. 9=58 C. 1187=58 I. A. 125=131 Ind. Cas. 753 (P. C.).

——Sub-soil rights—Zemindari.

As between zemindar and jagirdar, the zemindar must be regarded as the owner of the minerals.

The remission of land revenue in respect of villages forming part of a zemindari, whether authorised, by the Govt. or not, cannot affect the proprietary rights of the zemindar in these villages or his right as against tenure holders under him to claim the ownership of the minerals in them. A.I.R. 1931 P.C. 30=58 I.A. 9=60 M.L.J. 253=53 C.L. J. 11=35 C.W.N. 233=33 M.L.W. 277=10 Pat. 296=12 P.L.T. 375=131 Ind. Cas. 325 (P.C.).

75. Tabedari tenure.

See: Land tenures—Ghatwali tenure.

76. Talukdari.

——Talukdari wanta in Gujarat—Nature of—Rights of talukdars.

A talukdari wanta in Gujarat is neither an alienated nor an unalienated holding. It is a peculiar estate which continues to be the property of its holder under the British Rule as it was in pre-British dynasties from ancient times. A talukdar is neither an inamdar nor an occupant of his lands. His wanta is a free-hold and not a lease hold. What was paid formerly as tribute and peshkush as a political levy is now converted into a fixed amount in lump as a revenue payment, but his proprietary right over all the lands comprised in the wanta was affirmed at the commencement of the British Rule and has not since been taken away by any legal process. A.I.R. 1941 Bom. 161=I.L.R. (1941) Bom. 226=43 Bom. L.R. 167=195 Ind. Cas. 640.

Ordinarily lands given as Jivai or maintenance to a cadet in the family are part of the Talukdari estate and liable to payment of Jama. 99 Ind. Cas. 293=28 Bom. L.R, 1213=A.I.R. 1926 Bom. 590.

——Talukdari — Properties purchased from income.

The mere fact that the absolute owner of a certain talukdari as well as non-talukdari properties mixed together the incomes of both the properties and purchased further properties does not impress the subsequently purchased properties with the character and status of talukdari property and it is only the ordinary rule of succession that would apply to it. 88 Ind. Cas. 255=47 All. 186=22 A.L.J. 1079=A.I.R 1925 All. 155.

77. Tanki tenure.

——Tanki tenure—Origin and incidents of.

The word "Revenue" as defined in Act VII of 1868 (B.C.) includes every sum annually payable to the Government by the proprietor of an estate or tenure in respect thereof and the word "properietor" includes any tenant by whom any estate or tenure is held directly under the Government. Upon the disappearance of the Zemindars who held the tenures (tanki tenures) directly from the Government under successive temporary settlements and upon their refusal to take fresh settlements at the time of a re-settlement the tankidars came into direct relations with the Government and became proprietors of the tenures which were henceforth held by them under the Government within the meaning of S. 1 of Act VII of 1868 (B.C.) and the sum annually payable by them in respect of the tenures would be rightly described as revenue, within the meaning of the same provision of the law: and the Collector has ample authority to bring such tenures to sale under the provisions of Act VII of 1868 (B.C.). If the tankidars in a body are the tenure holders, liable for the payment of the Government revenue, each of them prima facie has to contribute a portion of the sum payable. The payment of such sum by any tankidar is payment by him in his character as a member of the body of the tankidars; merely because he cultivates the land in his occupation he cannot be regarded as a cultivating raiyat under the entire body of tankidars which includes himself as a member. The tankidars cannot, therefore, be regarded as occupancy raiyats protected from eviction under S. 14 of Act VII of 1868 (B.C.). It cannot be affirmed as a matter of law that upon defualt of payment by a tankidar, the entire village is liable to be brought to sale so as to destory the rights of all the tenure-holders. The question depends upon the circumstances whether the settlement originally was under Cls. 3, 4 and 5 or under Cls. 7 and 8 of S. 10 of Regulation VII of 1882. The fundamental distinction between the two kinds of settlement is that in the case of a settlement made with a Sudder Malguzar who represented all the persons interested in the property, his default makes the entire tenure liable for sale unless there is a provision to the contrary in the settlement; and in the case of a settlement under Cls. 7 and 8, there is a settlement with a selected person as Sudder Malguzar, and his default does not make the entire tenure liable to sale unless there is a specified provision to the contrary in the settlement. A settlement can be made under Cls. 7 and 8 only in the case of cultivating proprietors who hold their tenure liable to sale in puteedari or bhyacharee or similar form. 7 C.L J. 460.

78. Tenancy.

——Tenancy — Nature — Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885).

A tenancy is not a cultivation of a tenure created for purposes other than agriculture. The annual payment of rent is not conclusive proof of the tenancy being annual. 32 C.L.J. 6=58 Ind. Cas. 835.

——Tenancy—Principle of construction.

Where the lessee was to hold land either in khas or by letting it out to tenants and the tenancy was a temporary one, he was a tenure holder and not a raiyat. The conduct of parties may be looked into when the grant is ambiguous and not otherwise. Though the tenancy is described as a jote strangers may show that its real character is that of a tenure. 14 C.L.J. 38=15 C.W.N. 902=10 Ind. Cas. 431.

79. Thanadari lands.

——Thanadari lands—Rights of holder.

The holders of thanadari land stand in a certain position to the contiguous zamindar. If the lands are resumed, they are to be settled with the zamindar; and it may be that they may even be described as settled with the zamindar in a certain sense, and that there is a sort of superiority in the zamindar which might entitle him to the surface of the land in case of escheat, but whether this would give him a claim to the minerals is a question. The view that thanadari lands, though made resumable, were not always resumed is a difficult one to support. 6 M.I.A. 101 (P.C.); 10 M.I.A. 16 and 44 Cal. 841 (P.C.), Ref. 94 Ind. Cas. 974=53 Cal. 533=53 I.A. 100=30 C.W.N. 745=24 A.L.J. 761=A.I.R. 1926 P.C. 41 (P.C.).

——Thanadari lands.

While both Lakhiraj and Thanadari lands were excluded from the operation of the Permanent Settlement, Lakhiraj lands were neither assessed nor settled with the zamindar while Thanadari lands were settled with the zamindar but excluded from the operation of the Permanent Settlement in the sense that the resumption and re-assessment thereof was reserved by the Government. 10 M.I.A. 16 (P.C.) and 42 Cal. 710 (P.C.), Rel. on.

Resumption in connexion with Thanadari lands properly so called was concluded within a short time after the Permanent Settlement and the zamindars were not allowed to enjoy the produce of such lands or allowances granted in respect of them to the detriment of the public revenue for any considerable length of time afterwards.

A person who claims under a settlement from the Collector on the lands having been resumed is entitled to prove despite all this that the resumption took place on the footing that the lands were Thanadari or that the proceedings relating to the resumption were such as were sanctioned by the Regulations or were in accordance therewith and he can show by other evidence as well that the lands were Thanadari lands. 57 Ind. Cas. 678=44 C.L.J. 7=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 1185.

80. Transferability.

——Transferability—(Manbhum) —Khorposhadar —Suit on ground of inalienability of tenures—Burden of proof on plaintiff.

As regards the jagirs and tenures in the estate of Pachet in Manbhum, the tenures not being service tenures after the Govt. Notification in 1881, it is for the plaintiff, who sues for recovery of possession of land on the ground of its being inalienable, to establish that the defendant vendors were khorposhdars and not share-holders in the tenure. A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 524=150 Ind. Cas, 784.

——Transferability.

Where a man is proved to have hereditary rights and there is nothing to show that they are non-transferable they must be presumed to be transferable. 115 Ind. Cas. 291=A.I.R. 1929 Oudh. 358.

——Transferability—Raiyati holding in Santhal Parganas.

A raiyati jote in the Santhal Parganas cannot be sold by the regular Courts in execution of a decree except where transferability is recorded in Record-of-Rights. A.I.R. 1928 Pat. 105, Rel. on. 116 Ind. Cas. 41=8 Pat. 116=10 P.L.T. 143=A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 198.

——Transferability—Kharposh mukarrari.

As the khatian jamabandi is not confined to raiyati lands, the entry in this khatian jamabandi of kharposh mukarrari lands does not show that they are rayati lands, and if according to the rules of the settlement department, in force, under-tenancies are not to be recorded, it must be taken that the tenants entered against the sub-numbers are raiyats and consquently the kharposhdar is a tenure-holder and his interest is transferable. 105 Ind. Cas. 42=9 P.L.T. 283=A.I.R. 1928 Pat. 105.

——Transferability—Tenure held by villagers as a body—Khatedar—Right of alienation.

At the time of the first Settlement in Berar it was not uncommon for villagers residing in the villages in their province to apply for and obtain from Government fields on the full survey assessment to be used as grazing grounds the village cattle. As the fields were let on assessment it was necessary to have a khatedar or person responsible for that assessment and therefore such fields were entered in the name of a particular villager though they were in reality the property of the villagers as a body. They collected among themselves the annual assessment and paid it to the khatedar who in turn paid it to Government. Under such circumstances an alienation by the khatedar is void, provided that the alienee knew the want of title in the trasferor. A.I.R. 1923 Nag. 214.

——Transferability—Karamkari and Adimayavana tenures.

The inference of prima facie inalienability from the right of reversion in the land-lord is not a necessary or valid inference at all. A permanent right of cultivation does not imply inalienability. No inference of inalienability by custom arises in the case of Karamkari and Adimayavana tenures. The method of inferring the existence of new incidents for a tenure as the supposed logical result of its known incident seems to be quite an unsafe method to adopt. To find out if any particular right is a Customary incident of a tenure, the only safe method is to take evidence of the custom, in the absence of authoritative rulings or statements about it. 15 M. L. W. 164=55 Ind. Cas. 380=A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 290=38 M.L.J. 275.

81. Ubari tenure.

——Ubari tenure.

The Ubari tenure is something of the nature of special grant from Government and is subject to resumption by Government under certain conditions. 69 Ind. Cas. 971=20 A.L.J. 945=45 All. 169=A.I.R. 1923 All 58.

82. Vanta tenure.

——Vanta tenure.

Vanta tenure is prescription of remote antiquity without any deeds or grants. 69 Ind. Cas. 102=24 Bom. L.R. 709=A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 342.

83. Waste land.

——Waste land—Possession and assessment, as evidence of title.

The fact that a certain piece of land has not been assessed to revenue is no proof that it has not been cultivated. Nor does the failure to assess take away the plaintiff's possessory right if by actual possession he has acquired such a right. The Revenue Rules permit any person to enter into possession for the purpose of cultivation, of any Government waste land, but provided that if he does so, he shall be liable to be assessed to revenue and to be evicted by the Government. It is for the Government through its officers, to assess to revenue and not for the cultivator to see that he is so assessed. The fact that one of the contestants has been assessed to revenue and the other has not, is no doubt a relevant fact, and there may be cases in which it will suffice to turn the scale, but it is not in itself conclusive nor is assessment a recognition by the Government of a trespasser's possession. Hence, the fact that the plaintiff was not assessed for the land in dispute and the further fact, that defendant ultimately was so assessed, do not by themselves establish plaintiff's want of title. 84 Ind. Cas. 961 = 2 Rang. 488 = A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 87.

84. Water rights.

See Land Tenures — Ryotwari—Irrigation rights.

85. Zamindari.

——Zamindari—Alienability.

The Dhalbhum Raj in Bengal is an ordinary zemindary and is alienable. 82 Ind. Cas. 886 = 40 C.L. J. 331 = A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 116.

——Zamindari — Bhandara District—It is for zamindars to show that they are not ordinary British subjects.

Zamindars in Bhandara District (C.P.) are ordinary British subjects and are subject to the ordinary laws of the land. The burden lies on them to establish that they are not. A.I.R. 1944 Nag. 201 = I.L.R. (1944) Nag. 180.

——Zamindari—Bhandara District in C. P.— Zamindars not included in class of feudatories are ordinary British subjects and are amenable to revenue laws of land.

Zamindars in Bhandara District (C. P.) and such of the zamindars as were not recognized and classed as feudatories were made amenable to the liability to pay land revenue whatever their previous rights may have been, and as oridinary British subjects, they are amenable to the revenue laws of the land. A person who has lost all rights to sovereign status, even if he ever possessed it, and is reduced to the status, of an ordinary subject, cannot demand the right to wield the attributes of sovereignty and deal directly with the paramount power and not be amenable to its revenue laws. They can be assessed to land revenue, and are bound to pay it if and when it is claimed from them, subject to the revenue laws. A.I.R. 1944 Nag. 201 = I.L.R. (1944) Nag. 180.

——Zamindari—Claim against Zemindar to lands —Onus.

In the case of any claim against the Zemindar to lands which were included in his Zemindari at the Permanent Settlement the burden of proof is upon the claimant. 1 B.R. 77 = A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 306 = 14 Pat. 70 = 157 Ind. Cas. 433.

——Zamindari—Forests—Rights.

Zamindar owns absolute estate in forests in zemindary. 79 Ind. Cas. 845 = 20 M.L.W. 478 = 1924 M.W.N. 440 = A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 828.

——Zamindari—Kampta zemindar in Central Provinces—Status of.

Kampta zemindar was always a subject of the Nagpur Raja, in fact nothing more than a glorified patel. He obtained titular status of zemindar in 1843 on presentation of a nazar of half a lakh of rupees. Kampta was never an independent chieftaincy. (History of the zemindari traced). A.I.R. 1944 Nag. 201 = I.L.R. (1944) Nag. 180.

——Zamindari—Claim to lands in—Onus.

Since the Permanent Settlement, zemindars have at least a prima facie title to all lands included in zemindari, for which they pay revenue and in the case of any claim against it the burden of proof is upon the claimant. 33 M.L.W. 707 = A.I.R. 1931 P.C. 89 = 53 C.L. J. 333 = 35 C.W.N. 521 = (1931) M.W.N. 435 = 33 Bom. L.R. 885 = 61 M.L. J. 9 = 58 C. 1187 = 58 I. A. 125 = 131 Ind. Cas. 753 (P.C.).

——Zamindari—Lands in—Presumption.

There is a general presumption that the land in a zamindari is the property of the zamindar, and held under him. A.I.R. 1931 P.C. 30 = 60 M.L. J. 253 = 53 C.L. J. 11 = 35 C.W.N. 233 = 33 M.L.W. 217 = 10 Pat. 296 = 12 P.L.T. 375 = 58 I.A. 9 = 131 Ind. Cas. 325 (P.C.).

——Zamindari — Mokhasa — Enfranchisement — Effect of.

Where a mokhasa was held from before the Permanent Settlement partly for Police services, which were due to State, and partly for personal services due to the zamindar and on payment of kattubadi to him, and the Government enfranchised the undivided half of the mokhasa area which was held for Police services:

Held, that the enfranchisement did not reduce the claim of the zamindar to one half of the kattubadi due to him. A.I.R. 1934 Mad. 46 = 39 M.L.W. 65 = 147 Ind. Cas. 756.

——Zamindari—Primogeniture—Presumption.

There can be no presumption that the estate because it is admittedly a zamindari is governed by the rules of primogeniture. 118 Ind. Cas. 871 = A.I.R. 1930 Nag. 35.

——Zamindari—Rights of Zamindar.

The Zemindar is entitled to all lands within the Zemindari limits and chowkidari chakran lands included in malguzari lands though originally excluded in calculating assessment belong to the Zemindar on resumption. 44 Cal. 841 = 21 C.W.N. 609 = 32 M.L. J. 565 = 15 A.L. J. 390 = 25 C.L. J. 499 = 19 Bom. L.R. 462 = (1917) M.W.N. 459 = 6 L.W. 101 = 2 Pat. L.W. 1 = 22 M.L.T. 489 = 44 I.A. 117 = 40 Ind. Cas. 981 (P.C.).

——Zemindari—Right of Zemindar.

A Zemindar has a right to the full enjoyment of lands within the ambit of the Zemindari. If the Government claims to resume service lands (i. e.) chowkidari chakran lands in the Zemindari the onus of proving express reservation lies on Government. 43 Cal. 1104 = 20 M.L.T. 235 = 20 C.W.N. 1245 = (1916) 2 M.W.N. 175 = 4 L.W. 251 = 14 A.L. ——Zamindari—Sind.

Though there may have been originally nothing proprietary in the character of some Zemindars in Sind, yet the position was one which readily developed into a proprietary form. 1 S.D. 2281, Foll.; 2 S.D. 320, Not foll.; 7 S.L.R. 169, Ref.

A jaghirdar is merely one who holds an assignment of the Government revenue of certain lands. The landowner in Sind is called the zamindar. The ordinary tenure in Sind is that of a zamindar or land-holder who exercises wholly or in part the privileges of the land-holder and the extent of such privileges varies according to custom from that of an absolute proprietorship of the land, subject to the payment to Government of whatever may be the customary Government share of the produce, down to that of an ill-defined and often disputed claim to levy a lapo or rent on all cultivated land. 79 Ind. Cas. 819=16 S.L.R. 87=A.I.R. 1921 Sind 109.

——Zamindari—"Takoli" if land revenue.

The word "takoli" has no exact meaning and its significance varies according to the connotation in which it is used. In the case of feudatories who are not British subjects, it may possibly, and probably, does, connote a "tribute" leviable by the paramount power. But in the case of non-feudatories it is nothing more than a portion of the land revenue.

The Provincial Legislature has, therefore, power to make laws regarding it. (subject to S. 299 Govt. fo India Act, 1935). A.I.R. 1944 Nag. 201=I.L.R. (1944) Nag. 180.

——Zamindari — Tank — Presumption as to ownership.

Where there is nothing to show that a tank situated in a zamindari was in existence at the time the village was granted to the inamdar or the zamindar, there is no presumptin that the tank belongs to the inamdar or zamindar. A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 490=163 Ind. Cas. 855.

——Zamindari—Water-cess—Enfranchised inam —Kulavettu, if recoverable by zamindar.

Where there is evidence to show that the irrigation tanks and the supply channels have been maintained by the zamindar in proper condition and that the defendant's lands are irrigated by one of the tanks to kept in good repair, kulavettu is a legal cess and is recoverable in a suit by the zamindar against the holder of an enfranchised inam. A. I. R. 1935 Mad. 718=1935 M.W.N. 897=42 M.L.W. 583=160 Ind. Cas. 680.

86. Zurispeshgi lease.

——Zurispeshgi lease—Occupancy rights in.

A Zurispeshgi lease is a transaction between debtor and creditor and not a transaction between lessor and lessee. Therefore the Zurispeshgidar is not entitled to claim occupancy right although there was letting of the land in the sense that the Zurispeshgidar was by the terms of the Zurispeshgi lease required to cultivate the lands and to pay yearly and nominal rent. 78 Ind. Cas. 588=3 Pat. 465=A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 580.

87. Miscellaneous.

——Miscellaneous—Bajeaftidars.

Bajeaftidars are persons whose lands were resumed by the Government under the various regulations and were assessed to revenue, and whatever their position may have been under the regulations, the custom of the country has recognised them as tenants where they hold an area of 75 or less acres, and persons holding under them are recognised by the custom of the country only as mere tenants-at-will, the only exception being that some of the bajeaftidars were given the same status of tenure holders as a matter of compromise in the settlement which took place between 1890 to 1900. 101 Ind. Cas. 119=8 P. L. T. 578= A.I.R. 1927 Pat. 225.

——Miscellaneous—Belagan—Behar.

Settlement Officers in Behar use the terms 'Belagan' to indicate a rent-free tenure. The term means 'not paying agricultural rent' and does not imply anything as to liability to pay rent. 18 C.L.J. 166=18 C.W.N. 913=21 Ind. Cas. 415.

——Miscellaneous—Bobabaing land.

There is no reason why persons should not own bobabaing land in a village; it is conceivable that bobabaing land might often exist in an area which was not originally appropriated to dwelling places, but was subesquently so appropriated. 89 Ind. Cas. 303=3 Rang. 147=A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 263.

——Miscellaneous—Co-sharers—"Hissedar."

A bissedar means a co-sharer, that is to say, a person who owns a share in the mahal. A 'mahal' is ordinarily divided into 'annas' and 'pies' share or into 'bighas' and 'bishwas' share. It comprises a certain specified area. A person who owns a fractional share in the 16 annas or a fractional share in the 20 biswas necessarily owns a share in the joint Khalsa land as a co-sharer. But there may be proprietors, who have proprietary interests in the mahal and yet do not own a fractional share of the 16 annas or of the 20 biswas, as the case may be.

But where the entire 16 annas comprised in the mahal was exhausted by one group of co-sharers, the other groups, though proprietors, could not be called co-sharers, that is, persons who owned specified shares in the 16 annas. 82 Ind. Cas. 196=A. I. R. 1925 All. 135.

——Miscellaneous—Forcible dispossession.

Forcible dispossession of an estate does not affect the tenant's rights who subsequently enters. 2 M.L.W. 483=(1915) M.W.N. 346=29 Ind. Cas. 365.

[Affirmed on appeal: 42 Mad. 589=50 Ind. Cas. 631 (P.C.)]

——Miscellaneous — Grant by Zemindar having no Kudivaram rights—Effect—Rights of inamdar to eject a tenant.

A grant by a Zemindar having no kudiwaram rights cannot operate as grant of an inam.

An Inamdar, to establish his rights to eject tenant, must show that he had the kudiwaram right which can be proved only by showing that he let in the tenants at the beginning of their occupation. 12 M.L.T. 313=17 Ind. Cas. 246.

——Miscellaneous—"Jote."

Jote is a general term with respect to a holding and it is not necessarily equivalent to a "Raiyati jote." A.I.R. 1922 P.C. 241; 21 C.W.N. 188 and 8 C.W.N. 117, Foll. 115 Ind. Cas. 81=48 C.L.J. 97=32 C.W.N. 587=56 Cal. 173=A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 880.

——Miscellaneous—Muafi khairati.

The entry Muafi Khairati simply means that the land is held rent-free or at a low rent by the favour of or under an agreement with the malguzar. Such an entry does not stand in the way of the land-lord recovering the arrears of rent assessed on the holding so recorded. 11 C.P.L.R. 129 and 15 C.P.L.R. 9, Ref. 89 Ind. Cas. 741=A.I.R. 1925 Nag. 452.

——Miscellaneous—Manhunda rent.

Manhunda rent is a fixed amount independent of the total outturn of crops grown. 85 Ind. Cas. 172= 4 Pat. 190=3 Pat. L.R. 22=6 P.L.T. 4=1929 P.H.C. C. 355=A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 299.

——Miscellaneous—Marfatdari receipt.

Marfatdari receipts cannot convey Raiyati title to a Marfatdar. 84 Ind. Cas. 586=4 Pat. 139=6 P.L.T. 12=1924 P.H.C.C. 313=A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 216.

——Miscellaneous — Oudh — Under proprietary rights—Distinction from proprietary rights.

Under-proprietary rights are distinct from proprietary rights. They do not form part and parcel of talukdari right. An under proprietor has complete ownership over his land subject only to the payment in certain cases of rent or malikana to the superior proprietor and his estate is alienable and transferable; but he cannot, and unlike the proprietor, engage directly with the Government for land revenue but must pay his assessment to the proprietor. 17 Ind. Cas. 334 (Oudh).

——Miscellaneous—Pattadar — Relinquishment—Sale by mortgagee from Pattadar.

A decree obtained by a mortgagee from the pattadar subsequent to the relinquishment by the pattadar and grant of the patta to a third person does not affect the rights of such third person who claims under a title granted by the Government even though the mortgagee has purchased the land himself and obtained a patta. 12 M.L.T. 261=(1912) M. W. N. 880=17 Ind. Cas. 253.

——Miscellaneous—Shamilat land.

The rights of a proprietor in the shamilat of a village are not a mere accessory to the land separately held by him and a sale of the latter does not ipso facto convey any rights in the former to the purchaser, and a clause in the wajib-ul-arz providing that shares in the shamilat are proportional to the khewat lands held by each proprietor cannot confer any rights in the common land on the purchaser not conveyed by his deed of sale. 1 P.R. 1894; 113 P.R. 1901; 65 P.R. 1889; 42 P.R. 1897, Foll.; 96 P.R. 1919; 8 P.L.R. 1907 and 9 P.L.R. 1907, Dist. 78 Ind. Cas. 368=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 105.

——Miscellaneous — Unauthorised settlement—Parti land.

The holder of a settlement made by an unauthorised Zemindar, can neither derive title therefrom nor resist the rightful owners who are in possession according to Survey Record of Rights. Possession of parti land, follows title. 1 Pat. L.T. 184=57 Ind. Cas. 323.

Law Reports Act (XVIII of 1875.)

——Applicability.—Privy Council Rulings.

The Indian Law Reports Act has no application to a decision of the Privy Council, and therefore the Courts are at liberty to refer to an unauthorized report of the decision of the Privy Council and, if they are satisfied that it is a correct report, they are bound to follow it. 91 Ind. Cas. 597=48 Mad. 846=1926 M. W. N. 213 = A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 20=49 M.L.J. 498.

——Law Report decision—Purpose for which admissible.

A report of cases may be used as precedent for the decision of a case. But when effect is asked to be given to that very order, a copy of the order duly certified must be produced; a report of the order cannot be looked at for the purpose. (1900) 5 C.W.N. 307=28 C. 171. See also 5 C.W.N. 326=28 C. 289. See also 12 Bom. L. R. 491.

——Ss. 3 and 4—Judgment of Division Bench, though not reported, is binding on single Judge.

All that the Law Reports Act does is to ensure that Judges who have no access to the decisions themselves shall be provided with accurate copies of them. The act is little more than an addendum to S. 78, Evi. Act, which provides for the manner in which public documents may be proved. If an officially certified copy of a judgment of the High Court were to be produced in a lower Court, the lower Court would be bound to treat it in the same way as it would an officially reported judgment. A lower Court is bound by an unpublished ruling of its own High Court but not by an obiter dicta.

Hence a single Judge of the High Court is bound by the decision of the Division Bench, even though the decision is not reported. It is the decision and not the opinion of the Court nor the report of it that makes the precedent. Hence an unreported case may be cited as an authority if the actual decision can be shown from the original sources. It is the decision which establishes the precedent and the report but serves as evidence of it. A.I.R. 1944 Nag. 44=1944 N.L.J. 1=I.L.R. (1944) Nag. 342=213 Ind. Cas. 241 (F.B.)

——S. 3—Private publication.

Under S. 3, it would be open to a Court before whom a decision from an unauthorised report is cited to make up its mind as to whether it shall hear that case cited, or shall receive or treat that decision as an authority binding on it. In exercising its discretion on any particular occasion, the Court should give due weight to the practice prevailing in the Courts with reference to any particular report, a decision from which is sought to be cited. A subordinate Court is not, however, entitled to compare the soundness or otherwise of the views, on a question of law contained in a decision reported in an unauthorized series of the High Court to which he is subordinate with those of other High Court. (1930) M.W.N. 955= A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 71=130 Ind. Cas. 190.

——S. 3—Private publication.

A decision published in a private publication not authorized by any Local Government is not absolutely binding. 98 Ind. Cas. 708=4 Rang. 146 =5 Bur. L.J. 90=27 Cr.L.J. 1396= A.I.R. 1926 Rang. 164 (F.B.)

——S. 3—Subordinate Courts.

Per Dalal, J.—A Subordinate Court is bound to follow a decision of a Bench of its High Court, and in doing so it would be exercising jurisdiction rightly and not irregularly. 37 All. 359 (P. C.) and A.I.R. 1923 All. 392 (F.B.), Rel. on. 98 Ind. Cas. 376=48 All. 432=24 A.L.J. 430=A.I.R. 1926 All. 346.

——S. 3—Unofficial report.

A view expressed in a judgment of a High Court which has not been officially published even without reasons, is entitled to respect, and any examination of it ought to start with the assumption that it is correct and has good reasons behind it. But it is not to be followed blindly, like one that is officially published, though good reasons must be found for not following it. 93 Ind. Cas. 850=8 N.L.J. 153= A.I.R. 1925 Nag. 414.

——S. 3—Unreported cases, authority of.

S. 3 of the Indian Law Reports Act was framed to constitute a monopoly for the authorised law reports, if the judges so desire. But it does not prevent the court from looking at the unreported judgment of the judges of the same court. 5 C.W.N. 326=28 C. 289.

1. Adverse possession.

——Lease—Adverse possession.

The lessor offered to lease his land to the lessee for building a house on an annual rent with a condition, that so long as rent was paid, the lessor would have no right to get the house vacated. No lease was executed by the lessor but the lessee executed a registered kabuliyat. The lessee remained in possession for over 12 years;

Held, that the lessee acquired a title which the agreement, if accompanied by a registered lease, would have conferred upon him. A.I.R. 1943 All. 212 =(1943) A. L. J. 66=1943 A.W.R. 28.

2. Agricultural lease.

——Agricultural lease—Mortgage by tenant.

Where a lessee of agricultural lands is to enjoy the land without transferring it to any body and he mortgages it subsequently, the Court will give him time to pay off the mortgage, particularly where the owner has refrained from objecting to a previous mortgage by the lessee. 94 Ind. Cas. 1054=50 Bom. 450=28 Bom. L. R. 527=A.I.R. 1926 Bom. 304.

——Agricultural — Non-delivery of portion of demised land—Claim for damages—Cause of action—Limitation.

A contract between the lessor and the lessee is broken completely as soon as the lessor declines or is unable to place the lessee in possession of the demised property and the cause of action for the plaintiff's suit arises on the date of such breach whether the suit is construed as one for breach of a covenant to give possession or of one for quiet enjoyment and the failure of the lessor to give possession goes to the very root of the contract and is so fundamental as to entitle the lessee to treat the breach as final and bring an action forthwith for the whole of his prospective damages. 40 Mad. 910=19 M.L.T. 318= 3 L. W. 443=(1916) 1 M.W.N. 342=30 M.L.J. 515= 5 Ind. Cas. 254.

——Agricultural—If governed by T. P. Act.

Agricultural leases are not governed by the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act. 5 M.L.T. 222=4 Ind. Cas. 1124.

3. Assignment.

Assignment—Option to the lessee to purchase the land leased, whether enures to the assignee.

On an assignment of the lease, the option of the lessee to purchase the leased property enures to the assignee. 42 Bom. 103=19 Bom. L. R. 813=42 Ind. Cas. 882.

——Assignment—Suit for rent after—Kattakonam—Right to set off.

After the execution of a lease deed, the lessee gave a certain sum as Kattakonam to the lessor. The interest due from the lessor was to be deducted from the rent due every year and the principal of the Kattakonam was repayable when the lease from year to year terminated. After the lease, the lessor assigned his reversion to a third party. The lessor then filed a suit for rent. Held, (1) that the lessee could not set off the Kattakonam against plaintiff's claim; (2) that the tenant could proceed for his Kattakonam against either the assignor or the assignee; and (3) that the right to enforce the Kattakonam did not accrue due, on the date of the assignment but on the termination of the tenancy unless a special contract to the contrary exists. 17 Ind. Cas. 623 (Mad.).

4. Building by lessee.

——Building by lessee.

The contract between the parties stipulated that the price to be paid by the lessor for the building erected by the lessee on the lease land should be according to the market-value of the building at the time the land-lord resumed possession. The lessor was not entitled to resume possession until the value was paid. The building constructed was a cinema hall;

Held, that (1) the proper method in valuing the building was to find out the cost of reproducing the building and then to allow for depreciation and cost of repairs in the absence of a stipulation to the contrary. No special value could be placed upon the building by reason of its being a cinema hall;

(2) if the lessee had refused a reasonable offer of the lessor for the building, at the expiration of the lease, the lessee must be considered to be a trespasser and therefore, liable for mesne profits;

(3) if the amount offered was ridiculously inadequate, the lessee could not be treated as a trespasser, liable to mesne profits and his occupation must be deemed to have continued on the basis of the rent fixed by the contract between the parties. In such a case, if the Court allowed the lessor rent for occupation on the basis fixed by the contract between the parties and ordered him to pay a certain sum fixed by it as the value of the building to the lessee within the fixed time, the Court was not entitled to direct that. the sum should carry interest in the event of default in payment as ordered. 54 M.L.W. 508=1941 M.W.N. 238=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 711=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 156.

——Building by lessee and carrying on business —Lessor if acquires good will of business on termination of lease.

Ordinarily, a hotel connotes the business carried on by a person, though sometimes the terms is also used with regard to premises, but it is only owing to their association with the original business carried on in them. Hence where the lessee of a certain site built a hotel on it and carried on business under a particular name, and the lessor, on the termination of the tenancy got back the site, with the structures constructed thereon, under the terms of the lease.

Held, that the lessor did not get the goodwill of the business and was not entitled to carry on a hotel at the site under the old name. 32 P.L.R. 542=A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 650=133 Ind. Cas. 891.

5 (a). Abwab.

——Construction—Abwab or rent.

Whether any particular item is an abwab or not must depend upon the construction of the contract of lease in each case, and the question in each case is whether the sum claimed is really part of the rent agreed to be paid under the lease. 21 C.W.N. 108=36 Ind. Cas. 404.

——Construction—Abwab—Consideration.

If a definite sum is specified in a lease or is agreed and is the lawful consideration for the use and occupation of the land, i. e., part of the rent although not described as such, the land-lord can recover the same. In a Kabuliyat before the B. T. Act, there was a term for delivery of 10 seers of chilli besides the money rent; Held that the chilli was part of the consideration of the lease and not abwab. 12 Ind. Cas. 37 (Cal.).

5 (b). Ambiguous terms.

——Construction—Ambiguous terms.

Where the terms of the lease are ambiguous and the original purpose of the tenancy is not clear, it will be open to the Court to refer to the conduct of the parties and other extraneous circumstances in order to determine the nature and the purpose of the tenancy. 15 C.W.N 896, Rel. on. 121 Ind. Cas. 360=10 P.L.T. 359=A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 376.

5 (c). Assignment or sub-lease.

——Construction—Assignment or sub-lease.

On a question as to a transaction amounting to an assignment or to an under-lease, the proper test is to see whether the lessee under the head-lease has parted with his whole interest or with a lesser interest than he himself possessed. If he has, then the instrument of transfer, by whatever name it may be called, is in reality an assignment. A lease of the entire interest of the lessee subject to a power to surrender, operates as an assignment and not as an under-lease. 1 Pat. L. T. 84 =55 Ind. Cas. 113.

5 (d). Bemiadi Patta.

——Construction—Bemiadi patta.

Where a certain woman gave a 'Bemiadi patta' of a jagir the terms of which were that the lessee, his heirs and successors should hold possession of the property and have rights in the minerals and that the lessor shall have the rights to use the trees thereon as she may require, and the rent shall be payable to her and after the death to her daughter yearly, Held, that the Bemiadi Patta was a lease without a term, if not for any definite period, and the mere mention of the heirs, minerals, etc., did not make the lease a permanent one and that it was only a lease from year to year. 2 Pat. L.J. 180=1 Pat. L.W. 447=(1918) Pat. H.C.C. 1 =39 Ind. Cas. 658.

5 (e). Clause against objection to dispossession.

——Construction—Clause against objection to dispossession.

A executed a deed of lease in favour of B which contained terms to the following effect: "I shall not be competent to raise any objection on the ground of drought, inundation, etc., and possession and dispossession of any kind," "I shall not claim any dags, etc., which may have been included in the lease but which are owned and possessed by anybody else." B being unable to take possession of the land instituted a suit for a declaration of title and recovery of possession with a prayer in the alternative for refund of the premium. It was contended that because of the given conditions B was not entitled to a refund.

Held, that the stipulations did not in any way take away from the lessee the ordinary rights that he had of being put in possession and in default thereof claiming a rescission of the contract. 57 Cal. 114= A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 385=125 Ind. Cas. 607.

5 (f). Consent decree.

——Construction—Consent decree empowering land-lord to eject tenant on refusal to cultivate—Right to sue for rent.

A land-lord and tenant agreed under a consent decree that if the tenant refused to cultivate the land and to deliver to the land-lord his share of the produce the land-lord could eject the tenant. Held, that the clause relating to the ejectment was in the nature of a clause for re-entry and had not the effect of depriving the land-lord of his ordinary right to sue for the arrears of rent due by the tenant. 44 Ind. Cas. 925 (Cal.).

5 (g). Grove.

——Construction—Grove—Planting of — Condition not rendered impossible—Transfer of.

A land was granted to defendant for the purpose of planting a grove and it was provided that the transferee might plant trees on the land and cut them at his pleasure, that if any revenue was assessed on the land the defendant was to pay it. If he wished to sell it the plaintiff was to have a right of pre-emption. Held, that the document created an interest in the land in favour of the defendant and that the right granted could not be revoked at the will of the grantor. No time having been fixed for planting a grove, the condition could not be said to have been broken until the defendant rendered the performance of the condition impossible. 13 A.L. J. 376=28 Ind. Cas. 680.

5 (h). Improvements.

—— Construction — Improvements, right to remove.

A provision in a lease-deed enabling the tenant if he is unwilling to take the lease again to remove the improvements made by him does not cover the right of renewal on the same terms but only the right of removal of fixtures and other improvements. 13 C.L. J. 262= 9 Ind. Cas. 923.

5 (i). Joint lessees.

——Contruction—Joint lessees.

A lease specified certain shares in favour of several lessees but the various lessees were treated as one person and the consideration was one sum due from the lessees as a body. The lease was joint and indivisible. Held, that none of the joint lessees can sue for possession of his proportionate share. One joint lessee can sue for possession of the whole where the other lessees act in collusion with the lessor. 57 P.R. 1911=49 P.L.R. 1912=242 P.W.R. 1911=12 Ind. Cas. 850.

5 (j). "Lease for season."

——Construction—Lease for 'Season'—Hill station—Period.

In the absence of evidence to the contrary, a lease of a house at Mussoorie for the 'season' continues to the end of the year. 13 A.L. J. 647=29 Ind. Cas. 437.

5 (k). Lease of melwaram rights.

——Construction — Lease of melvaram rights—Liability for village officers' remuneration.

The plaintiff zamindar executed a cowlenama (lease) of certain villages in defendant's favour. It was, in effect, of the right to collect melvaram from the tenants of the villages. The Raja was liable to pay out of the gross yield nine per cent. to the village officers as their remuneration (maniba swatantrams). The defendant-lessee made these payments direct to the village officers. The Government having afterwards fixed salaries in cash for the village officers, the nine per cent. became no longer payable to them by the Raja. The Raja accordingly claimed to recover from the defendant lessee the nine per cent. of the gross produce, contending that the defendant had hitherto been paying the same over to the village officers as an agent of the Raja and that when the obligation of the Raja to make these payments ceased, the defendant-lessee was thereafter receiving the nine per cent. for the Raja's use:

Held, upholding the contentions of the plaintiff, that the nine per cent. was not transferred to the defendant subject to the burden of paying the remuneration that the payment was really made by the defendant ad hoc as an agent of the zamindar who was therefore entitled to recover them as soon as the liability to pay ceased. 104 Ind. Cas. 337=46 C.L.J. 231=39 M.L.T. 258=1927 M.W.N. 713=29 Bom. L.R. 1400=A. I. R. 1927 P. C. 206=53 M.L.J. 289 (P.C.).

——Construction—Lease of melwaram rights—Liability for village officers' remuneration.

A Zamindar who was entitled to receive from the cultivating ryots, as his melwaram, 48 per cent. of the produce, 9 per cent. of which was to be paid by him to village officers as pay, executed a cowle to farmers in respect of the said melwaram right under which the cowledars undertook to make the payment to the village officers themselves. Thereafter the payment to village officers was abolished by Statute and the Zemindar thereupon sued the cowledars for the amount which they would have had to pay to the Village Officers, on the ground that the cowledars were only agents of the Zemindar and that they had to account to the Zemindar for the said amount.

Held: Per Schawabe, C. J. and Trotter J., Kumaraswami Sastri, J., diss. — The plaintiff was not entitled to recover the amount and the only remedy of the Raja was under S. 27 (4) of the Madras Proprietary Estates Village Service Act of 1894 by an application to the Collector for increase of rent. 70 Ind. Cas. 469=15 M.L.W. 556=30 M.L.T. 317=46 Mad. 177=A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 263=43 M. L. J. 158 (F.B.).

5 (l). Lease or agreement to lease.

——Construction—Lease or agreement to lease.

Whether a contract is to be construed as a lease or merely as an agreement to lease must be gathered from the terms of the whole document. Where the contract operates as an actual demise it must be deemed to be a lease. 74 Ind. Cas. 480=10 O.L.J. 109=A.I.R. 1923 Oudh 237.

——Construction—Lease or agreement to lease.

The paramount intention of parties deducible from the instrument determines the question as to whether there is a present demise or only an agreement to demise. Held on the construction of an amalnamah, neither stamped nor registered and executed in anticipation of a proper Mourai Mokrari lease, there was a present demise. 13 C. L. J. 300=15 C.W.N. 536= 8 Ind. Cas. 44.

5 (m). Lease or contract for service.

——Construction—Lease or contract for service.

A Kabuliyat by a burgadar created a settlement of a land for a term with a provision for giving up the land without notice on the expiration of the term. Held, that the contract was not a mere contract for service but created a tenancy. 53 Ind. Cas. 541 (Cal.)

5 (n). Lease or usufructuary mortgage.

——Construction—Lease or usufructuary mortgage.

Under the terms of the deed it was agreed that the Ijaradar should remain in possession of the Ijara property, and out of the fixed annual rent, he should pay Government revenue and road-cess into the Government Treasury every year, should deduct and appropriate to himself certain sum every year in lieu of interest on the Zuripeshgi money and should pay the remaining sum every year as haq ajiri to the owner.

Held, that the haq ajiri payment was not rent, that the deed was a usufructury mortgage and that the person in possession held as mortgagee and not as a tenant. The haq ajiri was due from him as mortgagee under an arrangement with the mortgagor and was not due from him as tenant, and further that the haq ajiri not being rent, no interest was payable on it, as there was no stipulation in the deed for payment of interest thereon. 1 P.L.W. 795, Rel. 90 Ind. Cas. 785=7 P.L.T. 158=1925 P.H.C.C. 317=A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 77.

5 (o). Lessee or under-proprietor.

——Construction—Lessee or under-proprietor.

Where the wording of the patta does more than suggest that the holder is an under-proprietor and not a tenant, and there is evidence that the holder managed the cultivated and uncultivated lands, exercised rights of escheat, allowed tenants to settle in the village, to plant trees, to sink wells, and this the holder or his predecessor has done as far back as the memory of man can go, at least from a period prior to annexation, the inevitable conclusion is that the holder is an under-proprietor and not tenant or thekadar. A.I.R. 1930 P.C. 248(P.C.)=34C.W.N.1111=7 O.W.N. 931=59 M.L.J. 880=128 Ind. Cas. 272=33 L.W. 85.

——Construction—Lessee or under-proprietor.

A document was christened with the name of a 'perpetual lease.' After reciting the area of the lands which were the subject-matter of the deed, the document prescribed a jama of Rs. 102—2—0 annually payable by the lessor, and then proceeded as follows:—"I do hereby agree and reduce to writing that the said 'lessee' having his possession over it shall annually pay the pay of the Patwari and Chaukidar, i.e., the entire amount of Rs. 102—2—0 shall be paid to the Government, and he shall remain in possession and enjoyment of the same generation after generation (naslan bad naslan, batnan and batnan) and shall exercise all sorts of proprietary powers." It was found that the donee and his sons used to pay rent to the donor and her transferee.

Held, the name "perpetual lease" is not inconsistent with a grant of heritable and transferable right in the property which is the subject-matter of the deed in question. The defendants are not proprietors of the lands in suit, but they are under-proprietors, i. e., they possess heritable and transferable interest in those lands. 66 Ind. Cas. 110=9 O.L.J. 104=A.I.R. 1922 Oudh 42.

5 (p). Liability to rates and taxes.

——Construction—Liability to rates and taxes.

A condition in a kabuliyat providing for the payment by the lessee of any tax or cess covers the road and the Health Board cess but does not include income-tax on royalty. A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 75.

——Construction—Liability to rates and taxes.

Where by the terms of a lease, the lessee covenanted to pay water tax and the lessor covenanted that he would during the said lease pay all rates and taxes, payable in respect of the said premises except the rates covenanted to be paid by the lessee, the lessor is clearly bound to pay property tax based on an increased assessment made after the lease. 32 Bom. L.R. 1660 and 32 Bom. L.R. 1668=A.I.R. 1931 Bom. 118.

——Construction — Liability for — Municipal taxes—Covenant by lessee to pay taxes on buildings and by lessor to pay quit-rent.

A lessee undertook to pay all the municipal taxes payable for buildings erected on the land demised and the lessor agreed to pay only quit-rent. Subsequent to the lease the Municipality began to levy separate assessment on the buildings and the lands. Held, that on the construction of the lease, the lessee was bound to pay all taxes leviable under Ss. 129, 145, 148 of the City of Madras Municipal Act. The liability was not affected by any arrangement on the lands and buildings standing thereon. (1918) M.W.N. 130=7 M.L.W. 140=43 Ind. Cas. 634.

——Construction—Liability to rates and taxes—Agreement to pay Government dues—Remission—Right to benefit.

Under a Paini lease, the annual rent was fixed at a certain sum out of which Rs. 1,080—8—7 was to be paid by the tenant on account of Government dues payable by the land-lord and the balance was to be paid to the land-lord as Malikana. The lease provided that if any new imposts be levied by Government in the future the tenant would be liable for the same but there was no provision for the case of any remission. Except for the Malikana, the land-lord was to have no right and interest whatever. Subsequently the Government demand was reduced. Held, that the land-lor was entitled to the benefit of this sum, that is, he may realise it from the tenant in addition to the Malikana. 33 C. 140. 32. C. 169, Dist. 14 C.L.J. 589, Ref. 15 Ind. Cas. 301 (Cal.)

——Construction—Liability to pay—Cess.

An agreement to pay 'road and public work' cesses at half an anna per rupee as is levied at present will bind the tenant to pay enhanced cesses in case of revaluation. 13 C.L.J. 412=9 Ind. Cas. 704.

5 (q). Nim-howla lease.

——Construction — Nim-howla lease—Stipulation against voluntary alienation—Execution sale—Stranger purchaser—Land-lord if can sue original tenants for rent and obtain decree.

At a sale in execution the plaintiff purchased the right, title and interest of the tenants in a nim-howla tenure. Notwithstanding that the purchase by plaintiff was duly notified to the land-lord, the latter sued the tenants for rent and obtained a decree. The plaintiff sued for a declaration that this decree was not binding on him and that the tenure in his hands was not liable to sale in execution. The lease which created the nim-howla provided: 'Let it be known that if you transfer the nim-howla tenure, you will transfer it to me for proper price, and will not transfer it to any other person. If you transfer it to any other person such transfer will be invalid.' Held, that there being no covenant against involuntary alienations and no covenant for re-entry, the plaintiff acquired a good title by his purchase and consequently the land-lord could not sue the original tenants to obtain a decree whereby he could proceed against the tenure in the hands of the plaintiff. 18 C.W.N. 1138=26 Ind. Cas. 23.

5 (r). Occupancy rights.

——Construction — Occupancy rights — Claim to.

A lease from 1914 to 1923 Sambat demised for the year 1914, 25 highas of land and nine mahua trees and from 1915 to 1923 the entire mouza including the cultivated and uncultivated lands. It was stipulated that the lessee should cultivate the village, keep the tenants contented, settle himself and cause the tanants to settle therein. It was further covenanted that in the event of the rent being paid till term of the lease, after the expiry of the term, the settlement would be made at a proper increased rent for a certain term with the same lessee and no other. Several times the lease was renewed and contained a clause disclaiming raiyati rights. In the Record-of-Rights, the lessee was entered as bemiadi thekadar.

Held, that it was not correct to say that the lease was a cultivating lease in respect of 25 bighas. It was a single lease for the whole village. Although there was the covenant for renewal, the lease did not contemplate permanency of tenure. The lessee was only a tenure-holder holding under a lease and acquired no occupancy rights so long as the lease continued. 115 Ind. Cas. 554=A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 68.

——Construction—Occupancy right.

A stipulation by a ryot that he will not touch the land without obtaining a fresh cowle amounts merely to a covenant not to cultivate and is not inconsistent with occupancy right. 9 M.L.T. 213=9 Ind. Cas. 566.

5 (s). Permanent or temporary.

——Construction—Permanent or temporary.

When the lessee is to construct a building on the land leased, and to remain in the house for ten years at a small rent, the lease is one for ten years and not in perpetuity. 7 M.L.T. 106=5 Ind. Cas. 813.

5 (t). Principles for construction.

——Construction—Principles.

Every lease must depend on its particular language and terms. 98 Ind. Cas. 92=A.I.R. 1927 All. 78.

——Construction—Principles.

The construction of one lease is of very little help in construing another. 11 Pat. L.T. 695=A.I.R. 1931 Pat. 25.

——Construction—Principles.

The circumstances existing at the date of the lease should be looked at, for the purpose of construing the words in the lease. 24 C.L.J. 21=34 Ind. Cas. 72.

——Construction — Principles—Penal clause in lease deed.

The penal clause in a lease must be construed strictly without favouring either side. 39 Mad. 1049=32 Ind. Cas. 512.

——Construction — Principles — Plain and unambiguous words.

Where the true effect of the language used in a lease is perfectly clear, no reference is possible to the conduct of the parties and no amount of acting by the parties can alter or qualify words which are plain and unambiguous. 19 C.W.N. 1311=26 Ind. Cas. 466.

5 (u). Remission of rent.

——Construction — Remission of rent on account of Mondoli — Mondol's services dispensed with—Rent of holding.

Defendant executed a kabuliat to the plaintiff in 1865 providing that 'the rent, at the rate of 5 as. a Bigha, has been settled at Rs. 2,534; on the prayer of the tenant and in consideration of his services a mondol as sum of Rs. 811 is remitted and the tenant admits a rent of Rs. 1,623 and agrees to pay the same year by year in accordance with certain instalments.' Plaintiff in 1909 removed the defendant from his position as Mondol and sued him for rent at the higher amount. In certain Eqrars executed by the defendant the rent actually fixed was declared to be the smaller amount and when the rent receipts were granted, the rent payable as the Jama was stated at the lower figure, and when on one occasion an attempt was made to state the Jama at the higher figure and below this the remission, the tenant objected and the attempt was abandoned. Held, that the kabuliat meant that the lesser sum agreed to be paid was the rent of the holding and that the remission granted was not contingent upon or held, in abeyance as payment for services but represented a permanent and irrevocable abatement. 8 Ind. Cas. 18 (Cal.)

——Construction — Remission for excess or failure of rains.

Where the terms of a lease-deed provide that rent would be remitted in case of excess or failure of rain, remission would be granted to the lessee only in abnormal seasons and not in normal seasons. 7 M.L.T. 39=5 Ind. Cas. 510.

5 (v). Right of tenant to settlement.

——Construction — Right of tenant to settlement.

When the land-lord had,under a kabuliat, granted a lease of certain lands to the defendant, and the defendant had taken possession, he must recognise the defendant as his tenent. 50 Ind. Cas. 314 (Cal.).

5 (w). Security.

——Construction — Security — Stipulation to furnish in a fortnight—Waiver.

Under a lease the lessees were to give security within 15 days. The security bond was executed after the expiry of the 15th day and then the lessors made over possession to the lessees. Held, that the surety was liable to perform the obligation he entered into, under the document as the time clause was solely for the benefit of the lessors. 18 A.L. J. 105=2 U.P.L.R. (All.) 53=55 Ind. Cas. 230.

5 (x). Tenancy.

——Construction—Tenancy—Character of.

In order to determine the character of the tenancy, the Court has to look to the intrinsic evidence afforded by the documents themselves creating the tenancy and if the terms are vague or ambiguous, the Court is entitled also to look to the surrounding circumstances and the conduct of the parties.

Where a large portion of the area covered by the tenancy was tank, and in the documents there was no specific mention of the fact that the tenancy was being created for the purpose of agriculture, or horticulture but, on the other hand, the documents in question spoke of conditions to the effect that the rent would be increased proportionately as the lands became cultivable and also that the tenant would be liable to damages if the productive power of the lands be diminished in consequence of negligence on the part of the tenant and where, further more, it had been found the lands were paddy lands and that there were mango trees on the banks the fruits of which the tenant enjoyed.

Held, the lease was governed by the Tenancy Act. 79 Ind. Cas. 648=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 181.

5 (y). Tenure.

——Construction—Tenure—Not raiyati interest.

One K executed in favour of B a kabuliyat by which a Sarasari jama was sougt to be created in respect of 275 bighas of land. Out of these 275 bighas 160 bighas were cultivated land for which a rental of Rs. 74 was fixed. The remaining 115 bighas were waste land for which no rent was assessed and it was provided in the document that the rent would be assessed therefor when the land would be brought under cultivation. It went on to state that if any market, hat, etc., were established on the land, the land-lord would be entitled to make settlements about them separately, and if any portion of the land was acquired for public purposes the land-lord would get the price therefor. It further provided that the tenant would enjoy the fruits of the trees on the land paying Falkar and would be liable to pay further compensation if he did damage to the trees, etc. It further stated that if the entire rent for any particular year was not paid in time, the land-lord would be entitled to make a fresh settlement oe the jama. It stated also that the tenancy that was created was to be heritable.

Held, that the interest created was that of a tenure-holder and not that of a raiyat and the tenure was transferable. 100 Ind. Cas. 302=44 C. L. J. 434=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 220.

5 (z). Toll.

——Construction—Toll—Payment of—Shop.

The defendant took a lease of certain property for keeping a shop. The terms were that the lessee should pay a certain amount of rent and must also pay toll over the stipulated rent as part of the rent in respect of goods that should be sold in the shop or on boat or on road on certain terms. Held, defendant was liable to pay toll not only for goods sold in his shop but also for those taken from his shop and carried by boat or on road to some other near place and sold there. 45 Ind. Cas. 875 (Cal.)

5 (a-a). Words.

——Construction—Words—"Land required for culverts, embankments on roads"—Words if exhaustive or illustrative.

Words like 'culverts, embankment, roads' appearing in a Patni Kabuliat are merely illustrative of the purposes and not exhaustive. 18 C.W.N. 860=22 Ind. Cas. 966.

——Construction—Words—'Phal Phul' — Meaning of.

The expression 'phal phul' (fruits and flowers) of trees leased would in the natural meaning of the words include the natural products of the trees only and prima facie in the absence of other circumstances the cutivation of shellac on them would not be included. 24 C.L.J. 21=34 Ind. Cas. 72.

——Construction—Words—"Raiyat."

The word "raiyat" used in a lease does not necessarily mean an agricultural tenant. It is often used in the mofussil of Bengal in its wider sense of meaning a tenant in general. The lessee of a piece of homestead land is ordinarily a tenant and not raiyat. 90 Ind. Cas. 104=42 C. L. J. 78=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 215.

——Construction—Words—Satta.

The generic meaning of the word "satta" is mercantile traffic or exchange for money. The Satta is merely a commercial agreement regulating the conditions under which a tenant agrees to grow certain crops; but it is, in no sense, a demise of the land.

Where in a suit for declaration that the defendants are occupancy tenants, and not tenants, at fixed rates, a kabuliyat executed by defendant's predecessor in 1875 is produced by the plaintiff as showing the origin of the tenancy, and where this kabuliyat does not refer to any previous tenancy or purport to be a renewal of a previous lease in the absence of evidence to the contrary, the kabuliyat must be read as creating the tenancy. 2 P.L.T. 605=A.I.R. 1921 Pat. 412.

5 (b-b). Miscellaneous.

——Construction—Miscellaneous.

A particular piece of land was leased out "without any interest except to get produce, cultivate the land and pay the rent, without changing the features of the land or having recourse to any illegal act or in any way interfering with the land." The land comprised paddy land and land merely producing thatching grass.

Held, that so far as the other piece of land for producing thatching grass was concerned, it must be considered that growing grass on that piece was a form of cultivation. A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 297=126 Ind. Cas. 289.

6. Contracts of leases.

——Contracts of leases—Incidents.

Contracts of leases are, in their very nature founded upon executory consideration inasmuch as the payment of rent on the part of the lessee is to be made in future at the stipulated points of time. 77 Ind. Cas. 695=25 O.C. 282=A.I.R. 1923 Oudh 45.

7. Covenants.

——Covenant against alienation — Breach of —Re-entry.

Cases of unauthorized alienation are generally covered by an express condition in the lease giving a right of re-entry on breach of that condition. 98 Ind. Cas. 794=50 Bom. 306=28 Bom. L.R. 750=A.I.R. 1926 Bom. 410.

——Covenant—Breach of—Re-entry—Right of on breach of covenant.

Where there is a covenant against alienation by the tenant but no right of re-entry reserved in the landlord, the lease is not forfeited by breach of the covenant and the remedy of the land-lord is by the limited ways of injunction against an apprehended breach or by recovery of damages for the breach already committed. 24 C.L.J. 40=21 C.W.N. 117=34 Ind. Cas. 833.

——Covenant—Breach of—Provision to give up land on notice—Remedy of lessor.

Where the lessee was bound by the terms of the lease, to give up a portion of land required by the lessor for which proportionate remission in rent should be allowed and the lessor gave notice to the lessee to give up almost all the lands in question and on refusal, sued for possession. Held, that the proper remedy to ask for would be specific performance and not relief in ejectment. 6 S.L.R. 265=19 Ind. Cas. 908.

——Covenant—Construction of—Restriction on alienation.

A 'person' in a covenant against assignment includes a corporation and a limited company is capable of being 'a respectable and responsible person' within such covenant. 'Unreasonable' means without fair, solid and substantial cause, justfiying refusal of the lessor's consent to the alienation. 24 C.W.N. 1007=60 Ind. Cas. 105=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 99=48 Cal. 176=60 Ind. Cas. 105.

——Covenant—Re-entry—Binding nature of covenant for.

A kabuliyat provided as follows: "I have remained in possession by taking lease in the benami of S and paying Rs..... as the annual rent; if the Sarkar requires it I shall give up the building and the trees which I may grow on taking the proper market price. On this understanding I sign this mukarrari lease. If there is any necessity for huzoorali to resume possession I shall relinquish it and get back consideration money." Held, on a construction of the lease, that the lease was not a permanent one but was one on a fixed rent with a covenant for entry. Held also that the covenant as to re-entry ran with the land and was binding on the parties and their successors. 52 C.L.J. 486=A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 160=130 Ind. Cas. 564.

——Covenant for re-entry whether personal or runs with the land—Taluka patta.

The interest created by a Taluka patta constitutes prima facie a permanent tenure, where there was nothing to the contrary either in the surrounding circumstances or in the instrument. When the taluka patta was silent as to heritability and transferability but during the period of sixty years the tenancy had devolved from father to son and had formed the subject of many transfers and the rent fixed had never varied, the lease was held to be permanent. Though there was a covenant in the lease that if the grantor had personal necessity the grantee would be bound to relinquish the land, the covenant was a personal one and ceased to be operative on the death of the grantor. The covenant must be construed strictly against the grantor and most beneficially in favour of the grantee. The question whether a covenant in a lease is personal one or runs with the land depends upon the true intention of the grantor and the grantee to be ascertained from the construction of the terms of the grant. 21 C.W.N, 903=28 C.L.J, 18=41 Ind. Cas. 530,

8. Creation of lease.

——Creation of lease—Agreement as to meaning of lease does not create new lease.

An agreement as to the meaning of a lease would not by itself be the creation of a new lease. There was a dispute between the parties as to their respective rights under the lease. A compromise petition fixing the rate of rent and prohibiting the lessee from constructing pucca roofs without the lessor's permission, was filed. Held, that the compromise petition did nothing more than express an agreement that the lease would be interpreted in a particular way and did not create a new lease. A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 536=197 Ind. Cas. 360.

9. Ejectment.

——Ejectment—Unregistered written lease—Lessee not let into possession—Suit by him in ejectment against person in possession not claiming through lessor, if maintainable.

In the case of a written unregistered lease of agricultural land, the lessee to whom possession has not been delivered by the lessor is not entitled to maintain an action in ejectment against a person in possession and not claiming under the lessor. In such a case, the lessee having specifically pleaded that there was written unregistered lease in his favour cannot be allowed to set up the case of an oral lease though he could have, even apart from the unregistered lease, relied on his tenancy right, if he had been let into possession. The transaction relied on by the lessee may be regarded either as an agreement to lease or a lease which is not completed by delivery of possession. In such circumstances, he cannot alone maintain a suit though different considerations might have arisen if his lessor was a party to the suit. 7 B.R. 399=20 Pat. 346=A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 577=22 P.L.T. 971=192 Ind. Cas. 451.

——Ejectment—Verbal agreement for permanent lease—No document—Time for suit for specific performance expiring— Permanent structures built—Suit by lessor for ejectment—Lessee, if can rely on equitable estoppel or get compensation for structures built.

Where there was a verbal agreement for a permanent lease for the specific performance of which the lessee might have instituted a suit but the time for such a suit has expired with the result that the lessee has lost the remedy which was open to him and the lessee has built permanent structures on the land, in a suit by the lessor for the ejectment of the lessee, the lessee cannot rely upon an equitable estoppel. If, however, the lease was for the benefit of the lessor, the lessee is entitled to compensation for the permanent structures erected by him. A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 435=4 B.R. 829=19 P.L.T. 791=177 Ind. Cas. 522.

10. Forfeiture.

——Forfeiture—When penal.

Where a clause in the lease ran as follows: "After the expiry of the term I shall give up the land and I shall remove from possession and it will be open the to land-lord without notice to settle the land with any one he likes," and there was absolutely no evidence worthy of credit to prove that the tenant was compelled to submit to the terms appearing in the kabuliyat or that any undue influence was exercised or could be exercised by the land-lord in connexion with it, and the tenant himself did not even speak of any compulsion or undue influence.

Held, that in these circumstances the clause was not penal. 107 Ind. Cas. 538=9 P.L.T. 184.

——Forfeiture — Clause of nullity — Relief against.

A Mukarrari lease granted before the enactment of the T. P. Act provided that in default of three instalments of rent the lease should be null and void.

(i) Held, the distinction between a condition of forfeiture and a clause of nullity was one of doubtful soundness even in English Law.

(ii) At any rate, it is not countenanced by S. 114 of the T. P. Act.

(iii) So that distinction ought not to be observed even in cases not governed by the Act.

(iv) The Court can afford relief in both cases. 69 Ind. Cas. 886=1 Pat. 363=4 Pat. L.T. 292= A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 528.

11. Holding over.

——Holding over—Consent—Effect.

If the tenant continues to hold after the lease for one year by consent of both the parties a tacit contract for renewal of the agreement is implied. 3 M.L.W. 189=19 M.L.T. 128=(1916) M.W.N. 192 =32 Ind. Cas. 709.

12. Kabuliat.

——Kabuliat—Evidence—Admissibility.

A registered kabuliat amounts to a valid contract and is admissible in evidence as against the person executing it, if it shows that his possession began under the lease. 27 A. 136 Dist. 5 Ind. Cas. 350 (All.)

——Kabuliyat to Government — Tenant's liability.

A person taking settlement from Government and agreeing to recognise the rights of immediate holders recorded in settlement papers is bound to do so though the rights are wrongly recorded. 11 C.L.J. 68=5 Ind. Cas. 301.

13. Mining lease.

——Mining lease—Liability of lessee to pay road cess.

Where the mining lease provided that the lessee "will pay all Govt. and other cesses, taxes and impositions" during the continuance of the lease, the lessee is bound to pay road cess upon the royalties received by the lessor. A.I.R. 1946 Pat. 143=24 Pat. 551.

——Mining lease—Nature of.

Mining lease is not a mere sale of land or minerals but also partakes of the character of a lease. A.I.R. 1946 Pat. 143=24 Pat. 551.

——Mining lease.

——Interest payable on all arrears of minimum royalty—Interest, held recoverable only on minimum royalty and not on excess. A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 327=22 Pat. 220=10 B.R. 259=210 Ind. Cas. 426.

——Mining lease—Sub-lease of mines—Sub-lessee to pay royalties—Sub-lessee mortgaging his interest—Mortgagee putting prospective purchaser of mortgagee interest in possession—Purchaser agreeing to pay royalties during his possession —Sale not completed and mortgagee not assigning his interest—Agreement by purchaser directly with lessor that he would pay royalties during his period of possession—Lessor, can sue him for royalties on this agreement even though he was not his tenant. A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 421=20 P.L.T. 124=5 B.R. 1012=183 Ind. Cas. 873.

——Mining lease—Notice to quit—Lessee continuing—Suit for damages—Rights of lessor and lessee.

Where a person working a colliery under a legal title receives notice to quit but continues to work it and the lessor institutes a suit for damages, the lessor is entitled to the price of the coal removed but the lessee is entitled to deduction in regard to severing of the coal and bringing it to the pit's mouths. A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 727=64 C.L.J. 308=41 C.W.N. 203=170 Ind. Cas. 690.

——Mininglease — Reservation of Crown— 'Shale', what is.

A question as to whether a particular substance is covered by the specific words of the reservation made by the Crown, is an issue of fact to be decided according to the particular circumstances of the case, the duty of the Court being to determine what the words meant in the vernacular of the mining world, the commercial world and land-owners at the relevant time.

Shale is a chalky or clayey substance, generally a soft dark blue mud in the upper strata, but becoming harder lower down. In the lower layers as the result of pressure it assumes a rocky character, but even so, it is still triable and without the hardness which characterises stone or slate.

Held, that shale was not covered by the reservation made by the Crown, the specific words of which were: "Mines and Minerals of what kind or nature soever, Quarrys and Delfs of Plagg, Slate or Stone .....as now are or at any time heretofore have been invested." A.I.R. 1938 P.C. 238=176 Ind. Cas. 979 (P.C.).

——Mining lease — Wrongful removal of minerals—Right to damages—Failure to pay compensation to surface owner—Right to damages, if affected.

Where a person has a mining lease, he can claim damages for wrongful removal of minerals during the period of the lease, even if he has not paid compensation to the surface-owner. Default to pay the same will not entitle the surface-owner to remove the minerals to which the lessee alone is entitled after grant of the lease to him. The measure of damages is the value of the minerals in situ where the removal is not wilful and with knowledge. I.L.R. (1936) Nag. 115=A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 74=170 Ind. Cas. 554.

——Mining lease granted by four shebaits of an idol—Construction of the lease—One of the four shebaits suing for his share in the idol's interest—Suit, not maintainable.

The material portions of a lease-deed granted by the shebaits of an idol in favour of the predecessor-in title of a company, ran as follows:

"Mouza Monoharbahal in Pergana Sergarh within Police Station and Sub-Registry Asansol, Chowki Raniganj and District Burdwan is the rent-free debuttar property of your family deity Sri Sri Iswar Gopinath Jiu Thakur. You have parichariki right in the said property as shebait. On my making a proposal to take a settlement of the interests of your family deity in the said mouza for raising coal by excavating a coal mine under the ground of the said mouza, you grant unto me a settlement, on the following terms and conditions, of the whole interest that your family deity has in the said mouza for the benefit of the said family deity and for increasing the income of the said debuttar estate. I take the settlement on the terms following, and agree: (1) That I shall raise coal from the ground underneath the said mouza according to the boundaries given below and shall pay a commission of 1 pice per maund of steam coal, $1\frac{1}{2}$ pice per maund of soft and hard coke, two annas per ton of dust coke, and $1\frac{1}{2}$ pice per maund of rubble coal to the extent of the interest of your said family deity ..... (4) ..... The minimum royalty will be paid in four equal instalments to yourselves or your authorised officers on taking receipts. I shall not be entitled to plead payment of commission without receipt, and if I do so, it will not be entertained. If the money be not paid accordring to the Kist aforesaid, I shall be liable to pay interest at 1 per cent. per month."

The plaintiff, describing himself as servitor and shebait to the idol sought to recover a certain amount in respect of his alleged onefourth share, as one of the four shebaits of the deity, of the entire royalties on the coal raised in the mine leased:

" Held, (1) that one of the shebaits could not sue for his share in the idol's interest, as the terms of the lease did not afford any warrant for splitting up the property of the family deity;

(2) that the lease disclosed a joint demise or contract and that none of the four lessors, with or without the consent of his co-lessors could sue for an aliquot part of the whole and that if the suit is not for the whole of the interest, it was not maintainable, that the royalty was payable on raisings which represented the interest of the family deity and that the words "to the extent of the interest of your said family deity" in the deed were equivalent to the words "on that amount which represents the interest of the family deity."

14. Mokarrari.

——Mokarrari.

A mourasi mokarrari kabuliyat provided: "You have been pleased to grant me in accordance with my prayer a Permanent Settlement at a jama of 10 maps of sanja paddy, measured with a Rajhati pai of full measure (the price where of is Rs. 50) and 10 pons of straw (the price where of is Rs. 2), the total price being Rs. 52 per annum. Accordingly I give in writing this kabuliyat that I shall deliver the said sanja paddy and straw without variation every year. If I make any default in delivering the sanja paddy, then I shall deliver bari (addition) of two salis of paddy for every map every year."

Held, the parties' intention was that only paddy and straw should be paid as rent. It would be inconsistent with their intention to hold that a fixed sum was agreed upon as that would be wholly inadequate value of the paddy at the date of the suit, and, therefore, in default of payment of the paddy and straw mentioned in the kabuliyat the land-lord was entitled to their market value at the date on which they should have been paid and not merely to the sum mentioned in the kabuliyat. 91 Ind. Cas. 935=43 C.L.J. 171.

——Mokarrari.

The words "Istimrari Mokarrari" do not necessarily mean "permanent and heritable" but the nature of the grant is to be determined from the circumstances. 90 Ind. Cas. 781=30 C.W.N. 807=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 322.

——Mokarrari—Istimrary—Heritability.

Where a lease is described as Istimrari it is in the absence of specific clauses referring to succession and transfer good only for the life time of the lessee and is no defence to a notice of ejectment against the successors of the lessee. 2 U.P. L.R. (B.R.) 13=56 Ind. Cas. 656.

——Mokarrari—Istimrari Mourasi Mokarrari—Meaning of.

The words Istimrari Mourasi Mokarrari in a lease always mean permanent and heritable interest and not merely permanent for the life of the grantee, even when no other words indicating a heritable interest are used in the docnment. 41 Ind. Cas. 875 (Cal.).

——Mokarrari.

In Chota Nagpur the term Istimrari mokarrari lease means a lease for life. 78 Ind. Cas. 511=3 Pat. 534 =1924 P.H.C.C. 158=A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 572.

——Mokarrari.

A covenant, in a Mourasi Mokarrari lease providing for a payment of a fourth of the purchase money. If the land is sold is not illegal but the land-lord must prove what exactly is the amount of the purchase-money. 63 Ind. Cas. 337 (Cal.).

——Mokarrari—Mokarrari Mourasi—Rent partly in money and partly in kind—Liability of tenant.

A mukarari lease provided that the rent was payable partly in kind and partly in cash and if the former was delivered the tenant should pay a certain sum to be fixed by the parties as its value. Held, that the parties intended to fix the value of the rent in kind and on default of payment in specie and that the tenant was liable only to pay the sum fixed. Per Banerjee, J. The words 'jamma abadharit' meant more than a provisional settlement of rents for the incidental purpose of scertaining a stamp duty. 47 Cal. 139=30 C.L.J. 37=53 Ind. Cas. 103.

——Mokarrari—Rent—Fixity of—Mokarrari

Words creating or importing the existence of a permenent tenure at a fixed rent may admit of the construction that the rent is a rent fixed in perpetuity though no such term as 'mokarrari' is expressly used. 20 Ind. Cas. 235 (Cal.)

——Mokarrari — Mourashi Mokarrari Jamai Jami.

The words 'Mourashi Mokarrari Jamai Jami' though not inconsistent with the position of a tenure holder are more apt to describe the position of a raiyat. 50 Ind. Cas. 641 (Cal.)

——Mokarrari—Incidents — Minerals — Grantees right to.

A Mokarrari lease is a permanent heritable and transferable tenure but the grantee is not entitled to subjacent minerals unless expressely conveyed 'Mai Hak Hakuk' (with all rights) is not sufficient to convey the minerals. 45 Cal. 87=44 I.A. 246=22 M.L.T. 358= 15 A.L.J. 351=33 M.L.J. 687=3 Pat. L.W. 169=26 C.L.J. 584=(1917) M.W.N. 232=22 C.W.N. 201=7 M.L.W. 90=20 Bom. L.R. 64=42 Ind. Cas; 51 (P.C.).

——Mokarrari—Rent payable to grantor for life—Absolute after grantor's death.

If the terms of a deed indicate that the grantor intended to create a perpetual Mokarrari Lease the lessee to pay the rent to the grantor during the latter's life-time and after his death the lessee to get the absolute interest, Held, that the entire ownership was divided into two portions the grantee becoming the tenant while the interest of the land-lord continued in the grantor and there was no present disposition of property. 16 C.L J. 111=14 Ind. Cas. 56.

15. Origin.

——Origin—Presumption of legal origin.

Where the lease has existed unchallenged and the rent uncharged for over 70 years in spite of attempts at enhancement, the Court should presume a legal origin of the lease. 90 Ind. Cas. 781=30 C.W.N. 807 =A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 322.

16. Period of lease.

——Period of lease.

On the termination of lease, the land-lord and the tenants contracted that though the term of the original kabuliyat had expired and the rent and the land had diminished still in other respects the terms of the kabuliyat were to remain intact and thenceforward the tenants were to hold lands and the rent "bemeadi," i.e., without term by succession. The actual words used were "warishen krame" and "bemeadi."

Held, that the words indicated that the jama was not permanent and that the tenancy was a tenancy-at-will to be extinguished by the land-lord after one year's notice. A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 392, Dist.; 1918 P.H.C.C. 11, Ref. A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 94=57 Cal. 775=126 Ind. Cas. 550.

——Period of lease—Lease for indefinite period.

If a lease be made to a man for an indefinite period, it enures, generally speaking, as far as his lifetime, and passes no interest to his heirs unless there are words showing an intention to grant a hereditary interest. A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 434=125 Ind. Cas. 242.

——Period of lease—Option to renew not exercised.

A lease provided that "on the expiration of the term written in this patta you will take a new settlement." The tenant, however, did not exercise his option of taking a new settlement when the term expired nor did he exercise that option within a reasonable time.

Held, that the tenant was not entitled to resist the suit for ejectment by land-lord. 119 Ind. Cas. 144=33 C.W.N. 365=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 407.

——Period of lease—Option to lessee.

A lease for a particular period, after which an option is given to the lessee to continue in possession on payment of rent enures for lessee's benefit, and the principle of reciprocity or mutuality cannot be invoked. After the expiry of the lease, the lessee can continue in possession as long as he pays the rent, that is, it enures during the lifetime of the lessee. 114 Ind. Cas. 374= 30 Bom. L.R. 1596=A.I.R. 1929 Bom. 66.

——Period of lease—Lease "for hamesha."

The operation of a perpetual lease cannot be limited to the lifetime of the lessees. Where there is absolutely no reservation of any right of re-entry in favour of the lessor, in a lease for ever (hamesha karita) even in the absence of words indicating that a heritable estate was intended to be created in favour of the lessees, the words "hamesha karita" (for ever) cannot be interpreted to mean "Tumche jeewman paveto" (for your lifetime). 110 Ind. Cas. 487=A.I.R. 1929 Nag. 23.

——Period of lease—'Hamesha'—'Dawami'.

No interest after the life of the lessee or grantee is created by the use of 'Hamesh' or 'Dawami' in a lease or grant. Circumstances must be considered. 2 O.L.J. 746=33 Ind. Cas. 264.

——Period of lease.

Where an ijara lease pertaining to a small plot of land provided "the mortgagee being in possession of the mortgaged property may cultivate or get cultivated the land with due care and diligence and the mortgagee will not allow any one to take possession of the land which is in my possession for a long time... and thereafter shall bring the mortgaged property under my own sir possession."

Held, that the term of the lease taken together and read with the circumstances of the lease amounted to an express prohibition to settle the land with the tenant so as to confer a title extending beyond the term of the lease itself. 103 Ind. Cas. 627=8 P.L.T. 775=A.I.R. 1927 Pat. 401.

——Period of lease—Grant for indefinite period.

The general rule of construction is that if a grant is made to a man for an indefinite period, it enures, generally speaking, at least for the lifetime of the grantee unless there were some words showing the intention that a heritable grant was made.

The terms of the lease were as follows: "You having applied to get settlement of land for the purpose of constructing your basha, I hereby fix annul rent for the said land and settle the same with you; you shall enjoy and possess the said land by constructing your basha and residing therein, regularly paying the rent. To this effect I execute this pattah."

Held, that the tenancy under the lease is not a tenancy at-will or a yearly tenancy. A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 558, Diss. The lease would enure for the lifetime of the lessee. 99 Ind. Cas. 200=31 C.W.N. 46=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 179.

——Period of lease.

Whether a lease for an indefinite term enures for the life of the grantee depends upon the terms of the document. Where annual rent is payable in the absence of anything to show the contrary it indicates that the tenancy is a yearly one. 94 Ind. Cas. 684=53 Cal. 95 =A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 558.

——Period of lease—Lease for indefinite period.

If a grant be made to a man for an indefinite period, it enures, generally speaking, for his life time, and passes no interest to his heirs, unless there are some words showing an intention to grant an hereditary interest. 3 Cal. 210 (P.C.), Foll. 89 Ind. Cas. 298= A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 379.

——Period of lease—Lease of bagat land.

Where the kabuliyat showed that the lease was for a plece of bagat land and it contained no indication that the tenant was to be treated as a raiyat or that the purpose of the tenancy was agricultural or horticultural, and the limitation as to the rights of the tenant indicated in the kabuliyat showed clearly that the lease was neither intended to be an agricultural lease nor a horticultural lease.

Held, that the tenant was bound by the contract he made, that is, to give up possession of the land after the expiry of the prescribed period. 90 Ind. Cas. 114= A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 354.

——Period of lease.

A lessee cannot be evicted in the course of any agricultural year, because allowing him to retain possession at the beginning of a year amounts to the grant of a lease for that one year. 93 Ind. Cas. 633=A.I.R. 1926 Nag. 335.

——Period of lease—Lease determinable at will.

Where in a lease there is an express term that the lessee shall vacate the land in case he fails to pay the rent or whenever the lessor requires him to do so, the lease is not a lease for term exceeding one year though a longer period (e.g., 30 years) is mentioned in the lease and the lessee is liable to ejectment. 75 Ind. Cas. 603=A.I.R. 1923 All. 382.

17. Permanency and heritability.

——Permanency and heritability.

The absence of the words "from generation to generation" or "you or your descendants" is an important circumstance to be taken into consideration in the construction of the lease claimed to be a "mulgeni" lease.

The clauses in a lease for an indefinite period that "the lessor shall not demand additional rent higher than Rs. 96" or that "the lessee alone shall have the right to make improvements to the exclusion of the lessor," cannot by themselves be taken to mean that the lease is a perpetual one. A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 434=' 125 Ind. Cas. 242.

——Permanency and heritability.

In the construction of a lease for an indefinite period clauses which throw the cost of improvements on the lessee indicate some measure of continuity but not necessarily perpetuity. 43 Cal. 382, Foll. A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 434=125 Ind. Cas. 242.

——Permanency and heritability.

Perpetual lease from a person beyond his power cannot be construed as an ordinary lease from year to year entitling the lessee to possession. A.I.R. 1928 All. 617, Diss. from. 119 Ind. Cas. 436=10 L.R.A.Rev. 293=A.I.R. 1929 All. 387.

——Permanency and heritability.

The ordinary rule is that the interest in a lease is heritable. 112 Ind. Cas. 651.

——Permanency and heritability.

A perpetual lessee of a structure on a piece of land as distinguished from the permanent lessee of the land itself is not entitled to build a projection above the structure, which is actually leased to him. 100 Ind. Cas. 834=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 225.

——Permanency and heritability—"Aulad."

The use of the word "aulad" in a lease extends the lease from being a life lease to a lease enjoyable by the aulad, but the meaning given to aulad should not be extended to mean collaterals. 12 Cal. 117 (P. C.) and 31 Cal. 561, Dist. 93 Ind. Cas. 927=3 O.W.N. 213=13 O.L.J. 565=A.I.R. 1926 Oudh 260.

——Permanency and heritability—Possession not necessary for permanent lease.

Delivery of possession is not necessary for the completion of a permanent lease under the Transfer of Property Act, and hence a lessee who never got possession of the land can maintain an action for trespass or for injunction and damages. 91 Ind. Cas. 169=5 Pat. 80=7 P.L.T. 188=1925 P.H.C.C. 254= A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 130.

——Permanency and heritability—"Perpetual"—Meaning of.

The mere use of the word "perpetual" in a lease does not transfer heritable interest.

Where in the lease the description of the document was given as perpetual lease given for perpetual cultivation but there were no words indicating future generations, and where it was not stated that those tenants and their successors-in.interest should not be liable to ejectment, Held, that the lease did not enure for the benefit of the future generations. 89 Ind. Cas. 221=12 O.L.J. 638=2 O.W.N. 539=A.I.R. 1926 Oudh. 72.

——Permanency and heritability.

Where a lease conferred all rights of cultivation and enjoyment to the lessee and provided for the determination of the tenancy only in the case of non-payment of rent,

Held, that reading the document as a whole the intention of the parties seems to have been to create a permanent lease in favour of the lessees which could be put an end to only in one circumstance, viz., the non-payment of rent by them. 85 Ind. Cas. 964= A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 919.

——Permanency and heritability — Elements necessary to constitute permanent tenancy explained.

In a suit for ejectment of the defendants from their homestead situated within Municipal limits the facts found were that the tenancy was 44 or 45 years old, that its origin was not unknown, that the rent was paid uniformly at the rate of Rs. 5-10-0 per year, that there was one case of succession to the defendants from their father and that defendants' father built a house with mud walls and tiled roof, over which there were thatched chalas, and also constructed a pucca staircase and a pucca gateway and the defendants constructed a pucca privy.

Held, on those facts, that there were no substantial pucca buildings on the land and the inference of permanency was not justifiable from these facts. 85 Ind. Cas. 103=52 Cal. 43=29 C.W.N. 138=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 309.

——Permanency and heritability — Lease for indefinite term—Bemaiyadi lease—Meaning.

The material clauses of a lease were:—

(1) The purpose of the lease was to enable the lessee to erect Gola house and to purchase and sell all sorts of commodities therein, or in other words to open his business therein;

(2) The lease was not limited for any definite period but that it was a bemaiyadi lease or a lease without any term;

(3) That the lessee shall not have the power to construct any pucca building without the express and written permission of the lessor and if that stipulation be violated and pucca building be raised by the lessee without such permission of the lessor, he, the lessee, shall be liable to be evicted; and,

(4) In case the lessee went to erect pucca building and to have a pucca well or Indara he shall have to do so according to the advice of the lessor.

Held, that the erection of pucca buildings for the business as well as well as for the purpose of residence was in the contemplation of the parties with the condition that permission for erecting pucca structures will have to be taken from the lessor, and that under these circumstances the inference is not unreasonable, that the lease in question was meant to be of a permanent character and not from year to year.

A Bemaiyadi lease or a lease without any term may in the circumstances of a particular case be shown not to confer any permanent grant. 77 Ind. Cas. 32=2 Pat. 452=4 P.L.T. 414=1 Pat.L.R. 190= A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 88.

——Permanency and heritability.

'Mireshorotto Janmaiya.'

The material portion of the lease was thus: "With the trees you have no concern. Now all the trees you will plant there (will be) in your control; (if) on the land trees and buildings you prepare (lit. make ready) and (if) afterwards you sell (these) then to my estate you will pay a fourth, without a fourth and without information (to me) you will not be able to sell. Preserving the four boundaries of the land causing to come into being Mireshorotto constructing houses continue to make residence,"

Held, that the lease was permanent and heritable and that by the use of the words Mireshorotto Janmaiya it was intended that the tenancy should be heritable and to be enjoyed by the grantee from generation to generation. 27 C.W.N. 1037=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 705.

——Permanency and heritability—Tenancy at fixed rent.

The use of the words "Putra poutradi Krame" indicate that it is intended to be a perpetual lease.

In the body of the document there was in one place an undertaking by the tenant to pay the 'Nirdaritjama,' fixed rent, and in another portion the tenant undertook to pay in addition to the 'Dharyajama' fixed rent, certain other sums namely, road cesses and public works cess as assessed and any tax or additional amount that may be assessed or settled by the Government in future in respect of lands of the tenancy. The deed further provided that "when the aforesaid village is measured and Jamabandi prepared, I shall be present before the Amin when required and shall cause the measurement and bring enhancement of rent into effect.

Held, on construction, that this tenancy was intended to be a lease at a fixed rent. The restrictive clauses "the tenant undertakes not to excavate any ditch or tank, prepare bricks, construct pucca buildings and cut down trees, etc., without taking a written order expressing consent from the land-lord do not modify the nature of the tenancy. 76 Ind. Cas. 586=38 C.L.J. 350=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 505.

——Permanency and heritability—Lease to lessee putra poutradi santati.

Where a lease was granted to the lessee his sons, grand sons and descendants, held that the house would be deemed to have been let absolutely for the period and that on lessee's death before the expiry of the period, it would descend to his heir alienable and never resumable, unless in a particular case, some custom were proved which would exclude the ordinary law; for instance, if it were found that these words applied to a devise of an estate which by custom descended only in the male line, then they could not be held to convey an absolute estate of inheritance. There is no difference whether such words be found in a will or lease. 67 Ind. Cas. 230= 24 Bom. L.R. 300=46 Bom. 816=A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 45.

——Permanency and heritability—'Putra Poutradhi'—Perpetual lease.

The expression 'putra poutradhi kramay' in a lease deed indicates a permanent lease. 20 C.W.N. 182=29 Ind. Cas. 502.

——Permanency and heritability — Perpetual lease.

The material parts of the lease provided, "From the years 1311 to 1313 B. S., you shall pay jama at the said rate in respect of 550 bighas of land over and above that. You shall abide by such rules as may be enforced in respect of the remaining 264 bighas, 17 cottas of land, the jama whereof remains remitted after the same has been surveyed or brought under cultivation by the Sarkar. More over if in the meantime survey of cultivation be made at any time by the Sarkar then you shall pay without any notice and objections jama of Hasil (culturable) and Santpati (culturable sometimes and patit at others) land in accordance therewith from the said year. You go on enjoying the property with great felicity down to your sons, sons' sons and so on in succession and keeping intact the limits and boundaries on excavating and filling up and making homesteads and gardens and on being vested with right of sale and gift."

Held, that rights are conferred of a permanent and heritable character, but that the lease does not fix maximum rent payable in perpetuity. A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 354.

——Permanency and heritability—Lease by shebait.

A lease of land was granted in 1824 under a rent note which provided for a payment of a yearly rent and that if the rent was not paid, the lessee should be at liberty to remove the structure which he might have made on the property. The lessor never raised any objection when the lessee sub-let the property, on various occasions, viz., 1872, 1883 and 1900,

Held, the lease was a permanent lease which could only be terminated if the rent was not paid. The disability of a shebait to make the permanent grant is not absolute. Under special circumstances it must be presumed that the grant would be valid beyond life of the grantor if a long time has elapsed after the grant. 66 Ind. Cas. 162=26 C.W.N. 473= 20 A.L.J. 371=35 C.L.J. 421=24 Bom. L.R. 584= 1922 M.W.N. 319=30 M.L.T. 268=46 Bom. 481= 49 I.A. 54=A.I.R. 1922 P.C. 163=42 M.L.J. 501 (P.C.).

——Permanency and heritability — Khayam Saswatham Patta—Incidents of.

The incidents of 'Kayam Saswatham Patta' and the test to determine its character are those laid down by the Privy Council in 12 C, 117 P. C. The use of such terms as 'generation to generation' will signify the grant of a permanent tenure and their absencce would generally import only a life interest. The pattas, surrounding circumstances, and the conduct of the parties may be considered in this connection. Where to the knowledge of the lessor and acquiesced in by him there have been transfers effected by the lessees and Court auctions, the presumption might arise that the grant was permanent and heritable. In every lease there is an implied condition that the lessee shall do nothing to prejudice the lessor's title. 35 M.L.J. 129=8 M.L.W. 109=46 Ind. Cas. 62. Also 35 M.L.J. 647=48 Ind. Cas. 301.

——Permanency and heritability—Proof.

A lease is not permanent because no time is prescribed and the lessee has been in occupation for 60 years on a low rent. 33 Ind. Cas. 57 (Mad.).

——Permanency and heritability—Lease by shebait.

The grantee of a permanent lease from a shebait holds the land during the subsistence of the grantor's interest. 13 Ind. Cas. 686 (Cal.)

——Permanency and heritability—Sub-lease.

If a lease is valid and the terms of the lease allow the continuance of the tenancy the interest created by a sub-lease is heritable. 57 Ind. Cas. 580 (Cal.).

——Permanency and heritability — Prepetual lease.

An apparently perpetual lease containing no specific condition about succession is not heritable. 2 U.P.L-R. (B.R.) 3=57 Ind. Cas. 316.

——Permanency and heritability—Fixed rent—Reverter to waram.

A lease provided for a permanent rate of rent for ever and coupled with words of inheritance that the property shall descend to the heirs of the lessee. Held, that the lease was not only for a fixed period but conveyed an absolute estate and that it was not open to the lessor or his assignee to revert to waram. (1919) M.W.N. 253=26 M.L.T. 262=52 Ind Cas. 239.

——Permanency and heritability—Kayam and Saswatham patta—Renewal of prior lease deeds—Permanent tenancy.

The word 'Kayam' and 'saswatham' were used in a lease to describe the nature of the tenure and the deed was in renewal of previous lease the tenancy under which was held to be permanent in a prior suit. Held, that the intention was to confer a permanent tenure on the lessees. 9 M.L.W. 164=35 M.L. J. 647=24 M.L.T. 469=(1918) M.W.N. 846=48 Ind. Cas. 301. Also 35 M.L. J. 129=46 Ind. Cas. 62.

——Permanency and heritability—Provision for lessor taking possession in a certain event—Effect.

A provision in Dowl Kabuliat, that, in the event of the land-lord and the tenant not being able to arrive at a new rate of rent after the expiration of the temporary term covered by the kabuliat, the land-lord would be entitled to take possession of the land, was held to be absolutely inconsistent with a plea of permanent interest in the land by the tenant. 45 Ind. Cas. 651 (Cal.)

——Permanency and heritability—Indefinite term—Absence of words indicating permanency or heritability—Renewal, right to.

A Kabuliyat recited that lands were settled for five years at a certain rent. After five years the lessee was to take a fresh settlement under a fresh kabuliat. In case of failure to do so the lessee was to hold and enjoy possession of the land on payment of an excess rent of one anna per rupee every five years. The lessee was not to make a gift, sale or mortgage of the tenure to anybody. Held, that the tenancy after the expiry of five years was for an indefinite period; but as there were no words of inheritance in the lease nor any circumstances, such as long possession, or the fact of succession to heirs or a series of transfers, the tenure could not be presumed to be a heritable or a permanent one. 41 Ind. Cas. 227 (Cal.)

——Permanency and heritability—Fixed rent for thirty years.

Where a lease was granted for thirty years at a fixed rent which was to be increased at the end of the term if the revenue was increased and there was no mention whatever of hereditary rights the tenure was heritable possibly only for the unexpired period of thirty years. 4 O.L.J. 191=40 Ind. Cas. 116.

——Permanency and heritability—Circular No. 16 of 1874—Ejectment—By notice.

Leases granted under Circular No. 16 of 1874 are heritable leases, and a tenant holding under such a lease cannot be ejected by notice. 3 O.L.J. 218=34 Ind. Cas. 760.

——Permanency and heritability — 'Sthayee Karsha Kabuliyat'—'Kayemi', meaning of.

The description of a Kabuliyat as 'Sthayee Karsha Kabuliyat' does not necessarily imply that the grantee was intended to have a permanent heritable interest.

The use of the term 'Kayemi' in a Kabuliyat imports no fixity of rent but only permanence of occupation of the land. 19 C.W.N. 1129=27 C.L.J. 579=29 Ind. Cas. 461.

——Permanency and heritability—Long possession—Presumption.

Though a land was let out for building purposes and the lessee was allowed to remain in possession of the land on payment of rent for long period, this would not in itself be sufficient to support the conclusion that the lease was permanent at its inception. 16 C.W.N. 564=14 Ind. Cas. 152.

18. Purpose of.

——Purpose of—House let for school—Leasehold vesting in Government—Lease if determined.

By a lease the lessors let a house to one K for a school. The lease recited that the lessors were agreeable according to lessee's proposal to keep the house on lease as long as the lessee liked, for a monthly rental of Rs. 140 and that the lessee would not be entitled to give up the house before he prepared a house of his own for the school, and that the lessors would not be entitled to take hold of the house unless the lessee gave up the same of his own accord. Subsequently the school was removed to another site and the leasehold land was thereafter used as a hostel for students. The school was taken over by the Government and the lease property was transferred by statute to the Governor of of Bengal in Council. The question of the amount of compensation to be paid to the lessors thus arose.

Held, that the fact that the physical site of the College buildings was upon the adjoining land and that the lease property was being used for the purposes of the College other than the actual teaching in a class room would not be such a cessation of the use of the land for purposes of the College as to entitle the lessors to exercise the right to determine the lease, and that the value of the right existing in the lessors was properly established by capitalising the monthly rent. 118 Ind. Cas. 271=1929 A.L.J. 411=33 C.W.N. 669=1929 M.W.N. 415=30 M.L.W. 831=A.I.R. 1929 P.C. 113=57 M.L.J. 493 (P.C.).

——Purpose of.

A tank can be leased for agricultural purposes; for instance, for irrigating adjacent lands or watering the cattle used for cultivation. 88 Ind. Cas. 534=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 239.

——Purpose of—Horticultural lease.

Where the lessee is allowed, according to the lease, to enjoy the fruits of the trees on the land and is also allowed to plant and grow more fruit trees, and to enjoy the fruit thereof, but is not allowed to cut down or sell the trees, without the lessor's permission, the tenancy is for horticultural purposes. 17 C.L.J. 411, Dist. 96 Ind. Cas. 89 (Cal.).

——Purpose of.

A lease to a company provided inter alia: "You shall keep it as long as you please. You should always keep this land in your possession for the use of your ginning factory. I will not ask it back."

Held, that it was an agreement with a particular company, the original lessees, that they should hold the land as long as they liked. A perpetual lease is determined by the death of the lessee. (4 Bom. 424, Ref.). And on the same principle where the company to whom the land is given for a specified purpose is defunct, the lease comes to an end. The lease is not a perpetual one in the sense that the lessees could do what they liked with the land and any diversion of use of the land from the purpose for which the lease was apparently granted would give the lessor a right of re-entry and therefore in the present case the lease came to an end when the land was no longer used for ginning factory. 73 Ind. Cas. 24=6 N.L.J. 170=A.I.R. 1923 Nag. 243.

——Purpose of—Lease for purposes of cultivation and building tenants' houses.

Where the lease of a certain land was for purposes of cultivation and building tenants' houses at a certain amount of anual rent and where an appreciable portion of the land was occupied by non-agricultural tenants held it was a mixed lease, containing both agricultural and non-agricultural land held under a lump rent. 1 O.L.J. 124=24 Ind. Cas. 788.

19. Registration.

——Registration—Invalidity—Proof of lease.

Even if the registration of a lease deed be invalid, the tenancy can be proved otherwise without proving the written lease which may be inadmissible for want of registration. 41 Cal. 347, Foll.

The tenancy can also be proved by the doctrine of part performance. 105 Ind. Cas. 172=8 P.L.T. 829=A.I.R. 1928 Pat. 89.

——Registration—Necessity.

A lease which need not be registered under T. P. Act does not depend for validity on the lessor's signature. The lessor's assent togetherwith delivery of possession is sufficient. 30 M. 322 doubted and dist. 7 M.L.T. 116=5 Ind. Cas. 826.

——Registration—Want of—Proof of tenancy.

When the lease granted to a tenant is inadmissible for want of registration or otherwise, he may prove his tenancy aliunde. 14 C.W.N. 141=2 Ind. Cas. 202.

20. Renewal.

——Renewal—Covenant for—Construction.

A lease for a term of years contained a renewal clause which entitled the lessee after the expiry of the original term to a renewal of the lease for a further period or to a new lease on certain terms. The lessee mortgaged his interest in the property and empowered the mortgagee to sub-let the property during the term of the mortgage as the mortgagor himself might have done and also to do all acts by using the name of the mortgagor without reference to him.

Held, that the mortgagee was not an assignee of the term for the renewal of the lease and that as there was no privity of contract between him and the lessor, he was not entitled to demand a renewal of the lease. 91 Ind. Cas. 501=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 100.

——Renewal—Covenant for—Rights under.

Under a lease with a clause for renewal the lessee cannot claim to ask for a condition of renewal in the renewed lease. The utmost right that he has under the renewal clause is the right for a lease for an additional term of the original lease, after the expiry of the original lease. When the lessor does not disturb the possession of the lessee for another term, the lessee has no ground of complaint. After the expiry of the original lease the lessee becomes a tenant from year to year with a right to renewal for another term of the original lease and the lessor can eject him upon proper notice of ejectment. 95 Ind. Cas. 831=53 Cal. 590=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 1065.

——Renewal—Covenant for—Nature of.

Covenant for renewal does not run with the land. 111 Ind. Cas. 404=51 Mad. 885=55 I. A. 423=26 A.L.J. 1229=30 Bom. L. R. 1578=48 C.L.J. 431=33 C.W.N. 33=28 M. L. W. 803=1928 M.W.N. 754=A.I.R. 1928 P.C. 258=55 M.L.J. 646 (P.C.).

——Renewal — Covenant for — Not penal.

An ejectment suit was compromised. The provisions of compromise were that up to 11 years the defendants were to hold the premises on a rent of Rs. 400 per year and that if the defendants wanted to occupy the premises after the expiry of 11 years, without taking a fresh settlement, they would have to pay rent at Rs. 100 per month.

Held, that what the parties intended was that, if the defendants wanted to occupy the premises after the expiry of 11 years, they could either take a fresh settlement or remain in occupation without a fresh settlement on a rent of Rs. 100 per month which the parties at that time thought would be a fair rent after the lapse of 11 years and that the terms were not penal and therefore they were enforceable. 92 Ind. Cas. 617 =7 P. L. T. 299=1925 P. H. C. C. 353=A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 122.

——Renewal—Of part.

A lease of land contained the clause for renewal in the following terms: "That the said F (i.e., the lessee) his heirs, executors, administrators or assigns fulfilling the covenants and agreements hereinbefore contained and on his part to be performed and yielding and paying at the end and expiration of the aforesaid term of 99 years unto the said United Company, (i.e., the lessor) their successors or assigns, the full and just sum of 100 pagodas current money of Fort St. George, then this lease shall and may be renewed for a further term of 99 years upon such terms and conditions as shall be judged reasonable." During the term of lease the lessees transferred their interest in a portion of the property. On expiry of the lease term, they sued for a declaration that they were entitled to renewal for 99 years of the term granted by the said lease as regards the whole of the property demised by the said lease or, alternatively, as regards the part retained by them and specific performance of the covenant for renewal.

Held, that the claim for renewal of the whole was untenable, the lessees having lost interest in a portion of the property and that the covenant was plainly applicable to the premises as a whole and that as the convenant was to renew the lease as a whole, it could not avail the lessees for a renewal of a portion. 8 L. J.C.P. 59, Dist. [102 Ind. Cas. 246=50 Mad. 595 =25 M.L.W. 525=1927 M.W.N. 318=38 M.L.T. 233 =A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 513=52 M. L. J. 443 reversed].

——Renewal—Specific performance allowed.

Per Trotter, C. J. and Venkatasubba Rao, J. (Krishnan, J. differing)—A contract to grant a renewal of a lease on such conditions as shall be reasonable and proper at the time of such renewal is a contract which is capable of specific performance. Such a contract is not void or uncertainty. 102 Ind. Cas. 246=50 Mad. 595=25 M. L. W. 525=1927 M.W.N. 318=38 M. L. T. 233=A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 513=52 M.L.J. 443.

[Reversed on appeal by the Privy Council].

——Renewal.

In paragraph 1 of the Patta it was provided that the lease was for a term of seven years from 1322 to 1328 Fs. Then paragraph 5 ran as follows: "The period of Thikka under this Patta will expire in 1328 (twenty-eight) Fs. 1, the executant, have agreed that I shall execute a fresh Patta for seven years from 1329 (twenty-nine) to 1335 (thirty-five) Fs. with respect to all the Mouzas and the lands leased out on the above amount of Jama and on the condition of this deed and that possession of the Thekadar will continue up to 1335 Fs., etc."

Held, there was a clear agreement between the parties that after the expiration of the first period of seven years the lessee was to continue in possession for a term of another seven years on the same condition as before and therefore the period of the Theka was to extend up to the year 1335 Fs. The lessee being in possession, he could, if he liked, enforce specific performance of the agreement to execute a fresh Patta. 24 C W.N. 463, Foll. 84 Ind. Cas. 536=1 Pat. L.R. 69 =1923 P.H.C.C. 23=A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 236.

——Renewal—Specific performance not allowed.

Where the head lessee in head lease does not bind himself to take out a lease at the end of 99 years' period fixed in the head lease, but has agreed that if and when the lease is renewed he and his heirs and assigns would pass on the benefit of that renewal to their lessee that is not sufficient to give to the sub lessees the right to the renewal of the lease in perpetuity. 90 Ind. Cas. 189=26 Bom. L. R. 1019= A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 64.

——Renewal—Specific performance.

Where in the contract for renewal of the lease some method is stipulated for ascertaining the rent the contract with regard to the rent is not incomplete; but where it is stated that the lessor would be at liberty to enhance the rent without any objection on the part of the lessee and no limit is imposed upon the lessor's claim; nor is any method stated as to how the rent is to be fixed, the contract with regard to rent is too vague and incomplete to be specifically enforced, as the covenant for renewal is vitiated by uncertainty with regard to the rent that the plaintiff would be liable to pay which is a material part of a contract for lease. 69 Ind. Cas. 600=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 346.

——Renewal—Covenant for—Lease by Government.

The grantee under a settlement by Government executued a kabuliat containing a clause 'if I agree to the enhanced rent to be fixed at the time of the next settlement, Government shall have power to settle the lands with me or if I do not agree, then with others'. Held, that the clause in the lease was a covenant for renewal on the same terms as the old lease except as to the amount of rent. 27 C.L.J. 447=45 Ind. Cas. 983.

——Renewal—Covenant for.

A lease granted by Government contained the following clause: 'If you (the lessee) agree to pay the enhanced rent fixed at the time of resettlement in future, the Government will have the right to settle with you.' Held, that the clause embodied a covenant for renewal subject to any higher rent which might be fixed at the settlement. 46 Cal. 160=27 C.L.J. 443= 45 Ind. Cas. 939.

——Renewal—Covenant for—Terms of—Silence as to—Presumption.

In the absence of specification of the terms of renewal the renewed lease would be for the same period and on the same terms as the original lease in respect of the essential conditions except the covenant for renewal itself. Silence in the condition as to the terms for which a settlement was to be made does not render a covenant for renewal unenforceable. 33 Ind. Cas. 450 (Cal.).

——Renewal—Covenant for.

A lease recited prior settlements on the expiration of the last of which the lease was renewed at an enhanced rent and also provided that after the expiry of the term the lessor would have power to resettle at an enhanced rent. Held, the clause was a covenant for renewal. 16 C.L.J. 217=17 Ind. Cas. 180.

——Renewal—Covenant for — Vagueness—Enforceability.

A covenant in a lease for a renewal of the settlement after the expiry of the present term without specifying the terms or the period of years, and the amount of rent is vague and not enforceable. 13 C.W.N. 593= 4 Ind. Cas. 535.

21. Rent and revenue.

——Rent and revenue—Abatement of rent.

Where the patnidar filed series of rent suits against the darpatnidars holding lands under him, and the darpatnidars defended the suits claiming abatements of rent on various grounds, and also filed cross suits, alleging that they have been deprived by the patnidar of certain lands included in their darpatni leases and claiming on this account an entire suspension of rent or in the alternative an abatement in respect thereof.

Held, on construction of documents, that abatements under various heads, including the claim to the disputed lands, which were included in the darpatnis, should be allowed. 33 C.W.N. 772= A.I.R. 1930 P.C. 198 (P.C.)=32 Bom. L.R. 1157= 52 C.L.J. 132=59 M.L.J. 208=32 M.L.W. 311= 126 Ind. Cas. 81.

——Rent and revenue—Abatement of rent.

In a lease the tenants agreed not to claim abatement of rent on account of flood, dispossession or other grounds of like nature but did not mention 'diluvion.' Held, that it was still within their rights to claim abatement on the ground of diluvion. A forced construction should not be put to justify that the tenants were bound to pay. 22 C.L.J. 569=33 Ind. Cas. 349.

——Rent and revenue — Apportionment of— Putni rent — Putnidar becoming proprietor before the end of year.

In the case of Putni lands rent does not accrue from day to day but is payable in accordance with the contract. The only statute in this country dealing with apportionment is S. 36, T. P. Act, but that does not apply to agricultural lands and consequently has no application. Therefore, although a putnidar becomes proprietor before the end of the year, he is bound to pay the whole year's rent unless there is any contract to the contrary. 83 Ind. Cas. 144=28 C.W.N. 1039=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 1069.

——Rent and revenue.

Where a lessee who has covenanted to pay rent, assigns his lease subsequently and there is a default in paying rent, there is a separate cause of action against the original lessees and the assignee. The original lessees are liable on their covenant, that is, by privity of contract, and the assignee is liable by privity of estate, that is by virtue of the relationship which exists between him and the land-lord. It is true that as between the assignee and the original lessees, the assignee is primarily liable. But on the other hand, it is settled that, in law, the lessee is not a mere guarantor for the assignee. There is no inconsistency whatever between the liability of the original lessees on their covenant, and the liability of the assignee arising by reason of privity of estate, though the several liabilities are in respect of the same subject-matter. The causes of action being distinct, the judgment obtained against the assignee for due rent is no bar to the claim against the original lessees when the judgment remains unsatisfied. A.I.R. 1938 Bom. 360=I.L.R. (1938) Bom. 471=40 Bom. L. R. 497=177 Ind. Cas. 479.

——Rent and revenue—Enhanced assessment—Liability for.

An agreement was made in 1882 whereby a tenant took building site from land-lord on a fixed rent of Rs. 19 which as agreed between them was not to be enhanced. In 1915 the Government increased the assessment on the land from annas 15, pies 3 to Rs. 59 and odd. The tenant contended that in spite of this increment, land-lord should pay the assessment as he had been admittedly paying so long.

Held, that though deed was silent on the point, it was inequitable that the land-lord should bear the burden and that the tenant was bound to pay the difference between the actual rent he paid and the assessment. 86 Ind. Cas. 96=27 Bom. L.R. 95 =A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 168.

——Rent and revenue—Enhanced rent—Provision for.

Where a lease provides for the payment of increased rent on the measurement of the land leased, such increased rent can only be claimed from the time the land is measured, and not from any anterior date. 60 Ind. Cas. 743 (Cal.).

——Rent and revenue.

Where a kabuliyat provided: When you would measure the lands we shall pay rent, without any objection, for lands found out by your measurement, in accordance with the prevailing rate of tenants holding similar class of lands,

Held, that it means that if the land-lord insists upon having a measurement he may do so and then when he does so the whole thing is to be re-assessed on the basis of the prevailing rate for lands of the same plots; in other words, the document is a contract by which the tenant goes on for the present at a fixed jama for a fixed land but there is a right in the land-lord to alter that position and to claim prevailing rate for the actual amount of land in the tenant's possession. 105 Ind. Cas. 605=46 C.L.J. 250=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 924.

——Rent and revenue—Heritable tenure does not mean fixity of rent.

The document purporting to be a lease provided: "You will enjoy from generation to generation keeping intact the boundaries as before. The profit and loss are yours. You will on no account be entitled to claim a reduction of rent. When required by me you will submit to Jarip Jamabandi .... If any new imposition be made by the Government you will pay it besides the Jama of this Potta."

Held, that the lease was not one for fixed rent. The mere fact that the tenure is heritable and a sum is mentioned as the rent does not show that the rent is fixed. 76 Ind. Cas. 324=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 351.

——Rent and revenue—Permanent assessment.

The predecessors-in-interest of plaintiffs were granted in 1790 the talukdari patta of certain land. The taluk was settled with them permanently and the revenue was to be assessed on the cultivated land which would be ascertained by measurement from time to time. The rate to be paid was an increasing rate up to 8 annas per bigha after which it would remain fixed in perpetuity 1-6th of the area cultivated would be free of rent. The mohal was subsequently surveyed from time to time in 1834, 1850-1, 1877-8, 1888-9, 1914 and additional areas were assessed up till 1914 at the rate of 8 annas a bigha, the full amount mentioned in the sanad of 1790, that is, for about or over a 100 years. Then in 1914, the rate was increased to 12 annas.

Held, that by the patta of 1790 the land within the boundaries specified by the plaintiff was permanently settled with the plaintiff and that the revenue was to be assessed from time to time according to the terms of the patta by measuring the lands under cultivation and was to be assessed at an increasing rate up to the maximum of annas 8 per bigha only and the land was not therefore assessable at 12 annas per bigha. 69 Ind. Cas. 188 =35 C.L.J. 445.

——Rent and revenue—Persons in occupation.

The lessee is entitled to demand rent from the persons who are in occupation of the portion of the demised property, if the lessor is so entitled. 17 R.D. 306=A.I.R. 1933 All. 632=146 Ind. Cas. 584.

——Rent and revenue—Remission of rent not allowed.

Where the extent did not form an item of consideration at all in fixing the rent of the lands, in other words, the lands were merely leased as villages and the rent had nothing to do with the actual extent and admittedly, no measurements were taken at the time the lands were leased nor at any time thereafter. Held, the lessee cannot claim more than the area first taken possession of by him under the lease nor remission of rent. 69 Ind. Cas. 517=17 M.L.W. 94=1923 M.W.N. 189 =A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 459.

——Rent and revenue—Rent in kind mokarrari lease.

The material passages in the kabuliyat were as follows: "After setting a quantity of 1 bishi 5 aris of paddy the price of which is Rs. 50 as annual gula rent (paddy rent), and Rs. 25 as selami, I execute this mourashi mokarrari kabuliyat to the following effect: I shall pay the rent that is, deliver the gula paddy according to the kists noted below year after year, x x x. There shall not be any variations as regards the jama and area settled at any time. If I fail to deliver the gula paddy according to the kists, I shall be dealt with according to law x x x. I shall deliver the said paddy measuring it out with a five seer dou after drying and winnowing it and making it fit for being stored in a gola." The schedule which was appended to the kabuliyat contains the following. "Instalment of rent 1 bishi, 5 aris of paddy in the month of Magh,"

Held, that the primary intention of the parties was that the rent should be paid in kind, and not in cash, and in the event of failure to deliver it, the land-lord would be entitled to damages by recourse to the Court, which would ordinarily be the market price of the paddy. 113 Ind. Cas. 37 = 55 Cal. 808 = A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 737.

——Rent and revenue—Rent in kind or in cash.

In each case the question, whether rent stipulated for is in kind or cash, depends upon the particular terms of the particular kabuliyat and no hard-and-fast rule can be laid down.

Where a kabuliyat provided: "I do execute this patta that in lieu of the price of Rs. 39 per year as described above with respect to the land you would be liable to deliver within the month of Magh every year at my house 78 aris of paddy. If you do not deliver then I shall be entitled to realize the same with interest and damages at the rate of 4 annas per rupee,"

Held, that the rent provided for was in cash at R. 39 per year and not in kind. 98 Ind. Cas. 977 = A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 243.

——Rent and revenue—Rent in kind.

Where rent is fixed in a lease deed in kind, but at the end of the lease, the price of the grain to be given is also approximately given.

Held, that the rent payable is a rent-in-kind, and that the consequence of non-delivery as covenanted is that the lessee is liable for the market value of the crops on the date of the delivery. 66 Ind. Cas. 780 = 3 Pat. L.T. 456 = A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 4.

——Rent and revenue—Rent is debt.

As soon as a lease is granted rent becomes due and is a debt which is payable to the personal heir of the lessor if the lessor dies before due date for its payment. The question as to who is entitled to rent depends upon the intention of the term in the lease reserving the rent. 22 N.L.R. 13 = 94 Ind. Cas. 741 = A.I.R. 1926 Nag. 314.

——Rent and revenue—Rent payable by lessee, whether accrues from day to day.

Rent payable by a lessee accrues due from day to day, though actual payment is to be made on the expiry of a year. It is inequitable and not warranted by law that the person who is on the scene when rent falls due is entitled to appropriate for the entire period for which it is paid, even though the right to receive rent for part of that period was not vested in him. A.I.R. 1934 All. 453 = 18 R. D. 351 = 149 Ind. Cas. 323.

——Rent and revenue.

Where a so-called lease is inadmissible in evidence, compensation for use and occupation can be granted in a suit for rent based on the so-called lease. 31 All. 276, Foll. 92 Ind. Cas. 553 = A.I.R. 1926 Nag. 238.

——Rent and revenue—Revenue Court—Plea not open.

In a suit filed in a rent Court by the lessor against the lessee for the balance of lease money, it was pleaded in defence that the lessor had improperly deprived the lessee of some portion of the leased land, Held, that such a plea cannot be admitted in a rent Court. 71 Ind. Cas. 400 = A.I.R. 1923 All. 367.

——Rent and revenue—Stipulation for rent in kind or money value—Lond-lord if can recover market value.

Where a tenant executed a kabuliyat promising to pay rent Rs. 4 in cash and 91 aris of paddy and on his failure to pay the said rent and share of paddy the land-lord would be competent to realise the said rent and Rs. 36 as price of the paddy.

Held, that on the tenant making default in paying the land-lord's share of the paddy the latter was not entitled to recover the market value of the paddy at the time but only the fixed amount of Rs. 36. The question whether a land-lord is entitled to anything more than the value of the paddy stipulated to be paid, on default of payment by the tenant, is one depending on the construction of the kabuliyat in each case. 15 C.W.N. 249, Ref. 24 C.W.N. 85 = 54 Ind. Cas. 914.

——Rent and revenue.

Where the sub-lessee undertook to pay the fixed rent to his land-lord and also undertook to discharge the rent due from his lessor to the superior land-lord he must pay the rent actaully due to the superior land-lord though such rent is enhanced subsequently. 9 Ind. Cas. 223 (Cal.)

22. Rent suit.

——Rent suit—Scope of enquiry.

Where, in a suit for rent, the lessee claims certain amount as damages alleging them to have accrued by reason of the high-handed and illegal acts of the lessor, but does not pay any court-fee on this amount, he is not entitled to any relief in the suit. Further, the nature of the enquiry essential to determine the correctness or otherwise of this claim would be quite foreign to the scope of a rent suit. A Court is, therefore, justified in refraining from entering into such a question in a rent suit. A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 106 = 21 P.L.T. 821 = 7 B. R. 490 = 192 Ind. Cas. 776.

——Rent suit—Sustainability.

Certain premises taken on lease by defendant so long as he would remain in town—Premises vacated without cause before expiry of term—Defendant still in town—Plaintiff land-lord protesting—Suit for rent for part of unexpired period of lease is maintainable, A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 454 = 40 P.L.R. 750 = 180 Ind. Cas. 652.

23. Rights and obligations.

——Rights and obligations.

The rights of the parties to a contract of lease can be abrogated by settlement proceedings. A.I.R. 1945 Cal. 129 = 78 C.L.J. 328.

——Rights and obligations.

Where a lease has been disposed of contrary to the terms contained in it, and that disposition is void or has been avoided by a landlord, there is no room for the application of the doctrine of 'fidei commissium' even in the case of a sale or other disposition for value, much less where the disposition is a gift. Since the choice in such a case of avoiding the disposition is with the lessor and not with the lessee or his executor, it cannot be said that the lessee or his executor must bring an action to get the disposition declared void. A.I.R. 1939 P.C. 138=50 M.L.W. 87=41 P.L.R. 717=182 Ind. Cas. 770 (P.C.)

——Rights and obligations.

Were the lessee was given a preferential right to take a lease for the ensuing year if he was prepared to pay as much as any other bona fide applicant where prepared to give, that is the lessee had, so to speak, a right of pre-emption and if the offer made by the other was bona fide and valid, he, the lessee, was not entitled to take a lease at a lower figure, although he would be entitled to take it if he were prepared to offer the same figure; the right which so accrues to the lessee is called the rights of first refusal. 1935 O.W.N. 1211=A.I.R. 1936 Oudh 56=11 Luck. 567=159 Ind. Cas. 121.

24. Sale of tenancy interest.

——Sale of tenancy interest — Position of purchaser.

When a tenancy interest is sold in execution of a decree against the lessee, a tenancy is created in the name of the purchaser in the terms of the original demise and the covenants therein will be binding on him. 90 Ind. Cas. 832 (Cal.)

25. Sub-soil rights.

——Sub-soil rights—Adverse possession.

In considering whether a person has acquired title to minerals by adverse possession, it is nothing to the purpose to prove that the person in possession had not worked any one pit for 12 years continuously, if for 12 years he had carried on operations in various parts of the mineral field. On the other hand, the fact that one pit in a mineral field is discontinued and another opened in a different part of the field and that bores are sunk in likely places is excellent proof of possession of the whole area. A.I.R. 1931 P.C. 186=60 M.L.J. 183=33 M.L.W. 162=35 O.W.N. 265=53 C.L.J. 81=(1931) M.W.N. 121=33 Bom. L.R. 425=58 I.A. 29=12 P.L.T. 251=15 R.D. 194=10 Pat. 407=53 C.L.J. 487=130 Ind. Cas. 315 (P.C.)

——Sub-soil rights—Title.

Since the permanent settlement, zemindars have, at least, a prima facie title to all lands for which they pay revenue.

Though long possession of land situated within zemindari may be good evidence of title to surface rights,the question as to sub-soil rights stands upon a different footing. If a claimant to sub-soil rights holds under the zemindar, or by a grant emanating from him, even though his power may be permanent, heritable and transferable, he must still prove the express inclusion of the sub-soil rights. A.I.R. 1931 P.C. 89=53 C.L.J. 333=35 C.W.N. 521=(1931) M.W.N. 435=33 M.L.W. 707=33 Bom. L.R. 885=61 M.L.J. 9=58 C. 1187=58 I.A. 125=131 Ind. Cas. 753 (P.C.)

——Sub-soil rights.

As between zemindar and jahagirdar, the zamindar must be regarded as the owner of the minerals. The remission of land revenue in respect of villages forming part of zamindari, whether authorised by the Government or not, cannot affect the proprietary rights of the zamindar in these villages or his-rights as against tenure-holders under his to claim the ownership of of minerals in them. A.I.R. 1931 P.C. 30=60 M.L.J. 253=53 C.L.J. 11=35 C.W.N. 233=33 M.L.W. 277=10 Pat. 296=12 P.L.T. 375=58 I.A. 9=131 Ind. Cas 325 (P.C.).

——Sub-soil rights—Evidence of title to—Duty of lessor—Onus.

A contract for grant of mining lease in certain mouzas provided that if the lessees did not take the lease within a certain period "except for want of the lessor's title in the said mouzas" the deposit would be forfeited to the lessor. The settlement record showed the lessor as zamindar of the mouzas and also that one of them was settled as a brahmottar and the other as a debuttar with tenure holders. Further demand was made by the lessees for production of the deeds of brahmottar and debuttar grants for the purpose of satisfying themselves that underground rights had been reserved to the zamindar and also for execution of an indemnity bond. The lessor replied that no deeds could be traced and that he was not prepared to execute an indemnity bond. The lessees thereupon refused to complete the lease and sued for their deposit.

Held, that the exception clause in the contract referred to title to the underground and not title to the mouzas but it did not increase the obligation as to the title lying on the lessor under general law which included no duty to produce satisfactory evidence of title to the underground before the completion of the lease.

That the onus was on the lessees to show that the lease offered to them was not a secure lease. Moreover the title of the zamindar had not been shown to be such as prevented him from giving the lessees a secure and valid lease. A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 561= 34 C.W.N. 347=57 Cal. 1189=128 Ind. Cas. 321.

——Sub-soil rights—Express grant necessary.

A patni grant does not carry with it the rights to the minerals unless there are express words to that effect. Where the patta provided: "you shall be in possession of all the zamindary rights and interest as prevailing from before in the lands included in the said mauza from before."

Held, there was nothing to show that sub-soil rights were granted. 112 Ind. Cas. 659=9 P.L.T. 593=8 Pat. 190=A.I.R 1928 Pat. 482.

——Sub-soil rights—Grant of—Construction.

Obiter: The question whether a putni tenure transfers all the rights of the Zamindari, including the right to the minerals, is still open. 45 Cal. 87, Expl. and Dist.; 16 C.L.J. 7 has not been overruled by Privy Council decisions. 86 Ind. Cas. 289=29 C.W.N. 725=27 Bom. L.R. 753=23 A.L.J. 712 =6 P.L.T. 42=21 M.L.W. 289=4 Pat. 244=52 I. A. 109=A.I.R. 1925 P.C. 42=48 M.L.J. 328 (P.C.).

——Sub-soil rights—Minerals—Adverse possession.

Leases purporting to grant sub-soil-rights will not give a title by adverse possession for which actual working must be established. (1920) Pat. H. C. C. 146=5 Pat. L. J. 273=56 Ind. Cas. 184.

26. Transferability.

——Transferability.

Privity of estate between the lessor and the lessee's assignee can hardly be said to arise except where the interest of the lessee has been transferred in whole to an assignee. A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 522=6 B.R. 200=185 Ind. Cas. 557.

——Transferability — Construction — Lessor not bound by lessee's transfer unless security accepted—Lessee has no right of transfer and cannot call upon lessor to accept security.

A lessor stipulated that any transfer by the lessee would not bind him and lessee would be liable for the rent in spite of the transfer and added further that "notwithstanding (the aforesaid provision) if on account of the intricacies of the law any tansfer made by you becomes in any way binding on me (the lessor), then you and your heirs shall remain bound to pay the fixed amount of rent so long as the transferee will not furnish security in proper quantities of immovable properties to be fixed by me for the due payment of the fixed rent and this shall in no way be varied."

Held, that the passage does not mean that whenever the lessees choose to transfer the lease-hold interest, the lessor would be bound to fix the security for the due payment of the rent which the transferee would be required to give and the original lessees would be exonerated from their personal liability to pay the rent. 122 Ind. Cas. 1=33 C.W.N. 865=31 M.L.W. 118=A.I.R. 1930 P.C. 13 (P.C.)

——Transferability.

The executants of a kabuliyat had purchased certain jamas in 1822, 1833 and other years. The land lords accepted rent in respect of these jamas from the purchaser all the while. As a consequence of the application for mutation of names in 1842, a kabuliyat was executed which was limited to a term of eight years. It was contended that effort at mutation shows that the jamas were transferable.

Held, that the facts were not sufficient to infer that jamas were transferable. 32 Cal. 41 (P.C.) and 32 Cal. 51 (P. C), Dist. A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 94=57 Cal. 775=126 Ind. Cas. 550.

——Transferability.

A purchaser, from a permanent lessee who had covenanted not to alienate, if recognized by the lessor is not bound by the convenant against alienation. 116 Ind. Cas. 153=49 C.L.J. 89=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 228.

——Transferability—Under-proprietary rights.

The taluqdar, having the superior proprietary rights, executed in favour of K and D a lease of a village which granted them the whole village from year to year and generation after generation (nas-lan bad naslan). K and D applied to the Settlement Court for a decree that they were entitled to under-proprietary rights and produced the lease before the Settlement Officer who ordered that "their claim was dismissed but that they had secured their end." They were never recorded as under-proprietors nor did they exercise their rights as such until the transfer in dispute was made.

Held, that no under-proprietary rights, i. e., to say hereditary and transferable rights in the village were granted to K and D. The order of the Settlement Officer could only mean that such rights were refused to them. They had therefore no rights of transfer in the village. 14 I.A. 7 and A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 74, Dist. 113 Ind. Cas. 799=A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 327.

——Transferability—Law governing.

Where the lease was executed in the year 1875, long before the present Agra Tenancy Act (1901) was passed, and there was no prohibition against transfers of an interest by a thekadar,

Held, assuming that the interest was transferable prior to 1901, it can be made non-transferable by an express enactment. The law governing the transfer must be that which was in force on the date when the transfer in dispute took place. 95 Ind. Cas. 1048=48 All. 385=24 A.L.J. 489=A.I.R. 1926 All. 432.

——Transferability—Lease governed by T.P. Act.

Where the lease, read as a whole, shows that the lessor put the lessee in the same position as he himself occupied, except in a few minor matters, and the primary object of the lease is not agriculture,

Held, the lease must be treated as not an agricultural lease, so as to be exempted from the operation of S. 108 of the Transfer of Property Act and to be governed by the Agra Tenancy Act, and the rights under it are transferable. 95 Ind. Cas. 1048=48 All. 385=24 A.L.J. 489=A.I.R. 1926 All. 432.

——Transferability—Clause against.

If a lease creating a permanent tenancy at a fixed rate of rent contains a restriction on the transferability of the tenancy, the restriction is inoperative if there is no re-entry clause in the event of the breach of the covenant. 91 Ind. Cas 649=53 Cal. 270=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 533.

——Transferability—Clause against.

Where a lease lays down that the grantee would enjoy the land by reclamation and cultivation from generation to generation and that the jama would be paid into the office of the land-lord from year to year,

Held, that the rent is fixed in perpetuity. The words "Thicca mokra" in the deed would only strengthen the view and a clause in deed preventing the alienation of the tenancy without the consent of the land-lord would not be a conclusive indication that the rent was not intended to be a permanent one. Such a convenent is inoperative if there is no clause for re-entry. 72 Ind. Cas. 1047=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 361.

——Transferability—Clause of re-purchase does not affect transferability of lease.

A lessor contracting for a right of re-purchase of lessee's rights does not in any way derogate from the transferable quality of the rights under the lease. The decision of every case will depend on the conditions of the lease. 66 Ind. Cas. 106=9 O. L. J. 101=A.I.R. 1923 Oudh 47.

27. Under-proprietary tenure.

——Under-proprietary tenure — If amounts to sale of tenure.

A grant of under-proprietary rights by means of leases, giving heritable and transferable rights in lieu of a premium taken in advance, and an annual rent reserved thereby, cannot be treated as a sale of a proprietary or and under-proprietary tenure. 1 O.L.J. 463=17 O.C. 299=25 Ind. Cas. 855.

28. Validity.

——Validity.

Execution of lease by pardanashin lady—Onus to prove that she understood nature and effect of her act is on person setting up its validity—Plea challenging validity of lease not taken by representatives of lady lessor in written statement—Lady enjoying benefit of lease without complaint for number of years before death—Such plea cannot be entertained before Privy Council. 1939 A.W.R. 101=5 B.R. 647=20 P.L.T. 407=43 C.W.N. 758=A.I.R. 1939 P. ——Validity—Lease of plot owned by several co-sharers jointly—One of them leasing out without consent of others—Rights of statutory tenant.

Where an agricultural plot is owned by two or more co-sharers, a perpetual lease of the land cannot be granted by a co-sharer without the consent of the others. Much less is a co-sharer, who is in wrongful possession of the share of the other co-sharers competent to grant such a lease of the joint plots and such a lease is wholly void.

A person in wrongful possession of land has no right to let that land and cannot consequently create statutory rights by admitting others as tenants.

Where the land belonging to more than one co-sharer is let out by only one of them without the consent of the other co-sharers, the lessee not having been admitted to tenancy by all the co-sharers, does not acquire the rights of a statutory tenant and is not entitled to retain possession as such. A.I.R. 1938 All. 316=(1938) A.L.J. 333=I.L.R. (1938) All. 441=1938 R. D. 463=1938 A.W.R. 199=175 Ind. Cas. 902.

——Validity.

If the land-lord lets premises with the knowledge that they would be used as a brothel, then the lease is void on the ground of bublic policy, and though on the one hand he cannot under those circumstances recover the overdue rent on the other hand he can recover possession of the premises occupied by the defendants under a void lease. (1839) 5 Bing. (N. C.) 666, Foll. 87 Ind. Cas. 802=A.I.R. 1925 Sind 296.

——Validity—Lease to commence in future.

A lease to commence in future, is an inter se termini which is in an existing real right vested in the lessee which gives him an immediate right of entry. 77 Ind. Cas. 798=18 N.L.R. 85=A.I.R. 1922 Nag. 227.

——Validity—Agreement between co-sharers—Not a lease.

Plaintiff and defendants purchased certain shares in a certain village and entered into an agreement by which one of the defendants was to realise his share of profits from certain tenants, and the plaintiff and the remaining defendants were each to realise the rent from all the other tenants of the village and take all the profits for a period of six years in turn. Plaintiff contended in his suit that the agreement was not valid in law or binding on him and that it, being a lease, could only be made by a registered instrument,

Held, the agreement in question was binding. It could not amount to a lease as one of the essentials of a lease, that there should be a consideration to be rendered periodically or on specified occasions to the lessor, was wanting. 68 Ind. Cas. 333=25 O.C. 39=9 O.L.J. 184=A.I.R. 1922 Oudh 201.

——Validity—Oral lease.

Where a person is in possession under an oral agreement to lease, and the premises are then let to third party, he must be deemed to have notice of the prior lease. An oral lease is not invalid and where the lessee takes possession the effect is the same as if a document had been executed, provided the specific performance is asked for in the same Court between the parties and at the same time when the subsequent question comes to be determined. 63 Ind. Cas. 118=25 C.W.N. 220.

29. Void.

——Void—Payment under—Effect.

Payment of rent under a void contract of lease for a number of years does not make the contract legal and operative. 36 Cal. 604=9 C. L. J. 343=2 Ind. Cas. 828.

——Void—Tenancy at will.

A perpetual lessee though he cannot be so treated owing to the lease having been subsequently found to be invalid, may yet be treated as a tenant-at-will. 2 O.L.J. 276=30 Ind. Cas. 258.

30. Zuripeshgi.

——Zar-i-peshgi lease and usufructuary mortgage, difference between.

Every zar-i-peshgi lease is not to be regarded as a mortgage. The main difference between a zar-i-peshgi lease and an usufructury mortgage is that under an usufructuary mortgage, the mortgagee is authorised to retain possession until the mortgage-money is satisfied but in a zar-i-peshgi lease, the mortgagee is to retain possession for a definite period only. Where, therefore, a lease does not show any intention to create the relationship of debtor and creditor and no right of redemption is expressly or impliedly reserved to the lessor but the lessee is to quit the land without any payment on the part of the lessor at the expiry of the term of the lease, such a lease does not create an usufructuary mortgage. 1936 O.W.N. 399=1936 R.D. 168=A.I.R. 1937 Oudh 146=12 Luck. 161=162 Ind. Cas. 825.

——Zur-i-peshgi.

The mortgagor is entitled to set off the rent payable to him as against the zuripeshgi money at the time of redemption. 5 Cal. 333, Foll; 56 Ind. Cas. 743, Dist. 102 Ind. Cas. 421=8 P.L.T. 601=A.I.R. 1927 Pat. 285.

——Zuripeshgi—Independent documents.

The combination of two independent documents which contain no reference to each other cannot create Zuripeshgi lease. 78 Ind. Cas. 47=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 270.

——Zuripeshgi—Lease or mortgage.

In a Zuripeshgi lease properly so-called there is an advance to the lessor in consideration of which the lessee is given possession of the land for a term during which he recoups himself for the sum advanced and interest out of the profits of the land of which he is put in possession. There is no question of redemption upon paying off an advance. The lease terminates at the expiration of the term and the lessor may re-enter as on the termination of any other lease.

Where, however, the interest created in the lessee continues after the expiration of the term until the advance, which is essentially a loan and not an advance of rent, is re-paid, the transaction has the essential characteristics of a mortgage. 68 Ind. Cas. 394=3 P.L.T. 797=2 Pat. 217=A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 122.

——Zur-i-peshgi—Rights of a lessee under.

Where the object of a zuripeshgi lease was to secure repayment of a debt and not to create the relationship of land-lord and tenant the lessee could not claim occupancy rights in the land. (1917) Pat. H.C.C. 271=41 Ind. Cas. 495.

31. Miscellaneous.

——Miscellaneous.

Where the lessee of a Corporation had assigned the lease and a default was made in payment of rent, the references to assignee as a lessee under the lease in notice served by the lessors on the assignee determining the lease and forfeiting it, in a resolution passed by the lessors sanctioning the filing of a suit against him, and in the plaint filed by the lessors against the assignee, are not strong enough to justify an inference that the lessors released their claim against the original lessees. A.I.R. 1938 Bom. 360=I.L.R. (1938) Bom. 471=40 Bom. L.R. 497=177 Ind. Cas 479.

——Miscellaneous—Private property attached during Mutiny of 1857 and leased out for bazar —Assurance that bazar would remain for ever— Misconduct of lessee or requirement of land for road to entail dispossession—Lessee entitled to remove material—Release of attached property to original proprietors—Proprietors, if derived title from Government and if bound by intermediate acts of Government,

During the Mutiny of 1857, in September, the Military Governor passed a General Order "attaching" the immovable property of all Muhammadan residents of Delhi. In accordance with this order, the land in question was "attached." In close proximity to this land, the British Military Camp had been established and after the suppression of the Mutiny, Govt. decided to construct a regular bazar in that locality, and for this purpose, it granted small plots of land on a nominal rent to intending builders. The terms of the grant were contained in a proclamation which was issued by the Superintendent of the Sadar Bazar, Delhi, on Sepetember, 29, 1858 (Ex. D. 1). Some of the terms were: "the Govt. has decided that pakka or kacha shops should be constructed in the abadi of Sadar Bazar, Camp, Delhi. It is likely that the abadi shall continue for ever. If per chance the Sadar is removed from there or a road is required to be constructed, the owner of the shop, which is included in the road, will not get the cost of the shop from the Govt. But owners of the shops shall be competent to remove their materials. If any shop-keeper is expelled from the Sadar Bazar on account of misconduct and he has some property in the Sadar, then such orders regarding the value of the said property will be passed by the Superintendent, Sadar Bazar, as he deems proper. Any person who wants to sell his shop to anybody else, will not be allowed to do so without giving information to the Govt." Some of the attached properties were subsequently released to the former proprietors who proved their innocence:

Held, that the grantees of the lease were permanent tenants:

Held, also that the attachment was nothing less than appropriation of such property by Govt. who was the de jure as well as the de facto owner at the time when, after the restoration of peace, as an act of grace it decided to "release" these properties to those who proved their innocence. The so called "releases" of properties confiscated under the "General Order" were in reality nothing but regrants, under which the former proprietors derived their title from Govt., taking only such rights as were held by the Govt., their assignor, at the time and, therefore, they were bound by all intermediate acts of the Govt., in respect of the property assigned. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 370=39 P.L.R. 602= I.L.R. (1940) Lah. 363=176 Ind. Cas. 65.

——Miscellaneous.

Lease of undivided fraction in estate—Subsequent partition decree—Lessee not party to decree—Lessee in possession of whole share allotted under decree to lessor—Lessee cannot be ousted from share in remaining portion leased originally. 64 Ind. Cas. 448= 35 C.L. J. 166=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 623.

1. Abandonment of issues and pleas.

——Vakil's general power, if includes power to abandon issue.

A Vakil's general power in the conduct of a suit includes the abandonment of an issue which, in his discretion, he thinks it inadvisable to press. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 71=16 L. 328=37 P.L.R. 596=157 Ind. Cas. 806.

——A pleader's general powers in the conduct of an appeal include, in ordinary cases, the abandonment of an issue which in his discretion he thinks inadvisable to press and therefore an issue of fact abandoned by him in the lower Appellate Court cannot be challenged in second appeal. 109 Ind. Cas. 178= A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 900.

——Abandoning issue.

It is within a vakil's power to abandon an issue which in his discretion he thinks inadvisable to press. 25 Mad. 367 (P.C.), Foll. 109 Ind. Cas. 713= 10 L.L. J. 383.

——Abandonment of plea—Agreement to be bound by special oath—Validity.

One of the plaintiffs in a suit for recovery of money, died and her heirs were brought on record. On behalf of the original plaintiffs three pleaders were engaged. The substituted plaintiffs presented a second Vakalatnama on which only two pleaders made a formal endorsement of acceptance though it contained the name of the third also who was the senior pleader. Held, that as senior pleader of the three, the third was entrusted with the management of the case on behalf of all the plaintiffs. The two Vakalatnamas were similar in terms and authorised the pleaders to withdraw the suit or to give up the claim of the plaintiff, to cite and examine the witnesses or to refuse to examine the same and provided that all acts done by the pleaders for the benefit of their clients would be accepted by the parties. Held, that the powers were wide and comprehensive enough to include also the step taken by the pleader in placing one of the defendants on special oath and agreeing that his clients should be bound by the answers given by the witness. 24 C.W.N. 385=57 Ind. Cas. 149.

——Abandonment of plea—Issue of fact.

On a qestion of fact it is within the competence of the pleader or the parties to give up an issue. 25 M. 367, Foll. 43 Mad. 398=38 M L. J. 86=27 M.L.T. 142=11 L.W. 379=(1920) M.W.N. 272=55 Ind. Cas. 371.

——Abandonment of plea.

Where a pleader abandons a plea at one stage of the hearing of a cause it should not be entertained at later stages. 30 C.L. J. 48=53 Ind. Cas. 49.

——Legal Practitioner—Abandonment of plea—Binds client.

Parties are bound by what their counsel do, in the shape of admissions, consents, withdrawals, in conducting the cases in the exercise of their discretion, acting within the scope of their authority unless they have been induced or misled by some circumstances to make a statement under a mistake. 35 Ind. Cas. 205 (All.)

——Abandonment of plea — Authority — Client cannot re-open issues in appeal.

A pleader is entitled to withdraw a plea raised in the pleadings and the client cannot re-open to the issues based on such a plea in appeals. 3 O.L. J. 156=34 Ind. Cas. 390.

2. Admission.

——Admission — Erroneous admission — Withdrawal—Permissibility.

An erroneous admission made by a legal practitioner can be allowed by Court to be withdrawn. I.L.R. (1950) Nag. 445=1950 N.L. J. 343=A.I.R. 1951 Nag. 161.

——Wrong admission of law is not binding on client.

A wrong admission by a Plader on a pure question of law is not binding on his client. A.I.R. 1941 Lah. 347=43 P.L.R. 489=14 R.L. 241=197 Ind. Cas. 481.

——Admissions—Erroneous on point of law.

An erroneous admission on a point of law made by the pleader of a party prior to the filing of the suit is not binding on that party. 13 S.L.R. 128= 52 Ind. Cas. 878.

——Admission—Erroneous on point of law.

An erroneous admission by a pleader on a point of law is not binding on the party whom the pleader represents and does not preclude the party from claiming his legal rights in an Appellate Court. 27 C.L.J. 447=45 Ind. Cas. 983.

——Admissions—Erroneous on point of law.

A client is not bound by the erroneous admission of law made by his pleader. 8 S.L.R. 156=27 Ind. Cas, 357.

——Admissions—Erroneous point of law—If binding on client.

A pleader's erroneous admission on a point of law is not binding on the client. 23 M.L.J. 327=16 Ind. Cas. 746.

——Admissions—Mistaken—Review.

Quaere.—How far an admission by the counsel is binding on the party, and whether a mistaken admission on a point of law is a good ground for review. 6 N.L.R. 63=5 Ind. Cas. 426.

——Admission—Point of law—Judgment delivered on basis thereof—Whether binding on client.

While a mere concession on a point of law by counsel is not in itself binding either on counsel or his client and it is open to him to retract it or resile from it, there is nevertheless a well-established principle of law that a litigant cannot through his counsel adopt an inconsistent position. When, on the basis of a concession made, a judgment is delivered, the judgment is binding on the client so long as it stands. If he desires to change his front, he should take some steps either to have the judgment vacated or at least to notify the opposite party that he proposes to question the validity of the judgment and to resile from the concession on the point of law made. I.L.R. (1947) 1 Cal. 478=51 C.W.N. 309.

——Admission on question of law, if binding on client.

An admission on a question of law by a Pleader does not bind his client, and whatever his Pleader might have admitted before the trial Court, it is open to his Advocate in the High Court to urge the contrary view. 47 Bom. L.R. 114=A.I.R. 1945 Bom. 351=I.L.R. (1945) Bom. 390.

——Admission by Advocate on point of law is not binding on party but decision based on it is binding unless it is set aside.

It is true that an admission by an Advocate on a point of law is not binding upon a party, but if, on the basis of such an admission, a decree has been passed, the decree is binding upon the party unless it is set aside under the procedure prescribed by law. In other words, even though an admission may not be binding, a decision on the basis of that admission will bind the party. 5 B.R. 664=20 P.L.T. 685=A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 580=181 Ind. Cas. 721.

——On point of law.

A confession by a Pleader made in the lower Court that the compromise incorporated in a decree sought to be executed included certain matters not relating to the suit is not a confession on a pure question of fact but largely a confession of law by which the party is not bound in second appeal. 33 Bom. L.R. 463=A.I.R. 1931 Bom. 295=132 Ind. Cas. 434.

——On point of law, not binding.

An erroneous admission upon a point of law made by legal adviser does not bind his client. Whether this doctrine extends to a case where to re-open the topic which was closed might entail the remanding of the case to the lower Court for a further finding of facts is not very clear. 31 M.L.W. 516=1930 M.W.N. 129=A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 547.

——On point of law, not binding.

A party cannot be bound by any wrong admission of his pleader as to law, inasmuch as the parties must be presumed to know what is correct law. 92 Ind. Cas. 732=13 O.L.J. 138=A.I.R. 1926 Oudh 311.

——On point of law, not binding.

An erroneous admission by a counsel on a point of law is of no effect and does not preclude a party from claiming his legal rights in the appellate Court. 27 C.L.J. 447; 18 W.R. 359 and 27 Cal. 156 (P.C.), Foll. 90 Ind. Cas. 98=42 C.L.J. 71=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 1171.

——Minor client.

The interest of a minor cannot be affected by the admission on a law point by a pleader. 82 Ind. Cas. 1052=A.I.R. 1925 Nag. 207.

——On point of law, not binding.

Where the cross objections of the respondent arose from the decree of the first Court and they were included in the grounds of appeal from that decree but were not pressed in the lower Appellate Court owing to misapprehension by the counsel on a point of law.

Held, an erroneous admission by counsel on a point of law is of no effect and does not preclude a party from claiming his legal rights in the appellate Court. 81 Ind. Cas. 742=11 O.L.J. 436=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 150.

——On a point of law, not binding.

An admission made by the counsel on a point of law cannot in any way bind client. 75 Ind. Cas. 1048=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 702.

——Admission—Question of fact—Client when bound.

A pleader can bind his client by an admission upon a question of fact provided that such a question falls within the scope of the suit in which he has been retained. Where there is no question as to the liability of a transferee-defendant arising in a suit against the transferor-tenant, it is beyond the scope of the pleader's authority to bind his client by an admission of the validity of the transfer. 17 C.W.N. 156=15 Ind. Cas. 156.

——Of law or fact, binding.

Where the pleader of a party makes an admission, whether the admission is of law or an admission of fact, that party is bound thereby and it would be doing great injustice to a Subordinate Court of law to re-open a matter in appeal, which has been decided by that Court on the admission of a pleader of a party. 118 Ind. Cas. 166=A.I.R. 1929 All. 446.

——Legal Practitioner—Admission—On point of law, not binding but admission of fact binding.

Per Ananthakrishna Aiyar, J.—Though a party might not be bound by admissions made by his counsel on pure questions of law, yet on questions of fact, parties are bound by admissions made by their counsel, whether the admissions be made in the course of the trial in the first Court or in the course of the hearing of the appeal before the lower Appellate Court. 109 Ind. Cas. 178=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 900.

——On point of law, not binding but admission of fact binding.

Admission of pleader on a point of law is not binding on the parties. But an admission of fact by the pleader is binding on his client. Whether the admission is one of law or fact will depend upon the circumstances of every case. 87 Ind. Cas. 956=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 665.

——Admission by Pleader, of fact—When not binding on client.

An admission of a fact by a Pleader is not binding on the client if it is made under misapprehension. A.I.R. 1937 Bom. 81=38 Bom. L.R. 1058=167 Ind. Cas. 208.

——Counsel's powers to make admission in or refer to arbitration or compromise suit.

A Counsel has authority to make admissions in Court on behalf of his client on matters of fact relevant to the issues in the case in which he is engaged. Admissions on questions of law would not bind the client. A Conusel has authority to confess judgment, withdraw or compromise, or refer to arbitration the suit in which he is instructed, if his doing so is for his client's advantage or benefit even though he has no express authority from his client but a Counsel cannot, without express authority agree to compromise or refer to arbitration, matters unconnected with the subject-matters of the suit in which he is instructed. Where in the course of a suit a Counsel makes an admission as to a collateral matter, or gives up a doubtful claim which is not the subject matter of the suit, there is a presumption that the Counsel acts under instructions if the admission or the giving up of the doubtful claim is for the benefit of the client. The Counsel has no power to make an admission in, or compromise or refer to arbitration, a suit is he is instructed not to do so, without express authority from his client. A.I.R. 1935All, 626=(1935) A. L. J. 953=1935 A.W.R. 772=158 Ind. Cas. 97.

——Authority to bind client by admissions of fact—Statement of liability in purshis signed by Pleader—Effect of.

In the ordinary course of his duties, a Pleader has authority to bind his client by admissions of fact provided such admissions are made during the actual progress of litigation. Where a purshis signed by a Pleader in the course of a suit contains a statement of liability, it is binding on the client as an acknowledgment of liability under S. 19, Lim. Act. 36 Bom. L.R. 334=A.I.R. 1934 Bom. 186=151 Ind.Cas. 376.

——Authority to admit facts.

A pleader has authority to admit certain facts so as to dispense with the necessity of further proof in a criminal case at the appellate stage. 3 Bom. L. R. 467, Foll.; 112 Ind.Cas. 110=52 Bom. 686=30 Bom. L.R. 646=29 Cr.L.J. 990=11 A.I.Cr.R. 243=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 241.

——Binding nature of.

Parties are bound by admissions of counsel, unless he has been induced or misled by some circumstances to make a statement under a mistake. 70 Ind. Cas. 417=A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 233.

——Admission—Repudiation—Time of—Pleader and client.

A party desiring to repudiate his counsel's admission must do so at the earliest stage. A pleader may abandon issue which he thinks unnecessary. 20 O.C. 49=38 Ind. Cas. 800.

——Admission—Binds client.

Parties are bound by what their consel do in the shape of admissions, consents, withdrawals, in conducting the cases in the exercise of their discretion, acting within the scope of their authority unless they have been induced or misled by some circumstances to make a statement under a mistake. 35 Ind. Cas. 205 (All.)

——Admission—Effect of on—Party.

Where a pleader in the Lower Court makes an admission upon an issue regarding which evidence might be, but is not given, the party will be bound by the admission. 39 Bom. 352=17 Bom.L.R. 187=28 Ind. Cas. 485.

——Admissions—Question of fact—Binding on client.

An admission of fact by the pleader of a party is binding upon his client and the opposite party cannot be arbitrarily deprived of the benefits of such admission. 44 Ind. Cas. 18 (Cal.)

——Admission—Binds client.

An attorney's admission is evidence against his client unless shown to be otherwise. 20 C.W.N. 995=37 Ind. Cas. 71.

——Admission—How far binding on client.

Plaintiffs are bound by the statement made by their duly appointed pleader. 164 P.W.R. 1916=86 P.L.R. 1916=35 Ind. Cas. 870.

——Admissions—How far binding on client.

The counsel's admission, that his point was not urged in Lower Appellate Court, binds the client. 5 N.L.R. 47=2 Ind. Cas. 29.

3. Arbitration.

—Pleader authorised in power-of attorney to refer suit to arbitration—He need not obtain express authority from client before referring case to arbitration. 46 P.L.R. 108=A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 280=219 Ind. Cas. 70.

——Power to make reference to arbitration.

A reference to arbitration in a suit is a proceeding incidental to the suit and the Advocate of the parties have power to execute such references. A.I.R. (1944) Sind 51=I.L.R. (1943) Kar. 438=213 Ind. Cas. 364.

——Arbitration—Authority to refer.

The words used with reference to the power to be exercised by the pleader appointed by the vakalatnama were shalishan or solenama karibain.

Held, that the pleader was vested with sufficient authority to refer the matter to arbitration. 56 Cal. 21=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 322.

——Authority to refer.

A pleader engaged to act or plead in a suit does not possess the power to refer it to arbitration without express authority from the client. Such authority cannot be inferred by the mere circumstance that the pleader, though not formally appointed by a vakalatnamah, was allowed to sign a jawabdawa. 114 Ind. Cas. 712=A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 171.

——Authority to refer.

In a suit for partition, on the motion of the counsel of the parties, a particular person was appointed as a special referee to go into accounts and a consent decree was passed fixing the shares of the parties. Thereupon one of the parties moved the Court to set aside the decree on the ground that the counsel consented to arbitration contrary to his instructions. The Court found that the counsel had limited authority and proceeded with the case.

Held, that if a client objected to important matters of account being referred to private arbitration and to a private referee, and if that was done by mistake of his counsel, the Court was not wrong in taking steps to see that the suit should proceed in the ordinary way. (1902) 1. A. C. 465, Foll. 106 Ind. Cas. 309=32 C.W.N. 44=A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 378.

——Authority to refer.

A party's agent binds the party by an agreement under S. 9 as much as a party himself. A vakalatnama gives sufficient authority to a pleader to agree to make a reference under S. 9 of Oaths Act. 79 Ind. Cas. 246=A.I.R. 1923 All. 65.

——Authority to revoke.

A pleader has no authority to revoke the apointment of arbitrators made by his cilents, without instructions from the client, and to appoint a new arbitrator in substitution. 65 Ind. Cas. 879=5 N.L.J. 229=18 N.L.R. 140=A.I.R. 1922 Nag. 39.

4. Authority to act.

——A vakalatnama is a power-of-attorney and a 'power-of-attorney' is an authority whereby one is set in the turns, stead or place of another to act for him. 19 N.L.J. 207=A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 65=I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 494=169 Ind. Cas. 117.

——Vakalat—Vakil's name not entered in the body of—Mere clerical error. See C.P. Code, O. 9, R. 9. (1946) 1 M.L.J. 274=A.I.R. 1946 Mad. 482.

——Where a pleader is satisfied that a gumasta is authorized to deliver the vakalatnama signed by the party and accepts it, it is a sufficient authority for him to act on behalf of the party. 114 Ind. Cas. 156=48 C.L.J. 357=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 11.

——Verbal appointment.

An Advocate, unlike a pleader, can be verbally appointed to act on behalf of his client, and when so appointed, under R. 1 of O. 3 he can appear, plead and act. There is nothing to prevent an advocate, either in the High Court or in the subordinate Courts, to present an application on behalf of his client without any power of appointment or vakalatnama given to him in writing. There is nothing in the Legal Practitioners' Act also against this view. 9 All. 617, Foll. 92 Ind. Cas. 179=4 Pat. 766=7 P.L.T. 1362=A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 73.

——Acceptance of Vakalatnama after filing in Court.

A Vakalatnama once filed in Court may be subsequently accepted by a vakil or pleader whose name appears in the Vakalatnama. The Court has only to see whether the name of the pleader proposed to be appointed, appears in the Vakalatnama or not and if his name does appear, then the pleader is entitled to sign the Vakalatnama and appear and act in the case. 68 Ind. Cas. 659=3 P.L.T. 447=A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 504.

——Authority to act—Defective vakalatnama.

Where by oversight, the name of the pleader presenting an appeal was not mentioned in the vakalatnama, the pleader was not a properly appointed one, and there was no proper presentation of the appeal. 11 A.L.J. 458=19 Ind. Cas. 674.

——Authority to act—Appearance without vakalatnama—Procedure.

When an accused is represented by a pleader without vakalatnama in an appeal, the proper course is to adjourn the hearing of the appeal until it is produced and thus afford the accused an opportunity of being represented by a pleader. 21 Cr.L.T. 413=56 Ind. Cas. 61 (Cal.)

——Authority to act—Presentation without—Invalid.

The presentation of a memorandum of appeal by a Vakil without any authority in the shape of a vakalatnama is not a valid presentation. 55 Ind. Cas. 271 (Pat.)

——Authority to act—Pleader appearing with party's knowledge and consent—Power of attorney not filed—Effect.

Where a pleader appears with the party's knowledge, consent and authority the mere non-filing of a power-of-attorney would only be an irregularity and could not nullify the pleader's action or statement in Court. 6 Bur. L.T. 62=20 Ind. Cas. 189.

——Authority to act—'No instructions'—'Appearance'—Meaning of.

Instructions do not merely mean information. If a Barrister states in Court that he has no instructions he is not deemed to represent his client. But though a pleader cannot answer questions put to him by Court his authority does not end, being derived from vakalatnama. A mere presence of pleader is equal to appearance of client. The formula 'I have no instruction' does not necessarily mean that the pleader is not acquainted with the case, but it implies that he may be treated as absent. 3 S.L.R. 208=6 Ind. Cas. 851.

——Authority to act—Extent of.

The authority of a solicitor to represent his client does not necessarily come to an end on the passing of the judgment in the suit. 14 C.L.J. 445=12 Ind. Cas. 780.

——Authority to act.

A pleader cannot exceed the powers given to him by the contract between him and the client. 71 P.R. 1915=109 P.W.R. 1915=13 P.L.R. 1916=30 Ind. Cas. 517.

——Implied authority to contract.

A solicitor has no implied authority to make a contract on behalf of his client. A. I. R. 1946 P.C. 97=50 C.W.N. 603=224 Ind. Cas. 508=59 M.L.W. 370=12 B.R. 596=1946 Pesh. L.J.P.C. 97=48 Bom. L.R. 456=1946 A.L.J. 326=1946 M.W.N. 598=73 I.A. 98=(1946) 2 M.L.J. 259=48 Pun. L.R. 450=1946 A.W.R. (P.C.) 160=I.L.R. (1946) Kar. P.C. 94 (P.C.)

——Agreement to pay without authority.

While a suit was pending the pleader for the defendants stated that if the plaintiff presented probate or Letters of Administration or succession certificate the defendants would have no objection to pay him the amount in dispute with interest thereon for six months.

Held, that the pleader who made the statement had no general or special authority from the defendant which would entitle him to enter into a contract on their behalf to pay a time barred debt and therefore this statement was not a new contract within S. 25 (3) so as to give rise to a fresh cause of action, especially when there is nothing whatever to show that the record of the statement made by the pleader was signed by the pleader or by any other agent. 75 Ind. Cas. 309=21 A.L.J. 713=4 L.R.A. Civ. 473=A.I.R. 1924 All. 12.

——Conduct of case.

Obiter.—A Counsel must be deemed to have implied authority to admit or deny a document, to press or withdraw an issue in the case, to examine a witness or call no witnesses and do such other acts which are required for the proper management and conduct of the trial:

Held, that the vakalatnama authorised the Pleader to do all that he considered necessary for the conduct of the case. A.I.R. 1940 Oudh 314= 1940 O.W.N. 662=15 Luck. 686=1940 A.W.R. 316= 187 Ind. Cas. 889.

——Offer to be bound down by special oath of witness—Necessity of express authority.

Pleaders or agents should, in their own interests, be careful not to make offers to be bound down by special oath except in the presence of the party or on express written authority to that effect. A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 64=I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 310=172 Ind. Cas. 421.

——Special oath.

Application on behalf of defendants that if plaintiff takes special oath and makes statement, defendants would be bound by it—Application signed by some defendants and by Pleader appearing for all defendants with words "for defendants"—Pleader can be deemed to have signed on behalf of all defendants. A.I.R.=1939 Pat. 222=20 P.L.T. 131 =5 B.R. 827=182 Ind. Cas. 791.

——Offer to be bound by oath of other party.

A pleader acting for a party or parties to a suit cannot bring it to a close by offering to be bound by the oath of the opposite party in a particular form. But it is quite open to a Court to make an inference from the peculiar circumstances of a case that there was authority on the part of the pleader. Thus where the defendants have put up a common defence and one of the adult defendants was present in Court at the time the pleader made the offer and it appeared that that defendants had been put forward by the others to take all necessary steps in connection with the suit,

Held, that the parties were bound by the pleader's offer. 34 C.W.N. 310=A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 463.

——Agreement to be bound by the statement of certain witness.

No special power under the vakalatnama is necessary for a pleader to agree to be bound by the statement of a particular witness. 38 All. 131, Foll. 102 Ind. Cas. 38=49 All. 842=25 A.L.J. 729 =A.I.R. 1927 All, 584.

——Authority — Consent — Decree — Binding nature on client.

When the case was opened, the Counsel for defendant, in view of certain documents, mentioned to the attorney that the defendant should consent to a decree and he also consulted the person who was standing behind his back, but it appeared that the Counsel was under the impression that the person consulted was a relative of the party and not the party himself. The decree that was passed on the basis of the Counsel's representation was sought to be impugned on the ground that the Counsel did not have the requisite authority:

Held, that the party present having, in fact, been consulted, the agreement was binding on him.

Per Rankin, C.J.—If the party present in Court was not properly and adequately consulted then his duty was to refuse, when his Counsel was proposing to consent to a decree, to allow that to happen and if necessary, to give notice to the other side and the Court that he was withdrawing the authority, which the counsel had on his behalf. If any right is to accrue to the client from the fact of his being in Court, he must at least make his presence known to the Counsel in order that the Counsel may act accordingly and it cannot be supposed that because he keeps quiet and does not even instruct his Counsel as to who the client is or take any steps to inform the Counsel of his presence, the Counsel has got to carry on upon the footing that he has no authority to deal with the case as circumstances may require. 59 C. 31=54 C.L.J. 558=35 C.W.N. 674=A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 231=136 Ind. Cas. 535.

——Statement of pleader, value of—Contradiction by client, effect of.

When a pleader, who is authorised by his vaklatnama to appear for a party, does appear and makes a statement of fact on behalf of that party, the mere allegation of that party to the contrary is not material sufficient to contradict his pleader. A.I.R. 1931 All. 415=136 Ind. Cas. 622.

——Criminal P.C., S. 493.

It is ordinarily undesirable that any counsel should be brought in to assist the public prosecutor at a very late stage even if acts entirely under the control of the public prosecutor, but there might arise special circumstances which would justify such a course.

The word 'act' in S. 493 does not mean some thing other than examining or cross-examining witnesses or addressing the Court. The word is not used in a technical sense in distinction from 'appear and plead' in the opening words of the section. 1930 M.W.N. 769.

——Power to file appeal.

Where in a printed form of the power-of-attorney the clause authorising an advocate to file an appeal has been struck off by the client, it does not mean that the said power has been taken away from him, if it otherwise existed. It only means that the power was not expressly given. 116 Ind. Cas. 184=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 68.

—Ex parte decree—Application to set aside—No fresh Vakalatnama necessary.

Where an ex parte decree is passed against the defendant in the absence of his pleader, the latter need not file a fresh Vakalatnama in order to apply to set aside the ex parte decree. In seems to be taking an extremely narrow view of the rules with regard to Vakalatnamas to say that the effect of the old Vakalatnama had expired as soon as the ex parte decree had been passed and that it would be necessary before a pleader could be heard that he should obtain a fresh one. 69 Ind. Cas. 169=47 Bom. 11=24 Bom. L.R. 744=A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 207.

——Authorisation to prosecute execution case —Mukhtear, if can bind principal by agreement relinquishing his rights.

Where a mukhtarnama only authorises a person to prosecute the execution case on behalf of of his principal, he cannot bind the principal by any agreement relinquishing rights possessed by the principal. A.I.R. 1937 Oudh 270=1937 O.W.N. 127=166 Ind. Cas. 714.

——Authority to act — Vakalat to execute decree—What it implies.

A power given to a vakil to execute a decree includes a power to receive from the judgment-debtor, money out of Court and therefore an order of Court recording satisfaction of the decree to the extent of the amount so received by the vakil is legal. 15 M.L.T. 162=(1914) M.W.N. 220=22 Ind. Cas. 277.

——Right to release debt — Implied authority.

A solicitor has no implied authority as such to receive payment of a mortgage debt though he may be authorised to receive interest. He cannot enter into an agreement to release a portion of the mortgaged property from the lien. Nor can he, where he is authorised to receive payment receive a cheque instead of cash. 10 C. L. J. 150 =1 Ind. Cas. 214.

——Letter purporting to be instructed by client— Presumption — Evidence Act, S. 114, illus. (f).

Where, in a letter written by a pleader on behalf of his client, the exact amount due was not admitted but it was admitted that goods had been bought and not paid for in full and the letter ends with a definite promise to pay whatever may be found due before a certain date:

Held, that the letter constituted an acknowledgment of liability and a promise to pay before the date specified.

When a member of the Bar writes a letter purporting to be instructed by a client, it is to be presumed, until the contrary is proved, that the letter is written under instructions. A. I. R. 1933 Rang. 147=144 Ind. Cas. 996.

——Presumption of authority.

Where a consent decree is passed by a Court on confession of judgment by a party's pleader it must be assumed that the Court must have satisfied itself before the passing of the consent decree that the pleader confessing judgment had authority on behalf of the party to act in the manner in which he did. The person challenging the authority must prove to the contrary by positive evidence. 121 Ind. Cas. 283=A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 211.

5. Change of name.

——Change of name—High Court can order amendment only in certificate and roll of advocates but not in Bar Council papers — Different caste suggested by new name — Amendment does not decide right to assume different caste.

It is open to any person to change his name and after giving due notice of it in the Official Gazette assume a new name. In accordance with such a change, there can be no objection, in the case of an advocate, to a corresponding change in the name appearing in the certificate and in the roll of advocates. But the High Court cannot grant his prayer in so far as it relates to the enrolment papers filed with the Bar Council.

Where the new name suggests that he belongs to a caste other than that which is indicated by stood as deciding that he is entitled to describe the original name in the roll and certificate, the granting of the amendment should not be understood as deciding that he is entitled to describe himself as belonging to any particular caste. 61 L.W. 349=A.I.R. 1948 Mad. 525=1948 M.W.N 378=(1948) 1 M. L. J. 361.

6. Compromise.

See also: Civil P.C., O. 3. R. 4 and O. 23. R. 3.

——Authority to compromise given by vakalatnama—Duty to obtain client's consent to compromise.

When a vakalatnama authorises a pleader to effect a compromise he is authorised to enter into the compromise itself and if he enters into a compromise it cannot be said that it was bad because he had not obtained his client's consent to the compromise. 1950 A.L.J. 621= A.I.R. 1951 A. 459.

——Authority to compromise in the absence of express authorisation by the vakalatnama.

An express and explicit direction or power in the vakalatnama given to an advocate or a pleader to conduct and defend a suit, which must mean to contest it, cannot be deemed to include a direction or power to compromise it.

A vakalatnama provided: "I (fourth defendant) do hereby appoint and retain (the advocate) to appear for me in the above suit and to conduct and defend the same." This was followed by express directions for the advocate to conduct and defend proceedings in any application for execution, appear in all miscellaneous proceedings in the suit until all decrees or orders are satisfied or adjusted; to obtain the return of all documents, draw any moneys payable to the client; to accept service of notice of all appeals or petitions filed in any Court of Appeal, reference or revision. There was no reference made to a compromise of the suit.

Held, that in a vakalatnama conferring in detail, six separate distinct powers, the absence of a power or direction to compromise was not without significance. As the client had only empowered the advocate to appear for her and to conduct and defend the suit and she had not empowered him to settle it, he had no express authority to effect a compromise, but solely to contest the suit. In the circumstances no implied authority arose or could be deemed to have been conferred upon him to make a compromise binding upon his client. 1923 P. C. 13, foll; I.L.R. (1948) Mad. 647=61 L.W. 61=1948 M.W.N 100=A.I.R. 1949 Mad. 98=(1947) 2 M.L.J. 580.

——Authority to compromise.

An advocate has by virtue of his position as such ample power to settle a disputed point and a specific authority to compromise is not necessary for this purpose. I.L.R. (1947) All. 706= 1947 A.L.J. 406=1947 A.W.R. (H.C.) 307=A.I.R. 1947 A. 382.

——Authority to compromise — C. P. Code, O. 3, R. 4.

Counsel in India, whether Barristers, Advocates or Pleaders, have inherent powers both to compromise claims, and also to refer disputes in Court to arbitration without the authority or consent of the client, unless their powers in this behalf have been expressly countermanded, and this, whether the law requires a written authority to "act" or "plead" or not. I.L.R. (1946) Nag. 824=1947 N.L. J. 1=229 Ind. Cas. 402=A.I.R. 1947 Nag. 17 (F.B.).

——Power to compromise.

In India, an Advocate has the same implied authority to compromise as he has in England. But where he derives his authority from an express written contract such as a vakalatnama the case is different. If it appears from the terms of the vakalatnama that the client did not intend to authorise his Advocate to compromise, then there would be no implied authority and where, in the vakalatnama, there is no express authority to compormise, no authority could be implied.

A vakalatnama given by a party to his Advocate contained the following clause: "I execute this vakalatnama with consent agreeing to accept all the proceedings (conducted) by you therein as if done by me personally."

Held, that although the clause did not unequivocally authorise the Advocate to compromise yet, in construing the clause, it was not unreasonable to bear in mind that Advocate ordinarily had such an authority and to assume that the clause was intended to embody that authority, which, in the absence of a vakalatnama, would be implied. A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 672=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 168=1943 M.W.N. 544=56 L.W. 582=213 Ind. Cas. 218.

——Vakalatnama—Power to compromise.

Where a vakalatnama given to a pleader does not give any specific authority to negotiate with the defendants and settle the terms of the compromise, but merely to sign the compromise application to be presented in Court and if the consent of the party to such an application being presented to the Court had not been obtained, the compromise resulting in the decree is unauthorized. A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 490=41 Bom.L.R. 994=185 Ind. Cas. 669.

——Power to compromise—Power-of-attorney not mentioning that he had no power—Presumption—Compromise decree—Binding nature.

Where a pleader who was authorised by a party to suit to appear on her behalf enters into a compromise, and there is no statement on record that by his power-of-attorney, the pleader was not authorised to compromise, and a decree is passed on the basis of it, such decree, when not appealed against and in the absence of allegations of fraud, is final and binding on the party. The pleader must be assumed to have authority to compromise in the absence of anything to the contrary in his power-of-attorney. A. I. R. 1937 Lah. 91=38 P.L.R. 467=167 Ind. Cas. 264.

——The power to compromise may be validly exercised by an Advocate who has been authorised only to appear. The absence of a power-of-attorney in such circumstances would be no more than an irregularity, which would not affect the validity of the compromise, and the decree passed upon it. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 199=17 L. 456=38 P.L.R. 961=161 Ind. Cas. 764.

——Compromise entered into by pleader on behalf of a party in a suit, when he has not been so authorised by the vakalatnama, is not binding on the party. A suit to set aside decree on such compromise is maintainable. A.I.R. 1934 Oudh 417=11 O.W.N. 1030=150 Ind. Cas. 838.

——Pleader's power to compromise—Construction of vakalatnama—'If expedient or necessary, you are to compromise,' effect of.

Where a vakalatnama executed in favour of a pleader provided: "avasyamanal (if necessary or expedient) you are to compromise the suit or raise contest therein:"

Held, that it was within the discretion of the Pleader to decide whether it was necessary or expedient to compromise the suit and the pleader had, therefore, authority to compromise without further reference to the client. 38 L. W. 341=A.I.R. 1933 Mad. 734=146 Ind. Cas. 219.

——Compromise—Authority—Nature and extent of.

The implied authority of counsel is not an appanage of office, a dignity added by the Courts to the status of barrister or advocate at law. It is implied in the interests of the client, to give the fullest beneficial effect to his employment of the advocate. Secondly, the implied authority can always be countermanded by the express directions of the client. No advocate has actual authority to settle a case against the express instructions of his client. If he considers such express instructions contrary to the interests of his client, his remedy is to return his brief. 123 Ind. Cas. 545=34 C.W.N. 453=1930 A.L.J. 489=32 Bom. L.R. 645=51 C. L. J. 309=A.I.R. 1930 P.C. 158=58 M.L.J. 551 (P.C.)

——Implied authority.

An Advocate of the High Court has, when briefed on behalf of a party in a subordinate Court the implied authority of his client to settle the suit. He must be treated as though briefed on the trial of the suit, though he may be engaged to press an interlocutory application. The power to compromise a suit is inherent in the position of an advocate in India. The considerations which have led to this implied power being established in the advocate of England, Scotland and Ireland, apply in equal measure to India. 123 Ind. Cas. 545=34 C.W.N. 453=1930 A.L.J. 489=32 Bom. L.R. 645=51 C.L.J. 309=A.I.R. 1930 P. C. 158=58 M.L.J. 551 (P.C.)

——Compromise — Consent of client — Duty to consult.

There is a duty upon Counsel to consult his client and take his instructions and when the performance of the duty is omitted for whatever reason, it would be contrary to principle to enforce a decree passed in such circumstances.

When a client is present in the Court he has a right to be consulted before the Counsel gives his consent to a decree and consent given by the Counsel without such consultation is without authority express or implied. A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 714, Foll. 34 C.W.N. 210=A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 477.

——Compromise—Barristers in Burma.

As in Burma barristers merely appear because they are advocates, and not because they are barristers, they must be judged by rules applicable to advocates.

To enter into a compromise an Advocate must "act" for his client and no Advocate can act for his client unless he possesses a power of attorney.

A barrister, in Burma, therefore filing only a notice of appearance and not a power-of-attorney from his client, cannot bind the client by a compromise entered into without his express consent unless the client subsequently ratifies it. 8 Rang. 290=A. I. R. 1930 Rang. 313.

——Compromise—Express authority — Necessity for.

For effecting a compromise on another's behalf neither a general power-of-attorney nor the ordinary powers of a pleader are sufficient, express authority is absolutely necessary. 119 Ind. Cas. 430=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 746.

——Express authority not necessary.

Where the applicant challenged the consent decree on the ground that his Counsel acted on misapprehension against instructions,

Held, on the facts proved that the agent of the appellant acquiesced in the settlement, though under protest, proposed by the Counsel, in good faith in the interest of his chief, that he accepted it, and that the decree was binding on him. Two propositions are well settled; first, that express authority is not needed for a Counsel to enter into a compromise within the scope of the suit; and secondly, that where there is limitation of authority and that limitation is communicated to the other side, consent by counsel outside the limits of his authority would be of no effect. 67 Ind. Cas. 96=3 Pat. L.T. 371=1 Pat. 489=A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 232.

——Authority to compromise must be express.

A pleader who does not hold and has not filed in the suit before the Court his client's general power-of-attorney authorizing him generally to compromise suits on behalf of his client, cannot be recognised by a Court as having any authority to compromise the suit unless he has filed in the suit his client's vakalatnama giving him authority to compromise the suit before the Court. 84 Ind. Cas. 721=33 M.L.T. 294=1923 M.W.N. 734=4 L.R.P.C. 138=A.I.R. 1923 P.C. 98=45 M.L.J. 453 (P.C.)

——Instructions from mukhtear.

Where the vakalatnama given to a pleader clearly authorised him to enter into a compromise on behalf of his client, and the pleader compromised the suit on the instructions not from the client himself but from a third person who was subsequently appointed as his mukhtar by the client:

Held, that the compromise was binding on the party. 108 Ind. Cas. 262=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 642.

——Dealings with clients—Power to compromise —Client pardanashin lady — Duty of Pleader in such cases.

It is exceedingly uncommon for Pleaders to take the responsibility of entering into a compromise on the strength of the authority conferred by the vakalatnama, particularly in the case of illiterate and pardanashin ladies. In all such cases, Counsel should be asked if he had personally satisfied himself by reference to the lady herself that she was agreeable to the compromise or confession of judgment:

Held, on facts that the Counsel was guilty of extreme carelessness and actual dereliction of duty towards his client. A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 439=I.L.R. (1939) Lah. 433=41 P.L.R. 843=186 Ind. Cas. 77.

——Compromise—Pardanashin lady.

Though a clause authorizing a pleader to compromise is to be found in vakalatnamas that are ordinarily filed, it is exceedingly uncommon for pleaders to take the responsibility of entering into a compromise on the strength of the authority conferred by it, the more so in cases where illiterate pardanashin ladies are concerned. Those who assert that this was the position have got to discharge an exceedingly heavy burden indeed and the least that could be expected of them is that they should examine the pleader himself. 108 Ind. Cas. 44=A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 334.

——Collateral matters.

The authority of Counsel to compromise a suit coram judice in court is limited to matters involved in the suit and it does not extend to collateral matters. If a bargain is to be made so as to bind a client upon collateral matters then Counsel should take care to get express authority from his client.

In a partition suit where the only point of difference between the parties was as to whether a certain property was joint or debuttar and Counsel for the plaintiff and the defendant agreed to certain terms of settlement outside Court settling that the attorneys of the parties were to be appointed Commissioners of partition and Receivers of the joint estate and the debuttar property and a certain remuneration was fixed for them, and a decree was passed in terms of the compromise,

Held, that the question whether to appoint a Receiver of the debuttar property was a matter merely collateral to the suit and not within the scope of the general authority of the Counsel and therefore that part of the terms of compromise was, as a matter of law, outside the authority of the Counsel. The fact that it may be a severable part of the agreement was immaterial. 104 Ind. Cas. 387 =55 Cal. 113=31 C.W.N. 953=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 714.

——Where a pleader derives his authority from the agent of a party having no authority to confess a judgment he cannot confess a judgment. 102 Ind. Cas. 470=1 L.C. 19=A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 222.

——A Counsel should not draft and sign a petition of compromise and an affidavit in a case, in which he was not engaged from before and in which he must know that other lawyers were engaged, without a vakalatnama from the party concerned. 102 Ind. Cas. 337=6 Pat. 217=8 P.L.T. 470=28 Cr.L. J. 529=8 A.I.Cr.R. 117=A.I.R. 1927 Pat. 199.

——A vakil has no general power to compromise a suit on behalf of his clients. 93 Ind. Cas. 302=1 Luck. 341=13 O.L. J. 482=3 O.W.N. 277=A.I.R. 1926 Oudh 315.

——A Counsel has no authority to compromise a case wihtout reference to his client. 88 Ind. Cas. 369=29 C.W.N. 597=41 C.L. J. 213=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 866.

——An Advocate of the High Court in the course of conducting the cause is clothed with authority to compromise a suit in which he has been retained as Counsel and such a compromise would be valid and binding upon the parties even though it had been effected contrary to the express instructions of the client, unless the prohibition had previously been communicated to the other side. But the apparent authority of Counsel is restricted to acts and admissions coram judice or in Court; such acts and admissions out of court do not bind the client unless in fact they are authorised by the client, or by his agent duly authorised by the client in that behalf. A compromise therefore effected by counsel out of the Court, and not assessed to by the client, is only binding upon the client if it is expressly authorised, or subsequently ratified by the client or by his agent authorised in that behalf. 88 Ind. Cas. 413=52 Cal. 386=29 C.W.N. 566= A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 696.

——Compromise—Misapprehension.

The consent given by Counsel or solicitor might be withdrawn by the client if the Counsel or solicitor gave it under a misapprehension, before that consent order had been drawn up and perfected. In India, no less than in England, the Courts are not deprived of their general authority over justice between the parties by an unauthorised act of the Counsel. 91 Ind. Cas. 509=3 Rang. 261= A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 314.

——Compromise—Without authority.

A Consent order was allowed to stand where the defendant did not suffer any loss of right by such order though the defendant contended that his pleader who consented to the order being passed by the Court was not given any permission by him to consent to the order. 85 Ind. Cas. 408=20 M.L.W. 900=A. I. R. 1925 Mad. 278.

——Client absent.

The authority of Counsel at the trial of an action extends, when it is not expressly limited, to the action and all matters incidental to it; the consent of the client is not needed for a matter which is within the ordinary authority of Counsel, and therefore if a compromise is entered into by Counsel in the absence of the client, the client is bound. 83 Ind. Cas. 611=51 Cal. 385=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 651.

——It is doubtful if the Counsel can enter into a compromise so as to make his client's fortune dependant upon the determination of the pleader for the opposite party. 83 Ind. Cas. 380=5 L.R. P.C. 145=26 Bom. L.R. 772=35 M.L.T. 136=1924 M.W.N. 646=20 M L.W. 571=A.I.R. 1924 P.C. 200=47 M.L. J. 136 (P.C.).

——It has been well established that a Vakil appointed under a usual power of attorney it not endowed with power or authority to compromise the suit, he is thus retained to argue. Where the Vakil never saw his client, a pardanashin lady, never spoke to her in reference to the compromise, nor had any communication with her touching it and yet purported to compromise the suit.

——Authority of counsel to compromise.

Where no limitation is imposed on Counsel's authority, he may bind his client by agreeing to a compromise but, if Counsel is only empowered to compromise on certain terms, he is thereby impliedly prohibited from settling on other terms, and if notwithstanding that prohibition, he does effect a settlement on such other terms, then that settlement does not bind his client. 85 Ind. Cas. 504=25 Bom. L. R. 1137=A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 414.

——Construction of Vakalatnama.

The question whether a party is bound by a compromise filed by his pleader must depend in each case on the terms of vakalatnama. Where by the vakalatnama the plaintiffs agreed that they would be bound by all acts of their pleader in the course of their suit, and they further expressly specified amongst the acts which the said pleader might perform on their behalf the presentation to the Court of petitions relinquishing the claim, compromising the suit or withdrawing from the suit,

Held, that the plaintiffs were bound by the pleader's act in presenting a petition of compromise to the Court and expressing on their behalf agreement to its terms. 60 Ind. Cas. 912=19 A.L. J. 63.

——Compromise by—Authority—General vakalatnama.

A Vakalatnama in general terms is wholly insufficient to authorise a vakil either to compromise the suit or to refer it to arbitration. The position of a pleader is that of an agent to the client and his power is created entirely by the vakalatnama. 45 Ind. Cas. 321 (Pat.).

——Certifying fact of.

Where a compromise effected by the parties is merely conveyed to the Court by pleaders on both sides, the question if the vakalatnama did or did not empower the pleader to compromise does not arise. 60 Ind. Cas. 22=12 M.L.W. 562.

——Compromise by—Authority to withdraw suit.

Power to withdraw a suit must be given specifically and cannot be implied from general words authorising a compromise. 38 M.L. J. 322=27 M.L.T. 99= 11 L.W. 225=(1920) M.W.N. 270=55 Ind. Cas. 267.

——Compromise by—Extent of authority.

The authority of a pleader to compromise a suit on behalf of his client, does not extend to his effecting a compromise in respect of matters outside the scope of the suit. (1919) P.H.C.C. 465=53 Ind. Cas. 20.

——Compromise by—Excess of pleader's authority—Binding nature of—Actings of parties.

A compromise signed by a pleader on behalf of his client which has been acted upon and adopted cannot afterwards be objected to on the ground that the pleader had no instructions to enter into the compromise. 53 Ind. Cas. 143 (Cal.)

——Compromise by—Consent of client.

An authority given to a vakil to compromise a suit, if necessary, does not necessarily give him authority, to negotiate the terms of the compromise without reference to his client. Such authority must be strictly construed. 41 Mad. 233=22 M.L.T. 149=41 Ind. Cas. 429.

——Compromise by—Authority—Ratification by client—Effect of.

Where a pleader has effected a compromise without specific authority and it has been ratified by the client it is binding on the latter. 9 S.L.R. 218= 34 Ind. Cas. 928.

——Compromise by—Authority—Sind Courts Civil Circulars.

A pleader has ordinarily no powers of compromise and Form 4 of the Sind Courts Civil Circulars does not permit such a power to be given in the vakalatnama. 8 S.L.R. 91=25 Ind.Cas. 935.

——Compromise by—General vakalat—If sufficient.

A vakil who has a general vakalat authorising him to compromise does not require a special power in order to effect a compromise. 12 M.L.T. 348=23 M.L.J. 381=17 Ind.Cas. 391.

——Compromise by—Extent of authority.

Where a vakil entered into a compromise with the opposite party and without settling the matters in dispute, left the parties to fight out their rights in a fresh litigation and also surrendered the suit property to the adverse party, Held, that the vakil acted improperly and the compromise was invalid. (1912) M.W.N. 158=13 Ind. Cas. 595.

——Compromise—Setting aside.

On principle, there does not seem to be any reason for interfering with a compromise consented to by a pleader duly authorized in this behalf, unless fraud or collusion is imputed to the pleader. 92 Ind. Cas. 179=4 Pat. 766=7 P.L.T. 362=A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 73.

——Before an order passed on the consent of the Pleader, though under a mistake of fact, can be set aside serious and substantial injustice to the party concerned must be established. 77 Ind. Cas. 355=18 M.L W. 437=26 Bom.L.R. 189=33 M.L.T. 376=5 L.R.P.C. 30=40 C.L.J. 272=A.I.R. 1923 P.C. 184=46 M.L J. 160=47 M.L.J. 164 (P.C.).

——Compromise by.

If a party complains that a compromise effected in his name by his pleader was unauthorised, he must move the Court to cancel all that has been done and to revive the suit. 34 Bom. 502=12 Bom. L.R. 378=6 Ind. Cas. 527.

——Compromise by—Authority.

A decree based on compromise entered into by the defendant's pleader who has no authority to enter into a compromise, should be set aside by the Court on the application of the defendant. 34 Bom. 408=12 Bom. L.R. 223=5 Ind. Cas. 968.

7. Costs.

——Attorney—Costs of—Proper order.

The proper order for attorneys to be obtained from Court as regards their costs is not a charging order but an order declaring their lien. A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 102=44 Bom. L.R. 178=200 Ind. Cas. 85.

——Attorney—Costs—Attorney employed by trustees—Liability of trust estate.

Where an attorney is employed and retained by the trustees, they became personally liable to pay to the attorney. The trust estate is not liable. The attorney can get at the trust estate only through the trustee's right of re-imbursement. In a suitable case the attorney can be subrogated to that right, but that depends on the question of account between the trustee and the trust estate. 54 C.W.N. 764.

——Attorney—Costs—Taxation — Jurisdiction of Court—Costs of Attorney of trustees paid out of trust money—Application by beneficiary for delivery of bill of costs and its taxation or inspection—Power of Court to make order.

The plaintiff who was a sole beneficiary filed a suit against the trustees for their removal from office, accounts, etc. The suit was settled. The plaintiff withdrew it paying her costs, the defendants trustees to get their costs taxed as between attorney and client. After the disposal of the suit, the attorney for the defendants submitted his bill of costs which was paid by the defendants out of the trust money. The plaintiff contended that as the payment to the attorney had been made out of the trust fund, which was her property, she was entitled as a matter of right to the delivery of the bill of costs and to have it taxed and in any event to have inspection and applied to the Court for orders to that effect.

Held, that the Court had no jurisdiction to make the order asked for. In this country there is no statute as the Solicitors Acts in England and there are no Rules in the Original Side Rules of the Calcutta High Court providing for orders being made as in the Solicitors Acts. 54 C.W.N. 764.

——Taxation—English Law—Applicability in Bombay.

The law and practice in England relating to Solicitors and to taxation of bills of costs applies in Bombay Presidency, except where that law or practice is inconsistent with the rules or practice of the High Court. 37 Bom. L.R. 39=A.I.R. 1935 Bom. 150=59 B. 443=155 Ind. Cas. 945.

——Solicitor and client—Attorney practising on Original Side of High Court can ask High Court to direct that personal property recovered under judgment obtained by his exertions stand security for costs of recovery—High Court's power to make such order is discretionary—Fund in Court—Solicitor's lien, if absolute charge thereon—Order directing payment to parties out of fund.

Attorneys practising before the old Supreme Court and on the original side of the present High Court had and have subject to the rules, the rights enjoyed at common law by solicitors, attorneys, and proctors in England prior to the Judicature Act, 1873, under which the three classes of practitioners were abolished, and all became solicitors of the Supreme Court of Judicature. Among these rights is the right of an attorney to ask the High Court to direct that personal property, recovered under a judgment obtained by his exertions, stand security for the costs of recovery. The power of the High Court to make an order enforcing the lien is, however, discretionary. An attorney's position is even stronger with regard to a fund in Court. When there is a fund in Court, the solicitor's lien, independently of the statute, and without any declaration thereunder, is an absolute charge thereon, and has priority over any other assignment or charging order obtained with or without actual notice.

An order for payment to the parties out of a fund in Court never formally reserves the attorney's lien, and, therefore, the order cannot be said to override the lien or show that attorney has waived it. A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 76=I.L.R. (1941) 2 Cal. 289=199 Ind. Cas. 220.

—The attorney need never allow his services to be retained without obtaining a lump sum down or security for his costs. But he is not entitled to embarrass and impede the litigants by retaining the papers entrusted to him when he himself has declined to act further. (1936) 164 Ind. Cas. 138=62 Cal. 464=39 C.W.N. 688.

—Attorney practising on Original Side of High Court can ask High Court to direct that personal property recovered under judgment obtained by his exertions stand security for costs of recovery—High Court's power to make such order is discretionary. ——Party represented by firm of attorneys—Some partners of firm dying or retiring and new firm formed by remaining members with others—No fresh warrant filed.

Where a party is represented by a firm of attorneys and a warrant in their favour is filed and subsequently, on the death or retirement of some of the partners of the firm, the surviving partners form a new firm with some others, it cannot be said that the partners remaining on the record are discharged. Even though no fresh warrant is filed by the firm, the old firm, in the person of the remaining partners, is entitled to allocatur. A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 662=I.L.R. (1941) 2 Cal. 205=197 Ind. Cas. 445.

——Costs—Solicitor himself a party.

A solicitor who is himself a party in a suit is entitled to the same costs as if he had employed a solicitor except for items of personal appearance for which he cannot get his costs. 27 C.L.J. 78=45 Ind. Cas. 738.

——Costs—Partnership suit—Assets in the hands of Receiver.

Where there are assets of partnership in the hands of a receiver appointed in a partnership suit the solicitors engaged in that suit are entitled to ask for a charge on those assets in priority to the creditors of the partnership. 11 Bom. L. R. 1062=4 Ind. Cas. 135=34 B. 484.

——Attorney change of—Attorney employed by testator continued by executor—Change of attorney by executor—Costs incurred by testator—Liability of executor to pay.

An executor desiring to change an attorney who had been employed by the testator and continued in such employment by him must pay not only the costs incurred since such empolyment by him, but the past costs incurred in the life-time of the testator. (1902) 6 C.W.N. 306.

——Costs—Suit on behalf of non-existing party—Personal liability of solicitors for costs—Procedure—Rights and liabilities.

A solicitor purporting to act for a non-existent party is personally liable for costs.

Per Rangnekar, J.—The proper procedure for recovering costs from a solicitor who purports to act on behalf of a non-existing plaintiff or who defends a suit on behalf of a non-existing defendant is by an application in the suit itself.

Rights and liabilities of solicitors examined. A.I.R. 1933 Bom. 317=35 Bom. L.R. 554=58 B. 1 =145 Ind. Cas. 641.

——Costs—Attorneys—Personal liability—Unnecessary printing.

The Court ordered the cost occasioned by unnecessary printing of certain matter in the printed paper book of appeal, at the instance of the defendant's attorneys to be paid by the defendant's attorneys personally and not their clients. Similarly with regards to the costs of a Judge'e order obtained for the amendment of the memorandum of the appeal by the addition at the instance of the plaintiff's attorneys, of a very unnecessary paragraph asking for relief in respect of a certain matter. 42 Bom. 327=20 Bom. L.R. 905=47 Ind. Cas. 762.

——Costs—Attorney—Infant client—No personal decree.

Where an attorney appointed by a next friend of an infant, is able to show that he has no reasonable chance of recovering his costs from the next friend he can institute a suit against the infant through a guardian ad litem to get a charge declared upon the property when it is recovered in the suit for which he was engaged, when it is found that the suit was properly instituted and was for the benefit of the infant. 43 Cal. 676=20 C.W.N. 537 =33 Ind. Cas. 708.

—A Pleader may be held personally liable for costs of the proceedings taken by him in appropriate cases, where the costs occasioned to his client are the direct result of the initiation and prosecution of the proceedings by him. 14 R.O. 486=A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 279=1942 A.W.R. 65=1942 O.W.N. 68 =199 Ind. ——Liability to costs.

Per Full Bench.—The High Court has no power to order a legal practitioner to pay personally the costs of an application or suit except in cases to which S. 35 can be made applicable. 1930 A.L.J. 402=A.I.R. 1930 All. 225 (F.B.).

——Settlement of untaxed bills, when liable to be re-opened.

As between attorney and client, the existence of fiduciary relationship alone, or the fact that certain bills of costs were not taxed but were settled out of court by execution of a deed will not justify a court in re-opening accounts settled on which the bond is based, unless sufficient grounds of suspicion exist or the bills are prima facie shown to be extortionate.

Under the practice obtaining in the Original side of the High Court, taxation of bills of solicitors is deemed to be optional with the client and bills of costs are not infrequently adjusted without taxation. The case of Monoehur Doss v. Ramanath I.L.R. 3 C. 474 was decided on the special circumstances of that case and does not lay down any general rule of law. 12 C.W.N. 1102=2 Ind. Cas. 553=36 Cal. 493.

Solicitor—Costs—Recovery.

——Change of Advocate—No misconduct on part of Advocate engaged—Client wishing to change him must pay first his full fees.

In the absence of misconduct on the part of the Advocate, the client is not entitled to the sanction of the Court for a change of the Advocate without making a satisfactory arrangement to pay the Advocate, who has had charge of the case hitherto.

The client proposed to abandon the Advocate engaged by him when the case was ready for hearing. Although he pleaded poverty as a ground, he was able to get sufficient means to instruct another Advocate and to purchase necessary papers:

Held, that in the circumstances, the Advocate on the record should be paid his full fees before the change of vakalat was sanctioned. 58 L. W. 34= (1945) 1 M.L.J. 56=1945 M. W. N. 155=A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 190.

——There was no agreement between the pleader and his client with regard to the amount of fees. The pleader was to submit a bill upon the conclusion of his employment in the case and was to be paid only such charges as the client considered reasonable:

Held, that the suit by the pleader for the recovery of his fees was governed by Art. 56 and not Art. 120, Lim. Act. A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 444=75 C.L.J. 7=201 Ind. Cas. 650.

——Plaintiff's settlement with two defendants and appeal with regard to third—Fees of latter's Pleader should be calculated on the whole subject-matter.

Where the subject-matter of the suit is the actual value of the property in the hands of the defendants to which the plaintiff would have been entitled had the suit succeeded, the fact that the plaintiff settles with two defendants and appeals with regard to the third is not material for the valuation of Pleader's fees which is to be calculated on the valuation of the whole subject-matter. A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 299=41 Bom. L.R. 413=183 Ind. Cas. 655.

——Parties to reference agreeing to pay fees to legal adviser of arbitrator—Legal adviser, if can sue.

Where an Advocate acts as a legal adviser to an arbitrator and the parties agree in the award to pay certain amount to him as his fees, the Advocate cannot sue for the amount on the principle of trust, agency, estoppel or privity of contract. A.I.R. 1939 Sind 125=I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 422=182 Ind. Cas. 226.

——Nature of—Contract of service—Right to fix fees.

Where the relationship of Advocate and client subsists; an Advocate is always obliged to see that in addition to his fair and just remuneration he does not use the privilege and responsible position for the purpose of putting money into his own pocket. But short of actual proved misconduct, such as would occur if a person took advantage of some one who is incapable of entering into business relationships, it is entirely open for a professional man on first hearing the nature of the complaints made to him by his client to fix for his service any fee at which he may choose to value it. The client can accept the contract, or, if he thinks the fee is exhorbitant, can go elsewhere. It is true that circumstances might arise in which the consideration for the service rendered would be so glaring that there might be presumptive evidence of an intended fraud; but in a case where a person who is said by an independent witness to be normal, goes to an Advocate's office and enters into an agreement with him for remuneration in order to do business, part of which is the taking of criminal proceedings aginst some one who had defamed him, it is no part of the Advocate's duty to examine the defamatory matter but, assume it to be and use the truth of it as a ground for taking special care not to enter into any contract with his prospective client without taking independent advice. When a contract for service has been concluded, a relationship is called into being which imposes special obligations, but at the outset, both client and Advocate can bargain for services in such methods as they may deem proper. A.I.R. 1937 Rang. 299=172 Ind. Cas. 257.

——Clear written contract regarding fees, etc. —Necessity of—Duty of Advocates to keep complete and accurate accounts.

When an Advocate enters into a contract with his client it is appropriate that in order to avoid any future misunderstanding as to the amount of the fees to be charged for various works, there should be a clear written contract between the parties and the amount charged should be clearly mentioned and agreed to by the client. Receiving a large sum on account, without settling the exact fees charged for various works to be done, may, in certain cases, be unfair to the client and may cause an adverse reflection on the Counsel concerned. Advocates keep clerks and maintain offices, and do the work of both Counsel and Solicitors. It is, therefore, their duty to keep complete and accurate accounts, which should be available to their clients who entrust them with money. A.I.R. 1936 All. 359=(1936) A.L.J. 300= 1936 A.W.R. 339=162 Ind. Cas. 622 (S.B.).

Fees—Counsel's right to—Suit part-heard—Withdrawal of brief. See Calcutta High Court Rules and Orders (O. S.), Chap. 35, R. 34. 84 C.L.J. 9.

——Duty of Counsel—Excessive fees.

It is as much the duty of a counsel to protect his client from the liability to pay excessive fees as to protect him from an adverse decree. 88 Ind. Cas. 212=46 All. 553=22 A.L.J. 446=A.I.R. 1924 All. 652.

——Fees—Promissory note for.

There may be cases in which the fee due to a Vakil may be otherwise adjusted though no actual money has passed. Such an adjustment, however, should be something more than a mere agreement to pay. For instance when a promissory note, especially a negotiable instrument is given, it may be equivalent to payment. In such a case a certificate may not be really dishonest even if no fee was received and it may be too strong an expression to describe such a certificate as a false certificate. 122 Ind. Cas. 799=30 M.L.W. 977= A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 413=57 M.L.J. 780.

—It is a well recognized rule of law that an attorney is not entitled to any donation irrespective of his just and legitimate costs, during the subsistence of the relationship with his clients. A.I.R. 1930 Rang. 243=129 Ind. Cas. 526.

The pleaders' fees to be allowed to a party is what is actually paid or what might reasonably have been paid, whichever is less. 111 Ind. Cas. 148=A.I.R. 1928 Nag. 283.

——Solicitor in Bombay—Services in mofussil.

There is no reason why a solicitor practising in Bombay and performing professional services for a client regarding business in the moffusil should not be entitled to send a bill to his client for such professional services, and, if the client declines to pay, why he should not be entitled to come to the Court and ask for a common order to get the bills taxed by tbe Taxing Master. 94 Ind. Cas. 149=28 Bom.L.R. 384=A.I.R. 1926 Bom. 272.

——Miscellaneous proceedings.

Where an appeal is expressly from an order passed in miscellaneous proceedings and it is withdrawn on an objection that the order was not final one and that consequently it was not appealable, it is in the discretion of the Court to fix the fees of Counsel as in miscellaneous proceedings. 94 Ind. Cas. 627=8 L.L.J. 99=27 P.L.R. 238= A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 320.

——Quantum meruit.

In the absence of any special agreement, a pleader shall be entitled to receive fees allowed on taxation between himself and his client for his services until the final decree or order in the proceeding is passed. If a pleader dies before such final decree or order is passed or for any reason the engagement of his services by his client is put an end to, then the pleader will only be entitled to ask the Court to award him certain proportionate fees on the basis of a 'quantum meruit' 12 Bom. 557, Ref.

The Court in assessing the 'quantum meruit' might be guided by the percentages laid down by law for the regulation of costs between party and party, but is not bound to adopt that guide where circumstances of the case would render it unjust to do so. 90 Ind. Cas. 604=27 Bom.L.R. 1156= A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 513.

——Solicitor and client—Special fee paid but not allowed on taxation.

Where special fees were paid to Counsel as arranged by the defendant attorney with the Counsel on the express oral instructions of the client who was informed by the defendant that they would not be allowed on taxation and in spite of such information the plaintiff client instructed the defendant to pay the fees to Counsel,

Held, that plaintiff should not be allowed to recover the amount of those fees from the attorney. But the attorney should make an application to the Judge for an order under R. 32 of Chap. 36 for an allowance of fees to Counsel, higher or other than the fees set out in the table embodied in that rule, Held further, in that view the special circumstances of the case the Court should exercise the jurisdiction vested in it by Chap. 36, R. 32.

When an attorney proposes or is asked by his client to mark on the brief or to pay fees to Counsel which cannot be allowed on taxation by the Taxing Officer he should, in every case, before marking or paying such fees make it clear to his client that such fees will not be allowed on taxation and he should obtain a letter signed by his client authorising or ratifying the payment of such fees; and if, and when such fees are disallowed on taxation the attorney must adopt the procedure laid down by the rules.

An attorney is an Officer of Court and it is an improper proceeding on his part to contest in a Court of Law the amount of a bill of costs which has been taxed by the Taxing Officer. 84 Ind. Cas. 817=51 Cal. 829=28 C.W.N. 597 = A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 753.

——Solicitor and client—Special fee paid but not allowed on taxation.

The defendant was the plaintiff's solicitor. He claimed a right to retain out a fund in his hands payable to plaintiff, a certain sum of money he had paid as fee to certain eminent Counsel he had engaged for the client. The fee was a heavy one but the client had been told by the defendant that if he wished to retain those eminent Counsel, he would have to pay a fee which would not be allowed on taxation. The plaintiff consented but no written authority was signed by him. At the time of taxation, the whole of the item in question was disallowed; no reference or review was applied for from the decision of the Master.

Held, that the order of the Master was final, that the defendant cannot, several years afterwards, apply to Court to increase the sums allotted, that he can retain only such monies of his clients as, in accordance with the rule of Court, he is entitled to claim against them and that therefore he cannot retain monies which, though he might have spent, was disallowed by the Taxing Officer. The position of a solicitor who is on Officer of Court is different from that of an ordinary agent. 77 Ind. Cas. 1022=27 C.W.N. 537=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 603.

——Basis of calculation.

Pleader's fees in a suit for profits among co-sharers need not be restricted to the sum claimed, but it may be assessed on the sum actually awarded. 88 Ind. Cas. 134=12 O.L.J. 272=28 O. C. 217 =A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 432.

——Basis of calculation.

In suits falling under Court-fees Act, S. 7 (iv)(d) the valuation for Court-fees and jurisdiction is the same, i.e., the value at which the relief is valued in plaint, which also is the basis for calculating pleader's fees.
69 Ind. Cas. 577=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 364.

——Basis of calculation—Suit in ejectment.

In a suit to eject the defendant, plaintiff's tenant, from her house the claim for purposes of Court-fee was valued at Rs. 1,080 (the amount of rent for one year) and for purposes of jurisdiction it was valued at Rs. 15,000, the value of the house. The suit being decreed in the trial Court the defendant appealed to the High Court, valuing her claim at Rs. 1,080 both for Court-fee purposes and for pleader's fees but failed in appeal. A question having arisen how the pleader's fees should be assessed,

Held, the pleader's fees should be arressed on the value of the house. 64 Ind. Cas. 1000=46 Bom. 396=23 Bom. L.R. 1183=A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 171.

——Fees, basis of—Bombay Regulation II of 1827, S. 52—Actual value or Court-fee value.

On a question raised as to whether the basis for the calculation of Pleader's fees under S. 52, Regulation II of 1827 should be the actual value of the property or the valuation of the claim for Court fee purposes,

Held, that the words of the Regulation point to the actual value as the basis of the remuneration, while the Court fee value in suits of this class may bear no relation to the actual value. (1904) 7 Bom. L. R, 131=29 Bom. 229.

——Actual fee to be marked.

The actual fees, which it has been arranged to pay to Counsel, must be marked on the Counsel's brief, and no manipulation thereof can be permitted for the purpose of taxation or otherwise. 84 Ind. Cas. 817=51 Cal. 829=28 C.W.N. 597=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 753.

——For services as Commissioner — Impropriety.

Where a pleader commissioner sued on a mortgage executed in lieu of fees by defendant for whom he was acting as Commissioner,

Held, it is quite incredible that the duties of a Commissioner should be thought consistent with approaching an individual party and getting him to pay sums of money in discharge of an untaxed bill of costs upon the footing that unless this is done the report will not be filed. No such bargain so procured can stand. It is an improper advantage obtained by an officer of Court by abuse of his position as such officer. It is not the case that the Commissioner is the servant of the party at whose instance the Court makes the appointment. The work done is not work done for that party. It is work done for the Court and the right to sue a party at whose instance the Court appoints a Commissioner is not the right to sue a party for whom the Commissioner has worked. It is necessary that there should be no doubt cast on the broad rule that a Commissioner appointed by a Court must keep himself clear of any ambiguous conduct towards any party in the matter of his fees. 75 Ind. Cas. 443=27 C.W.N. 430=37 C.L. J. 406=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 436.

——Filing of vakalatnama before date of hearing by one pleader and the conducting of appeal by another does not disentitle the party to full fees. 70 Ind. Cas. 99=25 O.C. 279=A.I.R. 1923 Oudh 55.

——The mofussil practice in probate cases is to calculate pleader's fee ad valorem. 69 Ind. Cas. 954=1922 M.W.N. 626=16 M.L.W. 455=32 M.L.T. 20=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 131.

——Probate Proceedings — Appeal — Assessment of pleader's fees.

Pleader's fees in appeals in probate proceedings should according to a long standing practice of the High Court, be assessed at Rs. 30. 2 Ind. Cas. 283=10 Bom. L.R. 1197=33 B. 256.

——S. 47, C. P. C.— Civil rules of practice, R. 32.

In an appeal against an order under the old Section 244, read with the old Section 212, a pleader's fee should under R. 32 of the rules of practice, be alllowed only at the rate of 1½ per cent. 1 L. W. 298=24 Ind. Cas. 283.

——Fees—Land acquisition case.

If the claim against a Land Aquisition award is exhorbitant, and absurdly extravagant, the Counsel's fees for the Secretary of State should be allowed 'ad valorem' on the amount in appeal. 107 P.R. 1912=34 P.L.R. 1913=17 Ind. Cas. 901.

——Return of brief—Return of fees.

Where an advocate accepted a brief containing instruections to appear for a client but in consequence of other work returned the brief to his attorney and claimed to have earned the consultation fee marked on the brief, Held, he should have returned the whole fee as the consultation was only with a view to attending at the trial. 44 Cal. 741=26 C.L.J. 605=42 Ind. Cas. 63.

——Transfer of brief — Failure of pleader to appear on account of illness—Pleader engaging another to conduct the case—Refund of fees.

It is doubtful whether a client is entitled legally to claim refund of fees, because his pleader being absent on account of illness, sent a substitute in accordance with the power of attorney and the client refused to engage him. In case of neglect client is entitled to refund. 20 P.W.R. 1916=33 Ind. Cas. 993.

——Transfer of brief — Client's consent and will—Return of fees.

A Barrister though physically unable to attend court cannot transfer his client's case to another practitioner without his client's consent or against his will. The Barrister should be ordered to return a part of the fees. 3 Bur. L.T. 131=8 Ind. Cas. 958.

——Purchase of subject-matter of suit—Pre-emption—Payment of money—Right to embursement.

Where a pleader paid the pre-emption money out of his own pocket for his minor client and claimed the pre-empted property on the ground of its sale to him by the minor's next friend, he is entitled only to a decree for money against the client under S. 65 of the Contract Act. A pleader who agrees to conduct a case for his client without remuneration is not afterwards entiiled to claim it from the clients representatives. 12 P.L.R. 1916=108=P.W.R.. 1915=30 Ind. Cas. 513.

——Fees—Certificate of fees—When should be filed.

A fee certificate is filed within time, if it is put in, before the date on which the appeal was actually heard though it is after the date fixed for first hearing. 11 Ind. Cas. 3 (All.)

——Fees—Calculation of—Act XII of 1866, S. 17—Regulation II of 1827. S. 56.

In Sind, the calculation of the Pleader's fees is to be made in accordance with the rules issued under S. 17 of Act XII of 1866 and not according to S. 56 of Regulation II of 1827. In suits where injunction is claimed for reparation or prevention of wrong, the pleader's fees are to depend on the amount decreed where damages are claimed and decreed, and on the amount of the valuation in the plaint when damages are not so claimed and when the Court has accepted the plaint without compel-ing the plaintiff to put a value on the damages as it ought to the Court has no right to assess damages when not claimed for purpose of calculation of pleader's fees. 29 Bom. 229 not applied. 3 S.L.R. 97=3 Ind. Cas. 901.

——Fees.

See (1902) 7 C.W.N. 300.

——Fees not paid—Duty of vakils.

In the Madras High Court Vakils being allowed to act as well as plead on the Original Side, they are very much in the same position as solicitors in England. It is well settled in England that attorneys or solicitors are not entitled to refuse to go on with an action for want of funds unless they have given their clients sufficient notice of their intention to enable him to make other arrangements.

A Vakil is not entitled to refuse to take a necessary step in the case, because his own fees have not been paid, and at the same time refuse his consent to the transfer of the case to another Vakil. 69 Ind. Cas. 695=44 Mad. 978=14 M.L.W. 154=1921 M.W.N. 562=A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 320=41 M.L.J. 213.

——Fees—Advocate instructed by vakil on original side of the High Court—Fees whether recoverable as part of costs.

On the original side of the High Court a party cannot recover from his adversary as part of the costs of the suit the fee paid to the advocate who appeared on the instructions of a vakil. 30 M.L.J. 120=33 Ind. Cas. 906.

——Solicitor—Retainer disputed by client—Suit—Solicitor's Act (1843) 6 and 7, Vict. C. 731, S. 43.

Where an attorney's retainer is disputed, the payment due to him may be enforced by an action only and amount must be ascertained by the Taxing master before a suit is filed. 33 Bom. 667=11 Bom. L.R. 83=1 Ind. Cas. 201.

——Taxation—Attorney and client—Petition for removal of guardian—Practice—Counsel's fees—Duty of Taxing officer.

It is the duty of the Taxing Officers as representing the court to intervene on taxation for the protection of clients in the matter of excessive or unusual charges, whether the client appears or does not appear on the notice given to him to attend the taxation and whether he takes express objection or does not to such payment. As a general rule clients should not be chargeable for excessive and extravagant fees paid by attorney to Counsel, unless upon their written authority given expressly for the payment of such fees; the usual warrant of attorney signed by a client does not authorise the attorney to pay excessive or unusual fees to counsel, and attorneys paying such fees except upon the written authority or consent of their clients run the gravest risk of having those payments disallowed as against their clients on taxation. Under no circumstances, will excessive or extravagent fees be allowed as against estates in the hands of the court or which are representated by guardians, trustees or executors and managed by them for the benefit of infants or other beneficiaries. (1906) 33 C. 827.

——Principles of taxation—Practice—Vakil's fee.

The principle and rule of taxation ought, as far as possible, to be such as to secure that the successful party should recover from his opponent such costs as are necessary to enable him to place his case properly before the court, and this end can best be secured by adopting the actual value as the basis of the taxation. In view of this conclusion, it will in future be right for the real as well as the court fee value to be stated on every plaint and memorandum of appeal, and in case of dispute, for an issue to be raised as to the real value. The vakil's fee should be taxed upon the real value of the subject matter and not on the court fee value. 7 Bom. L.R. 131=29 B. 229.

——Fee proportioned to result—Unprofessional conduct—Disciplinary jurisdiction.

It is highly reprehensible for an advocate to stipulate for or receive remuneration proportioned to the result of the suit by away of share or percentage or otherwise. An advocate in or out of the Presidency Town so doing will render himself liable to the disciplinary jurisdiction of the High Court. (1901) 3 Bom. L.R. 102. (F.B.)

—Application for leave to appeal to Privy Council—Whether Counsel can claim Lien.

A Counsel who files an application for leave to appeal to the Privy Council in a certain case, is not entitled to claim a lien for the outstanding fees on the amount which the appellant had deposited as security, this amount not having been the subject matter of the appeal, nor the fruit of the action. (1932) A.L.J. 764=A.I.R. 1933 All. 3=142 Ind. Cas. 241.

9. Intervention of Solicitor.

——Intervention of solicitor—Council — Professional etiquette.

Looking to usage and etiquette of the profession, counsel should not undertake any professional work as regards which the relation of counsel and client can arise except on the instructions of a solicitor. No statutory rule of law prevents a litigant from instructing counsel directly or to prevent counsel so instructed from appearing on behalf of a litigant, but eminent Judges emphasized the importance of strict adherence to the long established professional usage in this respect. In the Calcutta High Court departure from this practice is allowed only in the case of appeals from the mofussil. A real and not merely a formal compliance with requirements of professional usage is necessary in this respect, which is expedient in the interest of suitors and for the satisfactory administration of justice. Consequently communications should pass between counsel attorney and not between counsel and the lay client without the intervention of the attorney. 31 C.L.J. 313=57 Ind. Cas. 22.

——Intervention of solicitor—Counsel—Professional etiquette.

The usuage obtaining on the Original Side, of the Calcutta High Court that counsel should take their instructions only from attorneys though founded upon no rule of law, is a most beneficial one and must be maintained. 44 Cal. 741=26 C. L. J. 605=42 Ind. Cas. 63.

10. Lien.

See also 1. Contract Act, S. 171
2. Note 7
3. A. I. R. 1933 All. 3 under Note 8.

——Solicitor and client—Solicitor's lien.

Collusive compromise before judgment entered into by client to deprive the solicitor of his costs—Court will lend its assistance to protect solicitor's lien for his unpaid costs—Court however, would not interfere with bona fide compromise to preserve the solicitor's lien—Circumstances under which Court will infer collusion indicated. I.L.R. (1943) 2 Cal. 172=47 C.W.N. 394 =A.I.R. 1945 Cal. 57=218 Ind. Cas. 173.

——Solicitor's lien for costs—Rule of Common Law—Moneys in hands of solicitor earmarked for specific purpose—Solicitor's lien cannot prevail.

The Common Law rule which governs what is known as the Solicitor's particular lien is founded on the principle that the Solicitor is entitled to have his costs out of the property obtained for his client by the solicitor's exertions. That rule, when the property is part of a fund which has come into the Solicitor's hands for a particular purpose, does not apply. In cases where the moneys in a Solicitor's hands have been earmarked for a specific purpose, the Solicitor's lien for costs cannot intervene to defeat it.

The plaintiff instituted a suit on August 17, 1939, for recovery of a sum of Rs. 3,694—11—0 on a signed adjustment of account and on August 18, 1939, applied for attachment before judgment of a decree which the defendant had obtained against one X. On that date, the Court made an interim order on the application restraining the defendant from withdrawing the sum of Rs. 3,694—11—0 out of the amount that may be realised in execution of the defendant's decree against X. Then, on August 31, 1939, the Court made an order by which the plaintiff's application for attachment before judgment was adjourned and the interim injunction against the defendant was discharged on the defendant's undertaking to deposit with his Attorney Rs. 3,700 if money was realised by execution of or otherwise on account of the decree obtained by the defendant against X. The money was to be held by the Attorney until further orders on the plaintiff's application for attachment before judgment. Subsequently, the defendant realised a sum of Rs. 1,500 from X in respect of the decree against X. This amount came into the hands of the defendant's Attorney. The plaintiff, having obtained decree in the suit against the defendant, applied in execution to recover the amount in the hands of the defendant's Attorney. The Attorney claimed a lien over that amount for his costs of the suit in which the decree against X was obtained by the defendants.

Held, that the purpose for depositing the money with the Attorney was that he should hold it as security for the plaintiff's claim, should the latter be successful in his suit against the defendant. The Attorney therefore, assumed the character of a stakeholder and his possession was impressed with a trust. His lien for costs, therefore, could not prevail. A.I.R. 1944 Cal. 189=I. L. R. (1944) 1 Cal. 445=214 Ind. Cas. 154.

——Costs—Attorney asserting his lien against client on whose behalf he is applying for payment of fund in Court, propriety.

It is improper for an Attorney to assert his lien against the client on whose behalf he is making an application for order for payment of fund in Court. A. I. R. 1942 Cal. 76=I. L. R. (1941) 2 Cal. 289=199 Ind. Cas. 220.

——Attorney—Set off.

In the matter of allowing set off with costs, the Court has power to exercise its discretion in favour of the party claiming it, notwithstanding the Attorney's lien and is not fettered where the Attorney claims lien for his costs on the amount awarded to his client under a decree in independent and separate proceedings. The Attorney's lien should only be allowed to prevail and intercept the set-off provided he established that the set-off would not be fair and just as between the parties or if some fraud or imposition had been practised upon the Solicitor by collusion. Primarily, the Solicitor must look to his client for his costs. There is no reason why because he has not taken the precaution to take proper advances from his client, he should compel a party to pay his costs who has to recover from the other party more than he has to pay him. A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 102=44 Bom. L. R. 178=200 Ind. Cas. 85.

——Attorney — Discretion of Court to allow to set-off costs due by parties to one another with or without prejudice to Attorney's lien—Lien, if protected after set-off is allowed.

The right of an Attorney in respect of his lien is really in essence a claim to the equitable interference of the Court for his protection. The Attorney's lien is really an equity claimed on his behalf. Such a lien is subject to all the equities between the Attorney's client and any other party or parties interested in the property over which the lien is claimed. A party's right to set-off costs payable to him by the other party against the sum found due from him to the other party on the taking of accounts in the same suit, is not affected by the Solicitor's lien. The Court has a discretion to allow a set-off of judgments for damages, that is, debt, or costs against each other either with or without prejudice to a Solicitor's lien on either of those judgments. The Courts have complete discretion to allow a set off, whether in the same action or in different actions, and it extends to the setting off of costs against costs and also in proper case to the setting off of debt or damages against costs and vice versa. The discretion has to be exercised judicially, having regard to the facts and circumstances of each case, and not upon any pre-conceived view that to allow, the Attorney's lien to prevail must in every case, the contrary to natural justice. The circumstances considered by the Court are matters relating to the Atrorney whose lien is sought to be affected irrespective of his client, because as between the parties themselves, there can hardly be a ground for resisting a set-off The Attorney's lien is, however, not protected after the set-off has already been allowed. 41 Bom. L.R. 1091=A.I R. 1939 Bom. 518=I.L.R. (1939) Bom. 692=186 Ind. Cas. 351.

Where an order has been passed against the defendant for costs, and the costs have been taxed and a particular amount of costs has beon paid into Court, the defendant is not entitled to claim set off against the plaintiff in answer to the plaintiff's attorney's claim to exercise his right of lien. (1936) 63 C. 746= 40 C.W.N. 458.

——Costs—Set-off—Cross-claims between parties to the same suit—Whether set-off can be allowed irrespective of Solicitor's lien—Attorney's lien—Discretion.

In the case of cross claims between parties to the same suit, they can be allowed to be set-off one against the other, without regard to the Solicitor's lien for costs. In India the question whether an Attorney's lien should or should not be allowed to intercept a set-off between the parties to a suit, is a matter of discretion. 34 Bom. L R. 1429=A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 619=141 Ind. Cas. 406.

——Solicitor's lien—Direction for costs on setting aside of adjudication—Set off against debt due to petitioning creditor—If permitted.

Costs ordered to be paid by a petitioning creditor to a debtor when an adjudication in bankruptcy is set aside cannot be set off to the prejudice of the solicitor's lien against the debts due to the petitioning creditor. 32 Bom. L.R. 1076=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 516.

——Firm of Solicitors dissolved—If amounts to discharge of Solicitors by themselves—Lien over fund in Court.

The dissolution of a firm of Solicitors amounts to a discharge of the Solicitors by themselves but it does not entail loss of their lien over a fund in Court recovered by their exertions before dissolution. A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 76=I. L. R. (1941) 2 Cal. 289=199 Ind. Cas. 220.

——Solicitor's lien over property obtained by his exertions—Insolvency of client—Effect.

A Solicitor has, at Common Law and apart from any order of the Court or statute, a lien over property recovered or preserved or the proceeds of any judgment obtained for the client by his exertions. Subject to any statute to the contrary, the Courts in India will follow the Common Law of England in this respect. So far as this type of lien is concerned, it does not matter whether the Solicitor has got actual possession of the property over which he proposes to exercise his lien or not.

The insolvency of the client makes no difference to the Common Law right of the Solicitors to be reimbursed for their costs out of the property obtained by their exertions. The right is based on the principle that it is not just that the client should get the benefit of the Solicitor's labour without paying for it. The lien, therefore prevails notwithstanding the bankruptcy of the client. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 179=I.L.R. (1935) 1 Cal. 212=43 C.W.N. 290=188 Ind. Cas. 66.

——Solicitor's lien—Solicitor appoinment by next friend of minor—Solicitor's client, who is—Next friend superseded by new one—Solicitor appointed by former, if bound to hand over documents to next friend.

A client of a Solicitor appointed by a next friend of a minor is the next friend and not the minor; it is to the next friend, and not to the minor, that a Solicitor looks for his costs, and the next friend is liable to pay those costs. It may be that in a proper case the Solicitor ultimately can get the costs out of the minor's estate, but the next friend is the person directly liable to the Solicitor. But a Solicitor's lien is a lien against his client, and as against third parties he has no higher right than the client possesses. Where a next friend who has appointed a Solicitor is superseded by a new next friend, the old next friend is bound to hand over the documents relating to the suit to the new next friend and as the solicitor appointed by the old next friend is not in a better position than that of his client, the Solicitor is bound to hand over the documents to the new next friend. A.I.R. 1938 Bom. 418=I.L.R. (1938) Bom. 749=40 Bom. L. R. 694=177 Ind. Cas. 727.

——Solicitor's costs—Solicitor's lien over property recovered—Compromise between parties to deprive Solicitor of his costs—Court's power of interference—"Collusive", meaning of.

A Solicitor has, apart from any order of the Court or any statute, a lien over any property recovered or preserved and over the proceeds of any judgment, that is to say, of any decree which is obtained for his client by the Solicitor's exertions. That lien is known as a particular lien. It relates only to the costs incurred in recovering the property or obtaining a judgment for payment of money. The right of the Solicitor is really, in essence, a claim to the equitable interference of the Court for the Solicitor's protection. At the same time, however, the Solicitor's lien may, in some circumstances, be affected by a compromise between the parties, and as a general rule, the Court will not, for the purpose of maintaining the Solicitor's lien, interfere in a compromise which is a bona fide compromise. But if the motive or the object or the intention of the parties to the compromise is that the Solicitor shall be deprived of his lien, then the Court will interfere for the protection of the Solicitor, and in such an event, the Solicitor may apply for payment of the costs by either of the parties to the scheme. "Collusion" will be there if the agreement between the parties is made with the knowledge that the result will inevitably be to deprive the Solicitor of his costs which he has earned. There is certainly "collusion" if the parties enter into an agreement knowing and intending that the outcome will be that the Solicitor is deprived of his lien. 61 C. 1005=38 C.W.N. 1031=A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 168=154 Ind. Cas. 781.

——Solicitor's costs—Solicitor's lien, law applicable—If altered by O. 21, Civil P. C.

It is incorrect to say that O. 21, Civil P. C., has altered the law regarding Solicitor's lien. The Civil P. C. does not contain exhaustive general principles of law applicable to the question of Attorney's lien; the question of the Solicitor's lien in India is still governed by the relevant principles of English Law. 61 C. 1005=38 C.W.N. 1031=A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 168=154 Ind. Cas. 781.

——A Solicitor's lien is a right exercisable against the client and gives the Solicitor no higher rights, against third persons than the client himself possesses. Thus, notwithstanding the lien, the Solicitor can be compelled to produce the papers in his possession if his client would have been bound to produce them. (1935) 62 C. 1037=39 C.W.N. 917=37 Cr.L.J. 825=163 Ind. Cas 224.

——Attorney—Lien on documents for costs—Position in India—Attorney repudiating contract—Calcutta High Court Rules (Original Side), Chap. 11, R. 66.

In the matter of protection of Attorneys as regards their lien over documents in India, it is the same as those of Solicitors in England. The position is as follows, that when an Attorney or Solicitor is on contract for service to a litigant, the status of the Attorney or Solicitor with regard to his lien on documents, depends upon how the contract between him and his client is terminated. If it is terminated unjustifiably by the client, then the Attorney has the absolute right to maintain his lien and say "I stand by my rights in law; I will not give up your papers until my legitimate costs already incurred are paid." If, on the other hand, the Attorney or Solicitor puts an end to the contract himself, he is not so entitled. He retains his lien, but the lien is postponed. It comes into effective operation only after the case is ended and after the other Attorney has completed his work. There is no lien in favour of an Attorney who is discharged by the client for misconduct.

No order for change of Attorney is made unless provision is made for the payment of the costs of the Attorney, subject of course, to this, that no such provision will be made, where the Attorney has, by his own conduct or misconduct discharged himself. But where there is no question of misconduct on the part of the Attorney; but by his conduct he puts an end to the contract between himself and his clients, though for good reasons, but the repudiation comes from him, he only retains the modified lien, the position being that his priority of lien is sacrificed to the second attorney, and to that extent, impaired,

The Attorney need never allow his services to be retained without obtaining a lump sum down or security for his costs. But he is not entitled to embarrass and impede the litigants by retaining the papers entrusted to him when he himself has declined to act further. (1935) 62 C. 464=39 C. W. N. 688=164 Ind. Cas. 138.

——Attorney in India—Retaining lien and common law lien—Balance of account between Attorney and client—Whether Attorney has a general lien over client's deeds and papers—Contract Act, S. 171—Whether takes away retaining lien.

The rights of an Attorney in India are the same as the rights of a Solicitor in England, except in so far as the latter have been diminished or increased by statute. A Solicitor is entitled to three kinds of lien to protect his right to recover his costs from his client namely (1) a passive or retaining lien; (2) a common law lien on property recovered or preserved by his efforts; (3) a statutory lien enforceable by a charging order. With regard to statutory lien, it is a creation of the Solicitor's Act, 1860, (23 and 24 Vic. C. 127). Indian statute law contains no similar provision. Common law lien is admittedly a particular lien and not a general lien and it is, therefore, not available for the general balance of account between the Attorney and his client, but extends only to the costs of recovering or preserving the property in suit.

Section 171, Contract Act, has not the effect of depriving Attorneys of the passive or retaining lien which they possessed prior to the passing of the Contract Act. Attorneys are entitled to a passive or retaining lien.

A Solicitor has no greater rights over money which is the fruit of his exertions when he obtains possession of it, than he has when it is still in the stage of being in deposit in Court. 60 C. 1442=A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 341 =149 Ind. Cas. 331.

——Costs—Attorney's lien—Non-payment of costs —Documents and papers — Whether can be retained.

It is the primary right of every litigant to employ any Attorney he likes and to change him for another Attorney in the course of the same proceeding if he so wishes, provided that he does not thereby cause delay or injustice to any other party or inconvenience to the Court. If he has not paid costs to the Attorney whom he wishes to discharge, that would affect his right to obtain papers and documents on which the Attorney might claim a lien for his unpaid costs and it is not open to an Attorney to say that his client shall continue to employ him in the suit or proceeding until all the costs due to him are paid. The Attorney, however, has a lien on the papers and documents of the client in the case and non-payment of Attorney's costs only affects the right of the litigant to obtain such papers and documents. 35 Bom. L.B. 298=A.I.R. 1933 Bom. 182=144 Ind. Cas. 628.

——General lien, nature of.

Solicitor has a general lien upon deeds and papers in his hands for all costs however arising. But he has no such general right of lien against money which he recovers for his client. Whether he gets them or does not his lien or right to be paid out of those funds is to be confined to the costs incurred in respect of those funds, subject, of course, only to this; that he has the ordinary rights of set-off which one creditor has against another. 60 C. 1442=A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 341= 149 Ind. Cas. 331.

——Costs—Lien of Solicitor—Solicitor discharging himself and client discharging Solicitor—Difference—Duties of Solicitors—Change of Solicitor, when sanctioned.

A Solicitor has a lien upon the funds, money or property recovered for his client, but this lien is, unlike a lien on documents and papers, not a general lien, but restricted to costs incurred in the recovery of the funds, money or property. He has, however, a general lien upon all his client's papers and documents for payment of all taxable costs, charges and expenses incurred by him on behalf of his client, and the lien entitles him to refuse production of the papers and document's to his client except on certain conditions.

If a Solicitor discharges himself, the client or his new Solicitor is entitled to an order; not merely for inspection or production of the papers and documents in the former Solicitor's possession, but also for delivery thereof on an undertaking to hold them on the other hand, the client discharges the Solicitor, without prejudice to the former Solicitor's lien and subject to the re-delivery thereof after the hearing of the suit, and if necessary, subject also to an undertaking to prosecute the suit in an active manner. If, the Solicitor, is under no obligation to deliver, nor even to produce or allow inspection of the documents and papers in his possession for the client's benefit until all his taxed costs are paid.

When a Solicitor takes up a case and undertakes to conduct it, he is bound, whether his client is rich or poor, to proceed with due diligence and honesty to prosecute or to defend the claim, even if he is not put in funds, for it is open to him when he takes up the case to assure himself whether his client is a person of substance.

The Solicitor can however, protect himself if he doubts the credit and honesty of his client by insisting on a sufficient advance at the outset to cover all probable cost.

It is rule of the Court not to sanction a change of Solicitors when the former Solicitor has not discharged himself, so long as his costs remain unpaid. A.I.R. 1932 Bom 363=34 Bom. L.R. 703=138 Ind. Cas. 257.

——Lien for costs—Compromise—Lien, whether subsists—Fraud and collusion—Notice.

Ordinarily the Court will not interfere for the purpose of preserving the Solicitor's lien after a bona fide compromise between the parties has been arrived at though the result of such compromise may be to deprive the Solicitor of his costs. The Solicitor's lien never precludes a fair and honest arrangement between the parties.

But if the compromise has been arrived at with the intention of depriving a Solicitor of his lien, costs may be ordered to be paid by the opposite party. In such cases, the existence of fraud and, collusion between the parties should be manifest and must be clearly established; and it may even be inferred from the facts.

If a valid compromise is made, and after the compromise, the Solicitor gives notice that he has a lien for costs, it is at the defendant's peril if in face of that notice he pays over the money which has been agreed to be paid to the plaintiff by way of compromise.

A bona fide compromise entered into before verdict or judgment, and even after notice of the Solicitor's claim for costs, is good, and will not be set aside or affected at the instance of the Solicitor unless collusion or fraudulent conspiracy exists between the parties. 34 Bom. L. R. 721=A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 352=140 Ind. Cas. 809.

——English Solicitors' Act, 1860.

Where an Advocate put in a claim to the Official Assignee for certain moneys due to him by an insolvent for work done for the insolvent in a probate litigation in respect of a will of which the insolvent was the executor and the legatee, and he claimed it from the estate of the testator:

Held, (i) that the insolvency Court was not competent to make an order against the estate of the testator inasmuch as the only estate which was vested in the Official Assignee was the estate of the insolvent;

(ii) that the Advocate was not entitled to a lien for costs like that which is sanctioned by the English Solicitors' Act, 1860 in favour of a Solicitor upon property recovered by his exertions for a client.

The only possible ground for supporting a claim to such a lien in favour of an Advocate, is the express agreement to that effect. A.I.R. 1932 Mad. 256=(1932) M.W.N. 8=62 M.L.J. 185=35 M.L.W. 166=55 M. 455=137 Ind. Cas. 571.

——Common law lien over fruits of litigation.

A Solicitor has under the common law, what is known as particular lien which does not depend on actual possession of the property as distinguished from possessory lien by reason of certain property like title-deeds being in his hands.

This lien is not liable to be defeated on the ground that the assignee of the decree or the attaching creditor of the Solicitor's client had no express notice of the lien. The fact of there being a fund in Court amounts to notice of the existence of the Solicitor's lien.

When the client treats the engagement as subsisting and instructs the Attorney to tax his bill of costs, the business cannot be said to be terminated. 60 M.L.J. 133=A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 183=33 M.L.W. 430=131 Ind. Cas. 158.

——Lien—Priority over costs to be paid.

Where the petitioning creditor's petition is dismissed with costs to be paid to the debtor, no set-off is permissible to the petitioning creditor against the money ordered to be paid at least to the extent of the lien for costs of the attorneys of the debtor. 32 Bom. L.R. 1076=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 516.

——Priority over mortgagee's lien.

A solicitor's lien on the property of his client cannot have priority over the lien of a mortgagee who has advanced money to pay off prior incumbrances on the property. 108 Ind. Cas. 705=52 Bom. 336=30 Bom. L.R. 153=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 108.

——Priority over attachment.

The solicitor's lien independently of the charging order has priority over any attachment by a judgment creditor so long as the moneys attached remain within the jurisdiction of the Court, that is to say, they are not realised and paid off to the judgment-creditor. 49 L.J.C.P. 524, Foll. 88 Ind. Cas. 81=49 Bom. 505=27 Bom. L.R. 556=A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 351.

——Nature and extent of.

In India a solicitor has a common law lien for costs over property recovered or preserved or the proceeds of any judgments obtained for the client by his exertions. This lien is a particular lien; it is not, therefore, available for the general balance of account between the solicitor and the client, but extends only to the costs of recovering or preserving the property in question, including the costs of protecting the solicitor's right to such costs, and of establishing the lien. The lien does not attach to real property, but, with this exception, it applies to property of every description—including costs ordered to be paid to the client, Shaw v. Neale, (1858) 6 H.L.C. 581: 10 Bom. 248 and A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 351, Foll. 108 Ind. Cas. 705=52 Bom. 336=30 Bom. L.R. 153=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 108.

——Common fund.

The attorney's right to a lien for his costs is ancillary to the right he has of recovering his costs against his client. Where the attorney is unable to show that he cannot get payment from his client where others besides the client are interested in the fund, the Court would not exercise its discretion in favour of the attorney against the other parties so interested. 94 Ind. Cas. 153=28 Bom. L. R. 386=A.I.R. 1926 Bom. 289.

——General and particular.

Obiter:— In addition to the particular or active lien which an attorney has upon moneys which have been recovered in a suit, the attorney has a general or passive or relatining lien upon all movables, deeds, documents, and so forth that come into his hands unless they come for a specific purpose which would be inconsistent with the right of retainer. 66 Ind. Cas. 209=48 Cal. 817=25 C.W.N. 800=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 67.

——Enforcement of costs—Direct order to pay—Jurisdiction of Court.

The Court has jurisdiction to enforce, in a proper case the solicitor's lien by making a direct order for payment to the solicitor by the opposite party of such costs. 2 C.W.N. 508, Foll. Where the original client was dead and his legal representatives were not people of substance and were unable to pay, it is a proper case for the Court to exercise discretion and pass an order for payment of such costs to the solicitor by the opposite party. 46 Cal. 1070=54 Ind. Cas. 691.

——Lien—Judgment obtained by client.

Solicitor's lien on the judgment passed in favour of his client should be given effect to, like other liens, if the judgment is in the solicitor's possession, The lien should be subject to other equities if any. 43 Cal. 932=21 C.W.N. 106=38 Ind. Cas. 30.

——Extent of movable and immovable property recovered in the suit.

An attorney has a lien for his costs over the properties movable or immovable, recovered in the suit of his client but he cannot get a personal decree against an infant client. 43 Cal. 676=20 C.W.N. 537=33 Ind. Cas. 708.

——Money in cash deposit.

Where a Barrister does not obtain a decree in favour of his client there are no fruits on which he can claim a lien. When he allows money of the client deposited in Court to be taken away he cannot subsequently claim a lien on the amount. 8 L.B.R. 70=29 Ind. Cas. 870.

——Right to—Tort.

The right of a solicitor claiming a lien will largely depend on the circumstances under which he has ceased to act for his client. Whether the solicitor has discharged himself or whether he has been discharged by his client is the test. In other words, whether the solicitor has ceased to act for his client owing to an unjustifiable action of his own or whether he has ceased owing to the action of his client. In an administrative action the obligation of the solictor to give inspection of and to produce documents that are in his possession and over which he has a lien is confined to those cases in which they are essential to determine those questions arising in the normal administration proceedings when the estate is being actually admidistered. 35 Bom. 352=13 Bom.L.R. 670=12 Ind. Cas. 3.

——Lien—Moneys spent in other causes.

A pleader in India like a solicitor in England cannot retain moneys realized by him on behalf of his client in one cause for his dues in other causes conducted by him. 33 Mad. 255=7 M.L.T. 229=20 M.L.J. 326=4 Ind. Cas. 398.

——When modified—Change of Solicitors.

If a change of solicitors in the course of an action takes place the former solictior's lien is not taken away but modified according as his discharge is by himself or by his client; in the former case he is entitled to have an undertaking from the new solicitor that he should hold the papers without prejudice to his lien and to return them intact to him after the action is over, in the latter case he cannot be compelled to hand over or produce the papers so long as his costs are unpaid. 20 C.W.N. 437=23 C.L.J. 326=33 Ind. Cas. 73.

——Notice of.

Where a party attaches a decree, which directs payment of costs to the plaintiff, he has notice by that very fact that the plaintiff's solicitors may be entitled to an attorney's lien on that fund for the amount of their costs. The mere fact of there being a fund in Court is sufficient to give notice to the third party of the possibility of a solicitor being entitled to a lien for his costs. So long as the Court has control over the funds, the lien is not liable to be defeated by a third party, such as the assignee of a decree or an attaching creditor of the solicitor's client, even though the third party had no express notice of the lien. 105 Ind. Cas. 383=29 Bom.L.R. 1196=51 Bom. 855=A. I. R. 1927 Bom. 542.

——Solicitors's lien—High Court—Summary Jurisdiction—Discretion.

There exists a summary jurisdiction in the High Court to enforce the solicitor's lien, but the exercise of that jurisdiction is discretionary. Although the High Court possesses a summary jurisdicition to enforce the solicitor's lien upon the fruits of his exertion, it will not do so when the circumstances would make it unfair to any of the parties or would compel the court to go into complicated questions of fact especially when charges of fraud or collusion are made, or when a solicitor has deliberately taken additional fresh security for the purpose of securing his costs and has not relied on his lien under the summary jurisdiction. (1905) 7 Bom.L.R. 547.

——Lien—Compromise of suit by parties—High Court—Summary Jurisdiction—Motion by the solicitor for his costs—Solicitor's right to oppose client's motion—Practice—Procedure—Solicitor's costs — Collusion — Conspiracy—Negotiable security—Conditional payment:

The High Court of Bombay has a summary jurisdiction over its suitors for the purpose of enforcing a solicitor's lien for costs and in enforcing it the court must be guided by the principles of English Law. Hence, a solicitor engaged by a party to a suit has a right to come in and say that before any order is passed on the basis of a compromise arrived at privately between the parties effect should be given to his lien. Whether the solicitor moves the court by an application of his own or appears to oppose a motion of the party against whom the lien for costs is alleged to arise, in either case he calls in aid the equitable interference of the court under its summary jurisdiction. Where the compromise arrived at between the parties to a suit is collusive fraudulent and made with a view to deprive a solicitor of his costs, the court will order the award of costs, to the solicitor. (1904) 6 Bom. L.R. 879=30 B. 27.

——Lien—Contract Act S. 217.

A Vakil who disburses out-fees at the request of his client and takes a pro-note for them which not being filed in court becomes void is entitled to recover such out-fees independent of the void promissory note and entitled under S. 217 of the Contract Act to retain the same out of the sums recived by him to the credit of his client in the suit in which he has disbursed the out-fee.

Quaere:—Whether a vakil will be entitled in the absence of express authority from the client to retain out of money received by him in one suit fees or out-fees due or disbursed by him in another suit. (1903) 14 M.L.J. 274=27 M. 512.

——Scottish Law does not apply in England, nor does it apply in India. 105 Ind. Cas. 385=51 Bom. 855=29 Bom.L.R. 1196=A.I.R. 1927 Bom, 542.

11. Misconduct.

See also: Legal Practitioners' Act, 1879 Ss. 12,13.

—Misconduct—Pleader purchasing at sale in proceedings instituted by himself to execute decree of client—If guilty of misconduct. See Legal Practitioners Act, Madras Rules. R. 17. (1946) 1 M.L.J. 218=A.I.R. 1946 Mad. 245 (F. B.)

——Auction sale in execution of decree—Decree-holder not bidding—Decree-holder's pleader buying property in clerk's name—Property transferred to pleader's wife's name—Pleader is not guilty of professional misconduct.

Rule 17 of the rules framed by the Madras High Court under the Legal Practitioners' Act prohibits a practitioner from purchasing from his client or from any other person any interest in a decree passed by the Court in which he practises, but there is no rule prohibiting a legal practitioner from bidding at an auction held in pursuance of a decree obtained by his client. A Pleader of a party to a suit is not debarred by O. 21, R. 73, Civil P.C., from purchasing peoperty sold in execution of the decree. Consequently, where a pleader buys the property in the name of his clerk in execution of a decree passed in favour of his client and has it transferred to his wife, but with the knowledge that his client does not wish to bid for it, the pleader cannot be held guilty of professional misconduct. A.I.R. 1946 Mad. 245=(1946) 1 Mad. L.J. 218=59 Mad. L. W. 161=(1946) Mad. W.N. 203 (F.B.)

——Pleader drafting plaint for plaintiff gratuitously as friend—No confidential information imparted by plaintiff—Pleader subsequently accepting brief for defendant and appearing for him is not guilty of professional misconduct.

In a suit for redemption of a mortgage, a pleader drew up a draft plaint at the plaintiff's request gratuitously and as a friend. For this purpose the only document he was shown was the mortgage deed. No confidential information was imparted to him by the plaintiff. The plaint was filed by the plaintiff himself. The pleader subsequently accepted brief for defendant and appeared for him:

Held, that as no confidential information was imparted to the pleader by the plaintiff there was no breach of confidence on the part of the pleader in appearing for the defendant at a later stage and he was not guilty of professional miscondact. A.I.R. 1946 Lah. 329=48 Pun. L.R. 485=226 Ind. Cas. 479 (F.B.)

——Improper conduct—Double dealing—Court refusing him leave to appear in case.

Where a legal practitioner received confidential information from a party before he was engaged and it further appeared that he had omitted to warn the party that he had been approached by the other side and eventually he accepted a brief for the latter, held that the conduct of the practitioner was improper though it did not amount to professional misconduct and that the trial Court was justified in refusing him permission to appear in the case. 8 Rang. 446=128 Ind. Cas. 354=1930 Cr. C. 1233=A.I.R. 1930 Rang. 355.

——Practice—Objection to admissibility of unstamped document.

According to the rules laid down by the General Council of the English Bar, it is considered to be unprofessional conduct for Counsel to raise objections to the admissibility of a document on the ground that it is not stamped, but there is no such objection to Counsel raising an objection to the validity of a document which is, by law, rendered invalid owing to the absence of stamps. A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 765=I.L.R. (1937) Cal. 257.

——Legal practitioner appointed managing trustee of estate—His own interests considered in preference to and to the detriment of beneficiaries—Professional misconduct—Tests.

The fact that a legal practitioner, who is appointed as the managing trustee of an estate, in using the funds of the estate, was in fact, lending trust money to himself and thereby committed a serious breach of trust, in itself is not necessarily sufficient to constitute professional misconduct. But held, that in the circumstances in the case, when the legal practitioner as managing trustee altered the terms of a mortgage agreeing that the beneficiaries for whom he was trustee, should be paid only $5\frac{1}{2}$ per centum interest, when the mortgagor was liable under the mortgage which was transferred to pay $6\frac{1}{2}$ per-centum, and another alteration in the terms of the mortgage by which the mortgagor was given the right to pay off at any time without any prior notice to the mortgagee the whole of the principal sum or any part thereof not being less than £. 100 was effected in order to facilitate dubious transactions, led to the conclusion that he was considering the interests of himself in preference to and to the detriment of the interests of the beneficiaries of the estate for whom he was trustee.

If it is shown that a Solicitor, in the pursuit of his profession, has done something with regard to it which would be reasonably regarded as disgraceful or dishonourable by his professional brethren of good repute and competency, then it is open to say that he is guilty of professional misconduct.

The importance of the high Standard of duty which is required from a Solicitor to his client, being maintained without any diminution when a Solicitor is dealing with clients who happen to be native or half-castes, who may be ignorant and semi or wholly illiterate people emphasized. 44 M.L.W. 315=A.I.R. 1936 P.C. 224=163 Ind. Cas. 434 (P.C.)

——Tests in considering if Advocate should be struck off the roll of Advocates—Disciplinary jurisdiction of Court—Conviction for criminal offence—Effect.

The test that the Court has to apply in considering whether an Advocate should be struck off the rolls of Advocates is whether the proved misconduct of the Advocate is such that he must be regarded as unworthy to remain a member of the honourable profession to which he has been admitted, and unfit to be entrusted with the responsible duties that an Advocate is called upon to perform. The two conditions should be taken disjunctively and the test applied in that way so that on the fulfilment of any one of the conditions the test would be regarded as satisfied. This test would prove a sound working rule in the majority of cases and would be applicable to all branches of the profession: the first condition being a standard applicable to all and as regards the second condition, the circumstances to be taken into consideration differing according to the duties attaching to the particular profession. The test speaks of 'striking off the roll' which is equivalent to removal. But as regards suspension or reprimand the test would apply equally well, the form of the action taken being dependent on the nature and gravity of the misconduct found and also on other circumstances.

The disciplinary jurisdiction vested in Court should not be employed merely in aid of the Criminal Law of the land and merely to supplement, as it were by way of a further punishment, a punishment which the Advocate has received under that law for the misconduct of which he is guilty.

While conviction for a criminal offence is prima facie evidence of misconduct, all criminal convictions are not grounds for the exercise of the Court's disciplinary jurisdiction. The Court must take into consideration the facts on which the conviction is based.

Held, that the general tenor of the speeches made by the Advocate in question was inoffensive and was such as one would expect to find in speeches made in connection with question affecting a labour union and no further action was called for. 40 C.W.N. 366=63 C.867=A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 158=37 C.L.J. 534=162 Ind. Cas. 170 (S.B.).

——Permission granted to engage in bussiness for the time being—Conviction for lottery.

A Pleader, a young man of thirty, was permitted to engage in business and to abandon for the time being his profession as a lower-grade Pleader. While he was under this voluntary suspension, he started with other persons the idea of entering into a syndicate and it embarked upon a scheme which the Court decided was nothing more nor less than a common lottery. He was convicted of taking part in that lottery. On the question whether a person of good character who has suffered one such conviction should be necessarily debarred from practising as a lower grade Pleader should he see fit and choose to do so:

Held, that the Pleader behaved not only wrongly but very foolishly in acting as he did, but considering his age, it was not necessary in connection with such an offence committed by a man of his age to take the step which might have serious consequences for him and his name should not be struck off the register. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 382=37 Cr.L.J. 1118=164 Ind. Cas. 350.

——Vakil carrying on partnership business—Court not informed—Untrue statement made by Vakil—Misconduct—Punishment.

Where a Vakil, in contravention of the rules of the High Court, entered into a partnership business and not only did not inform the High Court of the matter but made an untrue statement in respect of it:

Held, that the Court could not take a lenient view of the conduct of the Vakil, (The Vakil suspended for six months.)

Per Iqbal Ahmad, J.—The charges of professional misconduct against an Advocate must be proved by clear and convincing evidence and should not be inferred from mere groumds for suspicion, however reasonable those grounds may appear to be. A.I.R. 1935 All. 1023=1935 A.W.R. 1229=37 Cr. L. J. 117=(1936) A.L.J. 379=159 Ind. Cas. 561 (S.B.)

——Reckless charge of fraud, without any evidence.

In a written statement signed by the Advocate for the defendants, a charge of fraud was recklessly made against the plaintiff without any evidence in support of it. This fact was well-known to the defendants and the Advocate who was unable to say anything except that he was acting on his client's instructions:

Held, that the conduct of the Advocate was most improper and deserved strong condemnation. 42 M.L.W. 412=(1935) M.W.N. 340=A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 578=69 M.L.J. 250=36 Cr. L.J. 1342=158 Ind. Cas. 302.

—Test to see whether an Advocate's name should be struck off the roll.

The test that the court has to apply in considering whether an Advocate should be struck off the roll of Advocates is whether the proved misconduct of the Advocate is such that he must be regarded as unworthy to remain a member of the honourable profession to which he has been admitted, and unfit to be entrusted with the responsible duties that an Advocate is called upon to perform. A.I.R. 1935 Rang. 458=37 Cr. L.J. 200=159 Ind. Cas. 1036.

——Manifesto issued in connection with Bar Council Election—Professional misconduct.

It is a well-recognized rule of etiquette in the legal profession that no attempt should be made to advertise oneself directly or indirectly. Such a course of action tends to lower the dignity of the honourable profession and is undoubtedly akin to touting.

The High Court can deal with such cases only where the act is not merely a breach of professional etiquette, but amounts to professional misconduct involving moral turpitude. The issuing of the manifestoes by Advocates as part of election campaign in connection with Bar Council Election does not amount to any professional misconduct but only to breach of a professional etiquette. These matters are for the Bar Council to consider and it is their function to stop such practices. A.I.R. 1934 All. 1067=1 A.W.R. 780=153 Ind. Cas. 667.

——Misconduct—Advertising.

A pleader's sending a circular post-card merely giving the address and the name and description of himself would amount to an advertisement on his part and therefore to improper conduct and if in addition he falsely stated that he had been authorized to examine the accounts of waqf properties and to issue certificates by the District Court rather aggravates the case than the reverse. Even if auditing is not strictly legal work, yet this very fact of advertising his readiness to take up that work, combined with his misleading statement that he is a High Court Pleader and seeing that this work is connected with the Courts and has to be supervised by the Courts would result in his getting an improper advantage in legal work over his fellow pleader, who did not descend to such devices. It was improper conduct on the part of the District pleader to issue such post-cards and to canvass for this particular work in the way that he did, and accordingly he has committed an offence under S. 26. 31 Bom. L.R. 625=53 Bom. 640=A.I.R. 1929 Bom. 335.

——Misconduct — If confined to professional activity.

The conduct of the legal practitioner which subjects him to the disciplinary jurisdiction of the Court need not necessarily be connected with his professional activities. He is equally amenable to the jurisdiction of the Court if the acts of which objection is taken have been done outside his professional duties. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 251=35 Cr.L. J. 1010=15 L. 354=36 P.L.R. 510=149 Ind. Cas. 764 (S.B.).

——Speech inciting breaking of laws and defying dispersal order—If a ground for disciplinary action.

A speech calling upon the audience to break those laws which the All India Congress Committee orders to be broken, is a clear incitement to break laws which another body might decide should be broken and is inconsistent with the duty of a legal practitioner to asist in the administration of the laws. Such a speech, as well as a speech exhorting the audience to resist an order for dispersal will attract the disciplinary jurisdiction of the High Court. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 251=35 Cr.L. J. 1010=15 L. 354=36 P.L.R. 510=149 Ind. Cas. 764 (S.B.).

——Passing resolution sympathising with satyagraha movement, and congratulating persons convicted for breach of laws is misbehaviour which renders liable to suspension, under S. 16, Sind Courts Act, 1866. A.I.R. 1931 Sind 33=25 S.L.R. 131=131 Ind. Cas. 187.

——Misconduct — Promoting enmity between classes.

The moral turpitude is always involved in the commission of an act, which comes within S. 153-A of I.P.C. 65 Ind. Cas. 560=20 A. L. J. 200=23 Cr.L. J. 128=44 All. 352=A.I.R. 1922 All. 140 (F.B.), ——Misconduct and moral turpitude.

Misconduct is not necessarily the same thing as moral turpitude and when disciplinary action is taken, the motive of the informer is immaterial. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 251=35 Cr.L.J. 1010=15 L. 354=36 P.L.R. 510=149 Ind. Cas. 764. (S.B.).

——Principle to be applied.

The principles to be applied in deciding whether the conduct of a legal practitioner amounts to misconduct are (1) that the mere holding of certain views and even expression of such views in language, however emphatic or strong is no ground for taking disciplinary action against a legal practitioner; (2) that mere conviction for an offence is not sufficient but the Court must look into the nature of the act on which the conviction is based to decide whether the legal practitioner is an unfit person to remain in the profession; (3) that a legal practitioner is a part of the machinery provided for the maintenance of order and the enforcement of the law of the land; it is, therefore, inconsistent with his duties as a legal practitioner to incite other either to boycott the Court or to break the law which it is the duty of the Courts to administer. Those who live by the law cannot preach the breaking of the law; (4) that organised breach of the peace or incitement to acts tending to subvert order is a reasonable cause to suspend or remove a legal practitioner and (5) that acts involving moral turpitude or which imply general infamy make a legal practitioner unfiit to remain on the rolls of the Court. A.I.R. 1034 Lah. 251=35 Cr.L. J. 1010=15 L. 354=36 P.L.R. 510=149 Ind. Cas. 764 (S.B.)

——Advocate receiving money from client to file appeal—Appeal not filed being barred by time—Application of money not satisfactarily explained—Client withholding correct information from Court—Action against Advocate.

An Advocate was engaged to file an appeal and he received money from the client for filing the same, but as copy of the judgment had not been received on that date, he asked the client to see him again. The Advocate admitted that he received the copy some weeks later and found that the limitation for filing appeal had already expired and he returned the copy to the client. But the money was not returned, and on being asked to explain why he did not return the money, he could not give any satisfactory explanation. It appeared that the conduct of the client was also not consistent with what he should normally have done and that he withheld the correct information about the matter from the Court:

Held: that although, having admitted the receipt of the money, it was for the Advocate to account for its application, the Court cannot be uninfiluenced by the conduct of the client when deciding whether a reasonable cause has been established to remove or suspend the Advocate from practice and that it would be unsafe to take any action on the bare statement of the client. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 575=34 Cr.L. J. 954=145 Ind. Cas. 278 (S.B.).

——A Pleader drew out from the Court the money of his client, and paid the cheque to his own credit in his own Bank. The money was not entered in the client's account, and the Pleader was unable to refund those moneys when called upon.

Held, that the Pleader was guilty of misbehaviour, and action under S. 16 Sind Courts Act could be taken against him. A.I.R. 1933 Sind 65=143 Ind. Cas. 631.

——Confidential position—Securing advantage over client—Trust—Trusts Act (II of 1882) S. 88.

A certain property to which a widow was really entitled as heir was in the possession and was standing in the name of her husband's brother. A person who desired to purchase the property from the widow's husband's brother consulted his Pleader, who though he was aware that the widow had title, never informed his client about this. A few months afterwards, the Pleader himself got a permanent lease from the widow and instituted a suit for possession against the brother and his former client. There was nothing to show that the Pleader had encouraged his client to make the purchase or that the client ever negotiated with the widow:

Held, that the Pleader could not be considered to have used his confidential position to secure an advantage over his client.

Held, further, that the requirements of S. 88, Trusts Act, for constituting the Pleader trustee for the defendants were also not fulfilled as no advantage was obtained by him over his clients by using his confidential position. A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 144=52 C.L.J. 492=130 Ind. Cas. 897.

——Misconduct—Misappropriation.

Where a legal practitioner was proceeded against for professional misconduct for having appropriated the client's money and it appeared that after the proceeding was commenced as against him before the Bar Council the vakil paid the amount to the party,

Held, that such a device should deceive nobody and that far from being an act to be placed to the credit of the Vakil it was the very reverse of it. 1930 M.W.N. 216 (F.B.).

——Misconduct—Money specifically paid by client towards stamp fees—Legal practitioner appropriating same or part of it towards his fees—Propriety.

Where money is put into the hands of a legal practitioner by a client for a specific purpose it can be applied only for that specific purpose. Thus money paid for stamp fees cannot be appropriated towards fees due to the vakil.

Where an Advocate having received sufficient sum for paying additional stamp duty failed and neglected to pay the same to the Board of Revenue in time and thereby caused a penalty of Rs. 200 to be imposed and levied on her,

Held, that the Advocate was guilty of professional misconduct and that he should be struck off the rolls for a period of three years. 1930 M.W.N. 216 (F.B.)

——Misconduct—Retaining client's money.

Retaining monies payable to client is a serious type of professional misconduct. 32 M.L.W. 435=A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 927. (F.B.)

——A pleader retained his client's money with him and did not pay it in spite of repeated demands for a very long period. His explanation was that he had been asked by some relations of his client to keep the money in order that it might be utilized in the purchase of stones for the construction of a temple. This explanation was found by the District Judge to be untrue. It was further found that for the whole of the year while proceedings under the Legal Practioners Act were hanging over his head he took out no sanad and, therefore, suspended himself as it were from pleading in the Court where his practice lay.

Held, that a lenient view of his case be taken because he evinced some sense of propriety by not attempting to take out a sanad and because the conduct was not necessarily dishonest though it may have been improper but that he should be severely censured. 106 Ind. Cas. 97=39 M.L.T. 483=26 M.L.W. 652=9 A.I.Cr.R. 168 =28 Cr.L.J. 1009=A.I. R. 1928 Mad. 18=53 M.L.J. 669 (F.B.).

——Misconduct—Error of judgment.

—Where circumstances are sufficient to justify the insertion in an affidavit of a paragraph in a qualified manner and it is inserted by the solicitor in an unqualified manner, it is merely an error of judgment on the part of the solicitor to omit an express statement of the limitation to which the deponent's assertion is necessarily subject, and no moral blame should be imputed to the solicitor for the omission. 116 Ind. Cas. 387=1929 A.L.J. 53=29 M.L.W. 111=A.I.R. 1929 P.C. 33 (P.C.).

——Misconduct—Defamation,

—Defamatory statements made by an advocate outside his duty as advocate and with no reference to the subject before the Court are irrelevant and are necessarily made in badfaith. A counsel might therefore be proceeded against in an action for defamation.

While examining a witness the counsel of a company asked the witness whether his client company was not the biggest in the town. The witness said "Yes", and the pleader on the opposite side remarked "and it is also the most dishonest in the town."

Held, that the remark was defamatory of the company, had no reference to the subject before the Court and was irrelevant. The counsel therefore could not plead privilege and was liable in damages. 115 Ind. Cas. 458=1929 A.L.J. 303=51 All. 509=A.I.R, 1929 All. 214.

——Misconduct—Exhorbitant fees.

—Where a barrister owing to his inability to attend a case, requested another barrister to attend and promised him a portion of his fees, but the latter, alleging the case itself had been transferred to him, obtained from the client who was illiterate, a large amount of fees, quite out of all proportion to the importance of the case and the work done by him, he was held guilty of professional misconduct. 110 Ind. Cas. 321=5 O.W.N. 805=29 P.L.R. 522=29 Cr.L.J. 689=28 M.L.W. 958=10 A.I.Cr.R. 511= 1928 M.W.N. 831=A.I.R. 1928 P.C. 264=55 M.L.J. 296 (P.C.).

——Miseonduct—Tampering witness.

—An advocate laying himself open to the suspicion of tampering with witnesses in an enquiry before the Coroner, amounts to professional misconduct, though he was not actually professionally engaged in the case. 104 Ind. Cas. 659=29 Bom. L.R. 1062= A.I.R. 1927 Bom. 517.

——Misconduct—Instigation for false evidence.

—Where a pleader defending an accused person was prosecuted for instigating witnesses to give false evidence, while that proceeding is pending, and before the evidence of the witnesses who are said to have been instigated to give false evidence, has been appreciated by the Court, Held, that the prosecution is inadvisable. If such a prosecution is to be started it ought to be started after the principal proceeding in relation to which the offence is said to have been committed, has terminated. 71 Ind. Cas. 523=24 Bom. L.R. 1153=24 Cr.L.J. 171=A.I.R. 1923 Bom. 105.

——Misconduct—Signing dishonest statements without knowledge.

—If a legal practitioner puts his signature to a document he will be bound by all the implications arising from it just as much as if he had written every word of it with his own hand. Practitioners must realise that if they associate themselves with statements which they know are dishonest and untruthful for the purpose of misleading the Court they must on proof of misconduct bear personal respbnsibility and that it will be no defence for them to say that it was done in the interests of the client or at his instigation or at the instigation of a colleague at the bar, or that they did not read the document or consider it at all. 98 Ind. Cas. 493= 48 All. 542=27 Cr.L.J. 1373=A.I.R. 1927 All. 45 (F.B.).

——Misconduct—Breach of duty.

—An attorney was entrusted by one set of clients with Rs. 20,000 to advance on a mortgage of two properties. He deliberately omitted to register the mortgage made in their favour. The result was that that mortgage became useless. The clients afterwards got a mortgage of one of the properties but they were left without any security on the other, though for some time they were led to believe by the solicitor that they had got a valid security on that property. Further, as regards another set of clients: the solicitor allowed them to advance Rs. 22,000 on the mortgage of this very property without telling them that there was already this other mortgage in favour of the first set of clients which had not been registered, but which, at that date, might still have been registered. The solicitor endeavoured to suppress from his first set of clients any knowledge of this second document.

Held, that he was guilty of professional misconduct. 104 Ind. Cas. 681=29 Bom. L. R. 1066= A.I.R. 1927 Bom. 537.

——Complicity in wrongful act by client.

A sum of Rs. 3,250 was obtained by the attorneys from the Sheriff upon the representation that the money was due to the land-lords, a charitable trust, for the rent of the premises and that if it were received from the Sheriff it would be paid in full to the land-lords. The money was due for a godown rented by his client for 10 months at Rs. 325 per month, to keep furniture attached before judgment on behalf of his client. The attorney paid the money to his client for payment, but subsequently upon instructions from his client wrote to the landlords denying liability for rent but that he was sending Rs. 474 as a matter of grace.

Held, that the attorney should have insisted on the client paying the money to the trust or refunding it to the Sheriff, and ought not to have made himself a party to the course adopted by his client by addressing the letter to the trust. As an officer of the Court, he owed a duty to the Court as well as to his client. Though his conduct did not involve any moral turpitude there was a breach of duty which the attorney owed to the Court. It was competent to and proper for the Incorporated Law Society to bring the matter to the attention of the Court when the matter was brought to the notice of the Society. 90 Ind. Cas. 468=29 C.W.N, 1047=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 964 (S.B.).

——Misconduct—Improper complaint.

To lodge on behalf of a client an obviously improper and groundless criminal complaint against a person is serious misconduct on the part of a practitioner. If it was due to deliberate dishonesty, the practitioner should be removed from the roll of legal practitioners. But even otherwise, if it had its origin in carelessness, incompetence and a lack of sense of responsibility, then too, the conduct of the practitioner is open to severe censure. It is the bounden duty of the practitioner before presenting a complaint to make due enquiries of the clients and to act with such care and prudence that his good faith could never successfully be questioned. He ought not to regard his function as that a mere machine and his only duty to transmit to the Court any half truths and insinuations which his clients desired him to record. 86 Ind. Cas. 408=47 All. 377=23 A.L.J. 125=26 Cr.L.J. 776=6 L.R.A. Civ. 244=A.I.R. 1925 All. 247 (F.B.).

——Misconduct—Insulting questions to witness.

—In drafting pleadings, counsel should avoid personal ill-will and reckless charges of fraud and criminality. Even when questions as to credit are material, the counssl should satisfy himself, before putting questions, that there is some reasonable ground for believing in the charges he makes against a witness.

A counsel drafted a written statement containing defamatory allegations against a Mukhtar knowing fully well that the allegations had no foundation in fact. Subsequently in the cross-examination of that Mukhtar the counsel asked him if he had not a notice served on him under Cr. P. Code, S. 476. The Counsel had no ground for making the allegation.

——Misconduct — Removal and suspension—Imputation of bad character not necessary.

A conviction under S. 17, sub-s. (1) of the Criminal Law Amendment Act (XIV of 1908) constitutes a reasonable cause within the meaning of Cl. 8, Letters Patent, Lahore, for the removal or suspension from practice of an advocate or vakil. Strictly speaking proceedings under Cl. 8 are neither civil suits nor criminal prosecutions. The High Court exercise a special jurisdiction under Cl. 8. The propriety in law or in fact of the conviction cannot be questioned in the proceedings taken by the Court in the exercise of its diciplinary jurisdiction. 22 All. 49 (P. C.) Ref. Advocate or Vakil may be struck off the rolls for an offence which has no relation whatsover to his character as a legal practitioner but the mere circumstance that he has been convicted of an offence does not make it imperative on the Court to remove or suspend him from practice. It is not necessary that the Act of a legal practitioner which is relied upon for striking his name off the roll should have subjected him to anything like a general infamy or imputation of bad character. 76 Ind. Cas. 385=4 Lah. 271=25 Cr.L.J. 161=6 L.L.J. 491=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 123 (S. B.)

——Misconduct—Unpreparedness to argue.

A pleader who has looked into the papers of a case for drafting grounds of appeal, is not guilty of professional misconduct merely because he is not prepared to argue the appeal at the time of the presentation of the appeal papers. 84 Ind. Cas. 1051 =20 M.L.W. 623=1924 M.W.N. 893=48 Mad. 385 =26 Cr.L.J. 411=A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 895=47 M.L.J. 661.

——Reckless and false allegations against Magistrate—Cr.P.C., S. 526.

——Advocate making reckless and false allegations against Magistrate in application under S. 526, Criminal P.C., without verifying them is unfit to enjoy the privileges conferred upon him by law and must be visited with punishment. A.I.R. 1944 Sind 155= I.L.R. (1944) Kar. 133=46 Cr. L.J. 223=217 Ind. Cas. 182.

——Misconduct—Charge against Judge.

It is the duty of Counsel towards their clients to use their own judgment and experience and discretion and as a result, whatever be their instructions, to exclude all topics and observations of which the case does not properly admit. They should be careful to express anything in a form which will not be unduly insulting or opprobrious to the officer, who has to receive the notice.

Where a notice by a pleader contained the following extracts: "You should not have asked my client to attend the Court at 11 a. m., when he was not going to be examined at that time. He was not bound in law to wait indefinitely till you chose to call him for examination. A witness's time is as much valuable, if not more, than the time of the Court .... Obviously enough, your order was not only arbitrary and high handed, but also spiteful and malicious .... From what is stated above, you will clearly see the enormity of your own acts."

Held, that there was a clear excess of the privilege of the Bar, amounting to improper conduct. 113 Ind. Cas. 519=30 Bom.L.R. 934=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 338.

—No practitioner can possibly suggest that because an application that a case should be transferred to the District Judge, had been judicially rejected, there is the slightest ground in decency or honour, for suggesting that any suspicion has there by been aroused against the impartiality of the Magistrate. Members of the legal profession are under no duty to their clients to make grave and scandalous charges either against Judges or the opposite parties on the mere wish of their clients. They are agents, not of the man who pays them but are acting in the administration of justice and in matters of making applications to Court they are bound to exercise an independent judgment, and to conduct themselves with a sense of personal responsibility. If they fail to act with reasonable care and caution, they are unfit to enjoy the privileges conferred upon them by law, and serious breaches must be visited with punishment. 81 Ind. Cas. 177=46 All. 121=21 A.L.J. 893=4 L.R.A. Civ. 615=25 Cr.L.J. 689=A. I. R. 1924 All. 253 (F.B.)

——Misconduct — Contempt — Jurisdiction of Subordinate Courts.

Per Full Bench:—No power to punish for contempt of an inferior Court now exists independently of the Indian Penal Code and the Contempt of Courts Act and no disciplinary power over legal practitioners or power to punish for contempt outside the provisions of the Indian Penal Code is vested in the Subordinate Courts. 1930 A.L.J. 402= A.I.R. 1930 All. 225 (F. B.).

——Contempt of Court—Appeal.

Legal practitioner punished by Bench of High Court for contempt of Court for certain remarks made by him as party to suit and later on suspended from practising for six months under Legal Practitioners' Act—Application by him for leave to appeal to Privy Council:

Held, that leave might be granted under S. 109 (c) Civil P. C. or under cl. 30. Letters Patent (All) that he should furnish security as in appeals in ordinary cases. (1933) A.L.J. 273=55 A. 246=A.I.R. 1933 All. 225=145 Ind. Cas. 853.

——Misconduct—Rules applicable.

Charges of professional misconduct must be clearly established and should not be inferred from mere ground for suspicion however reasonable, or what may be mere error of judgment or indiscretion. A.I.R. 1930 P.C. 144 Foll. 31 P.L.R. 913=129 Ind.Cas. 301=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 947.

12. Negligence.

See also: Lim. Act, S. 5

While considering what is 'sufficient cause' within the meaning of S. 5 Lim. Act, the good faith with which a person must be shown to have acted will appropriately be taken to mean that variety which pre-supposes due care and attention rather than mere 'honesty.' The mistake of a Pleader made in good faith may afford sufficient cause for admitting an appeal after time, but the mistake must have been made in spite of the exercise of due care and attention. When a litigant gives carte blanche to his lawyer to act as he thinks fit without further consulting him he must take full responsibility for the act of the lawyer; and he cannot claim to have acted in good faith in filing the appeal unless the lawyer so acted. If the lawyer acted with complete carelessness, he cannot be said to have acted in good faith that is, with due care and attention. The fact that the Court in which the appeal was wrongly filed did not notice the mistake is immaterial. A.I.R. 1940 Rang. 14=1939 Rang. L.R. 639=186 Ind. Cas. 715.

—Negligence on the part of the Councel cannot be relied upon by the litigant in order to support a plea that he was prosecuting an application in good faith, though in a wrong Court within the meaning of S. 14, Lim. Act. 1938 O.W.N. 360=A.I.R. 1938 Oudh 112=173 Ind. Cas. 956.

—An advocate is bound to exercise reasonable skill and prudence in the exercise of his profession but is not expected to be infallible.

Where an Advocate drafted the terms of a compromise decree believing that his client's right to recover mesne profits by subsequent proceedings was not barred thereby and advised his client accordingly, but it was subsequently decided that upon, a true construction of the compromise decree, the client was not entitled to claim mesne profits and the client sued the Advocate for negligence:

Held, that the Advocate could not be made liable unless the Court was of opinion that the construction put by the Advocate was not such a construction as could reasonably be put by an Advocate exercising reasonable skill and care. 9 R. 575=A.I.R. 1932 Rang. 1=135 Ind. Cas. 648.

——Standard of care.

The standard of care to be exacted from practitioners in the Colony is pre-eminently a matter for the Judges of the local Court. Privy Council will not interfere in this matter with the order of that Court. 116 Ind. Cas. 387=1929 A.I.J. 53=29 M.L.W. 111=A.I.R. 1929 P.C. 33 (P.C.).

——Negligence by itself is not professional misconduct; into that offence there must enter the element of moral delinquency. 96 Ind. Cas. 685=49 Mad. 523=1929 M.W.N. 412=24 M.L.W. 100=A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 568=50 M.L.J. 399. (S.B.).

——Carelessness of clerk.

Where an appeal was filed without the order appealed against being stamped and the same was returned and filed again with proper stamp but out of limitation,

Held, a Counsel when filing an appeal ought to see that all the documents which require stamp are properly stamped. He cannot shelter himself behind his clerk, and if his clerk has been guilty of any carelessness he is responsible for that. 71 Ind. Cas. 736=A.I.R 1924 Lah. 401.

——Negligence—Pleader's responsibility for fraud committed by his clerk—Remedy of client.

A pleader is responsible for any fraud perpetuated by his clerks on his clients. The principles of agency are not applicable without reservation, to the relation between a client and his pleader. The conduct of a pleader who is guilty of fraud or such gross negligence as would, in law, amount to fraud, cannot bind his client and the Court has power to restore an appeal dismissed for such conduct on the part of the appellant's pleader. The Court may in its discretion leave the appellant to his remedy against the pleader by an action for damages. (1912) M.W.N. 332=11 M.L.T. 280=22 M.L.J. 284=14 Ind. Cas. 823.

Where it was the duty of the retained pleader to conduct all cases brought to him by the officers of the plaintiff, unless it was shown that there was any special duty cast on the pleader to remind officers of plaintiff that the decrees would be barred, he was not liable for damages for negligence when those officers had the same knowledge or means of knowledge that the decrees would be time barred. 71 Ind. Cas. 916=5 P.L.T. 355=2 Pat.L.R. (Civ.) 205=A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 259.

——Alleged negligence of solicitor due to ignorance of statute — Local circumstances, knowledge of, necessary—Interference by Privy Council.

The question of negligence with regard to the performance of solicitor's duty must, to some extent, be affected by local conditions and local circumstances as to which their Lordships of the Privy Council might not be perfectly informed. The question as to whether a solicitor is negligent or not in omitting to give effect to a statutory provision cannot be disentangled from the consideration of whether the statute which is involved is one which is of constant and common occurrence in practice, or whether it is one unfamiliar and remote. With those circumstances their Lordships declared their inability to deal. A.I.R. 1921 P.C. 231 (P.C.).

——Where a pleader allows the essential points in a case to be overlooked the decree cannot be vacated for fraud though the pleader may be liable for misconduct. 59 Ind. Cas. 752 (Cal.).

——Negligence—Dismissal of appeal—Liability to client.

Per Richards, C.J.:—If it is shown that an advocate who is a Barrister or other professional gentleman received and accepted instructions to file an appeal but his client lost his right of appeal as a result of his negligence to file the appeal or application in time he will be liable to the client. 37 All. 267=13 A.L.J. 286=28 Ind. Cas. 265.

13. Power and duty of Court.

——Retention or re-admission—Question as to—Hardship and pity are no considerations—Unsuitable persons cannot be admitted or retained as matter of grace or charity—Court's duty is to safeguard larger interests of legal profession and litigants.

The question of retention on or re-admission to the roll of Advocates cannot be decided on considerations of individual hardship or on appeal to one's sense of pity. The High Court in the exercise of its disciplinary jurisdiction has to safeguard the larger interests of the legal profession and the litigant public and unsuitable persons cannot be admitted or retained as a matter of grace or charity. The Court's effort should be to try and keep the profession of law free from influences that may degrade or corrupt it and on the other hand to protect the litigant public against persons whose character is proved to be such that it would be unsafe to allow them to occupy the position of privilege commanded by Advocates of the High Court. A.I.R. 1946 Lah. 338=226 Ind. Cas. 470 =49 Pun. L.R. 62 (F.B.)

——Mortgage between Solicitor and client—Duty of Court in such matters.

Transactions of mortgage between a Solicitor and client to secure the payment of money advanced at the time are not ordinarily subjected by the Courts to the same jealous scrutiny as, for instance a gift from a client to a Solicitor, or purchases or sales at under-value between a Solicitor and client. If the money was sorely needed and was paid, the mortgagor had its benefit, the rate of interest was reasonable, and the terms neither excessive nor onerous, there is no reason why the transaction should not stand as a valid mortgage between the parties. 52 L.W. 777=A. I. R. 1940 P.C. 204=7 B.R. 218=(1941) M.W.N. 1=I.L.R. (1940) Kar. (P.C.) 419 Sup.=1941 O.W.N. 513=1940 A.W.R. 158=67 I.A. 431=(1941) A.L.J. 316=43 Bom. L.R. 465=73 C.L.J. 121=191 Ind. Cas. 94 (P.C.)

——Defence asserting that Pleader for opposite party may be required as witness—Court, if can restrain Pleader from appearing in case—Duty of Pleader.

For the proper control of the legal profession, it is essential that the Courts should have authority to refuse to permit a particular Pleader to appear on behalf of a particular person in a particular case when it would be gross misconduct on the part of the Pleader so to appear. But the mere facts that the defence asserts that the Pleader for the prosecution will be required as a witness for the defence, and that the Magistrate himself thinks that he will be a material witness for the defence, are not sufficient grounds for restraining the Pleader from appearing in the case for the prosecution. A Pleader who is conducting a case, is, nevertheless, a competent witness therein, and there is no harm in his giving evidence in a case in which he is appearing but it is desirable that a pleader should not appear in a case if he knows or has reason to believe that he will be an important witness in the case, and no self-respecting Pleader should conduct a case under such circumstances; if he accepts the brief not knowing or having reason to believe that he will be such a witness, but discovers subsequently that he is a witness on a material question of fact, he should retire from the case. A.I.R. 1939 Rang. 342=1939 Rang. L.R. 224=40 Cr.L.J. 936=184 Ind. Cas. 182.

——Review—Inherent power.

Although there is no express provision for a review of an order made under the Legal Practitioners Act, there is inherent power in the High Court to restore a Pleader whose name has been struck off the rolls. A.I.R. 1935 All. 321=4 A.W.R. 1404=156 Ind. Cas. 243 (F.B.)

In criminal proceedings, the Court should not accept the certificates given by Pleaders as to the solvency or fitness of sureties proposed by their clients as sufficient without further enquiry. A.I.R. 1934 Sind. 142= 35 Cr.L.J. 1455=151 Ind. Cas. 747.

——Harassing tactics of Counsel—Remarks as to conduct of Counsel in ex-parte order—Whether can be expunged—Method of provoking Magistrate into some unguarded expression and then applying for transfer condemned.

The High Court is jealous to protect Counsel who appear before the Subordinate Courts from undue interference in the legitimate exercise of their duties to their clients, but it is also jealous to protect the Courts from harassing tactics on the part of Counsel. Therefore, the High Court will not be prepared to expunge any remarks made as to the conduct of Counsel even from an ex-parte order of the Subordinate Court unless the High Court is fully satisfied that the remarks were not deserved.

Where the Counsel resorts to attempting to provoke the Magistrate trying the case into some unguarded expression and then applying for a transfer, the method adopted will be neither in the interest of his client nor in the interest of justice. A.I.R. 1933 All. 949=35 Cr.L.J. 548=147 Ind. Cas. 1164.

——Mistake of counsel.

Where the Counsel of the plaintiff committed a blunder which was apparent on the very face of the record,

Held, that plaintiff should not be deprived of a decree if as a matter of fact the place of the plaintiff were sustainable and the suit should be decided according to the pleas as put forward psior to the blunder by the Counsel. 91 Ind. Cas. 442 (Lah.).

——Presence at hearing.

When a vakil represents his client the right of audience is, for the time being, vested in him. For the purpose of continuing the hearing or commencing the hearing, he is the appellant. It he is absent there is default. Even if the client is corporeally present in the eyes of the law, he is not present in such a sense as to prevent the absence of the vakil from being a default. If a Judge is anxious to assist a party in distress he can give him a little time to obtain the assistance of a new vakil, or adjourn the case, and make him pay costs or something of that sort, but for a default of this kind, subject to the penalty usually inflicted the client should not be deprived of the right of having his appeal heard. 80 Ind. Cas. 950=5 L. R. A. Civ. 615=A.I.R. 1925 All. 58.

——Suit on a bond executed by client to attorney—Bond held voidable—Power of court to grant compensation for work done in the same court.

In a suit by an attorney on a promissory note executed by his client in his favour the court found that the note, was given at present for work done and that the client had no independent advice when he gave the note. Held, that, although the suit was on a promissory note, yet having regard to the fact that the attorney had worked for his client, and that there was a prayer for general relief in the plaint, the attorney was entitled to his remuneration in the present suit, which was to be ascertained upon a reference to the Registrar. 6 C.W.N. 816=29 C. 595.

14. Power-of-attorney Agent.

——Agent — Whether entitled to all rights of legal practitioner—Whether has right of audience—Principal intending to conduct proceedings himself—Agent, if entitled to notice.

Power-of-attorney agent cannot be accorded all the rights and privilege which are enjoyed by members of the legal profession. For, such an agent, unlike legal practitioners, need possess no qualifications whatsover as regards education and character and is not bound by any rules of professional conduct or etiquette and is not subject to the disciplinary control of the High Court or of any one. The power of attorney agent, therefore, cannot carry on business as a Solicitor or attorney, drafting, engrossing and filing plaints. Judge's summons' affidavits and generally issuing legal process and charge fees to the principal. For, to carry on such business is to practise.

Such an agent with a power-of-attorney to appear and conduct judicial proceedings but having not been so authorised by the High Court, has no right of audience on behalf of the principal either on the Original or Appellate Side of the High Court. He is not, therefore, entitled to notice if his principal wants to appear and conduct the proceedings himself or appoint an Advocate to appear for him, as his power-of-attorney authorising him to plead is of no force. A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 937=(1937) M. W. N. 1060=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 552=46 L.W. 734=I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 12=172 Ind. Cas. 489 (F.B.).

——Agent with power of attorney to conduct proceedings—Powers of.

There is no warrant whatever for putting a power-of-attorney given to a recognised agent to conduct proceedings in Court in the same category as a vakalat given to a legal practitioner, though probably the latter may also be described as a power-of-attorney. Such a power-of-attorney or appointment as it is called is confined only to Pleaders, that is, those who have a right to plead in Courts. A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 937=(1937) M.W.N. 1060=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 552=46 L.W. 734=I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 12=172 Ind. Cas. 489 (F.B.)

——Authority of agent—Construction—Power to prosecute appeal.

Where the power-of attorney provides that' whatever shall be done by agent shall be acceptable to the executant rthereof the holder of the power can engage a plead e for prosecuting an appeal in the lower Appellate Court. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 583 (583-584) 9 R.L. 234=165 Ind. Cas. 274.

Retainer of an attorney ordinarily comes to an end when the suit is ended. Attorney would require fresh authority to act for his clients in execution proceenings. They have no authority to accept a notice in execution. 34 Bom. L.R. 615=A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 337=138 Ind. Cas. 820.

15. Proceedings against.

——Proceedings against.

Allegations against legal practitioner amounting to criminal charge—Proper procedure is to prosecute him Criminally before proceeding under Legal Practitioners' Act. A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 783=I.L.R. (1938) 2 Cal. 138 =40 Cr.L.J. 87=178 Ind. Cas. 456.

——Allegation making him liable to criminal prosecution—Procedure.

Where the allegation against a legal practitioner amounts to a charge of criminal prosecution, the correct procudure to be followed is that proceedings under the Legal Practitioners' Act should not be taken but that, if it was thought necessary to take action, it should be by way of criminal prosecution. A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 272=38 C.W.N. 87=149 Ind. Cas. 874 (1).

——While it is not incompetent for the High Court to deal under Art., 8. Letters Patent with charges of a criminal nature against a practitioner, unless and until these have been investigated by a Criminal Court, it is eminently fitting that in such cases, the criminal prosecution should precede any disciplinary decision. A.I.R. 1931 P.C. 112=35 C.W.N. 640=(1931) A.L.J. 450=53 C L J. 405=(1931) M.W.N. 603=33 Bom.L.R. 945=53 A 183=34 L.W. 59=61 M.L J. 130=58 I. A. 152=132 Ind. Cas. 608 (P.C.).

——Conviction of legal practitioner—Case sent to Bar Council for enquiry into his conduct—Duty of Bar Council—Whether it can justify action of legal practitioner—Disciplinary action.

Where a legal practitioner has been convicted of a criminal offence and his case is sent for an enquiry by a Tribunal of the Bar Council into his conduct with a view to seeing whether he has done anything which seems to indicate the necessity of taking disciplinary action against him, the Tirbunal should merely record the fact that he had been convicted of an offence and ask him to show cause why no disciplinary action should be taken against him. The Tribunal cannot go further and justify the action of the legal practitioner. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 394=1938 Rang L.R. 125=178 Ind. Cas. 592.

——Criminal proceedings against Counsel finally concluded—Presumption as to their correctness—Subsequent enquiry for disciplinary action—Question to be determined.

When criminal proceeedings are taken against a Pleader or an Advocate and finally concluded, they must be taken to have been rightly decided and the question to be determined in a subsequent enquiry as to whether the Advocate or Pleader ought to have disciplinary action taken against him is whether, upon a perusal of the facts and circumstances disclosed in the evidence in the criminal proceedings, his offence has been one implying a defect of character which unfits him to be a Pleader or Advocate. Such a defect of character normally involves moral turpitude. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 394=1938 Rang. L.R. 125=178 Ind. Cas. 592.

——Disciplinary action—Conviction for sedition—Legality—Whether can be challenged.

Where a legal practitioner has been convicted for sedition, he cannot, in an inquiry under the disciplinary jurisdiction of the High Court, contend that his conviction was not justified on the facts found. The High Court must assume, for the purposes of the enquiry that the speeches made by him contained the expressions mentioned in the judgment in the case against him. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 251=35 Cr.L.J. 1010=15 L. 354=962 P.L.R, 510=149 Ind. Cas. 764 (S.B.)

——Conviction of Advocate conclusive.

In the enquiry in respect of the removal of the name of an Advocate from the rolls, the conviction of the Advocate by the competent Magistrate must be accepted as proper, and cannot be re-opened. 65 Ind. Cas. 560 =44 All. 352=20 A.L.J. 200=23 Cr.L.J. 128=A.I.R. 1922 All. 140 (F.B.)

——Findings on questions of fact recorded by Bar Tribunal—When accepted by High Court.

The question whether a particular Advocate has violated the recognized canons of professional etiquette is primarily a matter that concerns the Bar Council and consequently, the High Court ordinarily accepts findings on questions of fact recorded by the Bar Tribunal provided the findings are not perverse. A.I.R. 1940 All. 1= (1939) A.L.J. 957=1939 A.W.R. 828=41 Cr.L.J. 211= I.L.R. (1940) All. 60=185 Ind. Cas. 611 (S.B.).

——Proceedings against Advocate as to why his name should not be struck off the rolls—Proceedings, whether second trial.

Where proceedings are taken against a legal practitioner as to why his name should not be struck off from the roll of Advocates the proceedings are not in the nature of a second trial or a new punishment. But the question is, whether, after the conduct of the man, it is proper that he should continue a member of a profession which should stand free from all suspicion. A.I.R. 1935 Rang. 458=37 Cr.L.J. 200=159 Ind. Cas. 1036.

——Enquiry should not be started without grave consideration.

It is right and proper that all judicial officers, high or low, should keep a vigilant eye on the conduct of legal practitioners, of whatever status, who are all ministers of the Court and should, in proper cases, institute inquiries under the Legal Practitioners' Act or make complaints under the Bar Councils Act according to the status of the legal practitioner concerned, but legal practitioners are one and all, of whatever status, entitled also to the protection of the Court, and inquiries should not be instituted or complaints made without having given very grave consideration to the reasonable probability of the case against the legal practitioner being well-founded. Permanent and undeserved harm may be caused to the reputation of any legal practitioner against whom ill-considered proceedings are taken. (1931) A.L.J. 678=A.I.R. 1931 All. 580=33 Cr.L.J. 260=136 Ind. Cas. 287 (S.B.)

——Reference to Special Bench.

Reference to a Special Bench in the matter of a legal practitioner's professional conduct is a step which should not be taken lightly unless the Court is satisfied that the question is of such a serious nature that it is in the interest of the profession as a whole and of litigants in general that a full enquiry should be made into it by a Special Bench for that purpose. Where an attorney failed in his duty to disclose documents come to his knowledge subsequent to the filing of an affidavit of documents,

Held, that the matter was not so serious as to justify further investigation by a Special Bench. 61 Ind. Cas. 908=25 C.W.N. 99=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 267.

——Court should not treat anything in the conduct of the case by the practitioner against whom proceedings are taken as indicating a lack of confidence in his own defence on the merits. 84 Ind. Cas. 353=26 Bom. L.R. 887=A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 1 (F.B.).

——Where the Advocate-General has not moved the Court at the instance of the representative body of the profession the rule should be served upon the body also in order that they may have an opportunity of representing to the Court the point of view of the profession. 84 Ind. Cas. 353=26 Bom. L.R. 887=A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 1 (F.B.).

——In proceedings which affect an officer of the Court personally it is necessary that the rule should be brought on for hearing as quickly as possible. 84 Ind. Cas. 353=26 Bom. L.R. 887=A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 1 (F.B.).

——Misconduct—Proceedings by Advocate-General—Right of private party to be heard.

It must depend upon the discretion of the Court having regard to the circumstances of the case to decide whether a private party may be heard or not after proceedings have been taken by the Advocate-General against a legal practitioner for professional misconduct. 84 Ind. Cas. 353=26 Bom. L.R. 887= A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 1 (F.B.).

——Privilege—Full Bench.

The question whether a Counsel has exceeded the licence given him for conducting the case can only be dealt with by the Full Bench. 9 Ind. Cas. 509 (Cal.)

——Suit for accounts against Counsel.

Even if there be no general agency between Counsel and client, a suit for accounts is maintainable against Counsel in respect of the suits in which he was engaged by the client. 33 P.L.R. 1074=A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 60=140 Ind. Cas. 564 (1).

16. Professional Communications.

See Evidence Act, S. 126.

17. Purchase in execution proceedings.

——Purchase in execution proceedings — Sale not invalid.

Although a pleader purchasing property at an auction sale in execution of a decree in which he was professionally engaged on behalf of the decree-holders infringes certain rules of conduct, the sale does not thereby become invalid. 117 Ind. Cas. 471=6 O.W.N. 226=4 Luck. 635=A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 235.

——Concealment of name—Sale invalid.

There is no more certain way of taking advantage than the way of concealment, and if an attorney or agent can show he is entitled to purchase, yet if instead of openly purchasing he purchases in the name of a trustee or agent without disclosing the fact, no such purchase as that can stand for a single moment and the advantage he has acquired by concealing the name of the real purchaser must be given up Even where the Trusts Act does not apply the above principles hold good. 81 Ind. Cas. 752= 33 M.L.T. 472=1924 M.W.N. 155=19 M.L.W. 349=22 A.L.J. 177=51 I.A. 24=2 Pat. L.R. 96= 51 Cal. 299=26 Bom. L.R. 575=5 L.R.P.C. 110=29 C.W.N. 491=A.I.R. 1924 P.C. 34=46 M.L.J. 532 (P.C.).

18. Re-instatement.

——Re-instatement—Considerations—Moral fitness — Burden of proof — Legal practitioner found guilty or cheating his client.

When an applicant seeks admission to the Bar and the Court is called upon to determine his moral fitness for the position to which he aspires, he is entitled to the benefit of the presumption that he is morally fitted for such position and but little evidence may be required in support of his application,

When he has been so admitted and it is charged that he is unfit to continue to exercise the power vested in him as a pleader, the Court should guard his every right and see to it that he is not deprived of an opportunity to follow his chosen profession excepting upon clear proof of more than trivial abuses of the confidence that has been reposed in him. But when after full and fair trial he stands convicted of such wrong doing as demonstrates his unfitness to act as a pleader—an officer in courts of justice—and his licence as such has been revoked, if he petitions for re-instatement the onus is on him to establish by satisfactory evidence, that he has undergone such moral change as to render him a fit person to enjoy the trust and confidence once forfeited. A court should be slow to disbar but it should be even slower to re-instate. It should endeavour to make certain that it does not again put in the hand of an unworthy petitioner that almost unlimited opportunity to inflict wrongs upon society possessed by a practising practitioner. It becomes the duty of the Court upon a petition for re-instatement of one who has been disbarred to seek such information as it may lawfully receive touching upon the moral fitness of the petitioner to be admitted to practise his profession as a pleader. A legal practitioner, who is, after a fair trial, found guilty of an offence of cheating his client, which was not the result of momentary lapse but was a deliberate act calculatedly executed is absolutely unfitted for the profession of law and should never be allowed to return to the profession whatever his promises as to the future and whatever be the number of recommendations bearing upon their face evidence of the worthiness of such a petitioner. A.I.R. 1949 E.P. 344=51 Cr.L. J. 140 (F.B.).

——Re-instatement—Considerations — Advocate removed for misbehaviour involving moral turpitude.

There is no absolute bar to the re-admission of an Advocate removed for misbehaviour involving moral turpitude. The punishment is not perpetual but the only set of circumstances in which such a person can be re-admitted is when if at all, he can satisfy the Court that as the result of the punishment he has undergone since his exclusion, he has got so chastened by remorse and hardship that the temptations to which he gave way once, when he committed acts justifying his exclusion, are such that he, by virtue of his reformed character, will now be able to resist. The onus of proving that his character has been so reformed is on the applicant and he must discharge that by evidence. The nature and the gravity of the offence originally committed by him has to be considered, as also the effect that the punishment for the offence and hardship during the period of exclusion are likely to have had on his character. Evidence usually in the form of affidavit should be furnished by the petitioner for re-admission which tends to show that during the period of exclusion he has led a blameless life and has earned the esteem and regard of his neighbours. This evidence is evidence of a purely negative character and ordinarily would not be sufficient. He must prove affirmatively and satisfy the conscience of the Court dealing with the petition for reinstatement that he has in fact acquired that sense of duty, honour and integrity which he once lost, and that therefore it would be safe to re-admit him without degrading the profession of law and without danger to the litigant public. The question of retention on or re-admission to the roll of advocates cannot be decided on considerations of individual hardship or on appeal to one's sense of duty. I.L.R. (1947) Lah. 150=49 P.L.R. 62=226 Ind. Cas. 470=A.I.R. 1946 Lah. 338 (F.B.).

——Re-instatement—Mukhtear disbarred on finding of criminal breach of trust in respect of client's money.

The relationship between a lawyer and his client is one that demands the utmost good faith on the part of the lawyer. The ignorance of clients, their inability to be present on every occasion when money is paid or received on their behalf, and the general reputation of members of the profession all require that a person who derogates from the high standard demanded of a legal practitioner must not be permitted to be in a position where he can harm the interest of his clients, and the reputation of the profession to which he belongs, and at the same time, the reputation of the Court for the administration of justice. Where a Mukhtar whose name was struck off the Roll in 1937 on a finding that he had committed criminal breach of trust in respect of a sum of money entrusted to him by his client, applied in 1945 to be re-instated attaching to his petition a number of certificates granted to him by persons who testified to his good conduct since the original proceedings were taken against him.

Held, that the moral lapse which occurred in 1937 was such as to indicate that the petitioner was not a person who should be placed in a position of trust where the possibility must always arise of another lapse. 226 Ind. Cas. 388=1946 P.W.N. 299=12 B. R. 742=47 Cr.L. J. 932=A.I.R. 1946 Pat. 357 (F.B.).

——Moral turpitude is no absolute bar to re-instatement—Applicant can satisfy Court that he has got so chastened by remorse and hardship that he can resist temptations to which he gave way once—Onus to prove reformed character is on applicant—Nature of evidence required indicated.

There is no absolute bar to the re-admission of an Advocate removed for misbehaviour involving moral turpitude. The punishment is not perpetual but the only set of circumstances in which such a person can be readmitted is when, if at all, he can satisfy the Court that as the result of the punishment he has undergone since his exclusion, he has got so chastened by remorse and hardship that the temptations to which he gave way once, when he committed acts justifying his exclusion, are such that he, by virtue of his reformed character, will not be able to resist, the onus of proving that his character has been so reformed is on the applicant and he must discharge that by evidence. What type and amount of evidence is required will naturally depend on the facts of each case, but it certainly cannot be a mere assertion by the applicant himself coupled with an assurance to behave in future. This nature and the gravity of the offence originally committed by him has to be considered, as also the effect that the punishment for the offence and hardship during the period of exclusion are likely to have had on his character. Evidence usually in the form of affidavit, should be furnished by the petitioner for re-admission which tends to show that during the period of exclusion he has led a blameless life and has earned the esteem and regard of his neighbours. He could show in a variety of ways that in him has awakened a higher sense of honour and duty since he originally committed the offence justifying his removal. This he must prove affirmatively and satisfy the conscience of the Court dealing with the petition for re-instatement that he has in fact acquired that sense of duty, honour and integrity which he once lost, and that therefore it would be safe to readmit him, without degrading the profession of law and without danger to the litigant public. A.I.R. 1946 Lah. 338=226 Ind. Cas. 470=49 Pun. L.R. 62 (F.B.).

——Name struck off from roll for misappropriation—When can be re-admitted.

Before the Court can re-admit an Advocate who has been struck off the rolls for misappropriation, the Court must be fully satisfied that he has fully regained his character and is fitted for re-admission into the ranks of an honourable profession. Mere opinion is not sufficient. The Court requires solid facts and cogent reasons, not merely the opinions expressed by gentlemen who had given him certificates. Re-admission does not depend on the fact that he has been suspended or struck off the rolls for several years. He can only be re-admitted if he can show that he has become worthy to act as an Advocate. In deciding such matters, the Court has a duty to the public and where an Advocate has been guilty of misappropriation, it must be shown that there is no likelihood of such an offence being committed again.

——Re-instatement—Considerations— Advising on law for reward after being struck off—Strong ground for refusing re-instatement.

The success or otherwise of an application for re-instatement must depend upon the character, reputation, behaviour and other matters regarding the applicant after he has been dirplaced from his membership as pleader from the roll. It is no ground to support an application of that sort to state that the applicant has advised friends and clients in legal affairs. If after ceasing to be qualified as a professional gentleman in legal matters, an individual nevertheless, to the utmost extent possible continues to act for reward in legal matters and advises in such matters that would be very strong ground to refuse his application for re-instatement. I.L.R. (1948) Mad. 449=A.I.R. 1948 Mad. 62=1947 M.W.N. 521=60 L.W. 560=(1947) 2 M.L.J. 250 (F.B.)

——Re-instatement — Evidence on which the Court will act upon — Practice — Certificate as to character and integrity — Statements as to opinions of deponents in affidavits—Value to be attached.

In applications for restoration to the roll of advocates, it is not the practice of the High Courts to act upon more certificates of character and integrity of the applicant subsequent to the removal of his name from the rolls. The contents of such certificates have to be placed in the form of affidavits. In such cases, the Court would not pay attention to statements as to opinions but only to statements of facts regarding the applicant's conduct, behaviour and trustworthiness.

Upon a review of the circumstances of the case, including the statements in the several affidavits by people who had employed the applicant or engaged his services since his name was removed from the rolls, it was held that the applicant had atoned for his past misconduct, had re-instated himself as an honest and upright member of society, had shown that he was now a person who deserved the confidence of his fellow citizens and had regained the character which was formerly his but which he lost by reason of his misdeeds and that therefore he could be readmitted to the roll of advocates. 1947 M.W.N. 475=60 L. W. 508=A.I.R. 1948 Mad. 137=(1947) 2 M.L.J. 213 (F.B.)

——Relationship between lawyer and his client demands utmost good faith on part of lawyer—Mukhtar committing criminal breach of trust respecting client's money—Mukhtar struck off Roll—Application for enrolment—Mukhtear's subsequent good conduct testified by number of persons —Petitioner held should not be enrolled as possibility must always arise of another lapse.

The relationship between a lawyer and his client is one that demands the utmost good faith on the part of the lawyer. The ignorance of clients, their inability to be present on every occasion when money is paid or received on their behalf, and the general reputation of members of the profession, all require that a person who derogates from the high standard demanded of a legal practitioner must not be permitted to be in a position where he can harm the interest of his clients, and the reputation of the profession to which he belongs, and, at the same time, the reputation of the Court for the administration of justice, Lawyers are officers of the Court, and their misconduct cannot but affect that trust which litigants are entitled to place in the conduct of legal proceedings.

Where, therefore, a Mukhtar applied to be enrolled as such, his name having been struck off the roll on a finding that he had committed criminal breach of trust in respect of a sum entrusted to him by a client, and a number of persons testified to his good conduct since the original proceedings were taken against him:

Held, that although the reputation of the petitioner was somewhat better than it was at the time of the original proceedings taken against him, the moral lapse which had occurred then was such as to indicate that the petitioner was not a person who should be placed in a position of trust where the possibility must always arise of another lapse. ——Re-instatement—Principles.

The High Court has power to entertain a petition for the re-instatement of an advocate struck off the rolls. When a question of re-instatement arises what the Court has to see is whether the applicant, since he was disbarred, has honestly endeavoured to rehabilitate his character so that if restored to Bar he will be upright and honest and he can be expected to conduct himself as an officer of the Court and co-operate in the administration of law and maintenance of order. 51 Mys. H.C.R. 42=24 Mys. L J. 83.

——Pleader—Dismissal for professional misconduct—Re-instatement, ground for.

Where a Pleader who was removed from practice on the ground of professional misconduct, after some years applies for re-admission saying 'he tenders his unconditional apologies, proclaims his unqualified repentance and promises a clean and unspotted career in future if given an opportunity,' neither the interests of justice, nor the public interests, nor the interests of the profession demand that clemency should be withheld from him.

——Bribery or attempted bribery by Advocate—Advocate disbarred for such offence—Re-instatement after four years—Propriety of.

An Advocate found guilty of an offence like bribery or attempted bribery is guilty of grossest professional misconduct and can, in no circumstances, suffer so light a penalty as suspension for four years. It is an offence which can necessarily only be purged after strenuous efforts and after a long period during which he has tried his best to reinstate himself in society. The door is not, however, inevitably and permanently shut to persons who are disbarred: they may, after the lapse of a suitable period of time, provided their conduct has been uniformly satisfactory, ultimately reach re-instatement. But re-instatement is not a matter of course and it is not something which can be hoped for within a brief period of four years. A.I.R. 1939 Rang. 142=1939 Rang. L.R. 213=180 Ind. Cas. 902 (2) (S.B.)

——Misconduct and suspension—Re-instatement—Inherent Power of Court to re-instate—Principles.

The High Court has power to re-instate a legal practitioner dismissed for misconduct. But he will not be reinstated as a matter of course after a certain length of time if his conduct during that time is not called in question. The nature of the offence or misconduct for which he was disbarred, the length of time which he has elapsed since his dismissal, the extent to which he has been tried in other walks of life, the opportunities he had of acting honestly in the face of temptations and the opinions of respectable persons who have had personal experience of his honesty are the important determining factors. Where the circumstances in which a legal practitioner deviate from the path of recitude are not of a recurring nature or do not suggest a deep-rooted criminal tendency. a few years of unblemished life may justify the belief that he has turned a new leaf. Where, however, the offence or misconduct proved against him was of such gravity as to indicate an inherent defect of character and moral depravity, very cogent proof ought to be forthcoming to satisfy the Court that he has completely reformed himself.

Held, on facts, no case was made out that Mukhtear who was convicted of criminal breach of trust should be re-instated A.I.R. 1937 All. 50=(1936) A.L.J. 1396=1936 A.W R. 1160=38 Cr L.J. 296=I.L.R. (1937) All. 411=166 Ind. Cas. 818 (F.B.)

——Exclusion from practice—Re-instating of—Jurisdiction—Tests.

The High Court has the power to re-instate a Pleader even though the Court, for professional misconduct, had struck him off the roll.

The guiding principle in re-instating is to see whether the sentence of exclusion has had the salutary effect of awakening in the delinquent, a higher sense of honour and duty, and whether, during the period between his expulsion and the date of the application for re-instatement, the applicant's conduct has been such as to satisfy the Court that he might be safely entrusted with the affairs of clients and re-admitted to an honourable profession without that profession suffering degradation. What the Court has to see is whether the applicant has, since he was expelled, honestly endeavoured to rehabilitate his character so that if restored to the bar, he will be upright and honest in his dealings:

Held, that the applicant had, for an adequate period, acted in such a manner as will permit the Court to exercise its discretion of allowing him a chance of redeeming his character. 38 Bom. L.R. 1161=A. I. R. 1937 Bom. 48=I.L.R. (1937) Bom. 99=166 Ind. Cas. 628.

——Advocate offending against criminal law struck off the rolls—Whether can be re-instated.

When an Advocate is struck off the rolls of Advocates for having offended against criminal law he cannot be re-instated as an Advocate except in very exceptional circumstances. A. I. R. 1936 Rang. 368=14 R. 390=37 Cr.L J. 905=164 Ind. Cas. 236 (1) (S B.)

——Misconduct—Re-admission to profession.

The High Court is under a manifest duty to give a legal practitioner, who has been removed from the roll of legal practitioners in consequence of a serious offence in the course of his professional duties but who realises the gravity of his offence and having made up his mind for the future to lead a straightforward and honourable life is able to satisfy the High Court that for the past seven years since his removal from the roll of legal practitioners, it has been his genuine and earnest endeavour to rehabilitate his character, another opportunity of practising the law, by cancelling the order standing in the way of his practising. 82 Ind. Cas. 282=25 Cr.L. J. 1274=A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 250.

——On a question when and how, a legal practitioner who has been debarred, should be restored to his former position, the test to be applied is whether the sentence of exclusion. however right, has had the salutary effect of awakening in the delinquent a higher sense of honour and duty, and whether, in the interval, his conduct had been so irreproachable that, not withstanding a delinquency in early life, he might be safely entrusted with the affairs of clients and admitted to an honourable profession without that profession suffering degradation. An application to strike off the rolls or re-admit to them ought not to be looked at with respect to the punishment of the individual himself. The Court has a duty to perform to the suitors and to the profession of the law, and is bound to see that the persons admitted to it are persons on whose integrity and honour, reliance may be placed, persons whose conduct has been such as to inspire confidence in their character. 79 Ind. Cas. 564=16 S.L.R. 11=A.I.R. 1921 Sind 91 (F.B.).

——Power of High Court to restore a pleader.

Although there is no express provision for a review of an order made under the Legal Practitioners' Act, there is inherent power in the High Court to restore a Pleader whose name has been struck off the rolls. 4 A.W.R. 1404=A.I.R. 1935 All. 321=156 Ind. Cas. 243 (F.B.)

——Dismissal for professional misconduct—Re-admission—Procedure.

——No general agency.

There is no such thing as a standing relation of a legal practitioner to a man. A man is a pleader for another only when that other has occasion to employ him as such. That employment may be either to conduct a suit or to advise him about some matter in which legal advice is required, but there is no such general relationship as that of solicitor and client of a standing and permanent character upon all occasions and for all purposes. 84 Ind. ——Counsel—Duty of—Leaving examination of witness to Court and submitting to tendency of Court—Propriety of.

It is the duty of counsel appearing for parties to take the trouble to see that the record is properly completed. It is neither proper nor desirable for counsel to neglect the duty of asking necessary questions of witnesses in examination, and to leave it to the judge to do so, feeling that the tendency of the Judge lies in a particular direction. Counsel should not submit to that tendency. Counsel has no doubt a duty to the Judge, but he has also a duty himself and a duty to his client, and it is entirely unbefitting the dignity of the Bar for any Counsel to permit himself to be made a sort of pliable instrument in the hands of the Judge. It is not for Counsel merely to watch which way the wind blows and then to trim his sail according to that wind. He must do his duty to his client even when he feels that the Judge is for the time being against him. 51 Bom. L.R. 523=A.I.R. 1949 Bom. 346=I.L.R. 1950 Bom. 110.

——Counsel accepting vakalat, though no fee was paid—Not present in Court though notice of hearing was sent to him—Propriety.

Apart from the duty which a counsel owes to his client, he owes an obligation to the Court also. Where a counsel has accepted a vakalat though no fee was paid to him and has filed it in Court and notice of hearing is sent to him, but he leaves the station without making any arrangements for representation to be made to the Court with the result that no body appears on the date of hearing and the case is dismissed, the conduct of the counsel is open to criticism. 22 Luck. 101=A.I.R. 1948 Oudh 144=1947 A.W.R. ——Rights of, while conducting criminal case.

A counsel must be free and unhampered in the conduct of the defence of a case, especially in a murder case, and if he considers that a particular plea is available he is entitled to raise it. The question whether the plea is tenable or not is for the Court to decide. A.I R. 1946 Nag. 321=226 Ind. Cas. 377=47 Cr. L. J. 918=1946 N. L. J. 656=I.L.R. (1946) Nag. 946.

——Pleader engaged on behalf of person for certain cases with separate vakalat for each case—Whether prevented from appearing against such person in another case.

Where a Pleader does not hold a general retainer on behalf of a certain person but has merely been engaged in certain cases and in each case, he is given a separate vakalat, there is nothing to prevent him from appearing on behalf of another person against the former in another case. A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 493=(1943) 1 M.L J. 487=56 L.W. 344=44 Cr.L.J. 735=I.L.R. (1944) Mad. 71=1943 M.W.N. 512=208 Ind. Cas. 147 (S.B.).

——Advocate and Pleaders—Duties towards clients—Advocate appearing for one party in dispute should not be allowed to appear on behalf of other party and against original client in subsequent litigation arising between them out of same dispute.

Though the methods of appointment of Advocates and higher or lower grade Pleaders are different and the discipline by which they are controlled arises from different sources, their duties as representing their clients ars similar and the principles applying in one class of legal advisers ought to be applied in the case of another.

An Advocate or Pleader who has appeared on beha of one party in a suit ought not to allow himself to be placed in the position in which there might be some suspicion, whether well or ill founded, that his knowledge of his client's case would be used by him on a subsequent occasion in appearing for another party and against his original client. Therefore, a legal practitioner who has acted for one party in a dispute should not be allowed to act for the other party in subsequent litigation between them relating to or arising out of that dispute. A.I.R. 1939 Rang. 183=1939 Rang. L.R. 514=182 Ind. Cas. 77 (S. B.)

——Counsel brifed by one party at one stage of the case, cannot appear against interest of client—Assurance not enough.

As a matter of practice, a Counsel should not be allowed to appear against the interests of a person who has briefed him at one or other stage of the case. It is absolutely necessary for taking opinion that the party should lay all his cards before the Counsel concerned, and it is only after he has thoroughly gone into the facts of the case that a lawyer can be in a position to advise his client. In the circumstances, it would be unfair to allow the Counsel to appear against the same person later on, and an assurance on the part of that individual would also be of no avail in the matter. A.I.R. 1935 Pesh. 65=158 Ind. Cas. 591.

——Rights and duties—Accepting briefs—Breach of confidence.

A counsel ought not to accept a brief in any case in which he would be embarrassed in the discharge of his duty by reason of the confidence reposed in him by the other party in a previous though unconnected case, and if his embarrassment is self-evident and his action an obvious scandal, it can be brought before the general Council of the bar. A.I R. 1930 Mad. 626.

——Breach of confidence.

A, a Barrister, allowed a client S to see him and to give his version of the case in full without warning him that he had not yet accepted the case and therefore could not regard himself as his advocate and without warning him that the other side had approached him to represent them in the matter and that he had not yet declined their offer. Subsequently A was engaged by the other side.

Held, that there could be no doubt that S reposed confidence in A by discussing the case in a way he did.

Held, further, that the conduct of A could not be regarded as professional misconduct but the case came within the ambit "Counsel ought not to accept a brief against a party even though the party refuse to retain him, in any case in which he would be embarrassed in the discharge of his duty by reason of confidence reposed in him by that party" and the Court is justified in holding that it would not be fair to S to allow A to appear for the other side. 8 Rang. 446=A.I.R. 1930 Rang. 355.

——Changing sides.

P, a legal practitioner, acting for his client S, a vendor, sued to set aside an award made in respect of a dispute about conveyance and under instructions from S alleged that the agreement by vendee M to finance S which formed consideration for conveyance being left unperformed by vendee the award which in effect confirmed agreement which was the basis of conveyance was illegal and the conveyance was invalid. Subsequently S sued to set aside conveyance on grounds of undue influence, misrepresentation and inadequacy of or failure of consideration. In that suit P appeared on behalf of M and denied allegations of S and affirmed the validity of conveyance, Held, that P's changing sides was bound to embitter litigation and be prejudicial to S and that there was a probability of mischeif and consequently P ought not to appear for M. A.I.R. 1917 P.C. 30, Foll. 8 Rang. 44=A.I.R. 1930 Rang. 185.

——Where it is sought to restrain a Vakil from appearing for the opposite side, it must be shown that the party who desires to prevent the vakil from appearing should have offered the engagement in the first instance and the Vakil should have refused the engagement on insufficient or improper grounds. The mere fact that instructions were obtained in other proceedings which arose out of a right claimed in the proceedings under consideration, gives only a preferential right to the party to engage the Vakil and if he is prepared to engage him, the Vakil has a duty to appear for him and not to appear on the other side. 110 Ind. Cas. 544=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 592.

——Legal practitioner should create confidence that information from client will never be utilized against him.

Pleaders would do well to avoid any conduct on their part which is reasonably capable of being misunderstood. If a pleader advises or acts for a client he should not appear against him in any subsequent proceeding if he feels that he might in such proceeding even unconsciously use the information gained from his former client against him. Clients should have the fullest confidence in their legal advisers and should not be deterred or hampered in disclosing the strength and weekness of their cases by the fear that their instructions might at some future time be used against them by their legal advisers. 92 Ind. Cas. 300=48 Mad. 676=22 M.L.W. 606=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 1201=49 M.L.J. 366.

——It is an elementary principle of professional ethics that it is not proper for a legal adviser to use knowledge obtained in one case to the detriment of his client in another case. Where there is a danger of that occurring in any case it can only be avoided by not allowing the Pleader to accept the later engagement or to act the reunder. 62 Ind. Cas. 712=13 M.L.W. 541=1921 M W.N. 646=A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 666=41 M.L.J. 60.

——Appearance at trial both as counsel and party.

An Advocate, who is accused with others of a criminal offence, cannot appear at the trial as Counsel for his co-accused. Counsel cannot appear in the same matter both as Counsel and party. There is no objection to an Advocate who is accused of a criminal offence or is a party in a Civil Court conducting his own defence or his own case. He is fully entitled to do so. But he cannot be in Court in the same matter in the two capacities. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 808=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 156=54 L.W. 133=1941 M.W.N. 683=43 Cr.L.J. 43=I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 1019=196 Ind. Cas. 624.

——Duty of Counsel to give correct statement of facts.

When Counsel take on themselves the responsibility of making statements of fact to the Court, the Court is entitled to assume that those statements are true in every particular, so that it may implicitly rely upon them. This is a rule which admits of no qualification. It is an honourable obligation of the Bar and of great value in the administration of justice. A.I.R. 1940 F.C. 25=6 B.R. 498=21 P.L.T. 405=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 28 Sup.=T.L.R. (1940) Kar. (F.C.) 52 Sup.=(1940) M.W.N. 685=52 M.L.W. 122=44 C.W.N. (F.C.) 29=72 C.L.J. 142=(1940) F.C.R. 75=187 Ind. Cas. 453 (F.C.)

——Duty in making statements.

Counsel should realize their responsibility when they make statements of fact on behalf of their clients and should not commit their clients to any position on which they are not sufficiently informed; but if once a statement is made in all solemnity, especially when it goes to the root of the case, it cannot be ignored lightly. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 437=174 Ind. Cas. 722.

——Rights and duties—Taking instructions.

Legal Practitioners must make some effort to acquaint themselves with the necessary information for carrying on their business and advising their clients properly. They should not allow their clients to go to Court for trial without the available materials and the relevant documents. It is heart breaking to see how lawyers practitioners go blindly along a beaten path without giving themselves the trouble to understand what their clients really want and without availing themselves of the machinery which the Legislature has provided with such scrupulous care. 64 Ind. Cas. 878=44 All. 176=19 A.L.J. 971=A.I.R. 1922 All. 254.

——Rights and duties—Thorough study.

——Counsel must prepare case before coming to Court—Documents on record—Pleader should not take Court's time in finding out passages from documents—Duty of clients towards Counsel.

It is incumbent on Counsel to prepare their cases before they come to Court and it is not proper that a prolonged period, of the Court's time should be taken up by Counsel endeavouring to find out a passage in a vernacular document which is on the record. It is the duty of clients to supply certified copies of all necessary documents to their Counsel in order that Counsel may be aware of the necessary passages in the documents before the case is heard in Court. It is not possible for Counsel to supply the place of evidence by his argument. A.I.R. 1939 All. 303=(1939) A.L.J. 118 =1939 R.D. 115=1939 A.W.R. 176=I.L.R. (1939) All. 447=181 Ind. Cas. 745.

——A Pleader defending a person has to do more than go through the record. He has to go through all the prosecution evidence, find out what defence may best be set up and what means there exist for putting up that defence. 39 Cr.L.J. 576=A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 198=175 Ind. Cas. 350.

——Duty of Advocate—Conduct of case—Proper arrangements.

Obiter Per Sharpe, J.—It is ordinarily the duty of an Advocate to be present, or to make suitable arrangements for the conduct of the case, and the Courts are not to be inconvenienced by the postponement of cases until the proper Advocate is available. A.I.R. 1939 Rang. 1=1939 Rang. L.R. 108=180 Ind. Cas. 565.

——Counsel being engaged in another case when case called—Necessity of making proper arrangements.

The mere fact that a Counsel happens to be engaged in one Court is no excuse that the Judges in other Courts, where he has cases, should wait for him until he can find time to attend to them. The mere fact that a Counsel is engaged in some other Court should not justify the postponement of his other cases as they come up for hearing.* Counsel should be present as their cases are called, and if they are unavoidably absent, they should make proper arrangements. (1935) 158 Ind. Cas. 609.

——Where a Counsel is briefed for a case and the case appears on the daily board for hearing for the next day, he should make up his mind if he will be able to attend whenever the case is called on, and if he will not be able to do so, he should return his brief. If two Counsels are engaged, they ought to arrange between themselves that one or other of them at any rate will be in a position to attend if the case is called on. A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 634=34 Bom. L.R. 1425 =141 Ind. Cas. 402.

——Authority of Counsel—Conduct of case.

A Counsel appearing in a case from the very nature of his duties and for the purpose of a proper conduct of the case must be deemed to have implied authority to admit or deny a document, to press or withdraw an issue in the case, to examine a witness or call no witness and do such other acts which are required for the proper management and conduct of the trial. A. I. R. 1939 Oudh 257=1939 O. W. N. 825=1939 A.W.R. 160=1939 R.D. 542=14 Luck. 723=183. Ind Cas. 821.

——Pleadings—Drafting of.

Judges have many and various cases to deal with and it is the duty of the Advocates and Pleaders to assist them from the inception of a suit by a proper presentation of their cases.

Advocates and Pleaders have a duty to their clients to give the due attention to their cases from the start and not merely when the hearing stage is reached, as so many practitioners apparently think. The drafting of the pleadings is as important, and may frequently be as difficult, as the presentation of the case in Court. Good pleadings take time, and it is the Pleader's duty to take time over, and to give careful thought to the pleadings which bear his name. A.I.R. 1939 Rang. 189=1939 Rang. L.R. 1=183 Ind. Cas. 49.

——Although it is not proper to apply the rules of pleadings in Mofussil cases strictly, it does not follow that the Mofussil or any other kind of Pleaders are thereby absolved from obeying the provisions of schedule to the Civil P. C. A.I.R. 1936 Nag. 177= 165 Ind. Cas. 29.

On the other hand, he cannot take shelter behind his client and claim to be an entirely irresponsible instrument in his client's hands. There remains in him a duty and an obligation to his fellow citizens and he is certainly not entitled to make scandalous and serious allegations against those fellow citizens unless he has some basis upon which the allegations can be grounded. A.I.R. 1935 All. 425=(1935) A L. J. 759=1935 A.W.R. 285= 155 Ind. Cas. 1043 (S.B.).

——Statements in the affidavit of his clients drafted and filed by him on instructions—Responsibility in respect of—Extent and nature of.

It is well settled that although a legal practitioner has his duty towards his client, he has other duties and responsibilities as well and that he should not on the instructions of his client make a charge of fraud against another in an affidavit without satisying himself that there are reasonable grounds for the allegation. But he has not got to satisfy himself that the statements made by his client were aboslutely true. All that is incumbent on him is to satisfy himself that there are reasonable grounds for believing them. I.L.R. (1947) M. 1=228 Ind. Cas. 324=48 Cr.L.J. 198=59 L.W. 401 =1946 M.W.N. 548=A. I. R. 1946 Mad. 538=(1946) 2 M.L.J. 79 (F.B.).

——Making reckless charge of fraud—Duty to satisfy that there are grounds.

Although an Advocate has his duty towards his client to perform, he has other duties and responsibilities as well. He has no right whatever even on the instructions of his client recklessly to make charges of fraud. His responsibility to the Court, and to the Bar whose traditions it is his duty to maintain, make it incumbent upon him to satisfy himself that there are reasonable grounds for making such charges. A.I.R. 1935

Mad. 578=(1935) M.W.N. 340=69 M.L.J. 250=42 M.L.W. 412=36 Cr.L.J. 1342=158 Ind. Cas. 302.

——Cross examination of witness.

The Counsel should have full freedom to cross-examine a witness and nothing should be done which would hamper his cross examination. If a Counsel is continually pressed by a succession of 'next' 'next' of the Judge that distrub the flow of his ideas and interferes with effectiveness of his cross-examination; if he is not permitted to cross-examination freely, then the effectiveness of the cross-examination in marred. A.I.R. 1944 Nag. 320=1944 N.L.J. 396.

——Right to put questions in cross-examination to discredit witness—Evidence Act (I of 1872), ss. 146, 148.

Considering the provisions of Ss. 146 and 148, Evi. Act, and also bearing in mind the fact that unlike in England, the privilege of a Counsel in India is qualified, there can be no question that a Counsel or Advocate, provided he has instructions, has a large amount of discretion in the matter of putting questions in cross-examination. In the interests of his client, in the interest of justice, and in order to discredit the witness he is cross-examining, the Advocate is entitled to put questions within the limits his good sense might dictate or indicate. A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 766=42 C.W.N. 1113=178 Ind. Cas. 253 (S.B.).

——Rights and duties—Discretion in questions.

While counsel have their privileges they have also their rosponsibilities and ought never to abuse their position or their privileges and therefore though an advocate may act from a sense of duty towards his client and in entire good faith, he must exercise his own discretion before he puts the question to the witness. 104 Ind. Cas. 717=55 Cal. 85=46 C.L.J. 227=28 Cr. L. J. 877=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 823.

——Complaint—Drafting of—Duty of Advocate.

A distinction must be drawn between the complainant and his Advocate, for, it may well be that the complainant had knowledge which his advocate did not possess. Moreover, it is obvious that an Advocate cannot be expected to constitute himself a Judge either of the law or facts of his client's case. He is his client's adviser and must act according to his instructions, provided always those instructions do not require that he should be guilty of an offence or of misconduct or that he should institute in a Court criminal proceedings which, to his own certain knowledge, are false. Moreover, it is his bounden duty to put into the complaint the material facts upon which the complaint is based and not wilfully, by acts of omission, to deceive the Court. A. I. R. 1937 Sind 193=38 Cr. L.J. 1002=170 Ind. Cas. 891.

——Solicitor acting for client—Duty of disclosing personal interest.

It is most desirable that a Solicitor, acting for a client in any transaction, should not have a personal interest in that transaction without making full disclosure of the nature and extent of that interest to the client. A.I.R. 1936 P.C. 224=44 M.L.W. 315=163 Ind. Cas. 434 (P.C.)

——Counsel is expected to be free from any personal, as distinguished from professional, interest in litigation. 34 P.L.R. 445=A.I.R. 1932 Lah. 584=142 Ind. Cas. 689.

——Pleader having interest in case—If can plead.

It is undesirable that a member of the Bar should plead in a case concerning which he has a personal interest. 39 C.W.N. 274=(1936) 164 Ind. Cas. 897.

A legal practitioner cannot validly object to the order of the Court to produce a document at least, for the inspection of the Court—before the Court decided whether the objection to its production was or was not valid. 37 Cr. L. J. 113=A.I.R. 1936 All. 212=(1935) A.L.J. 1176=58 A. 364=159 Ind. Cas. 524.

——It is neither proper nor professional that Counsel should go alone before a Judge or Judges in their private room and impart to them a matter inimical to the other side. It is also improper or undesirable that on having received the information, the Judges in question should give advice as to what course should be taken when they had only heard one side of the question. (Duty of Counsel and the Judge pointed out.) A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 47=62 C. 289=162 Ind. Cas. 100.

——Selection of documents—Duty of Solicitor.

Solicitor must select documents necessary for case. In cases of doubt, the solicitor should take the advice of Counsel on this point. Ejaz Ali v. Special Manager. A.I.R. 1935 P.C. 53=68 M.L.J. 397=61 C.L.J. 102=1935 A.L.J. 744 (P.C.).

——Premature threat from Bench — Pleader's duty—Compromise.

It is the duty of members of the Bar, if their clients are threatened prematurely from the Bench not to adopt an attitude which may be described as pusillanimous, but protest then and there that they resent such observations; and after consulting with their Attorney instructing them, it may become necessary for them to apply for a transfer of the case to the list of another Judge.

Where soon after the premature threatening of his clients by the Bench, the Pleader consented to settle the case:

Held, that the Counsel was intimidated and was not free to consider the whole aspect of the settlement from an unbiased point of view, and that the Court had an inherent power to set aside this settlement. 60 C.L.J. 179=39 C.W.N. 61=36 Cr. L. J. 698=A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 231=62 C. 223=155 Ind. Cas. 297.

——Issues.

It is the duty of the Court to frame issues which arise out of the pleadings, but it is also the duty of Counsel to get the proper issues framed. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 251=16 L. 782=158 Ind. Cas. 465.

——Client—Statement of intention of executant, by his Pleader, if binding on client.

The question whether the parties intended that the mortgage deed should or should not be enforced in the case of default of either party is purely a question of fact and not a question of law. Hence a Pleader's statement regarding such intention of the executant is binding on his client. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 71=16 L. 328=37 P.L.R. 596=157 Ind. Cas. 806.

——Duty to Court in conduct of cases—Imputing motives to presiding officer—Asking irrelevant and scandalous questions.

The duty of an Advocate is to assist in the administration of justice and not to obstruct or to impede it, and in the performance of his professional duties, he is expected, not to be influenced by personal motives, desire of revenge or by resentment. It is improper for him to adopt an insulting attitude towards the presiding officer of the Court or to impute motives to him. It is illegal for him lo ask irrelevant and scandalous questions and he incurs grave personal responsibility if he does so. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 300=38 Cr. L.J. 611=168 Ind. Cas 773.

——Responsibility towards Court.

The duty of a member of the legal profession is to realize his responsibilities, not merely to his clients, but to the Court before whom he practises. A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 249=16 P.L.T. 231=36 Cr. L. J. 1023=1 B.R. 660=156 Ind. Cas. 889 (S.B.)

——Rights and duties—Assistance to Court.

It is the duty of a pleader whether briefed for the accused or for the Crown, as an officer of the Court, when he sees an error being committed, to draw the Magistrate's or the Judge's attention to it. It is the duty of a pleader, according to the high traditions of the English Bar, to assist the Court in the attainment of justice. 95 Ind. Cas. 753=20 S.L.R. 261=27 Cr. L.J. 833=A.I.R. 1926 Sind 244.

——Obiter.—A pleader has duties and obligations to his client in respect of the suit or matter which is entrusted to him and is pending in Court. There is a further and equally important duty and obligation upon him, viz., to co-operate with the Court in the orderly and pure administration of justice. 82 Ind. Cas. 712=2 Rang. 265=25 Cr. L. J. 1352= A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 320.

——Duty to disclose facts to Court.

A legal practitioner cannot suppress the truth in Court as to his own doings. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 797= 34 P.L.R. 963=146 Ind. Cas. 474 (2).

——Solicitor and client—Duty of—Non-disclosure of material facts, if makes him liable for damages.

When a party holding a fiduciary relationship, commits a breach of his duty by non-disclosure of material facts which his constituent is entitled to know in connection with the transaction he cannot be heard to maintain that the disclosure would not have altered the decision to proceed with the transaction because the constituent's action would be solely determined by some other factor, such as the valuation by another party of the property proposed to be mortgaged. Once the Court has determined that the non-disclosed facts were material, speculation as to what course the constituent, on disclosure, would have taken is not relevant. A. I. R. 1934 P. C. 176=(1934) A.L.J. 613=40 M.L.W. 206=4 A.W.R. 638=151 Ind. Cas. 972 (P.C.).

——Advocate—Rights of—Non-litigious work—Special authority of Counsel.

The rights of an Advocate (Original Side) are the same as those of a Barrister. Counsel in conducting litigation has many powers, duties, privileges and obligations extending beyond the mere duty of acting as an Advocate. Amongst other things, he has power to refer the matter in dispute to arbitration, or to compromise it. Those powers and obligations are derived from his retainer as Counsel and not from any contractual appointment as an agent. On the other hand, in non-litigious work. Counsel has no such special authority. His authority in that class of work is merely that of an agent, and depends on the particular terms of his employment.

The special authority of Counsel in relation to litigation is confined to litigation in the ordinary course and does not extend to matters pending before private tribunals. 36 Bom. L. R. 18=A.I.R. 1934 Bom. 101=58 B. 447=149 Ind. Cas. 1235.

——The public are entitled to receive dis-interested, sincere and honest treatment and advice from the Advocates to whom they repair for counsel and succour in their time of need; and the Court has always insisted that members of the legal profession "should stand free from all suspicion." 12 R. 110=A.I.R. 1934 Rang. 33=149 Ind. Cas. 856.

——Merely because a legal practitioner is a member of a society, he is not prevented by any rule of professional etiquette from accepting instructions from the society of which he is a member, though it is improper for a member of the Bar who is a director of a company or a society to appear for remuneration for that company or society in its legal business. A.I.R. 1933 Mad. 682=38 L.W. 401=65 M.L.J. 367=(1933) M.W.N. 977=56 M. 970=145 Ind. Cas. 438.

——Duties of Advocates.

The position of an Advocate is a privileged and responsible one and the public have a right to look upon the Bar as consisting of persons in whom they may have the utmost confidence. 34 Cr.L.J. 1131=A.I.R. 1933 Pat. 571=14 P.L.T. 709=12 Pat. 843=145 Ind. Cas. 1017 (S.B.).

——There is always a limit beyond which Counsel should not go in attacking the opposite party or his witnesses.

A Counsel has a very valuable privilege; in that he is not liable in other than exceptional circumstances to civil or criminal proceedings on account of anything which he may say in Court on behalf of his clients. But that privilege imposes a corresponding responsibility and a Counsel has to be very careful not to make any attack upon parties or witnesses engaged in the case, which goes beyond what is fairly necessary for the presentation of his own client's case. 34 Bom.L.R. 443=A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 199=138 Ind. Cas. 543.

——Agreement—Mistake by Pleader — Wrong exercise of judgment by Counsel.

If a Counsel gives his consent to a decree on a misunderstanding, that may be good reason for the Court refusing to enforce the agreement. Where, however, the Counsel himself does not complain of having acted on a misunderstanding, the Court cannot presume that he had acted on a misunderstanding. If the client is negligent in giving instructions and if the Counsel's exercise of judgment is not very sound, the agreement arrived at cannot be impeached on those grounds. A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 231=59 C. 31=35 C.W.N. 674=54 C.L.J. 558=136 Ind. Cas. 535.

——Counsel's privilege does not extend to stating his instructions when these instructions involve an attack on dignity of Court. 33 Cr.L.J. 675=33 P.L.R. 785=A.I.R. 1932 Lah. 502=138 Ind. Cas. 878 (F.B.).

——Aspersion of fraud in judgment.

Where a serious aspersion of fraud is cast against a legal practitioner in the judgment of the Court, he should take steps to get that aspersion expunged if he could do so. 36 L.W. 781=1933 M.W.N. 54=140 Ind. Cas. 600=A.I.R. 1933 Mad. 96=63 M.L.J. 945.

——Collecting evidence for client, propriety of.

In the Punjab, the Counsel has the duties, both of Solicitor and of Advocate, and he does not exceed his duties in collecting evidence on behalf of his client or even in furnishing him information which was in his own personal knowledge and not in the knowledge of his client at all. A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 246=32 P.L.R. 772=134 Ind. Cas. 515.

A Pleader, having filed a written statement, handed over the envelope containing its copy to the Pleaders in the Bar room, who wanted to read it out of curiosity and interest on the point of law involved therein.

Held, that as the proceedings formed part of the judicial record, he was privileged in handing over the same to the Pleaders inside the Bar room. A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 246=32 P.L.R. 772=134 Ind. Cas. 515.

——In a case of murder, the Advocate for defence should be very careful in advising accused to dispense with his defence witnesses especially if these witnesses were present at the time of occurrence. A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 163=32 Cr.L.J. 1067=133 Ind. Cas. 488.

——Solicitor and client—Implied retainer—Permissibility. See Calcutta High Court Rules and Orders, (O.S.) Chap. 36, Rr. 2 and 3. 84 C.L.J. 9.

——When a litigant comes to engage a Counsel very often he is uneducated, if not illiterate, and in many cases, he is not familiar with the practice and procedure of Courts. On the other had, Counsel are in a position to realize fully the importance and value of written contracts and are, therefore, expected to keep written records of the terms of their engagement. This is particularly important in their own interest lest there should be any misunderstanding or dispute unnecessarily arousing suspicion. 1936 R. D. 890=A.I.R. 1936 All. 359=(1936) A.L.J. 300=1936 A.W.R. 339=162 Ind. Cas. 622 (S.B.).

——Money paid to attorney for special purpose—Duty of attorney.

Money paid to the Attorney by his client unless paid to him expressly for costs, i. e., for the purpose of being used is trust money, should never be used by him even though he can pay it back within a reasonable time or immediatety. In such a case, it is the duty of Attorney to distinguish it from other moneys and for this purpose, enter the amounts properly in his own books into a ledger account of the client, to put the money into a separate account in the bank and never to touch the money. I.L.R. (1943) 1 Cal. 81.

——Rights and duties—Account of client's money.

It is the duty of every Advocate who receives money on behalf of his client to conduct litigation with, to keep an account of how that money has been applied. 1930 M.W.N. 216.

——Rights and duties—Advice from Court.

It is not right for a Counsel to take advice from the Court as to the kind or amount of evidence which has to be produced in support of his client's case, and even if a Court goes out of the way and gratuitously gives such advice, which itself would be an extremely improper act on its part, Counsel ought not to be guided by such advice, but must exercise his own independent judgment in deciding as to how to proceed in the conduct of his case. 116 Ind. Cas. 555=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 401.

——Rights and duties—Affidavits.

According to the well recognized practice which prevails wherever members of the English Bar practise, the counsel should never file an affidavit in a case in which he is appearing professionally. 107 Ind. Cas. 108=29 Cr. L. J. 220=9 A.I.Cr.R. 514=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 276.

——A legal practitioner who chooses to file an affidavit in support of a petition of appeal or revision must swear to the facts as they occur and take scrupulous care not to conceal or distort them or confound them with his own impressions hastily formed at the time. From the slip of notes found attached to the record of the appeal or the refusal of the Judge to wait for the records before proceeding with the hearing or from his own failure to make an impression on the Judge the practitioner has no right to assume that the Court had made up its mind or pre-judged the case.

The members of the legal profession are responsible for the fair and honest conduct of a case and they cannot be allowed to make personal attacks or reckless and unfounded charges of impropriety or inattention against a tribunal when the real ground is that the Advocate concerned has failed to make an impression by his arguments on the Court concerned and lost his case in spite of every effort. 81 Ind. Cas. 937=5 L.R.A. Civ. 389=25 Cr.L. J. 1113=A.I. R. 1924 All. 565.

——Rights and duties—Application for sanad—Rule 16, Nagpur Judicial Commissioner's Court.

The R. 16 framed by the Judicial Commissioner against a legal practitioner carrying on money-lending business speaks of the state of things obtaining at the date of the application for admission as a pleader and is not made applicable to the pleaders enrolled prior to that date, as it casts on the applicant for enrolment the duty of stating the fact of his carrying on any trade or other business in his application. 107 Ind. Cas. 903=A.I.R. 1928 Nag. 273.

——Rights and duties—Arguments.

So long as he is not guilty of unnecessary repetition or of irrelevant arguments a Counsel is entitled to present his client's case as he thinks best and it is no ground for a Judge to decline to hear him or to cut short his argument merely because he is expected by the superior Courts to turn out a certain amount of work within a fixed time. 107 Ind. Cas. 763=29 Cr.L.J. 279=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 319.

——Counsel in a Letters Patent appeal are not confined to the arguments addressed to the single Judge. 89 Ind. Cas. 958=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 113.

——Rights and duties—Brief for another Counsel.

If a Counsel holds a brief for another Counsel, it is his duty to inform the reader that he does so. 110 Ind. Cas. 772=26 A.L.J. 1393=A.I.R. 1928 All. 718.

——Rights and duties—Counsel of accused.

Entire devotion to the interests of the client, warm zeal in the maintenance and defence of his rights and the exercise of his utmost learning and ability, these are the points which can only satisfy the truly conscientious advocate. Every man accused of an offence has a constitutional right to a trial according to law and the duty of his counsel requires him to scan with legal knowledge the forms of the proceeding against the accused. Counsel assigned for the defence of an accused charged with the offence of murder cannot decline the office, nor can he abate a jot of his duty to the accused and to the Court, because of the querulous attitude taken by another Counsel who is asked to associate himself with the Counsel assigned to the accused. 115 Ind. Cas. 561=48 C.L.J. 307=33 C.W.N. 136=30 Cr.L.J. 494=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 1.

——Rights and duties—Death of party.

A practitioner who appears for several respondents, one of whom dies before the hearing of the appeal, owes a clear duty to the Court to bring to its notice if he is aware of the fact that one of the respondents for whom he has entered appearance is dead and no longer represented by him. 114 Ind. Cas. 601=57 All. 267=1929 M.W.N. 220=56 I.A. 80=33 C.W.N. 318=29 M.L.W. 423=1929 A.L.J. 85=49 C.L.J. 141=A.I.R. 1929 P.C. 58=56 M.L.J. 304 (P.C.)

——Rights and duties—Discovery of documents.

It is the duty of an attorney to be extremely careful in ascertaining from his client who has to make an affidavit of this nature, exactly what materials and documents are in his possession. It is further his duty, the moment he finds that there are other documents which have not been disclosed at the very earliest moment to bring these documents to the notice of his opponent and give him an opportunity of inspecting them. 61 Ind. Cas. 908=25 C.W.N. 99=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 267.

——Rights and duties—Examination of documents.

During the progress of the hearing of a suit, a counsel has the privilege of examining such documentary evidence as he may have summoned from a witness or a party, before tendering it in evidence. 83 Ind. Cas. 782=46 All. 575=22 A.L.J. 521=5 L.R.A. Civ. 785=A.I.R. 1924 All. 625.

——Rights and duties—Pardanashin lady.

Where a pleader acting for a pardanashin lady never sees her, never speaks to her in reference to proceedings nor has he any communication with her upon the points raised in the suit, then he is deemed to have failed in his duty towards her. Conduct of a pleader who does not even take trouble to satisfy himself that he is really engaged on behalf of the pardanashin lady and his vakalatnama is really on her behalf and not on behalf of certain enemies of hers who wanted to ruin her deserves severe condemnation. 112 Ind. Cas. 522=5 O.W.N. 847=A.I.R. 1928 Oudh 449.

——Rights and duties—Personal opinion—Expression of.

Per Mookerjee, J.—It is not the duty of the pleader to approach the trial Judge and to apprise him that in his opinion the man, whose fate has been entrusted to his care, has no defence to make.

His duty is to protect his client as far as possible from being convicted except by a competent tribunal and upon legal evidence sufficient to support a conviction for the offence with which he is charged.

A man's rights are to be determined by the Court not by his attorney or Counsel. 81 Ind. Cas. 353=25 Cr.L.J. 817=28 C.W.N. 170=38 C.L.J. 411=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 257 (F.B.).

——Rights and duties—Refusing brief.

The lawyers in their profession have got to do their duty and they cannot refuse to take up a party's case even if the other party is also a lawyer when all the conditions are fulfilled, viz., the tender of a proper fee, the willingness to give complete instructions and the case of the character that the pleader is accustomed to take, and when no allowable, reasonable and honest excuse exists. 117 Ind. Cas. 104=1929 A.L.J. 1047=A.I.R. 1930 All. 309.

——A lawyer has no right to reject a brief when offered to him on payment of fee agreed upon between the parties, on grounds of partisanship for a party to the litigation. A.I.R. 1914 Oudh 372, Foll. 88 Ind. Cas. 1048=2 O.W.N. 682=26 Cr.L.J. 1272=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 672.

——A lawyer has no right to reject a brief when offered to him on payment of fee agreed upon between the parties on grounds of partisanship for a party to the litigation. 80 Ind. Cas. 826=11 O.L.J. 337=27 O.C. 401=A.I.R. 1924 Oudh 372.

——Rights and duties—Resumption of practice.

Where a legal practitioner has been in Government service but has been subsequently discharged and he applies for permission to resume practice, it is incumbent on him to make a full and complete disclosure of the circumstances that led to his discharge. 38 C. 309, Foll. 62 Ind. Cas. 831=37 C.L.J. 391=27 C.W.N. 528=22 Cr.L.J. 591.

——Duty of—Acquisition of subject-matter of suit—Duty to reconvey—Equity.

While the relation of pleader and client continues, the pleader cannot as against his client acquire absolutely a beneficial interest in or title to the subject matter of the litigation antagonistic to that of his client; if the pleader gains a pecuniary advantage, he must hold it for the benefit of his client, subject to reimbursement for expenses incurred. 22 C.W.N. 491=27 C. L.J. 388=44 Ind Cas. 13.

——Selection of Junior.

The practice of one counsel already engaged in the case selecting the other counsel who should be briefed with him is contrary to the traditions and to the best interests of the profession and ought to be discouraged. 44 Cal. 741=26 C.L.J. 605=42 Ind. Cas. 63.

——Transfer of brief—Pleader appearing for another—High Court rules.

Where a pleader appears for another who is unable at the moment to attend court he ought to let the court know that he is so appearing. 20 C.W.N. 283=17 Cr.L.J. 1916=33 Ind. Cas. 831.

——Duty of—Pleader—Trustee—Rights.

A pleader trustee should not appropriate the first assets realised as his fee without the consent of beneficiaries. 6 S.L.R. 183=19 Ind. Cas. 443.

——Duty of—Paper book—Contract between Pleader and Hight Court.

An undertaking by a pleader to prepare an office book is a contract between the Pleader and the High Court which the Court expects him to fulfil and can be enforced in the same way as the contracts by attorneys are enforced. 19 C.L.J. 432=25 Ind. Cas. 510.

——Duty of—Clients with conflicting interest.

By the custom of the mofussil, a pleader employed by a party to a proceeding before a Court is bound faithfully and exclusively to serve that party throughout the whole proceeding. The pleader in the mofussil is not merely an advocate. He is the confidential legal adviser of his client and does for him those things which in the Presidency towns are often done by solicitors. For legal advice, for the prosecution of legal proceedings in all their stages, the client depends on the pleader. This dependence makes the position of the pleader peculiarly onerous and binds him to give exclusive attention to the interests of the client throughout any proceeding in which he is engaged. In winding up proceedings, a single pleader must not represent two different creditors whose interests are known to conflict. A pleader must not accept a vakalatnama when he knows that he cannot act for his client throughout the proceedings. 36 Bom. 606=14 Bom. L.R. 700=13 Cr.L.J. 913=16 Ind. Cas. 788.

——Duty of—Before Land Acquisition Officer.

Legal practitioners attending before Acquisition Officer should not refer to the consequences if the case be taken to Court; they are to assist the officer in arriving at a valuation by putting before him all the materials and information at their disposal. 34 Bom. 481=11 Bom. L.R. 1176=4 Ind. Cas. 278.

——Duty of.

A counsel, like a judge, should not be subject to fear for the consequences of anything which he might say in the course of his duty. Instructed or not, it is the pleader's duty to make a suggestion, if he thinks it might advance the interests of his client and in this he is not limited to the record in the case. 3 S.L.R. 177=10 Cr.L.J. 514=4 Ind. Cas. 176.

——Duty of.

Pleaders are a privileged class enrolled for rendering asistance to courts in the administration of justice. 33 Bom. 252=10 Bom. L.R. 1169=2 Ind. Cas. 264.

——Duty of—Discovery of document.

It is the duty of an attorney to be extremely careful in ascertaining from his client, who has to make an affidavit of documents, exactly what materials and documents are in his possession. The moment he finds there are other documents which have not been disclosed, he is bound to bring those documents to the notice of his opponent and give him an opportunity of inspecting them. Held, that the conduct of the attorney in not disclosing documents subsequently when they came to his knowledge, was wrong, but was not such as to justify disciplinary proceedings. 25 C.W.N. 99=61 Ind. Cas. 908=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 267.

——Evidence calling of—Responsibility of Advocate.

If an advocate takes the responsibility of not calling evidence, whatever his reasons for so doing may be, the case cannot be re-opened in order to admit such evidence after it has been decided. 4 Bur. L.T. 161=11 Ind. Cas. 779.

——Duty of—Supplying forms with signature by the client.

Legal practitioners should discourage the practice of their clients supplying them with blank forms of execution and other kinds with their signatures. 1 Ind. Cas. 667 (Mad.).

——Unable to appear—Duty of.

If there is a chance of neither of the two counsel briefed in a case being able to attend when the case is called on, one of them must return his brief in good time. In case of dispute it is the duty of the junior to return the brief or to make arrangements for some other counsel to attend till he can come in. (1908) 33 B. 475=10 Bom. L.R. 1172=3 Ind. Cas. 992.

——Duties of.

It would be too strict to hold that it is the duty of counsel, at their peril, to restrain judges within the Cursus curie, and to insist on their abstaining from experiments which to some may prove too alluring to admit of adherence to legal media concludendi. (1907) 6 C.L.J. 5=11 C.W.N. 721=71 M.L.J. 347=4 A.L.J. 461=31 B. 381=9 Bom. L.R. 671=34 I.A. 115=2 M.L.T. 435 (P.C.).

——Right of audience—In transfer applications from mofussil to High Court — Extra-ordinary Original Jurisdiction.

Vakils have not as a matter of practice, the right to appear in transfer applications from the file of a mofussil court to its file on the extra-ordinary original side. (1910) 37 C. 853=8 Ind. Cas. 724.

——Right of audience—Insolvency appeals in the High Court.

A Vakil has the right of audience before an Appellate Bench of the High Court in appeals from the Insolvency Court. (1908) 18 M.L.J. 565.

——Statements made in professional capacity—Privilege—Nature, scope and limits of protection. See Torts—Defamation—Privilege. I.L.R. (1945) All. 702=A.I.R. 1946 A. 213.

——Care and diligence should be exercised in choosing clerk.

There is a duty cast upon members of a monopolist profession to exercise care and due diligence in the persons whom they employ, and if they choose to employ a person known by them to de irresponsible, without taking adequate steps to keep a close personal check upon his actions, then they are themselves at fault and will become liable to be called to account. A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 370=179 Ind. Cas. 471.

21. Status.

——If subordinate officer of Court.

A lawyer is no doubt subordinate to the Courts in so far as he is subject to the disciplinary authority of the Courts but, all the same, he cannot be characterised as a subordinate officer of the Court. To call a responsible person like a lawyer a subordinate officer of the Court and thus degrade him to the level of other ministerial officers working in the Court is an entirely erroneous conception of the position he occupies. [The word "subordinate" was ordered to be expunged from the judgment of the Magistrate]. 44 P.L.R. 511=A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 14=44 Cr.L.J. 181 =I.L.R. (1943) Lah. 791=204 Ind. Cas. 299.

Quaere.—Whether since the passing of the Bar Councils Act, the status of a Barrister of England is identical with that of an ordinary Advocate of India. (1932) A. L. J. 764=A. I. R. 1933 All. 3=142 Ind. Cas. 241.

——Status.

The status of an advocate of the Calcutta High Court does not differ from that of a barrister in England. 88 Ind. Cas. 413=29 C. W. N. 566=52 Cal. 386=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 696.

——Legal Remembrancer (Patna)—Position of.

In the province of Bihar, the position of Legal Remembrancer is governed by certain rules which have been published by the Government. He is the Chief Law Officer of the Government and it is his duty to superintend and advise on the conduct of all litigation, criminal and civil, to which Govt. may be a party or with which Govt. is in any way concerned. He is also ex-officio public prosecutor in all cases coming before the High Court of Patna or before a y other Court in the province. Further, as Chief Law Officer of the Govt. it is his duty in criminal matters to instruct Govt. Advocate when necessary in relation to cases coming before High Court. The definition of his duties given in Govt.

Rules is wide enough to empower him in a case of contempt of Court to move on behalf of Govt. or the Governor and to instruct the Advocate-General to carry on proceedings for contempt in the High Court. A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 185=7 B. R. 261=42 Cr. L. J. 225=20 Pat. 306=21 P.L.T. 980=191 Ind. Cas. 834.

——Government pleader.

Court should treat the Vakil for Government with the same stringency as, but with no greater stringency than, any of pleaders appearing for other litigants. 79 Ind. Cas. 745=51 Cal. 70=40 C.L.J. 163 =A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 774.

——Mukhtear—Status and position of.

A Mukhtear is an attorney, whether appointed specially or generally or certificated as a legal practitioner. A Mukhtearnamah is a document which empowers him to act for the person by or on whose behalf the document is executed and includes a power-of attorney in favour of a person other than a certified Mukhtear. 108 P.W.R. 1912=202 P.L.R. 1912=15 Ind. Cas. 122.

22. Withdrawal from case.

——Withdrawal from case—Grounds—Notice—What amounts to.

A Solicitor may withdraw on good grounds which include misconduct of an offensive character or such misbehaviour on the part of the client as makes it impossible for a selfrespecting solicitor to continue to act for him. It is incumbent upon the Attorney to give reasonable notice to the client of his intention to withdraw from the case. That the Attorney would apply to be discharged from the case which application comes on for hearing before the Court the next day does not mean giving reasonable notice to the client. 20 C.W.N. 443=23 C.L.J. 473=33 Ind. Cas. 78.

——Withdrawal from case—Implied—Non-payment of out-of-pocket expenses.

The rufusal of Attorney to go on acting unless his out-of-pocket expenses are paid by the client, amounts to a discharge of Attorney by himself and he, thence forward, cannot claim to retain the papers when they are wanted for continuing the litigation. 20 C.W.N. 437=23 C.L.J. 326=33 Ind. Cas. 73.

——Withdrawal from case—Implied—Non-payment of necessary funds.

An Attorney discharges himself by refusing to proceed with a suit because the client does not put him in funds. The contract of the Attorney is an entire contract to carry on the litigation to its termination subject to his being paid. 40 Cal. 386=17 C.W.N. 278 =18 Ind. Cas. 315.

23. Witness.

——Witness.

Person appearing as Counsel in case should not give evidence as witness in same case—If he wants to give evidence, he must retire from case as Counsel. A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 691=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 479=44 Cr.L.J. 114=55 L.W. 845=203 Ind. Cas. 585 (S.B.).

——Advocate for accused cited as prosecution witness, whether must withdraw from case—Trial Court coming to conclusion that trial would be embarrassed by his appearance—Whether can require him to withdraw.

An accused person is entitled to select the Advocate whom he desires to appear for him, and the prosecution cannot fetter that choice merely by serving a subpoena on the Advocate to appear as a witness. On the other hand, the Court is bound to see that the due administration of justice is not, in any way, embarrassed. If therefore, a Court comes to the conclusion that a trial will be embarrassed by the appearance of an Advocate who has been called as a witness by the other side, and, if, notwithstanding the Court's expression of its opinion, the Advocate refuses to withdraw, in such a case, the Court has inherent jurisdiction to require the Advocate to withdraw. A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 150=41 Bom. L. R. 282=40 Cr.L.J. 568 (1)=181 Ind. Cas. 769.

——Witness.

Counsel cited as witness by Police in criminal case—He is not disqualified from taking brief from accused though it would not be in accordance with professional etiquette. 48 L.W. 276=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 446=.A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 878=(1938) M.W.N. 976=40 Cr.L.J. 92=178 Ind. Cas. 532.

——It is against the etiquette of the bar that a Counsel should give evidence in the case in which he is engaged as Counsel, and no self-respecting Counsel would like to conduct a case for the defence after having been called as a witness for the prosecution. 91 Ind. Cas. 65=27 Cr.L.J. 33=1925 M.W.N. 702=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 1153=49 M.L.J 95.

——Counsel, if can give evidence.

A Counsel is not incompetent to give evidence, whether the facts to which he testifies occurred before or after his retainer. As a general practice, it is undesirable that when a matter to which Counsel deposes is other than formal, he should testify either for or against the party whose case he is conducting. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 204=40 P.L.R 558=178 Ind. Cas. 235.

——A Vakil, who at the time of the negotiations, is acting on behalf of one of the parties and conducting litigation for him, cannot, by reason of S. 126, Evi. Act, give evidence as to communications made to him, without the express consent of his client. 1935 A.W.R. 1486=A.I.R. 1936 A 157=160 Ind.Cas. 76.

——Witness.

It is improper for a counsel who is intending to appear as a witness for a party to conduct the case on his behalf. 117 Ind. Cas. 66=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 361.

——Vakil should not appear in a case in which he is likely to be an important witness. Woodroffe J., in 40 Cal. 898, Foll. 101 Ind.Cas. 289=8 P.L.T. 510=5 Pat. 777=A.I.R. 1927 Pat. 61.

——It is not desirable that members of the legal profession should appear in cases in which they may have to give evidence or in which they may be personally interested. 81 Ind. Cas. 59=18 S.L.R. 30=25 Cr.L.J. 571=A.I.R. 1925 Sind 99.

——A pleader merely called to give evidence as to what had occurred in a previous suit in which he was engaged as a pleader, cannot be allowed special fees. 64 Ind.Cas. 78=46 Bom. 89=23 Bom.L.R. 898=A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 116.

——Rule as to exclusion from Court—Applicability to Counsel.

The rule as to the exclusion of the witnesses from Court until they have been examined is not without exceptions. It does not extend to the parties themselves in Civil cases so long as they conduct themselves properly, or to their solicitors whose assistance is necessary for the proper conduct of the case. The same rule applies in Criminal Cases. There are even stronger reasons for not applying the rule to the Counsel for the parties who have to conduct the case. 62 Ind. Cas. 828=44 Mad. 916=13 M.L.W. 702=1921 M.W.N. 440=22 Cr.L.J. 588=A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 424=41 M.L.J. 158.

——Witness—Counsel likely to be witness in a cause—Acceptance of brief.

If counsel knows or has reason to believe he will be an important witness in the case he ought not to accept a retainer therein. If he finds he is likely to be a witness during the course of the trial he ought not to continue to appear unless his retiring would jeopardise the client's interest. If counsel knows that his own professional conduct is likely to come in question in the cause he must not accept a retainer or if he accepts it without such knowledge, he must return it. There is nothing inherently unprofessional in counsel giving evidence, in a case where he appears, as to facts that happened before or after the retainer but counsel must not testify for or against his client, on matters which are not merely formal. A counsel appearing in a case ought to give his deposition if he can thereby throw light on the case. 40 Cal. 898=18 C.W.N. 185=23 Ind. Cas. 25.

——Witness — Appearance in case where his evidence is likely to be material.

Though it is desirable that counsel should not appear in a case in which evidence is likely to be material, there is no rigid rule preventing the court from examining the pleader at any stage of the suit when such a thing is necessary for the ends of justice. 17 M.L.T. 382=29 Ind. Cas. 135.

——Witness—Counsel giving evidence on behalf of their clients—Court—Practice.

The court will not allow counsel conducting cases to give evidence on behalf of their clients in respect of matters with which they are acquainted before they were retained. (1907) 9 Bom. L. R. 1044.

24. Miscellaneous.

——Contempt of Court—Threatening notice to counsel to withdraw allegations made in written statement of his client.

Person addressing threatening notice to Counsel demanding withdrawal of certain allegations of fact made in written statement of his client, held guilty of contempt of Court. A.I.R. 1940 Nag. 110=I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 69=1939 N.L.J. 461=41 Cr. L.J. 709=189 Ind. Cas. 58.

——Objection to trial in criminal proceeding—Waiver.

No serious defect in the mode of conducting a trial can be justified or cured by the consent of the advocate of the accused. 7 O.W.N. 972=128 Ind. Cas. 209.

——Different parties on the same side.

When parties are different they are not bound to engage the same pleader though all the parties may be arrayed on the same side. 85 Ind. Cas. 509=12 O.L.J. 1=28 O.C. 8=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 337.

——Co-plaintiffs.

Co-plaintiffs cannot sever at the trial but must appear by the same solicitors and Counsel. 77 Ind. Cas. 83=24 Bom. L.R. 1111=47 Bom. 349=A.I.R. 1923 Bom. 177.

——Private pleader—Appearance by—Prospective orders by Magistrate.

A District Magistrate has no authority to direct other Magistrates subordinate to him by the issue of general prospective orders as to the general exercise of their judicial discretion of allowing a person to practise as a private pleader in their Courts. 16 M.L.W. 879=1922 M.W.N. 809=31 M.L.T. 458=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 183.

——Private Vakil—High Court Circular.

Where a High Court circular stated as a general rule that no person, not qualified as legal practitioner, should be permitted to act in any proceeding except to prevent a miscarriage of justice, a general order by a magistrate that private vakils shall appear in his court goes beyond the terms of the circular. But he will be acting in consonance with its terms if he states that he is not prepared to make any general exception in favour of any particular individual. (1902) 12 M.L.J. 354.

——Agreement not to practise for a certain time—Breach—Injunction.

Where two branches of the legal profession (Barrister and Solicitor) are amalgamated in a particular place, a person who carries on both branches and is a legal practitioner in that place may enter into an agreement not to practise for a reasonable time. In case of breach of such an agreement without justification or excuse an injunction will be granted. 17 C.W.N. 215=19 Ind. Cas. 822 (P.C.)

——Judge — Competency of to try case, in which he was counsel for one of the parties.

Judges voluntarily decline to hear cases with which they were connected as Counsel before their elevation to the Bench. This practice is but an evolution of the elementary maxim that no man should be a Judge in his own suit and preside in a case in which he is not wholly disinterested and impartial. But this principle does not apply when objection is taken to Judge trying a cause on the ground that he had, before his appointment, acted as Counsel in other matters for one of the parties. It is no objection to a Judge trying a case that before his appointment he was counsel in other matters for one of the parties. The fact that a Judge was prior to elevation to the Bench engaged in the particular cause in no disqualification, though according to long usage a Judge would refuse to adjudicate upon a case if he had been engaged as Counsel therein. 39 C.L.J. 313=57 Ind. Cas. 22.

——Capacity to be an arbitrator.

A pleader is not incompetent to be an arbitrator simply because on some occasions he was engaged by one of the parties as his pleader. 39 Ind. Cas. 767 (Cal.)

——Professional practice.

When a suit for rent is in contemplation by the lessor, and one of the tenants (who were joint) approaches the plaintiff's pleader for the purposes of seeing whether he could settle the action he must be implied to have authority to act on behalf of all the defts. 44 Cal. 130=20 C.W.N. 1217=25 C.L.J. 42=34 Ind. Cas. 571.

——Attorney—Practice—Articled clerk—Assistant in a firm not competent to take.

Only an attorney who carries on business on his own account or as a member of a firm of solicitors and who does not occupy a subordinate position as an assistant to another firm can take an articled clerk. 13 C.W.N. 402=1 Ind. Cas. 286.

——Practice—Rivision—Pleader uncertified.

An uncertified pleader who is prohibited by a circular of a Dt. Magistrate from practising in Criminal Courts cannot file a revision to the High Court against the order but he can apply for revision of a particular case in which he was illegally refused permission to appear under this circular. 19 M.L.J. 566=11 Cr. L.J. 69=4 Ind. Cas. 876.

——Report—Registrar — Exceptions — Notice of motion—Belchamber's Rules 615, 617—Mistake.

A party who objects to a report of the Registrar must not only file objections, but must also give notice of a motion to vary or discharge the report within 14 days of the filing of the report. The 'mistake' referred to in Rule 617 of Belchamber's Rules which will justify a discharge or a variation of the report even after the time fixed by Rule 615 is one incident to or connected with or which has resulted in making the report, not one which is quite beside, and independent of, the report. A solicitor's mistake though bona fide in not following the correct procedure, is not a mistake within Rule 617. (1901) 5 C.W.N. 337= 28 C. 272.

——Remuneration of Solicitor—Executor.

See: 7 Bom. L. R. 854=9 C. W. N. 769=15 M.L.J. 271=3 A.L.J. 68=29 B. 530=32 I.A. 142 (P.C.).

——Examiners — Board of — Pleadership and Mukhtearship — Application not considered— Candidate once considered unfit—How far that decision conclusive for all time.

A decision by the Board of Examiners that a candidate was unfit to apply is not conclusive evidence of unfitness for all time, and the Board is bound to consider a fresh application on its own merits. (1901) 28 C. 479.

——Legal Practitioners' Act (I of 1846)—S. 7 —'Regular suit'—Probate proceedings.

Probate proceedings are not 'regular suits' within S. 7 of the Act I of 1846. 33 Bom. 256=10 Bom.L.R. 1197=2 Ind. Cas. 283.

Legal Practitioners' Act (XVIII of 1879)

See also: Bombay Pleaders' Act 1920.

——Enquiry under—Judgment and evidence in civil suit filed by a party against the Pleader —Admissibility.

The judgment and evidence given in a civil suit filed by a party against the Pleader is admissible as evidence in an enquiry against the Pleader under the Legal Practitioners' Act, but the judgment and evidence are not conclusive proof in the enquiry. A.I.R. 1935 All. 1023=1935 A.W.R. 1229=37 Cr. L. J. 117=(1936) A.L.J. 379 =159 Ind. Cas. 561 (S.B.).

——Enquiry—Court, duty of.

The duty of Court, in holding an enquiry under the Act is not to allow irrelevent matter to be introduced or to admit inadmissible evidence. 1 Pat. L. T. 372=57 Ind. Cas. 460.

——As amended by XV of 1926—Inherent powers.

——Per Full Bench.—Inherent powers of the Supreme Court of Calcutta were not conferred on the Allahabad High Court by the Indian High Courts Act of 1861 and no power to exercise inherent disciplinary jurisdiction over legal practitioners independently of the Legal Practitioners' Act and the Indian Bar Councils Act now exist in the Allahabad High Court in respect of their professional or other misconduct. 1930 A.L.J. 402=A.I.R. 1930 All. 225 (F.B.).

——Interpretation and scope.

Per Full Bench.—The Act does not merely consolidate previous enactments but the whole law on the subject and it does not merely consolidate pre-existing law but also amends it which taken with the consolidation of the same implies both addition to and derogation from the pre-existing law. It is a complete Code in itself as regards the subject it deals with. 1930 A.L.J. 402=A.I.R. 1930 All. 225 (F.B.).

——Nature of proceedings.

Proceedings under the Legal Practitioners' Act are quasi-criminal and where the facts had already formed the subject of criminal trial which has resulted in an acquittal the principle of "Autrefois acquit" must apply. 88 Ind. Cas. 279=26 Cr.L. J. 1111=2 Rang. 491=A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 110.

——Practice.

A question relating to the rival claims of different sections of the Legal Practitioners of the High Court cannot be settled by a single Judge or a Division Bench of the Court. 25 C. L. J. 401=21 C.W.N. 654=18 Cr. L. J. 793=41 Ind. Cas. 313.

——Munsif giving certificate—If Dt. Judge can refuse to renew.

Where a Munsif before whom a pleader is practising gives a certificate of character, the Dt. Judge cannot refuse to renew his certificate on the ground that he has formed an unfavourable opinion as to the pleader's character in a case cited by him. 13 C.W.N. 415=1 Ind. Cas. 334.

——Authority of Munsif to direct a pleader to dismiss his clerk.

A Munsif has no authority in law to direct any pleader to dismiss any of his clerks; he has no inherent power to refuse to recognise as a pleader's clerk a person who is not a bona fide clerk; if any body acts unprofessionally or in any way not warranted by law, he can take proceedings under the Legal Practitioners' Act or under any other Act that may be applicable. (1905) 10 C.W.N. 49.

——S. 3—Person, when can be declared tout.

Before a person can be declared to be a tout it must be found for a fact that he has acted in a manner which will bring him within the definition as laid down in S. 3, Legal Practitioners' Act. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 634=47 M.L.W. 578=(1938) M.W.N. 426=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 100= I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 988=177 Ind. Cas. 456.

——S. 3—Order declaring person to be tout when it is not proved that he is so illegal.

J gave a petition to the District Magistrate that she had come to arrange a transfer of a case from one Court to another and F took money from her promising that he would engage a pleader and that instead of doing that F ran away with the money. The District Magistrate endorsed the petition to a Subordinate Magistrate for enquiry and report. The Subordinate Magistrate asked the Secretary of the Bar Association about the antecedents of F. The Secretary informed that the Executive Committee of the Bar Association had passed a resolution that F was an undesirable man and did not possess good antecedents. The Subordinate Magistrate held that it was not proved that F was a tout though it might be that he committed an act of cheating. F was present at the inquiry. The District Magistrate stating that he did not agree with this finding declared F to be a tout.

Held, that the proceedings against F were illegal throughout. There had been no allegation that F was a tout. The Subordinate Magistrate did not report name of F as having been proved as a tout and District Magistrate could not declare him a tout. The resolution of the Bar Association was not that F was a tout but only that he had bad antecedents and the resolution was not passed at a specially convened meeting so as to be evidence under Expl. to S. 36 (1) of the general repute of F. The District Magistrate should have heard F which he did not do. Lastly, there was no evidence that F was a tout as defined in S. 3. 31 P.L.R. 212 =A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 405.

——It is a reasonable and legitimate inference of fact that if a man attends Court every day, looks after the cases of clients, even pays to pleaders and realizes costs and engages pleaders and also realizes their fees, he is not rendering gratuitous service such as a casual friend or acquaintance may do. 115 Ind. Cas. 602=56 Cal. 800=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 196.

——It must be shown that a legal practitioner has either paid the tout for his services in bringing work to him, or that the tout has proposed to the legal practitioner, or to some person interested in the legal business to procure the employment of the legal practitioner on condition that the legal practitioner, or some such person, will pay him something as a reward for bringing him a client. 102 Ind.Cas. 340=8 P.L.T. 587=28 Cr.L.J. 532=8 A.I.Cr. R. 207=6 Pat. 567=A.I.R. 1927 Pat. 282.

——Looking after other people's cases and writing petitions for them cannot by themselves make a person a tout within the meaning of S. 3 of the Legal Practitioners' Act. It must be proved that he procured the employment in any legal business of any legal practitioner in consideration of any remuneration moving from such practitioner before he can be declared a tout. 62 Ind. Cas. 829= 22 Cr.L.J. 589 (Cal.).

——S. 4—Applicability—Advocate enrolled by Bombay High Court under Bar Councils Act—Rights to practise in Courts subordinate to Patna High Court.

S. 4 of the Legal Practitioners' Act does not apply to and cannot operate as a bar to an Advocate of a High Court, enrolled under the Bar Councils Act practising in Courts subordinate to the Patna High Court. S. 4 of the Legal Practitioners' Act has to be ignored in cases of persons enrolled as Advocates of the Bombay High Court and claiming to be entitled to practise in Courts subordinate to the High Court at Patna by virtue of their enrolment as Advocates by the High Court. 25 Pat. 468=12 B.R. 560=225 Ind. There is no law for the time being in force which prohibits the Advocates enrolled by any High Court under Bar Councils Act, practising in the Subordinate Courts of another High Court, which they are entitled to by virtue of S. 14 (1), Bar Councils Act. ——S. 4—Provision—Audience, right of—'Under this section'—Letters Patent (Mad. 1866) Cl. 44.

The words "under this section" in the provision to S. 4 applies to the whole section. The proviso is not a variation by the legislature of the rule giving to Vakils the right of audience under Letters Patent, Cl. 44. 31 M. L. J. 698=(1916) 2 M. W. N. 529=37 Ind. Cas. 699.

——Ss. 4, 8—Right of audience—Public officers.

No general rule of law exists entitling persons to be represented by pleaders before public officers. The claim must be referred to some statutory provision; otherwise representation by pleader is entirely within the judicial discretion of the Magistrate or Court. 4 S.L.R. 49=7 Ind. Cas. 606.

——S. 6—Mukhtear.

In Bombay Presidency "Mukhtear" is a person who can with the permission of the Court represent an accused in any proceeding within the meaning of S. 4 (1) (r), C.P. ——S. 6—Women cannot be admitted and enrolled as pleaders—'Person' in section is a male.

Under the rules made by the High Court under S. 6 of the Legal Practitioners' Act, women cannot be admitted and enrolled as pleaders. Proceedings relating to the admission of pleaders are administrative and not judicial. From the perusal of the sections it appears that the 'person' referred to is male and not female as the pronoun 'he' is invariably used.

——S. 6—Females as pleaders—Cal. High Court Rules, R. 18.

The whole Act contemplates admission of males only for legal profession. From the history of immemorial time, either in Hindu, Budhist or Mah. Rules, females were never allowed to be enrolled as pleaders; the Act removed the disabilities of men only. Females cannot be allowed to practise as pleaders under this Act, though masculine gender includes females in the Universities Act. 44 Cal. 290=24 C. L. J. 382=21 C.W.N. 74=35 Ind. Cas. 925 (S.B.).

——S. 6—Rules under, R. 11 and S. 32—Pleader applying late for renewal of sanad and before renewal appearing before Magistrate.

Under R. 11, an application by a Pleader for renewal of his sanad was required to be made, not later than November 15. If the application for renewal was made by that date, the practice was to allow the Pleader to appear in cases pending the issue to him of the sanad. A Pleader did not apply for the renewal of his sanad for the year 1943 until December 31, 1942 and on January 15, 1943, before the sanad had been renewed, he filed a memorandum of appearance in a case before a Magistrate. The certificate was afterwards issued and was dated January 1, 1943 in accordance with the usual practice.

Held, that as the Pleader had not complied with R. 11, he had no right to appear in a case until his sanad had actually been renewed and that in appearing on January 15, 1943 in the case before the Magistrate, he rendered himself liable to punishment under S. 32. But as he was a Pleader of 27 years' standing and his previous conduct had given no cause for complaint and an apology had been made on his behalf, no fine should be inflicted and he should only be censured for his conduct. ——Ss. 6 and 7—Rules under—R. 13 of Madras High Court and its Circular Order of 1916—Notice.

A Pleader was charged with professional misconduct in that he accepted a position on the board of directors of a trading company on a monthly allowance of Rs. 300 without obtaining the permission of the High Court as required by R. 13 of the rules framed by the High Court under Ss. 6 and 7, Legal Practitioners' Act and the circular order issued by the High Court in 1916. The company was, however, unable to carry on the business as the Provincial Govt. refused the necessary permission:

Held, that inasmuch as the company never carried on business and as the Pleader received no remuneration from the company, his breach of the rule was of a technical nature, which called for no action. A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 665=56 M.L.W. 491=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 273=1943 M.W.N. 587=45 Cr.L.J. 117=I.L.R. (1944) Mad. 161=209 Ind. Cas. 247 (S.B.).

——Rules under, R. 14—"Pending final decision on charge of professional misconduct"—Scope.

The words 'pending a final decision on a charge of professional misconduct' in R. 14 are not wide enough to cover a case in which the enquiry has not yet begun. It must refer only to a final decision by the High Court upon materials already enquired into and adjudicated upon by some subordinate judicial authority, and it must apply only to a case in which prima facie, there is reason to believe the Pleader concerned to be guilty of professional misconduct. A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 672=(1937) M.W.N. 460=46 M.L.W. 599=39 Cr.L. J. 83=172 Ind. Cas. 136.

——Rules under—Whether apply to Advocates—Oudh Civil Rules, R. 287 (iv)—Scope of.

The rules framed under S. 6, Legal Practitioners' Act, can apply only to Pleaders and Mukhtears. Rule 287 of the Oudh Civil Rules does not apply to an Advocate who is subject to the provisions of the Bar Councils Act. The words "who, having been admitted as a Pleader" in Sub. R. (iv) of R. 287, cannot mean that if a person has been admitted as a Pleader once, he must always continue to be subject to those rules even though he might cease to be a Pleader, but the implication of the rule is that having been admitted as a Pleader, the person also continues to be such. 1935 O.W.N. 1029=A.I.R. 1936 Oudh 18=11 Luck. 477=158 Ind. Cas. 278.

——S. 6 (a)—Proper and 'to be' in S. 6 (a), meaning of.

The word 'proper' in S. 6, Cl. (a), Legal Practitioners' Act, implies that apart from educational and other qualifications that may be insisted on, there may be other conditions laid down in order to entitle a person to be admitted as a Pleader and the word 'to be' denotes that his continuance as a Pleader may be made dependent on such conditions. A Pleader, in conducting the litigation for which his services are requisitioned, has to do some administrative work arising out of the litigation in the offices of the Court and appears as Advocate in the Court as well; in other words, he combines in his own person the two duties which are performed in England by Attorney and Barristers. And it is only in the fitness of things that the Court should be in a position to control his activities in such a way as would ensure the proper discharge of his duties as Pleader. ——Ss. 7, 12, 14—Pleader—Renewal of certificate, right to—Character certificate from presiding officer, if necessary—Rule 25 of High Court Rules, ultra vires.

Rule 25 of the rules of the High Court made under the Legal Practitioners' Act, laying down that with his application for the renewal of his certificate a pleader should file a certificate of character from the presiding officer of the Court in which he practises, is inconsistent with Ss. 12 to 14 of the Legal Practitioners' Act unless the expression 'certificate of character' is construed as meaning nothing more than a certificate that the presiding officer of the Court is not aware of any misconduct of the pleader justifying action under those sections. Held—That the District Judge had no authority to refuse to renew the certificate of a pleader practising in the Munsif's Court merely because he had formed an unfavourable opinion of his character in the course of the trial of a case in which the pleader was a party, when the pleader produced with his application for renewal a certificate from the Munsif to the effect that he knew nothing against the pleader's character. 1. Conviction implying defect of character.

——S. 12—'Defect of character', significance of.

The expression 'defect of character' as used in S. 12, includes not only moral turpitude but also such defect in the character of the Pleader which renders him unfit to be a member of the honourable profession to which he belongs. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 731=60 C. 1453=38 C.W.N. 278=145 Ind. Cas. 316.

——S. 12—Pleader, while joking handing over pamphlets prejudicial under R. 38 (5) of the Defence of India Rules.

A Pleader, in a light-hearted manner, without any ulterior motive of influencing the Presidents of the District Union Boards, handed over to them two pamphlets containing matter of prejudicial nature within R. 38, Sub. R. (5) of the Defence of India Rules. No further copies of these pamphlets were found on search on the Pleader's person or at his house:

Held, that the conviction of the Pleader under R. 38 Sub-R. (5) did not imply defect of character which rendered him unfit to be a Pleader. A.I.R. 1943 Cal. 371=44 Cr.L.J. 743=208 Ind. Cas. 208.

——S 12—Conviction under R. 56, Defence of India Rules—Action under S. 12, when can be taken.

In order to take action against a legal practitioner under S. 12, Legal Practitioners' Act, it is necessary for the Court to come to the conclusion that the finding on the basis of which he has been convicted implies a defect of character, which unfits him to be a Pleader. [Taking out a peaceful and orderly procession in contravention of an order promulgated under R. 56 of the Defence of India Rules, held did not imply defect of character.] A. I. ——S. 12—Conviction under S. 121, Penal Code—Whether unfits him to be a Pleader.

A Pleader who has been convicted under S. 121, Penal Code, of waging war against the King has a defect of character and this unfits him to be in the roll of Pleaders. A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 318=43 M.L.W. 426=(1936) M.W.N. 238=70 M.L.J. 498=37 Cr.L.J. 571=59 M. 732=162 Ind. Cas. 414 (F.B.)

——S. 12—Legal practitioner convicted—Principles in considering whether disciplinary action should be taken—Making of speech inciting people to break law—Suspension.

In order to see whether disciplinary action should be taken against a Pleader who has been convicted of an offence, the Court should not merely accept the fact that he has been convicted but must consider the material upon which he was convicted.

It is inconsistent with his duties as a legal practitioner to incite others either to boycott the Courts or to break the law which it is the duty of the Courts to administer,

The making of a speech by a legal practitioner which incites, others to break the law, or an organised breach of the peace by him or incitement to acts tending to subvert order, such as asking people not to pay land revenue to Govt. or asking them to unite and refuse to recognize the authority of the Govt. servants, is a reasonable cause for suspending or removing him. I. L. R. (1941) Lah. 736=A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 85=43 Cr.L.J. 568=44 P.L.R. 471=199 Ind. Cas. 535 (S. B.)

——S. 12—Pleader convicted under S. 17 (1), Criminal Law Amendment Act and under Ss. 124-A, 153-A and 178, Penal Code—No faith in Courts of Justice—Defect of character.

A pleader was not only convicted under S. 17 (1) and (2), Criminal Law Amendment Act but was convicted for having committed offences under Ss. 124-A, and 153-A. Penal Code, and was once found guilty of an offence under S. 178, Penal Code:

Held, that these convictions entailed severe action as they undoubtedly implied defect of character in a legal practitioner.

Held, also, that where, in addition to the above facts, the attitude of the Pleader taken by him in proceedings against him under S. 12, Legal Practitioners' Act, before Courts of Justice and conduct showed that he had no faith in justice administered by Courts in this country, the conduct must be taken to be highly reprehensible, and must, accordingly, be dealt with very severely. A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 742=37 Cr.L.J. 153=159 Ind. Cas. 664.

——S. 12 — Pleader promoting meeting of unlawful association—Conviction under S. 17 (2), Criminal Law Amendment Act—Whether sufficient for taking action.

Where a Pleader assists and promotes a meeting of an unlawful association for which he is ultimately convicted under S. 17, Cl. (2), Criminal Law Amendment Act, his action is nothing short of an open and defiant violation of law. Such open and defiant violation of the law by a member of the legal profession is such a defect of character as will unfit him to be a Pleader and by such conduct, he makes himself liable to action under S. 12, Legal Practitioners' Act. 59 C.L.J. 410=A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 808=152 Ind. Cas. 943.

——S. 12—Pleader prosecuted thrice and convicted twice for semi-political offences—Whether action under the Act may be taken—Distinction between various kinds of law-breaking—Whether may be drawn—General principles of procedure in such cases.

In proceedings under S. 12, Legal Practitioners' Act, the question to be considered is whether the facts proved constitute an offence implying a defect of character which unfits the Pleader or Mukhtear, from practising as such.

The principle upon which the High Court should proceed is, that where a Pleader wilfully breaks the law upon one or two isolated occasions, it may not be necessary for the Court to take any action under S. 12, Legal Practitioners' Act. Where, on the other hand, the Pleader has wilfully and habitually broken the law, then the Court may quite reasonably come to the conclusion that his acts imply such a defect of character as to render him unfit for practice as a Pleader, and in such a case, the Court may dismiss him from practice. Where the acts of the Pleader fall midway between the two extremes, then the Court may think it sufficient to warn the Pleader, by inflicting upon him a period of suspension or otherwise, that if he persists in breaking or defying the law, such conduct will inevitably lead the Court to the conclusion that he is totally unfit to practise in the Courts.

Where a Pleader had been prosecuted three times and convicted twice for semi-political offences, and he was, in fact, suspended from practice owing to his inability to obtain a licence for a period a litle over six months:

Held, that he had been punished sufficiently and that he should be warned that if he persisted in these courses, the Court would eventually have to consider the question of dismissing him from practice. 35 Cr.L.J. 592=A. I. R. 1934 Cal. 242=38 C.W.N. 276=148 Ind. Cas. 57.

——S. 12—Pleader of 60 years, having unblemished character convicted for embezzlement of money.

Where a Pleader convicted under S. 409, Penal Code, for embezzlement was 60 years old having an unblemished character till then:

Held, that though the circumstances made the case all the more distressing, still the Courts had a duty to the public and to the profession itself, and that that duty could only be exercised by striking his name off the register of Pleaders. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 288=176 Ind. Cas. 752.

——S. 12—Conviction for criminal breach of trust.

Advocate convicted for offence of criminal breach of trust and attempt to cheat—Held, his name should be struck off from the roll of Advocates. A.I.R. 1935 Rang. 458=37 Cr.L.J. 200=159 Ind. Cas. 1036.

——S. 12—Conviction for criminal breach of trust—Circumstances of mitigation—Less severe punishment awarded.

A legal practitioner was convicted of criminal breach of trust and abetment thereof, in respect of certain moneys of a client. It was found that he was to a certain extent the victim of his senior. He paid the amount of defalcation after his conviction. High Court in consideration of the fact that he was victim of circumstances and had expressed his repentance and promised to lead honourable life suspended the practitioner for one year. 1929 Cr.C. 515=33 C.W.N. 829=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 771.

——S. 12—Temporary misappropriation.

Conviction for criminal breach of trust which was found to have been temporary and not an attempt at permanent misappropriation is a temporary aberration on the part of the pleader who was convicted and therefore, an order of suspension for six months was held sufficient to meet the requirements of the case. 81 Ind. Cas. 949=25 Cr.L.J. 1125=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 238.

——S. 12—Pleaders convicted under Ss. 145, 151, Penal Code and Ordinance VI of 1930, S. 3.

Where two Pleaders were convicted of offences under Ss. 145 and 151, Penal Code, and also under S. 3 of Ordinance VI of 1930:

Held, that regard being had to the nature of the offences for which they were convicted, which involved serious defect of character and to the fact that there was no expression of regret for their past behaviour, they should be dealt with under S. 12, Legal Practitioners' Act. A. I. R. 1933 Cal. 731=60 C. 1453=38 C.W.N. 278=145 Ind. Cas. 316.

——S. 12—Criminal offence—Penal Code—S. 144 and S. 150.

If a mukhtear is convicted under Ss. 144 and 150, I.P.C., the High Court must, if any action is to be taken against him, initiate proceedings against him under S. 12 of the Act. 11 C.L.J. 164=11 Cr.L.J. 214=5 Ind. Cas. 727.

——S. 12—Conviction under S. 506, Penal Code—Release by Local Government under Notification dated March 5, 1931—Suspension, if proper.

Where a Mukhtear was convicted under S. 506 of the Penal Code for threatening a person with the consequence that his tenants would stop rendering of unpaid labour or 'Begar' and payment of rent, and pending an appeal preferred by him, he was released in accordance with Government of India Notification dated March 5, 1931, granting amnesty to prisoners whose offences did not involve violence or incitement to violence, and disciplinary proceedings were subsequently instituted against him:

Held, that the release by the Local Govt. amounted to an expression of opinion on their part, that he was convicted of an offence which did not imply violence or incitement to violence, and that the threat, although it came within the definition of crimina lintimidation, did not imply any violence either to person or to property, and hence proceedings regarding him as to why he should not be suspended should be dropped. A.I.R. 1932 All. 232=(1932) A.L.J. 116=33 Cr.L.J. 830=139 Ind. Cas. 787.

——S. 12—Intimidating and assaulting women—Conviction for assaulting woman—No reason for suspension.

A pleader was convicted under Penal Code for intimidating and assaulting a woman in a most reprehensible manner. It was the first occasion on which disciplinary action was called against him.

Held, that the conviction was not by itself sufficient to show defect of character which unfits him to be a pleader within the meaning of S. 12.

Held further, that though the words "any other reasonable cause" in S. 13 seem to be wide enough to include the case, still the conduct was not such as to justify suspending him from practice. 1929 Cr.C. 608=A.I.R. 1929 Rang. 352.

——Ss. 12, 13—Conviction of Pleader for breach of Salt Law—Misconduct—Suspension from practice.

Where a Pleader was convicted with a number of other people for an offence under the Salt Act which he committed by way of political demonstration and was sentenced to rigorous imprisonment, their Lordships held that offences of this nature could be dealt with under the Legal Practitioners' Act, and suspended the Pleader from practice for a period of six months. A.I.R. 1931 Pat. 208=12 P.L.T. 161=132 Ind. Cas. 359 (F.B.).

——S. 12—Gambling.

The conviction of a pleader under the Gambling Act can hardly be looked upon by itself as sufficient reason for disciplinary action. 1929 Cr.C. 608=A.I.R. 1929 Rang. 352.

——Ss. 12, 13 and 14—Pleader keeping a common gambling house—Suspension from practice.

The conviction of a pleader under S. 6 of the Towns Nuisance act for using his office as a common gambling house implies a defect in character which unfits him to be a pleader within S. 12 of the Legal Practitioners' Act. Having regard to the novelty of the case the High Court suspended the pleader from practice for a period of six months only. In a proceeding under S. 12 of the Legal Practitioners' Act the whole of the procedure prescribed with regard to charges under Ss. 13 and 14 need not be followed The Court should not re-try the case which ended in a conviction of the pleader. The only question to be considered is whether the offence of which the pleader has been convicted implies a defect of character unfitting him to be a pleader. 42 Mad. 111=35 M.L.J. 65=25 M.L.T. 71 =(1918) M.W.N. 847=8 L. W. 621=19 Cr. L. J. 1001 =48 Ind. Cas. 341 (S.B.).

2. Correctness of conviction.

——S. 12—Correctness of conviction.

In proceedings against a Pleader under S. 12 in respect of a conviction, he is not entitled to question the correctness of his conviction. A. I. R. 1936 Mad. 318=(1936) M.W.N. 238=70 M L. J. 408=37 Cr.L. J. 571=43 L. W. 426=59 M. 732=162 Ind. Cas. 414 (F.B.).

——S. 12—Effect of conviction.

Conviction of a legal practitioner is sufficient without any further enquiry to justify the High Court in taking proceedings under S. 12. It is not permissible to go behind the conviction and the pleader cannot be allowed to have indirect appeals against the judgment of conviction. 1929 Cr. C. 515=33 C. W. N. 829=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 771.

——S. 12—Correctness of conviction.

That having regard to the character of the offence an order under S. 12 of the Legal Practitioners' Act could properly be passed against them. That in such a proceeding it was not open to them to go behind their conviction by the criminal court and invite the court to examine the facts with a view to showing that the conviction was erroneous. 26 I.A. 242: S. 22 A-49; 3 C.W.N. 736, followed. But the court in such a case will look into all the facts as found to determine the position of the persons concerned. (1910) 14 C.W.N. 1073=12 C.L. J. 553=7 Ind. Cas. 622.

3. Criminal complaint.

——S. 12—Criminal complaint.

If a complaint is made against a legal practitioner that he has committed an offence, it is a matter which should be tried before a Criminal Court and not by proceedings under the Legal Practitioners' Act. If he is convicted by the former then disciplinary action can be taken. Under S. 40 a pleader should not be suspended without an opportunity being afforded to defend himself. 76 Ind. Cas. 825=2 Bur. L. J. 213=25 Cr.L. J. 265.

4. "Criminal offence"—Meaning of.

——S. 12—'Criminal offence', meaning of—Being bound over, effect of.

The words "criminal offence" used in S. 12, Legal Practitioners' Act, mean an offence punishable under the Penal Code as well as any act or omission made punishable by any law for the time being in force which is indictable and punishable criminally by Courts of Justice.

But, in order to apply the provisions of S 12, conviction for "criminal offences" within the meaning of the expression used in S. 12, is not enough. The Court has to inquire into the nature of the crime in order to decide whether the offence was of such a nature as to imply defect of character which would render the lawyer concerned unfit to be a member of the legal profession.

A Pleader bound down under S. 107, Criminal Procedure Code, to keep peace and sent to jail for refusing to give security, cannot be said to be convicted of any criminal offence within the meaning of S. 12.

A Pleader convicted under S. 3, Police Incitement to Disaffection Act, and sentenced thereunder and a Pleader convicted under S. 17, Criminal law (Amendment) Act and sentenced thereunder are Pleaders convicted of "criminal offences" within the meaning of S. 12, but the conviction is not in itself sufficient to show a defect of character. A.I.R. 1931 Pat. 369=12 P.L.T. 773=32 Cr.L. J. 1256=11 Pat. 365=134 Ind. Cas. 945 (F.B.).

5. Jurisdiction and discretion of High Court.

——S. 12—Conviction of Pleader for criminal offence—Misconduct.

The conviction of a Pleader or Barrister is evidence of misconduct and the High Court has jurisdiction to take disciplinary action against him. 36 Bom. L.R. 1136=A.I.R. 1935 Bom. 1 (3)=59 B. 57=154 Ind. Cas. 546 (F.B.).

——S. 12—Discretion.

The use of word "may" in S. 12 after the words "the High Court" shows that the discretion of the High Court in each particular case is absolute. 1929 Cr. C. 515=33 C.W.N. 829=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 771.

6. Jurisdiction of Subordinate Court.

——Ss. 12, 13 (f) 14—Subordinate Court, Jurisdiction of—High Court, powers of.

When a mukhtear has been convicted of any criminal offence implying a defect of character, it is the High Court alone which can take proceedings under S. 12 of the Legal Practitisners' Act. A Subordinate Court has no jurisdiction to initiate proceedings in such a case. (1910) 5 Ind. Cas. 727=11 C.L. J. 164=11 Cr.L. J. 214.

7. Offence not committed in professional capacity.

——S. 12—Jurisdiction of High Court take disciplinary action.

The High Court has jurisdiction to take disciplinary action against a Pleader though the criminal offence was not one committed in his professional capacity. A.I.R. 1036 Mad. 318=43 L.W. 426=(1936) M.W.N. 238=70 M.L.J. 498=37 Cr.L.J. 571=59 M. 732=162 Ind. Cas. 414 (F.B.).

——S. 12—Offence not committed in professional capacity.

The fact that the Advocates concerned had been convicted of a criminal offence was evidence of the misconduct within meaning of S. 10 (1) of Bar Councils Act XXXVIII of 1926 and the misconduct, though not committed in their professional capacity, entitled the Court to take disciplinary action against them. Where, in the exercise of their statutory discretion, the Judges proceed to consider whether in the circumstances the misconduct so proved called for any disciplinary action, whether in the nature of reprimand, suspension or removal from practice and decide that it does not, this action in their exercising their discretion is not such as can be considered by Privy Council. 1935 A.W.R. 1029=1935 O.W.N. 964=1 B.R. 828=(1935) M.W.N. 913=A.I.R. 1935 P.C. 168=42 L.W. 480=69 M.L. J. 481=37 Bom. L.R. 722=39 C.W.N. 1281=(1935) A.L. J. 1092=59 B. 676=62 I.A. 235=157 Ind. Cas. 428(P.C.).

——S. 12—Misconduct—Contempt of Court.

Pleader committing contempt of Court in his capacity as suitor is punishable in his professional capacity for misconduct. (1933) A.L. J. 251=A.I.R. 1933 All. 224 (225)=55 A. 148=145 Ind. Cas. 847.

——S. 12—Criminal offence—Striking off the roll.

The Court should not hesitate to strike off the roll a practitioner found guilty of a serious offence though it is not in relation to his profession. The test is, whether he is fit to continue to be an officer of the Court. 14 C.W.N. 1073=11 Cr.L. J. 503=12 C.L. J. 553=7 Ind. Cas. 622.

8. Re-admission.

——S. 12—Conviction for criminal offence, whether permanent bar—When can be re-admitted.

When persons are struck off the roll, it is always said that the door is not irrevocably shut behind them, and that after years of industry, straightforwardness of life, and conduct which shows repentance and the determination to amend, they may ultimately find their way back to the honourable profession which they once disgraced. That lenity of outlook results from the consideration that it is impossible to shut out from a man of education, who has once borne a good character, the hope that he may rise again. But it does not mean that persons who have been properly removed from the roll should come again and again with repeated applications within months, or even within a few short years, after the event. A.I.R. 1940 Rang. 32=41 Cr.L. J. 272=186 Ind. Cas. 268.

——S. 12—Finality of order of disbarment.

Though the name of a legal Practitioner may have been removed from the rolls by the High Court by reason of professional misconduct or criminal conviction, the Court may re-admit him, if satisfied that during the interval which has elapsed since the order of removal was made, he carried an unimpeachable character and may be allowed to return to the practice of an honourable profession. An order of disbarment of a legal practitioner is not necessarily final or conclusive for all time. 38 Cal. 309=12 C.L.J. 625=15 C.W.N. 357=12 Cr.L. J. 22=8 Ind. Cas. 1108.

——S. 12—Mukhtear — Criminal conviction — Misconduct — Removal — Restoration — High Court, power of.

It is open to a Court, when a legal practitioner has been dismissed for criminal conviction or misconduct of any description in the widest sense of the term, to re-admit him after the lapse of time, if he satisfies the Court that he has in the interval conducted himself honourably and that no objection remains as to his character or capacity. The authorities on the subject reviewed. Where a mukhtear who was dismissed upon conviction for a criminal offence of a grave character implying moral turpitude and was also directed to be prosecuted for perjury, applied after the lapse of several years to be reinstated, and it was found on enquiry that he had not made a full disclosure of his previous history, the High Court refused to make the order for re-admission. (1910) 12 C.L.J. 625=15 C.W.N. 357=38 Cal. 309=12 Cr. L, J. 22=8 Ind. Cas. 1108.

1. Acting on instructions from unauthorised persons.

——S. 13—Acting without authority—Acceptance of vakalat unauthorised person.

The rule relating to the acceptance of vakalatnamas and Mukhtearnamas must be scrupulously and punctiliously observed. Where a Mukhtear not influenced by any dishonest or corrupt motive accepted a Mukhtearnama from an unauthorised person known by him to be such, his conduct calls for something more than censure. The Mukhtear was suspended from practising for a period of three months. 19 Cr.L.J. 227=43 Ind. Cas. 819 (Cal.).

——Ss. 13 (a), 14—Acting without instructions—Instructions to practitioners directly from clients or their duly authorised agent.

Instructions must be received by legal practitioners directly from clients or their duly authorised agents. Gross negligence tantamount to misconduct is attributable to a mukhtear who receives and acts on a mukhtearnama from an unauthorised person without proper inquiry. 2 Pat. L.J. 36=18 Cr.L.J. 140=37 Ind. Cas. 492.

——S. 13 (a)—Acting without instructions—General rules and orders of Calcutta High Court rule 45 (e)—Receiving instructions from unauthorised persons—Bona fide mistake.

On the instructions of the clerk of a pleader who has left the Court to practise in another Court, another pleader signed the vakalatnama for the plaintiff, and withdrew the money for plaintiff, deposited by the judgment-debtor in Court, and handed it over to the clerk bona fide believing that the clerk had taken out his "card" for the year while in fact he had not. The pleader was held to be guilty of contravening the provisions of S. 13 (a) of Legal Practitioners' Act and of rule 45 (e) of general rules and orders of High Court and deserved severe censure for his act. 36 Ind. Cas. 442 (Cal.).

——S. 13 (a)—Acting without instructions.

A pleader receiving instructions from an unauthorised person, who is neither the recognised agent, guardian, servant relative or authorised to give instruction on behalf of the party is guilty of misconduct, under S. 13. 20 C.W.N. 1016=17 Cr. L.J. 229=34 Ind. Cas. 645 (F.B.).

——S. 13 (a)—Acting without instructions.

S. 13 (a) prohibits pleaders from acting on instructions from persons who are not their clients or agents or near relative but not from acting without instructions when they are entrusted with the whole of the Court business. 1 Ind. Cas. 667 (Mad.).

2. Agreement for payment on success.

——S. 13—Agreement with client to take certain percentage of proceeds of suit as remuneration only if it is successful.

An agreement entered into by an Advocate with his client, to take certain percentage of the proceeds of the suit as remuneration for his services only if the suit is successful, amounts to professional misconduct. A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 772=(1939) M.W.N. 766=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 320=50 L.W. 234=41 Cr.L.J. 83=I.L.R. (1940) Mad. 17=184 Ind. Cas. 606 (S.B.).

——S. 13—Allowing clerk to enter into contracts for sharing in proceeds of litigation.

Where an Advocate allowed his clerk to enter into agreements with his clients to finance the litigation about property which they launched against others, the clerk was to be compensated for his labour and expenses by being given a share in the property in dispute if the cases be ultimately decided in favour of his clients, and in pursuance of this, the Advocate appeared for those clients without receiving any fees in advance:

Held, that his conduct in allowing his clerk to enter into such a transaction called for severe censure, but his conduct in advising him in the matter and then appearing for the litigants without receiving the usual fees in advance amounted to professional misconduct and such conduct constituted a reasonable cause for the suspension of his licence to practise as an Advocate. A.I.R. 1932 Lah. 584=34 P.L.R. 445=142 Ind. Cas. 689.

——S. 13 (b)—Agreement for payment on success.

To agree with a client for inam or present over and above his fees in the case of a success, is disgraceful for an advocate. His conduct accounts to gross misconduct in his profession if he attempts to extract more supplemental fee at the last moment from his client, on whose failure to pay he absents himself from the case. The failure of a barrister in exacting money as supplemental fee does not absolve him from his original obligation to his client and the court. 14 Bom.L.R. 691=13 Cr.L.J. 916=16 Ind.Cas. 780 (F.B.).

——Ss. 13, 14, 15—Agreement for payment on success.

Agreement to pay a pleader in event of success if not actually illegal, is at least highly objectionable. 8 A.L.J. 151=12 Cr. L. J. 12=9 Ind. Cas. 130.

——S. 13—Champertous agreement by way of—Relation of pleader and client.

It is highly improper and grossly unprofessional conduct on the part of an advocate or of a vakil to enter into an agreement with a client to furnish him with funds for a litigation in consideration of his assigning over a part of the property in litigation if recovered to such Advocate or Vakil.

When a Vakil takes an active interest in a case during its pendency in the lower court and there is an understanding that he will be engaged as Vakil when the case comes up to the High Court it cannot be said no relationship of pleader and client existed between himself and the client before the actual execution and acceptance of the Vakalatnama. (1901) 4 C.L.J. 262 (F.B.)

——S. 13—Professional misconduct—Champertous agreement with client.

It is professional misconduct for an advocate to stipulate for or agree with his client to accept as his fee or professional remuneration a share of the property fund or other matter in litigation for his services as advocate in such litigation upon the successful issue thereof. Semble:—The same principle is applicable to the case of a pleader. Per Hill, J.—Any arrangement between counsel and client which brings the the personal interests of the former into conflict with his duty as an advocate is unprofessional. (1900) 4 C. L. J. 259 (F.B.)

3. Altering document.

——S. 13—Mukhtear — Breach of professional rules—Alteration of document — Accusation of respectable men of perjury — Punishment — Duties of mukhtear.

Where a mukhtear was found to have acted as a mukhtear on behalf of the defendant in a case without filing as mukhtearnamah, and had made alterations in a receipt and a cash book with a view to deceiving the Court and came to the Court with a case which was manifestly untrue and accused respectable persons of perjury and of having set up a false case against him:

Held, that such a man was no longer fit to remain a member of the profession.

Dictum.—'A mukhtear's profession is a laborious one. It is of great public utility. From mukhtears great qualities are expected and heavy responsibilities are placed upon their shoulders and, however humble their relative position in the legal hierarchy may be, their reputation should be as jealously guarded by the Courts as those of Pleaders or Vakils or Barristers.' 13 P.L.T. 552= A.I.R. 1932 Pat. 289=33 Cr. L. J. 874=140 Ind. Cas. 107 (S.B.)

——Ss. 13 (b) and 14 — Altering documents—Insertion of name in Vakalatnamah.

A Mukhtear added to the names in a Vakalatnamah, his own name, also altered certain words in the Vakalatnamah at the request of the individual who had executed the Vakalatnamah, without any improper motive as he could not file a criminal appeal unless the Vakalatnamah, contained his name. Held, as the mukhtear was not actuated by any improper motive which would constitute grossly improper conduct, no order under S. 14 of the Act should be passed. The apology of the mukhtear expressing regret might be accepted. 17 C.W.N. 823=13 Cr. L.J. 846=42 Ind. Cas. 718.

——Ss. 13 (b) and 14—Altering document—Court record.

Where a property to be sold in execution of a decree was, owing to the carelessness of the pleader for the decree-holder and his clerk, mis-described in the application for execution, the pleader was held to have acted without due care and sense of responsibility and thus was guilty of grave impropriety in the performance of his duty. In the case he was suspended from his practice for 3 months. Held, (ordering the pleader's suspension for three months) that to tamper with the Court's records is a serious matter and the pleader acted without due care and caution and without sense of responsibility in allowing it to be done by his clerk. 20 C.W.N. 1069=18 Cr. L. J. 42=36 Ind. Cas. 874.

——S. 13 (b)—Altering document—Substitution of names in summons.

Where a solicitor acting for a plff. who had been refused a warrant for the detention of the deft. by a Civil Court started a criminal process on the same subject-matter, and, by means of allegations to which the Civil Court attached no credit, obtained his warrant form a different Court, almost as a matter of course, his conduct does not necessarily involve any punishable contempt of the Civil Court. The law does not restrict a litigant to a single form of remedy and he may pursue all the legal remedies appropriate to his grievance. Where a solicitor substituted the name of two witnesses in a summons on the ground that the persons originally summoned were totally ignorant of the facts of the case. Held, that the solicitor was not guilty of forgery, as there was no intent to defraud and at the most he committed an irregularity for which some pecuniary penalty on his part was an adequate punishment. The Privy Council set aside the order striking off the name of the solicitor and restored his name to the Roll. 16 C.W.N. 386=9 A.L.J. 676=15 C.L.J. 639=14 Bom.L.R. 471=23 M.L.J. 194=12 M.L.T. 106= (1912) M.W.N. 683=13 Cr. L. J. 440=15 Ind. Cas. 72 (P.C.).

4. Appeal.

——S. 13—Appeal to Privy Council—Considerations—Practice of Allahabad High Court.

When an order striking off the name of a Pleader from the roll of Pleaders on the ground of misconduct, has been made, the practice of the Allahabad High Court has been to treat the order as falling under S. 109 (c), Civil P. C. although the Calcutta and Patna High Courts have taken a different view. The certificate of leave to appeal is not to be as a matter of course, but can be granted where the case is otherwise a fit one for appeal to His Majesty in Council.

Where, in an appeal from an order striking off the name of a Pleader from the roll of Pleaders, the point in dispute was naturally not measurable by money and it was of great private importance to the applicant and there were some points of law raised in the case:

Held, that the case could be certified under S. 109 (c) as a fit one for appeal to the Privy Council. A.I.R. 1937 All. 167=(1936) A.L.J. 1272=38 Cr.L.J. 410=1936 A.W.R. 1007=167 Ind. Cas. 666.

——S. 13—Appeal.

An order of High Court refusing to enrol a person as legal practitioner comes under its disciplinary or administrative powers and no leave to appeal to His Majesty can be granted. 4 Pat. L.J. 423, Foll. 70 Ind. Cas. 172=1 Pat. 590=4 P.L.T. 229=A. I. R. 1922 Pat. 603.

5. Appearing for opposite side.

——S. 13 — Misconduct — Change of sides by lawyer.

Change of sides as such by a lawyer is not forbidden by law. Change of sides is forbidden if there are confidential communications by one side which may be made use of when the lawyer represents the opposite party. It is forbidden if the lawyer obtains his own discharge and acts for the opposite party. It is also forbidden if the lawyer accepts a retainer from the opposite party without first offering his services to his original client. A lawyer is, therefore, not guilty of professional misconduct in accepting a brief for the opposite party if he has no confidential communication of his original client in his possession at that time and the matters in which he had been retained had come to an end and the original client had refused to avail himself further of his services. I.L.R. (1946) Lah. 173=226 Ind. Cas. 70=47 Cr. L.J. 818=A. I. R. 1946 Lah. 301 (F.B.)

——S. 13—Misconduct—Changing sides—Pleader drafting plaint for plaintiff gratuitously as friend appearing for defendant at later stage.

A pleader who acted gratuitously as a friend in drawing up a draft at the request of the plaintiff who filed the plaint himself, and to whom no confidential information was imparted, is not guilty of professional misconduct in appearing for the defendant at a later stage. 226 Ind. Cas. 479=48 P.L.R. 485=A.I.R. 1946 Lah. 329 (F.B.)

——S. 13 and Letters Patent, Cl. 8 (Lah.)—Change of sides by counsel—When forbidden.

Change of sides as such by counsel is not forbidden by law. Change of sides is forbidden if there are confidential communications by one side which may be made use of when the lawyer represents the opposite party. It is forbidden if the lawyer obtains his own discharge and acts for the opposite party. It is also forbidden if the lawyer accepts a retainer from the opposite party without first offering his services to his original client.

In the present case, it was held that there were no confidential communications in possession of the counsel which had not already become public property when he accepted the brief for the opposite party. Further, the counsel did not obtain his own discharge. The proceedings in which he was engaged by the party had terminated and the party had refused to avail himself of the services of the counsel. In the circumstances, the counsel was not guilty of professional misconduct in accepting the brief of the opposite party. A. I. R. 1946 Lah. 301 = I.L.R. (1946) Lah. 173=226 Ind. Cas. 70=47 Cr.I.J. 818 (F B.).

——S. 13—Decree for accounts obtained by son against mother—Decree obtained by mother against son for maintenance—Pleader L acting for mother in her suit—L then acting for son in execution of his decree against mother—Misconduct.

A son sued his mother for an account of the management of his estate during his minority, and obtained a money-decree against her. The mother subsequently sued the son for the recovery of maintenance due to her and for future maintenance. The suit was decreed. A Pleader L acted for the mother in the suit against the son and was, in fact, her legal adviser; he subsequently agreed to act for the son, and filed an application in execution proceedings arising out of the decree obtained by the son against the mother. The question having arose as to whether this amounted to professional misconduct:

Held, that L was not guilty of professional misconduct in filing the petition in execution of the son's decree. The son's suit had nothing to do with the mother's suit. It would have shown a spirit more in keeping with the tradition of the profession if L had not acted for the son, but there was nothing professionally wrong in so doing. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 276=47 L W. 192=(1938) M.W.N. 220=I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 399=174 Ind. Cas. 44 (S.B.).

——S. 13—Held, though Pleader did not act to the standard of propriety expected, yet no disciplinary action was justified.

The position of the members of the legal profession is very high but, at the same time, delicate. They must take scrupulous care that nothing is done by them which leaves room for any accusation being made against them;

Held, that though the Pleader did not act up to that standard of propriety which is expected from a member of the legal profession who must enjoy the complete confidence of the litigant public and of the Court, and he mixed himself up in transactions which were not straightforward, and technically his appearing in the land registration case against his client, was improper, it was clear at the same time that he did not act without the knowledge, consent or at least acquiescence of the client. Under the circumstances, no disciplinary action would be justified. A.I.R. 1928 Pat. 28=4 B.R. 192=39 Cr. L. J. 222=172 Ind. Cas. 849 (S.B.).

——S. 13—Engagement of Counsel—When prevented from appearing for opposite party—Definite retainer with fee, necessity of.

A great deal has to take place before Counsel can be said to be engaged by a party to a suit so that it would be unprofessional for him to appear on the other side. In order to prevent Counsel appearing for the other party, he must have a definite retainer with a fee paid or he must have had such confidential information from one of the parties as would make it improper for him to appear for the other party. A.I.R. 1932 All. 536=(1932) A.L.J. 755=33 Cr.L.J. 867=140 Ind. Cas. 62.

——S. 13 (b)—Misconduct—Confidential communication by party before engaging practitioner—Practitioner subsequently accepting brief from other side—Propriety.

A legal practitioner allowed a party to see him and to give his version of the case in full without warning him that he had not yet accepted the case and therefore could not regard himself as his advocate and without also informing him that the other side had approached him to represent them in the matter and that he had not declined their offer. Subsequently the legal practitioner was engaged by the other side. Held, that the conduct of the practitioner could not be regarded as professional misconduct, but the case came within the ambit of the rule that "Counsel ought not to accept a brief against a party even though the party refuses to retain him, in any case in which he would be embarrassed in the discharge of his duty by reason of confidence reposed in him by that party" and that the Court was justified in holding that he should not appear in the case. 8 Rang. 446=128 Ind. Cas. 354=1930 Cr. C. 1233=A.I.R. 1930 Rang. 355.

——S. 13—Working for opposite parties.

Pleader drafting complaint for complainant in one case and acting for accused in a different case instituted by same complainant—No offence is committed. 109 Ind. Cas. 228=8 Lah. 671=29 P.L.R. 126=29 Cr. L. J. 500=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 65.

——S. 13—Working for both sides, amounts to misconduct.

A legal practitioner cannot represent conflicting interests or undertake the discharge of inconsistent duties. When he has once been retained and received the confidence of a client, he cannot accept a retainer from or enter the service of those whose interests are adverse to his client in the same controversy or in a matter so closely allied thereto as to be in effect a part thereof. The rule is rigid and is designed not alone to prevent the dishonest practitioner from fraudulent conduct, but as well to preclude the honest practitioner from putting himself in a position where he may be required to choose between conflicting duties, or be led to an attempt to reconcile conflicting interests, rather than to enforce to their full extent the rights or the interests which he should alone represent. Fidelity is required from all who hold fiduciary relations; they must not lightly enter upon such relationships, but if they do, they will not be permitted to be disloyal and of all species of disloyalty, desertion and adherence to the enemy or to the opposite party in a suit is recognised as the worst. 72 Ind. Cas. 22=37 C.L.J. 48=24 Cr. L. J. 294=A.I R. 1923 Cal. 106.

——S. 13 (b)—Appearing for opposite side.

In order to bring a pleader within the purview of S. 13 of the Act it is not necessary that there should be an intentional disobedience of the rules or that there must be some act involving a moral stigma or proof of actual injury to the litigant. A pleader who acts for both the parties in the suit at one stage or other is guility of gross negligence amounting to professional misconduct. 3 Pat. L. J. 390=19 Cr. L. J. 636=45 Ind. Cas. 684.

——S. 13—Appearance for opposite side—Professional etiquette.

It is improper on the part of a legal practitioner, who has acted for one party in a dispute, to act for the other party in subsequent litigation between them relating to or arising out of that dispute. It is a matter which concerns the honour of the profession. Such conduct is open to misconception and is likely to raise suspicion in the mind of the original client and to embitter the subsequent litigation. 21 C.W.N. 1137=(1917) M.W.N. 636=7 L.W. 133=42 Ind. Cas. 236 (P.C.).

——S. 13—Appearance for opposite party.

A mukhtear is not guilty of professional misconduct, where in the absence of any instructions from the first client he appears for the opposite party in a subsequent connected proceeding. 13 A.L.J. 475=16 Cr. L. J. 593=30 Ind. Cas. 145 (F.B.).

——S. 13—Appearing for opposite side—Appearing for complainants — Proceedings relating to immovable property.

A mukhtear appeard in assault proceedings for certain accused. The complainant in the assault proceedings instituted proceedings under S. 145 of the Cr.P. Code and the mukhtear appeared for him. The defendants did not offer to engage him. Held, on the facts of the case, that the mukhtear was not guilty of any professional misconduct. Pleaders should make it a point as far as possible to appear for the party who first employed them. 13 A.L. J. 475=16 Cr.L.J. 593=30 Ind. Cas. 145 (F.B.)

——S. 13 (b)—Appearing for opposite side.

A professional gentleman should, as far as possible, stick to the side who first employed him. It might be a very good practice, when gentleman were offered instructions by the opposite side in any connected case, that they should at least in the first place inform their first clients. 16 Cr.L.J. 420=28 Ind. Cas. 996 (All.)

——S. 13—Appearance for opposite side—Pleader retained by one party—When entitled to appear for opposite side.

When a client engages another pleader the presumption arises that the services of the original pleader are not required and that he is free to appear for the opposite side. 16 M.L.T. 349=(1914) M.W.N. 785=25 Ind. Cas. 712.

——S. 13—Appearing for opposite side—Power of Court to prohibit.

Where a pleader who had appeared in criminal proceedings appeared for the opposite party in a subsequent civil suit, the Court was justified in prohibiting his appearance, as the civil suit was connected with the previous criminal proceedings.

No rule is necessary to enable a subordinate Court subject to correction by the High Court to refuse, audience to a pleader where, by his appearance, he is guilty of professional misconduct. 38 Mad. 650=25 M.L. J. 567=21 Ind. Cas. 629.

——S. 13 (b)—Appearing for opposite side.

A legal practitioner, who has appeared for a party in a case cannot act for the opposite party in a later stage of the same proceedings or in subsequent litigation, unless he has been discharged, without misconduct, or he has completed the business he was engaged to perform, and has no secrets to carry with him that can be used to his former client's prejudice. (1910) I.U.B.R. 50=12 Cr.L.J. 57=8 Ind. Cas. 1174.

——S. 13 — Unprofessional conduct — Attorney appearing for plaintiff and defendant.

An attorney whom in the name of a firm of which he was the sole partner appeared on behalf of the plaintiff also appeared in his own personal capacity for the defendants:—Held, that he was guilty of contempt of court and of improper behaviour, and must be suspended. (1908) 3 C.L.J. 165.

——S. 13—Pleader appearing for one party in a civil suit for land appearing for the opposite party in criminal proceedings in respect of the same land—Propriety of.

The mere fact that in a civil suit a pleader has been employed by a party in relation to a particular piece of land should not alone make it misbehaviour to appear against him in criminal proceedings connected with the same land. (1902) 4 Bom. L.R. 67=26 B. 423 (F.B.)

——S. 13—Professional misconduct of—Information obtained as the solicitor of one party could be utilized under certain circumstances while acting for another.

Though those things which an attorney learns from his client or in consequence of his employment by his client or in consequence of his employment by his client, he is forbidden to disclose and any betrayal of his confidence would be visited by the court as gross misconduct, yet if he learns matters relating to his client under such circumstances that if questioned about them in a court of justice he could not refuse to answer them he is not within the court's jurisdiction. 16 L.T. N.S. 715, foll. A solicitor is not guilty of misconduct because, having changed sides, he uses for his new client information acquired from his old client if it was open to him to obtain such information from public sources. 9 Bom. L.R. 38.

——S. 13—Information obtained when appearing for one person—Use of against him when appearing for his adversary—Propriety of—Test.

Those things which a pleader learns from his client, or in consequence of his employment by his client, he is forbidden to disclose and any betrayal of his confidence would be visited by the court as gross misconduct. But if he learns matters relating to his client under such circumstances that if questioned about them in a court of justice he could not refuse to answer them, he is not within the disciplinary jurisdiction of the court. (1902) 4 Bom. L.R. 67=26 B. 423 (F.B.).

6. Business.

——S. 13 (f)—Engagement in trade or business—Power of Court to control activities of Pleader—R. 951 (Calcutta High Court).

Though Cl. (f), S. 13 of the Act need not be read ejusdem generis with the other clauses of the section and cases of moral turpitude unconnected with the discharge by the legal practitioner of his professional duty may come within the expression 'any other reasonable cause,' yet, in the absence of definite rules to that effect, engagement in trade or business or other occupation, however derogatory to the dignity of the profession or detrimental to the discharge of the duties of a legal practitioner, would hardly come within the expression. Rules restricting the liberties of Pleaders in this respect are dictated by public policy and are, in one form or another, in force in some of the other provinces as well. The new R. 951 of the Calcutta High Court was framed with the object of softening the rigour of such rules as were in existence before, and it professes not to preclude Pleaders and Mukhtears, while practising as such, from holding, any appointment or engaging themselves in any occupation, trade or business, unless such appointment, occupation, trade or business should appear to be derogatory to a practising member of the legal profession or is likely to interfere with the due discharge of his professional duties. The provision in the rule as regards previous notice to the Court is a provision evidently made for the benefit of the practitioner himself so that he may not be in a state of uncertainty as to what the consequences of his proposed action may be. The Rule was entirely within the competence of the High Court to make. In re A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 205=40 C.W.N. 377=63 C.L.J. 127=37 Cr.L.J. 590=63 C. 855=162 Ind. Cas. 517 (S.B.).

——S. 13—Investments of his savings by Advocate, when constitute engagement in money-lending business.

What does or does not constitute money-lending business must depend on the facts and circumstances of each case and is not capable of an exact definition. The question is a mixed question of fact and law and the answer to the question must depend on the facts found in each particular case. An element of continuity and habit is essential to constitute the exercise of a profession or business.

Investments of his savings by an Advocate do not necessarily amount to engagement in money-lending business, the more so when such investments are few and far between and are mostly made to relations and friends. Nevertheless, if investments by way of loan are made as a matter of regular business and for gain, there can be no escape from the conclusion that such investments constitute engagement in money-lending business. A.I.R. 1940 All. 1=(1939) A.L.J. 957=41 Cr.L.J. 211=1939 A.W.R. 828=I.L.R. (1940) All. 60 =185 Ind. Cas. 611 (S.B.).

——S. 13—Advocate joining as partner in firm.

The carrying on of a trade or business is ordinarily inconsistent with the practice of the profession of an advocate. The conduct of an Advocate in joining as a partner in a firm constitutes professional misconduct:

Held, that as the Advocate concerned gave an undertaking to suspend his practice and not to do any work of an Advocate while he was engaged in the aforesaid trade or business, it was not necessary to impose any penalty on him for the offence and that the requirements of the case would be met by the Court expressing their disapproval of his conduct. 11 Luck. 477=1935 O.W.N. 1029=A.I.R. 1936 Oudh 18=158 Ind. Cas. 278.

——S. 13 (f)—Pleader doing business of insurance agent also—Pleader, if guilty of professional misconduct.

Where a person enters the profession of the law as Pleader, he must make up his mind to conduct the business of the Pleader and nothing else.

Where a Pleader was running two businesses at the same time, that of a Pleader and that of an insurance agent nominally through his brother:

Held, that such a practice was, in the highest degree, injurious to the interest of the profession and to the interest of the public and that the Pleader had been guilty of professional misconduct. A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 1=16 P.L.T. 781=2 B.R. 159=37 Cr. L. J. 230 (2)=15 Pat. 175=160 Ind. Cas. 23 (S.B.)

——S. 13—Misconduct—Entry into trade.

The carrying on of a family business by a Vakil which has been in existence for a long time, does not amount to entering into any trade, or business within the second paragraph of Rule 26 Part 11 of the Allahabad High Court Rules. Before a Vakil embarks on any commercial transactions he should give notice to and obtain the permission of the High Court. 17 A.L.J. 1147=1 U.P.L.R. (H.C.) 139=52 Ind. Cas. 638.

——Ss. 13 (f) and 14—Madras High Court Rules, R. 27.

A Pleader entered into series of money lending transactions in his own name and his minor son. The transactions in the son's name where found to be only a screen or shield. The transactions were all of an usurious nature. Held, (1) that the pleader violated R. 27 of the High Court Rules under the Act and was guilty of professional misconduct. (2) that the High Court could deal with the pleader under the Act. 21 M.L.J. 559=9 M.L.T. 55=(1911) 1 M. W. N. 111=11 Cr. L. J. 697=8 Ind. Cas. 677 (F.B.)

——S. 13—Agency business—Using principal's money for agent's own business without authority.

A Vakil acting as an agent for sale of immovable property will be acting improperly in using the purchase money for his own purposes without authority from his principles. In the particular case before their Lordships, they deemed it sufficient to censure the vakil for the abuse of his position as agent, having regard to the fact that the vakil was not acting as vakil in the agency and also to the fact that there was no dishonest intention on his part. (1910) 20 M.L.J. 494=7 M.L.T. 427=6 Ind. Cas. 310=11 Cr.L.J. 307.

7. Client's money.

——Ss. 13 (b), 14—Pleader retaining client's money as loan.

Lawyers should not, except in very special circumstances, accept loans from their clients. Where a lawyer has withdrawn money for a client and has been permitted to retain it, a document evidencing that transaction should, in every case, be drawn up. It is essential in cases, where the relationship of lawyer and client has been changed to one of debtor and creditor, that the clearest evidence of such a change should be obtainable. If the relationship of Pleader and client is changed into one of debtor and creditor, then no question of misconduct can arise. Failure by the debtor to pay the money on demand does not amount to professional misconduct. A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 343=5 B.R. 795=40 Cr.L. J. 687=18 Pat. 580=20 P.L.T. 607=182 Ind. Cas. 645 (S.B.).

——S. 13—Lady engaging Pleader for two suits, one against her and other filed by her—Fees settled were paid in one year. Both suits then referred to arbitration—Lady paying her Pleader certain amount, half for payment to arbitrator as his fees and rest towards his fees—Year of payment of fees not expired—Pleader appropriating whole amount towards his fees:

Held, that the Pleader wrongfully retained for himself the amount which had been handed to him for payment to the arbitrator and that his conduct in doing so was grossly improper in the discharge of of his professional duty. Even if no criminal offence was committed by him in appropriating whole amount towards his own fees, his conduct was gravely improper on the part of a Counsel and called for disciplinary action. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 248 =175 Ind. Cas. 29.

——S. 13—Unauthorised retention of client's money—Payments on pressure by cheque—Cheque dishonoured—Cancellation of licence to practise—Sind Courts Act (XII of 1866) S. 16.

Where a legal practitioner retained a considerable sum of his client's money which, when demanded by the client, he gave out that he would pay after obtaining Court's sanction, but in fact it was not necessary to obtain sanction, and when further pressed, he paid part of it, and gave a cheque for the balance on a bank and the cheque was dishonoured:

Held, that the legal practitioner dishonestly retained in his possession the money of his client:

Held, also that, the fact, that the legal practitioner had previously been guilty of malversation of client's money, aggravated the circumstances of the case and it was proper that his licence to practise should be cancelled. A.I.R. 1933 Sind 45=142 Ind. Cas 593.

——S. 13—Client's money.

A legal practitioner received money from the Court on behalf of his client and retained it in his own hands without any authority from the client so to retain it. Subsequently he chose to treat it as loan and gave security which he felt himself at liberty to withdraw at his own will and pleasure:

Held, that this was a grave offence which amounted to professional misconduct for no practitioner is entitled to hold his client's money in his hands and to use it himself for his own private purposes without the consent of his client. 32 M.L.W. 435= A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 927 (F.B.).

——S. 13—Retention of money payable to his client by a pleader for a very long time and refusal to remit the same to that client amounts to misconduct on the part of the pleader. 111 Ind. Cas. 880=5 O.W.N. 880=29 Cr.L.J. 960=11 A.I.Cr.R. 301=A.I.R. 1928 Oudh 464.

——S. 13—Appropriation of client's money amounts to misconduct.

In one case the Vakil was retained by two persons, one a gosha lady and the other an old man. They were the plaintiffs in a suit in which there stood to their credit in Court a sum of Rs. 1,218. The Vakil drew that money out of Court, but did not pay it over to the clients.

In another case, the Vakil appeared on behalf of the defendant in a mortgage suit, the defence was that, owing to the refusal of the plaintiffs to take his money at a time when, defendant was willing to pay it, plaintiffs had inflated the claim by claiming interest throughout a long period when they could have had the money but would not take it. In those circumstances, the client's instructions to the Vakil were to admit that Rs. 760 and odd was due, and he handed that sum to him with instructions to deposit it in Court. The Vakil did not deposit in Court, nor did he disclaim liability formally for the balance of the plaintiffs, claim and after several adjournments he confessed judgment for the whole amount due.

——S. 13 (b)—Misappropriation.

Misappropriation of the client's money entrusted to a pleader for a specified purpose amounts to professional misconduct. 30 P.W.R. 1917 Cr.=18 Cr.L. J. 903=42 Ind. Cas. 135.

——S. 13 (b)—Misappropriation.

Where a pleader received in his private capacity certain shares from a lady client with instructions to sell them and realise the proceeds on her behalf but appropriated the proceeds, without her consent, to his fees as a pleader, the pleader is guilty of conversion and misconduct. 14 Bom. L. R. 499=13 Cr.L. J. 513=15 Ind. Cas. 785.

——S. 13 (b)—Misappropriation—Conversion of client's money to one's use.

A vakil acting as an agent for the sale of a house and using the sale proceeds for his own use without the consent of the principal, is guilty of unprofessional conduct. (1910) M.W.N. 159=7 M.L.T. 427=20 M.L. J. 494=11 Cr.L. J. 307=6 Ind. Cas. 310.

——S. 13 (b)—Misappropriation.

Retention of client's money without any colour of right is professional misconduct as also to receive money in furtherance of contract of indemnity of bail to deny having received any money or to claim to retain it as fee is a criminal dishonesty, for which the proper punishment is cancellation of sanad. 3 S.L.R. 88=10 Cr.L. J. 412=3 Ind. Cas. 897.

——S. 13—Pleader appropriating client's money—Grossly improper conduct in the discharge of professional duties.

A party in a suit gave his pleader a power-of-attorney to draw out a sum of money which he had recovered in that suit. The pleader drew the money out of Court, appropriated it to his own purpose and, when asked failed to hand it over to his client. Held, that the pleader had acted in a grossly improper manner in the discharge of his professional duties. (1903) 31 C. 44=7 C.W.N. 373.

8. Charges and threats to Court.

——S. 13 (f)—Malicious and defamatory allegations by Pleader against Judge.

A Pleader wrote a letter to the Governor wilfully and maliciously making untrue statements reflecting on a District Munsif. In the letter, the Pleader described himself as "the leader of the Bar" and accused the District Munsif of being a sympathiser with the satyagraha movement and that he had, on a certain date, granted an application of an Advocate for an adjournment made on the ground that he wanted to go to a certain place to see a friend offering satyagraha. He further stated that there were "several instances when motions for adjournment on strongest conceivable grounds, e.g., death-bed illness; official duty, etc., were refused by the same District Munsif". It was contended that the Pleader's offence was more in the nature of contempt of Court than professional misconduct:

Held, that since the Pleader, in his professional capacity, had made a malicious and defamatory attack on a Judge, he was guilty of professional misconduct constituting "reasonable cause" within S. 13 (f), Legal Practitioners' Act. A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 630=1942 M.W.N. 481 (2)=55 M.L.W. 502=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 234=44 Cr.L.J. 17=203 Ind. Cas. 182 (S.B.)

——S. 13—Notice served on Subordinate Judge, signed by Pleader—Notice containing malicious and defamatory matter—Pleader, if liable under S. 13.

Rule was issued against a Pleader to show cause why he should not be dismissed or suspended under S. 13, Legal Practitioners' Act, on the ground of grossly improper conduct in the discharge of his professional duty by giving notice under S. 80, Civil P. C., upon a Subordinate Judge, which contained highly objectionable words. It was signed by the Pleader and it purported to be given on behalf on his client. At more than one place in the notice the Subordinate Judge was charged with having misused his powers and also with having wantonly, with intent to harm and disgrace his client, ordered an attachment before judgment. The Pleader, in showing cause, tried to to explain his conduct by saying that he had signed the notice without having read the contents thereof:

Held, that the Pleader's explanation that he signed this document without reading it could not be accepted. The Pleader had been guilty of grossly improper conduct in the discharge of his professional duty and had, therefore, brought himself clearly within the purview of S. 13, Legal Practitioners' Act. 61 C. 522=A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 723=152 Ind. Cas. 58.

——S. 13 (b)—Pleader defending accused in whose case Pleader is interested—Obstruction of the course of justice—Covert attacks on Magistrate for unfairness and partiality—Conduct of Pleader "unseemly, contumacious and impertinent"—Punishment.

U, a Pleader who had been granted a timber-licence in respect of a certain area, had employed another person as his agent for carrying on work under the licence. The latter was charged with offence in connection with the selling of timber in areas and in a manner not permitted by the licence. U appeared for the defence in the case and it appeared from the records that he allowed himself to be 'swayed too much by his own feelings' in the Court of the trial, and conducted the case for the defence in a manner that made manifest his intention improperly to obstruct the courts of justice. The record was replete with frivolous objections and open and covert attacks upon the presiding Magistrate for alleged unfairness and partiality. When called upon to answer the charge of improper conduct, the Pleader urged that he was provoked to commit the improprieties of which he was guilty by the trying Magistrate who was prejudiced against him from the outset because he had consented to appear for the accused in a case in which he was himself "deeply involved":

Held, that the defence was unsustainable and that the Pleader was guilty of grossly improper conduct in the discharge of his professional duties.

Held, also that the conduct of the Pleader was 'unseemly, contumacious and impertinent' and having regard to his grossly improper conduct, he should be suspended from practice for two years.

For the due administration of justice, it is essential that order and decorum in the conduct of judicial proceedings should be maintained. A.I.R. 1933 Rang. 34=34 Cr.L.J. 466=142 Ind. Cas. 828.

——S. 13—Charges and threats to Court.

Making charges against Judicial Officer which the pleader has no prospect of substantiating amounts to misconduct. 110 Ind. Cas. 815=1928 M.W.N. 317=28 M.L.W. 202=51 Mad. 798=10 A. I. Cr. R. 473=1 M.Cr.C. 279=29 Cr.L.J. 783=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 918=55 M.L.J. 170 (F.B.).

——S. 13—Threat to Magistrate by a pleader is misconduct—Conditional apology is not of any value.

Letter by a pleader which contains vulgar abuse of the Magistrate, and a demand for an apology, apparently followed by a threat of further proceedings is highly improper. Instructions from a client are no excuse whatever for a Pleader exceeding what is his duty towards the Courts. It is presumed that a pleader knows what his responsibilities are in addressing Magistrates and Judges. A conditional apology by the Pleader for such a letter is valueless. 72 Ind. Cas. 353=25 Bom. L.R. 264=24 Cr.L.J. 353=A.I.R. 1923 Bom. 234.

——S. 13—Statements gratuitously and unnecessarily made in open Court which contained imputations against the fairness and impartiality of the Court without any foundation amount to professional misconduct. Pleaders have a duty not only towards their clients but also towards the Court of which they are pleaders, and it is part of their duty to co-operate with the Court in the orderly and pure administration of justice. 71 Ind. Cas. 673=27 C.W.N. 88=24 Cr.L.J. 209=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 550.

——S. 13—Misconduct—Imputation of prejudice to presiding Judge.

A letter written by a legal practitioner imputing racial antipathy to a Judge and charging him with having allowed such feelings to influence him in passing unfavourable orders to the practitioner constitutes misconduct. A belated apology in the High Court was held to be insufficient and the pleader was suspended from practice for 3 months. 67 Ind. Cas. 504=23 Cr.L.J. 408 (Lah.).

——S. 13 (f)—Contempt of Court—Abusive letter to Judge—Misconduct.

A Mukhtear who addressed certain letters to a Magistrate in connection with a copy for which he had applied, and the contents of the letters were grossly insulting, the Mukhtear could be proceeded against under S. 13 (f) of the Act. 42 All. 86=17 A.L.J. 1050=20 Cr.L.J. 718=1 U.P.L.R. (H.C.) 134=52 Ind. Cas. 798.

——S. 13—Contempt of Court — Misconduct — Libellous attack on Judge.

A pleader is an officer of the Court and is bound to assist the Court in the administration of justice. Criticism which is permissible to a private individual is not permissible to a pleader. The co-operation of a pleader and a Judge would be impossible if the pleader were attacking the Judge in the public press. Nor would it be possible for the business of the Court to be conducted with dignity, decorum and impartiality when the pleader is posing in public as the chastiser of the Judge. Such conduct is not only a breach of the pleader's duty to the Court but must also result in an actual obstruction to the administration of justice. A letter published by a Pleader, alleging that a certain Judge is indolent and takes credit for cases not tried but compromised even if written in good faith and even if it does not constitute the offence of libel, amount to misbehaviour under S. 16 of the Sind Courts Misbehaviour Act. 11 S.L.R. 81=19 C.L.J. 322 =44 Ind. Cas. 338 (F.B.).

——S. 13—Contempt of Court—Letter to Judicial officer.

A legal practitioner who writes a letter to a Judicial officer asking him in a particular manner is guilty of grossly improper conduct within S. 13 (f) of the Legal Practitioners' Act. 3 P.W.R. 1918 Cr.=19 Cr. L.J. 267=161 P.L.R. 1917=44 Ind. Cas. 123.

——Ss. 13 and 14—Contempt of Court—Disciplinary powers.

The words "such misconduct as aforesaid" in S. 14 are not restricted to fradulent or grossly improper conduct in the discharge of his professional duty but include all cases of misconduct whether included in Cl. (b) or in one or more of the other clauses of S. 13. A Subordinate Court can inquire into the matter falling within any of the clauses of S. 13 when the pleader or Mukhtear whose conduct is called in question, practises in such Court. Under S. 13 the inquiry need not be conducted by the High Court, but may be by a Subordinate Court under the discretion of the High Court. The charges must be framed with great care and precision, so that the practitioner may know what he is to oppose; his conduct which shows disrespect of the Court or which obstructs or interferes with the due administration of justice, committed in the actual presence of the Court or in places where the Court is deemed present such as places set apart for its use and for the use of its officers, jurors, witnesses, amounts to contempt. A Mukhtear practising in a Court exchanged some hot words with the Accountant of the Court in his office, in the course of which he abused the Accountant, which was heard by the Judge holding his Court in an adjoining room. The misconduct amounted to a contempt for which a warning was deemed sufficient. 44 Cal. 639=24 C.L.J. 190=20 C. W. N. 1284=18 Cr. L. J. 420=38 Ind. Cas. 980.

——S. 13 (b) and (f)—Contempt of Court—Letter to Commissioner to report in client's favour—Addressing disrespectful letter—Private capacity—Misconduct.

A pleader addressing a letter to a Commissioner appointed to investigate a case to report in his client's favour he is guilty of professional misconduct under S. 13, Cl. (b) of the Act. A pleader addressed to the Commissioner of the District a most disrespectful letter and circulated it free among his subordinates. Held, he is guilty of misconduct under Cl. (f) of S. 13 of the Act, though the matter is one of a private nature between the pleader and that officer. S. 13 (f) of the Act is not confined to the misconduct of a pleader as such but also covers his misconduct as a party to a suit. 18 P.R. 1915=12 P.W.R. (Cr.) 1915=16 Cr.L.J. 338=28 Ind. Cas. 722.

——Ss. 13 (f) and 14—Contempt of Court—Improper suggestion.

A Vakil is guilty of professional misconduct meriting more than a mere warning for suggesting that he is in a position to influence a Judge in his favour by indirect and improper means. 26 M.L.J. 429=23 Ind. Cas. 789.

——S. 13 (b)—Contempt of Court.

A pleader is not guilty of professional misconduct, if on being pressed by the Judge what the real facts were, he said "Possibly the gunner was doing all that is attributed to the accused" (a case of indecent assault on a woman.) 3 S.L.R. 177=10 Cr.L.J. 514=4 Ind. Cas. 176.

——S. 13—Imputation against Magistrate in petitions.

It is improper on the part of legal practitioners to impute improper motives and corruption to a judicial officer in petitions addressed to him in connection with proceedings pending before him as such officer. (1905) 29 M. 100=3 Cr.L.J. 376.

9. Conviction.

See also S. 12 supra.

——S. 13—Pleader—Conviction for defaming Sub-Inspector—Suspension from practice if warranted—Reprimand—Sufficiency.

Where a pleader defamed a Sub-Inspector and was prosecuted and convicted in respect of it though certainly it was wrong of him to defame the Sub-Inspector in the way he did, his action did not involve such a degree of moral turpitude as to warrant the Court in imposing the severe penalty of suspension from practice and a reprimand would be sufficient in the circumstances. I.L.R. (1946) Mad. 459=225 Ind. Cas. 101=47 Cr.L.J. 686=59 L.W. 63=1946 M.W.N. 104=A.I.R. 1946 Mad. 247=(1946) 1 M.L.J. 95 (F.B.)

——S. 13 (f)—Pleader convicted for criminal breach of trust.

Conviction of a Pleader for criminal breach of trust renders him unfit to be a member of the legal profession and his name must be struck off the register of Pleaders under S. 13 (f), Legal Practitioners' Act. A.I.R. 1940 Rang. 242=42 Cr.L.J. 110=191 Ind. Cas. 122.

——S. 13 (f)—Conviction for receiving stolen property.

A man who is convicted of so serious an offence as of receiving stolen property, even though the property be not of very great value, is not fit to be a Pleader. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 160=39 Cr.L.J. 541 (1)=175 Ind. Cas. 126.

——S. 13 (b) (f)—Conviction under Burma Village Act for not removing stack of hay—Defect in character—Conviction under S. 228, Penal Code—Improper behaviour before Magistrate—Action sought to be taken under S. 13—Duty of Court to consider the setting in which Pleader acted.

Where a Pleader is convicted under the the Burma Village Act for not removing a stack of hay from his compound in spite of a resolution under the Act, the conviction does not disclose a defect of character which unfits him to be a Pleader and the Court will not take any disciplinary action under S. 13, Legal Practitioners' Act in respect of that charge.

But where his conduct in snatching certain papers and in making improper expressions before a Magistrate are made the subject of criminal charges against him under S. 228, I.P.C., and he is convicted therefor, in proceedings under S. 13, Legal Practitioners' Act, in considering his acts and words, it is right and sensible that the Court should consider the setting in which he acted as he did and the Court should act having regard to the setting in which the incident occurred:

Held, that justice and mercy would alike be satisfied by ordering the Pleader to be suspended from practice for three months. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 175=37 Cr.L.J. 623=162 Ind. Cas. 534.

——S. 13—Taking part in activities of Association declared unlawful—Such conduct, if involves moral turpitude.

The Advocate-General presented three petitions to the High Court asking that three Barristers on the roll of the Court may be suspended and removed from practice or otherwise dealt with as the High Court thinks fit in exercise of the disciplinary jurisdiction vested in the Court. There were also two reports made to the High Court by District Judges under S. 26 of the Bom. Pleaders' Act for the purpose of action being taken by the Court under S. 26 of the Act. The ground was that all three Barristers were convicted by Presidency Magistrates under S. 17 (1) and (2) of the Criminal Law Amending Act (XXIII of 1932), in that they had been members and assisted and managed the operations of the Bom. Provincial Congress Committee Emergency Council, an association declared unlawful by the Govt. of Bombay, and they were sentenced to imprisonment and fine:

Held, that the mere fact that they were members of an unlawful association or assisted the operations or managed the affairs thereof did not render them unfit for the exercise of the profession.

Held, also that such conduct did not necessarily involve moral turpitude, or any attack upon the system of which the High Court forms part, or embarrass in any way the administration of justice by the Courts of the Presidency. 59 B. 57=A.I.R. 1935 Bom. 1=36 Bom. L.R. 1136=154 Ind. Cas. 546 (F.B.)

——S. 13 (f)—Proceedings under—Conviction of legal practitioner under Penal Code—Petitioner, if entitled to go behind his conviction.

Where a legal practitioner has been convicted, it is not open to him, in appearing to show cause why disciplinary proceedings should not be taken against him, to go behind the conviction in order to show that he had committed no offence at law. If, however, the convicting judgment does not show what the conduct of the legal practitioner was that led to his conviction, he is entitled to the benefit of any doubt. 15 N.L.J. 90=34 Cr.L.J. 224 (1)=A.I.R. 1933 Nag. 383 (2)=141 Ind. Cas. 570 (1).

——S. 13 (b)—Merits of conviction.

Under the Legal Practitioners' Act, the High Court will not go into the merits of the conviction but will ordinarily accept the findings of Criminal Courts as final. 5 Bur. L.T. 191=13 Cr.L.J. 875=17 Ind. Cas. 811.

10. Criminal offence.

See also Note 4 under S. 14.

——Ss. 13 (b) and 14—Criminal offence—Grave criminal charges against pleader—Reasonable cause.

Proceedings under the Act being summary proceedings, a pleader should not be proceeded there under for what are in reality grave criminal charges. Though the phrase "any other reasonable cause" in Cl. (f) of S. 13 is interpreted not as ejusdem generis with the proceeding ones, and a Court can investigate cases of moral turpitude unconnected with the discharge of professional duty, the case of a pleader's conduct in the capacity of a suitor is different. 43 C.L.J. 237, Foll. 1 Pat. L.T. 571=5 Pat. L.J. 601=21 Cr.L.J. 726=58 Ind. Cas. 150.

——Ss. 13 and 14—Criminal offence—Mukhtear suspected of taking money from client for bribing Court—Offence.

There is no reason why a different standard of proof of guilt should be required in a case under the Legal Practitioners' Act from that which is necessary in any other legal proceedings, viz., that the offence has been committed beyond any reasonable doubt. To remove a person from his profession for what amounts to a criminal charge upon mere suspicion cannot possibly be justified, the suggestion to adopt a less stringent mode of proof would be an entirely novel departure and unjustifiable on any known principles of law. 1 Pat. L.T. 372=21 Cr.L.J. 636=57 Ind. Cas. 460 (F.B.)

——S. 13 (f)—Criminal Offence—Pleader suspected of—Evidence insufficient for—Criminal prosecution—Disciplinary proceedings.

A Dt. Judge, being of opinion that the evidence available in respect of certain charges against a pleader, was of such a character that a criminal prosecution was not likely to succeed, directed the institution of proceedings against him under S. 13 (f) of the Legal Practitioners' Act. Held, that summary investigation under the Legal Practitioners' Act of what in reality is grave criminal charge may, in particular instances, be to the prejudice of the pleader. The rule deducible from the cases is that an attorney will be struck off the roll if convicted of felony or if convicted of a misdemeanour involving want of integrity even though the judgment may be arrested or reversed for error and also without previous conviction if he is guilty of gross misconduct in his profession or of acts which though not done in his professional capacity, gravely affect the character as an attorney, but if in the latter case if the acts charged are indictable and are fairly denied, the Court will not proceed against him until he has been convicted by a jury; and will in no case compel him to answer on oath to a charge for which he may be indicted. 31 C.L.J. 471=24 C.W.N. 755= 57 Ind. Cas. 931.

11. Duties of legal practitioner.

——S. 13—Members of the legal profession are expected to act in an honest and upright manner. Any deviation from these elementary principles must be severely dealt with. 1944 O.W.N. 122=1944 A.W.R. 84=A.I.R. 1944 Oudh 236=46 Cr.L.J. 108= 216 Ind. Cas. 63.

——S. 13 — Professional misconduct — Advocate should not on instructions of his client make charge of fraud without satisfying himself that there are reasonable grounds for the allegation.

Although an advocate has his duty towards his client, he has other duties and responsibilities as well. He should not on the instructions of his client, make a charge of fraud without satisfying himself that there are reasonable grounds for the allegation. A.I.R 1946 Mad. 538 (1946) 2 M.L.J. 79=59 M.L.W. 401=1946 M.W.N. 518=I.L.R. (1947) Mad. 1=228 Ind. Cas. 324=48 Cr.L.J. 198 (F.B.).

——S. 13—Reckless allegations in pleadings—Duty to satisfy himself that client has material to base charge.

When Pleaders are asked by their clients to write in a pleading or petition accusations of dishonesty, criminality, etc., against anybody, or instructed to ask questions of that nature, the lawyers are not to blindly follow the instruction. They must satisfy themselves that, apart from the relevancy of those accusations or questions, there are materials on which those accusations can be made or questions asked, and that the accusations and suggestions are not recklessly made. If they do not do so, they are guilty of professional misconduct.

When a pleading contains allegations of fraud or collusion or other similar charges, the duty of the Pleader ends when he has satisfied himself that his client was not making a reckless irresponsible statement and that he has some material on which he bases his charge. It is not necessary that the Pleaders themselves should have inquired into the truth of the charge.

It is enough if they believed that there were grounds for making the charge. 15 P.L.T. 560=A.I.R. (1934) Pat. 598=1 B.R. 18=36 Cr.L.J. 1=14 Pat. 10=152 Ind. Cas. 313 (S.B.).

——S. 13—Lending of money by Pleader or Advocate to his client.

In India, a Pleader, like the Advocate combines the functions of the Solicitor and the Barrister in England. He does the Solicitor's part of work and he pleads in Court. As he fulfills both roles he must be subject to the disabilities of both. There would be nothing improper for a solicitor to advance moneys to his client for purposes of litigation but it would be improper for a Barrister briefed by a Solicitor to do so and the higher standard must be applied. By financing his client's litigation, the Pleader acquires a personal interest in the litigation; in fact, an actual interest in the subject-matter of the suit. This is surely not in keeping with the standard of conduct which his profession demands of him. Hence, it is improper for a Pleader or on Advocate to lend money to his client at any time for the purposes of an action in which he is engaged.

[In the case as the Pleader had acted in good faith in financing his client's litigation, it was held that no action was called for.] A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 553=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 196=43 Cr.L.J. 798=1942 M.W.N. 483=55 L.W. 481=I.L.R. (1943) Mad. 30=202 Ind. Cas. 184 (S.B.).

——S. 13—Rules framed by Madras High Court, R. 16—Failure to keep accounts.

Even if a Vakil has not much work, he is bound to keep accounts for whatever work he may have and failure to keep accounts amounts to professional misconduct. I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 286=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 1031=52 L.W. 947=(1940) M.W.N. 1267=A.I.R. 1941=Mad. 63=42 Cr.L. 346=192 Ind. Cas. 604 (F.B.).

——S. 13—Acceptance of vakalat for withdrawing amount deposited in Court—Caution and duty of Advocate.

It is extremely desirable and necessary that Advocates, when having to withdraw money or to accept serious responsibility of the kind from and on behalf of clients should, even if there be no apparent circumstances to justify a suspicion, do everything in their power to verify the form of the vakalatnama and furthermore, they should not accept a vakalatnama unless they have satisfied themselves of the bona fides of the person who offers it to them. 18 P.L.T. 407=A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 433=38 Cr.L.J. 926=3 B.R. 745=16 Pat. 488=170 Ind. Cas. 339 (S.B.).

——S. 13 (f), (b)—Asking for adjournment to delay course of justice—Duty towards Court.

A legal practitioner who asks for adjournments on different occasions merely to delay the course of justice with deliberate intention is guilty of grossly improper conduct, and renders himself liable to punishment.

Per, Beasely, C. J.—It is not the duty of a legal practitioner to follow blindly every instruction his client gives him. That is an entire misapprehension of the duty of a legal practitioner. He has not only got a duty towards his client but he has got a duty towards the Court and it is his duty to see that the case is fairly and honestly conducted. He must not trick or deceive the Court or attempt to gain for his client an advantage by dishonest means. To attempt to obtain adjournments by misrepresentations and to put forward a purpose which the legal practitioner knows will never be carried out is to attempt to gain and to gain an advantage by a trick and a very dishonest one too. 60 M.L.J. 393=33 L.W. 425=(1931) M.W.N. 321=32 Cr.L.J. 657=54 M. 520=A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 422=131 Ind. ——S. 13—Duties of legal practitioner.

A pleader by virtue of his position is an officer of the Court and it is his duty to protect all minor officials of the Court from any temptation to depart from their duty, (to take a document from record to pleader's house for inspection by his client). Any such conduct on the part of any legal practitioner must be strongly deprecated. 115 Ind. Cas. 673=10 P.L.T. 715=A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 338 (S.B.)

——S. 13—Questioning witnesses of other side.

Advocates and Pleaders retained in a case ought to be extremely careful in approaching and questioning persons who to their knowledge have been approached and cited by the other side for the purpose of giving evidence, so as to give no room for any suspicion that they are attempting to tamper with the evidence or with the witnesses. 1929 M. W.N. 384 (F. B.)

——S. 13—Applications for transfer—Statements of clients should be tested by pleader.

Although it is perfectly true in one sense that a legal adviser must accept statements of fact from his client yet in applications for transfer statements imputing prejudice or unfairness or corruption to Magistrates should not be made unless the statements of the client as tested by the adviser are found sustainable, unless they are found to be corroborated and unless the adviser has taken some steps not necessarily to pledge himself for his client's veracity but such as to give him, as a reasonable man, ground for belief that the statements at any rate are such as should be properly investigated. The duty of the legal profession is a very serious one both with regard to applications of this kind and also in respect of pleadings.

An application for transfer drafted by mukhtear contained a statement which would have been considered as a statement that there was such a relationship between the Magistrate and the person who was mentioned as having visited him, as to make it undesirable that the Magistrate should sit and try a case in which the interests of that person were adversely affected. The statement was found to be totally unfounded and untrue.

Held, that the mukhtear was guilty of professional misconduct. 116 Ind. Cas. 762=8 Pat. 575=10 P.L.T. 711=A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 151 (F.B.)

——S. 13—Warning is not sufficient punishment for defying law—Duties of a Vakil discussed.

Where it is perfectly clear that a Vakil had deliberately taken the law into his own hands and defied the orders of constituted authority, and where he expressed no regret for his past conduct and has given no assurance as to his conduct in the future:

Held, warning would not be sufficient punishment. Advocates and Pleaders are a privileged classed enrolled not only for the purpose of rendering assistance to the Courts in the administration of justice, but also for giving professional advice, for which they are entitled to be paid, to those members of the public who require their services. Their position, training and practice give them immense influence with the public and their example must necessarily have a much greater effect whether for good or for evil than the example of those who do not occupy this privileged position. It is not necessary in order to enable High Court to exercise its jurisdiction that any offence should have been committed, nor is it necessary that what the pleader had done should subject him to anything like general infamy or imputation of bad character. 72 Ind. Cas. 875=1923 P.H C.C. 42=1 Pat. L.R. Cr. 36=A. I. R. 1923 Pat. 186 (S. B.).

——S. 13—Defective appreciation of duty.

A legal adviser engaged by a client in respect of a compromise of certain disputes with others is bound to warn his client when he is acting in ignorance of the nature of what he is doing while the legal adviser is in a position to inform him or if the client is acting under a mistake as to his right which the legal adviser is in a position to correct. The legal adviser does not properly appreciate his duty if he thinks or acts upon the belief that he is not bound to warn his client under such circumstances unless he is specially asked by the client upon the subject; but this defective appreciation of duty on the part of the legal adviser does not amount to such professional misconduct as to entail upon him punishment. A legal adviser who allows his client to execute an agreement which he thinks to be invalid in law and himself attests the same is not guilty of any professional misconduct especially when it has been held by the court that the agreement is not invalid. A legal adviser who knows that his client is solely entitled to a certain inheritance is not guilty of any professional misconduct if he allows his client to enter into an agreement by which his client parts with a portion of his rights in the inheritance to others when the client is fully aware of the nature of his rights and enters into the agreement under no mistake but with a full knowledge of his rights and of the nature of the transaction and there is nothing to show that the legal adviser had any knowledge or means of knowledge which his client did not possess. 12. False certificates.

——S. 13—Giving of certificate in support of special leave to appeal to Privy Council in forma pauperis.

The giving of certificates under R. 8, Judicial Committee Rules, 1925, by a Counsel in support of petitions by condemned prisoners for special leave to appeal in forma pauperis in circumstances which do not warrant the granting of such certificates, shows an utter disregard of the solemn and serious responsibilities of Counsel who is called upon to certify and the Counsel so certifying is guilty of gross professional misconduct. A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 210=44 Cr.L.J. 714=I.L.R. (1943) Lah. 409=208 Ind. Cas. 27 (F.B.).

Cas. 161 (S.B.).

——S. 13—Pleader filing fee-certificate without having received fee amounts.

It is certainly a very serious matter for a Pleader or an Advocate to file a false certificate with regard to fees. For a Pleader or an Advocate to file a fee certificate without having received the fee is most improper and the Court would take strong disciplinary action in any case coming to its notice. 54 L.W. 481=1941 M.W.N. 936=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 663=A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 905=43 Cr.L. ——S. 13—Pleader taking promissory note from client for fees and filing certificate that he had received them in cash.

In fact, it would amount to professional mis conduct if a legal practitioner, whether an Advocate or a Pleader, filed a certificate stating that he had received the amount of his fee when he had merely received from his client a written promise to pay. Of course, if he disclosed in his certificate that what he had received was a promissory note and not cash, there would be nothing improper. It would be then for the Court to decide whether the fee should be allowed on taxation. But where he accepts a promissory note in lieu of fees and files a certificate that he has received his fees in cash under the bona fide belief that he was acting properly (when such a view has been taken by the High Court), his conduct does not amount to professional misconduct. A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 493=(1943) 1 M. L. J. 487=56 L.W. 344=44 Cr. L.J. 735=1943 M.W.N. 512=I.L.R. (1944) Mad. 71=208 Ind. Cas. 147 (S.B.).

Held, charge of misconduct could not be sustained.

Where a legal practitioner, acting for the defendants in a case, made no attempt to conceal the fact that he had received only a portion of his fee in cash, and that for the balance of his fee he had obtained a promissory note which he produced in the trial Court and neither the plaintiff nor his Counsel suggested, at the time of the taxation of costs, that the defendants could not be allowed the fee which though promised, had not yet been paid by them, nor did the plaintiff urge, in his appeal to the High Court, that the Advocate was not justified in entering in his certificate the fee which he was to recover on the promissory note nor was there any personal advantage to be gained by deceiving the Court and he was found guilty of professional misconduct for filing a fee certificate which was not in accordance with the High Court Rules:

Held, that the circumstances of the case point to the conclusion that the entry in the certificate, upon which the charge of misconduct is founded, was due to the belief that as the new law enacted by the Legal Practitioners' (Fees) Act of 1926 had imposed upon his clients the obligation of paying the fee due on the promissory note they should have the corresponding right to recover it from the defeated party which they could do only if it was stated in the certificate and allowed on taxation. This belief was honestly entertained by him, and was apparently shared by many other persons and hence the charge of misconduct could not be sustained against him. 2 B.R. 582=1936 A.W.R. 558=A.I.R. 1936 P.C. 176=40 C.W.N. 933=17 P.L.T. 429=38 P.L.R. 684=38 Bom. XXI, Allahabad High Court General Rules, with the knowledge that no fee which had not been paid in cash before the conclusion of the hearing of the case in which the fee certificate was being filed could be certified as having been paid to him:

Held, that the fact that he had materially departed from the form of the fee certificate prescribed by the Court was a matter which could not be overlooked, that the alteration in the fee certificate clearly indicated a dishonest intention on the part of the Advocate and also showed that he never misinterpreted the clear words of the rule, and that in the circumstances, it must be held that he deliberately filed a fee certificate which was not in accordance with the High Court Rules in order that a fee not actually paid to him might be taxed; and consequently, he should be convicted of serious professional misconduct. 35 Cr.L. When a responsible judicial officer makes a statement of a disparaging character against a witness who is a member of the legal profession, it may be a sufficient ground for instituting an enquiry in the course of which the alleged falsity of the statement made by the witness should be established, but the mere opinion of a Judge or Magistrate regarding the reliability of a witness does not constitute any material per se for taking action. ——S. 13 (f)—Pleader knowingly making false statement in pleading drafted by him—Suspension.

It is a very serious matter for a legal practitioner knowingly to make a false statement in a pleading drafted by him.

Where a Pleader, in spite of knowing that a promissory note had been merely endorsed for collection, inserted in the plaint a statement that the instrument had been endorsed to the plaintiff for good consideration:

Held, that the Pleader be suspended from practice for a period of three months and not merely for one month. A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 268=57 L. W. 174=(1944) 1 M.L. J. 233=1944 M.W.N. 196=213 Ind. Cas. 161=45 Cr.L. J. 690=I.L.R. 1944 Mad. 550.

——S. 13—Misrepresentations made by Counsel in open Court—Facts within knowledge of Court and Court not misled.

Where the misrepresentations which were alleged to have been made by a Pleader were made in open Court in respect of documents before the Court and the facts were all within the knowledge of the Court and it was not misled by such representations, no charge of professional misconduct can be made against the Pleader. 44 Cr. L. J. 114=A. I. R. 1942 Mad. 691=(1942) 2 M.L. J. 479=55 L.W. 845=203 Ind. Cas. 585 (S.B.).

——S. 13 (b)—Giving false information to client by Pleader—Professional misconduct.

A Pleader was charged by the Sub-Divisional Magistrate for having falsely told a Marwari that the Sub-Divisional Officer had ordered that "the goods be sent to the person they belonged to", in respect of some tins of ghee which a certain Municipality had impounded as being adulterated, and which had been kept in the custody of the said Marwari by the Municipality, and the Marwari had sent the ghee back to the person to whom it belonged relying on the said false statement of the Pleader:

Held, that the Pleader concerned was guilty of fraudulent or grossly improper conduct in the discharge of his professional duty, as contemplated by S. 13 (b), Legal Practitioners' Act. A. I. R. 1935 Cal. 547=39 C.W.N. 283=36 Cr.L. J. 1271=157 Ind. Cas. 998.

——S. 13—Legal practitioner making two contradicting statements one before police and other as witness in Court—He is guilty of grossest misconduct. 121 Ind. Cas. 297=1929 Cr.C. 441=31 P. L. R. 224=31 Cr.L. J. 242=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 803.

——S. 13—Adjournment asked for in good faith—Absence of sufficient grounds for transfer—Pleader responsible for application is not necessarily guilty of misconduct.

Although every application for adjournment for the purpose of a transfer indirectly implies that there is a belief in the mind of the accused person that he would not have a fair trial, an application for adjournment under S. 526 does not always amount to an allegation of partiality made by the accused's Vakil against the trying Magistrate. If an application is made in good faith, the mere fact that it turns out subsequently that there are not sufficient grounds for transfer would not lead to a necessary inference that there was misconduct on the part of the practitioners who were responsible for such an application. 110 Ind. Cas. 686=29 Cr.L. J. 750=26 A.L. J. 1250=A.I.R. 1928 All. 396 (S.B.).

——S. 13—Bail refused by Dt. Judge– Pleader applying again for bail to Dt. Magistrate without informing him of previous application to Dt. Judge—Pleader is guilty of misconduct.

(The pleader had a good record and was therefore only reprimanded). 69 Ind. Cas. 442=23 Cr.L. J. 714 =A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 211.

——S. 13—Telling a lie is misconduct.

The fact that a man is going to be injured professionally if he does speak the truth is no valid excuse for telling a lie: but, it is an attitude which is not uncommon and which is not of the most serious character. It is very different from the case of a professional man telling a lie fraudulently in the sense of wishing to assist his client in deceiving the Court or even wishing to assist his client in a claim that he is making against another. In this case, the conduct of the pleader was disapproved but no action taken. 73 Ind. Cas. 329=17 M. L. W. 358=24 Cr.L. J. 585= A.I.R. 1923=Mad. 485 (F.B.).

A Legal Practitioner is guilty of professional misconduct if he identifies a person not known to him. 2 U.P.L.R. (All.) 211=57 Ind. Cas. 818 (F.B.).

——Ss. 13 (a) and (b) and 14—False statement—Petition without instructions.

A Vakil engaged to defend in the Court of Sessions certain persons accused of murder prepared and put before the Sessions Judge a statement which purported to be a petition issuing from his clients and drafted on their instructions. In fact it was a petition which originated with him without instructions from his clients, and which contained allegations which were made recklessly and without reasonable grounds of belief. Held, that the Vakil was guilty of professional misconduct and under S. 8 Letters Patent the Vakil was suspended from practising his profession. 42 All. 450=2 U.P.L.R. (All.) 130=21 Cr.L. J. 469=18 A.L. J. 419=56 Ind. Cas. 501.

——S. 13 (b)—False statements—Reply to Dt. Judge.

A pleader in defending himself against charges of professional misconduct made certain statements. He was dealt with for making them under the disciplinary jurisdiction. It was contended in his behalf that the statements made by him in defence must be regarded as having been made by an accused and were therefore protected. Held, overruling the contention that the pleader was writing to the Court as a pleader and was responsible as such for the statements made by him. 36 Bom. 606=14 Bom. L.R. 700=13 Cr.L. J. 913 =16 Ind. Cas. 788.

——S. 13 and Cl. (a) to (f)—False statements—False suit.

A pleader is guilty of misconduct under S. 13, Cl. (f), if he files a false suit, and can be dismissed or suspended. The words "any other reasonable cause" in S. 13. Cl. (f) are not to be construed ejusdem generis with causes enumerated in Cls. (a to e). They include personal misconduct distinguished from professional one. 6 L. B. R. 33=4 Bur. L. T. 275=12 Cr L. J. 574=12 Ind. Cas. 838.

——S. 13 (b)—False statement.

Where a pleader in order to recover fees due to him from his client for work done, made certain statements which if true, would expose him to criminal prosecution. Held, that the conduct of the pleader though improper was not such as to call for action being taken, under the Act. 15 C. ——S. 13 (b)—False statements — Attesting a will after testator's death—Extenuating circumstances.

Where a Mukhtear was pressed by person to put a signature to a will as an attesting witness, and he signed it because he believed the signature of the testator as genuine and confessed everything; the Court though holding that the Mukhtear was liable under S. 13 of the Act, was lenient in his case in view of fact that he was a Vakil of 25 years standing, bore a good character and was repentent. 14 C.L J. 606=13 Cr.L.J. 61=13 Ind. Cas. 397.

——Ss. 13 and 14—False statements.

Entering deliberately into a false defence, with intent to defraud others, is a ground of action under Ss. 13 and 14. 12 Cr.L.J. 67=9 Ind. Cas. 362 (Cal.).

——S 13 (f)—False statement—Professional misconduct.

Where a pleader retained in his service a suspected tout without dismissing him even after notice from the Bar Council not to retain him in his service and thereafter gave a false statement that he had dispensed with the services of that tout and stuck to that statement deliberately in a subsequent enquiry, Held, he was guilty of professional misconduct under S. 13 (f). 49 P.W.R. 1914 (Cr.)=16 Cr.L.J. 108=214 P.L.R. 1915= 27 Ind. Cas. 156 (F.B.).

——S. 13 (b)—False statement — Petition with unfounded allegations.

Where a pleader filed a petition in a criminal case containing unfounded allegations against the presiding Judge. Held, that he was guilty of professional misconduct. 8 M.L.T 375=21 M.L.J. 76=(1911) 1 M.W.N. 359=11 Cr.L. J. 684=8 Ind. Cas. 574 (F.B.).

——S. 13 (b)—False statement—Plea of alibi.

Where a pleader set up alibi in a case of defamation against him and the Court found against the plea; the High Court opined that they were not called upon to make any order under the Leg. Practs' Act. 20 M.L J. 498=11 Cr.L.J. 452=7 Ind. Cas 356.

——S. 13 (b) — False statement—False notice—Professional msiconduct.

A Vakil who sends a notice containing facts false to his knowledge is guilty of professional misconduct, though he purports to act under instructions from his client. 6 M L.T. 329=11 Cr.L.J. 165=4 Ind. Cas. 1072.

14. Fees and non-payment.

——S. 13—Pleader honestly claiming lien over papers for fees.

There can be no professional misconduct when an Advocate puts forward a claim bona fide. Hence, where a Pleader claims a lien over the records and papers for his fees under the honest belief that he is entitled to do so, he is not guilty of any professional misconduct. A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 493=(1943) 1 M.L.J. 487=56 L.W. 314=44 Cr.L.J. 735=1943 M.W.N. 512 =I.L.R. (1944) Mad. 71=208 Ind. Cas. 147 (S.B.).

——S. 13—Fees and non-payment.

Exhorbitant fees claimed by pleader do not amount in themselves to misconduct unless there is clear evidence to prove fraudulent conduct on part of pleader. 123 Ind. Cas. 184=1930 A.L.J. 539=34 C.W.N. 534= 1930 M.W.N. 300=31 M.L.W. 627=7 O.W.N. 517=51 C.L.J. 418=31 Cr.L.J. 489=A.I.R. 1930 P.C. 144= 58 M.L.J. 635 (P.C.).

——S. 13—Pleader's duty when client putting off settlement of fees.

When the client is, for some reason or other, putting off the settlement and payment of fee, a legal practitioner would be well advised if he served a registered notice upon him in good time intimating to him that if the client did not settle and pay his fee he would repudiate all his responsibility as a pleader. A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 947=31 P.L.R. 913=129 Ind. Cas. 301.

——S. 13—Signing of Vakalat—Failure to pay fee —No duty to defend case.

Where a pleader signs a vakalatnama on the distinct understanding that a sum paid to him is really in the nature of a part payment, and that the client will settle the proper fee afterwards, and if the client fails to do so, it follows that mere acceptance of vakalatnama cannot cast upon the pleader the duty of defending the case. 31 P. L. R. 913=129 Ind. Cas. 301=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 947.

——S. 13—No remuneration paid to pleader— Pleader is not absolved from his obligation to the client unless instructions are expressly repudiated to the knowledge of the client.

The absence of the necessary remuneration does not absolve the legal adviser from his obligations to his client unless the matter is brought specifically to the notice of the client. This must be borne in mind by practitioners, particularly those who have the very responsible duty of appearing for very poor clients and especially in criminal cases. It is not right that a legal adviser should come after a lapse of time and should say it is true that he accepted instructions from his clients but those instructions were conditional upon his receiving his remuneration. If the client does not produce the necessary remuneration it is the duty of the legal adviser to go back to the client and then and there repudiate the instructions. 115 Ind. Cas. 676= 10 P.L.T. 723=A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 337 (S.B.)

15. Gratification for employment.

——S. 13 (c) and (d)—Gratification for employment.

Munshiana (clerk's fee) is not included in the fee paid or payable to a pleader for his services within S. 13 (c). Paying wholly or in part, Munshiana to a person who introduces a client to a pleader, is not objectionable under S. 13 (d) unless it is done in pursuance of any previous arrangement between that person and the pleader for procuring clients for the pleader. (Obiter) the Munshiana system is very similar to that in force in England where a counsel's clerk is paid by his employer as well as the employer's clients. (By the Divisional Bench). A pleader, who himself pays a sum of money to a procurer of clients or allows him to take his clerk's Munshiana in whole or in part as a gratification for having procured him a client is liable to be dealt with under S. 13 (c). 69 P.L.R. 1910=27 P.R. 1910 Cr.= 22 P.W.R. 1910 Cr.=11 Cr.L.J. 396=6 Ind. Cas. 736 (F.B.)

——S. 13 (c)—Gratification for employment.

The words "out of any fee paid or payable to him" qualify only 'consents to the retention of' and not 'tenders' or 'gives'. 22 P. W. R. Cr. 1910=11 Cr.L.J. 306=60 P.L.R. 1910=27 P.R. (Cr.) 1910=6 Ind. Cas. 736 (F.B.)

——S. 13 (c)—Gratification for employment.

To sustain a charge under S. 13 (c), the gratification which is paid to the tout must be out of any fee paid or payable to a pleader but does not include a payment made out of the Munshiana of a pleader's clerk. 31 P. W. R. (Cr.) 1909=11 Cr.L.J. 148=4 Ind. Cas. 1022.

16. Identification.

——S. 13—A mukhtear practising the professional business of identification must be removed from the roll of mukhtears. In re A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 138=17 P.L.T. 951=38 Cr.L.J. 411=3 B.R. 310=16 Pat. 121=167 Ind. Cas. 668 (S.B.)

——S. 13—Judgment debtor filing satisfaction petition with forged signature alleged to be of decree-holder's son, acknowledging satisfaction—Mukhtear endorsing identification of decree-holder on being told by judgment-debtor that person brought by him was decree-holder—Decree-holder alleged to be illiterate—Judgment-debtor known to mukhtear for 15 year—sMukhtear not making investigation nor taking precaution of obtaining thumb impression of alleged decree-holder but acting merely on judgment debtor's assurance that he would obtain such thumb-impression—Mukhtear not acting for his or judgment-debtor's benefit—Mukhtear's act, held, grossly careless and negligent—Serious notice of his conduct without imposing punishment of suspension, held sufficient in the circumstances. A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 179 =7 B.R. 61=42 Cr.L.J. 473=22 P.L.T. 679=193 Ind. Cas. 861 (S.B.)

——S. 13—False identification is serious evil— Conscious misconduct not proved, still offender is liable to suspension.

An applicant for obtaining copies had some reason for concealing his true identity. He therefore had himself taken by a friend to a mukhtear and the friend announced him as the person in whose name he intended to be identified. The mukhtear, who knew the man by sight but did not know his name, nor anything about his identity, rashly accepted the statement of the friend and signed the identification paper. The mukhtear himself was an aged man and no complaint had hitherto been made against him,

Held that though the Mukhtear was not consciously guilty of misconduct still he was guilty for making a false identification and was liable to suspension for one month. A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 495 (F.B.).

——S. 13—Identification must be genuine—Merely clerk's telling practitioner that he identified the person does not entitle practitioner to pose as identifier.

A practice of identifying people is fraught with the gravest risk to the practitioner. It is not enough for a person who comes forward as an identifier to rely merely upon the fact that he has been told by his clerk that he (the clerk) identified the person. This does not entitle the practitioner to pose as an identifier. The identification must be a genuine identification as it involves not only an offence on the part of the legal practitioner against the duties of his profession but also an offence

17. Improper advice.

——S. 13 (f)—Improper advice—Guardian directed to furnish security—Pleader advising payment of moneys from minor's estate to the sureties as consideration.

A pleader directed his client who was appointed guardian of a minor to two other persons who consented to become sureties under an agreement by which a portion of the income of the minor's estate was to go to them as consideration for the suretyship. The agreement between the guardian and the sureties was not detrimental to the interest of the minors. The pleader in advising the guardian to enter into the agreement with the sureties did not believe to be other than a proper transaction and beneficial to the minor. Held, there was no cause for proceeding against the pleader under S. 13 (b) or (f) of the Leg. Practs' Act. 38 M.L.J. 58=11 L.W. 38=27 M.L.T. 107=(1920) M.W.N. 125=21 Cr.L.J. 19=54 Ind. Cas. 163.

——S. 13 (b)—Improper advice Ulterior motives.

In this case a Vakil of the High Court was suspended from practice for 2 years by the High Court under Cl. (10) of the Letters Patent (Madras) for professional misconduct arising from the following acts he did; viz., (1) giving improper advice and getting a nominal sale for a low value, (2) pleading a false defence, (3) giving false evidence and suborning perjury. 18 Cr.L.J. 449=39 Ind. Cas. 289 (Mad.).

——S. 13 (b)—Improper advice—Ulterior motive.

A pleader, who, in order to secure his own fee, is an active party to placing his client in the hands of an unscrupulous money lender, without warning his client of the extortionate nature of the bargain he was entering into, is guilty of grave professional misconduct, of a kind which if permitted, would tend to corrupt and demoralise the legal profession. A high standard of rectitude, diligence, duty, and zeal is required, of pleaders in the interests of the bar. The inquiry into a pleader's conduct, being quasi judicial the Court must have strict proof of the pleader's misbehaviour. 11 Bom.L.R. 1150=10 Cr.L.J. 526=4 Ind. Cas. 266.

18. Jurisdiction and procedure.

See also Note 1 under S. 14.

——Ss. 13 and 14—Misconduct alleged—Enquiry should be conducted by presiding officer in whose Court alleged misconduct occurred but the High Court has power to direct enquiry in other Court. A.I.R. 1944 Nag. 273 =1944 N.L.J. 244=I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 346=218 Ind. Cas. 239=46 Cr.L.Jour. 433.

——S. 13—Appointment of tribunal to make enquiry—Approval of tribunal, if can be given ex post facto.

The Legal Practitioners' Act in S. 13 contemplates the High Court directing an inquiry before action is taken. The Court has duties to perform under the Act and the first duty is to nominate a person or persons to hold the inquiry into the alleged misconduct. Unless the tribunal is constituted beforehand, the inquiry cannot be lawful. The suggestion that approval of a tribunal may be given ex post facto is repugnant to the spirit of the Act and the wording of S. 13. 51 L.W. 197=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 259=(1940) M.W.N. 161=41 Cr.L.J. 419=I.L.R. (1940) Mad. 433=A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 370=187 Ind. Cas. 144 (S.B.).

——S. 13—Acquiescence.

If the tribunal which conducted the inquiry under S. 13, was not validly constituted, acquiescence in the proceedings would not turn it into a lawful tribunal. If illegal in its inception, illegal it would remain. A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 370=51 L.W. 197=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 259=(1940) M.W.N. 161=41 Cr.L.J. 419=I.L.R. (1940) Mad. 433=187 Ind. Cas. 144 (S.B.).

——S. 13—High Court directing District Judge to enquire into charge of professional misconduct—District Judge has no power under S. 3-A, Madras Civil Courts Act (III of 1873), to direct Additional District Judge to make enquiry without reference to High Court. 51 L.W. 197=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 259=(1940) M.W.N. 161=41 Cr.L.J. 419=A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 370=I.L.R. (1940) Mad. 433=187 Ind. Cas. 144 (S.B.).

——S. 13—Misconduct in connection with instructions of client—Court before whom such misconduct takes place, if can take action—Trust—Breach of—Client deprived of valuable rights—Conduct must be severely dealt with.

If the Pleader who practises in a Court commits an offence of professional misconduct in connection with any instructions which he has received from his client generally or in connection with a particular case, then it is within the jurisdiction of any Court before whom the Pleader is practising, if brought to its notice that the Pleader has committed any professional misconduct, to take action against him and those proceedings will be entirely with in jurisdiction.

It is regrettable that legal practitioners who are entrusted by poor and ordinary litigants in the mufassal do not hesitate on occasions in committing serious breaches of trust in utter violation of the confidence imposed by their clients in the hope that the usually illiterate clients will find it difficult and inexpedient to convince a Court of the moral delinquency of the legal practitioner—the result very often has been that for failure to carry out the trust, the litigant has been deprived of his valuable rights and he has no remedy whatsoever, except to embark on doubtful and expensive litigation with dubious chance of success against a lawyer. It is incumbent on the High Court to protect the unfortunate litigants whose trusts have been betrayed by practitioners and if it is established that the lawyer, instead of discharging his duties faithfully like persons of trust and honour, has betrayed that trust, such conduct must be severely dealt with. A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 17=18 P.L.T. 961=39 Cr.L.J. 203=4 B.R. 184=17 Pat. 96=172 Ind. Cas. 877 (S.B.).

——Ss. 13, 14—District Judge hearing that Pleader was using his private car as a public conveyance proceeding to hold inquiry under S. 14—Propriety of — Proper procedure — Pleader relinquishing interest in car.

Where a District Judge is informed by a person avowedly at enmity with a legal practitioner, that the latter was using his private motor car as a public conveyance, he should report the matter to the High Court in order that the High Court may take such steps as it deems fit under S. 13, Legal Practitioners' Act, or otherwise. He has no jurisdiction to hold an inquiry into the matter under S. 14, Legal Practitioners' Act, without having previously referred the matter to the High Court.

If a Pleader uses his private car as a public conveyance for passengers, in so acting, he is not conforming to the rules by which the conduct of Pleaders is regulated:

Held, that in view of the fact that the Pleader had relinquished whatever interest he had in the car, no disciplinary action was necessary. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 189=37 Cr.L.J. 617=162 Ind. Cas. 485.

——S. 13—High Court is competent to take action under S. 13, Cl. (f) after such enquiry as it thinks fit. The section does not require that the enquiry should be conducted directly by the High Court; the enquiry may well be made by a Subordinate Court under the direction of the High Court. The only essential is, as pointed out by the full Bench in In the matter of Ganapathi Sastri, 19 M.L.J. 504 that notice must be given to the legal practitioner concerned to show cause against suspension or dismissal and the notice must formulate the charges; with great particularity and precision so as to enable the practitioner to know the charges he is called upon to meet. The final termination rests with the High Court and with the High Court alone, as was pointed out by the learned Judges in Russick Lal Nag, 44 Cal. 639; and even if the alleged misconduct had been brought to the notice of the High Court, without the intervention of the Subordinate Court the High Court is competent and ought in a proper case to take necessary action. 71 Ind. Cas. 673=27 C.W.N. 88=24 Cr.L.J. 209=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 550.

——S. 13—Misconduct before Subordinate Judge—District Judge can take action—Charge must be precise—Final order is for the High Court.

The District Judge has jurisdiction to deal with the alleged misconduct of a pleader, even if it does not take place in his Court if he is practising in his Court. Section 13 does not limit the consideration of a charge to the Court in which the misconduct is alleged to have been committed. Section 14 does not specify the nature of the materials upon which the court concerned may take action. It is plain however that if proceedings are instituted, there must be an enquiry supported by legal evidence. What is essential however is that the charge must be formulated with precision so as to enable the legal proctitioner concerned to meet the allegations against him. The ultimate order if any, can be passed by High Court and High Court alone, on the materials supplied by the Subordinate Court. 67 Ind. Cas. 985=49 Cal. 850=35 C.L.J. 520=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 484 (S.B.).

——Ss. 13 (b) and 14—Inquiry into misconduct—Who should conduct.

A charge of professional misconduct of a pleader can be inquired into only by the presiding officer of the Court in which the pleader practises. 32 M.L.J. 402=(1917) M.W.N. 303=6 L.W. 364=18 Cr.L.J. 785=41 Ind. Cas. 305.

——Ss. 13 (f) and 14—Inquiry into misconduct—Charge—Subordinate Courts.

S. 14 of the Legal Practitioners' Act includes a charge under clause (f) of S. 13 (as amended by Act XI of 1896), and Subordinate Courts have jurisdiction to take proceedings under clause (f) 39 Mad. 1045 (F.B.) Foll, 27 C. 1023, Diss. The fact that the pleader concerned had become a Vakil of the new High Court at Lahore since the action was taken under S. 14 of the Act by a Lower Court could not affect the jurisdiction of that Court. 152 P.R. 1919=2 Lah. L.J. 51=21 Cr.L.J. 198=54 Ind. Cas. 982.

——Ss. 13, Cls. (b), (f) and 14—Inquiry into misconduct—Subordinate courts -Receipt of money from accused for bribing police.

Subordinate courts can take proceedings against a legal practitioner in respect of an act coming under Cl. (f) to S. 13, where proceedings are commenced under Cl. (f) to S. 13, but if it is found that the act comes under Cl. (f) to S. 13, the High Court may avail itself even if the subordinate court in such case would have no jurisdiction to make the enquiry it did. In this case the High Court dismissed a mukhtear for having received a sum of money from one of the persons against whom a case is pending for the purpose of bribing the police acting as a go-between. 21 C.W.N. 516=18 Cr.L.J. 465=39 Ind. Cas. 305.

——Ss. 13 (f) and 14—Inquiry into misconduct—Subordinate Courts.

S. 13(f) is not confined to cases of misconduct ejusdem generis as those in other clauses. The subordinate Courts can take proceedings under S. 14. 39 Mad. 1045=18 M.L.T. 549=(1915) M.W.N. 1050=17 Cr. L. J. 38=32 Ind. Cas. 326.

——Ss. 13 and 14—Inquiry into misconduct—Charge—Report to High Court.

Where any of the charges mentioned in S. 13 of the Act is brought to the notice of any Court within whose local limits a pleader is ordinarily practising, the presiding officer can proceed against the pleader under S. 14 and report to the High Court for suspending or dismissing such pleader in case the charge is made out. Before issuing notice to the pleader the Court is bound to hold a preliminary enquiry in order to satisfy itself that the charge is prima facie true. Such notice if issued on a vague report is liable to be set aside by the High Court. 31 P.W.R. (Cr.) 1909=11 Cr.L.J. 148=4 Ind. Cas. 1022.

——Ss 13, Cl. (f), 14—Jurisdiction—Inquiry by Court subordinate to the High Court into conduct of pleader practising before it.

Held, that the words "any such misconduct as aforesaid" as used in S. 14, of the Legal Practitioners' Act, 1879, relate to all the cases set out in S. 13 of the Act. The authority therefore to inquire into a matter falling within the purview of S. 13, clause (f) of the Act is not confined to the High Court, but may be exercised by a Subordinate Court before which the pleader or mukhtear whose conduct is called in question may be practising. (1906) A.W.N. 268=3 A.L.J. 811=29 A. 61.

——Ss. 13, 14—Reference—Jurisdiction—Constitution of Bench—Division Court, if empowered to hear references under S. 14.

According to a long and undeviating course of practice in the High Court the constitution of a Bench for hearing civil appeals and references from a particular group has been treated as conferring on that Bench a jurisdiction to hear references under S. 14 of the Legal Practitioners' Act coming from districts within that group. Such practice gives the Division Bench sufficient authority to deal with such references without any special order allocating references under S. 14, Legal Practitioners' Act, to the Bench. 5 Ind. Cas. 406=37 C. 173=14 C.W.N. 275.

——S. 13—A Court is quite competent to order an enquiry into the facts and circumstances of a case whether it came under Cl. (b) or whether it came under Cl. (f) of S. 13 of the Act. 27 Cal. 1023, Not foll; 75 Ind. Cas. 728=1923 P.H.C.C. 329=25 Cr.L.J. 40=5 Pat. L.T. 350=A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 131.

——S. 13—Proceedings not to be dropped on agreement between parties.

Court having reason to believe that practitioner may have been guilty of professional misconduct—It cannot allow proceedings to be dropped on agreement between complainant and practitioner or on wish of complainant. ——S. 13—Jurisdiction not vindictive.

The jurisdiction which the Court exercises under S. 13 is not a vindictive jurisdiction at all. Its main object in such a case is not to allow a man to practise in Courts, when he himself is counselling disobedience to the law and order enforced by Courts. When a man who has offended in that way comes before the Court and honestly expresses his regret and his intention to assist the administration of justice in future, there is no reason why he should not be given an opportunity of showing that his intentions are as he expresses them. 81 Ind. ——S. 13—Inquiry into—Misconduct—Procedure.

If a Court thinks that there has been any breach of professional etiquette, or any matter calling for the exercise of disciplinary powers, in the conduct of the pleader or advocate in the case, it should decide the merits and reserve such question for further consideration after the disposal of the suit. 40 All. 147=16 A.L.J. 64=19 Cr.L.J. 865=44 Ind. ——S. 13 (b)—Inquiry into misconduct—Cheating client— Admission of charges — Formality in drawing up the charges.

The Chief Court found that the appellant who acted for the plff. as pleader in a pre-emption suit, had taken advantage of that position of trust in order to cheat his client out of the subject-matter of the suit and obtain it for himself, and made an order removing the appellant permanently from the register of pleaders entitled to practise. On a petition asking for a review of that order appellant's counsel withdrew all the grounds alleged in the petition as grounds for review and admitted that the facts were as they were found in the order under review. The Court reviewed its former decision and made a second order reducing the penalty to suspension from practice for three years. Held, that the charges were not perhaps very formally drawn up but the substance of what was imputed to the appellant was perfectly well understood by all parties, that the order on review went as far in the direction of mercy as it properly could go. 14 C.W.N. 521=11 C.L.J. 438=(1910) M.W.N. 107=7 M.L.T. 412=12 Bom.L.R. 425=20 M.L.J. 447=11 Cr.L.J. 303=10 P.W.R. ——S. 13—It is duty of applicant to substantiate his allegations and submit himself to cross-examination.

The proceedings under S. 13, Legal Practitioners' Act (XVIII of 1879), are of a quasi criminal nature, and in the event of the charge of the professional misconduct being established, the consequences to the legal practitioner concerned are very serious indeed. Such being the case it is the duty of the applicant who is more or less in the position of a complainant to go into the witness box and substantiate his allegation before producing any other witnesses, and what is more important, to submit himself to cross-examination. A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 987.

——S. 13—Evidence in another case incorporated in enquiry—Legality.

"When evidence has been given in one case upon the issues raised in that case nothing can be more dangerous than to take that evidence and apply it to another case in which other issues arise." Where in a proceeding against a legal practitioner for having tampered with the witnesses on the other side the Magistrate in holding the enquiry merely took the depositions already given in the other case and used them as against the pleader.

Held, that the procedure adopted in the inquiry was wholly illegal. 1929 M.W.N. 384 (F.B.).

——S. 13—Inquiry into charges of professional misconduct—Opportunity to cross-examine—Witnesses—Evidence — Legal evidence—Hearing of arguments by Advocate—Practice—High Court—Disciplinary jurisdiction.

In an enquiry into the alleged professional misconduct of a pleader, the court examined two witnesses and also the pleader, on the understanding that the pleader was not then a person on his defence. The pleader was given no opportunity of cross-examining the witnesses, and was not allowed to address the court upon the evidence. The Judge then expressed an opinion, adverse to the pleader, that he had deliberately made a false statement in court:—Held, by Jenkins, C. J., that having regard to the nature of evidence and the defects in procedure it would not be safe to accept the opinion of the court. Held, by Beaman, J., that there was no good evidence upon which the charge could be sustained, since it was doubtful whether reading and criticising depositions or other matter, which, if objected to, could not be received in evidence, makes those depositions or that matter evidence until the objection or objections are expressly waived —Per Jenkins, C.J.—It is clear that a judge in the great majority of cases cannot do full justice to a case without hearing the arguments which the advocates desire to adress. (1907) 9 Bom. L.R. 866.

——S. 13—Proceeding under—Several charges drawn up—Some of them proved by reliable evidence—Cumulative effect of finding on each charge—Whether can be considered to determine punishment.

Although in a proceeding against a member of the legal profession under the Legal Practitioners' Act different charges have been drawn up, there is only one issue which is whether or not he has been guilty of conduct justifying action under the Act, and the so-called charges spilt up into various sub-heads merely give notice to him of the case that he is called upon to meet. It is true that these sub-heads of charges are independent items and if one more of them are based on inconclusive evidence action on these sub-heads is not justified because two inconclusive pieces of evidence do not make the case against him any better. At the same time when more than one such sub-head is established by reliable evidence then the cumulative effect of the findings on each sub-head can properly be taken into consideration in determining what action should be taken against him. ——S. 13, Cl.(f)—False personation by a person enrolled as mukhtear—Suspension of.

False personation by a person who is afterwards enrolled as a mukhtear is a ground for his suspension under S. 13, Cl.(f) of the Legal Practitioners' Act, XVIII of 1879, as amended by Act XI of 1896. (1902) 6 C.W.N. 556=28 C. 890 (F.B.).

Held by the Full Bench (Ghose J., dissenting).—S. 13 of the Legal Practitioners' Act XVIII of 1879 as amended by Act XI of 1896 applies to misconduct antecedent to enrolment. (1902) 6 C.W.N. 556=28 C. 890 (F.B.).

20. Mistakes and negligence.

——S. 13—If a pleader acts bona fide in accepting a vakalatnama but makes a serious mistake, there is no need for the Court to take up the matter again after a long time has elapsed. The rules, which have been drawn up by the Judges of the High Court, should be strictly observed by pleaders in accepting vakalatnama. 65 Ind. Cas. 417 =23 Cr.L J. 65=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 178.

——Ss. 13 (b) and 14—Error of law.

Error of law is no professional misconduct. 43 Cal. 685=20 C.W.N. 278=23 Cr.L.J. 237=17 Cr.L.J. 65=32 Ind. Cas. 657.

——S. 13—Misconduct—Indiscretion or error of judgment—If amounts to—Counsel for appellant failing to pay deficient Court-fee believing appellant's case to be weak and allowing appeal to be dismissed.

It is settled rule of law that charges of professional misconduct must be clearly proved and should not be inferred from mere ground for suspicion, however reasonable, or what may be mere error of judgment or indiscretion. Where a counsel for appellant fails to pay deficient Court-fees in time honestly believing his client's case to be weak and in order to save him his money and allows the appeal to be dismissed and returns to his client the draft sent to him without even cashing it, his conduct may amount to certain indiscretion or laxity on his part, but it is not a fit case for any disciplinary action being taken against him. 51 Cr.L.J. 862=A.I.R. 1950 Pepsu. 2.

——S. 13—Duty to make inquiries to see that mukhtearnama is in order and is genuine—Failure to make enquiries amounts to negligence.

It is very important that mukhtears should make inquiries to see that their mukhtearnamas authorising them to withdraw client's money are in order and genuine even in circumstances where prima facie, there are no facts to arouse their suspicion. The fact that there was nothing to arouse his suspicion does not absolve him from this duty in cases of this kind to make a thorough inquiry and that notwithstanding any possible disadvantage to himself. Even if he has been honest throughout, if he has not taken this precaution which the Court has laid down in the public interest, his conduct will amount to negligence. A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 137=17 P.L.T. 948=38 Cr.L.J. 441=3 B.R. 309=16 Pat. 123=167 Ind. Cas. 656 (S.B.).

——S. 13—Carelessness—Affidavit for withdrawal of money—Pleader swearing he had made enquiries—Money found to have been withdrawn—Duties of Pleader in such cases.

A Pleader of about 25 years' standing and commanding considerable practice applied for withdrawal of a certain sum of money in Court deposit and swore in his affidavit that he made such enquiry as was open to him to make and had consulted the accounts of his client. It was found that the money had already been withdrawn:

Held, although it is expected that when the Court requires the assistance of the Pleader for the purpose of enabling it to satisfy itself that the money is due and had not been withdrawn, the Court certainly expects a greater degree of care on the part of the Pleader, it could not be held that the conduct on the part of the Pleader amounted to such misconduct as would justify the Court in proceeding to take action under the Legal Practitioners' Act against him, and that the proceedings taken against him should serve as a warning to him. A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 658=38 Cr.L.J. 197=166 Ind. Cas. 371.

——S. 13—A pleader withdrawing money from Court at the instance of his client's relation who was surety for the guardianship of the client and paying the money to the relation on the strength of two previous withdrawals and payments to the relation is negligent of his duty to the Court and also his client but not guilty of grossly improper misconduct in the discharge of the professional duty within the meaning of S. 13 of the Legal Practitioners' Act. 77 Ind. Cas. 181=25 Cr. L.J. 325=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 146.

——S. 13 (a)—Negligence — General Rules and Orders of Calcutta High Court, R. 45 (e).

A pleader engaged jointly with another on behalf of plff. in a suit instead of signing the Vakalatnama at the time of the suit, signed it after the other pleader had left that Court for another Court, and on the instructions of that other's clerk received from Court a sum of money deposited by the judgment debtor to be paid to the plff. decree-holder and paid it over to the clerk, who did not pay it to the plff. It transpired that the clerk had not taken out his "card" for the year and was not thus entitled to act as pleader's clerk when the money was withdrawn, but that the pleader bona fide believed that he had such authority and had taken out his "card". Held, that the pleader contravened the provisions of S. 13 (a) of the Legal Practs.' Act and of R. 45 (e) of the General rules and Orders of the Calcutta High Court and, therefore, deserved severe censure for his conduct. 96 Ind. Cas. 442 (Cal.).

——S. 13 (a)—Negligence—R. 45 Ch. XI Calcutta High Court Civil Rules and Orders.

The duty of a pleader who accepts a vakalatnama is to note on it, the date and the name of the person from whom it is received, and he must be satisfied that the person brought to him was either the party himself or his recognised agent or some friend or relative. 20 C.W.N. 283=17 Cr.L.J. 191=33 Ind. Negligent management of his office and permitting his clerks to cheat the clients and mislead them as to the progress of the case, and to inform the client that a case had been dismissed on the merits when in fact it was dismissed owning to the Pleader's neglect, is misconduct on the part of the pleader for which he might be suspended from practice. 35 Mad. 543=39 I. 21. Nature of proceedings.

See also: Note 3 under S. 14.

——S. 13—Nature of proceedings.

Proceedings under the Legal Practitioners' Act are quasi-criminal proceedings. If the person against whom the proceedings are directed is found guilty of the charges which are framed under the Act, he is liable to punishment. Some of the provisions of the Legal Practitioners' Act are, in a sense, penal. Further-more, in the proceedings under the Act, the contest is not between the legal practitioner and the person who has laid information against him, but between the legal practitioner and the Govt. Advocate as representing the Crown. It is also to be observed that whilst in a civil suit a successful defendant may recover his costs against an unsuccessful plaintiff, a successful defendant in a proceeding under the Legal Practitioners' Act, cannot recover costs from the Govt. Advocate or from the person upon whose information the proceedings under the Act have been started. A.I.R. 1939 All. 168=(1938) A.L.J. 1219=1939 A.W.R. 861 =I.L.R. (1939) All. 224=180 Ind. Cas. 563.

——S. 13—Though the proceedings under S. 13, Legal Practitioners' Act, cannot be described as a prosecution they are something very akin to a prosecution. (1937) A.L.J. 528=1937 A.W.R. 451=A.I.R. 1937 All. 506=170 Ind. Cas. 615.

——S. 13—Proceedings under Legal Practitioners' Act whether ground for action for malicious prosecution.

A man's professional reputation is as valuable as a trader's financial reputation. If the presentation of a bankruptcy petition necessarily involves injury to the trader's credit, the presentation of a petition in proceedings under the Legal Practitioners' Act against a Mukhtear must similarly involve damage to his professional reputation. Once such proceedings are instituted, his good name and reputation must suffer and that being so, these proceedings do come within that class of civil proceedings which cause actual damage the moment they are launched and therefore, give rise to an action for malicious prosecution if such proceedings are instituted maliciously and without reasonable and probable cause and, if they end in favour of the person proceeded against. (1937) A.L.J. 528=1937 A.W.R. 451=A.I.R. 1937 All. 506=170 Ind. Cas. 615.

——S. 13—Disciplinary proceedings under the act are neither criminal nor civil and the Court has inherent power to apply such rules of procedure as may ensure a fair trial of the matter requiring adjudication. What is essential is that the party should have proper notice and reasonable opportunity to be heard. 12 P. L. T. 773=A.I.R. 1931 Pat. 369=32 Cr.L.J. 1256=11 Pat. 365=134 Ind. Cas. 945 (F.B.).

——S. 13—Under the Legal Practitioners' Act, there is no question of any indictment or trial for the same offence under any other law and there is no question of punishing Pleaders over again for those offences; the question always is whether the acts committed by the Pleaders concerned bring them within the disciplinary jurisdiction of the Court of which they are officers under the Legal Practitioners' Act. A.I.R. 1931 Pat. 369=12 P.L.T. 773=32 Cr.L.J. 1256=17 Pat. 365=134 Ind. Cas. 945 (F.B.).

22. Non-acceptance of brief.

——S. 13—Non-acceptance of brief.

Mere fact that opposite party happens to be member of the same profession is not a circumstance which entitles a member of the Bar to refuse to undertake the case against him.

It is very important then men at the Bar should understand that they are members of a public profession. That is by their very calling they engage and undertake to act for anybody who fulfils certain conditions. Therefore if a client comes to them with proper instructions and prepared to pay a fair and proper fee and invites them to undertake a case of a kind, which they are accustomed to do and they refuse, such refusal amounts to professional misconduct and should be punished as such. 115 Ind. Cas. 641=30 Cr.L.J. 522 =1929 A.L.J. 616=10 L.R.A. Cr. 95=A.I.R. 1930 All. 262.

——S. 13—Refusal to take up case merely with intention of not appearing against professional brother is professional misconduct.

A lawyer must, as a general rule, take up a case for any member of the public if (1) a fair and proper fee is tendered to him; (2) adequate instructions are given; and (3) the case is of a class which the lawyer is accustomed to do. No doubt he can legitimately decline to take up the case if, for instance, he has an out-station engagement, or is engaged in some social function, such as a marriage or is incapacitated by ill-health or any reason which a sensible man would recognize adequate. But to refuse to take up a case simply and solely on the ground that the Advocate will not appear against a brother practitioner, or to put forward untrue excuses when the real reason is a disinclination to appear against a brother practitioner, is, in each case, professional misconduct and should be dealt with as such. The reason for the rule is that if lawyers as a body refuse to act against lawyers, they would become a class standing above the law and justice would be denied to the public. 51 All. 892=A. I. R. 1929 All. 367.

——Ss. 13, 14—Refusal of brief for political reason —Right to refuse—Reasons for refusal, if must be stated —Right to move High Court to quash proceedings when called upon to show cause.

A pleader is not bound to accept a brief offered to him nor to state his reasons for refusing to accept it. A pleader having refused a brief offered to him was subjected to stringent examination to disclose his reasons, and on its appearing that his reasons were political, proceedings were started against him under the Legal Practitioners' Act, and he was called upon to show cause why he should not be reported to the High Court for unprofessional conduct. Without waiting to show cause, the pleader at once moved the High Court to quash the proceedings. Held —That he was entitled to do so and that there was no rule of procedure to justify the examination to which he was subjected. (1908) 12 C.W.N. 381=35 C. 317.

23. Non-attendance.

——S. 13 (f)—Non-attendance on day of hartal—Absence of evidence to show intention to boycott Court.

Where, owing to a hartal in the town, the majority of Pleaders remained absent from the Court but it was not shown that they were engaged in any cases fixed on that day, or that they intended to boycott the Court:

Held, that such an intention cannot be affirmatively presumed from their absence and no individual Pleader could be held liable for misconduct under S. 13 (f), Legal Practitioners' Act. 35 C.W.N. 344=A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 616=33 Cr.L.J. 2=134 Ind. Cas. 1044.

——S. 13 (b) and (f)—Boycott of Court on particular day—Misconduct—Consent of client, effect of.

Absenting from Courts on a particular day in pursuance of a concerted movement on the part of the Pleaders to boycott the Courts, amounts to professional misconduct under S. 13 (b) and (f) of the Legal Practitioners' Act and the consent of client does not make any difference. 35 C.W.N. 223=32 Cr.L.J. 980=A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 706=132 Ind. Cas. 90.

——S. 13—Boycott of a Court and throwing up a brief without obtaining client's consent amount to misconduct.

Where in pursuance of a resolution of the local Bar Association to boycott a Magistrate's Court, a pleader refrained from appearing in Court without first obtaining his client's consent and left his client undefended as a result of which the client was detained in jail for about a month more,

Held, that the pleader was guilty of unprofessional conduct and that an arrangement arrived at with his client for a consent subsequent to the pleader's failure to appear and defend did not affect his liability. 82 Ind. Cas. 712=2 Rang. 265=25 Cr.L.J. 1352=A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 320.

——S. 13—Observing hartal through fear of the public wrath.

Per Sanderson, C.J.—Failure to attend Court for unreal fear of being put to great inconvenience and humiliation by the irritated public, who were observing hartal or bowing down to the popular will rather than doing the pleader's duty to his client and to the Court, amounts to acquiescence in though not actual sympathy with the boycott-of-Court movement and consequently it amounts to grossly improper conduct.

Per Woodroffe, J.—Mere lack of courage or unwillingness to face a real or supposed danger arising from the indignant public opinion and the fear of injury physical or otherwise arising therefrom would not amount to unprofessional conduct but to have sympathy with the cause of hurtal would. (Evidence sufficient to constitute joining the boycott-of-Court movement discussed).

Per Woodroffe, J.—A pleader being an officer of Court and thus bound to submit to its authority cannot join in an action to boycott the Court or a particular Judge because of any grievance real or alleged whether touching the Court or of political or other character. 71 Ind. Cas. 81=49 Cal. 732=26 C.W.N. 589=35 C.L.J. 356=24 Cr.L.J. 33=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 515 (S.B.)

——S. 13—Throwing away interests of unimportant client in favour of important client is deserving of censure.

A pleader N had two cases to attend on the same day. In one he was an assistant to a senior but in the other he was solely responsible though B a relation pleader of his was also engaged on nominal fees to take notes of evidence. On the previous night N took detailed instructions from his client who was being prosecuted for bribery in the latter case. His relation B was also present but the client remained under the impression that N would conduct the cross-examination next day. On the next day, however, N presented himself in the former case, the client concerned wherein was important and did not attend the bribery case though requested. The former case was being conducted by his senior who was amply provided with assistance independently of N. It was not absolutely necessary for him to be present there. The bribery case was weak, it was then conducted by another pleader and the accused was convicted,

Held, that N threw away the interests of an unimportant client in favour of the interests of an important client and in so doing committed an offence deserving of the most serious censure. 116 Ind. Cas. 764=10 P.L.T. 664=A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 153 (F.B.).

——S. 13—Non-attendance.

Aga Haidar, J.—It may sometimes happen that a Counsel may find himself in a position of unforeseen difficulty when with all the best intentions in the world it may become impossible for him to appear on behalf of his client in a case and he may be left no alternative except to hand over his brief to another Counsel so that his client's interest may not suffer But in a murder case when a Counsel has reason to believe that he would not be available at the time when the case would be called on for hearing because he has other engagements elsewhere, it is his duty to communicate with the person who had engaged him and to return the fee to him. If it is not possible for him to do so and the pressure of overriding circumstances is beyond his control, then he should try his very best and spend the whole of the fee that he has received in briefing a Counsel who would do full justice to his client's case for the remuneration. 3 Bur. L.T. 131, Ref.

Per Fforde, J.—It is not practicable or indeed desirable to lay down rigid rules of conduct for the Bar. The independence and sense of responsibility of the legal profession should be encouraged rather than the reverse. But when a practitioner has undertaken the duty of appearing to defend a man for his life, he should give exclusive attention to that case, and nothing should be deemed to exonerate him from that obligation except physical inability to attend at the hearing. 108 Ind. ——S. 13—Refusing to appear in Court is not the proper course for pleaders when ill-treated by any Court.

Where some pleaders refused to appear in a certain Court in pursuance of a resolution of the Bar Association to boycott that Court as a protest against its ill-treatment of pleaders and proceedings under S. 14 of the Legal Practitioners' Act were drawn up against several pleaders for failure to appear in Court in matters which had been entrusted to them by their clients.

Held, the pleaders deliberately abstained from attending the Court and took part in a concerted movement to boycott the Court, a course of conduct which was not justified. The pleaders had duties and obligations to their clients in respect of suits and matters entrusted to them which were pending in the said Court. There was a further and equally important duty and obligation upon them, viz., to co-operate with the Court in the orderly and pure administration of justice. By the course which they adopted the pleaders violated and neglected their duties and obligations in both these respects if the pleaders thought they had a just cause of complaint, they had two courses open to them: to make a representation to the District Judge or to the High Court. 69 Ind. Cas. 209=26 C.W.N. 580=35 C.L.J. 403=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 212.

——S. 13—Per Curiam.—When a pleader accepts a Vakalatnama in the ordinary form, he must attend Court on every occasion to protect the interest of the client concerned. Any limitations on this obligation by special agreement must be proved and the onus lies on the pleader. Non-payment is no justification for refusal to attend. 71 Ind Cas. 81=49 Cal. 732=26 C.W.N. 589=35 C.L.J. 356=24 Cr.L.J. 33=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 515 (S.B.).

——S.13(b)—Abandonment of case—Wilful neglect of pleader to appear—Plea of non-payment of fees.

A pleader is guilty of misconduct if after receipt of full fees he wilfully neglects to appear and conduct a case. Per Sundara Iyer, J:—Wilful neglect to appear after receipt of full fees is worse than gross negligence and amounts to a fradulent conduct. A plea of non-payment of fees as excuse for non-appearance is useless in the absence of an agreement that it must be paid previously. Per Sankaran Nair, J:—In the absence of such an agreement or at least notice to the party in time, a Vakil must appear and conduct the case though the fee or a portion thereof remains unpaid. 37 Mad. 238=23 M.L.J. 447=12 M.L.T. 615=(1912) M.W.N. 1029=13 Cr.L.J. 800=17 Ind. Cas. 544.

——S. 13—Abondonment of case—Acceptance of fees for whole case—Failure to appear.

In the absence of a special contract to the contrary, the fees accepted by an Advocate must be taken to be for the whole case. Where a case requires more hearings than anticipated and the advocate refuses to appear unless a further fee is paid to him, he is guilty of professional misconduct. A writing to evidence the term of the engagement between the advocate and the client is always desirable. 8 L.B.R. 294=15 Cr.L.J. 707=30 Ind. Cas. 995.

——Ss. 13 (b) and 14—Abandonment of case.

A pleader acts improperly in abandoning his client's case while in the midst of the client's examination in-chief. After once taking up his client's case he ought to have seen that it was terminated. 14 Cr.L.J. 379=20 Ind. Cas. 139 (Cal.)

——S. 13 — Applicability — Pleader distributing pamphlets calling upon public officers to resign.

The Legal Practitioners' Act applies to a Pleader registered as a Legal Practitioner under R. 9 of the rules framed under the Act, although he has not taken the necessary steps to have the sanad renewed for the year in which his conduct was called in question and the Court has power to deal with him under S. 13.

The Pleader was convicted under the Defence of India Rules for distributing pamphlets to public officers during the grave disturbances which took place in India in August 1942, calling upon them to resign their posts and to take an active part in the movement which resulted in the disturbances:

Held, that the conduct of the Pleader was such that the Court could not allow him to continue to be a member of the legal profession and that his name should be struck off the register of Pleaders. A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 616=56 L.W. 401 (2)=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 126=1943 M.W.N. 516=I.L.R. (1944) Mad. 17=45 Cr.L.J. 534=212 Ind. Cas. 103 (S.B.)

——S. 13 (f)—Political opinions of members of legal profession when actionable—Conviction of member under Defence of India Rules for sending letters to officials to induce them to leave their posts—Whether misconduct.

The Court is not concerned with political opinions of the members of the legal profession unless the expression of them involves the committing of an offence, or constitutes conduct improper on the part of a legal practitioner, who is a part of the machinery for the administration of justice.

A legal practitioner who is convicted under the Defence of India Rules for having sent letters to responsible officials, with the object of inducing them to leave their posts is guilty of misconduct of a nature as to justify disciplinary action under S. 13, Legal Practitioners' Act. A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 475=(1943) 1 M.L.J. 396=56 L.W. 320=1944 M.W.N. 459=44 Cr.L.J. 748=I.L.R. (1944) Mad. 8=208 Ind. Cas. 222 (S.B.).

——S. 13 — Misconduct not involving moral turpitude.

In cases of professional misconduct, it may sometimes be necessary that the Court should impose a penalty which is intended to be punitive, and to serve as a warning to other Advocates. But in the case of misconduct which is not professional, the element of punishment should not enter into the consideration of the Court. It is not part of the High Court's duty to impose penalties for misconduct, unconnected with the exercise of the profession.

In cases of misconduct involving moral turpitude, the Court has to see whether the Advocate has shown himself to be unworthy of the confidence of the Court, or unfit to be entrusted with the business of his client, or a person with whom his professional brethern cannot be expected to associate. But cases involving moral turpitude are not the only ones in which the Court may be called upon to take disciplinary action. The Court has a right to expect of a high standard of loyalty to the Court and co-operation from the Advocates on its roll. Cases may arise in which it is proved that an Advocate has been engaged in revolutionary activities designed to destroy the system of which the Court forms part, or activities likely to hamper or embarrass the administration of justice by the High Court or any of the Courts subordinate thereto. Courts of law can only function under a stable Govt., and the destruction of Govt. by revolutionary and unconstitutional means must, of necessity, involve the destruction of the Courts, or the grave impairing of their effciency. The High Court will not tolerate upon its rolls an Advocate who is endeavouring to destroy or undermine the authority of the Courts. Anyone who elects to engage in activities of that nature must do so without the authority and prestige attached to the position of an Advocate. 36 Bom. L.R. 1136=A.I.R. 1935 Bom. 1 =59 B. 57=154 Ind. Cas. 546 (F.B.).

——S. 13 (f)—Pleader—Infraction of forest law to protest against policy of Government—Conviction—Power to take disciplinary action.

Where a Pleader, with the object of protesting against the forest policy of the Govt. of Berar and of drawing attention to public grievances, and partly to assist the civil disobedience movement, committed an offence under the Forest Law by cutting and removing without permit some branches of forest trees and was convicted and sentenced to pay a fine, and an application was made on behalf of the Govt. to the High Court for taking action against him under the Legal Practitioners' Act;

Held, (i) that the conduct of the Pleader fell within S. 13 (f) of the Legal Practitioners' Act and the High Court had power to take disciplinary action;

(ii) that the fact that the Pleader had already been punished by the Criminal Court was no bar to such action being taken by the High Court;

(iii) that under such circumstances, it was not proper to allow the Pleader to practise until he had changed his views.

Per Niyogi, A. J.C.—The action taken under S. 13 (f), Legal Practitioners' Act, is not punitive but disciplinary. The object in a case of this nature should be to prevent repetition of such acts as are found incompatible with the obligations which the profession of law imposes on those who voluntarily served by administering a warning to the gentlemen whose case, in particular has been brought to the notice of this Court and there is no necessity to suspend such gentlemen from practising. A.I.R. 1931 Nag. 33=27 N.L.R. 29=14 N.L. J. 1=32 Cr.L. J. 604=136 Ind. Cas. 826 (S.B.).

Pleaders who become members of the Civil Disobedience Movement and commit illegal acts in furtherance of that movement by taking the law into their own hands and defying constituted authority, render themselves liable to disciplinary action under S. 13 (f), Legal Practitioners' Act. A.I.R. 1931 Pat. 369=12 P.L T. 773=32 Cr.L. J. 1256=11 Pat. 365=134 Ind. Cas. 945 (F.B.).

——S. 13—The conduct of a pleader should not be inconsisent with the position he holds in the administration of justice.

A legal practitioner, as any other person has a right to entertain political opinions which may or may not be acceptable to the authorities. But having obtained licence to practise in Courts, if he acts inconsistently with the position which he has obtained by virtue of the licence granted to him, he abuses it and brings himself within the four corners of the Legal Practitioners' Act. A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 515 and A.I.R. 1922 P.C. 351, Foll.

The action of legal practitioners counselling the public not to attend Court and thereby interfering with the administration of justice amounts to misconduct within the provisions of S. 13. 114 Ind. Cas. 96=30 Cr.L. J. 232=12 A.I.Cr.R. 214=A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 853.

——S. 13—Advising non-payment of taxes or boycott of Courts justifies refusal to issue sanad.

Courts should not consider what the political opinions of any body are, whether they are members of the legal or any other profession. But while the Courts will always uphold the liberty of the subject in thought or speech, an applicant who comes to ask for the issue or renewal of a sanad, is applying to be treated as a part of the machinery, for the maintenance of law and order in the body politic and to take an active part in administering, for the other subjects of the Crown, the benefits that may be supposed to result from the upkeep of law and order. It is intolerable and illogical that a man should seek to be put in that position, while at the same time he is saying that law and order should be disobeyed, and taxes are not to be paid and that all public offices are to be abandoned, in order to paralyse the very life of the body politic, apart altogether from any other views he may entertain, as to the desirability of the person or the particular members of the Government he attacks, or the particular character of the transactions carried on, in these Courts. A Court would not without stultifying itself,' issue a certificate to a man, who, in the same breath that he is asking for it, cuts himself off and announces his intention to do his best to cut off others, from the life of the state. 75 Ind. Cas. 977=18 M.L.W. 689=1923 M.W.N. 768=33 M.L.T. 98=25 Cr. L.J. 65=A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 129=45 M. L. J. 684 (F.B.).

——S. 13—The jurisdiction of the High Court to take action against legal practitioners is not confined to acts in professional capacity but may extend to other activities, for example, organised resistance to payment of tax which entails grave danger to the public peace. 69 Ind. ——S. 13 (b)—Politics—Passive rosistance—Civil disobedience to laws.

As a protest against the passing of the Rowlatt Act, certain barristers and pleaders practising joined the movement called the Satyagraha Sabha and signed a pledge whereby they undertook to refuse civilly to obey such laws as a committee to be hereafter appointed may think fit. Held, that the barristers and pleaders had, by signing the pledge, rendered themselves amenable to the disciplinary jurisdiction of the High Court, but that under the circumstances a warning was enough. Per Macleod, C. J.—Advocates and pleaders are a privileged class enrolled not only for the purpose of rendering assistance to the Courts in the administaration of justice, but also for giving professional advice, for which they are entitled to be paid, by those members of the public who require their services. It is not necessary for the High Court to exercise its jurisdiction that any offence should have been committed, nor is it necessary that what the pleaders have done should have subjected them to anything like general infamy or imputation of character. 44 Bom. 418=22 Bom. L. R. 13=21 Cr. L. J. 151=54 Ind. Cas. 679.

——S. 13 (b)—Politics — Organising seditious meeting—Reasonable cause—Meaning.

White, C. J., and Benson, J.—(Miller and Sankaran Nair, J). not expressing any opinion: The words other reasonable cause, in S. 13 (f) are not limited in scope to matters of the nature of those mentioned in Cls. (a) to (e) of the section. Two pleaders were charged under the Legal Practitioners' Act, with having organised a meeting at which two persons spoke and were convicted for sedition. Therefore the act of two pleaders who had only made certain arrangements for that meeting in which seditious speeches were made and signed a seditious leaflet for a procession in honour of B.C. Pal, whom the leaflet was intended to glorify does not constitute 'reasonable cause' within S. 13 for the suspension or dismissal of the pleaders. 19 M.L.J. 504=6 M. L. T. 253=11 Cr. L.J. 274=3 Ind. Cas. 344 (F.B.).

25. Privilege.

——S. 13 Cl. (b) and (f)—Privilege—Refusal to disclose—Communication.

A pleader has general authority to act in the interests of his client in the manner he thinks best, and cannot be charged with misconduct if he drafts a petition without consulting his client and asks or advises him to present the same in Court, where the facts on which the petition is based took place within his own cognizance and were such as to endanger the interests of his client. A pleader cannot be charged for misconduct for refusing to disclose to the Court a professional communication made to him by his client. 14 Cr. L. J. 438=20 Ind. Cas. 598 (Oudh).

26. Proof of charge.

——Ss. 13 (b), 14—Strict proof of professional misconduct, necessity of.

Charges of professional misconduct must be clearly proved and should not be inferred from mere ground for suspicion, however reasonable or what may be mere error of judgment or indiscretion. Proving facts and circumstances giving rise to grave suspicion is not sufficient to establish a charge of fraudulent or grossly improper conduct in the discharge of professional duty. A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 343=40 Cr. L. J. 687=5 B. R. 795=20 P.L.T. 607=18 Pat. 580=182 Ind. Cas. 645 (S.B.).

——S. 13—Using client's money for one's own purposes—Fraud, if should be proved—Intention, if material—Subsequent agreement to restore money.

Where a legal practitioner is accused by his client of fraudulently and dishonestly using the money, it is not necessary that fraud or any other criminal offence should be proved. It is sufficient if it is shown that the legal practitioner has intentionally used his client's money for his own purposes without his client's permission; and it is quite unnecessary to consider whether he did so with any intention of defrauding his client. He may have every intention of restoring the money to his client later on but he is nevertheless guilty of professional misconduct in converting the money to his own use even temporarily.

When once an act of professionl misconduct has been committed, any subsequent agreement by the legal practitioner to restore the money and his client to receive it back does not make the act anytheless one of professional misconduct though the subsequent restoration of the money may have some bearing on the question of punishment. When a case of professional misconduct has been brought to the notice of the Courts, then the charge cannot be permitted to be "squared". 46 L. W. 48=(1937) M.W.N. 721=(1937) 2 M. L. ——S. 13—Proof of legal practitioner's deliquency not free from doubt—Benefit of doubt.

A lawyer should not be convicted for professional misconduct unless the proof of his delinquency is free from doubt. When Court thinks that it might not be safe to act upon the assumption that it has been proved that the lawyer was a party to the scheme of suborning a witness, he should be given the benefit of the doubt and no disciplinary action will be taken against him. 36 Cr L.J. 1099=A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 180=13 Rang. 506=157 Ind. Charges of professional misconduct must be clearly proved and should not be inferred from mere ground for suspicion, however reasonable, or what may be mere error of judgment or indiscretion. ——S. 13 (f) "Reasonable cause"—Meaning—Offence not committed in professional capacity.

The words "any other reasonable cause" in S. 13 (b), Legal Practitioners' Act, are not confined to misconduct of which a practitioner is guilty in his professional capacity but embrace all causes which may afford reasonable grounds for his suspension or dismissal. 29 C. 890 (F.B.), foll. 51 Cr.L.J. 368=A.I.R. 1950 Dacca 3=2 D.R. 141.

——Ss. 13 Cl. (f) and 12—"Reasonable cause,"—Ejusdem generis, principle of — Suspension or dismissal, considerations leading to.

The legislature did not intend, to couple Cl. (f) of S. 13 with the preceding clauses, i. e., clause (f) is not limited by the principle of ejusdem generis. Therefore, the words, "any other reasonable cause" are not confined to misconduct in his professional capacity but, embrace all causes which, in the opinion of the High Court may afford reasonable ground for his suspension or dismissal; and a conviction for sedition constitutes "reasonable cause" within Cl. (f). Though a legal practitioner has been convicted by a Criminal Court of competent jurisdiction, a discretion remains under S. 12 in the High Court to decide whether or not the convicted practitioner should be suspended or dismissed. 6 N.L.R. 129=11 Cr.L J. 615=8 Ind. Cas. 282.

——S. 13 Cl. (f)—Misconduct other than professional misconduct—Applicability of section to.

By the Full Bench (Ghose, J. dissentiente)—The words 'any other reasonable cause' in clause (f) S. 13, of the Legal Practitioners' Act, XVII of 1879, as amended by Act XI of 1896, include cases of misconduct other than professional misconduct. (1902) 6 C.W.N. 556=28 C. 890 (F.B.).

——S. 13, Cl. (f) –Pleader –Slander of officer of court—Defendant—Professional misconduct.

The Legal Practitioners' Act is aimed against the misconduct of legal practitioners in relation to their professional duties and not in relation to other matters. The words 'reasonable cause' in S. 13, should, therefore, be read ejusdem generis as referring to professional misconduct. An allegation made by a pleader as a defendant in a suit and not as a pleader that the plaintiffs had bribed some officer of the record-room to tamper with certain documents produced at the instance of the plaintiff did not amount to professional misconduct. (1900) 5 C.W.N. 48.

——Ss. 13, Cl. (f), 14 –Petition containing disrespectful language presented by co-plaintiff who was also a pleader in the court—Act committed by a suitor.

A and B, the latter a pleader, were co-plaintiffs in a suit. The District Judge, doubting the bona fides of the claim, took evidence from the plaintiffs and others and passed proceedings, giving in detail the reasons for his doubts. A and B, then filed a petition objecting to their having been prima facie condemned. Certain passages in this petition were disrespectful. Held, that the pleader was not liable under the Legal Practitioners' Act, so long as it was possible to take notice of his behaviour as one committed by a suitor. The act of the petitioner was not sufficient per se to disqualify him from continuing to be a pleader. (1900) 24 M. 17.

——S. 13 (f)—"Any other reasonable cause".

"Any other reasonable cause" in S. 13 (f), Legal Practitioners' Act, need not necessarily be one ejusdem generis as the preceding. A. v. Emperor. A.I.R. 1937 Rang. 345=38 Cr.L. J. 1087=171 Ind. Cas. 503.

——S. 13 r. (f)—Pleader making demonstration in Court. Thereby interfering with Court's work.

It is the duty of a legal practitioner to assist the court. If he appears in the court and makes a demonstration which has the effect of interfering with the work of the court and the administration of justice he does something which a member of a legal profession certainly ought not to do. The court has power under S. 13 (f) to suspend or dismisss him for such conduct. (1943) 1 M.L. J. 8=1943 M.W.N. 14 (1)=56 L.W. 14=A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 130=44 Cr. L. J. 409 =I. L. R. (1943) Mad. 459=205 Ind. Cas. 400 (S. B.).

——S. 13 (f)—"Any other reasonable cause" in S. 13 (f), meaning and interpretation of—Rights and duties—Resolution prohibiting one member of Bar from acting against another—Interference with administration of justice.

Legal practitioners have their duties towards the Courts and are expected to co-operate with them to the orderly and pure administration of justice. They cannot be permitted to act, or to combine with others against such authority and in a manner calculated to impede or interfere with the administration of justice.

It is a fun amental right possessed by every legal practitioner that he may be allowed freely to exercise his profession and to appear in any case in which he may choose to appear without interference of any kind except where such interference is based upon some valid and legal grounds.

The words "any other reasonable cause" in Sub-S. (f) to S. 13, Legal Practitioners' Act, are not confined to acts done in a professional capacity by a legal practitioner, and are not restricted to reasonable cause of the same class or description referred to in the preceding sub-sections.

Where the members of a Bar Association passed a resolution that no member thereof except the Govt. Pleader should accept a brief in a criminal case against any other member, and subsequently when a certain member B accepted the brief on behalf of the prosecution in a Crown case against another member another resolution was passed that no member of the Association should act as junior, senior or colleague to B or receive any brief from him by way of transfer or otherwise and copies of this resolution were sent to all Bar Associations in the District.

Held, that the former resolution was flagrant and unwarranted interference with the rights of legal practitioners, that the latter resolution was calculated to have the effect of interference with the administration of justice, and that the action of the authors of the resolution amounted to 'reasonable cause' within the meaning of S. 13 (f), Legal Practitioners' Act. 54 C.L.J. 530=A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 370=36 C.W.N. 294=33 Cr.L. J. 466=59 C. 709=137 Ind. Cas. 434.

——Ss. 13 (f) 14—Reasonable cause—Meaning of—Criticism of administration.

The phrase 'for any reasonable cause' in the residuary Cl. (f) of S. 13 is not to be understood in an ejusdem generis sense but it covers cases other than those of professional misconduct in the ordinary sense, but which unfit a pleader for the practice of his profession, for instance, conviction for a crime involving dishonesty or moral turpitude or gross and habitual contempt of court. 26 M. 448; 44 C. 639; 29 A. 95 P.C. 39 M. 1045, Dist. The remedy provided by S. 14 is not indended to apply to cases in which a pleader as an ordinary member of the public criticises the administration of justice though such criticisms may on enquiry be found not to be wholly justified. S. 13 cannot be properly utilised in punishing a pleader for making comments on matters of public interest in the newspapers merely because such comments exceed the limits of in fairness. Per Krishnan, J.—The Legal Practitioners' Act, 1879, deals with the pleader only in his professional, and not in his private capacity. Though misconduct other than professional may fall under Cl. (f) S. 13 its impropriety must be such as would render the continuance of the pleader in practice undesirable or unfit him from being a member of the profession. 38 M.L. J. 230=11 L.W. 122=(1920) M.W.N. 105=21 Cr.L. J. 246=55 Ind. Cas. 198 (F.B.).

——S. 13 Cl. (f)—Reasonable cause—Becoming director of a bogus Co.

Pleaders becoming directors of a bogus life insurance business are guilty of unprofessional conduct under S. 13 Cl. (f). "Any other reasonable cause" must not be construed in a limited way on the principle of ejusdem generis (Miller, J.). Dishonesty in the discharge of duties other than professional good also come under 'reasonable cause' in S. 13 Cl. (f). 34 Mad. 29=(1910) M.W.N. 163=8 M.L.T. 22=20 M.L.J. 500=11 Cr.L.J. 310=6 Ind. Cas. 313.

——S. 13, Cl. (f)—Other reasonable cause meaning and scope of—Ejusdem generis—Association with fraudulent companies.

S. 13, (f) of the Legal Practitioners' Act is not confined to professional misconduct only, but includes any dishonest or dishonourable conduct whether or not in the discharge of professional duty. The association of pleaders as presidents or directors in so called provident companies which have no substantial basis to work upon but are a fraud on the public, is a reasonable cause within the meaning of S. 13, Cl. (f). 20 M.L.J. 500=34 M. 29=8 M.L.T. 22=6 Ind. Cas. 313.

——S. 13, Cl. (f)—Other sufficient cause—Notice—Requisites of notice—Per Chief Justice and Benson, J.

The phrase "other reasonable cause" in cl. (f) of S. 13, Legal Practitioners' Act, is not restricted to matters ejusdem generis. An order under S. 13 of the Legal Practitioners' Act, can only be made after notice to the pleader concerned to show cause against suspension or dismissal; and the notice must formulate the charges with great particularity and precision so as to enable the pleader to know the charges he is called upon to meet. (1909) 19 M.L.J. 504=6 M.L.T. 253=3 Ind. Cas. 344 (F.B.).

——S. 13, cl. (f)—"Other reasonable cause."

A pleader who writes an anonymous letter to an officer conducting an inquiry into a charge of bribery against a public officer, with a view to prejudice the officer making the injury is liable to be suspended under cl. (f) to S. 13 of the Legal Practitioners' Act, his act amounting to some "other reasonable cause" within the meaning of the clause. 27, C. 1023, foll. (1902) 13 M.L.J. 65=26 M. 448.

28. Renewal of sanad.

——S. 13—Readmission—Most important question is whether Advocate's character precludes him from remaining on roll of Advocates—That Advocate belongs to respectable family is no ground for leniency—Undertaking not to misbehave in future is weak piece of evidence to show that he has become fit.

Where an Advocate who has been removed from the roll of Advocates as a result of his criminal conviction applies for re-admission, by far, the most important question in such matter, is not whether he has or has not been punished sufficiently, but whether his character as shown by the facts leading upto his conviction is such that he should not be allowed to remain on the roll of Advocates of the Court. It is not by way of punishment that the Court in such cases exercise their discretion. That the Advocate belongs to a respectable family affords no ground for leniency, for, in such proceedings the Court is not assessing the amount of punishment. That is the peculiar function of the criminal Courts. Nor is the Court assessing the burden of punishment on those who may have the misfortune to be intimately connected with an Advocate who has been found guilty of offences involving moral turpitude to the extent disclosed. The undertaking not to misbehave in future is no more than a weak, because it is an interested piece of evidence to show that a person who was found unfit once has become fit again. A.I.R. 1946 Lah. 338=226 Ind. Cas. 470=49 Pun. L.R. 62 (F.B.).

——S. 13—Misappropriation of client's money by Advocate—Names struck off roll—Reinstatement.

Where an Advocate misappropriates a considerable sum of his clients, the act of the professional misconduct committed by him is a very grave one and it is not possible to allow him to continue practising in an honourable profession. But that does not mean that the Court is precluded from reinstating him where adequate punishment has been imposed and he has shown that he has rehabilitated himself in such a manner that he is fitted to be admitted into his profession again. A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 906=(1939) M.W.N. 1038=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 632=I.L.R. (1940) Mad. 81=50 L.W. 548=41 Cr.L.J. 163=185 Ind. Cas. 257 (S.B.).

——S. 13—Renewal of sanad.

Applications for the renewal certificates by Pleaders who, by illegal acts committed by them in connection with the civil disobedience movement which led to their prosecution and conviction and to preventive action under S. 107, Criminal P.C., have brought themselves under the disciplinary jurisdiction of the Court vested under S. 13 (f), must be treated as if it was an application for admission, where the Court has to see whether they are proper persons to be officers of the Court and to be trusted with the interest of suitors. And where the Court calls upon such persons to give an undertaking for future behaviour, refusal to do so should be deemed to aggravate the situation. A.I.R. 1931 Pat. 369=12 P.L.T. 773=32 Cr.L.J. 1256=11 Pat. 365=134 Ind. Cas. 945 (F.B.).

——S. 13—Renewal of sanad.

Where a pleader was committed to prison for default in complying with an order under S. 107, Cr. P. Code, and the pleader later disclaimed and disavowed any intention of either disobeying the order or in any way paralysing the administration of justice:

Held, the sanads of the pleaders may be renewed. Where the pleader before he renewed his sanad took up occupation on the press and mainly without remuneration held such conduct can be overlooked. 92 Ind. Cas. 214=1924 M.W.N. 5=27 Cr.L.J. 230=A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 479 (F.B.).

——S. 13—The High Court has power to reinstate a legal practitioner who had been dismissed for misconduct of any description. Before the Court should exercise such powers it should be clearly convinced not by mere protestations of repentance or regret but by actual facts that the delinquent has reformed his character and has for a sufficiently long period acted in such a way that he can be trusted to act in future as a worthy member of an honourable profession. The proper course is for the petitioner to apply to a Bench presided over by the Chief Justice and ask for a rule in the matter. 71 Ind. Cas. 122=1 Pat. 684=24 Cr.L.J. 74=4 P.L.T. 303=A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 604.

——S. 13 (b)—Criminal offence—Removal for misconduct—Reinstatement.

Where a legal practitioner, found guilty of a serious offence committed several years ago, and removed from the rolls applied for reinstatement: Held, that the test to be applied to cases of this description was whether the sentence of exclusion had the effect to awakening in the delinquent a higher sense of honour and duty and whether in the interval his conduct has been so irreproachable that notwithstanding the delinquency in early life he may be safely entrusted with the affairs of clients and admitted to an honourable profession without degradation to the profession. 16 C.W.N. 237=14 C.L.J. 113=12 Cr.L.J. 461=11 Ind. Cas. 997.

29. Suborning evidence.

——S. 13—Tutoring of witness inside or outside Court.

It is a professional misconduct on the part of a legal practitioner to tutor a witness inside or outside Court and when the tutoring takes place in Court and in spite of warnings the professional misconduct is all the greater. (1943) 2 M.L.J. 621=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 701=55 L.W. 799 (1)=1942 M.W.N. 758 (2)=44 Cr. L. J. 195=I.L.R. (1943) Mad. 81=204 Ind. Cas. 93 (S.B.).

——S. 13—Pleader bribing witnesses likely to be called by opposite party, for swearing false affidavits.

A Pleader joined with another person in obtaining false affidavits from witnesses, who were about to be called by the opposite side, in connection with an election petition saying that they knew nothing about the matter. He paid bribe to each of them for swearing such affidavits. Whilst the hearing was in progress, the Pleader also tried to tamper with other witnesses and offered them bribes:

Held, that the conduct of the Pleader on the two occasions could not be put down to a mere momentary lapse, but was part of a systematic endeavour to interfere with the course of justice. His name, therefore, should be struck off the register of Pleaders. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 294=177 Ind. Cas. 731.

——S. 13—Suborning of witnesses—Seriousness of offence.

Subornation of witnesses is as serious an offence as could well be committed, because it fouls the course of justice, and makes the due administration of law impossible. Persons having resort to such an iniquitous practice as the subornation of witnesses will be severely punished. 36 Cr.L.J. 1099=13 R. 506=A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 180=157 Ind. Cas. 48.

——S. 13 (b)—Intimidation—Witness.

A Pleader intimidating a witness to prevent him from giving evidence is guilty of professional misconduct. 19 Cr.L.J. 803=46 Ind. Cas. 819 (F.B.).

——Ss. 13, Cl. (f), 14—Misconduct—Witness—Payment for true evidence—Payment to keep back unfavourable evidence.

For a pleader to pay or offer to pay a witness for giving true evidence in favour of his client or to suggest such payment to his client is professional misconduct, though it may not amount to a criminal offence. Advice to a client to pay a witness for keeping back unfavourable evidence is grossly improper and punishable as serious professional misconduct. Semble: That a false letter to a client to expedite remittance would amount to misconduct. (1900) 5 C.W.N. 45.

30. Unprofessional conduct.

——S. 13 (b)—Pleader giving evidence for party without cancelling vakalat—If misconduct.

Where a pleader even after knowing that he would have to give evidence on behalf of his client continues to act as his pleader in a case and gives evidence without first cancelling the vakalat and even thereafter continues to act in an active capacity as his counsel, his conduct is improper and in no circumstances can it be considered that it was anything other than deserving of condemnation. The pleader should have cancelled his vakalat and ceased his professional connection with the case immediately he became aware that his evidence was essential and that he would have to be a witness at the trial. Obiter in (1942) 2 M. L. J. 479 (F. B.), approved.

As there is no authority or rule which prohibits such conduct there is a doubt whether it can be said to be professional misconduct within the purview of S. 13 (b) of the Legal Practitioners' Act and the doubt has to be exercised in favour of the pleader. I. L. R. (1948) Mad. 829=61 L.W. 162=1948 M. W. N. 165=A. I. R. 1948 Mad. 273=49 Cr. L. J. 467=(1948) 1 M.L.J. 170 (F.B.).

——S. 13—Pleader who obtains client's signature on blank sheets of paper and then prepared plaint on it is guilty of professional misconduct.

A Pleader who obtains his client's signature on blank sheets of paper and then prepares the plaint on it is guilty of professional misconduct. But the fact that there is a considerable spacing between the signature of the plaint is, in itself, not sufficient to show that the signatures were obtained before preparing the plaint. In such a case, the suspicion is no doubt strong but it is not sufficient to hold the Pleader guilty. 58 M.L.W. 56=1945 M.W.N. 106 (2)=(1945) 1 M.L.J. 174=A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 132=I.L.R. ——S. 13—Addressing of letter to Magistrate's clerk asking him to deal with application filed urgently.

It is improper for an Advocate to address a letter to a clerk in a Magistrate's office asking that an application filed by him should be dealt with urgently and amounts to professional misconduct. The proper course for him if there is any delay, is to bring the matter to the notice of the Magistrate himself. K, Advocate, Madura In re A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 230=53 L.W. 62=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 128=1941 M.W.N. 56=42 Cr.L.J. 602=I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 354=194 Ind. Cas. 587 (S.B.).

——S. 13—Misconduct, meaning of—Negligence, if professional misconduct.

"Professional misconduct" means conduct which would reasonably be regarded as disgraceful or dishonourable by solicitors of good repute and competency. Mere negligence, even of a serious character, will not suffice.

Held, on facts, that the Counsel, though undoubtedly guilty of negligence, had not been guilty of conduct which would be regarded as 'disgraceful or dishonourable' by solicitors of good repute and competency. A.I.R. 1940 All. 289=(1940) A. L. J. 306=41 Cr.L.J. 620=I.L.R. 1940 All. 386=1940 A.W.R. 260=188 Ind. Cas. 527 (S.B.).

——S. 13—Mere negligence, if amounts to misconduct—Bar Councils Act (XXXVIII of 1926), Ss. 10, 12 (4)—Finding of Tribunal not clear as to question of moral delinquency—Case should be sent back to Tribunal.

Per Costello, J.—It is true that mere negligence unaccompanied by any moral delinquency on the part of a legal practitioner in the exercise of his profession does not amount to professional misconduct. But where it is not at all certain that it could be said with strict accuracy that there is really a finding that there was no moral delinquency by the Tribunal constituted by the Bar Council, the case should be referred back to the Bar Council, under S. 12 (4), Bar Councils Act.

If a professional man does not tell the truth in connection with a matter which he has undertaken to carry through on behalf of a client, that is a conduct which might easily be said to involve moral delinquency. It is not in the best interest of the legal profession as a whole or of any member of it (other than the person accused) that there should be any lax or loose standard of professional conduct.

Per Lort-Williams, J.—Mere negligence, however gross, connot amount to misconduct, professional or otherwise. Per Henderson, J.—Negligence accompanied by the suppression of truth or by deliberate misrepresentation would be misconduct. A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 484=62 C. 158=36 Cr.L.J. 1130=157 Ind. Cas. 374 (S.B.).

——S. 13—Negligence—Employing unregistered clerk.

Mere negligence on the part of a legal practitioner does not found a petition for professional misconduct. There must be moral delinquency in addition to negligence. There is nothing unprofessional in a Pleader employing an unregistered clerk. The law allows a Pleader to have two registered clerks, but does not insist that any clerk should be registered. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 965=(1938) M.W.N. 961=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 661=48 M. L. W. 653=40 Cr. L. J. 160 (1)=178 Ind. Cas. 917 (S.B.).

——S. 13 (b) is not intended to punish Pleader who has been guilty merely of failure to make careful arrangements in any particular case.

The words of S. 13 (b), Legal Practitioners' Act, are as strong words as could well be imagined, and they plainly import in all cases moral turpitude to the Pleader whose conduct is impugned. Although of course, a Pleader who is habitually guilty of carelessness or laxity is no good example to his profession and will, in the end, find his laziness result in pecuniary loss to himself, the section is not intended to punish a Pleader who has been guilty merely of failure to make careful arrangements in any particular case.

A pleader who was engaged in a criminal case by an accused to defend him filed his power and asked for a long adjournment as he desired to go out. He was, in conformity with his application, granted a comparatively long adjournment but when that date arrived, he failed to put in an appearance at the Magistrate's Court. In the meantime, he had asked another Pleader of some standing to accept the case for him but when such Pleader appeared and saw the accused, he was told by the accused not to conduct the case:

Held, that there was not the least ground for suggesting that the conduct of the Pleader in the circumstances was either fraudulent or grossly improper though it showed a laxity which deserved no encouragement. A.I.R. 1939 Rang. 262=183 Ind. Cas. 580.

——S. 13—Practice of knowingly filing under-stamped appeals on last day of limitation hoping that Court would be persuaded to accept deficiency later.

The practice of filing of the memorandum of the appeal on the last day of limitation knowing full well that it was under-stamped and hoping that the Court would be presuaded to accept the deficiency later is certainly not in accordance with the High traditions of the legal profession. The High Court will not tolerate practices of this nature:

Held, that the charges against the Advocate had not been substantiated and that the arrangement between him and his client was as stated by the Advocate. 48 L.W. 702=(1938) M.W.N. 1169=I.L.R.(1939) Mad. 1=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 564=A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 1=179 Ind. Cas. 204 (S.B.).

——S. 13—Justifying conduct by production of forged document punishment.

If a Pleader is found guilty of endeavouring to appear on behalf of a person by whom he had never been instructed and seeks to justify his conduct by the production of a forged document, it would not be a matter for suspension for a month or a year; he would be totally unfitted to exercise the responsible duties of a Pleader and would have to be struck off the rolls of Pleaders forthwith.

Held, on facts that the charge of deliberate forgery which was preferred had not been made out, and no action, therefore, need to be taken in the matter. Tun Shin, In the matter of A.I.R. 1939 Rang. 312=183 Ind. Cas. 756.

——S. 13—Suggestion by Pleader to bribe official, amounts to grave misconduct—Fact that proceedings were instituted as result of grudge makes no difference in gravity of offence and is no excuse. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 264=47 L.W. 156=(1938) M.W.N. 219=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 410=39 Cr.L.J. 398=I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 457=173 Ind. Cas. 1008 (F.B.).

——S. 13 (f)—Offence under S. 377, Penal Code—Such offence committed by person when only 17 years of age—If can be a Pleader—Such Pleader not disclosing fact while applying for admission as Pleader.

Although generally an offence under S. 377, I. P. C. committed by a pleader or Advocate could not be condoned, the fact that the offence was committed by a person when he was only seventeen years of age ought not to debar a person, who is making an honest attempt to reform, from ever seeking respectable society or from being a member of an honourable profession. But such a person commits a serious offence of deceiving the authorities when he does not disclose the fact of his conviction in his application for being admitted as a Pleader although asked at the time whether there were any facts which ought to be brought to the notice of the High Court and the High Court is entitled to take him to task for it.

Persons who apply for entrance into the ranks of the legal profession should fully and frankly disclose all the circumstances of their past career with the knowledge that the Court will take into consideration every matter which ought properly to be dealt with by it. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 159=39 Cr.L.J. 540=175 Ind. Cas. 124.

——S. 13—Pleader, one of trustees of pagoda—He finding co-trustee depriving trust of money—He not reporting to Police but undertaking responsibility for defalcations by co-trustee—Whether incurs any criminal responsibility—Disciplinary action.

A Pleader was an honorary treasurer of a certain pagoda. He failed to give information to the Police when he found that a co-trustee of his had deprived the trust of money but rather preferred to deal with his co-trustee mercifully and make himself morally responsible for the defalcation and undertake responsibility for the defalcation which had arisen.

Held, that the Pleader did not incur any criminal responsibility. Even if he might be negligent in his duties, he was not guilty of any kind of misconduct which would justify disciplinary action being taken against him. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 158=39 Cr.L.J. 543=175 Ind. Cas. 156.

——S. 13—Madras High Court Rules, R. 16—Purchase of decree from client and executing it for larger amount than due.

If a Pleader purchases a decree from his client in contravention of R. 16 of the rules framed by the Madras High Court under the Legal Practitioners' Act, he commits professional misconduct and the offence grows more in seriousness when he dishonestly suppresses the payments made in reduction of the decree and practise frauds on the Court and then executes the decree fraudulently for the larger amount than is actually due. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 276=47 L.W. 192=(1938) M.W.N. 220=I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 399=174 Ind. Cas. 44 (S.B.).

——S. 13 (f) — Calcutta High Court Rules, S. 978 (2), (3)—Registered clerk, meaning of—Mukhtear maintaining unregistered clerk for work outside Court—Rule, if contravened—Mukhtear, if liable.

The expression 'recognized clerk' means a clerk employed by a Pleader or mukhtear and permitted as such, to have access to the Courts in which his employer is authorized to practise and to the officers attached thereto. Under S. 978 (2), (3), Calcutta High Court Rules, the statement made on the application undertaking not to employ an unregistered clerk means that he undertakes not to employ an unregistered clerk to do the business of a registered clerk, that is to say, that he undertakes not to employ any clerk who will require for the performance of his work access to the Court or to the ministerial officers.

Consequently, where a mukhtear, after statement under S. 978 (2) (3), maintains an unregistered clerk who works in the Court compound but does not actually enter any of the Courts, the mukhtear does not contravene any rule and cannot be brought under the provisions of S. 13 (f), Legal Practitioners' Act. 41 C.W.N. 929=A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 408=170 Ind. Cas. 251.

——S. 13—X, a Senior Advocate not used to withdrawing money of client in deposit in Court—Fact known to G, a Junior Advocate—Clerk of X approaching G with Vakalatnama on behalf of Client of X to withdraw money—G, accepting vakalatnama without consulting X, believing in clerk.

Held, that in the particular circumstances of the case, the admitted fact that Mr. X was unwilling to perform the kind of duty mentioned and the circumstances that the Advocate was approached by a person who was up to that time at least a clerk in the employ of Mr. X and trusted by him, deprived G's mind of all cause for suspicion and that there was not the slightest imputation on the professional honour of G. 18 P.L.T. 407=A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 433=38 Cr.L.J. 926=16 Pat. 488=3 B.R. 745=170 Ind. Cas. 339 (S.B.).

——S. 13—Court misled by petition to grant larger costs—Advocate found entitled to draw all but insignificant sum—Explanation given only in enquiry by Bar Council.

An Advocate was charged with professional misconduct for having obtained an award of taxed costs plus Rs. 2,550 special costs in a suit; he procured payment to himself of taxed costs plus Rs. 4,500 as costs of the said suit. It was shown that he was, except for a small difference, entitled to the amount which he actually drew. But his explanation that he was entitled to other fees which had not been taxed was not suggested by him until he was called to account before the Bar Council Tribunal:

Held, that had the Advocate got his bills properly taxed in the first instance, this inquiry would never have been necessary. He had only himself to blame, and his conduct throughout had not been the scrupulously careful conduct which the public has a right to expect of Advocates of the High Court.

[The Advocates was exonerated.] A.I.R. 1937 Rang. 263=38 Cr.L.J. 952=170 Ind. Cas. 689.

——S. 13—Pleader attempting to influence Judge before whom he is arguing through relative of Judge.

Where a Pleader tried to influence the Judge before whom he was arguing his case, through a relative of the Judge:

Held, that the act was highly reprehensible and that it was in the interest of the legal profession, that serious notice should be taken of it;

Held, however, that in view of his youth, the vitiated atmosphere prevailing and the wrong angle of vision taken with respect to this sort of thing, along with the circumstance that he expressed his penitence at once and made no attempt to deny what he had done, he should be treated more leniently than his act merited.

[The Pleader was severely censured and warned and ordered to bear the costs of the proceedings.] A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 732=164 Ind. Cas. 384 (D. B.).

——S. 13—Relation of Pleader implicated in criminal proceedings—Pleader seeing Government handwriting expert connected with investigation — Pleader proved not influencing officer.

The conduct of a Pleader, who goes to the house (not the office) of a Police Officer who was the Govt. handwriting expert officially investigating into the question of handwriting of a disputed document in a criminal case, and begins a conversation regarding the person involved in the case, is highly irregular. Although there may be no intention of the Pleader to influence or bribe the officer, still his conduct must be disapproved apart from the question whether the person involved in the case happens to be his client, friend or realation. [Pleader was suspended from practice for six months]. 2 B.R. 418=17 P.L.T. 348=37 Cr.L.J. 625=A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 423=162 Ind. Cas. 216 (S. B.)

——S. 13 (b)—Mukhtear exacting money to gratify Court Sub-Inspector to facilitate release of client whose release on bail had been ordered.

Where a mukhtear exacts money for purposes of gratifying the Court Sub-Inspector to facilitate release of the client who has been already ordered to be released on bail, the practice is illegal and receiving such amount and adhering to the same, amounts to professional misconduct. [The mukhtear was suspended from practice for two years.] 17 P.L.T. 263=A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 337=3 B.R. 731=38 Cr.L.J. 916=170 Ind. Cas. 458 (S. B.)

——S. 13 (f)—Pleader holding out promise to party in that if he be appointed arbitrator, he would not decide dispute unacceptable to him—Pleader acting contrary—Misconduct.

A party in a civil suit was given a promise by a practising Pleader K that if he would appoint K as an arbitrator, the latter would get his dispute compromised, but he failed to get it compromised, he would refuse to act as arbitrator, and that in any case he would not give a decision that would be unacceptable to the party. In spite of this promise, he made the recommendation that a large sum of money, which was in dispute, should be handed over to the opposite party. Thus he settled only one portion of the dispute between the parties before coming to any final decision as to the merits of the dispute between them and he thereby caused grave prejudice to one of the parties whose interests he had promised to protect.

Held, that K had acted with gross dishonesty under cloak of his position as a legal practitioner, and under S. 13 (f), Legal Practitioners' Act, he was liable to be dismissed. A.I.R. 1936 Pesh. 113=37 Cr.L.J. 741=162 Ind. Cas. 576.

——S. 13—Advocate attempting to bribe Judge to obtain judgment in his client's favour.

An Advocate who stoops to such nefarious tactics as attempting to bribe the Judiciary in order to obtain judgment in his client's favour is guilty of the grossest professional misconduct, for, by such means, if successful, justice is, both dishonoured and betrayed. A.I.R. 1935 Rang. 178=36 Cr. L. J. 961=13 R. 518=156 Ind. Cas. 582 (S.B.).

——S. 13—Pleader appearing in Court in state of drunkenness—Unable to conduct cases—Insulting the Court.

Where, in a criminal case, a lower grade Pleader for the accused appeared in a drunken condition and was unable to conduct the case, on another occasion, in spite of warning, he appeared in a similar condition in the Court of the District Judge and insulted the Court; on a third occasion being in the similar condition, he assaulted a Bench Clerk, and it appeared that he had taken to drink after his wife went mad and died:

Held, that the Pleader was no longer fit to be allowed to hold himself out as a person who could be entrusted with the responsible duties that needs be performed by a member of the legal profession and that his name be struck off the list of lower grade Pleaders. 12 R. 180=A.I.R. 1934 Rang. 156=150 Ind. Cas. 236.

——S. 13—Bar Councils Act (XXXVIII of 1926), S. 10 (1).

The test that the Court has to apply in considering whether an Advocate should be struck off the roll of Advocates is whether the proved misconduct of the Advocate is such that he must be regarded as unworthy to remain a member of the honourable profession to which he has been admitted, and unfit to be entrusted with the responsible duties that an Advocate is called upon to perform. 12 R. 110=A.I.R. 1934 Rang. 33=149 Ind. Cas. 856 (S. B.)

——S. 13—Mortgage with clients for providing for fees in case—Excessive interest—Pressure on clients.

An Advocate entered into a mortgage with a certain person, the purpose of the mortgage bond being inter alia the provision of fees to the Advocate. The interest was excessive and there was some pressure on the part of the Advocate to make him mortgage a large area:

Held, that under the circumstances and having regard to the method adopted by the Advocate in defending himself, he should be found to be guilty of professional misconduct. 34 Cr.L.J. 1131=A.I.R. 1933 Pat. 571=14 P.L.T. 709=12 Pat. 843=145 Ind. Cas. 1017 (S. B.)

——S. 13—Advocate wrongly retaining copies of judgment—Motive.

Where it was alleged that an Advocate wrongly retained the copies of certain judgments without handing them over to the parties as he was bound to do, and even after their asking him for the copies, he did the give them and it appeared to the Court that tno Advocate did, in fact, retain the copies:

Held, that whatever the motive of the Advocate might have been in withholding them, having regard to the fact that there was no valid excuse for retaining the judgments, the only conclusion the Court could come to as regards this matter was that the Advocate was guilty of professional misconduct. 34 Cr.L.J. 1131=A.I.R. 1933 Pat. 571=14 P.L.T. 709=12 Pat. 843=145 Ind. Cas. 1017 (S.B.)

——S. 13—Appearing in criminal case without Vakalatnama—Misconduct.

The filing of a Vakalatnama or Mukhtearnama in criminal proceedings is an arbitrary rule. There is no moral sanction behind it. It is a rule which was made for the better administration of justice and it is a rule which an officer of the Court must comply with but a disobedience of that rule in the particular case cannot be held to amount to professional misconduct, though no rule can be laid down that appearance without a Vakalatnama or other non-compliance with the rules cannot amount to professional misconduct. 34 Cr.L.J. 1131=A.I.R. 1933 Pat. 571=14 P.L.T. 709=12 Pat. 843=145 Ind. Cas. 1017 (S. B.).

——S. 13—Mukhtear—Advice to client on successful termination of case, to present gratification to Magistrate—Misconduct.

Where, after a case had terminated successfully, the mukhtear advised his client to present some gratification to the Magistrate who decided the case:

Held, that such conduct on the part of a mukhtear or any legal practitioner was disgraceful and though perhaps not so bad as a direct approach to the Judicial Officer with gifts before the trial of the case, as an example of misconduct, it was positively deplorable, and the mukhtear was liable to be suspended from practice. Cases relating to legal practitioners should be disposed of without delay. 33 Cr.L.J. 871=13 P.L.T. 574=A.I.R. 1932 Pat. 356=140 Ind. Cas. 10 (S.B.)

——S. 13—General infamy or imputation of bad character is not necessary for disciplinary action. 12 P.L.T. 725=A.I.R. 1932 Pat. 185 (F. B.)

——S. 13—Unprofessional conduct.

Where, in a criminal trial, the legal practitioner appearing for the accused suggests without reasonable grounds that the prosecution story is all a concoction, the legal practitioner is guilty of the grossest professional misconduct. 9 Pat. 31=10 P.L.T. 703=A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 195.

——S. 13—Letters Patent (Calcutta), Cl. 10—Pleader accepting vakalat and papers but not filing the appeal—Nor trying to get extension of time—Pleader's action amounts to grave professional misconduct.

P came to Calcutta being desirous of presenting a second appeal. The Vakil was at that time absent from Calcutta and P approached his clerk. Before P left Calcutta, the Vakil who had returned had himself prepared the memorandum of appeal and P had signed and handed over a vakalatnama. P made certain payment before he left Calcutta in respect of the appeal, but he had not paid the whole of the sum. No specific agreement exempting the Vakil from liability in case of non-payment was entered into. The Vakil subsequently left for the muffasil, relying upon instructions given by him to his clerk to file the appeal when the balance of the sum due had been paid by P. The Vakil took no further trouble in the matter. On his return to Calcutta he made enquiries of his clerk and was informed by his clerk that the appeal had been filed although as a matter of fact it was not filed. Shortly afterwards he left Calcutta again having given his clerk instructions to arrange for some one to argue the appeal if it came up for hearing. The Vakil knew nothing of the clerk's deception until he returned on the second occasion to Calcutta. At this time, the negligence, trickery and lies of his clerk were made fully known to him. The Vakil agreed to move an application under S. 5, Lim. Act, and a draft memorandum of appeal and a draft affidavit of the clerk were prepared. But they were not actually filed. All other papers in the case were subsequently returned to P.

Held, that the Vakil had accepted P's vakalatnama and had promised to file the appeal. It was not an ordinary case of negligence. It was in itself grave professional misconduct and a complete disregard of the client's interest. 114 Ind. Cas. 490=A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 820 (F.B.).

——S. 13—Fraudulent acts of clerk—Pleader is not necessarily guilty of professional misconduct.

It cannot be too constantly or too emphatically stated that if a Vakil leaves his money business to be conducted by his clerk, he is responsible for what the clerk does for purposes of civil liability. At the same time, if a Vakil is deceived by his clerk, or if his clerk does acts in fraud of him, then of course, it would not be right to hold that the Vakil himself is guilty of professional misconduct. 114 Ind. Cas. 137=30 Cr.L.J. 256=12 A.I.Cr.R. 131=A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 817 (F.B.)

——S. 13—A legal practitioner who purchases property benami in the name of another person, and not only appears as a pleader in the legal proceedings regarding the property but also takes his fee as pleader in the Courts, while he is really the de facto plaintiff commits an offence against propriety and is guilty of grossly improper conduct, as a legal practitioner. 81 Ind. Cas. 975=25 Cr.L.J. 1151=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 130.

——S. 13— A pleader standing surety to a man arrested under S. 420, Penal Code and convicted under the section and keeping in his possession on behalf this accused properties held later on to have been involved in the offence is not guilty of professional misconduct. 88 Ind. Cas. 279=2 Rang. 491=26 Cr.L.J. 1111=A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 110.

——S. 13—Denying allegiance to British Courts and expressing want of truth in British justice creates liability to disciplinary action—Legal practitioner accepting professorship without permission creates liability to disciplinary action.

A pleader, who acts as a professor in a College without the permission of the High Court, contravenes the rules framed by the High Court to regulate the conduct of legal practitioners and renders himself liable to disciplinary action.

A pleader, who proclaimed before a Criminal Court when he was tried for an offence under S. 188, I.P.C. that he owed no allegiance to British Courts and had no faith in British justice renders himself liable to disciplinary action. 77 Ind. Cas. 986=38 C.L.J. 353=25 Cr.L.J. 522=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 329.

——S. 13—Acting as arbitrator—Personal interest.

Where a pleader who had been engaged by the plaintiff, withdrew on behalf of defendant, money, which he knew was payable to the plaintiff, and took a conspicuous part as arbitrator in a matter in which he was seriously and personally concerned; he was guilty of professional misconduct. 1 Pat. L.W. 483=(1917) Pat. 217=2 Pat. L.J. 259=18 Cr.L.J. 808=41 Ind. Cas. 828.

——S. 13 (b)—Professional misconduct — High Court Rules Chapter XV, Rule 25.

A pleader acting for a decree-holder and purchasing the property sold in execution of his client's decree is guilty of professional misconduct, equally so if he purchases the property for other persons. Where in execution of his client's decree, a pleader made a purchase on behalf of his father, Held, he was guilty of misconduct. 13 Cr.L.J. 795=17 Ind. Cas. 539 (All.).

——Ss. 13, 14—Unprofessional conduct—Suspicion—Mukhtear—Renewal of licence.

The renewal of the licence of a legal practitioner cannot be refused on the mere suspicion that he was implicated in and privy to the sending of anonymous petitions making serious allegations against a Sub-Divisional Officer and other Government officers. (1908) 12 C.W.N. 919.

——S. 13—Pleader under pecuniary liability to a client attempting to make a composition with the client favourable to himself.

Held, that a legal practitioner, who, believing himself to be under a pecuniary liability to his client, endeavours to get the client to accept a less amount than that for which he is liable, cannot be held guilty of "grossly improper conduct in the discharge of his professional duty" within the meaning of S 13 of the Legal Practitioners' Act 1879. 1908 A.W.N. 70=5 A.L.J. 126 (F.B.)

——S. 13—Aggravating circumstances—Prevarication during enquiry for technical offence.

A legal practitioner who had committed a technical offence gave some very shuffling and evasive evidence before the District Judge who called upon him to show cause and his explanation was, to say the least of it, very disingenuous: instead of making a frank admission that he had committed a technical offence and asking for a lenient view to be taken of it, he told some unnecessary lies, shuffled in a very discreditable manner, thereby gravely aggravating what might otherwise have been considered an offence of no great magnitude,

Held, that serious notice must be taken of this conduct. The pleader was reprimanded and suspended for two years. 11 Pat. L.T. 665=A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 493 (S. B.)

See also: Note 18 under S. 13.

——S. 14—Misconduct in course of professional duty in Sub-ordinate Court—Such Court can frame charge and inquire into misconduct.

If in the course of a proceeding, a Subordinate Court had reason to think that a Pleader had committed misconduct in the course of his professional duty, the presiding officer of the Court can, under S. 14, Legal Practitioners' Act, institute proceedings against

——S. 14—Words "charged in such Court," meaning of.

It is only where, in the course of proceedings before it, a Subordinate Court has reason to suppose that a Pleader has been guilty of misconduct that the Subordinate Court is at liberty without reference to the High Court to inquire whether the Pleader has been guilty of misconduct or not. The words "charged in such Court" in S. 14 must refer to a charge of improper conduct in the course of proceedings in such Court. A.I.R. 1937 Rang. 345=38 Cr. L. J. 1087=171 Ind. Cas. 503.

——S. 14—Pleader inducing prosecution witnesses not to tell the truth—High Court, whether should hold inquiry.

Where a Pleader induces the prosecution witnesses not to tell the truth in the case, he behaves in a very improper manner, and his conduct might well justify his suspension or dismissal. It is obviously, therefore a case in which an inquiry should be made. But it is not necessary for the High Court to hold the inquiry itself. A.I.R. 1937 Rang. 345=38 Cr.L.J. 1087=171 Ind. Cas. 503.

——S. 14—Misconduct taking place during Police inquiry and before institution of proceedings—Court, held cannot start proceedings without orders from High Court.

Where the alleged misconduct of a Pleader takes place during the Police inquiry and before the proceedings are instituted before the Magistrate, the misconduct not having been committed in his Court, the Magistrate cannot start proceedings against the Pleader upon a complaint by the Court Prosecuting Officer without orders of the High Court. Nor can it be said that the misconduct was committed in relation to the case, the case not having yet been instituted. A. I. R. 1937 Rang. 345=38 Cr.L.J. 1087=38 Cr.L J. 1087=171 Ind. Cas. 503.

——S. 14—Court can take cognizance of Pleader's action only before it—Pleader getting nephew of client to sign as client had a swollen hand—Disciplinary action.

A Court ought to take cognizance under S. 14, Legal Practitioners' Act, only of the action of the Pleader in the case that took place in that Court. He cannot take cognizance of his action in a case proceeding in another Court.

A Pleader allowed the nephew of his client to sign certain applications as the client had a swollen hand, instead of applying to the Court and getting the documents executed, as the Court might direct:

Held, that the action was thoughtless and improper but he did not act with any indirect motive or with any intention to commit a breach of his professional duty. He ought to have known what his duty was and in acting as he did, he committed a breach of his professional duty but he did not deliberately do anything which he thought was unprofessional. In such cases, the Court has to pass a suitable order taking into account the setting in which the action of the Pleader is found. The conduct of the Pleader did not show that there is such a defect in his moral character as disentitles him to perform the honourable and onerous duties which fall to his lot as a Pleader, and in the circumstances, it was not necessary that the Court should take disciplinary action against him. A. I. R. 1936 Rang. 177=14 R. 152=37 Cr.L. J. 721=162 Ind. Cas. 887.

——S. 14—Person competent to take proceedings against Pleader.

Under S. 14, Legal Practitioners' Act, the only person who is entitled to take proceedings against a Pleader under that section is the presiding officer of the Court or Office in which proceedings are pending in the course of which the Pleader is alleged to have been guilty of misconduct. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 158=13 R. 737=37 Cr.L.J 510 (2)=161 Ind. Cas. 958 (D.B.).

[Overrules A.I.R. 1921 L.B. 67=72 Ind. Cas. 521.]

——S. 14—Enquiry into charge.

The provisions of S. 14 indicate that ordinarily an "enquiry" mentioned in S. 14 should be made by the presiding officer of the Court where the misconduct has been alleged to be committed. 110 Ind. Cas. 686=26 A. L. J. 1250=29 Cr. L. J. 750=A. I. R. 1928 All. 396 (S.B.).

——S. 14—The enquiry contemplated by S. 14 must be made by the presiding officer of the Court in which the misconduct was alleged and not by the presiding officer of a superior Court. 71 Ind. Cas. 703=4 P.L.T. 97=1923 P.H.C.C. 45=24 Cr.L.J. 239=1 Pat. L.R. Cr. 41=A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 185 (S.B.).

——S. 14—Jurisdiction of Dt. Magistrate to institute proceedings—Offence committed before another Court—Personal knowledge.

Under S. 14 of the Legal Practitioners' Act the proceedings could be instituted only by the Deputy Magistrate in whose Court the alleged misconduct or offence took place. I.P.L.J. 576, Foll. The Dt. Magistrate acted improperly in relying upon his own recollections of facts when they differed from those of other witnesses and it was undesirable for him to sit as a Judge to determine the matters in respect of which he might have been called upon to report or examined as a witness. 1 Pat. L. T. 379=(1920) P. H. C. C. 225=21 Cr.L.J. 613=57 Ind. Cas. 277.

——S. 14—Section 14 does not limit the consideration of a charge to the Court in which the misconduct is alleged to have been committed. A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 484, Foll. 92 Ind. Cas. 896=1926 M.W.N. 466=27 Cr.L.J. 384=A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 1044.

——S. 14—"Such Court" in S. 14 means the Court in which the pleader practises and not necessarily the Court in which the pleader commits the offence charged against him. 72 Ind. Cas. 521=11 L.B.R. 111=A.I.R. 1921 L.B. 67.

——S. 14—Professional misconduct—Transfer of the case to the Court to which the presiding officer was transferred bad—Jurisdiction to issue warrant or summons on failure of pleader to appear—Use of bad language to Court by a pleader suitor—No professional misconduct.

A charge under S. 14 of the Legal Practitioners' Act must be dealt with by the presiding officer of the Court wherein the charge is made, and there is no provision of law authorizing the transfer of the case to the file of the Court to which the officer who presided over the Court in which the charge was originally made had been transferred subsequently. It is not competent to a subordinate Court charging a pleader with professional misconduct under S. 14 of the Legal Practitioners' Act to issue either a summons or a warrant against the pleader, if he fails to appear in answer to a charge under the section. The penalty for non-appearance in answer to the charge is that a report may be made without the pleader being heard in his own defence. The use of language by a pleader, such as that the magistrate had acted "maliciously, vexatiously, and with a vindictive spirit" in a written statement attached to a warrant issued against himself, though improper to the last degree does not amount to "fraudulent or grossly improper conduct in the discharge of his professional duty," the same being used only in the pleader's capacity as suitor and not as a pleader. (1907) 18 M.L.J. 184=3 M.L.T. 237.

——S. 14—Mukhtears practising in Civil and Criminal Courts—Charge of misconduct with reference to matters pending in the Civil Court—Power of Sub-divisional Magistrate to frame charge—Jurisdiction.

A Subordinate court is authorized to proceed under S. 14 of the Legal Practitioners' Act only in matters coming within Cle. (a) and (b) of S. 15 of the Act. Where a Sub-Divisional Magistrate framed charges not under S. 14 of the Legal Practitioners' Act against certain mukhtears who were authorized by their certificates to practise in both Civil and Criminal Courts, with reference to conduct relating to suits pending before the Court of the Munsiff. Held—That the Sub-Divisional Magistrate had acted illegally and without jurisdiction. (1906) 10 C.W.N. 1059=4 C.L.J. 229.

——S. 14—Procedure—Nature—The procedure of S. 14 must be strictly followed.

The proceedings must be separate and distinct and cannot be made part of criminal proceedings. The report of the High Court must be accompanied by the opinion of the officer making the report. 15 C.W.N. 764=12 Cr.L.J. 40=9 Ind. Cas. 247.

——S. 14—Recording evidence.

Where the evidence was not received and recorded as required by S. 14 upon the date on which the enquiry was held it is a substantial defect in procedure. 54 Cal. 721=31 C.W.N. 554=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 536.

——S. 14—Offence under S. 13 (b)—Failure to formulate charge—Pleader not prejudiced—Proceedings, if legal.

Where a Pleader alleged to be guilty of professional misconduct was given full particulars of the complaint made against him and was given every opportunity to meet that complaint and at no stage in the proceedings did he complain that he had been taken by surprise but no precise charges had been formulated against him:

Held, that it would have been better if precise charges had been formaluted; but as the failure to formulate such charges had not prejudiced the Pleader, such failure to formulate charges was not fatal to the proceedings. A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 343=5 B.R. 795=40 Cr.L.J. 687=20 P.L.T. 607=18 Pat. 580=182 Ind. Cas. 645 (S.B.)

——S. 14—Charge against Pleader—When can be framed.

Where the point for inquiry under S. 14 was whether a Pleader has signed and filed a petition or satisfaction in a mortgage execution case and he denied the same:

Held, that no charge under S. 14 could be framed against him unless it was established beyond reasonable doubt that he had actually signed the petition. 59 C.L.J. 419=A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 794=152 Ind. Cas. 43 (1).

——Ss. 14 and 36—Proceedings under—C. P. C. (1908), S. 16—Applicability of.

Summoning, enforcing attendance of witness and production of documents would be made as prescribed by C.P.C., S. 16 in an enquiry by the Dt. Judge under the Legal Pract.s' Act. 23 C.W.N. 560=50 Ind.Cas. 806.

——S. 14—Transfer of proceedings.

Section does not contemplate either a preliminary enquiry or a transfer of enquiry. 92 Ind. Cas. 896=1926 M.W.N. 466=27 Cr.L.J. 384=A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 1044.

——S. 14—Procedure.

Additional District Magistrate should follow the procedure laid down in S. 14 (c) with reference to a report by a District Magistrate and forward the report through the Sessions Judge. 71 Ind. Cas. 673=27 C.W.N. 88=24 Cr.L.J. 209=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 550

2. Interim suspension.

——Ss. 14, para. (5) and 40—Interim suspension—Power of District Judge to suspend pleader pending enquiry before him.

Under para. (5) of S. 14 read with S. 40 of the Legal Practitioners' Act, a District Judge has only power to suspend a pleader after he has recorded a finding against the pleader and is submitting a report to the High Court for its orders. It is only at that stage that it can be said that the matter is pending the investigation and orders of the High Court. A pleader cannot be suspended pending the enquiry before the District Judge. 10 C. 256, 13 C. L. J. 457, 14 R. 735 and 1937 Mad. 672, foll. I.L.R. (1949) A. 874 =A.I.R. 1949 All. 642.

——S. 14 (5)—District Judge cannot suspend legal practitioner until he records finding thereon.

District Judge cannot, under S. 14, suspend any Pleader from practice until he has recorded his finding that he ought to be suspended or dismissed. The suspension of a Pleader from practice pending an investigation which has not yet been begun is, in fact, to impose upon him a punishment, before there is even a prima facie case of his guilt and it cannot possibly have been the intention of the Legislature that any such injustice should be committed. A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 672=46 L.W. 509=(1937) M. W. N. 460 =39 Cr. L. J. 83=172 Ind. Cas. 136.

——Ss. 14 (5), 13, 40—S. 40, if governs S. 14—Pleader, when can be suspended—Professional misconduct before Honorary Magistrate—Report to District Magistrate through Sub-Divisional Magistrate—Sub-Divisional Magistrate passing orders of suspension under order of District Magistrate pending investigation—Validity.

Section 14, Legal Practitioners' Act is governed by S. 40, and under S. 40 of the Act, no Pleader may be suspended from practice unless he has been allowed an opportunity of defending himself before the authority suspending him. Furthermore, the fifth clause of S. 14 gives authority to suspend a Pleader only after the preliminary inquiry in the Court in which the misconduct took place, and pending the investigation before the High Court under S. 13. Consequently where, at the time when the order of the District Magistrate was passed, no charge had been framed against the Pleader and no notice had been framed against the Pleader and no notice had been served upon him, as required by the first and second clauses of S. 14, the order of the District Magistrate suspending him from practice pending investigation on the report of an Honorary Magistrate through the Sub-Divisional Magistrate is one made without jurisdiction.

A Lower Grade Pleader was charged with professional misconduct before the Honorary Magistrate, who reported the matter to the District Magistrate through the Sub-Divisional Magistrate. District Magistrate ordered suspension, pending investigation, On this order, the Sub-Divisional Magistrate ordered suspension:

Held, that the only Court which could suspend the applicant from practice in connection with this partiy cular misconduct was the Court of the Honorar-Magistrate; for, S. 14 refers to an investigation into the misconduct of the Pleader undertaken by the Court before which the misconduct took place, and under the fifth clause of that section, that Court only has authority to suspend the Pleader with the sanction of the District Magistrate. Hence the order served by the Sub-Divisional Magistrate upon the applicant, suspending him from practice, was clearly ultra vires. A.I.R. 1936 Pang. 249=14 R. 735=163 Ind. Cas. 586.

——S. 14—Power of suspension—Report—Investigation—Meaning.

Investigation in para. 5 of S. 14 means investigation in the High Court. It is only after a report to the High Court under para. 4 that power is given to suspend under para. 5. 15 C.W.N. 269=13 C.L. J. 457 =12 Cr.L. J. 33=9 Ind. Cas. 225.

3. Nature of proceedings.

See also Note 21 under S. 13.

——S. 14—Nature of proceedings.

A proceeding under the Act is not a civil proceeding and the provisions of the C. P. Code are wholly inapplicable to a case of misconduct by pleader. Nor can enquiry into the conduct of a pleader be treated as a criminal proceeding, though being penal in its nature it resembles in many respects a criminal case. 93 Ind. Cas. 700=27 P L.R. 225=27 Cr.L. J.=476=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 199.

——S. 14—Per Woodroffe, J.—Proceedings under this section are quasi-criminal proceedings and the pleader may be examined on oath.

Per Mookerjee, J.—The proceedings are neither civil nor criminal in their nature. They are special proceedings resulting from the inherent power of the Court over its officers and are regulated by S. 14. 71 Ind. Cas. 81=49 Cal. 732=26 C. W. N. 589=35 C.L. J. 356=24 Cr.L. J. 33=A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 515 (S.B.).

——S. 14—Proceedings under—Nature of—C.P.C. S. 141—Transfer of enquiry.

Where proceedings were instituted under the Legal Pract.s' Act before the Dt. Munsif and an application was made to transfer the same to another Court.

Held, that the procedure under the Legal Pract.s' Act is neither Criminal nor Civil, but purely designed for the purpose of discipline. Such disciplinary proceedings under S. 14 are not proceedings of a Court of Civil Jurisdiction and S. 141, C.P.C. cannot apply to them. The enquiry under S. 14 of the Legal Pract.s' Act, cannot be delegated to another officer who is not the presiding officer of the Court in which the malpractices complained of, were committed. 1 Pat. Allegations amounting to aiding or conspiring to commit criminal offence—Proceeding under S. 14 should not be taken but a criminal prosecution may be started. A.I R. 1926 Cal. 502, Foll. 54 Cal. 721 =31 C.W.N. 554=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 536.

——S. 14—Causing evidence to disappear.

Where a sanction was given for the prosecution of a party under S. 471, I.P.C., and the party instructed his pleader to withdraw all documents from the case and the pleader withdrew the same:

Held, that the conduct of the pleader amounted to a charge of aiding and abetting or conspiring to commit a criminal offence, viz., causing evidence to disappear with the intention of screening the offender, an offence punishable under S. 201, and that the correct procedure to be followed is that proceedings under the Legal Practitioners' Act should not be taken, but that if it is thought necessary to take action it should be by way of a criminal prosecution. 94 Ind. Cas. 893=30 C. W. N. 186=27 Cr L. J. 701= A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 502.

5. Reference to High Court.

——S. 14 (b)—Reference against legal practitioner charging him with criminal offence—Competency—Absence of prior trial and conviction in criminal Court.

A reference under S. 14 (b) of the Legal Practitioners' Act against a legal practitioner formulating charges amounting to a criminal offence, is competent, although there has been no previous criminal trial and conviction in respect thereof. 51 Cr.L J. 368= A.I.R. 1950 Dacca 3=2 D.R. 141.

——S. 14—District Judge finding charge not established—Case should not be submitted to the High Court.

Where the District Judge does not find that the charge of professional misconduct has been established the case should not be submitted to the High Court. A. I. R. 1940 Rang. 190=41 Cr.L. J. 899=190 Ind. Cas. 320.

——S. 14 — Enquiry under — Presiding Officer coming to conclusion that proceedings should be dropped—District Judge disagreeing — District Judge reporting case to High Court without drawing up fresh proceedings—Such reference is ultra vires—Proper procedure.

Where the presiding officer of the Court draws up a charge against a Pleader under S 14, Legal Practitioners' Act, and after due enquiry, comes to the conclusion that the proceedings against the Pleader should be dropped and submits his report to the District Judge, if he disagrees with the report of the presiding Judge, is at liberty to draw up fresh proceedings against the Pleader and then, after giving notice to the Pleader, he should record himself all evidence in support of the charge or to refute the charge and then after adjudicating thereon he should report to the High Court if in his view the conduct of the Pleader deserves a punishment to be meted out by the High Court. But the District Judge has no jurisdiction to forward the proceedings which were never initiated by him nor can he act on the evidence which was never recorded by him. The result of these irregularities is that the reference must be discharged as being ultra vires. But it is open to the High Court to draw up fresh proceedings before it and then, after giving notice to the Pleader and hearing his defence, if any, to dispose of the matter.

——S. 14—Recommending officer, whether should suggest punishment.

Section 14 does not anywhere say that the presiding officer must pass a sentence upon the legal practitioner before he recommends the case to the High Court for orders. Infliction of punishment on the legal practitioner is within the exclusive jurisdiction of the High Court, and it is not necessary for the recommending officer to suggest as to what punishment should be awarded. 54 C.L.J. 530=33 Cr.L.J. 466=59 C. 709=A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 370=36 C.W.N. 294 =137 Ind. Cas. 434.

——S. 14—Formalities not observed—Reference is not valid.

For a proper reference to the High Court the formalities required by S. 14 ought to be fulfilled and in the absence of those formalities being strictly complied with the reference is no valid reference.

A report made by a Magistrate subordinate to the Magistrate of the District was not made also through the Sessions Judges and hence no opinion of the Sessions Judge was before the High Court. The reference was held to be invalid. 118 Ind.Cas. 712=1929 A.L.J. 1042=30 Cr.L.J. 966=1929 Cr.C. 242=A.I.R. 1929 All. 655.

——S. 14:—The High Court would exercise its disciplinary jurisdiction even though the reference under S. 14 with regard to the alleged misconduct of a pleader is not made by the trial Court in whose Court the occurrence has taken place but by the appellate Court which has no power to refer it. It would be necessary however that the High Court should make an enquiry. What the nature of that enquiry ought to be is clearly a matter for the discretion of the Court. 71 Ind.Cas. 209=4 P.L.T. 235=1 Pat. L.R. Cr. 57=24 Cr.L.J. 81=1 Pat. 689 =A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 608 (F.B.).

——S. 14—Mukhtear practising without licence —Misconduct—Whether report to High Court lies.

A report to High Court under S. 14 of the Act recommending the dismissal of a mukhtear having no licence to practise in a Revenue office for gross misconduct, does not lie as the misconduct was committed in the capacity not of a mukhtear but as a private individual and came to light in a proceeding wherein he was not a party but only a witness. 19 C.L.J. 110=15 Cr.L.J. 378=23 Ind. Cas. 746.

——S. 14—Reference—Costs of.

A Dt. Judge has no power to award costs in a matter referred by him to the High Court, under the Legal Practitioners' Act. 1 L.W. 937=26 Ind. Cas. 125.

——S. 14—Reference —Practice—Division Bench.

According to the long and undeviated practice of the Calcutta High Court, matters for reference are heard by a Bench specially constituted for hearing Civil appeals and the like from particular districts, though there is no express rule for alloting references under S. 14 of the Act to any particular Bench. 37 Cal. 173=14 C.W.N. 275=5 Ind. Cas. 406.

——S. 14—Finding that allegations were false and were result of animosity, cannot be challenged in reference to High Court under S. 14.

A finding that the allegations by a Pleader against a Judicial Officer were false and were the result of animosity being a finding of fact cannot be challenged in a reference to the High Court under S. 14, Legal Practitioners' Act. A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 630=1942 M.W.N. 481 (2)=55 L.W. 502= (1942) 2 M.L.J. 234=44 Cr.L.J. 17=203 Ind.Cas. 182 (S.B.).

——S. 14—High Court, if can order defering renewal of sanad.

It is incompetent for the High Court, until a case is ready to be actually set down for hearing by a Bench, to pass any order deferring renewal of the sanad of the person against whom complaint is made. (1937) M.W.N. 460=A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 672= 46 L.W. 599=39 Cr.L.J. 83=172 Ind. Cas. 136.

6. Renewal of certificate pending criminal proceedings.

——S. 14—Criminal proceedings pending—Renewal of pleader's certificate.

Where a prosecution is ordered against a legal practitioner instead of proceeding according to S. 14, the Judge ought not to wait until the result of the Criminal proceedings are known before renewing the pleader's certificate. 38 All. 182=14 A.L.J. 82=17 Cr.L.J. 152=33 Ind. Cas. 632.

——S. 14—Rules of Court of 4th April 1884, Rule 452—Mukhtear—Refusal of District Judge to renew certificate—Semble.

That the fact that criminal proceedings in connection with an offence under S. 193 of the Indian Penal Code are pending against a mukhtear is not a sufficient reason within the meaning of Rule 452 of the Rules of Court of the 4th April 1894 for refusing to renew his certificate, unless the District Judge also takes action under S. 14 of the Legal Practitioners' Act, 1879. 1901 A.W.N. 60.

7. Unprofessional conduct.

See also: Note 30 under S. 13.

——S. 14—Negligence, if misconduct.

Negligence does not amount to professional misconduct. Hence allowing a suit to be dismissed in default by negligence is not a professional misconduct. (1944) 2 M.L.J. 317=57 L.W. 567=1944 M.W.N. 686 (2)=A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 55=46 Cr.L.J. 254=217 Ind. Cas. 231 (S.B.).

——S. 14—Pleader expressing carelessly is not guilty of professional misconduct.

Where a Pleader expressed himself carelessly in his deposition before the Judge, it cannot be said that he was guilty of unprofessional conduct, though he was guilty of some degree of carelessness in expressing himself. A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 62= 9 B.R. 182=44 Cr.L.J. 343=24 P.L.T. 81=205 Ind. Cas. 64 (S.B.).

——S. 14—Perjury by member of legal profession—Severe punishment.

Perjury by members of the legal profession, apart from the question that it is a criminal offence, is a very serious matter from the point of view of the profession. Apart from the fact that it harms the profession, it sets a very bad example to the general public and is a great block in the administration of justice. Therefore, if and when cases of prejury by members of the legal profession are discovered, the member concerned deserves the most severe punishment which the High Court can give in the exercise of its disciplinary jurisdiction on the legal profession. A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 249=16 P.L.T. 231=36 Cr.L.J. 1028=1 B.R. 660=156 Ind. Cas. 889 (S.B.).

——Ss. 14, 12, 13—Legal practitioner becoming surety for accused persons—Propriety of—Court refusing to accept a person as surety—Mukhtear standing surety and entering into contract of indemnity with that person—Forfeiture of bail bond—Attempt at concealment of true facts—Misconduct.

There is nothing against a legal practitioner becoming a surety for accused persons. But where a mukhtear enters into an agreement with a person whose security the Court has refused to accept, to the effect that the amount deposited by that person with the mukhtear would indemnify the latter if he suffered any loss on account of the bail bond being forfeited, and the bail bond is forfeited and the mukhtear tries to conceal the above facts from the Court, the contract of indemnity is a public mischief, is highly unprofessional and is unquestionably illegal, being against public policy as it hampers the administration of justice. The further attempt at concealment of the agreement at the early stage of the proceedings is a serious aggravation of the crime. 16 P.L.T. 223=1 B.R. 450=36 Cr.L.J. 730=A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 195=14 Pat. 442=155 Ind. Cas. 430 (S.B.).

——S. 14—Professional etiquette—High Court—Duty of—Mukhtear making representations to Court-knowing them to be false.

It is no part of the etiquette of members of the legal profession to tell lies in Court or to give perjured evidence on behalf of their clients.

It is the duty of the High Court not only to protect the members of the public against disreputable members of the profession but it is also their duty to protect the profession itself against the loss of reputation brought upon it by the conduct of such members.

Where a mukhtear informed the Court that his client was ill at another place, that he, the mukhtear, had seen him there and asked for permission to appear on behalf of the accused as the accused was unable to appear personally and it was proved by independent witnesses that the accused was seen in the company of the mukhtear on the same day and in the same place and the mukhtear made no attempt at denying the truth of their statements:

Held, that the mukhtear was guilty of professional misconduct and it was the duty of the High Court to relieve the profession from the existence of a thoroughly unworthy member and that he should be removed from the rolls. 35 Cr.L.J. 453=A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 142=15 P.L.T. 63=147 Ind. Cas. 687 (F.B.).

——S. 14—Applicability—Pleaders acting in proceedings in Revenue Office—Casting imputations on integrity of Officer of Court—Irritation or disappointment.

Section 14, Legal Practitioners' Act, is material even when any Pleader is acting in his professional capacity on behalf of his client in a proceeding in a revenue office and if he is guilty of any grossly unprofessional or improper conduct while so acting, he brings himself within the disciplinary jurisdiction of the High Court.

No amount of irritation or disappointment would be any justification for any legal practitioner casting imputations upon the honesty and integrity of one of the officers of the Court before which he was appearing. If such an observation is made actually when the proceedings before an officer are taking place, the Pleader may be dealt with on the footing that it is a gross contempt of Court. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 344=56 C.L.J. 595=143 Ind. Cas. 359.

——S. 14—Pleader representing one party but later on accepting instructions of the other side—Conduct, if deserving of censure.

Proper professional conduct is not a mere matter of compliance with technical rules. It is one of which every one who aspires to be called a gentleman should have an instinctive appreciation.

Where the Pleader has already taken instructions from one party and received his confidence in the matter of the genuineness of a Small Cause Court suit and notwithstanding that confidence, he accepts the instructions of the other side in a title suit referring to the same subject-matter, his conduct deserves the severest censure. 15 P.L.T. 305 =A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 352=150 Ind. Cas. 16 (S.B.).

——S. 14—Standing counsel.

Pleader exclusively retained by a client accepting brief against that client in another suit by opponent, is guilty of professional misconduct.

Held, he acts in violation not only of the principles which govern the conduct of a legal adviser, but of the ordinary principles of good faith as between man and man Such a course would not have been justified even if the retainer had been first determined. His conduct was "grossly improper conduct in the discharge of his professional duty" within the meaning of the Act. 122 Ind. Cas. 4=1930 A.L.J. 134=1930 Cr C. 205=7 O.W.N. 264=34 C.W.N. 432=31 M.L.W. 298=32 Bom L.R. 556=31 Cr.L.J. 337=51 C.L.J. 447=A.I.R. 1930 P.C. 60=58 M.L.J. 483 (P.C.).

——S. 14—Amending petition already filed.

A certain mukhtear instituted certain proceedings under S. 144 of the Cr. P. Code. After the petition had been filed in Court the mukhtear discovered that he had made a mistake on his description of the dag in his petition, viz., in giving the number. Instead of presenting to the Court a further petition for amendment of the first petition he proceeded to effect an alteration in the petition which had been filed in Court, Held, that the mukhtear did act in a foolish and reprehensible manner, but that save and except this act of foolishness he did nothing else and did not deserve to be permanently debarred from practice. 87 Ind. Cas. 843=26 Cr.L.J. 1019=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 223.

——S. 14—Retention of client's papers for non-payment of fees.

Refusing to part with clients papers on the ground that a part of the fees has not been paid does not amount to professional misconduct on the part of a legal practitioner. 69 M.L.J. 802=A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 48=8 R.M. 607 (1)—(1936) M.W.N. 73 =37 Cr.L.J. 279=43 L.W. 326=160 Ind. Cas. 123.

——S. 14.

To tamper with public records in Courts is a very serious matter, and cannot be overlooked. When it is done by a Pleader who has peculiar facilities afforded to him by reason of his position for handling such records, his conduct cannot be easily excused. Such misconduct deserves suspension from practice. The fact that the Pleader concerned happens to be a young and inexperienced man makes no difference. [Pleader suspended for one year.] 2 B.R. 400=17 P.L.T. 266=37 Cr.L.J. 560 =A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 418=162 Ind. Cas. 13 (F.B.)

——S. 14—Removal of record and substitution of another in its place without consent.

The removal from the Court by a mukhtear of a complaint which charged the peshkar with complicity in a certain offence in order to substitute therefor, without the consent of the complainant, another petition which omitted the charge against the peshkar amounts to gross misconduct. The certificate of the mukhtear was cancelled and he was debarred from practice. (1917) P.H.C.C. 265= 19 Cr.L.J. 61=43 Ind. Cas. 93.

8. Miscellaneous.

——S. 14—Professional misconduct—Finding of Criminal Court, finality of.

In proceeding under the Legal Practitioners' Act, the finding by the Criminal Court that the legal practitioner concerned was not guilty of misappropriation must be accepted as binding. (1944) 2 M.L.J. 317=57 L.W. 567=1944 M.W.N. 686 (2)= A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 55=46 Cr.L.J. 254=217 Ind. Cas. 231 (S.B.).

——Ss. 14, 15—Costs—Power of High Court to award costs.

The Subordinate Court has no power to award costs while dismissing a petition against a Pleader charging him with professional misconduct. The High Court however, can, if it deems it just, e.g., when the complaint is found to be vexatious, itself pass an order for the payment of costs when it takes up the case under S. 15, Legal Practitioners' Act. A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 250=56 L.W. 57=1943 1 M.L.J. 121=1943 M.W.N. 132=44 Cr.L.J. 476= I.L.R. (1943) Mad. 385=206 Ind. Cas. 327 (S.B.).

——S. 14—Review.

The power of review conferred upon High Court under S. 12 (6), Bar Councils Act cannot be extended to an order passed under S. 14 of the Legal Practitioners' Act. A.I.R. 1934 Oudh 140=11 O.W.N. 368=35 Cr.L.J. 678=148 Ind. Cas. 299 (F.B.).

——S. 14—Order of suspension, when can be made.

As regards a Pleader who holds a licence to practise as such, no order of suspension or dismissal can be made except by the Court itself and except as a result of a judicial proceeding contemplated and provided for by the Act itself. A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 205=40 C.W.N. 377=37 Cr.L.J. 590=63 C.L.J. 127=63 C. 855=162 Ind. Cas. 517 (S.B.).

——S. 14—Pleader, suspension of—No application to restore certificate—Subsequent conviction—Non-appearance to notice—Removal from rolls.

Where a Pleader who was suspended by the High Court after his conviction under the Salt Act, did not apply for the restoration of his certificate at the expiry of the period of suspension, and was again convicted under S. 17, Criminal Law Amendment Act, and made no appearance to a notice under S. 14, Legal Practitioners' Act, his name was ordered to be removed from the rolls. A.I.R. 1932 Pat. 300=34 Cr.L.J. 8 (2)=140 Ind. Cas. 295 (1) (S. B.)

——S. 14—Inquiry—Sanction against witness—No revision:—See C. P. C., S. 115. 1908 A.W.N. 273=5 A.L.J. 749=31 A. 38.

——S. 15—Applicability.

Section 15, Legal Practitioners' Act, applies in most cases to proceedings in which an adjudication has already been made by a subordinate judicial officer and the High Court is of opinion after calling for the record and studying the papers that that adjudication is prima facie wrong. A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 672=(1937) M.W.N. 460=46 L.W. 599=39 Cr.L.J. 83=172 Ind. Cas. 136.

——S. 15.

Subordinate Court has no power to award costs while dismissing a petition against a Pleader charging him with professional misconduct. The High Court can, if it deems just, e. g., when complaint is found to be vexatious itself pass an order for the payment of costs, when it takes up the case. A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 250=56 L.W. 57=(1943) 1 M. L. J. 121=1943 M.W.N. 132= 44 Cr L J. 476=I.L.R. (1943) Mad. 385=206 Ind. Cas. 327 (S.B.).

——S. 27—Scope of.

S. 27 of the Act has no reference to the fees payable by a party to his own pleader, advocate or vakil because that is regulated by private agreement. 15 C.L.J. 660 =17 C.W.N. 45=13 Ind. Cas. 43.

——S. 27—Rules under, (C. P. Rr. 6 and 8—Execution proceedings—Original Pleader re-engaged—Pleader's fee for execution.

A case in which a decree has been assigned and the Pleader who had been engaged in the suit itself is re-engaged by the assignee in execution proceedings, falls within R. 6 of the Rules laid down in respect of fees of Legal Practitioners under S. 27 of the Legal Practitioners' Act, 1879, which appear in Civil Circular No. 11-4 of the Civil Circulars of the Judicial Commissioner of Central Provinces and no fresh Pleader's fee can be allowed in execution in such a case. A.I.R. 1933 Nag. 360=144 Ind. Cas. 379.

——S. 27—Rules under, (Madras) Rr. 31, 37 (b)—Suit for declaration and injunction of right to fishery—Mode of valuation—Value not shown to be less than Rs. 1,000—Pleader's fee.

In a suit for declaration followed by injunction, the plaintiff should value only the injunction. Where the subject-matter of such a suit is fishery, which is generally incapable of valuation or even where it could be valued and its value is not shown to be less than Rs. 1,000, a Pleader's fee of Rs. 50 can be awarded. Under R. 37 of the Madras Legal Practitioners' Fee Rules what the Court has to see is whether the subject-matter in respect of which relief is claimed is capable of valuation. A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 640=131 Ind. Cas. 16.

——S. 27—Pleader's fees.

The proper sum as pleader's fee is what is actually paid or what might reasonably have been paid, whichever is less. The rules under the Legal Practitioners' Act are a good general guide to the sum that might reasonably have been paid, but no more. There are several factors to be considered in fixing the Pleader's fee, in addition to the valuation of the suit, and even that must be its real value, not the arbitrary or artificial valuation which is often sufficient for all other purposes. 107 Ind. Cas. 662=A.I.R. 1928 Nag. 175.

——S. 27—Engagement of more than one vakil—Rights to fees.

When a client engages more than one pleader he is presumed to expect the full services of the gentlemen to whom he has given the vakalat. If more than one pleader is retained by the same vakalat all of them cannot share the single fee allowed against the losing party. 38 Ind. Cas. 210 (Mad.)

——Ss. 27 and 28—Right to retain costs for fees.

An advocate cannot retain anything of what he has received from the other party as costs awarded, etc., on the ground that he was retained for a sum lesser than what he would have been entitled to under the taxation rules. S. 27 authorised the Court to regulate fees payable by a party in respect of the fees of his adversary's advocate and assumes the propriety of advocates charging a daily fee after the first day. 33 Ind. Cas. 107 (L. B.)

——Ss. 27 and 28—Fees—Suit for remuneration for work done.

The Act does not impose any limitation upon the fees recoverable by practitioners from their clients. S. 27 refers to fees to be paid to the adversary's pleader, where the fees are not settled beforehand and the suit is one for remuneration for work done, the Court in assessing the amount performs the functions of the taxing officer in England and when it assesses the remuneration at a certain amount having regard to the circumstances, an Appellate Court should be very slow to interfere with its discretion. 29 Ind. Cas. 763 (Mad).

——S. 27—Basis of calculation — Court fee or value of subject-matter.

The Vakil's fee should be taxed upon the real value of the subject-matter and not on the Court fee value. It will be right if both the values be stated in the plaint. (1904) 7 Bom. L.R. 131=29 B. 229.

——S. 27—In suit for declaration—Rule 31 of the Rules under the Legal Practitioners' Act.

A suit for declaration of right in respect of immovable property is not one in which "the subject matter of the claim does not admit of valuation" within the meaning of Art. 35 of the rules framed under the Legal Practitioners' Act, but is one which falls under Rule 31. Rule 31 is not confined to cases in which court fees are payable ad valorem. (1903) 13 M. L. J. 358=26 M. 654 (F. B.).

——Ss. 27 to 30—Pleader's fee—Amount allowed on taxation—Suit or recovery of fee.

S. 28 of the Legal Practitioners' Act, only deals with cases where there is an agreement and it is provided that the agreement should not be valid unless it is made in writing and filed in court. Where there is no agreement it does not bar a suit for recovery of fee not exceeding the amount allowed on taxation. 21 P.L.R. 1909=1 P. R. 1909=1 Ind. Cas. 393.

——Ss. 27, 28—Out fees disbursed by Vakil—Pronote by client for such out fees—Pronote not filed in court—Validity of pronote—Right of Vakil to claim recovery—Lien upon sums received from court.

A promissory note taken by a vakil from his client for an amount not advanced by way of loan but disbursed by the vakil at the request of the client for out fees in the suit in which he is retained as vakil is within the meaning of S. 29 of the Legal Practitioners' Act, an "agreement respecting the amount of payment for charges incurred or disbursements made" by the vakil in respect of the suit in which he is retained as vakil and if not filed in court is void under that section. The section is general and is not restricted in its operation to agreements which provide for the payment of a larger amount than the disbursements or for payment of pleader's fee in excess of what may be allowed under the rules framed under S. 27 of the Legal Practitioners' Act. 12 A. 169 and 25 C. 805 dissented from. Although such agreement may be invalid the pleader is not disentitled in the absence of any agreement, to claim the repayment of out fees advanced by him or reasonable remmneration in respect of his professional services. The Legal Practitioners' Act does not enact that no claim by a pleader for professional services rendered or for recovery of out fees advanced shall be sustainable unless an agreement in writing for the same has been entered into with the client, and filed in court, but only that an agreement, if any, entered into in respect of the same shall be void and unenforceable unless the same has been reduced to writing and filed in court. (1903) 14 M.L. J. 274=27 M. 512.

1. Applicability and scope of section.

——S. 28—Pleader suing for sum due for professional work since 1926—Held, S. 28 did not apply.

Where all that was said in the plaint was that the appointment of the plaintiff as a Pleader dated from the year 1903 and since that date, his fees were allowed at a certain scale which was settled between him and the defendant's officer:

Held, that S. 28, Legal Practitioners' Act, did not apply as the plaintiff did not found his claim upon any agreement between Pleader and client arrived at prior to 1926, which would bring the case within the mischief of S. 28 of the Act. 41 C.W.N. 703=A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 359=I.L.R. (1937) 2 Cal. 259=169 Ind. Cas. 930.

——S. 28—Applicability.

A practitioner admittted as a pleader of the first grade in the Oudh J. Cs'. Court by reason of his being a Vakil of the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad, under para. 267 (5) of the Oudh Civil Digest, does not cease to be a Vakil of the Allahabad High Court and therefore the provisions of S. 28 requiring agreements for fees to be in writing do not apply to him by reason of S. 38 of the Legal Practitioners' Act. 89 Ind. Cas. 187=2 O.W.N. 289=12 O.L.J. 558=29 O.C. 75=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 412.

——S. 28—Scope and Effect—Right to recover fee not conditional on agreement satisfying terms of the section.

Section 28 gives the Court a control over agreements between pleaders and their clients with respect to fees and costs and is not intended to make the right of the pleader to recover his fees, etc., conditional upon the agreement fulfilling the requirements of the section. A sanction for this view is to be found in S. 29 which enables the Court to order an agreement otherwise in order "to be cancelled if the agreement is not proved to be fair and reasonable, and the costs, fees, charges, and disbursements in respect of the business done to be ascertained in the same manner as if no such agreement had been made." 53 Mad. 309=30 M.L.W. 876=A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 132=57 M.L.J. 756.

——The provisions of S. 28 are very wide and comprehensive and they include services rendered in respect of business done by pleaders, Mukhtears or Revenue-agents even in connexion with cases not pending in Court. All agreements between a legal practitioner and his client, whether in connexion with cases pending in Court or cases not pending in Court, fall within the mischief of the section. 6 Bur. L.T. 18 and 20 C.L.J. 445, Foll. 101 Ind. Cas. 559=8 P.L.T. 175=6 Pat. 614=A.I.R. 1927 Pat. 178.

——S. 28—Suit to recover remuneration on adjustment of accounts is barred by S. 23.

The plaintiff, a pleader, acted as the legal adviser of the father of the defendant as also of his paternal grandmother. It was agreed between the parties that the plaintiff would receive his legal fees, if so desired, or some remuneration per day. An account was taken of the sums due to him for his services, and after deduction of the amounts paid and of the amount relinquished, on amicable settlement, it was found on the 11th April, 1914, that a sum of Rs. 5,000 was due to him. On the 10th April, 1917, the plaintiff instituted the present suit to recover the sum thus found due to him on adjustment of accounts.

Held, that the suit was barred under S. 28 of the Legal Practitioners' Act. 73 Ind. Cas. 10=27 C.W.N. 769=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 677.

——S. 28—Quantum meruit.

Where a pleader takes up a brief without any agreement as to the amount of fees or the manner of his payment, he is entitled to recover on an implied promise a reasonable remuneration. A suit to recover such sum is not affected by S. 28. In the absence of any agreement, a pleader is entitled to quantum meruit which has to be determined according of the circumstances of the case. 21 C.L.J. 618=29 Ind. Cas. 453.

——S. 28—Written contract not produced claim on basis of S. 70, Contract Act.

A contract between a pleader and his client, to be enforceable must satisfy S. 28 of the Legal Practitioners' Act. But no written contract need be produced where a pleader works on the expectation of being paid in the ordinary course. His claim can be based on S. 70 of the Contract Act. 20 C.L.J. 424=20 Ind. Cas. 47.

——Ss. 28, 29 and 30—Scope of.

Ss. 28 to 30 do not debar a pleader from recovering from his client the fee actually allowed to him by the Court on taxation but they provide that the pleader cannot recover the actual payment of remuneration agreed to be paid unless he complies with the provisions of the sections. P.R. 1909=8 P.W.R. 1909=21 P.L.R. 1909=1 Ind. Cas. 393.

2. Agreement invalid.

——S. 28—Agreement invalid — Agreement for fees invalid — Pleader can sue under Contract Act, S. 70.

Section 28 provides for cases in which the parties agree that there ought to be a special fee irrespective of the amount of work which the conduct of the suit may eventually be found to entail. This may be more or less than the "party and party" fee fixed under S. 27. If there is an agreement which is invalid under S. 28, or no agreement at all, the pleader can sue under S. 70 of the Contract Act, and he can get whatever is a fair and just remuneration for the services he has actually rendered. In neither case whether on the valid agreement or under S. 70 of the Contract Act, does the "party and party" fees come into question at all except as one piece of evidence to help in deciding what the proper remuneration would be, where there is an agreement which is invalid under S. 28, the terms of that agreement can be considered in evidence, for what they may be worth, for the decision of the issue of the proper remuneration. 27 Mad. 512, Foll. 59 Ind. Cas. 172=17 N.L.R. 8=A.I.R. 1921 Nag. 122.

——S. 28—Agreement of fees void ab initio.

Where an agreement is manifestly void from its inception as contravening the provisions of S. 28 and as such an agreement can be described to be one "discovered to be void" within the meaning of S. 65, Contract Act, as explained by Privy Council in A.I.R. 1923 P. C. 189 the client is bound to make compensation to the Vakil for the advantage which he has received under the contract. 53 Mad. 309=30 M.L.W. 876=A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 132=57 M.L.J. 756.

——S. 28—Agreement to pay fees —Lien on client's money for fees, if exists.

If an agreement for payment of fees by a client is contrary to the provisions of S. 28 of the Legal practitioners' Act a pleader has no lien on monies of the client. Kamini Debi v. Khettra Mohan. 15 C.W.N. 681=15 C.L.J. 690=11 Ind. Cas. 382.

——S. 28—Requisites of a valid agreement.

An agreement made under S. 28 of the Act must be in writing signed by the client and submitted in a Court within the prescribed period and an agreement in contravention of this section is of no avail to a pleader either as a plff. or as a deft. 9 M. 375; 14 M. 63; 17 M 306; 27 M. 512; 12 A. 169; 25 A. 764; 4 A.L.J. 535; Diss. 15 C.L.J. 660=17 C.W.N. 45=13 Ind. Cas. 43.

3. Agreement not filed in Court.

——S. 28—Agreement not filed in Court.

Where an agreement between a legal practitioner and his client in respect of fees or remuneration is reduced to writing but is all the same clothed imperfectly in legal forms, in that it was not filed in Court, the equitable doctrine of part performance can be called in aid to supply the defects of forms. But if the agreement is not reduced to writing the doctrine cannot be of any help. 123 Ind. Cas. 408=11 P.L.T. 398=A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 61.

——S. 28—Promissory note for out-fees—Right of pleader to recover the amount.

A promissory note executed to a pleader by his client in respect of out-fees disbursed by him is invalid if not filed in Court under S. 28. The pleader can obtain a decree for his sums actually spent by him on the original cause of action. Such a promissory note, even though invalid, for not being filed in Court may still operate as an acknowledgment of liability and the dismissal of a suit on the note does not bar a fresh suit on the original cause of action but interest at the rate specified on the note cannot be allowed.

27 M. 512; 14 M. 63; 16 M. 278, F. 27 M. L. J. 728=1 L.W. 1070=27 Ind. Cas. 116.

——S. 28—Failure to file agreement.

Even an illegal agreement if not actually filed under S. 28 cannot be acted on and if the pleader acted bona fide and in good faith no action ought to be taken on it. 8 A.L. J. 151=12 Cr.L. J. 12=9 Ind. Cas. 130.

4. Oral agreement.

——S. 28—Oral agreement of fees.

A suit by a pleader for fees based upon an alleged oral agreement cannot succeed because it is not a valid agreement as it is a special agreement and any special agreement is to be in writing under the provisions of S. 28. 67 Ind. Cas. 874=26 C.W.N. 709=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 567.

——S. 28—Oral agreement.

An oral agreement between a pleader and his client for payment of fees and litigation expenses is invalid and unenforceable. 20 C.L. J. 445=26 Ind. Cas. 960.

——S. 28—Oral agreement.

S. 28 of the Act forbids verbal agreement for fees by pleaders. (1912) M.W.N. 524=14 Ind. Cas. 279.

——S. 28—Oral agreement to pay full legal fee.

A Suit for damages for breach of contract based on an oral promise "to pay full legal fees and to engage the plaintiff as a pleader on behalf of the defendant" is barred by S. 28, of the Legal Practitioners' Act. (1906) A.W.N. 235=3 A.L.J. 579=28 A. 764 (F.B.)

5. Right of suit.

——S. 28—Suit by Mukhtear for fees.

Suit by a Mukhtear, for recovery of money due on account of fees for his services is maintainable. 18 A.L.J. 373=2 U.P.L.R. (All.) 86=58 Ind. Cas. 182.

6. Right to set off fees against money borrowed.

——S. 28—Pleader—Agreement to allow legal fees to be set off against money advanced to a pleader by a client.

A client advanced certain money to a pleader who subsequently appeared for the lender in various cases. On suit by the lender to recover his loan the pleader set up an agreement entitling him to set off against the money borrowed his fees for professional services. Held, (dubitante) and following the decision mentioned below, that the pleader was entitled to a set off in the shape of reasonable remuneration for services actually rendered although there was no such agreement as required by the Legal Practitioners' Act, S. 28. (1907) A.W.N. 230=4 A.L.J. 535=29 A. 649.

7. Repeal of Section—Effect of.

——S. 28—Effect of repeal.

The repeal of Ss. 28 to 31 of the Legal Practitioners' Act by Act XXI of 1926 does not affect the rights of the parties to an agreement entered into before its operation. 101 Ind. Cas. 559=8 P.L.T. 175=6 Pat. 614=A.I.R. 1927 Pat. 178.

——S. 32.

Pleader applying late for renewal of his sanad then the prescribed time, and appearing in a case before Magistrate before its renewal Pleader, held, guilty under S. 32, but being a Pleader of 27 years' standing, previous conduct being good, and he having apologised, censure of conduct alone, held, sufficient, 57 L.W. 87 (1) 1944 M.W N. 128=(1944) 1 M.L J. 123=45 Cr.L.J. 671=I.L.R. (1944) Mad. 633=A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 244=214 Ind. Cas. 4 (F.B.)

——S. 32—"Illegally practises as a pleader"—Semble.

That the expression "practises in any court" as used in S. 32 of the Legal Practitioners' Act, 1879, does not mean "habitually acts, as a pleader or mukhtear," but signifies the doing of acts, or, it may be, a single act, in a professional capacity as of right, which could not be done as of right by a non-professional man. 1904 A.W.N. 56=26 A. 380.

——S. 32—Rule framed by High Court—Mukhtears, how far entitled to practise in civil court—Special leave—Violation with courts permission, consequence of.

Special leave must be obtained from the court in each case by a mukhtear who is desirous of offering any legal argument on examining any witness before a civil court. Such leave should be given only in exceptional cases and for sufficient reasons. A practice allowing mukhtears to act as above generally and as a matter of course is in violation of the rule made by the Calcutta High Court, which should be strictly observed. Where, however, certain mukhtears had been acting in violation of the rules made by the High Court but they had either the express or the implied permission of the court to do so:—Held, that no proceeding under the Legal Practitioners' Act, should be taken against them. (1904) 8 C.W.N. 401.

7. Miscellaneous.

1. Inquiry must be only by officers mentioned Sub. S. (1).

——S. 36—Recording of evidence.

The Judge and officers mentioned in the section cannot delegate the task of recording the evidence to a subordinate officer. 84 Ind. Cas. 462=5 Lah. 443=26 Cr.L J. 318=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 225.

——S. 36—Order under, by District Magistrate on evidence recorded by Subordinate Magistrate illegal.

An order under S. 32 declaring a person to be tout is not valid if made by a District Magistrate on evidence recorded by a subordinate Magistrate, as the order can only be made by the officer mentioned in the section on evidence recorded by himself. 60 Ind. Cas. 321=22 Cr.L.J. 209=24 C.W.N. 1074.

——S. 36—Tout—Declaration—Inquiry.

An order under S. 36 of the Legal Practitioners' Act declaring a person to be a tout can be made only by one of the authorities specified in that section and upon evidence taken by such authority himself. 24 C.W.N. 1074=60 Ind. Cas. 321.

——S. 36.

The duties to be undertaken under the section cannot be delegated by any of the officers mentioned therein to their subordinates. 59 Ind Cas. 322=22 Cr.L.J. 66=1919 P.H.C.C. 273.

——S. 36—Declaration of tout—Enquiry—Notice—Procedure.

An order declaring a person to be a tout under S. 36 of the Legal Practitioners' Act, is bad if it is made otherwise than on enquiry made by the officer himself and after notice. Where a sub-divisional officer called on a person to show cause why he should not be declared a tout and he showed cause and the sub-divisional officer after recording evidence on both sides submitted the proceedings with his report to the District Magistrate and the latter after perusing them passed on order declaring the person to be a tout, the order was set aside. 6 C.W.N. 283 foll. (1908) 12 C.W.N. 842.

——S. 36—Delegation of authority by officer empowered to make enquiry.

The officer empowered to make a list of touts under S. 36 of the Legal Practitioners' Act cannot delegate the task of making the enquiry or taking evidence to an officer subordinate to himself, and the evidence must be evidence adduced before the officer himself. (1901) 6 C.W.N. 289.

——S. 36—Tout-Declaration—Dt. Munsiff.

A Dt. Munsiff has no power to declare a man tout under S. 36 of the Legal Practitioners' Act. He can enquire into the matter and report to the Dt. Court. A perron cannot be prohibited from entering court on the ground that he is a tout unless the presiding officer takes steps to have the person declared a tout on due inquiry. Per Sadasiva Iyer:—Such an order is not a judicial order and cannot be revised by the High Court. It is a purely departmental affair. 12 M.L.T. 411=(1913) M.W.N. 370=16 Ind. Cas. 895.

——S. 36—Tout declaring a person to be—District Judge to take evidence himself—Power to direct Munsif to take it—Opportunity to show cause—Procedure when Munsif suspects a person to be a tout.

S. 36 of the Legal Practitioners' Act, is of a final nature and its provisions must be strictly and precisely complied with. It is only the Judges and other officers specially mentioned in S. 36 of the Legal Practitioners' Act, who can frame and publish a list of touts and they can only frame and publish such a list when it has been proved to their satisfaction by evidence taken and heard by themselves that the person whom they propose to include in the list habitually acts as a tout. A District Judge has no power to delegate to the Munsif the special statutory powers conferred upon him by that section. When a Munsif has reason to suspect that any person is acting as a tout he should inform the District Judge of his suspicions giving him the names of witnesses and leaving it to him to take and hear evidence. (1907) 12 C.W.N. 843.

2. Inquiry—Procedure.

——S. 36—Proceedings under—Petition for taking proceedings under, is not necessary—Opportunity for hearing party, if given, is sufficient compliance with section—Enquiry need not be carried on in manner prescribed by Cr.P. Code.

Where a petition filed in the District Court to have a person included in the list of touts did not give sufficient particulars as to why his name should be included:

Held, that under S. 36 of the Legal Practitioners' Act it is not necessary that there should be a petition at all, it does not contemplate the case of a party making definite allegations against an alleged tout. There is a sufficient compliance with the section if the alleged tout is called upon to show cause why his name should not be included in the list, provided an opportunity was given to him to rebut the evidence tendered and otherwise to place his case before the Court. S. 36 of the Legal Practitioners' Act creates a special jurisdiction, but does not define the details of the mode in which that jurisdiction is to be exercised. The course to be adopted should be such as would do substantial justice to the parties brought before the Court. An enquiry under S. 36 cannot be conducted in the manner prescribed in Cr.P. Code regarding enquires altogether of a different nature. 69 Ind. Cas. 433=16 M.L.W. 795=23 Cr.L.J. 705=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 188=44 M.L.J. 437.

——S. 36—Procedure.

Inserting a person's name in the list of touts should proceed in accordance with the provisions of the Act. It should not be done in the absence of legal evidence that such person habitually acted as tout. 116 Ind. Cas. 173=49 C.L.J. 118.

——S. 36—Sufficient enquiry, what is.

The insertion of names of persons in the list of touts should be made after conducting a proper enquiry under S. 36 of the Legal Practitioners' Act. Where all that was done was the holding of a parade before the judicial officer in the presence of members of the legal profession,

Held, that there was no proper enquiry. 116 Ind. Cas. 173=49 C.L.J. 118.

——S. 36—Tout—Declaration—Procedure.

Notice to show cause why a person should not be declared a tout must be given to him and evidence should be taken in his presence to show that he is a tout. (1917) P.H.C.C. 186=5 Pat. L.W. 229=19 Cr.L.J. 36=42 Ind. Cas. 996 (F.B.)

——S. 36—Enquiry under—Evidence of repute—Admissibility.

Per Teja Singh, J.—S. 36 of the Legal Practitioners' Act clearly lays down that a man could be declared a tout if he had that reputation and evidence of reputation is admissible in an inquiry under this section. 49 P.L.R. 212=A.I.R. 1947 Lah. 313 (F. B.).

——S. 36—Tout—Declaration—General repute—Meaning of.

A person sought to be proclaimed as a tout under S. 36 of the Act can be proved to be such by evidence of general repute including hearsay evidence which may be tested by cross-examination. The exhibition of the copy list referred to in S. 36, Cl. (3) of the Act is necessary to constitute a man a proclaimed tout. The principle applicable in cases under S. 110 of Cr.P.Code, apply to cases under S. 36. 40 All. 153=16 A.L.J. 76=19 Cr.L.J. 269=44 Ind. Cas. 125.

——S. 36—Tout—Declaration—Evidence.

To declare a person a tout it is necessary to have some evidence of the facts required by S. 3 of the Leg. Pract. Act as amended by Act XI of 1896. A stray admission by a person that he is a tout without understanding its full legal significance, is not enough to declare him a tout. 28 Ind.Cas. 918 (Mad).

——S. 36—Tout—Evidence.

There must be legal evidence to prove that a person is a tout. The mere report of the Bar Association is not enough. 12 M.L.T. 259=(1912) M.W.N. 959=17 Ind. Cas. 251.

——S. 36—Tout—Declaration—Grounds.

——S. 36—Tout—Enquiry by Magistrate—Delegation—Evidence—Opportunity to cross-examine.

An enquiry under S. 36 of the Legal Practitioners' Act must be made by the Dt. Magistrate himself and cannot be delegated to any subordinate officer. 12 C.W.N. 842, Foll. The decision of a Court determining that a person is a tout must be based on substantial legal evidence. The person against whom the evidence is directed must have an opportunity of cross-examining the witnesses. 13 Cr.L.J. 510=15 Ind. Cas. 654 (Cal.)

——S. 36—Tout—Declaration—Evidence.

A person cannot be declared a habitual tout when evidence of his being a tout is vague and general, and there is the testimony of apparently respectable witness to the contrary. 26 P.W.R. 1909 (Cr.)=11 Cr. L. J. 147=4 Ind. Cas. 1021.

——Ss. 36 and 3—Tout—Evidence.

The evidence of an ordinary witness that a barrister pays a person commission an any case brought to him, while the barrister himself denies the fact, does not sufficiently prove that the person is a habitual tout. 27 P.W.R. (Cr.) 1909=11 Cr.L.J. 148=4 Ind. Cas. 1022.

——S. 36—Tout—Inquiry—Different persons—One inquiry—If proper.

The enquiry under this S. 36 need not be confined to the case of one person alone. To include cases of persons who frequent different courts as touts in one enquiry would be unreasonable but persons frequenting the same court may be so included. 11 C.L.J. 513=11 Cr.L.J. 320=6 Ind. Cas. 327.

3. Resolution of Bar Association—Explanation.

——S. 36—Notice of meeting, if should specify particular charges.

For a meeting being specially convened within S. 36, Legal Practitioners' Act, it is not necessary to state in the notice of the meeting the particular nature of the charges made against the tout. A.I.R. 1943 Pesh. 54=44 Cr.L.J. 582=207 Ind. Cas. 135.

——S. 36, Expl.—Meeting of Bar Association must be specially convened to declare a man as tout.

The words 'any person' appearing first in the Explanation to S. 36, Legal Practitioners' Act mean 'any named person' or 'any specified person' and the meeting of the Bar Association must be specially convened for the purpose of declaring any person or persons whose name or names are before the meeting when it is convened, to be or not to be a tout. A.I.R. 1937 Sind 4=38 Cr.L.J. 316=30 S.L.R. 340=166 Ind. Cas. 643.

——S. 36—Interpretation—"Specially convened."

The Collector of a certain place wrote to the Secretary of the Bar Association of that place inviting the Association to take steps "to consider the tout evil." After receiving this letter a meeting of the Association was held and the members then present appointed a sub-committee to investigate the prevalence of touting in the place, and to submit to the Association a list of persons whom the sub-committee considered to be acting as touts. That sub-committee presented to the executive committee of the Bar Association a list of persons whom it considered to be touts, and the executive committee thereupon issued a notice to all "resident members" of the Bar Association, i. e., members of the Association resident, summoning an extraordinary meeting of the Association "to consider the tout evil." At that meeting the list of names prepared by the sub-committee of the Association was read out.

Held, that it was a meeting "specially convened for the purpose" of preparing a list of touts under S. 36 (1). 118 Ind. Cas. 524=26 A.L.J. 790=9 L.R.A.Cr. 113=10 A.I.Cr.R. 193=A.I.R. 1928 All. 334.

——S. 36—Bar Association's resolution — Touts—Defaulting members, if can vote—Enquiry by District Judge—Costs.

A District Bar Association, declared certain persons by the unanimous vote, to be touts. Thereupon an inquiry was started by the District Judge under S. 36 (1), Legal Practitioners' Act, and it was found that there was no evidence to show that the persons were touts. He had also invited the Bar Association to assist him. Some members of the Association were examined as witnesses and all that they stated was that they were unable to say whether in view of the considerations placed before them as witnesses they still adhered to the resolution. District Judge ordered the Association to pay to the person the costs of the inquiry:

Held, (ii) that the contention, that some of the members of the Association were defaulters and could not vote, was without force. It was entirely a matter for the Bar Association to decide whether the defaulting members have or have ceased to be its members. It was purely a domestic matter with which the contending party had no concern. The resolution did not become invalid on this ground;

(iii) that the Association was not a party to the proceedings and hence the order as to costs was illegal;

(iv) that there was no provision in law under which the persons affected by the resolution were entitled to be heard to show cause why the resolution should not be passed. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 382=38 Cr.L.J. 19=39 P.L.R. 62=165 Ind. Cas. 963.

——S. 36 (1), (as amended by Act XV of 1926)—Resolution of Bar Association—Admissibility—Meeting convened for declaring certain persons as touts—Resolution declaring another as tout—Validity.

The resolution of the Bar Association referred to in Explanation to S. 36, Legal Practitioners' Act, if duly passed, is sufficient, in the absence of other cogent evidence, for the inclusion of a name in a list of touts framed under the section.

It is not necessary that the members of the Bar present at the meeting should consider the evidence for themselves. It is sufficient if the members present find reason to believe that the report of a committee formed to enquire into the matter had been prepared with impartiality and due care, and the members support the resolution because of the report.

Where the meeting is convened for declaring certain persons as touts and a resolution is passed declaring another person to be a tout, the resolution is not valid evidence that that person was a tout. Yeshwant Rao Shantaram v. Secretary, High Court Bar Association. A. I. R. 1932 Nag. 141=28 N. L. R. 159=33 Cr.L.J. 940 (2)=189 Ind. Cas. 900.

——S. 36—Tout—Resolution of Bar Association based on repute — Admissibility—Evidentiary value—Revision—Powers of High Court.

If a resolution of a Bar Association declaring a person to be a tout is based on general repute, the Court may attach less weight to it but such a resolution is not legally inadmissible evidence and can be taken into consideration by the Court.

The High Court, in the exercise of its powers of superintendence, can revise an order passed by a Subordinate Officer if the order is against natural justice. A. I. R. 1931 All. 711=54 A. 230=(1932) A.L.J. 176=33 Cr.L.J. 282=136 Ind, Cas. 374.

——S. 36—Amendment Act (XV of 1926)—Declaration of touts — Proof of general repute — Resolution of Bar Association, evidentiary value of.

After the amendment of the Legal Practitioners' Act by Act XV of 1926, while a Court can still proceed under S. 36 of the Legal Practitioners' Act, and examine witnesses as to the general repute of the suspected tout, it can also avoid the calling of witnesses and accept a resolution of the Bar Association satisfying the requirements of Act XV of 1926 as sufficient evidence to prove that he is a tout by general repute. A.I.R. 1931 All. 315=130 Ind. Cas. 629.

——S. 36—Resolutions of Bar Associations—Evidentiary value.

A resolution passed by a Bar Association declaring certain persons to be touts is merely evidence upon the value of which the judicial officer to whom it is sent must form his own opinion. 118 Ind. Cas. 524=26 A.L.J. 790=9 L.R.A. Cr. 113=10 A.I.Cr.R. 193=A.I.R. 1928 All. 334.

——S. 36 (1)—Declaration of tout—Report of Bar Association—Omission to serve notice on all members—Validity of report.

The proceedings under S. 36, Legal Practitioners' Act, are of a quasi-criminal nature.

Under S. 36 (1) in order to enable a Court to admit in evidence the resolution of the Bar Association, it is necessary to establish that it was passed at a meeting specially convened for the purpose of passing the resolution in question; this implies that the meeting should have been properly convened and that the object of the proposed meeting should have be properly notified to all the members of the Association.

A meeting of an Association such as the Bar Association to be valid must be legally and properly convened, that is to say, after proper notice to all its members who are able to attend and a notice, to be proper, must be given in a reasonable manner and at a reasonable time before the meeting takes place. It is the right of every member to express his views on every matter that is discussed at a meeting of the Association and, therefore, in a proceeding under S. 36, Legal Practitioners' Act, it is the right of the suspected touts to claim that the meeting at which they were condemned should have been properly convened after a valid notice to all the members of the Association. A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 57=32 Cr.L.J. 672=12 L. 385=131 Ind. Cas. 238.

——S. 36—"Majority of members present"—Resolution passed by majority of votes but not by majority of members present—Validity.

The expression, "majority of members present" in the Explanation to S. 36 of the Legal Practitioners' Act is not the same thing as majority of members voting. Where the only evidence on which a person was declared a tout was a resolution of the Bar Association and it appeared that at the meeting of the Association 64 were present but only 26 voted in favour of the resolution, 14 votes being against it and the rest being neutral:

Held, that there was no legal evidence on which the person could be declared a tout. 1930 A.L.J. 977 =A.I.R. 1930 All. 752.

——S. 36.

The law does not require that all the members should be present at the meeting but requires that a meeting of the association should be convened for the purpose of considering whether a certain person is a tout; and if by a majority of the members present at such a meeting a resolution is passed, it is sufficient. 115 Ind. Cas. 602=56 Cal. 800=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 196.

——S. 36.

A resolution or report of a Sub-Committee of only seven members, out of an association of about 22 members, declaring certain persons to be touts, is not a resolution by a majority of the members and hence it connot be used as evidence of general repute under the Explanation to sub-S. (1) of S. 36. 102 Ind. Cas. 340=8 P.L.T. 587=28 Cr.L.J. 532=8 A.I.Cr.R. 207=6 Pat. 567=A.I.R. 1927 Pat. 282.

——S. 36—Interpretation—"Members".

Whether a resolution passed by a meeting of a Bar Association declaring certain persons to be touts was or was not regularly passed must be determined by reference to the explanation to S. 36, sub-S. (1) and not by reference to any rules framed by an Association. The Act only requires that "members" shall vote and that the resolution shall be passed by a simple majority irrespective of the rules of the particular Bar Association. When forwarding the resolution the Secretary of the Bar Association ought to state the total number of members belonging to the Association, the number of those who attended the meeting and the figures of the votes for and against the resolution. 118 Ind. Cas. 524=26 A.L.J. 790=9 L.R.A.Cr. 113=10 A.I.Cr.R. 193=A.I.R. 1928 All. 334.

4. Opportunity to show cause—Sub-S.(2).

——S. 36—Opportunity reasonable.

Notice to show cause was served on person on 18th December just a few days before X-mas holidays began. On the re-opening of the Court he applied on 2nd January for the issue of summons to a number of witnesses including seven Vakils. The Judge instead of issuing summons and allowing him to take the risk if they were not served in time declined to issue the summons and directed him to produce affidavits from the Vakils. As no affidavits were filed the Judge on the resolution of the Bar Association declared him to be a tout on 3rd January:

Held, that sufficient opportunity was not given to him to satisfy the Court that he was not a tout. 1930 Cr.C. 1018=A.I.R. 1930 All. 796.

——S. 36—Opportunity to show cause.

As S. 36 is somewhat exceptional and of a drastic nature, a great deal of care and caution is necessary before action is taken against anybody and full opportunity should be given to the aggrieved party to meet the case for the prosecution. 92 Ind. Cas. 749 =27 Cr.L. J. 333=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 227.

—— S 36—Tout — Opportunity to show cause must be given—Duties under section cannot be delegated.

Before directing inclusion of a person's name in the list of touts it is necessary under S. 36 of the Act to give the person an opportunity of showing cause against the inclusion. 59 Ind. Cas. 322=22 Cr.L.J. 66.

5. Inquiry and report by Subordinate Court —Sub-S.(2-A).

——S. 36—Delegation of inquiry.

If the enquiry is entrusted to a Subordinate Court, it is the Subordinate Court which must be satisfied that the person is proved to be a tout. If that authority is not satisfied and does not send up his name, the superior authority which itself made no enquires cannot include the name of a person who has not been so recommended. 1930 A. L. J 961=A. I. R. 1930 All. 641.

——S. 36—Delegation of enquiry.

Under S. 36 (2) the District Judge has the power to differ from or accept the report of a Subordinate Court as regards the question referred, namely whether certain persons should be declared touts or not. Where the District Judge refuses to accept the report, the High Court will not interfere in revision unless the Order is manifestly wrong. 31 P.L.R. 1003= A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 98.

——S. 36—Touts—Report by Subordinate Judge—Objection before District Judge—Dismissal of objection—Legality.

A Subordinate Judge made a report against certain persons whom he considered to be touts. The petitioner who was one of them, applied to the District Judge against his name being included in the list of touts and the District Judge, treating that application as an appeal against the order of the Subordinate Judge dismissed it:

Held, that the order passed by the District Judge on the so-called appeal of the petitioner dismissing his objections to the report of the Subordinate Judge could not be regarded as taking the place of the formal orders which he had to pass before it could be said that a man was rightly included in the list of touts under the orders of a competent authority and could not be upheld. 32 Cr. L. J. 730=A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 156=32 P.L.R. 9=131 Ind. Cas. 370.

——S. 36—Report—Powers of District Judge—Interference by High Court.

Under S. 36, Cl. 2, Legal Practitioners' Act, the District Judge has power to differ from or accept the report placed before him by the Subordinate Judge and the High Court will not interfere with the decision of the District Judge, when the question is only one of weighing evidence. A. I. R. (1931) Lah. 98=31 P.L.R. 1003=32 Cr. L. J. 1129=134 Ind. Cas. 98.

——S. 36 (2-A)—Tout—Submission of report to District Judge—Notice by District Judge to show cause, whether necessary.

Where an inquiry in regard to persons alleged to to be touts has been held by a Subordinate Court and a report has been submitted to the authority which had ordered the inquiry, it is not the duty of such authority to issue notice to the persons reported against to show cause, but it is the duty of such persons to enter appearance before the said authority and intimate to him that they desire to be heard. A I.R. 1931 Lah. 543=32 Cr L. J. 966=33 P.L.R. 591=13 L. 323=132 Ind. Cas. 346.

——S. 36—Declaration of touts—Report of Subordinate Court—Duty of District Magistrate to hear accused persons.

While it is not necessary under the Legal Practitioners' Act that a notice should be issued to a person or persons whom the Subordinate Magistrate recommends to be declared touts, the District Magistrate must satisfy himself that the person against whom action has been taken is aware of the report submitted against him and should also give such a person a reasonable time and opportunity for appearing and stating his objections to the report if he so desires, unless the District Magistrate is satisfied that he does not wish to appear.

Where an order under S. 36 (2), Legal Practitioners' Act, is passed by the District Magistrate without giving the applicant an opportunity of appearing before him and being heard, there is sufficient ground for revision. A.I.R. 1931 Nag. 187=14 N.L.J. 122=27 N.L.R. 398=33 Cr. L. J. 146=135 Ind. Cas. 411.

6. Revision.

——S. 36—Nature of jurisdiction — Order of District Judge declaring person to be tout—Revision—Government of India Act, S. 224 (2).

Under S. 36 of the Legal Practitioners' Act the authorities empowered to draw up a list of touts are not persona designata but are given such power as the presiding officers of their Courts. This jurisdiction dealing with touts is given to these officers in their capacity as presiding officers over the Courts concerned. The Courts, when exercising their jurisdiction under this section, are exercising a peculiar jurisdiction which is created by that section. It is neither a civil jurisdiction nor a criminal jurisdiction, it is a disciplinary or administrative jurisdiction.

An order of a District Judge declaring a person to be a tout is therefore an administrative order and not a judgment and the High Court has under its general power of superintendence a right to interfere in revision on the administrative side with such an order in a proper case, such right not being affected by S. 224 (2) of the Government of India Act. The High Court has, however, no power to interfere with it except on its administrative side. 49 P.L.R. 212= A.I.R. 1947 Lah. 313 (F.B.).

——S. 36—Order of District Judge under, if "judgment" within meaning of S. 224 (2), Government of India Act, 1935—Whether open to revision by High Court.

An order passed under S. 36, Legal Practitioners' Act by the District Judge amounts to a judgment as contemplated by sub-S. (2) of S. 224, Govt. of India Act, 1935, and is not, therefore, open to revision under S. 115 Civil P.C any more than under the Criminal P.C. and since sub-S. (2) of S. 224, Govt. of the India Act, bars the interference of the High Court on the administrative side, it follows that the High Court has no power to question the decision of the District Judge under S. 36.

The intention of the Act is that an order passed under S. 36 declaring certain persons to be touts shall not be subject to revision. A.I.R. 1941 Lah. 1=42 P.L.R. 609=42 Cr. L. J. 289=I.L.R. (1941) Lah. 133=192 Ind. Cas. 363.

——S. 36—Person declared tout—High Court, if can revise order under S. 115, Civil P.C. Govt. of India Act, 1935, S. 224(2), if bar to such revision—Revision under S. 439, Criminal P.C.

The High Court can, under S. 115, Civil P. C., revise an order passed by a District Judge under S. 36, Legal Practitioners' Act, declaring a person to be a tout. Section 224 (2), Govt. of India Act, is not a bar to such a revision. To such a case, S. 439, Criminal P.C. does not apply and there would be no revision under the Criminal P. C. The revisional jurisdiction under S. 115, Civil P.C. is necessarily of an exceptional character and cannot be invoked except in furtherance of justice. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 634=47 L.W. 578=(1938) M.W.N. 426=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 100=I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 988=177 Ind. Cas. 456.

——S. 36—C. P. Courts Act (I of 1917), S. 21—Proceedings for declaration of touts—Revision—Nature of revisional of jurisdiction.

The Judicial Commissioner's Court of Nagpur has jurisdiction to revise an order of a Subordinate Court made in a proceeding under S. 36, Legal Practitioners' Act under the general power of superintendence and control conferred on it by S. 21, C. P. Courts Act, and the exercise of this power is a judicial matter. 28 N.L.R. 4=A.I.R. 1932 Nag. 50=33 Cr. L. J. 408=137 Ind. Cas. 66.

——S. 36—Order under—Revision by High Court—Govt. of India Act, S. 107—Powers of general superintendence—Tout—Evidence of general repute—Resolution of Bar Association—Admissibility.

The High Court, in the exercise of power of its general superintendence over all Courts subject to its appellate jurisdiction, can under S. 107 of the Govt. of India Act, revise orders made by such subordinate Courts under S. 36, Legal Practitioners' Act.

The powers under S. 36 are not conferred on individual officers by name as persona designata but upon officers presiding in the Courts which are mentioned therein.

An order declaring a person to be tout is one which seriously affects his character and living and hence it is all the more incumbent upon the District Judge, before whom an application to declare a person as tout is made, to satisfy himself that the conditions laid down by S. 36 (2-A) for the admissibility of a resolution of the Bar Association, are duly fulfilled and satisfied. 34 Bom L.R. 1281=A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 596=34 Cr. L. J. 47=56 B. 577=140 Ind. Cas. 553.

——S. 36—Revision.

High Court can entertain in exercise of general powers of superintendence an application in revision from an order of District Magistrate including the name of a person in a list of touts under S. 36, Legal Practitioners' Act. 1930 A.L.J. 961=A.I.R. 1930 All. 641.

——S. 36—Revision.

High Court can revise order passed under S. 36 in furtherance of justice by virtue of Government of India Act, S. 107. 31 P.L.R. 542=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 889.

——S. 36—High Court can revise order under S. 36—Decision of District Judge against the weight of evidence is no ground for interference.

The High Court in the exercise of its discretion can send for the record of an enquiry conducted by a District Judge with a view to drawing up a list of persons proved to be touts, and examine such record and thereafter issue such orders or instructions to the District Judge as might appear to be proper. High Court would not interfere in the exercise of its powers of superintendence; where the sole ground upon which interference was asked for was that the decision of the Dt. Judge was against the weight of the evidence. The intention of the Legislature was not to allow anything of the nature of an appeal against the decision of a competent Court under S. 36 of Act No. 18 of 1879. High Court cannot consider whether the circumstantial evidence relied upon by a Dt. Judge, and set forth in his order, was or was not evidence from which High Court would have drawn the same inference. 74 Ind. Cas. 11=79 Ind. Cas. 693=45 All. 676=21 A.L.J. 671=4 L.R.A. Civ. 317=A.I.R. 1924 All. 69.

——S. 36—Order under—Revision.

The High Court cannot in its revisional jurisdiction, interfere under S. 115 with an order under S. 36, Legal Practs.' Act. The enquiry under the Leg. Practs.' Act is in the nature of the departmental inquiry and it may be conducted in such a way that the officer inquiring, acts with substantial justice and gives the person, against whom proceedings are being taken an opportunity to defend himself. 13 S.L.R. 212=21 Cr.L.J. 449=56 Ind. Cas. 433.

——S. 36—Revision.

Proceedings under S. 36 are neither governed by the Civil or the Criminal Procedure Codes and cannot be revised under the Civil or Criminal jurisdiction. But the High Courts have held that they have jurisdiction to interfere under S. 15 of the High Courts Act. 18 P. R. (Cr.) 1914=51 P.W.R. (Cr.) 1914=266 P.L.R. 1914=15 Cr.L.J. 601=25 Ind. Cas. 513.

——S. 36 — Tout — Declaration — Revisional Jurisdiction—Evidence—Personal knowledge of Judge.

An order declaring a person to be a tout should be well scrutinized by the Chief Court in the exercise of its revisional jurisdiction. The Dt. Judge is bound to examine witnesses named by him and to summon them for the purpose, after the evidence against the person has been produced. Otherwise the Chief Court on revision would set aside the order. The Dt. Judge ought not to impart his own personal knowledge into a case, unless he informs the person of the nature and source of his information and allows himself to be cross-examined thereupon. If a number of respectable pleaders in a particular District are found to be of opinion that a person is a tout, the District Judge is justified in holding that the person charged, is a tout.

——S. 36—Order under—Appeal—Revision.

The Legal Practitioners' Act confers no power on the High Court to interfere by way of appeal or revision with the order of a Dt. Judge under S. 36 of the Act nor is any right conferred by S. 439 of the Criminal Procedure Code or S. 622 of the C.P.C. But it can interfere under S. 15 of the High Courts' Act. (Per Karamat Hussain, J.)—Power is conferred by S. 15 only on the whole Court and not upon a bench and a single Judge cannot even admit a revision from an order under S. 36 of L. P. Act. (Per Aikman, J.)—R. 20 of the High Court rules not being applicable to touts it is not necessary for a bench of 3 judges to revise an order under S. 36 of L. P. Act. The Court has delegated its powers to a bench or even a single Judge as under R. 1 (XIII) and R. 4. 31 All. 59=6 A.L.J. 22=9 Cr.L.J. 59=1 Ind. Cas. 143.

——S. 36—Tout—Declaration of person as—Revisional powers of Chief Court—Evidence—Personal knowledge of Judge.

An order declaring a person to be a tout is one which very seriously affects the character and prospects of the person against whom it is passed. It is therefore competent to the Chief Court in the exercise of its revisional jurisdiction to scrutinize such orders with the object of satisfying itself that there has been a compliance with the provisions of the law and that the person affected has been given full opportunity of meeting the charge brought against him. The District Judge is bound to examine witnesses named by him and to summon them for the purpose after the evidence against the person has been produced. Where the District Judge declined to do so, the Chief Court on revision set aside the order and directed him to summon the witnesses named by the person declared as a tout and record the evidence and pass orders on the whole evidence on the record. The District Judge ought not to impart his own personal knowledge in a case unless he informs the person of the nature and source of his information and allows himself to be cross-examined thereupon—a process which is faught with grave inconvenience. Where statements by certain pleaders made on a previous occasion were read to them by the District Judge and the persons against whom proceedings where held were allowed opportunity to cross-examine them:

Held, that the irregularity in the procedure adopted by the District Judge was not a sufficient ground for interference by the Chief Court on revision. If a number of respectable pleaders in a particular district are found to be of opinion that a person is a tout, that fact is sufficient to justify the District Judge in holding that the person charged is by general repute a tout. The law was framed as it is with the distinct object of evading the difficulty of compelling to give the specific grounds upon which their opinions were based, and in cross-examination the witness cannot be compelled regarding specific instances, though no doubt it is open to the person charged to show that a particular witness has an animus against him or that for other reasons his testimony should not be accepted without demur. 120 P.L.R. 1909=3 Ind. Cas. 982.

——S. 36—Order declaring certain persons as touts—Revision—High Courts power of superintendence.

A District Judge called upon certain persons to show cause why they should not be declared as touts, and after hearing them declared them touts and ordered them to be excluded from the precincts of Civil, Criminal and Revenue Courts. They applied in revision to the High Courts. Held, Per Karamat Hussian, J.—Rule 4 of the High Court Rules does not empower a Bench of two Judges to dispose of cases under S. 36, Legal Practitioners' Act, in revision, in as much as that power, under S. 15 of the Charter Act, vests in the whole court. A single Judge of High Court has no power to admit a revision from an order passed by a District Judge under S. 36, Legal Practitioners Act. Per Aikman, J.—The Legal Practitioners' Act confers on the High Court no right of inference by way of appeal or revision against an order passed under S. 36, nor is any right of interference conferred by the Code of Civil or Criminal Procedure. The High Court can interfere with such an order under the general power of superintendence conferred on it by Ss. 14, 24 and 25, Vic. Chap. 104, although that power is very limited. It cannot interfere to correct an error of fact or error of law. I.A. 101; 9 A. 104 ref. to Rule 20 of the Rules of court did not apply to this case as it was not a charge against a Legal Practitioner, nor was it a disciplinary case within the meaning of the rule and, consequently, it was not necessary that it should be tried by three Judges. The court had an inherent power to delegate to one or more its members the power to deal with applications asking the court to exercise its power of superintendence and it was not necessary that such applications shauld be disposed of by the whole court. That the court had delegated the power to a Division Bench was clear from Rules 1, (xiii) and 4. (1908) 6 A.L.J. 22=9 Cr.L.J. 59=1 Ind. Cas. 143=1908 A.W.N. 279=31 A. 59.

——S. 36—Tout—Procedure—Misjoinder—Multifariousness—High Court, powers of—Revision, nature of jurisdiction in.

It cannot be affirmed as an inflexible rule of law that an enquiry under S. 36 of the Legal Practitioners' Act cannot comprehend within its scope the case of more than one person alleged to be a tout. An enquiry under S. 36 of the Legal Practitioners' Act is neither a suit under the Civil Procedure Code, nor a prosecution under the Criminal Procedure Code. The objection of misjoinder or multifariousness does not, therefore, apply, unless it is proved that the petitioner has been prejudiced by the procedure adopted at the enquiry. An objection on the ground of misjoinder may be waived, and if not taken in the original court, will not be entertained on appeal or revision, unless the merits of the case or the jurisdiction of the court have been affected. The revisional jurisdiction under which the High Court can interfere with an order under S. 36 of the Legal Practitioners' Act is of a very special nature, and cannot be invoked except in furtherence of justice. 11 C.L.J. 513=6 Ind. Cas. 327.

7. Miscellaneous.

——S. 36—Non-attendance of touts.

Section 36 does not authorize the District Magistrate to compel the attendance of an alleged tout in the proceedings or to receive orders in the case and therefore he cannot be charged under S. 174, Penal Code, if he fails to attend the Court. 111 Ind. Cas. 672=6 Rang. 529=29 Cr.L.J. 912=A.I.R. 1928 Rang. 296.

——S. 36—Jurisdiction—Order declaring tout.

The list in which the petitioner's name as a tout had been published was applicable to Courts other than that in which the 4th Presidency Magistrate presided and those Courts were not subordinate to his Court.

Held, the order of the 4th Presidency Magistrate was bad as having been made without jurisdiction since the power is limited by S. 36 to his Court and the Courts subordinate thereto. 75 Ind. Cas. 722=25 Cr.L.J. 34=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 484.

——S. 36—Tout, definition of.

Under the Legal Practitioners' Act, a tout is a person who procures the employment of legal practitioners in any legal business in consideration of any remuneration. A person who is merely seen in Court often times will not come within this definition. 15 C.W.N. 1000=11 Ind. Cas. 432.

——S. 36—Jurisdiction of District Judge to prohibit touts from entering Court—Affidavits, action on—Civil Procedure Code, Ss. 194, 125, 647.

The District or Sessions Judge has jurisdiction under S. 36 of the Legal Practitioners' Act, to prohibit persons declared as touts from appearing within the precincts of his own court and of the courts subordinate to him. It is competent to a District Judge to act upon affidavits in an application under the Legal Practitioners' Act, to declare certain persons as touts. Such a procedure is warranted by Ss. 194, 195 and 647, C.P.C. —(1882). (1903) 13 M.L.J. 272=26 M. 596.

——S 36—Tout—Declaration—And exclusion from Court.

A District Judge directed that a list of certain named persons be framed declaring them to be touts and thereby he excluded them from the precincts of the District and Subordinate Courts of the district except when they themselves are parties to the action being heard or are witnesses in suits. Held, that the order should be set aside, as it cannot be brought within the ambit of S. 36 (3), (4) of the Legal Practitioners' Act, 1879, until they are extended to the Bombay Presidency. (1903) 5 Bom. L.R. 728.

——Ss. 40 and 14 (5)—Interim suspension—Power of District Judge. See: Legal Practitioners' Act. Ss. 14 Para. (5) and 40. A.I.R. 1049 All. 642.

——S. 40—Section 14, Legal Practitioners' Act, is governed by S. 40 of the same Act. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 249=14 R. 735=163 Ind. Cas. 586.

——S. 40—Notice to show cause.

The provisions of S. 40 apply to interim orders of suspension passed under S. 14, para. 5; before an interim order of suspension is passed the pleader must be asked to show cause under S. 40 and a report must be sent to the High Court under S. 14 (4). 15 C.W.N. 269=13 C.L.J. 457=12 Cr.L.J. 33=9 Ind. Cas. 225.

——S. 40—Suspension from practice without opportunity to defend.

A District Judge framed two charges against a pleader under S. 14 of the Legal Practitioners' Act. On the day they were framed, he suspended him. With regard to the first, no opportunity was given to the pleader to defend himself before making the order. As regards the second the Judge had before the date of the order remarked on a judgment on the pleader's conduct in consequence of which the pleader had written a letter and filed an affidavit by way of explanation. Held, that the order was bad, as the pleader had been given no opportunity to defend himself; that the observation in the judgment is not such an opportunity, and that S. 40 of the Legal Practitioners' Act governs all proceedings instituted under the Act. (1900) 24 M. 83.

——S. 41—Improper certificate by Advocate for petition for leave in forma pauperis—Disciplinary action—Proper orders.

Where, in a proceeding for disciplinary action against an Advocate for giving improper certificate in a petition for special leave in forma pauperis it was found that the Registrar's letter was not circulated by the Secretary of the Bar:

Held, that the Advocate should not be suspended, direction to pay costs of the Advocate General being sufficient. 47 Cr.L.J. 77=A.I.R. 1945 Pesh. 33=221 Ind. Cas. 98.

——S 41—Removal of name from roll—Power of Oudh Chief Court to rescind the order—Confirmation by Local Government, necessity of.

Where the name of an Advocate was removed from the list of Advocates of the Oudh Judicial commissioner's Court in 1910 and he prayed in 1933 that the order should be rescinded and his name be restored to the roll of Advocates of the Oudh Chief Court:

Held, that when the Judicial Commissioner's Court had, under S 41 of the Legal Practitioners' Act, the power to remove an Advocate from practice subject to confirmation by the Local Govt. it must be deemed to have possessed a like power to rescind such orders and that this power possessed by the late Court of the Judicial Commissioner of Oudh must be deemed to be vested in the Oudh Chief Court and the power of rescission could be exercised only with the sanction of the Local Govt. which had been obtained on the order passed by the Judicial Commissioner's Court.

Held, also that the Advocate's having indulged in foul abuse of several Govt. Officers was most unworthy of him, but in view of the fact that he tendered an apology and a period of nearly fifteen years since the order removing his name had passed, and he appeared to have been chastened by adversity and seemed to have regained his sanity, he must be deemed to have been sufficiently punished, and this was a fit case in which the order might be rescinded and the Advocate reinstated subject to confirmation by the Local Govt. 11 O.W.N. 368=35 Cr.L.J. 678=A.I.R. 1934 Oudh 140=148 Ind. ——Sch. 2—Interpretation.

The expression 'High Court' in the entry in the Schedule referes to High Courts not established by Royal Charter and only to pleaders authorised to practise in Courts subordinate to the High Courts and therefore, Art. 30 of the Stamp Act clearly applies to the advocates of the late J. Cs'. Court, Upper Burma. 74 Ind. Cas. 913=1 Rang. 142=A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 1 (F.B.)

R. 17 of the Rules framed by the High Court under the Legal Practitioners' Act only prohibits a practitioner from purchasing from his client or from any other person any interest in a decree passed by the Court in which he practises, but there is no rule prohibiting a practitioner from bidding at an auction held in execution proceedings instituted by him on behalf of his client. The words "or other person" in R. 73 of O. 21, C.P. Code, does not include a legal practitioner who has no duty to perform in connection with the sale. [Desirability of a rule prohibiting a practitioner from bidding either in his own name or in the name of another at a Court sale held in execution of a decree obtained by his client pointed out.] I.L.R. Legal Practitioners' (Fees) Act (XXI of 1926).

See also: Legal Practitioner.

——Legal Practitioner—Certificate of fees.

While it is a salutary rule that only the fee actually received by a practitioner should be mentioned by him in his certificate for the purpose of the taxation of costs between party and party, vis-a-vis his own client, he has recently been placed in an advantageous position. The Legal Practitioners' (Fees) Act, XXI of 1926, not only allows a legal practitioner to settle, by a private agreement with his client, the terms of his engagement and the fee to be paid to him for his professional services, but also authorises him to enforce that agreement by legal proceedings taken for the recovery of the fee due to him. There can, therefore, be no doubt that the Indian Law does not now require a legal practitioner to receive the whole of his fee before the hearing of the case, but permits him to make an agreement for the payment in future of the whole or part of his fee. The statute while conferring upon a legal practitioner the right to recover the fee promised by his client, does not authorise the latter to realise it from his defeated adversary. The right of a successful party to recover the fee from the opposite party depends upon the rule framed by the High Court which contemplates that only the fee actually paid before the hearing can be allowed as costs on taxation. 1936 A.W.R. 558=2 B.R. 582=A.I.R. 1936 P.C. 176=40 C.W.N. 933=17 P.L.T. 429=38 P.L.R. 684=38 Bom. A Barrister, who has been enrolled as an Advocate of he High Court, is under no disability to sue his client for professional services done by acting and pleading for him. (1933) A.L.J. 451=A.I.R. 1933 All. 417=55 A. 570=143 Ind. Cas. 727 (F.B.).

——S. 2—'Legal practitioner', whether includes Advocate.

Under S. 2 (a), Legal Practitioners' (Fees) Act, 1926, a 'Legal Practitioner' means a legal practitioner as defined in S. 3, Legal Practitioners' Act, 1879, and the definition given by that S. 3 includes an Advocate of any High Court. A.I.R. 1931 Rang. 104=132 Ind. Cas. 719.

——Ss. 3, 4—Discharge of pleaders during pendency of case—Remuneration, calculation of—Discretion—Several pleaders—Each, whether entitled to full fee.

Under the Legal Practitioners' Act as amended in 1926, a legal practitioner is entitled to recover his fee settled between himself and his client. When he is not able to prove such a settlement, he is entitled to the fee which is payable to a successful party under the rules.

When there are several Vakils retained by a client in the same vakalatnama, each of the Vakils is entitled to claim from his client the full fee stipulated for by him and not merely a share in the single fee allowed as against the losing party.

Whether the vakalatnama has been signed or not, the Advocates concerned are entitled to their remuneration for the work done by them on the principle of quantum meruit.

Whether the Court is not assessing fees as in a terminated litigation but is assessing the remuneration for the work done and for the loss that the learned Advocates themselves would suffer on account of the cessation of their services by their client, the compensation is within the discretion of the Court to be assessed upon the circumstances of the case and need not necessarily be upon the scale of fees fixed by the rules to be charged against a losing party. A.I.R. 1931 Pat. 137=13 P.L.T 200=131 Ind. Cas. 542.

——Ss. 3 and 4—No settlement of fee—Fee payable.

Where it is found as a fact that no fee had been settled as the amount payable by a client to his counsel, the fee payable would be as on legal scale because there is no agreement having the force of a contract. A.I.R. 1950 All 443.

——S. 4—Fee not settled—Right to taxable fee.

The meaning of S. 4 of the Legal Practitioners' (Fees) Act, clearly is that every legal practitioner, in the absence of a definite contract, is entitled to the full legal taxable fee. If a litigant is not desirous of paying the full legal fee it is his duty to settle the fee with the legal practitioner before engaging him. It cannot be said that if more than one practitioner is engaged all must share the taxable fee. 1949 A.W.R. 385.

——S. 4.

Pleaders engaged—No specific agreements as to the amount of their fees—Each Pleader is entitled to the full fee assessed. 20 P.L.T. 352=(1939) 18 Pat 213=5 C.L.T. 34.

——S. 4—Client agreeing to munshiana and Pleader's fees—Suit by Pleader.

One of the terms of the engagement of a Pleader was that he would be paid Rs. 70 for himself and Rs. 7 as his munshi's remuneration;

Held, that the Pleader was entitled to sue for the munshiana. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 306=40 P.L.R. 12(1) =176 Ind. Cas. 751.

——S. 4—Absence of agreement, remuneration.

In the absence of an agreement between a legal practitioner and his client, the former is entitled to fee computed in accordance with the law for the time being in force and not to a reasonable remuneration. A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 32=I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 412=167 Ind. Cas. 505 (1).

——S. 4—Private agreement as to fees—Enforceability.

Under the Legal Practitioners' (Fees) Act, 1926, a legal practitioner can not only by private agreement settle with a client the terms and fee but also sue for his fee due under that agreement. It is only where no such fee has been settled that his fee must be computed in accordance with the law for the time being in force in regard to the computation of the costs to be awarded to a party in respect of the fee of his legal practitioner. Such a private agreement can be impugned like any other contract and in case the agreement is avoided, the fee would have to be computed according to the rules for the time being in force. A.I.R. 1931 Rang. 104=132 Ind. Cas. 719.

——S. 4—Rangoon, taxation rules.

Rules 13, 31 (proviso), 54 are governed by R. 3. An Advocate is not precluded from suing for his fees. If it is alleged that the Advocate gave bad advice which constituted negligence in his duties and partial failure of consideration, as the part of the consideration which is said to have failed is not ascertainable in money without collateral enquiry, such defence cannot be put up in the suit and the defendant's remedy is by separate suit. A.I.R. 1930 Rang. 243.

Legal Practitioners Fees Rules.

——R. 33—Junior's fee—Conditions necessary for allowing—Junior counsel passing away after framing of issues—Fee whether allowable to another junior counsel coming in thereafter.

The fee payable to a junior counsel in a case under R. 33 of the Legal Practitioners Fees Rules must be to the junior who was on record at least on the date of settlement of the issues.

Where in a case two counsel appeared, a senior and a junior, but the junior died after the framing of the issues and another junior counsel was sub-stituted in his place, no fee would be allowable for the junior counsel under R. 33 of the Legal Practitioners Fees Rules. The Court cannot give effect to the spirit of the rule overlooking its clear language.

It is a matter for the Rule Committee to make suitable amendment to the rule to cover cases of this description 61 L.W. 389 (2)=A.I.R. 1948 Mad. 352=1948 M.W.N. 380=(1948) 1 M.L.J. 344.

——R. 33—Scope—Senior engaged for arguments along with junior in appeal—Fees allowable—Senior if should have been on record even from the filing of appeal to be entitled to his fees.

R. 33 of the Legal practitioners Fees Rules does not intend, and could not have intended that a senior would be entitled to his fee only if he was on record from the date of the settlement of issue in a suit or from the date fixed for the appearance of the respondent in the appeal. The rule is expressly made applicable only to the case of juniors and it would be against reason and common sense alike to apply it to seniors.

The phrasing of R. 33 does not show that the senior should be first in the field and that the junior must be engaged by him to assist him. The rule will equally apply to a case of a junior who is first in the field and engages a senior at a later stage.

Hence in an appeal admitting of the appearance of both a senior and a junior practitioner and the payment of fees to both, the senior practitioner need not have been on record in the appeal from the date fixed for the appearance of the respondent in the appeal to be entitled to claim his fees. Even if he is engaged at the time of the arguments, he would be entitled to his fees. 63 L.W. 783=1950 M.W.N. 621=(1950) 2 M.L.J. 284=A.I.R. 1951 Mad. 256.

——Suit in good faith against person appearing to be proper legal representative—Decree, if binding on deceased's estate.

If a plaintiff in good faith sues a person who appears to him to be the proper legal representative of the deceased, and there is no fraud or collusion in the proceeding, then a decree so obtained is binding on the deceased's estate whoever may be the actual legal representative; the essential question to be considered in such cases is, whether the estate of the deceased person was sufficiently represented by the legal representative who had been brought on the record. 54 C.M.N. 667=A.I.R. 1951 Cal. 228.

——Suit for damages by manager of Hindu family - Effect of death.

The Act does not apply during the pendency of a suit for damages for malicious prosecution by the manager of a joint Hindu family where he dies, since the Act relates to the maintainability of the suit and not to the continuation of it and since the surviving members are not his representatives. 31 Ind. Cas. 4 (Mad.).

——S. 1—Damages for malicious Prosecution—Right to sue for damages for malicious prosecution does not survive to a legal representative of the person wronged.

Section 89 of the Probate and Administration Act and Act XII of 1855 are designed to protect suits for wrongs done to the property of a deceased person but do not extend that protection to compensation for personal injury the right to which dies with the death of the person injured. The right to sue for legal expenses or other losses caused to a person due to a malicious prosecution instituted against him is a personal right and it does not survive to the legal representative of such person. 98 Ind. ——S. 1—'Representative' meaning of—Right of suit—Nature of right—Limitation Act, S. 8 and Art. 21.

The word 'representative' means and includes all or any of the persons for whose benefit a suit under the Act can be maintained. In the absence of an executor or administrator, or in case he is unwilling to sue, the suit may be instituted by, and in the name of, the representative of the deceased person. The right of the beneficiaries to compensation is a right distinct in each, i e., they are entitled to relief separately in respect of the same cause of action which is enforceable at the suit of all or any one of them suing for himself and the rest. Suits under the Act, are governed by Art. 21 of the Limitation Act, and where one of the persons entitled to sue is a major, time will run as against all. The beneficiaries of a deceased person entitled to sue under the Act, are neither joint creditors nor joint claimants within the meaning of S 8 of the Limitation Act, and, consequently, the benefit conferred by S. 8 of the Limitation Act cannot accrue to them. ——Cls. 7 and 8—Jurisdiction of High Court to deal with Barrister—Advocates of Court—Rules 180, 181, 197.

Barrister-Advocates of the Allahabad High Court, (i.e., those who are members of the English bar and are admitted as Advocates of the High Court) are subject to the disciplinary jurisdiction of the said High Court; and a Bench of three Judges can, according to Rule 2 of the Rules of Court, hear and decide a charge against an Advocate. Rule 197 of the Rules of Court which provides that the Chief Justice and the Judges present for the time being in Allahabad may suspend or remove any Advocate provides for cases in which the Chief Justice and Judges may, for good cause, and without charge or trial, suspend or remove from the Roll of the Court any Advocate of the Court, and does not apply to cases where there is a charge and trial. An Advocate convicted under a criminal offence might properly be suspended or removed from practice under R. 197, without further charge or trial. A contempt of court committed by an Advocate of the court in a matter concerning himself personally in his professional character, in the attempt to vindicate his professional conduct in a publication for which he was solely responsible, such that it may be dealt with by the High Court in a summary manner by fine or imprisonment or both, is a reasonable cause within the meaning of S 8 of the Letters Patent. 29 A. 95=4 A.L.J. 34= 5 C.L.J. 130=9 Bom. ——Cls. 8, 27—Jurisdiction to deal with Advocates.

The jurisdiction to deal with Advocates still vests in the High Court under Cl. 8, Letters Patent, and the High Court, in exercising that jurisdiction, is performing a function directed by the Letters Patent, and its Benches are, therefore, governed by the rule as to the opinion of the majority mentioned in that clause. There is nothing in the Bar Councils Act, or in any rules made thereunder which is inconsistent with the provision that the opinion of the majority of the judges hearing the case should prevail. Indeed the fact that the Act is silent and so are the rules would suggest that the provisions of the Letters Patent have necessarily been retained. (Remedy of aggrieved Advocate pointed out). 1935 A.W R. 1245=A.I.R. 1935 All. 1037=37 Cr.L.J. 139 (2)=(1936) A.L.J. 383=58 A. 406=159 Ind. Cas. 653.

——Cl. 8—Jurisdiction under.

The mere fact that the words in Cl. 8 are "especially empowered to remove or suspend from practice on reasonable cause" would not necessarily show that the High Court is not exercising any jurisdiction when it exercises such power. ——Cl. 8—Enquiry into conduct of legal practitioner—Procedure.

While it is not incompetent for the High Court to deal under Art. 8, with charges of a criminal nature against a practitioner unless and until these have been investigated by a Criminal Court, it is eminently fitting that in such cases, the criminal prosecution should precede any disciplinary decision.

Art. 8 prescribes no special procedure for dealing with complaints against the conduct of Vakils practising before the Court, and merely empowers the Court "to remove or suspend from practice on reasonable cause" Advocates, Vakils or Attorneys-at-law of the Court. The procedure to be followed in such cases is thus left to the discretion of the Court, but it is manifest that where grave charges are involved, care should be taken to see, not only that justice is done but also that justice should seem to be done. An appropriate guide in dealing with such cases is to be found in the disciplinary provisions of the Legal Practitioners' Act, 1879.

It is undesirable that an investigation under Art. 8, into the conduct of a legal practitioner should proceed before the same Judges as have heard the case out of which the charges arose. Such charges should be enquired into by a Tribunal which has had no previous association with the matters in issue. A.I.R. 1931 P.C. 112=(1931) A.L.J. 450=35 C. W. N. 640=53 C.L.J.

Objection was taken by the pleader in view of the Bar Councils Act which had come into force on 1st June, 1928.

Held, that the provisions of the Letters Patent, in so far as they may conflict with the provisions of the Act, were abrogated by S. 19 (2) and therefore it was necessary for the case to be either referred to the Bar Council or at any rate for the Bar Council to be consulted. The Court was not properly seised of the case and that the notice issued to show cause was, as framed, ultra vires and a nullity. 112 Ind. Hence when an Advocate published, in a paper published by him articles throwing discredit upon the Judges of the Court in various ways, and his defence inter alia was that he had done so in his capacity of Editor and not in his capacity of Advocate of the Court: Held, that he was guilty of professional misconduct and the High Court had power to deal with him under S. 8 of the Letters Patent and Rule 2 of the Rules of the Court. 1906 A. W. N. 226= 3 A.L.J. 592.

——Cl. 8—Scope.

See C. P. C, O. 44, r. 1 and O. 33, r. 3. (1901) A.W.N. 213=24 A. 172.

——Cl. 10—Appeal—Procedure.

Procedure in Letters Patent appeal like the procedure in any other civil appeal is governed by the Code. But a Bench hearing Letters Patent appeal derives its jurisdiction to hear the appeal from the Letters Patent and not from the Code. A.I.R. 1931 All. 244=(1931) A.L.J. 187=53 A. 535=132 Ind. Cas. 24 (F.B.).

——Cl. 10—Appeal to single Judge against order passed on review by appellate Court—Dismissal —Appeal under Letters Patent filed though leave was refused—Maintainability.

Where an appeal against an order passed on review by the lower appellate Court is dismissed by a single Judge of the High Court and leave to appeal is refused, it is not open to the party to file an appeal under Cl. 10 of the Letters Patent. 1950 A.L.J. 348 =A.I.R. 1950 A. 534=1950 A.W.R. 551.

——Cl. 10—Appeal under—Competency—Dismissal by single Judge of appeal against judgment passed in appeal by the lower appellate Court.

An appeal under Cl. 10 of the Letters Patent (All.) will not lie against the dismissal by a single Judge of an appeal against a judgment passed in appeal by the lower appellate Court and when the single Judge had refused leave to appeal under the Letters Patent. 1950 A. W. R. 38 (1)=A. I. R. 1950 A. 226=1950 A.L. J. 74.

——Cl. 10—Appeal from order in execution—Dismissal—Appeal.

Under S. 10 of the Letters Patent (Allahabad), no appeal lies from the order of a single Judge of the High Court dismissing an appeal from an order of the executing Court on an application under O. 21. R. 90 to set aside an execution sale. 14 A. 226, F. 39 All. 191 =15 A.L. J. 46=39 Ind. Cas. 460.

——Cl. 10—Appeal under—Plea of jurisdiction not pressed before single judge—If open.

A plea of want of jurisdiction can be raised in a Letters Patent appeal even though it has not been pressed before the Single Judge. (1935) A L J 635= 1935 A.W.R. 585=A.I.R. 1935 All. 760=57 A. 916= 156 Ind. Cas. 281.

——Cl. 10—Appeal under—Plea of jurisdiction—If open for the first time.

A point involving a question of jurisdiction can be taken up in the Letters Patent appeal even for the first time. 54 A. 573=A.I.R. 1932 All 273=(1932) A.L.J. 365=16 R.D. 293=138 Ind. Cas. 583 (2) (F B.).

——Cl. 10—Appeal—Review of Judgment—If open.

No application lies for review of a judgment passed in a Letters Patent appeal. A.I.R. 1931 All. 244=(1931) A.L.J. 187=53 A. 535=132 Ind. Cas. 24 (F.B.).

——Cl. 10—Appeal—Review of judgment.

An application for a review of judgment is allowable where the decree was given in an appeal under Cl. 10 of the Letters Patent. 16 A.L.J. 964=48 Ind. Cas. 476.

——Cl. 10—Appeal—Revision.

No appeal under 10 of the Letters Patent of the court will lie from an order of a single judge of the court disposing of an application under S. 622 of the C.P. Code, 1882. 14 A 226, 15 A. 373, 22 B. 891 and 22 M. 100, foll. 1905 A.W.N. 218=28 A. 133.

——Cl. 10—Court-fee.

Under S. 10 of Letters Patent (Allahabad) no Court-fee can be levied on an appeal from the judgment of a single Judge of the High Court. 63 Ind. Cas. 318=44 All. 13=19 A.L.J. 677=A.I.R. 1922 All. 164.

——Cl. 10—Cross-objection.

The provision of the Code of Civil Procedure as to cross objections do not apply to appeals under the Letters Patent. 21 All. 207, Foll. 70 Ind. Cas. 488= A.I.R 1922 All. 55.

——Cl. 10 — Judgment — Interlocutory orders during pendency of suit—Appealability.

Under the Letters Patent (All.), Cl. 10, an appeal lies only against a judgment passed by a learned single Judge and a judgment within the meaning of this clause means an adjudication which conclusively determines the rights of the parties. Appeals are not allowed to be filed against mere interlocutory orders during the pendency of a case. 1950 A.L.J. 845=1950 Comp. C. 238=A.I.R. 1950 All. 309.

——Cl. 10—Judgment—Order dismissing application for impleading applicants as legal representatives of deceased party to an appeal—Appealability—Test.

An order dismissing an application for impleading certain applicants as legal representatives of a deceased party to an appeal is a "judgment" within the meaning of Cl. 10 of the Letters patent of the Allahabad High Court as it would determine the appeal itself and is therefore appealable. I.L.R. (1950) A. 120=1949 A.L.J. 191=A.I.R. 1949 A. 604=1949 A.W.R. 303.

——Cl. 10—Judgment — Single Judge refusing stay of execution pending appeal—If Judgment.

No appeal lies against the order of a Single Judge refusing an application for stay of execution of a decree pending the disposal of an appeal since such an order is not a "judgment" within the meaning of Cl. 10. (1940) A.L.J. 16=A.I.R. 1940 All. 242=I.L.R. (1940) All. 121=1940 A.W.R. 29=188 Ind. Cas. 797.

——Cl. 10—Judgment—Order passed by Single Judge in second appeal refusing to set aside abatement of appeal—Whether judgment.

The word "jurisdiction" in the Letters Patent covers the exercise of all the powers of the Court in a particular jurisdiction in which the case comes before it. The Letters Patent do not contemplate that a case which comes before the Court in one kind of jurisdiction can be supplimented by the exercise by the Court of any other kind of jurisdiction. When a second appeal comes before a Judge of the High Court, if it is within his jurisdiction, the jurisdiction which he exercises is jurisdiction of second appeal. That jurisdiction covers all the orders which he may make in the course of the second appeal from its commencement to its termination. Therefore an order passed by a Single Judge in second appeal refusing to set aside abatement of appeal is an order passed in the exercise of second appellate jurisdiction. Such an order does not amount to a "judgment" within the meaning of Cl. 10, and therefore no appeal lies. And further, if the order amounts to a "judgment" then the permission of the Single Judge would be necessary for an appeal to lie. A.I.R. 1939 All. 185=(1938) A.L.J. 1107=1938 A.W.R. 74=I.L.R. (1939) All. 19=180 Ind. Cas. 558.

——Cl. 10—Judgment, meaning of.

The term "judgment" in the Letters Patent of the High Court means in civil cases a decree and not a judgment in the ordinary sense. A distinction exists between a decree and a judgment as contemplated in Civil P.C., in which the judgment contains the reasons and the decree embodies the final order which governs the rights of the parties.

In a first apppeal pending before the High Court, one of the parties died and two sets of claimants filed applications to be brought on the record as his legal representatives. The Court came to the conclusion that the contesting respondent should be considered as the legal representative of the deceased and accordingly dismissed the application of the present appellants. An appeal was preferred against this order:

Held, that the word 'judgment' in the Letters Patent could not be extended to such cases. So far as the two rival claimants were concerned, the question as to who was the legal representative of the deceased had not been finally adjudicated upon and could be re-agitated as between them. It was, therefore, not a final adjudication of the rights of the parties by the Court at all. All that was necessary was to bring on the record some person who was found to be the legal representative of the deceased so that the case may be proceeded with and the rights of the opposite party finally determined. Consequently, no Letter Patent appeal lay from the order. 1936 A.W.R. 1164=(1936) A.L.J. 1381= A.I.R. 1937 All. 192=I.L.R. (1937) All. 381=168 Ind. Cas. 178.

——Cl. 10—Judgment—Order transferring case was not judgment within Cl. 10.

An order transferring the case was an order passed in the exercise of the discretion vested in the Judge and cannot be regarded as a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 10 as it did not amount to any decision as to the rights of the parties at all.

The Judge had perfect jurisdiction even independently of S. 24, Civil P.C. to transfer a suit from one Court to another Court under S. 107 (b), Govt. of India Act and an order passed under that section is non-appealable. A.I.R. 1935 All. 750=(1935) A.L.J. 968=1935 A.W.R. 922=156 Ind. Cas. 43.

——Cl. 10—Judgment—Single Judge refusing to extend time under S. 5, Limitation Act.

The order of the Single Judge dismissing an application under S. 5 Lim. Act, and refusing to extend time is not a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 10, and accordingly, no appeal lies from that order. A.I.R. 1935 All. 620=1935 A.W.R. 743=(1935) A.L.J. 681= 57 A. 983=157 Ind. Cas. 347 (F.B.)

——Cl. 10.

"Judgment" should not be read as meaning only "decree" and not as a final "order." (1933) A.L.J. 127=A.I.R. 1933 All. 262=55 All. 326=142 Ind. Cas. 331 (F.B.)

——Cl. 10—'Judgment'—Adjudication must be final.

The test is not what is the form of the adjudication but what is its effect in the suit or proceeding in which it is made. If its effect, whatever its form may be, and whatever may be the nature of the application on which it is made, is to put an end to the suit or proceeding so far as the Court before which the suit or proceeding is pending is concerned, or if its effect, if it is not complied with, is to put an end to the suit or proceeding, the adjudication is a judgment within the meaning of the clause. An adjudication on an application which is nothing more than a step towards obtaining a final adjudication in the suit is not a judgment within the meaning of the Letters Patent. 35 Mad. 1; 17 All. 442, Foll. 70 Ind. Cas. 805=20 A.L.J. 801=45 All. 66= A.I.R. 1923 All. 44.

——Cl. 10—Judgment — Meaning—Cr. P. Code, S. 195—High Court—Meaning.

Order of sanction for prosecution under S. 195, Cr P.C. is not a judgment within Cl. 10, Letters Patent; it is not appealable, when passed by a Judge of High Court, who when siting alone to do his part of his work, is the High Court itself and not subordinate to any Bench of the High Court. 39 All. 147=14 A.L.J. 1230 =17 Cr.L. J. 537=36 Ind. Cas. 585.

——Cl. 10—Leave to appeal.

Leave to appeal is necessary if the judgment appealed against is delivered after the amendment to the section which makes such leave necessary. 110 Ind. Cas. 719= 50 All. 865=26 A.L.J. 1317=A.I.R. 1928 All. 708.

——Cl. 10—Leave under.

Principles governing grant of leave to appeal under Letters Patent stated. A.I.R. 1941 All. 9=(1940) A.L.J. 762=1940 A.W.R. 539=193 Ind. Cas. 498.

——Cl. 10—Malicious prosecution.

In a suit for damages for malicious prosecution the question whether the defendant had reasonable and probable cause for instituting criminal proceedings against the plaintiff is a pure question of fact. And where the lower Courts, after judicially considering the evidence, find that the absence of such cause was not proved by the plaintiff the High Court cannot disturb the finding nor is it a fit case to be certified for an appeal under the Letters Patent. 117 Ind. Cas. 619= A. I. R. 1929 All. 429.

——Cl. 10—Order of Single Judge passed in appeal.

Unless there is any specific provision to the contrary in the Civil P C., it cannot affect any special law or special jurisdiction or power which is conferred on the High Court. The Letters Patent undoubtedly confers such special jurisdiction and power. The provisions of the Letters Patent are saved by virtue of S. 4, Civil P.C., unless there is specific provision to the contrary. S. 104 (2), Civil P.C., does not contain any express provision which would suggest that the provisions of the Letters Patent have been abrogated. Consequently, under Cl. 10, Letters Patent an appeal lies from the order of a Single Judge passed in appeal. A.I.R. 1937 All. 165=(1936) A.L.J. 1326=1936 A.W.R. 1155= I.L.R. (1937) All. 386=167 Ind. Cas. 653.

——Cl. 10—Order returning memorandum of appeal for presentation in proper Court—C P.C. (1882), S. 588—Appeal—If lies.

No appeal lies under S. 10 of the Letters Patent from an order of a Judge of the High Court directing a memorandam of appeal for presentation to the proper Court under S. 588 of the C.P.C, 1882. 1 Ind. Cas. 137 (All.)

——Cl. 10—Order on review application.

An appeal does not lie against an order rejecting an application for review of judgement even under S. 10 of the Letters Patent. 84 Ind. Cas. 585=21 A.L.J. 341= 45 All. 535=4 L.R.A. Civ. 218=A.I.R. 1923 All. 356.

——Cl. 10—Remand—Order of remand by appellate Court—High Court upholding the order—No appeal lies.

An auction-purchaser brought an objection under O. 21, R. 90, on the ground that no mention was made in sale proclamation of an existing encumbrance. His application was dismissed and he brougt a suit and the Trial Court dismissed it but the appellate Court held that the plaintiff had a right to sue on the ground of fraud, misrepresentation or material irregularity in the sale, and remanded the case. On appeal High Court upheld the order of remand.

Held, no Letters Patent Appeal was competent. 39 All. 191, Foll. 4 L.R.A. Civ. 227=A.I.R. 1923 All. 396.

——Cl. 10—Remand by Single Judge.

An appeal lies under Cl. 10 against an order o remand passed by a Single Judge of the High Court under O. 41, R. 23, Civil P.C.

The word "judgment" in Cl. 10 or Cl. 15, Letters Patent of the Bombay, Madras and Calcutta High Courts, should not be read as meaning only a "decree" and not also a final "order." (1933) A.L.J. 127=55 A. 326=A.I.R. 1933 All. 262=142 Ind. Cas. 331 (F.B.)

——Cl. 10—Remand by single Judge.

Appeal lies from an order made by a single Judge of High Court remanding an appeal to the lower Appellate Court for re-hearing. A.I.R. 1925 P.C. 155, Dist. 96 Ind. Cas. 666=48 All. 684=24 A.L.J. 892=A.I.R. 1926 All. 669.

——Cl. 10—Scope.

No Letters Patent appeal lies from an order passed in the exercise of criminal jurisdiction of a Single Judge of the High Court. (1934) A.L.J. 946=A.I.R. 1935 All. 55=36 Cr.L.J. 554=4 A.W.R. 1406=154 Ind. Cas. 638.

——Cl. 10—Scope—Application under S. 491 Criminal P.C. to High Court, dismissed—Appeal, if maintainable.

A minor was the child of A and B. A dispute arose between the father A and mother B as to the custody of the minor. An application was made before the High Court under S. 491, Criminal P.C. by B against A praying that the minor should be brought before the Court and delivered to B. This application was dismissed by a Single Judge of the High Court. B preferred an appeal under Cl. 10.

Held, that the appeal was not maintainable, inasmuch as the the power exercised under S. 491, Criminal P. C., is to be exercised on the criminal side of the jurisdiction of the Court and Cl. 10 expressly debars an appeal from an order passed "in the exercise of criminal jurisdiction."

Held, also, that the proceedings being in the nature of an appeal purporting to have been filed under Cl. 10 costs might be awarded. A.I.R. 1934 All. 606=(1934) A.L.J. 684=3 A.W.R. 297=56 A. 899=150 Ind. Cas. 740.

——Cl. 10—U. P. Tenancy Act, Ss. 180, 175—Appeal—Jurisdiction:—See U. P. Tenancy Act, S. 180. (1904) A.W.N. 48=1 A.L.J. 105=26 A. 375.

——Cl. 11—'Civil Courts.'

The term "Civil Courts" used in the Letters Patent, Cl. 11, does not cover a tribunal created under a particular statute for a particular purpose, e. g., a Court created under the U.P. Municipalities Act. 87 Ind. Cas. 51=47 All. 513=23 A.L.J. 385= 6 L.R.A. Civ. 191=A.I.R. 1925 All. 380 (F.B.).

——Cl. 11—Right of appeal—No appeal lies unless right to appeal is expressly conferred by statute.

The constitution of the High Court as a Court of appeal is quite a different thing from saying that it has jurisdiction to hear appeals from every decree or order passed by a Subordinate Court. If there is no law or regulation which allows an appeal to it, the High Court cannot assume an appellate jurisdiction. The power of revision and superintendence, however, is much wider. 92 Ind. Cas. 282=48 All. 104=23 A.L.J. 965=A.I.R. 1926 All. 113.

——Cl. 12—Application for appointment of mother as guardian and to order father to produce child in Court.

It cannot be laid down as a general rule that the High Court should, in all cases, take action under Cl. 12, although the applicant has an alternative remedy under the Guardians and Wards Act, by an application to the District Judge. There may be cases in which complicated questions of fact have to be ascertained and such cases might be more suitably dealt with in the Court of the District Judge where witnesses could be examined and corss-examined. But where no important matters of fact have to be ascertained, the High Court can entertain an application under Cl. 12. (1934) A.L.J. 399=A.I.R. 1934 A.722=3 A.W.R. 787 =150 Ind. Cas. 149.

——Cl. 12—Joint Hindu family—Jurisdiction under the Act is not generally exercised in the case of a Hindu joint family.

The jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery with regard to the persons and estates of infants, which descended to the Supreme Court of Calcutta and so to the High Court at Calcutta and so to the Allahabad High Court by virtue of Cl. (12), Letters Patent exists. But the High Court is reluctant to exercise the same in the case of a joint Hindu family as it is sanctioning a wholly new practice. 112 Ind. Cas. 873=50 All. 709=26 A.L.J. 595=A.I.R. 1928 All. 709.

——Cl. 16—Constitution of High Court—Appointment of sixth Judge—Legality.

The appointment of a sixth Judge to a High Court created by Letters Patent is legal. 36 All. 168=12 A.L.J. 231=15 Cr.L.J. 200=22 Ind. Cas. 984.

——Cl. 22—"Court"—Village panchayat—High Court cannot transfer criminal proceedings pending before village panchayat.

A village panchayat constituted under the Local Act VI of 1920 is not a "Criminal" Court within the meaning of Chapter II of the amended Cr. P. Code; therefore, S. 526 would have no application. So also S. 22 of the Letters Patent (Allahabad)does not apply and the High Court has no jurisdiction to direct the transfer of a case from a panchayat constituted under the Local Act.

Per Kanhaiya Lal, J.—A village panchayat is a Court for the purpose of S. 22 of the Letters Patent, and in the absence of any limitation imposed by any Act, the High Court has power under that section to transfer any criminal proceeding pending before a village panchayat to another village panchayat empowered to take cognizance thereof. 83 Ind. Cas. 350=46 All. 167=21 A.L.J. 925=25 Cr.L.J. 1390=A.I.R. 1924 All. 265.

——Cl. 26—Jurisdiction to declare marriage null and void.

The jurisdiction in matrimonial matters conferred on Allahabad High Court by Art. 26 is to be exercised in accordance with the provisions of the Divorce Act 1869 and in accordance with that Act alone. So far as the suit for declaring a marriage null and void is based on the grounds that the petitioner was an idiot at the time of his marriage and that the consent of the petitioner was obtained by force or fraud, the jurisdiction of the High Court exists, because of the provisions of S. 19, Divorce Act, 1869. This Act does not empower the High Court to declare a marrigage null and void on the ground that the ceremonies necessary for a marriage enjoined by the Church have not been performed. The reason is that S. 4, Divorce Act does not allow the High Court to exercise its matrimonial jurisdiction otherwise than under the rules laid down in the Act and the Act nowhere confers on the High Court a jurisdiction to hear a case for a declaration that a certain marriage is void because of non-observance of the essentials of the Church. A suit based on the ground of non-observance of essential ceremonies must, therefore, be instituted in an ordinary Court of original civil jurisdiction namely, in the Court of a Munsif or a Subordinate Judge, according to the pecuniary and territorial jurisdiction of such Court. It is no doubt open to the High Court when such a suit is instituted in the Court of a Munsif or a Subordiate Judge, to transfer it to itself and to try it under its extraordinary original civil jurisdiction. But no such suit is permitted by the law to be instituted directly in the High Court. A.I.R. 1934 All. 273 =3 A.W.R. 70=(1934) A.L.J. 1129=56 A. 428=153 Ind. Cas. 733.

——Cl. 27—Applicability.

Appeal to High Court under Civil P. C.—Cl. 27, Letters Patent (All.) will not be applicable but S. 98, Civil P.C. applies. A.I.R. 1932 All. 195= (1931) A.L.J. 1157=137 Ind. Cas. 58.

——Cl. 27—Custom—If point of law.

A custom is a law and the existence of a law binding the parties is a point of law and not a point of fact. Hence upon a difference between the two Judges on a point of custom the case can be referred to the third Judge under Cl.27. A.I.R. 1938 All. 321 =(1938) A.L.J. 400=1938 R.D. 505=1938 A.W.R. 251=I.L.R. (1938) All. 396=175 Ind. Cas. 665.

——Cl. 27.

Opinion of majority of Bench dealing with any particular case should prevail. A.I.R. 1935 All. 1037=1935 A.W.R. 1215=37 Cr.L.J=139 (2)= (1936) A.L.J. 383=58 A. 406=159 Ind. Cas. 653.

——Cl. 27—Judges of Divsion Bench disagreeing—Procedure to be followed.

Where two Judges comprising a Division Bench hearing a first appeal have disagreed either in law or in fact, the procedure to be followed is that laid down in Cl. 27 and not that laid down in S. 98, Civil P. C.

Cl. 27 governs the procedure in case of disagreement in first appeals as well as Letters Patent appeals. A.I.R. 1938 All. 641=(1938) A.L.J. 1027=1938 A.W.R. 712=I.L.R. (1938) All. 972=178 Ind. Cas. 683 (F.B.)

——Cl. 27—Effect of two Judges hearing an appeal from single Judge, being divided in opinion.

S. 575, C. P. C., (1882) does not in respect of appeals under S. 10 of the Letters Patent override S. 27 of the Letters Patent, and consequently, when two judges of the bench hearing a Letters Patent appeal differ, the opinion of the senior Judge prevails. 1903 A.W.N. 162=26 A.10.

——Cl. 27.

Under Cl. 27, when all the Judges have expressed their opinions, the point has to be decided according to the opinion of the majority of the Judges who have heard the case, including those who first heard it. (1933) A.L.J. 1127=A.I.R. 1933 All. 861=56 A. 39=146 Ind. Cas. 84 (S.B.)

——Cl. 27—Scope.

The mere fact that the matter involved is one of some difficulty for decision is no ground for referring a second appeal to a Bench of two Judges. A.I.R. 1931 All. 207=(1931) A.L.J. 267=129 Ind. Cas. 717.

——Cl. 30 — Order under O. 39, Civil P. C., if final.

The test to decide whether an order is final within the meaning of Cl.30 is to see whether the rights of the parties have been finally and once for all decided by it. If the effect of the order is not to adjudicate finally the rights of the parties, the order cannot be characterized as final. In one sense every order passed by a Court is final so far as that Court is concerned, but the finality of the order contemplated by Cl. 30 is in relation to the rights of the parties and not with reference to the Court passing the same. In other words, if the effect of the order is to bar a party from seeking redress with respect to the alleged infringement of his right by a proceeding according to law, the order is final, otherwise it is not.

An order under O. 39, Civil P. C., granting or refusing a temporary injunction which does not bar a party from having resort to procedure prescribed by law is not a final order within the meaning of Cl. 30. (1941) A.L.J. 508=A.I.R. 1941 All. 367=1941 A.W.R. (H. C.) 258=1941 R. D. 769=I.L.R. (1941) All. 666=197 Ind. Cas. 289.

——Cls. 30, 8—Granting leave to appeal to Privy Council.

When special power has been conferred upon the High Court under S. 10, Bar Councils Act to get an enquiry made into the alleged misconduct of an Advocate and on receipt of the finding, to fix a date for the hearing of the case and to hear the parties concerned and then pass such final orders in the case as it thinks fit and make an order as to the payment of the cost of the enquiry and of the hearing in the High Court, and if necessary, later on to review its order, the High Court in such a proceeding is acting judicially and not merely in an administrative capacity. In such a judicial proceeding, the High Court is exercising "jurisdiction" within the meaning of Cl. 30. Such a jurisdiction is not an appellate jurisdiction, nor it is a criminal jurisdiction. As it is the High Court only which passes final orders in the case on the receipt of the finding, it must be held to be exercising original jurisdiction and not any appellate jurisdiction. The order passed in such a proceeding is an order passed in the exercise of original jurisdiction of the High Court conferred upon it by the Bar Councils Act, modifying to some extent the power conferred upon it by the Letters Patent.

The High Court has, therefore, jurisdiction to grant leave to appeal to the Privy Council if the High Court is satisfied that the case is a fit and proper one.

In the case of an Advocate, the High Court found that not only was the filing of fee certificate contrary to the rule framed by the High Court but that he acted in bad faith in filing it. The point raised in appeal was that there was some contradiction in the two sub-sections of the Rule at the time when the Advocate had got his form of certificate printed, which contradictions had been lately removed by amendment, that there was latitude allowed to him inasmuch as it was provided that the certificate shall be "so far as is possible" in the form prescribed and that in filing a certificate he had made it clear in it that he had not received the amount in cash but had accepted a promissory note in lieu of the fee:

Held, that this was a case which should be certified as a fit one for appeal to the Privy Council under S. 109 (c), Civil P.C. or at any rate, under Cl. 30, Letters Patent. A.I.R. 1934 All. 898=(1934) A.L.J. 722=4 A.W.R. 1129=56 A. 702=150 Ind. Cas. 699.

——Cl. 30.

A legal practitioner punished by Bench of High Court for contempt of Court for certain remarks made by him as party to suit and later on suspended from practising for six months under Legal Practitioners' Act—Application by him for leave to appeal to Privy Council:

Held, that leave might be granted under Cl. 30, Letters Patent (Allahabad): that he should furnish security as in appeals in ordinary cases. (1933) A.L.J. 273=A.I.R. 1933 All. 225=55 A. 246=145 Ind. Cas. 853.

——(Bhopal).

——Cl. 7—Cls. 7, 8/1—Interpretation.

In spite of the fact that S. 3, Bhopal Civil P.C. has excluded from its purview all special enactments providing otherwise: Cl. 7 of the Letters Patent (Bhopal) is governed by the provisions of the Code owing to the fact that a saving clause has been added to it for this very purpose. Clause 8/1 of the Letters Patent is general and without any saving clause. Therefore, its provisions would prevail even in the case of their being directly opposed to the orders of the Bhopal Civil P.C., in virtue of S. 3 of the said Code. 188 Ind. Cas. 33 (F.B.).

——Cls. 7, 8/1—Order of Single Judge passed on Original Side on objection under O. 21, R. 58 Letters Patent Bhopal Civil P. C. is governed by Cl. 7 and not by Cl. 8/1 of and is not appealable under Letters Patent. 188 Ind. Cas. 33 (F.B.).

——Cl. 7, 8/1—A decision under O. 21, R. 58 is a 'judgment' within meaning of Cl. 7, Letters Patent (Bhopal). 188 Ind. Cas. 33 (F.B.).

——Cl. 7, 8/1—Order of Single Judge passed on Original Side on objection under O. 21, R. 58, Civil P.C. (Bhopal) is governed by Cl. 7 and not by Cl. 8/1 and is not appealable under Letters Patent. 188 Ind. Cas. 33 (F.B.)

——Cl. 8/1.

What is actually meant by Cl. 8/1 is that in all cases not falling within the purview of Cl. 7, an appeal from the judgment of a Single Judge would lie to the High Court. 188 Ind. Cas. 33 (F.B.).

——Amendment of.

The Letters Patent may be varied by legislation or by further Letters Patent issued by His Majesty but in general it is not open for the Letters Patent to be varied by mere resolutions, either of the Local Government or of the Government of India. 104 Ind. Cas. 685=51 Bom. 749=29 Bom.L.R. 1071=A.I.R. 1927 Bom. 521.

——Cl. 8—Power of Court to appoint special commissioner—Vesting of property in the special commissioner—Procedure.

The Court has no power or jurisdiction whatever—inherent or conferred—first to appoint a Special Commissioner for sale of immovable property; secondly, to vest immovable property in a special commissioner, to execute a conveyance of such property. 10 Bom. L.R. 1176.

——Cl. 10—Advocates and Pleaders—Passive resistance—Signing of pledge to civilly disobey laws—Unprofessional conduct.

As a protest against the passing of the Rowlatt Act, certain barristers and pleaders practising joined a movement called the Satyagraha Sabha and signed a pledge whereby they undertook "to refuse civilly to obey such laws as a committee to be hereafter appointed may think fit. Held, that the barristers and pleaders had, by signing the pledge, rendered themselves amenable to the diciplinary jurisdiction of the High Court, but that under the circumstances a warning was enough. Per Macleod, C. J.—Advocates and pleaders are a privileged class enrolled not only for the purpose of rendering assistance to the Courts in the administration of justice, but also for giving professional advice, for which they are entitled to be paid, to those members of the public who require their services. It is not necessary in order for the High Court to exercise its jurisdiction that any offence should have been committed, nor is it necessary that what the pleaders have done should have subjected them to any thing like general infamy or imputation of bad character. 22 Bom. L. R. 13=54 Ind. Cas. 679.

——Cl. 10—Criticism on pending trial.

While certain persons where, on their trial a resolution moved by the second and supported by the third opponent was passed under the presidentship of first opponent, a District Pleader congratulating them upon their sacrifice,

Held, the opponents acted improperly in being parties to a resolution of this character. Anything done or said which may amount to criticism of proceedings pending in a Court of Justice is calculated to hinder the even and impartial administration of justice. Pleaders have privileges, but they have responsibilities also, and a pleader who acts so as to hinder and embarrass the administration of justice is guilty of "improper conduct" within the meaning of those words as used in S. 26, Bombay Pleaders' Act and such conduct furnishes "reasonable cause" for the exercise of disciplinary jurisdiction under S. 25. 76 Ind. Cas. 78=24 Bom.L.R. 1049=47 Bom. 117=A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 361.

——Cl. 10—Misbehaviour — Disciplinary jurisdiction of High Court:—See Bombay Regulations II of 1827, S. 56.

——Cls. 10, 39—Order suspending a pleader from practice—Leave to appeal—Privy Council—No power to High Court for grantin leave.

No appeal lies by right of grant against an order of the High Court under Cl. 10 of the Letters Patent as it is not in the nature of a final judgment, decree or order under Cl. 39; and, therefore, the High Court has no power to grant leave to appeal. The aggrieved party must proceed by way of petition to His Majesty the King for leave to appeal. 10 Bom.L.R. 21=32 B. 106.

——Cl. 10—"Reasonable cause," meaning of "Reasonable cause" within the meaning of Cl. 10, means the same as professional or other misconduct under S. 10, Bar Councils Act. There must be something which can fairly be described as misconduct; otherwise there can be no reasonable cause for taking disciplinary action. But "misconduct" itself is a sufficiently wide expression; it is not necessary, for instance, that it should involve moral turpitude. Any conduct which in any way renders a man unfit for the exercise of his profession or is "likely to hamper or embarrass the administration of justice by the High Court or any of the Courts subordinate thereto" may be considered to be misconduct calling for disciplinary action. 43 Bom. L. R. 250=A.I.R. 1941 Bom. 228=42 Cr. L. J. 723=I.L.R. (1941) Bom. 548=195 Ind. Cas. 359.

——Cl. 10—Suspension of sanad—Insolvency.

High Court in its disciplinary jurisdiction has full power to suspend the sanad of a pleader, if he has been adjudicated an insolvent, until he obtains a discharge, if in the circumstances of the case, it considers that the insolvency coupled with the surrounding circumstances supplies a reasonable cause for such a suspension. It is largely a matter of discretion. The Chief Justice receiving an application of this kind can well be satisfied from the circumstances that are put forward that there is no objection to grant an insolvent pleader permission to continue to practise, and in doing so he would be acting on behalf of the Court, but if he considers that the case is one where there is reason to doubt the advisability of granting such permission, he can ask the Government Pleader to bring it before the Court in its disciplinary jurisdiction. 114 Ind. Cas. 259=52 Bom. 559=30 Bom. L.R. 1011 =A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 385.

——Cls. 11 and 36—Power of judge on Original side of High Court to stay—Proceedings in mofussil.

The jurisdiction of the High Court and of the Judges composing the Court is determined by the Charter Act, by the Letters Patent and by the rules framed by the Court under S. 13 of the Act. Under Cls. 11 and 36 of the Letters Patent (Bombay) and R. 62 of the Original Side Rules, the local jurisdiction of a Judge of the High Court on the Original Side is limited to the Town and Island of Bombay. S. 15 of the Charter Act gives to the High Court powers of superintendence over all Courts subject to its appellate jurisdiction. R. 1 of the Appellate Side Rules (Bombay) provides that with certain exceptions, the civil jurisdiction on the Appellate Side shall be exercised by a Division Court of two Judges. It is not competent to a single Judge of the High Court, exercising the ordinary civil jurisdiction of the Court, to stay the hearing of the suit pending for a trial in a Subordinate Judge's Court, in the mofussil unless authorised to do so, by the rule. (Per Macleod, J.)—A single Judge sitting on the Original Side of the High Court, is competent to restrain the parties in a suit before him from proceeding with a suit in a Subordinate Judge's Court in the mofussil, and so in effect stay the proceedings. 39 Bom. 604=17 Bom. ——Cl. 12—Carrying on business—Suit against partners.

Partners who are liable to plaintiff as co-partners would be none the less liable even though the the estate of their deceased co-partners may be liable together with them. The defendants will be carrying on business within the jurisdiction within the meaning of the section, even though there may be associated with them in the array of parties a partner who was not a member of the firm at the time of the agreement which was the basis of the suit. Held, also, that leave given by the Prothonotary adding the executor of the deceased partner was wrong. 8 Bom.L.R. 56=30 B. 364.

——Cl. 12—Cause of action—Contract by correspondence by post—Place of posting of offer—If part of cause of action—Parties residing within different jurisdiction—Rule.

Where a contract is made by offer and acceptance sent through the post between parties residing in different places, the posting of the offer is no part of the cause of action for a suit on the contract. The true principle is that even though an offer may have emanated from a place within jurisdiction, it cannot be said to have been made until that offer has been received by the party to whom it has been made. If the party to whom the offer is thus communicated resides or carries on business outside jurisdiction, the offer cannot be said to have been made within jurisdiction, and it cannot be said in such a case that any part of the cause of action arises within jurisdiction. I.L.R. (1947) All. 44=I.L.R. (1940) Mad. 195; A.I.R. 1945 Lah. 270, foll. 52 Bom.L.R. 643=A.I.R. 1951 Bom. 249.

——Cl. 12—"Cause of action"—Meaning—Suit to recover debt by assignee—Assignment—If part of cause of action.

"Cause of action" means every fact which it would be necessary for the plaintiff to prove if traversed, in order to support his right to the judgment of the Court. In an action by an assignee of a debt the assignment itself is a part of the cause of action for a suit by him; a part of the cause of action therefore arises at the place of assignment. 48 Bom. L.R. 636=229 Ind. Cas. 391=A.I.R. 1947 Bom. 72.

——Cl. 12—Cause of action—Place of payment of debt—Objection for leave given.

The expression 'cause of action' means the bundle of facts which it is necessary for the plaintiff to prove before he can succeed in his suit. It does not include irrelevant or immaterial facts, but embraces material facts, without which the plaintiff must fail. If any of these material facts have taken place within the jurisdiction of the court, then leave can be given under Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent. But if no such material facts have taken place within the jurisdiction of the court and leave is given, then it is open to the defendant to contend at the hearing that the court has no jurisdiction. When no specific contract exists as to the place where the payment of the debt is to be made, it is clear that it is the duty of the debtor to make the payments where the creditor is. Where the plaintiff and defendant carried on business of commission agent, the former at Bombay, and the latter at Phulgon, and the former gave instructions to the latter to enter into certain transactions on his behalf on the strength of which the latter did so, the facts that the defendant rendered accounts to plaintiff at Bombay and sent money to plaintiff were material parts of a cause of action which arose in Bombay. 6 Bom. ——Cl. 12—Jurisdiction—Administration suit.

An administration suit is not a suit for land within the meaning of Cl. 12. The High Court, therefore, has jurisdiction to try an administration suit though part of the estate of the deceased consisting of land is outside its Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction. But the Court cannot decide as to who is entitled to property outside its Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction. 65 Ind. Cas. 160=46 Bom. 772=23 Bom. L. R. 1326=A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 443.

——Cl. 12—Jurisdiction of High Court to hear suit cognizable by Small Cause Court.

Under the Letters Patent, Cl. 12 and Pres. Sm. C. C. Act, S. 22 the High Court can entertain a suit wherein the damages claimed exceeds Rs. 100, subject to the determination of the question of costs in accordance with S. 22, Pres. Sm. C. C. ——Cl. 12—Jurisdiction—Malicious prosecution.

In continuance of a prosecution of the plaintiff by the defendant in Rajkote, extradition proceedings were taken at the instance of Government against the plaintiff in Bombay. In that trial the magistrate held that the offence charged bore no foundation, and that the plaintiff should be acquitted and should not be extradited from the British territory. The plaintiff thereupon filed a suit on the Original Side of the High Court to recover damages for malicious prosecution from the defendant. Held, that the material part of the cause of action accrued in Bombay and that the High Court had jurisdiction to entertain the suit. 29 B. 368=7 Bom. The plaintiff and defendant, who were originally Zoroastrians were married according to Zoroastrian rites in Iran. They subsequently became domiciled in British India and the plaintiff (wife) later became a convert to the Mahomedan religion. She called upon her husband to embrace Islam but he refused. She then filed a suit on the Original Side of the High Court of Bombay for declaration that her marriage with the defendant stood dissolved and was at an end.

Held, (i) that the High Court on its Original Side had jurisdiction to entertain and try the suit, in view of the wide and extensive jurisdiction conferred on it by Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent;

(ii) that the law applicable was not the Muslim personal law, but that the case should be decided according to justice and right;

(iii) that it would not be in accordance with justice and right that, on the conversion of one of the parties to the marriage to Islam, it should be held that the marriage stood dissolved;

(iv) that there was no warrant for holding that a marriage solemnised according to one personal law could be dissolved according to another personal law simply because one of the parties had changed his or her religion. I.L.R. (1948) Bom. 223=48 Bom. L.R. 864=A.I.R. 1947 Bom. 272.

——Cl. 12—Jurisdiction—Mortgage executed in Bombay.

A suit to enforce a mortgage is not a suit for land within Cl. 12, but a suit in personam to recover a debt.

Where the mortgage is on property situate outside British India, and mortgagor defendants reside outside British India, but the mortgage is executed in Bombay, a part of the cause of action arises within the jurisdiction of Bombay, and the mortgagee can bring a suit in Bombay to enforce the mortgage, and since under O. 34, R. 1, Civil P. C., all persons interested in the equity of redemption are necessary parties, and must be joined in a suit to enforce a mortgage, the Bombay Court has jurisdiction to try the suit against person residing outside British India in whose favour a charge has been created by the mortgagor. ——Cl. 12—Jurisdiction—Equitable mortgage in Bombay by persons in Bombay of property in Baroda.

The Bombay High Court can enforce an equitable mortgage of property situate in a Native State (Baroda State) effected in Bombay by persons residing in Bombay, although the laws of the Native State may not recognise the mortgage. The High Court can also pass an order for the sale of the property on the mortgagor's failure to pay the mortgage amount within the time provided in the decree. A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 642=57 Bom. 234=34 Bom. L.R. 1384=142 Ind. Cas. 130.

——Cl. 12—Jurisdiction—Mortgage suit.

According to provisions laid down in Cl. 12, and C. P. Code, O. 34, R. 1 the Bombay High Court has jurisdiction to try suit between the mortgagor and prior and puisne mortgagees even though the property is situate outside Bombay. The suit remains a suit for recovery of debts in certain order, the land being liable to sale in default of payment. 31 Bom. L.R. 1002=A.I.R. 1929 Bom. 468.

——Cl. 12—Jurisdiction—Mortgage suit.

In Bombay a suit by a mortgagee of land to enforce his mortgage by sale can be maintained in the High Court under S. 12, Letters Patent even when the mortgaged land is situate wholly outside the limit of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court if the cause of action has arisen wholly within the said limits. 50 Bom. 1; A.I.R. 1926 Bom. 1; 91 Ind. ——Cl. 12—Jurisdiction—Mortgage suit.

Suits by mortgagees to enforce their rights under their mortgages are not suits for land within the meaning of Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent, and such a suit is one to realise and dispose of his and his debtor's interest in the land. The object of the suit is not to obtain land or to obtain a declaration of title to land or to obtain damages for interference with land, but to obtain repayment of debt owing to the plaintiff and for that purpose to realise the security which has been vested in him. 14 Bom. 353; 22 Bom. 701, Foll. The personal jurisdiction of the Bombay High Court is exercised under Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent not only in cases where the defendants or some of them reside permanently within the jurisdiction but where, according to the provision of the Letters Patent, they have been lawfully caused to appear upon summons where the cause of action or part of it has arisen in Bombay. 80 Ind. Cas. 442=26 Bom. L.R. 535.

——Cl. 12—Jurisdiction—Suits filed in High Court before 1948 amendment—Jurisdiction to try—If taken away.

The jurisdiction of the High Court under Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent is to receive, try and determine suits of the particular description therein mentioned. The words receive, try and determine are to be read conjunctively and not disjunctively. Once the suit is entertained or received by the Court, the Court has jurisdiction to, and must try and determine the same in spite of whatever happens subsequently unless such jurisdiction is taken away either by express words or by necessary implication. The Bombay High Court Letters Patent Amendment Act (XLI of 1948), has not the effect of taking away the jurisdiction of the High Court to try and determine the suits which had already been validly received or entertained by it prior to the enactment of the Act (XLI of 1948). This enactment has no retrospective operation. 51 Bom. L.R. 122=A.I.R. 1949 Bom. 182.

——Cl. 12—Jurisdiction—Suit for accounts against commission agent.

Defendants used to send rates and quotations from Calcutta to the plaintiff in Bombay, and the plaintiff sent orders by letter or telegram to the defendants in Calcutta and the orders were accepted by letter or telegram by the defendants from Calcutta. Defendants entered into transactions with third parties in Calcutta, in pursuance of such orders and instructions, and then sent advice notes to the plaintiff with confirmation slips attached thereto. At times, goods were also consigned from Calcutta, by the defendants to the plaintiff in Bombay. Defendants made up statements of account in Calcutta and sent them to the plaintiff in Bombay. The plaintiff instituted a suit for accounts against the defendants at Bombay:

Held, that no part of the cause of action arose in Bombay and the Bombay High Court had no jurisdiction to try the suit.

A cause of action has no relation whatever to the defence set up by the defendants. It refers entirely to the grounds set forth in the plaint.

Leave granted under Cl. 12 is confined to the cause of action or causes of action set forth in the plaint.

Leave granted under Cl. 12, Letters Patent (Bombay) is not conclusive when the jurisdiction is in issue.

S. 21, Civil P.C., does not apply to the Chartered High Courts in the exercise of their original jurisdiction. It does not also apply to a case where the objection is not one to the place of suing, but one which goes to the root of the whole suit, such as an objection to the jurisdiction of the Court, which can be taken at any stage of the proceedings, even at the hearing of the suit and on appeal.

If there is no jurisdiction over the subject-matter of the suit, acquiescence of the parties or either of them cannot create it. 33 Bom. L.R. 1364=A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 42=135 Ind. Cas. 170.

——Cl. 12—Jurisdiction—Pleas as to or leave—Waiver.

Where plea of jurisdiction or of leave under Cl. 12 is not raised by the defendants at their earliest opportunity, i.e., in the orginal written statement, they are deemed to have waived the objection. 31 Bom. L.R. 1002=A.I.R. 1929 Bom. 468.

——Cl. 12—Jurisdiction—Specific performance of contract to sell land out of original jurisdiction.

The defendant contracted to sell to the plaintiff a plot of land situated outside the original jurisdiction of the Bombay High Court. The defendant resided in Bombay. The plaintiff brought a suit on the Original Side of the Bombay High Court to get specific performance of the agreement to sell the land. The prayer in the plaint was that the defendant may be ordered specifically to perform the said agreement, and upon his making out a marketable title to the said land to execute a conveyance thereof in favour of the plaintiff. Held, that without regard to the ultimate end or purpose of the suit, it was immediately a suit to enforce the specific performance of a contract, and as such was within the jurisdiction of the High Court, which had all the powers of a court of equity in England for enforcing its decree in personam. 7 Bom. L.R. 319.

——Cl. 12—Jurisdiction—Temporary residence.

Where a person is temporarily resident within the jurisdiction of the court and he has no permanent residence elsewhere, he must be taken to 'dwell' within the jurisdiction of that court and a suit against him is cognizable by that court. 2 Bom. L.R. 291=25 B. 176.

——Cl. 12—Leave—Amendment of plaint—Fresh leave.

The obtaining of leave under Cl. 12 is the foundation of the jurisdiction, and such leave must be obtained before the institution of the suit and cannot be granted afterwards. If an amendment which would alter the cause of action is made, it necessarily follows that fresh leave should be obtained in respect of the altered cause of action. The cause of action alleged to exist in the six persons against the defendent for their alleged employment as brokers by him is clearly different from the alleged cause of action claimed to exist in the individual. The cause of action which is a right to sue vested in six persons alleged to be doing business together, is not the same as the right which exists in one individual. Consequently, when a plaint is amended so as to substitute latter cause of action for the first, fresh leave under Cl. 12 is necessary. A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 345=41 Bom. L.R. 536=184 Ind. Cas. 520.

——Cl. 12—Leave—Necessity — Cause of action partly outside jurisdiction.

In a case in which the cause of action has arisen in part only within the local limits of the original jurisdiction of the High Court, it is a condition precedent to the maintenance of the suit that the leave of the Court should have been first obtained under Cl. 12. The condition is further one which it is not competent for a Court to ignore or for the parties to waive. 34 Bom. L.R. 236=A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 291=56 B. 324=137 Ind. Cas. 381.

——Cl. 12—Leave—Suit on bill of exchange.

In order to give rise to the liability as against the acceptor, the payee or endorsee must prove that a negotiable instrument drawn on the drawee in favour of the payee was presented to the drawee and accepted by him as indicated by his signature on the bill. Each one of these steps has to be established by the plaintiffs. They have, therefore, to establish that the bills of exchange sued upon were drawn by the drawer on a person who is named as the drawee, in favour of the plaintiffs-payee. This is necessary because only a drawee can accept a bill of exchange. Therefore, the fact that the bills of exchange were drawn on drawee is a material fact which has to be proved by the plaintiffs to establish their claim. When that fact has taken place in Bombay, with leave under Cl. 12, the Bombay High Court has jurisdiction. The starting point for the liability is the drawing of the bills of exchange on the drawee and the concluding point is when he accepts the liability by putting his signature on the bills as acceptor. ——Cl. 12—Leave—Suit on Hundi—Hundi not payable in Bombay.

The Bombay High Court has no jurisdiction to entertain the suit, on Hundis which were not made payable in Bombay and the fact that the consideration for the Hundis was the balance of accounts, due by the deft. to the plaintiff, in respect of transactions effected in Bombay is no part of the cause of action. 40 Bom. 473=18 Bom. ——Cl. 12—Leave to sue—Promissory note executed outside Bombay making money payable at Bombay, Poona or wherever demanded—Parties residing in Poona—Demand made for payment of amount in Bombay.

Under Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent (Bombay High Court) the Judge has a discretion to grant or refuse leave. But normally and ordinarily if a material part of the cause of action arises within jurisdiction, the Judge should grant leave under Cl. 12 unless there are some judicial grounds why the ordinary practice should not be given effect to. In a suit on a promissory note the fact that the moneys are payable within jurisdiction is a material part of the cause of action.

A promissory note passed at Poona where the parties resided provided that the money advanced was payable either in Bombay, Poona or elsewhere or wherever demanded. Demand for payment at Bombay was made prior to suit.

Held, that a material part of the cause of action for suit arose in Bombay, and the High Court had jurisdiction to entertain the suit, and unless there was some strong judicial reason, the Court ought not to refuse a party the right to come to the High Court and have his suit tried by the High Court. 40 Bom. ——Cl. 12—Leave to sue — Third party proceedings—Inference of grant of leave.

Merely because a notice is ordered to be served by registered post it cannot be assumed that leave is given under Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent. It is extremely necessary before it can be assumed that leave has been granted under Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent, that it must be proved that an application was made to the Judge under Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent, and if the judge makes the order it should appear clearly on the face of it that he was giving leave under Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent.

Per Macleod, C. J.—When a defendant asks the Court to issue a third party notice in a case in which leave has to be obtained under Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent, then an application should be made to the Judge for such leave to be endorsed on the notice in the same way as it is endorsed in a plaint. 59 Ind. Cas. 28=45 Bom. 24=A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 195.

——Cl. 12—Leave—Third party proceedings.

No leave can be inferred from the fact that leave was obtained to issue the third party notice. It is necessary to obtain leave of the Court under Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent, for a third party notice, where part of the cause of action is outside the ordinary original jurisdiction of the High Court and the party lives out of such jurisdiction. Third party proceedings fall within the words "suits of every description" in Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent. A successful deft. against the third party is entitled to his costs of the suit as between the solicitor and client and to his costs of the third party proceedings as between party and party. 21 Bom.L.R. 808=59 Ind. Cas. 12.

——Cl. 12—Leave of Court, absence of Jurisdiction.

The absence of leave under Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent goes to the root of the jurisdiction of the Court and the Court trying issues, in the absence of such leave, is not competent to try it within the meaning of S. 44 of the Evidence Act. 37 Bom. 563 =15 Bom.L.R. 672=20 Ind. Cas. 530.

——Cls. 12 and 14—Leave of Court—Joinder of causes of action—Notice under Cl. 14, application for, when to be made.

The plff. in his plaint joined three causes of action, two of which had arisen partly within the local limits of the Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction of the High Court of Bombay and the third, wholly outside the local limits. Plff. when presenting the plaint obtained leave of the Court as to the first two causes of action, under Cl. 12 and also made an application under Cl. 14 for issue of notice calling upon the defts. to show cause why he should not be permitted to join together in one suit the several causes of action shown in the plaint. The defts. objected (1) that no application under Cl. 14 can be made in a case in which leave had to be obtained under Cl. 12 in respect of other cause of action and that the application should have been made before the plaint was filed. Held, that as soon as leave had been obtained, the Court got original jurisdiction in respect of the first two causes of action. The Court could then call on the defts. to show cause why the third cause of action should not be joined in the suit and there is nothing in Cl. 14 to show that this must have been done before the filing of the plaint. 34 Bom. 564=12 Bom.L.R. 988=8 Ind. Cas. 648.

——Cl. 12—Leave to sue—Grant of—Power to revoke leave granted—Matters to be considered.

Under Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent, leave to sue is not granted as of right, and, if granted is not granted irrevocably. It is not correct to hold that the Court cannot revoke the leave once granted under Cl. 12. Where only some small part of the cause of action has arisen within the Court's jurisdiction, the Court is entitled and bound, to take into consideration the balance of convenience of both parties. 48 Bom.L.R. 636=229 Ind. ——Cl. 12—Leave to sue.

Leave is necessary and a preliminary condition of jurisdiction. Where the defendant was already dead before leave was obtained under Cl. 12, fresh leave should be obtained in respect of his sons when they are sought to be joined. Leave obtained against a dead person is against no person at all. 31 Bom.L.R. 1002=A.I.R. 1929 Bom. 468.

——Cl. 12—Leave to sue.

Where the suit as originally instituted was not merely against a wrong person, but against no person at all, and the plaint was amended by substituting the name of his son:

——Cl. 12—Leave to sue—Partition suit.

The Court has power to grant leave in a partition suit where part of the property is outside British India. ——Cl. 12—Leave to sue—When refused.

The plaintiff, an Indian merchant, bought bullion through the defendants in London. The bullion was shipped and was lost on the sinking of the ship. The defendants had insured the gold for its value and upwards, with the result that plaintiff was repaid his entire cost of the purchase of the gold plus a certain additional sum. Plaintiff contended that the defendants ought to have insured not for, say, five or six per cent. above the value of the gold as they in fact did, but for ten per cent. above that value. Accordingly, he claimed the difference between this five per cent. and ten per cent. His clain was based solely on an alleged custom of the bullion market in London.

Held, that substantial part of the cause of action did not accrue in Bombay. At any rate, the case was one of those exceptional cases where leave under Cl. 12 ought not to be given. 100 Ind. Cas. 946=29 Bom.L.R. 131=A.I.R. 1927 Bom. 660.

——Cl. 12—"Suit for land"—Meaning of—Suit for accounts by principal against agent alleging acts of misconduct by agent — Prayer for declaration that lands outside jurisdiction in defendant's name were acquired as plaintiff's agent and with funds of plaintiff—Jurisdiction of High Court to entertain.

A "suit for land" within the meaning of Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent means a suit substantially relating to land, i. e., a suit which directly involves a question of title or right to land. It is not enough that the question should arise merely incidentally; it must arise directly for the determination of the Court. The primary object of the suit has to be ascertained. If the primary object is something unconnected with foreign land, then the suit is not a suit for land, even though incidentally the Court might have to try questions of title to foreign land. But if the claim in the suit be based on any contract, trust or fraud or any circumstance giving rise to privity between the parties, the suit would not be a suit for land. Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent confers upon the High Court an equity jurisdiction similar to the one exercised by the English Courts of Chancery in connection with rights to property situated abroad; if the primary object or leading purpose of the suit does not involve a question of title or right to land, the fact that further questions incidentally arise relating to title to land would not necessarily make the suit a suit for land, and the Court may even give a declaration as to title to land situate outside the local limits of its jurisdiction, if it becomes necessary for the purpose of effectuating the main purpose of the suit, provided such main purpose does not directly involve a question of title or right to land.

Where in a suit for accounts by a principal against his agent, relating, inter alia, to certain lands situate outside the limits of the ordinary original jurisdiction of the High Court which the plaintiff claims to be of his ownership, having been acquired by the defendant as plaintiff's agent and with his (plaintiff's) funds, the plaintiff seeks a declaration that the lands belonged to and were the property of the belaintiff and that the defendants had no beneficial interest in them and asks for an order against the defendant to execute all such documents, and deeds and do such acts as may be necessary for transferring those lands to the name of the plaintiff, it must be held that the main object and leading purpose of the suit is to charge the agent with various acts of misconduct, the question of land being impossible of severance from the other questions pertaining to the agency of the defendant. There is definitely an equity between the plaintiff and the defendant, an equity arising out of the contract of agency, and the suit is therefore not a "suit for land" falling under Cl. 12, but is one which the High Court has jurisdiction to entertain and try. I.L.R. (1948) Bom. 693=50 Bom.L.R. 49=A.I.R. 1948 Bom. 272.

——Cl. 12 — Suit for land — Meaning of — Alternative in last portion of the clause—If applies to suits for land or other cases.

The defendants who are a firm of merchants carrying on business in Bombay, were the secretaries and treasurers of the plaintiff Company, and as such, were in sole management of the spinning and weaving mill owned by the Company at a place called Jalgaon in the province of Bombay but situated outside the original civil jurisdiction of the High Court of Bombay. After the termination of the agency the Company brought the suit for various reliefs founded, in general, on alleged wrongful action by the defendants in breach of their fiduciary obligation in the course of their employment. In addition to the prayer a general account of the defendants' management of the Company's affairs and business during the whole period of the agency and certain other connected prayers, the company asked for two reliefs concerning certain lands at Jalgaon which were alleged to have been acquired by defendants on behalf of the company and out of the moneys or other property belonging to the Company but in the name of the defendants. The reliefs were: (a) That it may be declared that the lands in Jalgaon (particularised in the plaint) belong to and are the property of the plaintiff Company and that the defendants have no beneficial interest therein; and (b) that the defendants may be ordered to execute all such documents and deeds and do such acts as may be necessary for transferring the said lands to the name of the plaintiff Company. With reference to these prayers it was contended that the High Court has no jurisdiction to try the suit on its Original Side as the lands claimed by the plaintiffs were outside the original civil jurisdiction of the High Court.

Held, Kania, C. J.—The fact that the plaintiffs have asked for a declaration of title to lands in Jalgaon does not oust the jurisdiction of the High Court to consider whether the lands were acquired by the defendants in breach of trust and, if so, whether they should not be compelled to transfer the lands to the plaintiffs. The Court has certainly jurisdiction to determine the propriety of the defendants' actions as agents in dealing with the property and money of the plaintiffs. That seems to be the main purpose of the suit. The Court is also competent to investigate and ascertain if the defendants had utilised the plaintiffs' money in the purchase of the immovable property at Jalgaon. If the Court holds that the property was purchased by the use of such funds as claimed by the plaintiffs, having regard to the fact that they are in possession of them, the Court has jurisdiction to order the defendants to execute a conveyance of those lands, in favour of the plaintiffs. Therefore the plaintiffs' prayer for a declaration of title to the land at Jalgaon is no ground for holding that the Original Side of the Bombay High Court is not competent to try the suit.

Patanjali Sastri.—The only "relief" which the plaintiffs will in law be entitled to on proof of the facts alleged by them is the execution of the necessary instruments formally transferring the lands in Jalgaon to the name of the plaintiff company and it is also the only necessary and sufficient relief for the plaintiffs to obtain. That being the gist of the plaintiffs' claim in regard to the lands at Jalgaon the suit is not a "suit for land" within the meaning of clause 12 of the Letters Patent. The plaintiffs do not claim possession or control of those lands, being already in possession and enjoyment thereof. Nor do they ask for an adjudication of title to those lands. By their very demand for its transfer they concede that the legal title is vested in the defendants who have purchased the properties and got them entered in the Government records in their own names. All that the plaintiffs seek on this part of their case is the fulfilment of the personal obligation which, it is claimed, the law casts upon the defendants to hold the properties for the benefit of the plaintiffs and to execute the necessary instruments conveying to them the legal title in those properties, an obligation arising out of the fiduciary relation between the parties and the circumstances relating to the acquisition of properties as alleged in the plaint. The position is thus analogous to that in a suit for specific performance where the plaintiff conceding the defendant's title claims a conveyance of it in accordance with the contract. As the defendants reside and carry on business in Bombay and are thus amenable to the jurisdiction of the High Court that Court can act in personam and compel the defendants to fulfil their fiduciary obligation though such fulfilment has reference to lands situate outside the jurisdiction.

Mahajan, J.—The object of the suit so far as Jalgaon lands are concerned is to establish title to them. Prayer (b) is consequential to the declaration asked for in prayer (a). Plaintiffs have based their claim of ownership to the Jalgaon lands on alternative grounds. Taking the plaint as it stands there can be no manner of doubt that a clear controversy is raised about title to the land situate in Jalgaon, the plaintiffs claiming that the lands are owned by them and they are ostensibly held by the defendants as their benamidars, the purchase having been made with the funds supplied by them. The defendants on the other hand contend that the lands were purchased by them with their own money for their own benefit. On these pleadings the plaintiffs have asked for a declaration to the effect that they be declared to be the owners of these lands. The issues raised in the pleadings very clearly indicate the nature of the controversy. Even a question of adverse possession has been raised about the lands. In this situation it is difficult to hold that the suit is not a "suit for land" within the meaning of clause 12 of the Letters Patent.

Mukherjea, J.—Prayer (a) is wholly inappropriate to a suit for enforcing a personal obligation against the defendants and if this prayer is retained, the suit, to that extent, would be a "suit for land" within the meaning of clause 12 of the Letters Patent and as the properties concerned are outside the jurisdiction of the High Court of Bombay, it would not be competent to try the suit. As the plaint stands, prayer (b) can only be read as accessory to prayer (a) and if the execution of the document is necessary only for the purpose of perfecting the plaintiffs' title of which a declaration is sought for in prayer (a) the Court must also be held incompetent to try the suit so far as prayer (b) is concerned.

Case-law in regard to the construction and meaning of the words "suit for land" in clause 12 of the Letters Patent exhaustively discussed.

Kania, C. J.—The last alternative in clause 12 of the Letters Patent, which refers to the residence of the defendant or his carrying on business within the limits of the Court's original jurisdiction is an alternative having reference only to the words "all other cases" and applies to all other cases other than suits for land only.

Mahajan, J.—The last part of clause 12 of the Letters Patent does not confer jurisdiction on the High Court on the ground of residence of the defendants in suits for land. This clause is governed by the expression "in all other cases" occurring in its earlier part.

Mukherjea, J.—The last alternative in clause 12 of the Letters Patent which refers to the residence of the defendant or his carrying on business within the limits of the Court's jurisdiction is a provision applicable to all cases other than suits for land. 1949 F.C.R. 849=A.I.R. 1950 F.C. 83=(1950) S.C.J. 51 (F.C.).

——Cl. 12—Suit for land.

Sale by mother acting as guardian of minor son—Suit for setting aside sale in original side of High Court when property is outside its jurisdiction—Subsequent suit for possession:

Held, that the claim for possession could not have been instituted on the original side of the High Court as the suit would necessarily have been a suit "for land" within Cl. 12, Letters Patent (Bombay). 35 Bom. L. R. 630=57 B. 456=A.I.R. 1933 Bom. 398=148 Ind. Cas. 116.

——Cl. 12—'Suit for land.'

Per Marten, C. J.—The words 'suit for land' refer to suits to obtain or recover land, or alternatively to suits which substantially involved the recovery of land or its equivalent. The preposition 'for' in the expression 'suit for land' would seem to indicate that the title to or possession of, immovable property must be the primary object of the action but the primary object of a suit to enforce mortgage by sale is money.

Fawcett, J.—A suit to be one "for land" should substantially relate to land and this should primarily be judged by considering what is the nature of the relief sought by the plaintiff. A suit for land grammatically means a suit for possession of the land and also covers suits for title to or compensation for wrong or trespass to land which are properly local "actions".

Per Mirza, J.—A suit for land means a suit which is substantially for land, that is, for the purpose of acquiring title to or control over land. It includes any suit in which a decree is asked for operating directly upon the land. A suit which prays for any relief with reference to any specific immovable property is a suit for land.

Per Blackwell, J—A suit for land means a suit to obtain or recover land and does not include a suit "substantially" for land where a question of title to the land may be involved.

Per Patkar, J.—The words "suit for land" mean a suit in which the substantial question is the right to land. 104 Ind. Cas. 8=51 Bom. 516=29 Bom. L.R. 498 =A.I.R. 1927 Bom. 278 (F.B.).

——Cl. 12—"Suit for land"—Suit for declaring charge—Suit to declare a charge is suit for land but land being outside jurisdiction Court must have jurisdiction in personam.

Under Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent the Bombay High Court has jurisdiction in personam with respect to lands situated outside its original jurisdiction. A suit by a vendor to declare a charge upon such lands for the unpaid purchase-money against the vendee residing or carrying on business in Bombay is therefore maintainable in the Bombay High Court in its original jurisdiction.

A Suit to declare a charge on property in Bombay is a suit for land so as to give the Bombay High Court jurisdiction over the suit which otherwise it would not have. Where the land is situated outside the original limits of its jurisdiction the words "suit for land" must be read as being subject to the qualification or proviso that the High Court has jurisdiction in personam similar to that exercised by a Court of Equity in England and by the Mofussil Courts under C.P.C., S. 16 proviso. 80 Ind. Cas. 1049=26 Bom. L.R. 541=48 Bom. 625=A.I.R. 1924 Bom. 412.

——Cl. 12—Suit for land—Leave of the court—Cause of action—Court of Equity in England—Jurisdiction over lands situated abroad—Title to land.

Under S. 12 of the Letters Patent, leave is only required when the cause of action shall have arisen in part within the local limits of the oridinary original jurisdiction of the High Court; in no other case is there any power or need to give leave. A court of equity in England only assumes jurisdiction in relation to land abroad, when, as between the litigants or their predecessors some privity or relation was established on the ground of contract, trust or fraud, but in no case does the court of equity entertain a suit, even, if the defendant was within the limits of its jurisdiction, where the purpose is to obtain a declaration of title to foreign land. Though it is a general principle that the title to land should ordinarily be determined by the court within the limits of whose jurisdiction it lies, it no doubt is open to the legislature to disregard that principle. But the courts certainly would not lean towards a construction involving that result where the words of the legislature are fairly capable of a meaning in conformity with the general principle. The phrase,—suit for land—in S. 12 of the Letters Patent is by no means limited to a suit for the recovery of land; the expression is not to be read with a technical limitation, which never had been associated with it. The plaintiffs brought a suit on the Original Side of the High Court of Bombay for a declaration that they were entitled to exclusive possession and enjoyment of a Talas situate beyond the local limits of the court's jurisdiction, and that the defendants, who resided within its jurisdiction had no right in or to the same; they also sought an injunction to give effect to that declaration; and then they prayed for a declaration that they were owners of a piece of land:—Held, that the prayers were directly concerned with the land and were so framed as to constitute the suit one for land within the meaning of S. 12 of the Letters Patent; since the leading purpose of the suit was to establish a title to possession of land situate outside the local limits of the jurisdiction of the court and to secure that possession from molestation, and the claim was based not on any contract, trust or fraud or any circumstance giving rise to privity between the parties, but was brought to vindicate rights resulting from ownership and possession alleged to be with the plaintiff; and that therefore, the court had no jurisdiction to entertain the suit. 6 Bom. ——Cl. 12—Miscellaneous—Plaint, presentation of.

Under the rules and practice of the Bombay High Court, the proper officer to receive the plaint is the Prothonotary, or somebody in his office to whom the duty is delegated by him. The plaint, even where leave is required, is presented when it is handed over by the plaintiff or his agent to the proper officer in the Prothonotary's Office. If leave is required, the plaint must be submitted to the Chamber Judge and leave obtained from him under Cl. 12, Letters Patent. When that leave is obtained, the officer in the Prothonotary's office must see that the plaint is in order and admit it under O. 4, R 2, Civil P.C, and he cannot admit the plaint until the leave of the Judge has been obtained. But, the obtaining of the leave of the Judge and the admission of the plaint does not affect in any way the presentation of the plaint for the purposes of the Lim. Act. 36 Bom. ——Cl. 13—'Subject to its superintendence'—Court of Resident at Aden—Jurisdiction of High Court to transfer case from Resident's file to its own.

The court of the Resident at Aden is 'subject to the superintendence' of the High Court of Bombay within the meaning of the words in S. 13 of the Letters Patent and consequently the High Court has power to transfer a case on the file of the Residents Court to its own file. (1905) 3 A.L.J. 53=3 C.L.J. 5=10 C.W.N. 185=8 Bom. L.R. 4=16 M.L.J. 73=1 M.L.T. 1=30 B. 246=33 I.A. 38 (P.C.)=5 Bom. L.R. 562=27 B. 575.

——Cl. 13—Transfer of suit—High Court—Small Cause Court.

Under proper circumstances the High Court of Bombay has power to transfer to itself a suit pending in the Small Cause Court of Bombay. This power can be exercised by a single judge sitting alone on the original side of the High Court. 7 Bom. L.R. 143.

——Cl. 14—Construction.

The natural interpretation of Cl. 14 would be that the words "such causes of action not being for land or other immovable property" are intended merely to qualify the words "several causes of action" that appear just before them. That is to say, in considering Cl. 14 any cause of action which is one for land or other immovable property must be excluded. The word "several" in the expression "several causes of action" of course means "separate." A.I.R. 1927 Bom. 278 (F.B.), Cons. Two or more causes of action arising within the jurisdiction of the High Court can be joined together by the plaintiff, without any leave of the Court. Cl. 14 should be construed as far as possible consistently with the provisions of Rr. 3 and 4 of O. 2. 117 Ind. Cas. 424=53 Bom. 251=31 Bom. L.R. 7 =A.I.R. 1929 Bom. 100.

——Cl. 14—Essentials.

To bring a case within the four corners of Cl. 14 it is not necessary that there must be at least one cause of action which the defendant admits has arisen within the original jurisdiction of High Court. 16 Cal. 98, Rel. on. 117 Ind. Cas. 424=53 Bom. 251=31 Bom. L.R. 7=A.I.R. 1929 Bom. 100.

——Cl. 14—Plea of jurisdiction.

Although a defendant can set up a plea of want of jurisdiction in respect of a cause of action allowed under Cl. 14. to be joined in the suit with a cause of action which is within jurisdiction, still the mere fact that defendant may succeed in any such plea does not deprive the High Court of jurisdiction to pass an order under Cl. 14. 117 Ind Cas. 424=53 Bom. 251=31 Bom. L.R. 7=A.I.R. 1929 Bom. 100.

——Cl. 14—Scope.

Cl. 14 by its terms necessarily contemplates cases where the other causes of action are not within the original jurisdiction of High Court, and there is nothing in the clause to limit such causes of action to those arising within the extraordinary orginal civil jurisdiction of the Bombay High Court that is mentioned in in Cl. 13, that is to say, a cause of action which has arisen within the limits of the Bombay Presidency proper, or within the jurisdiction of some Court outside that Presidency, but subject to its superintendence. 33 Bom. 564, Appr; 22 Cal. 222 (P. C.), Expl. and Dist. 117 Ind. Cas. 424=53 Bom. 251=31 Bom. L.R. 7=A.I.R. 1929 Bom. 100.

——Cl. 14—"Suit for land"—Trespass action.

The cause of action for trespass on immovable property is not a cause of action for land or other immovable property within the meaning of Cl. 14, if no question of title apparently arises. 117 Ind. Cas. 424 =53 Bom. 251=31 Bom.L.R. 7=A.I.R. 1929 Bom. 100.

1. Amendment.

——Cl. 15—Amendment.

Amendment of 1928 applies to judgments of one Judge delivered after 1st February, 1929—Declaration by Judge that case is fit for appeal is necessary. 32 Bom. L.R. 185=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 224.

——Cl. 15—Amendment.

Up to 1st February 1929, leave was necessary under the Letters Patent of 1927 and thereafter it is also necessary under the new Letters Patent of 1928 for an appeal from judgment of a single Judge of the High Court in appeal. 118 Ind. Cas. 798=31 Bom. L.R. 473 =A.I.R. 1929 Bom. 241.

——Cl. 15—Amendment — Amendment (1928) to Cl. (15) is retrospective.

An alteration in Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent of the Bombay High Court effected by a notification in the Bombay Government Gazette of 2nd February 1928, to the effect that no appeal from the judgment of one Judge of the Bombay High Court lies to a Division Bench, if it is made in the exercise of second appellate jurisdiction, except in any case where such single Judge declares that it is a fit one for appeal, has retrospective effect. 114 Ind. Cas. 241=52 Bom. 753=30 Bom.L.R. 942=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 371.

——Cl. 15—Amendment.

The alteration in Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent of the Bombay High Court does not entirely abolish a former right of appeal; it merely restricts it in a reasonable manner. 114 Ind. Cas. 241=52 Bom. 753=30 Bom. L.R. 942=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 371.

2. Arbitration.

——Cl. 15—Arbitration — Dismissal of petition for revocation.

The decision of an arbitrator to admit evidence on a question not referred to him is appealable to the High Court for leave to revoke the submission to the arbitrator on the ground of want jurisdiction and when a Judge dismisses a petition for revocation, it is a decision on a question of right and practically enlarged the scope of the submission and deprived the party of his right to have the matter decided by a Court of Law and hence an appeal lies under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent. 34 Bom. 1=11 Bom. L.R. 1=1 Ind. Cas. 14.

——Cl. 15—Arbitration—Order extending time for making award and dismissing petition to set aside award.

The Court has power under the Arbitration Act, 1899, to extend the time for making an award even after the award, has been made. But, before exercising this power, under R. 373, Bombay High Court (Original Side) Rules, the Court should require a substantive application to be made and should serve notice of that application on the other side.

An order which extends the time for making an award and then dismisses the petition to set aside the award is appealable under Cl. 15. 32 Bom. L.R. 1650=A.I.R. 1931 Bom. 125=55 B. 452=129 Ind. Cas. 886.

3. Appeal - Scope of.

——Cl. 15—Appeal—Scope of—New point.

A point which has not been taken in any of the Courts below cannot be allowed to be argued for the first time in a Letters Patent appeal. I.L.R. 1946 Bom. 794=48 Bom. L.R. 225=A.I.R. 1946=Bom. 365.

——Cl. 15—Appeal—Scope of—New point.

New point on a question of fact (a plea of limitation,) should not be allowed to be considered in a Letters Patent Appeal. A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 12=44 Bom. L.R. 819=I.L.R. (1943) Bom. 104=204 Ind. Cas. 402.

——Cl. 15—Appeal—Scope of—New points.

In an appeal under the Letters Patent, the appellant is not entitled to be heard on points which had not been raised before the Judge from whose judgment the appeal has been preferred. A.I.R. 1940 Bom. 49=41 Bom. L.R. 1305=186 Ind. Cas. 726.

——Cl. 15—Appeal—Scope of—New points.

In an appeal under the Letters Patent (Bom.), the appellant is not entitled to be heard on points which had not been raised before the Judge from whose judgment the appeal has been preferred. 38 Bom. L.R. 221=60 B. 516=A.I.R. 1936 Bom. 227=163 Ind. Cas. 305.

——Cl. 15—Appeal—Scope of—New point.

An appellant is not entitled in an appeal under Letters Patent to be heard on points which had not been raised before the Judge from whose judgment he has preferred the appeal. 36 Bom. L.R. 1052=A.I.R. 1934 Bom. 466=152 Ind. Cas. 1031.

——Cl. 15—Appeal—Scope of.

In a Letters Patent appeal, the appeal Court is not restricted to consider the point on which the Judges in the Court of appeal have differed. The whole decree lies open before the Judges hearing the Letters Patent appeal. 87 Ind. Cas. 199=48 Bom. 691=26 Bom. L.R. 349=A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 118.

4. Certificate.

——Cl. 15—Certificate—Principles to be followed.

Leave to appeal will not be granted under Cl. 15, Letters Patent, unless it is alleged that any point in dispute is such that in the exercise of the judicial discretion of the Court, it may be certified as being of great public or private importance or involving questions of public importance or which may be important precedents governing numerous other cases. A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 218=34 Bom. L. R. 398=138 Ind. Cas. 454.

——Cl. 15—Certificate.

No appeal lies under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent in absence of a certificate of the Judge who has disposed of the second appeal that the case is a fit one for appeal whether such Judge be temporary or officiating. A.I.R. 1926 Rang. 1 (F.B.), Foll. 32 Bom. L.R. 624=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 366.

——Cl. 15—Certificate—Oral application—Competency.

An application to the single Judge, who has disposed of a second appeal, for a declaration that the case is a fit one for appeal to a Division Bench can be made straightaway orally by the pleader, who thinks that his client should appeal, and that no written application is necessary in such a case. The pleaders should be encouraged to make such an oral application at the time, instead of later, when a written application will be necessary and arrangements will have to be made for a special sitting to hear the application by the Judge, who will probably then have forgotten the facts of the case. Such speed is necessary because the certificate that the case is a fit one for appeal can only be granted by the Judge who passed the judgment against which it is proposed to appeal. A.I.R. 1926 Rang. 1 (F.B.), Foll. 114 Ind. Cas. 241=52 Bom. 753=30 Bom. L.R. 942=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 371.

——Cl. 15—Certificate—Refusal of—Appeal.

No appeal lies from the order of the single Judge refusing to make the declaration that the judgment is fit to be appealed against. The order making and refusing to make the declaration that the case is a fit one for appeal is in effect a part of the judgment on merits from which no appeal is provided by Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent. 32 Bom. L.R. 185=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 224.

5. Commission.

—Cl. 15—Commission—Refused to issue.

An order refusing a commission is not one affecting the merits of the question between the parties by determining some right, it is purely an interlocutory order relating to procedure and not a judgment within Cl. 15. A.I.R. 1934 Bom. 168=36 Bom. L.R. 272=152 Ind. Cas. 264.

——Cl. 15—Commission—Refusal to issue.

'Judgment' means a decision affecting the merits of questions between parties by determining some right or liability. 'Judgment' does not include a formal order or order merely regulating the procedure. Order directing issue of Commission for examination of witnesses is not a 'Judgment' and hence no appeal lies from such order. Order of refusal of an application by plff. for a Commission to examine a witness resulting in dismissal of suit amounts to 'Judgment'. 11 Bom. L.R. 241=2 Ind. Cas. 157.

6. Committal for contempt.

——Cl. 15—Committal for contempt by single Judge of High Court—Appeal.

An order of a single Judge of the High Court committing a party to prison or ordering him to pay a fine, for contempt of Court, viz., disobedience of an order of the Court, is a "Judgment" within the meaning of Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent, and an appeal therefore lies from such order. It is a final order. A.I.R. 1948 Bom. 103=49 Bom. L.R. 709 (F.B.).

——Cl. 15—Committal for contempt—Comments on pending trial.

Comments upon a pending trial by persons, some of whom are parties to the suit and some of whom are not, is contempt of a criminal nature and an order passed on a notice of motion for an order for committal of one of the parties for contempt in such a case is an order made in the exercise of criminal Jurisdiction and is not appealable under Cl. 15. 35 Bom. L.R. 9=A.I.R. 1933 Bom. 108=(1933) Bom. 283=57 B. 286=143 Ind. Cas. 691.

7. Delay in filing appeal.

——Cl. 15—Delay in filing appeal — Order, excusing—Not Judgment.

An order excusing delay in the filing of an appeal does not prevent the rights of the parties from being adjudicated upon in the appeal. It is merely a procedural step restoring the appeal to a condition in which the rights of the parties could be decided finally by the Court. Hence such an order is not 'Judgment' within the meaning of Cl. 15, and is not appealable. A.I.R. 1940 Bom. 196=42 Bom. L.R. 377=I.L.R. (1940) Bom. 361=189 Ind. Cas. 79.

——Cl. 15—Delay in filing appeal—Order of Division Court refusing to excuse delay in applying for leave to appeal to Privy Council is 'Judgment.'

An order passed by a Division Court rejecting an application to excuse the delay in presenting an application for leave to appeal to His Majesty-in-Council beyond the period of limitation is a "Judgment" and is appealable as such under Cl. 15, Letters Patent. 80 Ind. Cas. 862=48 Bom. 442=26 Bom. L.R. 395=A.I.R. 1924 Bom. 399 (F.B.).

——Cl. 15—Delay in presentation of appeal—Refusal to excuse.

An order of a single Judge of the High Court refusing to excuse the delay in presentation of the appeal is in effect an order dismissing the appeal and is a 'judgment' within Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent (Bombay). 42 Bom. 260=20 Bom. L.R. 172=44 Ind. Cas. 913.

8. Judgment — What is.

——Cl. 15—"Judgment" — What is — Appeal—Test.

In order that an order made by a single Judge of the High Court sitting on the original side should be a "Judgment" within the meaning of Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent, it must affect the merits of the question between the parties by determining some right or liability. If a Judge misapprehends the extent of his jurisdiction and makes an order, the order would be subject to appeal, provided that order concludes the rights of parties. But if the order is merely procedural in character or interlocutory, without finally determining the rights of parties it does not amount to a "judgment" within the meaning of Cl. 15. A.I.R. 1949 Bom. 125=50 Bom. L.R. 711.

——Cl. 15 — Judgment — What is — Writ of certiorari.

An order passed by a Single Judge issuing a writ of certiorari to an Assistant Judge in respect of an application under S. 15, Bombay Municipal, Boroughs Act, heard by him as a persona designata is a judgment within the contemplation of Cl. 15.

An appeal lies under Cl. 15, against such an order which is passed, not under revisional jurisdiction, but under the original jurisdiction exerciseable not over the Subordinate Court but over other tribunals also. 46 Bom. L.R. 675=A.I.R. 1945 Bom. 7=I.L.R. (1944) Bom. 683.

——Cl. 15—'Judgment'—What is.

A finding on an issue, which does not merely regulate the procedure in the suit but goes further so as to decide some right affecting the merits of the question between the parties, amounts to a judgment from which an appeal lies under Cl. 15. 32 Bom. 602; 11 Bom. L.R. 241, Foll. 32 Bom. L.R. 285=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 262.

——Cl. 15—'Judgment'—What is.

The term "judgment" in the Letters Patent of the High Court means in civil cases a 'decree' and not a judgment in the ordinary sense. 87 Ind. Cas. 313=6 L.R.P.C. 117=41 C.L.J. 628=1925 M.W.N. 474=22 M.L.W. 246=30 C.W.N. 459=23 A.L.J. 555=27 Bom. L.R. 872=2 O.W.N. 535=A.I.R. 1925 P.C. 155=49 M.L.J. 25 (P.C.).

See also 1933 A.L.J. 127=55 All. 326=A.I.R. 1933 All. 262=142 Ind. Cas. 331 (F.B.)

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is—Order requiring security from a woman—Order of a single Judge sitting on the original side directing.

An appeal was against an order by a Judge sitting on the original side of the court requiring security from a woman under S. 380 of the Code of Civil Procedure 1882. Such an order is a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 15 of Letters Patent. 10 Bom. L.R. 337.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is—Order, to take accounts.

An order deciding a question of right of a Judge sitting on the original side (i. e.) appointing a commissioner to take accounts is appealable. 33 Bom. 216=10 Bom. L.R. 488=2 Ind. Cas. 294.

9. Judgment—What is not.

——Cl. 15—"Judgment"—What is not—Order allowing amendment of plaint—Appeal.

An order allowing an amendment of a plaint is not "judgment" within the meaning of Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent, and no appeal lies from such an order under Cl. 15. 48 Bom. L.R. 252, foll. I.L.R. (1951) Bom. 145=A.I.R. 1950 Bom. 343=52 Bom. L.R. 381.

——Cl. 15—"Judgment"—What is not—Suit in ejectment on ground of breach of conditions of lease—Order allowing amendments of plaint including further breaches after suit—If appealable.

An order granting leave to a plaintiff in an ejectment suit to amend the plaint by inserting further breaches of conditions in the lease after suit as a ground of ejectment is not a "Judgment" within the meaning of Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent because it is not an order which affects the merits of the case; nor does it determine any right or liability. Hence such an order is not appealable. I.L.R. (1946) Bom. 756=227 Ind. Cas. 411=48 Bom. L.R. 252=A.I.R. 1946 Bom. 361.

——Cl. 15—"Judgment"—What is not—Order dismissing suit for non-prosecution and non-appearance of plaintiff—Appeal.

An order dismissing a suit for default of appearance of the plaintiff and for non-prosecution, under O. 9, R. 8, C P. Code, after the counsel for the plaintiff has withdrawn his appearance on refusal of an adjournment is not a "judgment" within the meaning of Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent and no appeal lies from such an order. The only remedy of the plaintiff in such a case is an application under O. 9, R. 9, C. P. Code. A.I.R. 1950 Bom. 355=52 Bom. L.R. 375.

——Cl. 15 — Judgment—What is not — Order refusing to commit person for breach of undertaking given to Court.

An order of the Court refusing to commit a man for breach of an undertaking given to the Court and embodied in the order of the Court cannot be said to be a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 15 since it does not affect the merits of any question between the parties and consequently, such an order is not appealable. A.I.R. 1936 Bom. 314=38 Bom. L.R. 571=60 B. 894=164 Ind. Cas. 335.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is not.

Where the plaint was amended and name of an individual substituted for the name of the firm, the order was held to be one for regulating procedure and hence not appealable under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent. 38 Bom. L.R. 529.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is not.

An order refusing to declare a person as a lunatic on an application under S. 39, Lunacy Act is not a judgment within Cl. 15 and is not appealable. 35 Bom. L.R. 38=A.I.R. 1933 Bom. 112=57 B. 371=144 Ind. Cas. 100.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is not.

A decision under S. 10, Civil P. C., either to allow or to refuse a stay is one that really determines the right of the plaintiff to sue and is a judgment. 35 Bom. L.R. 15=A.I.R. 1933 Bom. 85=57 B. 364=143 Ind. Cas. 806.

——Cl. 15 — Judgment—What is not—Order extending time for sale of property.

An order fixing the date for the sale of partnership assets in a partnership action or extending the time for sale is not a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 15 and is not appealable. 34 Bom. L.R. 12=A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 134=56 B. 237=137 Ind. Cas. 456.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is not—Order refusing directions to third parties—Appeal.

An order refusing direction under Rr. 130 and 131 of the High Court Rules is not a judgment and not appealable. 22 Bom. L.R. 1169=A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 320.

——Cl. 15—"Judgment"—What is not—Order refusing to restrain deft. from prosecuting suit in a foreign Court.

An order refusing to restrain the deft. by an injunction from prosecuting his suit in a foreign Court is not a "Judgment" within Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent and no appeal lies from such an order. 21 Bom. L.R. 955=53 Ind. Cas. 395.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is not.

Order refusing to try and dispose of issues before first hearing of suit is not a Judgment and no appeal lies from such an order. 11 Bom. L.R. 245=2 Ind. Cas. 150.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is not.

An order by which directions under Rr. 130 and 131 of the High Court Rules are refused is not a "judgment" within Cl. 15 and no appeal lies against such order. 8 Beng. L.R. 433, Foll. 59 Ind. Cas. 533=45 Bom. 428=A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 320.

——Cl. 15—'Judgment'—What is not—C. P. C., S. 135—Order under.

An order under S. 135 of the Civil Procedure Code, discovery is not a 'judgment' within the meaning of Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent, and hence no appeal lies from such an order. 4 Bom. L.R. 342.

——Cl. 15—"Judgment"—What is not.

A suit should not be tried piecemeal, and a decision on an issue to the effect that the trial of the suit should proceed can never amount to a judgment and no appeal lies from such a decision. 92 Ind. Cas. 552=27 Bom. L.R. 1496=A.I.R. 1926 Bom. 136.

10. Leave to sue as pauper.

——Cl. 15—Leave to sue as pauper—Grant of.

An order giving leave to sue as a pauper determines no right as against the defendant in the suit and is not appealable under Cl. 15, Letters Patent (Bom.). A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 318=45 Bom.L.R. 602=I.L.R. (1943) Bom. 547=212 Ind. Cas. 637.

——Cl. 15—Leave to sue as pauper—Refusal—Order refusing leave to sue in forma pauperis.

An order of a Judge in Chambers refusing leave to sue in forma pauperis is a 'judgment' within the meaning of Cl. 15 and is appealable under the said clause. 32 Bom.L.R. 1647=A.I.R. 1931 Bom. 166=130 Ind. Cas. 24.

11. Leave to withdraw suit.

——Cl. 15—Leave to withdraw suit with liberty—Appeal.

An order made by a single Judge of the High Court on the Original Side, giving leave to the plaintiff to withdraw the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit on the same cause of action, under O. 23, R. 1, C.P. Code, is a "judgment" within the meaning of Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent and is appealable under Cl. 15. The rights of the defendant are affected by such an order, and an order which deprives the defendant of a valuable right is clearly a "judgment.". 22 Bom. L.R. 1012, foll. A.I.R. 1950 Bom. 378=52 Bom. L.R. 386.

——Cl. 15—Leave to withdraw suit—Appeal.

A pronouncement giving plff. liberty of withdrawing his suit made after recording evidence and hearing argument is a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 15. 45 Bom. 377=A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 267=22 Bom.L.R. 1012=58 Ind. Cas. 1004.

12. Sanction to prosecute.

——Cl. 15—Sanction to prosecute—Refusal of.

It is doubtful whether an order refusing to garnt a sanction to prosecute under S. 195, Cr.P.C., is a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 15. 68 Ind. Cas. 33=24 Bom. L.R. 817=23 Cr.L.J. 497=47 Bom. 270=A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 455.

13. Summary suit.

——Cl. 15—Summary suit—Leave to defend.

An order in a summary suit granting leave to defend on condition that the defendant deposited a certain amount in Court within a certain date is a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 15 and is appealable. 56 B. 268=34 Bom.L.R. 252=A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 163=137 Ind. Cas. 397.

——Cl. 15 — Summary suit—Order allowing transfer of to short causes—No appeal lies.

An order amending the title of a plaint by omitting the word "summary" from the same, and transferring the case to the short cause list, from the list of summary suit does not in any way affect the merits of the questions at issue between the parties by determining some right or liability. It is only an order regulating the procedure according to which the suit is to be tried. It is not therefore a judgment and no appeal lies. 86 Ind. Cas. 100=27 Bom.L.R. 99=A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 159.

14. Unrestricted inspection of documents.

——Cl. 15—Unrestricted inspection of document—Appeal.

No appeal lies against the order of Judge for unrestricted and full inspection of documents in the hands of receiver in the suit. 11 Bom. L.R. 248=2 Ind. Cas. 167.

15. Miscellaneous.

——Cl. 15—Miscellaneous.

Appeal provided by Cl. 15 is special jurisdiction within meaning of S. 4, Civil P.C. and is not affected by S. 104—Civil P.C. A.I.R. 1940 Bom. 216=42 Bom.L.R. 428=I.L.R. (1940) Bom. 426=189 Ind. Cas. 656.

——Cl. 15—Miscellaneous.

A right of appeal from one tribunal to another tribunal which is differently constituted stands on a different footing from the right to appeal from the judgment of a tribunal where only one Judge consititutes the tribunal to the same tribunal where two or more Judges constitute the same tribunal. The former creates not merely a remedial but a substantive right; the latter seems merely to regulate the procedure of the same tribunal. 114 Ind. Cas. 241=52 Bom. 753=30 Bom. L.R. 942=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 371.

——Cl. 15—Miscellaneous—Reference to a third Judge—Concurrence in the decree but not in the reasons thereof—Appeal.

Where the Judge to whom an appeal is referred under the provisions of S. 575, C.P.C.(=S. 98 New Code) agrees with one of the differing Judges as to the result of the appeal, but the agreement does not proceed on the indentical lines of reasoning, there is no further appeal to the High Court against such decision under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent. 6 Bom.L.R. 230.

——Cl. 15 — Miscellaneous—How far Cl. 15 controlled by S. 588, C.P.C.—S. 104 and O. 43, New Code.

S. 588 of the Civil Procedure Code, (1882) does not take away the right of appeal given by Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent. 4 Bom. L.R. 342.

——Cl. 17—Power to appoint guardian of minor co-parcener and sanction sale.

The power which the Bombay High Court exercises on its Original Side over minors is the power derived from the prerogative of the Crown as parens patrioe to protect subjects of the Crown who cannot protect themselves; and if that be the nature of the Court's jurisdiction, it is clear that it can only be limited as to subjects within the jurisdiction of the Court by the interest of the person to be protected. No doubt, an order which is likely to be infructuous would normally not be for the benefit of a minor; but if the Court thinks that it is for the benefit of the minor, it has jurisdiction to make such an order. The jurisdiction of the Court to sanction a contract for the benefit of a minor extends, at any rate, to a minor resident within the Presidency of Bombay. Consequently, the Bombay High Court can appoint a guardian of a minor entitled to an undivided interest in coparcenary property and to sanction the sale of such property. But in such a case, no order dealing with property in which, the minor is interested can be passed behind the back of the minor. The minors should be made respondents to the petition, and should be represented by a guardian ad litem. Normally the guardian ad litem should be an officer of the Court because it would be difficult in most cases to find an independent member of the family to consider the interest of the minor. The guardian ad litem must satisfy himself as to the interest of the minor. He may, of course, require further evidence as to the alleged necessity, for the sale, and he may require further evidence as to the price being a good one and he will also have to consider how the proceeds of sale are to be dealt with. If he requires any funds to enable him to look into the matter properly, the parties seeking the order must provide those funds. The object of asking for orders of this sort is to enable the joint family to get a better price for its property, and they cannot complain, if they have to pay for the privilege. A.I.R. 1941 Bom. 397=43 Bom. L. R. 926=I.L.R. (1942) Bom. 39=197 Ind. Cas. 678 (S.B.)

——Cl. 19—Jurisdiction.

Per Marten, C. J.—Generally speaking the High Court has succeeded to the jurisdiction conferred upon its predecessor, the Supreme Court, by the Supreme Court Charter, 1823.

Though under Cl. 19 of the Letters Patent of 1865, the law and equity to be applied in each case coming before the High Court in the exercise of its Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction is the law or equity which would have been applied if the Letters Patent had not been issued, yet Cls. 11 and 12 govern the local limits of the Court's jurisdiction. In other words, the Court must first acquire jurisdiction under Cls. 11 and 12 before applying the law or equity applicable under Cl. 19. 104 Ind. Cas. 8=51 Bom. 516=29 Bom.L.R. 498=A.I.R. 1927 Bom. 278 (F. B.).

——Cl. 20 — Jurisdiction to appoint Special Commissioner—Vesting of property in the Special Commissioner—Procedure.

The Court has no power or jurisdiction whatever —inherent or conferred—first to appoint a Special Commissioner for sale of immovable property; secondly, to vest immovable property in a Special Commissioner, and, lastly, to empower any such Speical Commissioner to execute a conveyance of such property. 10 Bom.L.R. 1176.

——Cl. 26—Powers of High Court.

The power of the High Court to review a case is restricted to the point or points of law certified by the Advocate-General as involving an error and if the High Court comes to the conclusion that there has been no error with regard to the point or points of law mentioned in the certificate of Advocate-General, the High Court would have no power to go into any other question or to review the case generally even to the extent of altering the sentence. A.I.R. 1944 Bom. 274=46 Cr.L.J. 277=I.L.R. (1945). Bom. 52=46 Bom. L.R. 566=217 Ind. Cas. 255 (F.B.)

——Cl. 26—Powers of Court to review the whole case—Certificate of Advocate-General.

On the question whether the High Court can review the whole case and decide whether a confession of the accused was properly admitted by the learned trial judge when there was no certificate of the Advocate-General, under clause 25 of the amended Letters Patent, 1865, that it was wrongly admitted. Held, by Davar J. (Russel Ag. C.J., Chandavarkar and Batty, JJ. did not express their opinion) that in the absence of any reservation of the point by the trying judge as provided by Cl. 25 of the amended Letters Patent or of any certificate from the Advocate-General the court was precluded from reopening the question which was decided by the learned judge presiding at the trial. The words "review the case" in Cl. 26 must be read with the words that follow, viz., "or such part of it as may be necessary and finally determine such point or points of law." Under Cl. 26 the court is at liberty to review the case or part of the case for the purpose of determining the point or points of law, that are either reserved for our opinion or are certified by the Advocate-General to be wrongly decided. Beaman, J.—Where the Advocate-General has certified that a particular piece or pieces of evidence have been wrongly admitted, the Court of Reference constituted under Cl. 26 of the Charter has first to determine whether or not the certificate is well-founded, and if it decides that it is, then to deal with what remains of the evidence, after strking out what has thus been adjudged not to be evidence. If the party applying for the Advocate General's certificate has objected to another piece of evidence as wrongly admitted but the Advocate-General has refused to certify that in his opinion it was done so, then there are two opinions, his and that of the trying judge, in favour of the admissibility of the evidence and is and was indended to be enough. If the party did not object, and did not ask for a certificate in respect of evidence which is thus challenged for the first time after the trial, at the hearing before the Court of Reference, the objection comes too late. 32 Bom. 111=6 Cr.L.J. 164=9 Bom. L.R. 789 (F.B.)

——Cl. 26—Interference by High Court with verdict of jury.

The Language of Cl. 26, shows that the High Court must first be satisfied that there has been an error in the decision of a point or points of law or that there is a point of law requiring further consideration before any question can arise of interference with the verdict of the jury. In order to justify interference, the point of law in question must obviously be a substantial and important one; and it must appear that there has been some error by which the accused has been prejudiced and the fair trial of the case affected. A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 150=45 Bom. L.R. 281=44 Cr.L.J. 534=206 Ind. Cas. 592 (F.B.).

——Cl. 26—Conviction, when set aside.

It is not essential, whenever there has been some error of law, to set aside the conviction, but undoubtedly, the High Court must set aside the conviction, if it thinks that the error of law has prejudiced the accused. If it thinks that the error of law has not prejudiced the accused, then the conviction can stand. A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 71=44

The Bombay High Court has power to transfer to its own file a criminal case from the file of the Resident's Court at Aden. 7 Bom. L.R. 104=29 Bom. 575.

——Cl. 29—Village Magistrate's proceedings—Jurisdiction to quash.

Bombay High Court has no power to quash proceedings before Village Patil under Cr. P. C. but it has such power under the Letters Patent. 10 Bom. L.R. 630, Rel. 21 Bom. L.R. 274=20 Cr.L.J. 315=50 Ind. Cas. 491.

——Cl. 35—Restitution of conjugal rights—Bombay High Court has jurisdiction to entertain suit for restitution of conjugal rights by Christian lady against her Parsi husband.

While enacting the Divorce Act the intention of the Legislature was to enact it in such a way as to remove the limitation contained in Cl. 35, Letters Patent. The Divorce Act intended it to be sufficient for one party to profess the Christian religion and did not require that both parties should do so. The Bombay High Court, has, therefore, jurisdiction to entertain a suit for restitution of conjugal rights instituted by a lady, who is a Russian and a Christian, against her husband who is a Parsi. 38 Bom. 125; 20 Ind. Cas. 492, Overruled. 32 Bom. L.R. 1046=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 385 (F.B.).

——Cl. 36—Decision of Single Judge, whether binding on other Single Judge.

Ordinarily, Single Judge of the High Court should follow the decision of another Single Judge of the same High Court as a Court of co-ordinate jurisdiction, leaving it to the Court of Appeal to say whether or not that decision is wrong. 46 Bom. L.R. 818=A.I.R. 1945 Bom. 110.

——Cl. 36—Difference of opinions—Appeal from a single Judge's decision—Bench hearing it differing—Opinion of senior prevails.

The natural place to find the rules governing the exercise of the appellate civil jurisdiction over the other Judges of the High Court would be the Letters Patent, while the natural place to find the rules governing the exercise of the appellate civil jurisdiction over the Civil Courts of the mofussil subject to the High Court would be the the Civil Procedure Code. The Code makes no provision for an appeal within the High Court, that is to say, from a single Judge of the High Court. This right of appeal depends on Cl. 15 of the Charter. Appeals under the Letters Patent are governed by the Letters Patent, and appeals under the Code are governed by the Code. Further the Code only deals with appeals from certain Courts and does not deal with appeals within the High Court from the decision of one Judge of the Court to another. Therefore when a Bench of two judges is hearing an appeal from the decision of a single Judge of the same High Court whether on the original side or the appellate, and they differ in opinion, the opinion of the senior Judge would prevail. 26 All. 10; A.I.R. 1921 P.C. 6, Ref. 76 Ind. Cl. 37 of the Letters Patent does not empower the High Court to make rules and orders for the purpose of regulating proceedings in civil cases in the Courts subordinate to it. There is no special procedure for disciplinary action of the Court. The English Procedure cannot be adopted in its entirety. Proceedings should be initiated by a rule, motion or notice calling upon the attorney to answer the matter in the affidavits of the applicant; service should be personal, and ordinarily a day should be given for the notice to be returned. Disciplinary action rests on the principle that the Court deems a person unfit to act as an attorney and not by way of punishment. A case of suspicion is not enough to justify disciplinary action. 41 Cal. 113=14 Cr.L.J. 305=19 Ind. Cas. 993.

It is not every reprehensible conduct that necessarily amounts to that professional misconduct which entails the serious result of being struck off the roll of solicitors or suspended, or otherwise dealt with by the Court, and in respect of applications under S. 10 of the Letters Patent the Court cannot be too much careful in scrutinizing the materials upon which the jurisdiction of the Court is invoked. At all times it is a serious matter, and the machinery of the Court ought not to be set in motion, except upon the clearest evidence of professional misconduct. 91 Ind. Held, that though not as a matter of right, but still as a matter of convenience a stay may be granted, on the applicant furnishing security in respect of the total amount of the indebtedness irrespective of the question whether the suit for the accounts is vexatious or not, it being competent to the court to deal with such suit where the pro-note sued upon prima facie does not appear to be an item in the running account. 30 Q. 627.

——Cl. 11—Jurisdiction of High Court—Temporary injunction against party litigating in another province—It can be granted.

Where two different suits are pending between the same parties in Calcutta and in Madras and some of the issues are common to both the suits, the Calcutta High Court in its original side has inherent power to grant a temporary injunction apart from the provisions of C.P. Code restraining the party before it from proceeding with his suit in Madras. But the Court will not exercise such power unless it is satisfied that the Madras suit is vexatious and an oppressive multiplication of actions, the burden of proving which is on the party applying for the injunction. 24 C.W.N. 735 and 49 C.W.N. 172, foll. 53 C.W.N. 398=84 C.L.J. 18.

——Cl. 11—Jurisdiction—Temporary injunction restraining defendant from proceeding with suit in another Court.

In a case to which S. 10, C. P. Code, does not apply, the Calcutta High Court has inherent powers to issue a temporary injunction apart from the provisions of C.P. Code, restraining the defendant in the suit before it from proceeding with a suit previously instituted by him in another Court, and the exercise of this power is not limited to persons residing within its jurisdiction. The Court will not exercise such inherent power on the ground of convenience alone. It must be satisfied that the other suit is vexatious and an oppressive multiplication of actions and that the plaintiff in that suit could not obtain any advantage, by proceeding with that suit that he would not obtain in this Court. A further matter which must always be relevant when a temporary injunction is asked for is whether the party who seeks that injunction has come to the Court at the earliest opportunity to seek his remedy. 1. Applicability.

——Cl. 12 — Applicability — Suit for money instituted with leave of Court—Decree based on agreement adjusting claim creating charge on property outside jurisdiction and empowering its sale in execution—Validity.

In a suit for money instituted in the High Court in its ordinary original jurisdiction after obtaining leave under Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent, a decree was passed on the basis of an agreement adjusting the claim in the suit by which a charge was created upon immovable property situated outside the limits of the Court's territorial jurisdiction and the decree-holder was empowered to enforce the charge in execution without recourse to a fresh suit.

Held, that the agreement in suit was a lawful agreement as it related to the suit and the decree passed pursuant to it was not a nullity but was valid and capable of execution. An agreement of compromise can validly include matters which are not the subject-matter of a suit and so long as the agreement relates to the suit, the Court has authority, or jurisdiction under O. 23, R. 3, C.P. Code, to pass a decree in accordance with its terms. I.L.R. (1946) 1 Cal. 559=50 C.W.N. 447=A.I.R. 1946 Cal. 559.

——Cl. 12—Applicability—Suit for partition of Hindu joint family properties filed after obtaining leave of Court—Minor sons of defendant subsequently added as parties—Fresh leave, if necessary.

Where a suit for partition of the properties of a joint Hindu Mitakshara family has been instituted after obtaining leave of the Court under Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent, fresh leave under that clause need not be obtained if the minor sons of one of the defendants are subsequently added as parties to the suit. The minor sons are already, dormantly as it were, parties to the suit being represented in the suit by the karta of their family. In a partition suit among the members of a Mitakshara family there can be no change of cause of action when a person already represented by his karta is brought on the record. I.L.R. Secretary of State is not body corporate—Suit by Govt. servant for wrongful dismissal—Plaintiff's entire service in district outside Calcutta High Court's jurisdiction—High Court has no jurisdiction to entertain suit. A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 553=197 Ind. Cas. 331.

——Cl. 12—Applicability.

S. 92, Civil P.C., must be taken as overriding Cl. 12 of Letters Patent (Calcutta). The High Court has no jurisdiction to try a suit under S. 92, Civil P. C., when no part of subject-matter of the trust is whithin its jurisdiction. A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 444=59 C. 357=137 Ind. Cas. 808.

——Cl. 12—Applicability.

A suit for judicial separation was brought by the wife against her husband. The parties were members of the Jewish community and professed the Jewish religion. The wife took out summons for an order on the husband to pay to the wife a certain sum on account of and towards the costs of the suit.

Held, that neither Cl. 35, Letters Patent (Calcutta) nor the Divorce Act applied to the case, but the suit came within the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court under Cl. 12, Letters Patent, and the procedure as regards payment of costs was that laid down by C. P. Code, of which S. 35 did not give the Court power to direct the order prayed for. 34 C.W.N. 319= A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 558.

——Cl. 12—Applicability.

Although the legislature had power in 1908 to override the Letters Patent the legislature has not by introducing S. 21, C. P. Code, overridden the provisions of Cl. 12. 120 Ind. Cas. 577=49 C.L.J. 212=56 Cal. 940=A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 358.

2. Application for grant or revocation of grant.

3. Carrying on business.

——Cl. 12—Carrying on business—Meaning.

Where a suit for damages for alleged breach of contract entered into beyond the local limits of the High Court's Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction, plaintiff contended that the suit was maintainable within such jurisdiction as the deft. was carrying on business within the local limits of the said jurisdiction of the Court by virtue of an agreement of managing agency between him and a certain company which had its office in the Town of Calcutta.

Held, that the plaintiff's contention failed and the suit was not maintainable. The mere facts that he granted certain rights to a firm in Calcutta does not mean he carried on his business there. 24 C.W.N. 582=31 C.L.J. 327=57 Ind. Cas. 211.

——Cl. 12—Carrying on business.

A contract was signed by the manager of the deft.'s business in Calcutta, the deft. himself was resident of Singapore. The deft. can be sued in his firm's name for damages for breach of the contract in the Original Side of the High Court. 10 Ind. Cas. 895 (Cal.)

4. Cause of action.

——Cl. 12 — Cause of action—Leave under—When can be granted.

Usually, it is not right to grant leave in a case where the part of the cause of action on which the jurisdiction depends, is a matter with which the defendants have had nothing to do. Such a hard and fast rule cannot be laid down but generally speaking, when people take an assignment of a promissory note, they should be prepared to enforce their claim either in the Court within whose jurisdiction the makers reside or in a jurisdiction where a part of the cause of action with which the makers are directly concerned has arisen.

Consequently, where the only cause of action which arises within the jurisdiction is the assignment of the promissory note in suit, leave under Cl. 12 should not be granted; the balance of convenience demands that the litigation should be conducted either in the Court within whose jurisdiction the defendants reside or in the Court within whose jurisdiction the document sued upon was executed. A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 219=40 C.W.N. 164= 63 C. 526=162 Ind. Cas. 287.

——Cl. 12—Cause of action.

Pro-note assigned in favour of plaintiff—Defendant having no notice—Plaintiff has cause of action—Leave under Cl. 12 can be granted—Held, on facts, that the case was not fit for grant of leave. A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 349=40 C.W.N. 161=63 C. 435=63 C.L.J. 199=163 Ind. Cas. 167.

——Cl. 12—Cause of action—Assignment in Calcutta but debt contracted outside jurisdiction of Original Side of High Court.

In a suit by an assignee, the assignment is a part of the cause of action, and upon that cause of action, leave under Cl. 12 is invariably granted. For practical purposes, it is impossible before the hearing of the suit to decide whether an assignment is or is not bona fide. The Court will not be justified, on a mere suspicion that the assignor might not have acted in the ordinary way of business, in depriving the plaintiff of the right to bring a suit in the place where the assignment was made. 37 C.W.N. 1139=A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 175=148 Ind. Cas. 442.

——Cl. 12—Cause of action—Holder of negotiable instrument—Discrimination on basis of hardship and humanity between plaintiffs and defendants, if exists-Private individual, holder of instrument, if can be treated on different footing from commercial man.

With regard to holders or assignee of a negotiable instrument under Cl. 12, there is no discrimination between plaintiffs and defendants who are interested in negotiable instruments, on the ground of hardship or humanity or even on the ground of legitimate collusion to assign; nor can a private individual who is a holder of a bill of exchage or a pro-note be treated on a different footing in law to a commercial man through whose hands instruments of negotiability are daily passing. 63 C. 908=40 C.W.N. 717=164 Ind. Cas. 904.

——Cl. 12—Cause of action arising wholly outside jurisdiction—Secy. of State—Suit against.

The Secy. of State for India in Council does not dwell or carry on business, or personally work for gain within the local jurisdiction of the High Court at Calcutta. Where the cause of action for a suit arises wholly out of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the Calcutta High Court, the Court has no jurisdiction to entertain the suit against the Secy. of State for India in Council. 14 C. 256, Foll. 40 Cal. 308=21 Ind. Cas. 1.

On appeal from 16 C.W.N. 747=15 Ind. Cas. 955.

——Cl. 12—Cause of action—Consideration illusory.

A promise to forbear from suing on an award for the amount awarded during a certain time in consideration of payment of a portion of the sum awarded is not supported by consideration and a plea that a suit is premature on that ground is not good; a suit based solely upon a cause of action alleged to have arisen out of such a transaction will not lie under Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent in the Original Side of the High Court. 31 C. 274=8 C.W.N. 207.

——Cl. 12—Cause of action—Suit for damages—Breach of agreement.

An agreement by a defendant that he will jointly and in participation with the plaintiff "look after and manage" certain appeals filed by the plaintiff in the High Court, and will bear a moiety of the costs, to be incurred therefor, does not necessarily give jurisdiction to the Original Side of the High Court to entertain a suit to recover damages for breach of such agreement. Where the agreements were executed where the parties resided and the property affected by them was in the mofussil, the High Court has no jurisdiction to entertain a suit based on such agreements, unless they contemplated something which necessarily had to be performed within the jurisdiction, e. g., the instructions must necessarily be given or the costs incurred must necessarily be paid within the jurisdiction. 1 C. L. J. 219.

5. Concurrent jurisdiction of High Court.

——Cl. 12—Concurrent jurisdictions of High Courts in India—Jurisdiction of—To restrain trial of suit—Injunction—Foreign Court.

The jurisdiction of the High Court is what was formerly possessed by the Supreme Court at Calcutta and continued to it by the Indian High Courts Act, 1861. (24 and 25 Vict. C. 104) Viz. over Bengal, Behar and Orissa; and for the purpose of restraining suits, any court outside such jurisdiction is to be considered a foreign court.

A court can restrain a person from proceeding with a suit in a foreign Court, only when the person sought to be restrained is within its jurisdiction and not otherwise, so that in the event of an injunction being granted against him and disobeyed by him, he would be subject to the process of that court and for contempt. 13 C.W.N. 346=1 Ind. Cas. 927=36 C. 233.

6. Construction.

——Cl. 12—Construction.

The construction of Cl. 12 upon which all the High Courts are are agreed is that as regards suits for land the High Court can take cognizance if the land is situate wholly within the local limits or where the land is situate in part only within such limits if leave has been first obtained; and that as regards suits other than those for land the High Court has jurisdiction if the cause of action has arisen in part only within the limits if the leave of the Court shall have been first obtained or if the defendant dwells or carries on business or personally works for gain within these limits. 120 Ind. Cas. 577=49 C.L.J. 212=56 Cal. 940=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 358.

7. Contract—Breach.

——Cl. 12—Contract—Breach—Cause of action—Forum.

X and Y. respectively carrying on business in Cawnpore and Calcutta agreed to accept for accommodation of Z.'s firm in Cawnpore a hundi drawn on X and Y in Calcutta by one A in Delhi in favour of B, also in Delhi and in the case of payment by acceptors of the amount of the said hundi to debit the same to the accommodation party Z.'s firm. The acceptors sued the accommodation party to recover the amount of the said hundi which was duly accepted and the amount of which paid to B in Calcutta.

Held, that the plffs.' cause of action would not be complete unless they proved the fact that they had accepted the hundi in Calcutta in accordance with their undertaking to the drawers of the hundi and paid the bill into Calcutta on due date, in accordance with their acceptance. As part of cause of action arose within the local limits of the ordinary original jurisdiction of the High Court the said Court had jurisdiction to hear the case. 47 Cal. 583=59 Ind. Cas. 539.

8. Damages for conversion of land.

——Cl. 12—Damages for conversion of land.

In a suit for damages for conversion of land it is open to the plaintiffs to proceed against any one or more of the joint tort-feasors as they may elect. Therefore a suit started against one of the tort-feasor, who resides in Calcutta, can be properly maintained in Calcutta High Court. 13 B.L.R. 91, Dist. 116 Ind. Cas. 727=32 C.W.N. 208=A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 887.

9. "Dwells or resides".

——Cl. 12—Dwells or resides.

Question whether a person resides at a place at a certain time is one of fact—Defendant having permanent residence in Calcutta at all material times—Residence at Calcutta house whenever he liked—Held, he dwelt or resided there within the jurisdiction of the Court at time of commencement of suit. 40 C.W.N. 65=164 Ind. Cas. 907.

——Cl. 12—'Dwelling or carrying on business.'

The dwelling or carrying on business must be of all the defendants. The expression is used not as indicating an individual defendant in a suit, but the party defendants to the suit, which may be one person or several. 13 B.L.R. 91, Foll. 104 Ind. Cas. 721=54 Cal. 655=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 768.

10. Grant of leave.

——Cl. 12—Grant of leave—Discretion.

If a suit is properly framed, so as to embrace land partly within and partly without the local limits, it is, in all cases, a question of the discretion of the Court and if the Court exercises the discretion in favour of entertaining the suit, the jurisdiction cannot be questioned. The Court's discretion to grant leave under Cl. 12 is not necessarily ousted by the fact that some of the defendants are interested only in lands outside the jurisdiction. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 295=60 C. 54=144 Ind. Cas. 792.

——Cl. 12—Grant of leave—Contention by defendant that no part of cause of action arose within jurisdiction—Proper procedure.

Where the defendant contends that no part of the cause of action arose within the jurisdiction of the Court and that leave under Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent ought not to have been granted, it is questionable whether in such a case an application for revocation of the leave granted is really the proper course. The proper procedure in such circumstances is to settle an issue, namely, whether the plaint discloses a cause of action which the Court has jurisdiction to try, and to try it as a preliminary issue in the suit. 50 C.W.N. 624.

——Cl. 12—Grant of leave — Propriety challenged—Proper course.

It is well settled that where leave has been granted under Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent and the propriety of the grant is challenged, the proper course is for the defendant to apply at the earliest opportunity for revocation of the grant. He cannot be permitted in the course of execution proceedings to claim that the decree was without jurisdiction on this ground. 224 Ind. Cas. 381=50 C. W. N. 548=A.I.R. 1947 Cal. 364=82 C. L.J. 131.

——Cl. 12—Grant of leave—Objection—Waiver—Conduct.

Where by inadvertence, leave under Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent declared by the Registrar was not endorsed in the plaint held that it could not be endorsed subsequently, as at the date on which the plaint was presented for admission. Leave declared by the Registrar is not a proper leave. An objection as to want of such leave might be waived and would be considered to have been waived if the defendant had taken any steps in furtherance of the suit to its trial. 17 C.W.N. 512=18 Ind.Cas. 898.

——Cl. 12—Grant of leave.

The Calcutta High Court cannot under Cl. 12 grant leave to enforce a cause of action regarding properties partly within and partly without the ordinary original civil jurisdiction and so a decree affecting properties without those limits is void. A mortgagee of property situate in mofussil by mortgaging his mortgagee interest together with a property in Calcutta can sue his mortgagor in the original side of the Calcutta High Court where a suit between himself and mortgagee, i. e., sub-mortgagee can be properly brought. 31 C.L.J. 272 =24 C.W.N. 633=56 Ind. Cas. 532.

——Cl. 12—Grant of leave—Grant by Registrar—Objection—When to be raised.

The objection that the leave was granted by the Registrar or a Master is one which can be waived by the defendant by taking any step in the proceedings before applying to have the action dismissed. 7 C.L.J. 441=12 C.W.N. 705=35 C. 394.

——Cl. 12—Grant of leave—Delegation to Master or Registrar "ultra vires".

The granting of leave under Cl. 12 of the Charter being a judicial act cannot be delegated to a ministerial officer and Rule 515-A of the Rules and Orders of the Calcutta High Court, in so far as they authorize the Registrar or Master to grant such leave is ultra vires. 11 C.W.N. 649=5 C.L.J. 405=34 C. 619 (F.B.).

11. High Court—Original jurisdiction.

——Cl. 12—High Court—Original jurisdiction—Effect of amendment of S. 144, Bengal Tenant Act by Amendment Act IV of 1928.

——Cl. 12—High Court—Original jurisdiction.

S. 20, Civil P.C., has no application to cases brought on the Original Side of the Calcutta High Court. The jurisdiction of the Original Side of the High Court is not given to it by S. 21, Civil P.C., but by Cl. 12. To ascertain whether the Court has jurisdiction, evidence has to be given as to whether the requirements of that Cl. 12 have been satisfied. When that evidence is given, the Court may decide whether it has jurisdiction or not. If the High Court has jurisdiction to entertain the suit, there is no need to invoke the aid of S. 21 of Civil P.C. If the Court has no jurisdiction to entertain this suit, then the judge in the Court of first instance, has no jurisdiction to hear the case and the High Court sitting as an Appellate Court has no jurisdiction to entertain the appeal. That being so, the High Court has no jurisdiction to consider the matter and has no jurisdiction to apply S. 21, Civil P.C. If the High Court finds that the Court has no jurisdiction under the Letters Patent, S. 21, Civil P.C., cannot give it jurisdiction. 40 C.W.N. 65=164 Ind. Cas. 907.

——Cl. 12—High Court—Original Side—Limited territorial jurisdiction—Fictitious entry in mortgage—Not effective to give jurisdiction—Decree of High Court—Nullity.

The High Court in its original side, is a court of limited territorial jurisdiction. Consequently, it has no jurisdiction to try a suit on a mortgage if the parties thereto included a fictitious item of property situate in the city of Calcutta, merely with a view to give jurisdiction to the Registrar of Calcutta and the properties really intended to be mortgaged were situate wholly outside the limits of the original jurisdiction of the High Court. Where in a suit on such a mortgage, the Court allowed the description of the property to be amended so as to substitute an actually existing property within its jurisdiction for the fictitious item and then passed a decree. Held, that the decision that the High Court had jurisdiction, being erroneous could not extend its limited territorial jurisdiction and neither the direction to amend nor the decree could bind strangers who had acquired title in the property before the date of the amendment nor render the registration valid. Quaere.—Whether such amendment was within the scope of the suit which was not one for rectification. 41 Cal. 972=41 I.A. 910=1 L.W. 1050=27 M.L.J. 80=(1914) M.W.N. 462=16 M.L.T. 6=18 C.W.N. 817=19 C.L.J. 484=16 Bom. ——Cl. 12—High Court on its original side to set aside decree of mofussil Court on the ground of fraud.

The High Court has jurisdiction under Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent. and Ss. 11 and 17, C.P.C., to entertain a suit to set aside a decree of a mofussil Court on the ground of fraud. The suit being one by a legatee under a will for the administration of her share in the estate, and for declaration that certain leases given by the executors to themselves could not stand as against her, is not a suit for land. 7 C.W.N. 353=30 C. 369.

12. Immovable property.

——Cl. 12—Immovable property — Mortgage decree.

A mortgage decree and an assignment of it are immovable properties. I.L.R. (1945) 2 Cal. 526=A. I. R. 1949 Cal. 549.

13. Injunction.

——Cl. 12—Injunction.

A suit for injunction with the object of preventing the defendant from taking movable property belonging to plaintiff and lying on land outside the jurisdiction of the Court is not suit for land outside the jurisdiction and the relief can be granted. A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 382=46 C.W.N. 522=201 Ind. Cas. 525.

——Cl. 12—Injunction when part only of the preperty is situate within jurisdiction.

The High Court may entertain an action in respect of immovable property, provided that a portion of such property is within the jurisdiction. Where, although but a portion of the estate regarding which certain declarations and injunctions are sought in an action are within its jurisdiction, the High Court has power to grant the same declarations and injunction as regards the whole estate. 12 C.W.N. 1065=I Ind. Cas. 514=36 Cal. 28.

14. Jurisdiction before 1908 C P Code.

——Cl. 12—Jurisdiction before 1908.

The jurisdiction of the High Court as is stood in 1908 when the Civil Procedure Code was republished depended upon S. 9, High Courts Act of 1861. It was to have such power and authority as Her Majesty may by Letters Patent grant and direct. 120 Ind. Cas 577=49 C.L.J. 212=56 Cal. 940=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 358.

15. Jurisdiction to pass decree in personam.

——Cl. 12—Jurisdiction to pass a decree in personam regarding property outside its jurisdiction.

Both in India and in England the High Courts, for the purpose of doing equity, possess jurisdiction to pass decrees in personam which may affect immovable property situate beyond the jurisdiction of the Court. But while this jurisdiction in equity is to be exercised at the discretion of the Court, the Court will act in compliance with limitations upon its discretion which have long been established. Moreover, the Court will not pass a decree in personam which indirectly affects foreign land unless the decree can effectively be enforced by the personal obedience of the defendant within the jurisdiction. It will not pass a decree that will operate in the Courts loci situs merely as a brutum fulmen (law which is not respected or obeyed.) 104 Ind. Cas. 721=54 Cal. 655=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 768.

——Cl. 12—Jurisdiction to pass decree regarding property outside jurisdiction.

The suit was for the construction of a will and declaration of the rights of parties under it and for a declaration of the plaintiff's immediate and absolute right to some movables, and immovables not situate within the jurisdiction of the court. Probate had been granted by the court to the executrix who was the chief defendant in the case. Held, that the suit was one for land within the meaning of S. 12 of the Letters Patent and was not cognizable by the High Court. Held also, that the test was not whether the courts of equity exercise jurisdiction in similar cases, but whether it comes within the terms of the section. 29 C. 315.

16. Leave to sue.

——Cl. 12—Leave to sue.

Decree against company having office at Calcutta obtained in Lahore—Petition in Calcutta for winding up of company on basis of decree—Suit for declaration that decree is nullity—Cause of action partly arises at Calcutta and leave can be granted under Cl. 12. A.I.R. 1943 Cal. 172=I.L.R. (1942) 1 Cal. 562=207 Ind. Cas. 581.

——Cl. 12—Leave to sue.

Where leave to sue under Cl. 12 is craved, particulars of the grounds upon which the application is made must be set out with sufficent clearness in the plaint, to enable the Court or its officer to ascertain whether leave is necessary or not, and the Attorney must ask for such leave when he presents his plaint for admission. 58 C. 418=A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 458=134 Ind. Cas. 538.

——Cl. 12—Leave—Effect.

Where leave to sue has been granted under Cl. 12 though persons living outside jurisdiction are made parties, until the leave is revoked, the suit will lie. A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 172=171 Ind. Cas. 652.

——Cl. 12—Leave to sue—Discretion in granting wrongly exercised.

The proper course for the defendant to take in a case where he maintains that the discretion of the Court in granting leave under Cl. 12 has been wrongly exercised is not to abstain from making any application to remove the suit from the file and wait until the hearing to make his submission. On the contrary, in many cases, the defendant should bring this aspect of aspect of the matter to the notice of the Court at the first possible moment, and his failure to do so. if it any way prejudices the position of the plaintiff, is a matter which may prevent success of his application. This applies only, where the Court has admittedly the discretion to grant leave.

But where the omission of the defendants to make an interlocutory application has not, in any way prejudiced the position of the plaintiff. and the case is one in which, if the Judge had applied his mind to the point, he would have refused the leave, the Court can allow the application, though made at the hearing of the suit. 40 C. W. N. 161=63 C. 435=63 C. L. J. 199= A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 349=163 Ind. Cas. 167.

17. Mortgage suit.

——Cl. 12 — Mortgage suit—Part of property within jurisdiction Termination of mortgagor's interest in that property prior to suit—Validity of decree—Collateral proceedings.

A mortgage was created in respect of a leasehold interest of the mortgagor in a property in Calcutta within the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court, besides other properties in the mofussil. An application was made by the mortgagee under Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent for leave to sue on the mortgage, which was duly accorded. An ex parte decree was then passed in the suit against the mortgagor. Before the institution of the suit the leasehold interest of the mortgagor in the Calcutta property expired by effluxion of time and thereafter they became monthly tenants of that property, which interest was determined by notice to quit. It was contended that, since the mortgagor's interest in the Calcutta property had terminated before the mortgage suit was instituted, at that time there was no mortgaged land situated within the Court's territorial limits and therefore, it had no jurisdiction to entertain the suit and consequently, the decree passed was a nullity, Overruling that contention;

Held, that the mortgagee's right to sue in the Court arose because the hypotheca included inlying land and the suit was a suit for land in respect of which the Court had jurisdiction to give leave to sue, to entertain the suit and to pass a decree. The mortgagee wat not concerned with nor was a party nor agreed to the termination of the mortgagor's interest in the inlying land. While such termination would prevent him from obtaining relief in the suit in regard to that land, nevertheless his inability to succeed in tha respect by reason of such termination did not change the nature of the suit which was a a suit for land and which was within the competence of the Court to entertain. The factor which enabled a Court to assume jurisdiction in a mortgage suit was the instance that the hypotheca was in respect of, or included, land in its territory. When there was no question regarding the genuineness of the inclusion of inlying land in a mortgage and it bona fide formed part of the hypotheca, subsequent termination of the mortgagor's interest in that land did not destroy the mortgagee's right to sue on the mortgage in the Court of the inlying land and did not take away that Court's jurisdiction to give leave to sue and to entertain the mortgagee's suit.

Per Ormond, J.—The question whether the Court had jurisdiction must be treated as having been raised and decided, rightly or wrongly, in the suit.

There was no inherent want of jurisdiction to entertain the suit and pass the decree, and the decree could not be re-opened collaterally in a fresh suit seeking to bring in evidence new facts not then before the Court. I.L.R. (1946) 2 Cal. 63.

——Cl. 12—Mortgage suit.

Part of mortgage property outside jurisdiction of Court—No leave obtained under Cl. 12—Decree is nullity—Executing Court must refuse to execute it. A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 496=I.L.R. (1942) 1 Cal. 149= 202 Ind. Cas. 193.

——Cl. 12—Mortgage of property outside jurisdiction—Suit, if can be maintained in High Court.

The High Court has no jurisdiction to entertain a suit on mortgage if the only property included in the mortgage is outside the original jurisdiction of the High Court; but if, in the mortgage, are included properties one of which is situated within the orignal jurisdiction of the High Court, leave under Cl. 12 might be granted. Where the High Court, when granting the leave, rightly or wrongly held that an item of property which was a admittedly situated within the original jurisdiction, was intended to be included in the deed of assignment which also created a further charge, it is not open in a suit under O. 21, R. 103, Civil P. C., based on that decree to contend that the decree was without jurisdiction on that ground, for it is open to the Court to determine as to whether it has jurisdiction or not to entertain a suit or proceeding, and if there is a judicial determination, the judicial determination assuming jurisdiction cannot be collaterally attacked. That must be held to bind the other party. Further, it is no concern of the third party to raise the contention as to real intention of the parties to the mortgage transaction and thereby to impeach the validity of the mortgage deed. 64 C L. J. 115=A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 88=41 C.W.N. 396=169 Ind. Cas. 913.

——Cl. 12—Mortgage suit on Original Side.

Under Cl. 12, in the case of a suit for land of which a part is within its jurisdiction, the High Court acquires jurisdiction over the entire suit provided that its leave is first obtained. When once it acquires jurisdiction to determine the suit, the decree that it passes is in no way different from a decree passed by the mofussil Court. An order for sale passed on the Original Side in a mortgage suit in respect of properties partly within and partly outside the original jurisdiction of the High Court attracts the operation of the rule of lispendens even as to properties outside jurisdiction. The fact that the decree was based on consent does not make any difference. A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 763=58 C. 598=134 Ind. Cas. 561.

——Cl. 12—Mortgage.

The practice of the Calcutta High Court for more than half a century has been to regard suits for the enforcement of equitable mortgage of property situate outside the jurisdiction as suits for land. 120 Ind. Cas. 720=49 C L. J 235=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 373.

——Cl. 12—Mortgage.

Mortgagee's interest is an interest in land. 117 Ind. Cas. 854=33 C.W.N. 44=56 Cal. 224=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 227.

18. Objection to Jurisdiction.

——Cl. 12 — Objection to Jurisdiction — Not raised effect of.

Resident of Calcutta lending money in Calcutta by cheque drawn on lenders account with Imperial Bank of India to non-resident foreigner—Suit by lender in Calcutta High Court (Original side) — Writ issued and defendant entering appearance without protest—High Court, held had jurisdiction. A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 291=I.L.R. (1942) 1 Cal. 253=199 Ind. Cas. 519.

——Cl. 12—Objection to Jurisdiction—Waiver.

A deft. cannot be held to have waived his objection to jurisdiction when the plaint alleged the cause of action to have risen wholly wtihin the original civil jurisdiction, if it afterwards turns out that a portion was beyond jurisdiction and no leave was obtained. 44 Cal. 10=38 Ind. Cas. 571.

——Cl. 12—Objection to Jurisdiction.

No leave obtained as to property out of jurisdiction —Objection as to jurisdiction can be taken for first time at appellate stage—High Court has no jurisdiction as to such property. 120 Ind Cas. 577=56 Cal. 940=49 C.L. J. 212=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 358.

19. Originating summons.

——Cl. 12—Originating summons taken out by executors of will who are also residuary legatees —Questions formulated arising in course of administration—One of such questions relating to division of residuary estate.

It is no doubt well recognised that a proceeding by way of an originating summons is a suit. But an originating summons taken out by the executors of a will formulating for determination by the Court questions arising in course of administration of the testator's estate, is not a "suit for land" within the meaning of Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent, although one of such questions is whether the residuary estate should be divided. In view of the fact that the plaintiffs have not been impleaded in the suit as residuary legatees but are parties thereto only in their capacities as executors, it is impossible to read this question as a prayer by the residuary legatees for division of the residuary estate. Having regard to the frame of the suit this question must be read purely as a question arising amongst the executors in course of administration of the estate and the suit is therefore nothing more than a pure administration suit which is not a suit for land. I.L.R. (1947) 1 Cal. 184.

——Cl. 12—Originating summons—Jurisdiction.

Ch. XIII of Rules and Orders of the Original Side (Cal.) must be read subject to the provisions of Cl 12, Letters Patent and it follows that the Court has no jurisdiction to entertain an originating summons unless it would have jurisdiction to make an administration decree with regard to the estate in respect of which relief by originating summons is sought. I.L.R. (1940) 1 Cal. 102=A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 354=189 Ind. Cas. 238.

——Cl. 12—Originating summons.

The expression "suit for land and other immovable property" in Cl. 12 means suits in which having regard to the issue raised in the pleadings the decree or order will effect directly the proprietary or possessory title to land or other immovable property.

Where the substantial objects for which the originating summons is taken out are claims inter alia that plaintiff is entitled to whole of residuary estate of the testator and that certain dedications of properties made debutter under a will is void and construction of a will is sought merely in furtherance thereof, the proceeding is "a suit for land," for if the Court determines these issues the orders made thereon will necessarily affect title to immovable property situate outside jurisdiction. 122 Ind. Cas. 197=56 Cal. 979=A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 258.

——Cl. 12—Originating summons—If suit.

A proceeding which is commenced by taking out an originating summons supported by an affidavit is a suit within the meaning of that term in Cl. 12. The term "suit" in Cl. 12 is not to be construed in a restricted sense. An originating summons is therefore to be deemed a suit. If the law were otherwise, a ready method would lie at hand for evading the limits set to the jurisdiction of the Court under Cl. 12. 122 Ind. Cas. 197=56 Cal. 979=A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 258.

20. Plaint—Amendment.

——Cl. 12—Plaint—Amendment introducing new cause of action—Leave to amend cannot be granted under Cl. 12.

Cl. 12 makes it clear that the Court's leave shall previously be obtained before it has jurisdiction to receive a suit for which leave is required. The grant of leave is a condition precedent to the Court having jurisdiction to receive a suit. The grant of leave relates solely to the cause of action set forth in the plaint at the time it was obtained, and is not available to confer jurisdiction in respect of a different cause of action which was not considered at the time. After a suit is filed no leave can be granted in respect of a new cause of action which is sought to be introduced subsequently by amending the plaint. The plaintiff relying on the new cause of actian must bring a fresh suit after obtaining leave under Cl. 12. A.I.R. 1946 Cal. 23 =225 Ind. Cas. 52=I.L.R. (1944)=2 Cal. 101.

21. Prayer for leave—Necessity.

——Cl. 12—Prayer for leave—Necessity.

Where, in a plaint, the plaintiff alleges that he institutes the suit with leave under Cl. 12, there should, strictly speaking, be a prayer that such leave be granted. A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 271=I.L.R. (1938) 1 Cal. 354=42 C.W.N. 371=177 Ind. Cas. 876.

——Cl. 12—Revocation of leave—Material considerations—Suit on negotiable instrument.

In considering the question as to whether leave granted under Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent ought to be revoked or not, the question of convenience is a material factor. But this does not mean that if on nice calculations the balance of convenience is on the side of the defendant asking for revocation it would be sufficient. The convenience of the parties ought not to be weighed in the delicate scale of the chemists. The nature of the suit must also to be taken into consideration; the question of comparative expenses to the parties also would be a material factor. Where a suit is based on a negotiable instrument the considerations which would generally be of weight would be material but it would only be a question of degree. I.L.R. (1948) 1 Cal. 122.

——Cl. 12—Revocation of leave.

Leave granted under Cl. 12 for the institution of the suit can be revoked when the facts are brought before the Court. A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 553=197 Ind. Cas. 331.

——Cl. 12—Revocation of leave—Application for.

An application to revoke the leave which had been gra ted for the institution of the suit under Cl. 12, Letters Patent and for stay of the suit relied upon an agreement between the parties in Gujerati to the effect that the parties had agreed to settle their disputes at Rajkot or Bantva. It was alleged that Rajkot or Bantva would be convenient forum as according to agreement the accounts between the parties were maintained there. English translation of the agreement, however, was not produced by the applicant in accordance with the provisions or R. 25, Chap. IV, Calcutta High Court (Original Side) Rules. The result was that both the parties placed before the Court their own conflicting translations:

Held, that before it could be decided whether the clause in question did contain agreement barring the jurisdiction of the High Court, the Court had to decide question of difficulty as regards translation of the document and the construction of the same afterwards. Consequently, in view of the state of things, the application to revoke leave and for stay of suit could not be allowed. I.L.R. (1940) 1 Cal. 497=44 C.W.N. 460=A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 236=195 Ind. Cas. 257.

——Cl. 12—Revocation—Application to revoke leave granted under Cl. 12.

Questions of difficulty and importance should not be dealt with by an application to revoke the leave under Cl. 12 and to stay the suit so as to take the plaint off the file. Normally the proper way to plead to the jurisdiction of the Court is to take the plea in the written statement and as a substantive part of the defence. I.L.R. (1940) 1 Cal. 497=44 C.W.N. 460=A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 236=195 Ind. Cas. 257.

——Cl. 12—Revocation of leave—Application for.

In an interlocutory application for revocation of leave to sue granted under Cl. 12, matters of difficulty and importance which require a meticulous consideration of facts and law and which are best determined upon the evidence of witnesses who have been subjected to cross-examination should be decided at the trial of the suit and not in the application.

Where a firm register kept in accordance with the terms of the Partnership Act shows that the principal place of business of the firm is Calcutta and a person brings a suit for dissolution of partnership in Calcutta High Court relying upon the entry in the firm register, the High Court has jurisdiction to try the suit and leave to sue in the Calcutta High Court under Cl. 12, cannot be revoked on the ground that jurisdiction of that Court is being attracted by adoption of a device. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 134=I.L.R. (1939) 2 Cal. 199=187 Ind. Cas. 356.

——Cl. 12—Revocation of leave—Application for.

Questions of difficulty and importance should not be dealt with by an application to revoke leave under Cl 12 and to take the plaint off the file. Such questions may be considered as preliminary issues after the case has proceeded to written statement. The proper way to plead to the jurisdiction of the Court is to take the plea in the written statement and as a part of the defence and except in the clearest cases, this procedure should be followed. If there is any serious point of limitation, it is better that it should be considered on the facts than dealt with ex facie of the plaint A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 146=35 C.W.N. 930=59 C. 150=135 Ind. Cas. 873.

——Cl. 12—Revocation of leave—Application for—Questions of fact difficult to determine upon affidavit evidence—If can be dealt with.

Questions which involve consideration of facts which are far too difficult to determine upon affidavit evidence, should not be dealt with on an application to revoke leave under Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent. 50 C.W.N. 624.

——Cl. 12—Revocation of leave—Main grounds for.

Where leave to sue has been granted under Cl. 12, the defendant can apply for revocation of the leave on the ground of want of jurisdiction. He is not obliged to wait until the trial and to take the point by way of defence in his written statement. The application to revoke should, however, be based on something better than a mere criticism of the clarity of the pleadings. In granting leave or revoking it, the Judge should go by the cause of action alleged.

Where, in the case of contracts, part of the cause of action arises within the jurisdiction of the Court the defendant cannot ask for revocation unless he shows that Cl. 12 has no application at all.

It cannot be said that the Judge, in granting leave, should not consider matters of evidence outside the plaint.

If a pleading is not quite in order, the reasonable thing for the Judge to do would be to order particulars to be given or to order an amendment of the plaint. He should not order the plaint to be taken off the file or withdraw the leave granted under Cl. 12. A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 659=58 C. 539=134 Ind. Cas. 65.

——Cl. 12—Revocation of leave—Proper time to apply for.

Where the defendant feels aggrieved at the manner in which the Court has exercised the discretion which it admittedly has, he should apply at the earliest moment and not allow what is prima facie a perfectly bona fide suit to proceed through the normal stages of litigation up to the stage of being ready for hearing and appearing in the Warning List before he makes his application. Where the application for revocation is made at the stage when the suit appears in the Prospective and Warning List, it cannot be granted. A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 230=40 C.W.N. 165=162 Ind. Cas. 234.

22. Suit for administration of trust.

——Cl. 12—Suit for administration of trusts.

The rules of English law do not bar the High Court's jurisdiction to entertain suits for administration of trusts. 62 C. 1062=39 C.W.N. 1154.

——Cl. 12—"Suit for" administration of trust.

If a suit is brought for the administration of a trust which inter alia relates to immovable property situate outside the jurisdiction of the High Court, and the only relief sought is that the trustee should be ordered duly to carry out the trust, the suit is not a suit for land. But if the relief claimed is not confined to an order for the enforcement of the trust, and the applicant claims, e. g., a declaration of his right to the possession of trust properties situate outside the jurisdiction, then the suit would be a suit for land, and the Court would have no jurisdiction to entertain it. 104 Ind. Cas. 721=54 Cal. 655=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 768.

23. Suit for declaration of dissolution of marriage.

——Cl. 12—Suit for declaration of dissolution of marriage—Parties marrying as Hindus one of them subsequently embracing Islam. [See: Fill up from Q. D. 1941—45. I.L.R. (1945) 2 Cal. 405= A.I.R. 1949 Cal. 436.

24. Suit for land.

——Cl. 12—Suit for land—Suit for specific performance of contract for sale of land—Equitable jurisdiction of Court to pass decree operating in personam.

A claim by a purchaser against a vendor for specific performance of a contract for the sale of land is not a suit for land within Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent. The Calcutta High Court has jurisdiction to entertain such suit when the land is situated outside the territorial limits, provided the suit is otherwise maintainable.

Both the Indian and the English Courts can pass a decree which operates in personam upon the individual requiring him to do, or to abstain from doing, some specified act, provided the party is within its jurisdiction so that the Court can enforce its decree. This jurisdiction is exercised when the Court is of opinion that, in all good conscience, the defaulting party should be compelled to do, or to refrain from doing, the specified act. There is no difference in principle between the equitable jurisdiction of the Indian and of the English Courts in this respect. I.L.R. (1947) 2 Cal. 113.

——Cl. 12.

Suit for land—Suit for specific performance of agreement for sale of land outside Calcutta—Jurisdiction of High Court. Copy Q.D. 41—45. I.L.R. (1945) 1 Cal. 47=A.I.R. 1949 Cal. 128.

——Cl. 12—"Suit for land"—Specific performance and damages.

A suit for specific performance of an agreement made in Calcutta to sell a tea estate in Assam and for damages, the agreed price under which had also to be paid in Calcutta, is not a suit for land within the meaning of Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent and the High Court has jurisdiction to entertain the suit, having regard to the fact that the agreement which it was sought to enforce was made in Calcutta. 70 Ind. Cas. 92=49 Cal. 670=27 C.W.N. 65=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 443.

——Cl. 12—"Suit for land"—Specific performance.

A suit for specific performance of an agreement to mortgage lands outside the jurisdiction, even if the title is accepted, is a suit for land within the meaning of Cl. 12 of the Charter. 66 Ind. Cas. 484=48 Cal. 882=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 328.

——Cl. 12—Suit for land—Suit by purchaser for specific performance of agreement to sell land outside jurisdiction of High Court.

A suit by a purchaser for specific performance of an agreement to sell land outside the jurisdiction of the Calcutta High Court is "a suit for land" within the meaning of Cl. 12, and consequently, the Calcutta High Court has no jurisdiction to entertain it. A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 593=I.L.R. (1937) 2 Cal. 644=176 Ind. Cas. 304.

——Cl. 12—Suit for land.

After person's death intestate, his brother taking possession of immovable property situate outside territorial jurisdiction of Original Side and obtaining letters of administration—Suit by son of deceased for possession, accounts and administration by or under decision of Court—Suit, held one for land and Original Side had no jurisdiction. A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 271=I.L.R. (1938) 1 Cal. 354=42 C.W.N. 371 =177 Ind. Cas. 876.

——Cl. 12—Suit for land—Suit not involving proprietary title, whether one for land.

For the purposes of Cl. 12, an originating summons is a 'suit.'

If the Court has no jurisdiction having regard to the subject-matter of the suit and the failure of the plaintiff to obtain the necessary leave of the Court, no consent, express or implied, on the part of the defendants can cure the defect.

A suit to have it established that under a deed on the death of the tenant for life the title to the immovable property no longer remained in the Official Trustee in trust for the sons but reverted to the estate of the settlor and that the property accordingly had become available to satisfy the claims of their creditors, is a suit for land though the plaintiff did not claim a proprietary title in himself. A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 651=58 C. 768=134 Ind. Cas. 436.

——Cl. 12—"Suit for land."

A suit by trustees under a composition deed regarding certain properties within the original jurisdiction of Calcutta High Court does not cease to be a suit for land merely because the properties have been entirely swept away by prior encumbrancers. 120 Ind Cas. 577=56 Cal. 940=49 C.L.J. 212 =A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 358.

——Cl. 12—Suit for land.

A suit for declaring a person as secured creditor of land is a suit for land and if the land in question is outside the local limits of the ordinary original jurisdiction of the High Court, the High Court in the exercise of its ordinary original jurisdiction cannot try the suit. 117 Ind. Cas. 854=33 C.W.N. 44=56 Cal. 224=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 227.

——Cl. 12—"Suit for land"—Share in sale proceeds of house.

The term "suits for land or other immovable property" is not limited to suits in which the plaintiff seeks to recover possession of land or other immovable property, but means suits in which, having regard to the issues raised in the pleadings, the decree or order will affect directly the proprietary or possessory title to land or other immovable property.

Where the claim is to a share of the proceeds resulting from the sale of an ancestral dwelling house outside the High Court's jurisdiction, the suit is not "a suit for land or other immovable property" within Cl. 12. 104 Ind. Cas. 721=54 Cal. 655=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 768.

——Cl. 12—Suit for land—Test.

The test whether a suit is a suit for land or other immovable property is not formal test but regard is to be had to substance of the suit. A suit for damages in respect of injury to land is a suit for land within the meaning of Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent and so if the land is outside the original jurisdiction of High Court the High Court cannot try it. 42 Cal. 942=31 Ind. Cas. 581.

——Cl. 12—"Suit for land"—Trespass—Wrongful breaking through mine and carrying away coal—Covenant to keep barrier between lessor and lessee—Cause of action—Suit for damages for erection of buttreses.

The venue of a suit on a covenant by reason of a privity of estate is local. A, an under-lessee covenanted to leave a certain barrier as provided in the under-lease. Subsequently, A assigned his rights or granted an under-lease to B, who granted an under-lease to C. The representative of the original lessor sued C for damages for breach of the covenant and for damages which would be caused to plff. erecting masonry buttresses to protect his mine.

Held, that there was no privity of estate between C and the plff. that C was not personally liable on the covenant and that the plaint did not disclose any cause of action against C. That the claim for damages for erecting masonry buttresses was a claim for land within Cl. 12. A suit to recover damages for breaking through plff.'s mine or land and carrying away coal is a suit for land or immovable property within Cl. 12 and is founded on the ordinary case of a trespass quare clausum fregit and necessitates the decision of the question of title as to the coal. 39 Cal. 739=17 Ind. Cas. 500.

——Cl. 12—Suit for land—Suit by lessee for land and for profits during his absence—Land situate outside.

A suit is not maintainable in the High Court by a lessee for possession of land, for declaration of the validity of the lease and for profits which accrued during his absence on conviction in a Criminal Court, when the properties, the subject of the lease are outside the jurisdiction of the High Court. 36 Cal. 59=1 Ind. Cas. 472.

——Cl. 13—Appeal—Refusal to revoke order of transfer under—If appealable. See Letters Patent (Calcutta), Cls. 15 and 13. A.I.R. 1948 Cal. 171.

——Cl. 13—Appeal.

The judgment of a Judge on the Original Side transferring probate proceedings to the High Court under Cl. (13) is not appealable. 100 Ind. Cas. 797=54 Cal. 126=31 C.W.N. 254=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 281.

——Cl. 13—Appeal.

An order of a Single Judge transferring a suit from the Small Cause Court to the High Court for trial is not a judgment within Cl 15, and hence no appeal lies from the order. 60 Ind. Cas. 963=47 Cal. 1104.

——Cl. 13—Ground for transfer—Balance of convenience—Matter for consideration—Threat of personal violence to litigant at particular place—If relevant.

Balance of convenience is neither the convenience of the plaintiff alone nor of the defendant alone but the balance of convenience of both. In determining the balance of convenience for the trial of a suit the Court has to take into consideration: (1) the convenience or inconvenience of the plaintiff and the right of the plaintiff to choose his own forum; (2) the convenience or inconvenience of the defendant; (3) the convenience or inconvenience of the witnesses required for a proper trial of the suit; (4) the convenience or inconvenience of a particular place of trial having regard to the nature of the evidence on the main points involved in the suit and also having regard to the doctrine of "forum convenience"; and (5) the nature of issues in the suit.

Personal violence to a litigant at a particular Court at a particular place or threat of such violence is also a relevant consideration in exercising the powers of the High Court under Cl. 13 of the Letters Patent. 85 C.L.J. 22=54 C.W.N. 189.

——Cl. 13—Grounds for transfer.

The plaintiff is the arbiter litis. He has the right to chose any forum the law allows him. But this right is subject to control under Cl. 13 of the Letters Patent. If the Court feels that for purposes of justice a suit should be transferred, the Court must do it.

In order to justify a transfer on the ground of balance of convenience, it is as a rule necessary that something more should exist than a mere balance of convenience in favour of proceedings in the High Court. The Court must be satisfied that either the expense or the difficulties of trial in the mofussil Court would be so great that injustice would be done.

Apart from balance of convenience there is another principle which is to be borne in mind. If the Court, taking all the facts into consideration, comes to the conclusion that the plaintiff in commencing an action in a particular Court has not done so on account of any legitimate advantage which a trial in that Court will give him but for purposes entirely foreign to that legitimate purpose then apart from any question as to expense or inconvenience not only has the Court jurisdiction but it is its duty to transfer the proceedings. 53 C. W.N. 261.

——Cl. 13—Petition for transfer from mofussil Court to High Court.

Where an application is filed on behalf of the plaintiff that he be furnished with particulars of various statements made in a petition asking for the transfer of a suit filed in a Mofussil Court to the High Court under Cl. 13 under the inherent jurisdiction of the Court, the High Court is entitled to interfere and direct particulars if the Court considers that a litigant is substantially embarrassed owing to lack of precision in a petition or affidavit:

Held, that when the application for transfer is heard, the defendants would be strictly held to the rule that it is not permissible to import new matter in an affidavit in reply; in other words, any relevant statement which could have been incorporated in the petition or furnished by way of particulars will be treated as new matter within the meaning of the rule and no attention will be paid to it if it finds a place in the affidavit in reply. 40 C.W.N. 913=165 Ind. Cas. 24.

——Cl. 13—"Purposes of justice"—Meaning of—Personal feeling of litigant—If relevant consideration.

The words "purposes of justice" in Cl. 13 of the Letters Patent are advisedly general and wide so as not to fetter the discretion of the High Court in any way. What are the "purposes of justice" and when "the said High Court shall think proper to do so" are questions better left to be decided on the merits and facts of each case. To define justice in this context as "a principle which regulates the distribution of things valued by mean" may not be as complete a definition as that statement would imply. Justice like the true diamond has myriad facets and nothing is so misleading as to see one facet for describing its totality. Manifestations of justice are as manifold as its concept and attempts to objectify its standards have never succeeded.

Personal feeling or private emotion or individual temperament as such of a litigant is not a proper consideration under Cl. 13 of the Letters Patent. It is only when there is a public sentiment in the locality in which the Court is situate against a litigant then the resultant "feeling" of that litigant produced by such public sentiment may be a ground for transfer. That is because such public sentiment in the locality creates an atmosphere of prejudice which may engulf not merely the Court trying the cause but may prevent witness and fail to secure fearless testimony and so embarrass trial and stifle justice. Then it will be one of the "purposes of justice" to remove such a suit from that Court under Cl. 13 of the Letters Patent. While the importance of securing the confidence of litigants in the fairness and impartiality of the Tribunal cannot be over-emphasised it has none the less to be stressed that the laws of the land have set up Courts of competent powers and jurisdictions which the mere temperamental prejudice or the private sentment of an individual litigant cannot be permitted to supplant. 53 C.W.N. 770, Expl. 85 C.L.J. 22=54 C.W.N. 189.

——Cl. 13—"Purpose of justice"—Meaning—Transfer of suit—Grounds for—Discretion of Court.

Cl. 13 of the Letters Patent confers a very wide discretion on the High Court in the matter of removal of suits. As the discretion given is so large, it is necessary that it should be carefully and judiciously used. The clause empowers the High Court to remove a suit whenever it thinks proper so to do in the interests of justice. The expression "in the interests of justice" means, to promote or advance the cause of justice. Justice is a principle which regulates the distribution of things, valued by men—awarding them to some, denying them to others. It is at the same time a principle whereby each man's worth is appraised. Justice gives to "every one that which is his". It is not a free gift from the Court. The subject of a civilised country is entitled as a matter of right to get it "freely without sale, fully, without any denial, and speedily without delay". The Court only appraises it. In doing so the Court must act and appear to act without partiality and without prejudice.

If the Court on a "consideration of all the facts comes to the conclusion that the applicant for transfer of a suit feels that he is not likely to have a fair trial in the Court from which he seeks the transfer it is the duty of the Court to make the order. In coming to a conlusion on this point, the question for consideration is what is the effect likely to be produced in the mind of the party and not in the mind of the judge. It is the feeling of the party that has to be ascertained, and it necessarily depends on the individual concerned, his temperament and failing, his interst and cirumstances. Far more than the convenience of parties and witnesses, more than anything that may happen at the trial, is the importance of securing the confidence of parties in the fairness and impartiality of the tribunal, which is next only to the importance of securing a fair and impartial tribunal. 53 C.W N. 770=84 C.L J. 313.

——Cl. 13—"Purposes of Justice" — Balance of convenience must be considered.

The question of a transfer of a suit from a Sub-Judge's Court to High Court "for purposes of justice" within the meaning of Cl. 13, Letters Patent, is to be determined by reference to the circumstances of each case, and the balance of convenience, having regard to those circumstances, is one of the matters for consideration. 105 Ind. Cas. 184=51 Cal. 607=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 791.

——Cl. 13—'Suit'—Meaning of.

Proceedings for the grant of probate which are contested come within the meaning of the word "Suit" within Cl. (13). 100 Ind. Cas. 797=54 Cal. 126=31 C.W.N. 254=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 281.

1. Amendment.

——Cl. 15—Amendment, applicability of.

The date of presentation of the second appeal to the High Court is not the date which determines the applicability of the amended Cl. 15, requiring permission of the deciding Judge, for further appeal, but the date of institution of the suit is, in each case, the determing factor. 113 Ind. Cas. 49=43 C.L.J. 150=56 Cal. 512=32 C.W.N. 1130=A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 640 (F.B.).

——Cl. 15—Amendment—Effect.

A second appeal came up for hearing before two Judges of the High Court on 9th February, 1928. The Judges differed in their opinion and the case was disposed of under S. 98 (2) instead of being referred to in pursuance of the proviso to 98, C.P. Code. The amendment to Cl. 15, Letters Patent, came into force on 14th January, 1928. Application for certificate under the amended clause was refused. An appeal having been preferred against this order:

Held, that certificate is a condition attached by the amending Letters Patent only to the case of a judgment of a single Judge and the right of appeal given in the case of a difference of opinion where the Judges are equally divided is dealt with in the amended Letters Patent by being deleted altogether. No appeal therefore lay from the refusal to grant such a certificate. 114 Ind. Cas. 403=56 Cal. 507=32 C.W.N. 1153=A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 819 (F.B.).

——Cl. 15—Amendment—Appeal—Judgment.

Semble:—An order of a Judge on the Original Side allowing or refusing an amendment except on terms is not a judgment within Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent. 45 Cal. 305=22 C.W.N. 611=47 Ind. Cas. 129.

2. Appeal.

——Cl. 15—Appeal—Difference of opinion in Divisional Bench.

Where appeal was heard by a Divisional Bench and there was a difference of opinion, the Senior Judge holding that the appeal should be dismissed while the other was in favour of allowing the appeal in part, and they held that as there was a difference of opinion and there was no majority varying or reversing the decree appealed from, the appeal should be dismissed;

Held, that against this decision an appeal under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent was clearly competent. 78 Ind. Cas. 679=51 Cal. 669=28 C.W.N. 637=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 855 (F.B.).

——Cl. 15—Appeal—Insolvency proceedings.

An appeal lies from an order by the High Court refusing to set aside an order for the examination of witness passed by the Registrar in insolvency under S. 36 (1). 66 Ind. Cas. 715=48 Cal. 1089=25 C.W.N. 750=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 58.

——Cls. 15, 36—Appeal—Dissentient judgment—Further appeal.

An appeal lies under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent from a Dissentient judgment that has prevailed in an appeal under the same section. 17 C.W.N. 308 =17 C.L.J. 206=18 Ind. Cas. 253.

——Cl. 15—Appeal—Orders under Companies Act.

An order depriving a creditor, who has a claim which he has long ago put in the form of a proof of debt against a company, and which the liquidators are willing to admit, of the benefit of the company's winding-up proceedings, is an order which deprives him, of a substantial and important right, and it cannot be held that such an order is not appealable by reason that it is not a judgment under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent. 103 Ind. Cas. 659=31 C.W.N. 894=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 689.

——Cl. 15—Appeal—New point.

Question affecting jurisdiction of lower Appellate Court can be raised for first time in Letters Patent appeal. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 528=71 C.L.J. 553 =44 C.W.N. 387=191 Ind.Cas. 39.

——Cl. 15—Appeal—Prob. and Admn. Act, S. 86—Difference of opinion.

Where the Judges of a Division Bench hearing an appeal in a probate case, have disagreed and a decree has been drawn up in accordance with S. 98 of the C. P. Code, an appeal lies under Cl. 15. 22 C.L.J. 298=31 Ind. Cas. 319.

——Cl. 15—Appeal—Scope.

In an appeal under Cl. 15, the Court is not required to confine itself to facts and circumstances as disclosed by the judgment appealed against under Letters Patent but is entitled to look into the judgment of the lower Appellate Court. 34 C.W.N. 97=A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 321.

——Cl. 15—Appeal—Scope.

A Bench constituted to hear an appeal under S. 15, Cl. (3) of the Letters Patent is not competent to consider the question as to whether the decision of the Division Bench upon a matter upon which both the Judges were agreed is or is not right. 87 Ind. Cas. 653=29 C.W.N. 398=52 Cal. 546=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 598 (F.B.).

——Cl. 15—Appeal under—Whole case open.

Where in an appeal heard by a Bench of two or more Judges transactions, seperate, and independent, were involved, and the Judges of the Division Bench were agreed as to one or more of them, effect should be given to their view so far as they agreed. Though they disagreed as to the others, the whole case should not be dismissed. 31 C.L.J. 447=57 Ind. Cas. 226.

3. Applicability.

——Cl. 15—Applicability of C.P. Code.

The Civil P.C. and the rules made under it apply to an appeal from a Judge of the High Court. A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 35=39 C.W.N. 155=154 Ind. Cas. 1056.

——Cl. 15—Applicability—Contempt—Witness—Abuse, assault and intimidation of—Interference with administration of justice—Order of committal by single Judge of High Court—If made in exercise of criminal jurisdiction—Appeal—Competency.

A distinction has to be drawn between contempts of a criminal nature and contempts of a civil nature. Generally contempts which tend to bring the administration of justice into scorn or which tend to interfere with the due course of justice are criminal in their nature, while contempts in disregarding orders or judgment of a Civil Court or in not doing something ordered to be done in a case are civil and not criminal in their nature. A Judge dealing with a contempt which is criminal in nature is exercising criminal jurisdiction and a sentence passed in respect of a criminal contempt is a sentence passed in the exercise of the Judge's criminal jurisdiction.

Where a party to a suit abused and assaulted a witness for the opposite party in order to intimidate him and prevent him from giving evidence, and a Single Judge sitting on the Original Side of the High Court, trying the suit committed him for contempt the contempt was of a criminal nature and the judgment committing the party for contempt was passed in the exercise of criminal jurisdiction, and consequently no appeal lay from that judgment under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent. I. L. R. (1948) 2 Cal. 231=49 Cr.L.J. 379=A.I.R. 1948 Cal. 214.

4. Arbitration Act.

——Cl. 15—Arbitration Act, Ss. 11 (2) and 15—Order refusing to set aside award if appealable.

An order refusing to set aside an award is a judgment within Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent and is therefore appealable. There is no right of appeal against such on order under S. 104 (f), C.P.C. which has no application to the filing of an award under S. 11, Cl. (2) of the Arbitration Act. 45 Cal. 502=46 Ind. Cas. 687.

——Cl. 15—Arbitration Act — (IX of 1899) S. 19—Order refusing to stay proceedings.

An Order refusing to stay proceedings under S. 19 of the Arbitration Act for having incurred the forfeiture of the benefit under the section to applicant for taking part in the proceedings is a judgment and hence appealable under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent. But a deft. can claim an order before filing a statement to stay proceedings in a suit in which he has referred the matters in dispute to arbitration but no steps in that direction have been taken. 47 Cal. 611=24 C.W.N. 612=58 Ind. Cas. 755.

5. Insolvency jurisdiction of High Court.

——Cl. 15—Insolvency Jurisdiction of High Court—Order for costs—Contempt proceedings.

The High Court, in exercising the insolvency jurisdiction, exercises it as a part of its ordinary jurisdiction with which it is vested by law. The order in insolvency jurisdiction by the High Court is a judgment of the High Court, and a suit based upon such judgment is maintainable. Though the practice is to proceed in contempt in respect of an unsatisfied order for costs, there is nothing to prevent a suit. 33 C. 560=9 C.W.N. 952.

6. Judgment—Meaning.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Meaning.

"Judgment" in Cl. 15 should not be read as meaning only "decree" and not as a final "order". (1933) A.L.J. 127=A.I.R. 1933 All. 262=55 A. 326 =142 Ind. Cas. 331 (F.B.).

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Meaning.

The term 'Judgment,' in Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent means "decrees or order"; consequently, an order of dismissal of an appeal without investigation of the merits, may be judgment whether an order dismissing an appeal presented out of time is a judgment. 28 C.L.J. 20=47 Ind. Cas. 677.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Meaning—Appeal—What questions open.

The term 'Judgment' in Cl. 15 means the sentence of law pronounced by the Court. An appeal under Cl. 15 is deemed to be preferred against the decree and all the points necessary to be investigated for the determination of the question of the correctness of the decree, are open for consideration, though the Court as a Court of appeal will be slow to take, on questions of fact, a view contrary to the concurrent opinion of the trial Judge and the Judges, of the division Bench. 22 C. L. J. 452=20 C.W.N. 210= 32 Ind. Cas. 468.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Meaning.

Per Mukerjee, J.—'Judgment' in Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent, signifies what is now termed 'decree' or 'order'. 22 C.L.J. 525=31 Ind. Cas. 965.

7. Judgment—What is.

——Cl. 15 — 'Judgment' — What is—Order for winding up.

An order for winding up is a 'judgment' within Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent and it can only be questioned by an appeal initiated or brought before the appropriate Court in the manner prescribed for an appeal and a summons to set it aside cannot be deemed or treated as an appeal. I.L.R. (1948) 2 Cal. 503=52 C.W.N. 534=A.I.R. 1949 Cal. 69=1949 Comp. C. 61.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is—Order refusing to appoint Receiver.

As an order refusing an application for the appointment of a Receiver based on a provision in the indenture of hypothecation that on a breach of any one of the covenants contained therein the plaintiff's assignor would be entitled to have a Receiver appointed the order has determined a right which is one of the matters in the controversy itself, and so is a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 15. A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 35=39 C.W.N. 155 =154 Ind. Cas. 1056.

——Cl. 15—'Judgment'—What is — Refusal to discharge receiver.

Order refusing to discharge receiver appointed in suit for partition on basis of intestacy subsequent to grant of probate to executor, is a judgment and so appealable under Letters Patent. 52 C.L.J. 66=A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 803.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is—Orders under S. 9 and S. 61, Insurance Act, are judgments.

An order under S. 9, Insurance Act directing the refund of the deposits under S. 7 finally determines the right of the insurer to get refund and the liability of the Reserve Bank of India to refund the deposit under S. 7. It is, therefore, a 'judgment' within the meaning of Cl. 15.

An order under S. 61, Cls. (1) and (2), Insurance Act, reducing the amount of the insurance contracts finally determines the rights of the policy-holders under policy contracts and the liability of the insurance company; under these contracts. These orders, therefore are "judgments" within the meaning of Cl. 15. A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 578= I.L.R. (1942) 2 Cal. 85=46 C.W.N. 441=204 Ind. Cas. 175.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is.

A judgment of the High Court in a case under the Land Acquisition Act, is a 'judgment' within the meaning of Cl. 15, and is appealable. 40 C.W.N. 1143=AI.R. 1936 Cal. 688=64 C.L.J. 503=I.L.R. (1937) 1 Cal. 699=168 Ind. Cas. 352.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is.

An order refusing to stay a suit to which the provisions of S. 10, Civil P.C., apply is a judgment within Cl. 15 and is appealable. A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 1=61 C. 670=38 C.W.N. 818=154 Ind. Cas. 645.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is—Order granting leave to suitor to a change of Attorney without providing for payment of his costs.

Where, by an order, leave is granted to a suitor to a change of Attorney without providing for the Attorney's costs, the Attorney not having discharged himself, the order is appealable under Cl. 15, as the rights of the Attorney are determined by the order. A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 58=60 C. 1273=37 C.W.N. 998=147 Ind. Cas. 1064.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is.

Quaere.—Whether an order in the claim case is a judgment' within the meaning of the Letters Patent. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 715=37 C.W.N. 641=60 C. 914=147 Ind. Cas. 359.

——Cl. 15—'Judgment', what is.

The right of the appeal to the High Court depends upon Cl. 15 and whether or not the decision of the learned Judge appealed from is a judgment, depends upon whether or not so far as he is concerned he finally decided the rights of the parties as regards the question on which the appeal is based. 57 Cal. 736=A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 623.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is.

Where the order was that upon security for a certain amount being given within a certain time, the defendants should have leave to defend, but that in default of the defendants giving security within the time aforesaid, a decree was to be drawn up.

Held, that it was a judgment within Cl. 15. 96 Ind. Cas. 839=30 C.W.N. 298=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 668.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is.

An order dismissing a suit for want of prosecution under R. 36, Chapter X of the High Court Original Side Rules is a "judgment" within the meaning of Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent and is appealable. 81 Ind. Cas. 1048=51 Cal. 905=28 C.W.N. 916=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 1025.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is.

A decision which sets aside an abatement is a "judgment" within the meaning of Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent, and is therefore appealable. 67 Ind. Cas. 917=49 Cal. 62=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 335.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is—Order rejecting application for judgment on admissions.

An order rejecting an application for judgment on admissions is a judgment within Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent and is appealable. 23 C.W.N. 1017=54 Ind. Cas. 836.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is—Sanction—Cr. P. Code, S. 195.

An order of a Judge of the High Court remanding a case to the Small Cause Judge who refused to grant a sanction under S. 195, Cr. P. Code, to make a further investigation and pass orders thereon, is a "Judgment" within the meaning of Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent and as such is appealable. 44 Cal. 816=21 C.W.N. 209=25 C.L.J. 193=18 Cr. L.J. 497=39 Ind. Cas. 465.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is.

A decision that a suit being open to the objection of multifariousness cannot be entertained as framed is a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 15. (Per Mookerjee, J.)—The true test to be applied in the solution of the question of the competence of an appeal under the Letters Patent from an adjudication is, not the form of the adjudication but its real effect on the suit or proceeding in which it has been made. Whatever the form of adjudication may be if it puts an end to the suit, so far as the trial Court is concerned the adjudication is a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 15. 45 Cal. 111=21 C.W.N. 794=27 C.L.J. 158=41 Ind. Cas. 944.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is.

To decide whether an adjudication is a judgment within Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent the test is not what the form of the adjudication is but what is its effect on the suit or proceeding in which it is made. If its effect, whatever its form and whatever the nature of the application on which it is made is to put an end to the suit or proceeding, so far as the Court before which the suit or proceeding is pending is concerned, or if its effect, if it is not complied with is to put an end to the suit or proceeding, the adjudication is a judgment. A remand order nullifying the benefit of the decree is a judgment. The expression some right or liability in the Judgment of Couch, C. J. in 17 W.R. 364 is not restricted to the right in controversy in the suit itself. 21 C.W.N. 921=29 C.L.J. 225=41 Ind. Cas. 250.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is.

Order refusing application for relief under Bengal Money-lenders' Act amounts to judgment within Cl. 15. A.I.R. 1943 Cal. 169=46 C.W.N. 605=206 Ind. Cas. 196.

——Cl. 15—'Judgment'—What is—'Criminal trial'—Order refusing to discharge a convicted prisoner from custody.

An order passed by a Judge sitting in the exercise of original criminal jurisdiction of the High Court, on an application under S. 491 of the Criminal Procedure Code, refusing to discharge a convicted prisoner from custody is a judgment within Cl. 15 of the Calcutta Letters Patent, and not being an order made in a criminal trial, is appealable under that clause. 6 C.W.N. 254=29 Cal. 286 (F.B.).

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is—Stay of issue probate—Order refusing.

An order made by a Judge of the High Court refusing to stay the issue of probate and the discharge of the Receiver appointed in a probate action is a 'judgment' within the meaning of Cl. 15 and is appealable. 5 C.W.N. 781.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is not—Refusal to revoke order of transfer of suit under Cl. 13.

An order refusing to revoke an order of transfer of a suit under Cl. 13 of the Letters Patent is not a 'Judgment' within the meaning of Cl. 15 and hence not appealable. A.I.R. 1948 Cal. 171.

8. Judgment—What is not.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is not.

The opinion of a judge taken under Ch. XXVI, R. 50 of the High Court Rules (O.S.) by way of a special report in a pending case is not a judgment and no appeal lies under Cl. 15 against it. 40 C.W.N. 1264=I.L.R. (1937) 1 Cal. 149.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is not.

The judgment given upon a case stated by the Commissioner of Income-tax under S. 66 (2) of the Income-tax Act, 1922 is merely advisory, made by the Court in the exercise of its consultative jurisdiction, and is not a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent. 87 Ind. Cas. 653=29 C.W.N. 398=52 Cal. 546=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 598 (F.B.).

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is not.

No appeal lies against an order directing that the Registrar might be at liberty to sell the mortgaged properties without reserve. When a step is taken in carrying out the directions contained in the final decree to bring the properties to a speedy sale, nothing in the nature of the rights of the parties is determined. A. I. R. 1933 Cal. 504=60 C. 506=145 Ind. Cas. 318.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is not—Order admitting appeal filed after limitation.

The mere circumstance that an order puts in peril the finality of a decision given in a person's favour does not of itself make that order a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 15, Letters Patent. A decision under S. 5, Limitation Act, admitting an appeal after the period of limitation prescribed merely declares that an appeal is entertainable. It is not a "judgment" and no appeal lies against it under Cl. 15. 114 Ind. Cas. 88=32 C.W.N. 935=56 Cal. 135=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 214 (F.B.).

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is not.

An order under S. 195, Companies Act, made by a Court directing the directors of a company to appear before the Court for examination as to their dealings in respect of the affairs of a company is not a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 15, Letters Patent (Calcutta) and therefore is not appealable. 109 Ind. Cas. 764=55 Cal. 262=A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 295.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is not.

Order giving unconditional leave to defend on a summons under Chap. 13-A of the Original Side Rules is not a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent. For deciding whether an order is a judgment or not, each case must be decided on its own facts and the nature of the order. 96 Ind. Cas. 182=53 Cal. 776=30 C.W.N. 706=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 842.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is not.

An order setting aside ex parte decree and the execution proceedings consequent thereon, on the ground that summons was not duly served, is not a "judgment" within Cl. 15 and is not, therefore, appealable. 91 Ind. Cas. 965=30 C. W. N. 104=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 327.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is not—Suit on behalf of a lunatic—Application to take plaint off the file—Dismissal—Order of, is not a "judgment."

Where in a suit instituted on behalf of a lunatic defendant applied for plaint being taken off the file or for an inquiry whether it was properly instituted and whether it was for the benefit of the lunatic and the trial Judge dismissed the application on the ground that on evidence before him that can be given upon a mere interlocutory application, he was not prepared to hold that the suit was mala fide or entirely unsubstantial so that there would be an abuse of the process of Court and the defendant appealed under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent,

Held, that the order dismissing the application was not a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 15, Letters Patent, as it does not determine right or of the liability affecting the merits of the controversy between the parties. 69 Ind. Cas. 915=26 C.W.N. 242=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 172.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is not—Order refusing to issue commission to examine witnesses.

No appeal lies from an order refusing to issue Commission for the examination of witnesses, as the order is not a "Judgment". 31 C.L.J. 162=55 Ind. Cas. 766.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is not—Order refusing leave to file written statement—Appeal.

An order of a single Judge of the original side of the High Court refusing leave to file a written statement after the expiry of the time allowed is not a judgment and therefore not open to appeal under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent. 45 Cal. 818=49 Ind. Cas. 120.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is not.

Order refusing application for reveiew is not a judgment and no appeal lies. 9 O.W.N. 502.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—What is not.

Order refusing to enlarge time for preferring an appeal is not a judgment and no appeal lies. 10 C.W.N. 986=3 C.L.J. 545=33 Cal. 1323.

9. Leave—If can be granted ex parte.

——Cl. 15—Leave—If can be given ex parte.

Leave to appeal under Cl. 15 can be granted ex-parte. A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 606=75 C.L.J. 419=I.L.R. (1942) 1 Cal. 403=46 C.W.N. 131=203 Ind. Cas. 580.

10. Orders in revision.

——Cl. 15—Orders in revision.

The orders which are made non-appealable are all orders made in the exercise of revisional jurisdiction and an appeal cannot be maintained to test whether an order which purports to have been made in the exercise of revisional jurisdiction was or was not made without jurisdiction. 9 Cal. 482 (P.C.), Dist. 64 Ind. Cas. 689=34 C.L.J. 489=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 217.

——Cl. 15—Orders in revision.

No appeal lies against an order of a single Judge of the High Court on its Original Side, refusing an application under S. 115, C.P. Code for revision of a decree of the Calcutta Small Cause Court. 22 C.L.J. 40=30 Ind. Cas. 862.

——Cl. 15—Orders in revision.

An order discharging a rule issued under S. 115, C P. Code is not appealable under Cl. 15 of Letters Patent. 22 C.L.J. 113=30 Ind.Cas. 906.

——Cl. 15—Orders in revision.

There is no appeal against an order discharging a rule under S. 115 of the C.P.C. 22 C.L.J. 22=33 Ind. Cas. 247.

——Cl. 15—Orders in revision.

The order of the single Judge of the High Court interfering with the judgment of a Presy. Sm. Cause Court under S. 115, C. P. Code is a judgment within S. 15 of Letters Patent and is appealable. 41 Cal. 323=23 Ind. Cas. 977.

11. Order of remand.

——Cl. 15—Order of remand.

A decision of a single Judge of the High Court reversing in appeal an order of a Dt. Judge and remanding the case for rehearing is a judgment within Cl. 15. 27 C.L.J. 418=22 C.W.N. 627=44 Ind. Cas. 763.

——Cl. 15—Order of remand.

An order of remand for certain issues of fact only by a single Judge of the High Court is no judgment and hence not appealable. 2 Ind. Cas. 636 (Cal.)

——Cl. 15—Order of remand.

A judgment of a judge of the High Court sitting singly and remanding a case after dealing with the whole case and setting aside the judgment and the decree of the lower court is a judgment within the meaning of S. 15 of the Charter Act. 13 C.W.N. 105=4 Ind. Cas. 329.

12. Order under C. P. Code, O. 37

——Cl. 15—Order under C. P. Code, O. 37—Appealability.

An order O. 37, C. P. C. against a deft. to furnish security before he can defend the suit, is not appealable if it is that of a single Judge of High Court Original Side, under Cl. 15 of Letters Patent. 42 Cal. 735=22 C.L.J. 41=31 Ind. Cas. 238.

13. Restoration.

——Cl. 15—Restoration—Order making.

No appeal lies from an order made under O. 9, R. 9 restoring a suit, the order not being a judgment under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent. 69 Ind. Cas. 820=49 Cal. 616=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 407.

——Cl. 15—Restoration—Rejection of application for.

An order of a Judge of the High Court in its original jurisdiction rejecting an application under C.P.C., O. 9, R. 9 for restoring a suit dismissed for default is a judgment within Cl. 15 and is appealable. 43 Cal. 857=20 C.W.N. 594=23 C.L.J. 443=34 Ind. Cas. 634.

14. Review.

——Cl. 15—Review of judgment of Division Bench—Refusal by a Judge—Appeal.

An application for review of a judgment of a Division Bench of the High Court being rejected by a Judge the other having ceased to be a Judge, no appeal lies under the Letters Patent aginst the order. 25 C.L.J. 360=21 C.W.N. 852=41 Ind. Cas. 183.

15. Scope.

——Cl. 15—Scope—Single Judge of High Court hearing second appeal if can entertain application for extension of time for filing Letters Patent appeal.

A High Court Judge who hears a second appeal sitting singly, has no jurisdiction to entertain an application under S. 5, Lim. Act for the extension of the period of limitation for filing Letters Patent appeals. That is a matter for the Division Bench that may be consituted by the Chief Justice for the purpose of hearing Letters Patent appeals, and if there is no such Bench then constituted, it would be for the Chief Justice to constitute a Division Bench to deal with the application for extension of time. A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 606=I.L.R. (1942) 1 Cal. 403=75 C.L.J. 419=46 C.W.N. 131=203 Ind. Cas. 580.

——Cl. 15—Scope — Order refusing leave to appeal.

Whether an order refusing leave to appeal from a judgment passed in a second appeal be a judgment or not, it cannot be appealed against. A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 571=53 C. 342=134 Ind. Cas. 574 (2).

——Cl. 16—Civil Courts — Debt Settlement Boards are not Civil Courts.

Obiter.—Debt Settlement Boards are certainly not Revenue or Criminal Courts. They are tribunals which have been created by a special statute for a special purpose and are not Civil Courts within the meaning of Cl. 16. Further, they do not try suits of a civil nature and are not governed either by the provisions of the Civil P. C., or by the terms of the Bengal, Agra and Assam Civil Courts Act. They cannot, therefore, be described as Civil Courts. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 286=41 Cr.L.J. 662=44 C.W.N. 530=I.L.R. (1940) 2 Cal. 14=188 Ind. Cas. 686.

——Cl. 16—Civil Courts—Officer under Agricultural Debtors' Act—If Civil Court:

A special Appellate Officer appointed under S. 40, Beng. Agri. Debtors' Act is not a Civil Court within the meaning of Cl. 16, Letters Patent, which does not cover Courts set up by a special statute for a special purpose. The fact that the special officer happens to be a Munsif makes no difference. A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 688=42 C.W.N. 892=178 Ind. Cas. 172.

——Cl. 16—Civil Courts.

Civil Courts contemplated by Cl. 16 do not cover Courts which are created by special statute for a special purpose. An actual relationship between Courts and the High Court must be established. A special Appellate Officer appointed under S. 40, Beng. Agri. Debtors' Act is not a Civil Court subordinate to the High Court within the meaning of S. 115, Civil P.C. A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 448=42 C.W.N. 507=68 C.L.J. 407=176 Ind. Cas. 616.

——Cl. 17.

Court will not appoint a stranger as mere custodian of minor instead of as guardian. A.I.R. 1944 Cal. 433=I.L.R. (1943) 2 Cal. 554.

——Cl. 17.

Court can take into consideration opinion of child below 16 years while appointing guardian for it. A.I.R. 1944 Cal. 433=I.L.R. (1943) 2 Cal. 554.

——Cl. 17.

Agreement by parents to give their child to third person to be brought up by later as his own is void. I.L.R. (1943) 2 Cal. 554=A.I.R. 1944 Cal. 433.

——Cl. 17.

Soon after birth, care and custody of female child given to third person—For 14 years child brought up, maintained and educated by such third person at her own expense—Father should not be allowed to assert his natural rights, on the ground of welfare of child. I.L.R. (1943) 2 Cal. 554=A.I.R. 1944 Cal. 433.

——Cl. 17.

Boy brought up by father for first eight years—Custody and education of boy given over to third person—Father still paying for maintenance and education of child:

Held, that father could be appointed guardian. A.I.R. 1944 Cal. 433=I.L.R. (1943) 2 Cal. 554.

——Cl. 17 — Jurisdiction — Appointment of guardian of person and estate of minor.

Calcutta High Court can appoint guardian of the persons and estates of minors residing within the whole of Bengal Division of the Presidency provided they are British subjects. A.I.R. 1944 Cal. 433 =I.L.R. (1943) 2 Cal. 554.

——Cl. 17—Jurisdiction.

The Original Side of the Calcutta High Court has no jurisdiction to direct an inquistion or appoint a guardian of person or property in the case of an Indian not resident in Calcutta. 58 C. 919=35 C.W.N. 1045=A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 91=133 Ind. Cas. 188.

——Cl. 17—Jurisdiction—Original Side of High Court has jurisdiction to appoint guardian of person and property of minor.

There is no restriction in the powers granted to either the Supreme Court or the High Court which limits the exercise of guardianship jurisdiction to the town or to European British subjects and even if any such limitation exists, it does not apply where person who is outside the limits of ordinary orginal jurisdiction or who is not a European British subject desires to avail himself of the jurisdiction of the Court and there is no opposition thereto. 57 Cal. 533=A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 598.

——Cl. 17—Law to be administered by the Calcutta High Court in exercise of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction stated.

The Law that is to be administered by the Calcutta High Court in the exercise of its ordinary original civil jurisdictiion is to (a) receive, try and determine suits of every description as provided in Cl. 12, Letters Patent (1865), and (b) apply the same law or equity to each case which would have been applied by the Supreme Court of Calcutta, namely, rules of English law and rules of Equity of the High Court of Chancery in Great Britain subject to Indian Legislative enactment; but (c) in suits against an inhabitant of Calcutta in matters of inheritance and succession to lands, rents and goods and in matters of contract and dealing between party and party, apply, when both parties are subject to the same personal law or custom having the force of law, that personal law or custom and when the parties are subject to different personal law or custom, the law or custom to which the defendant is subject. A.I.R. 1946 Cal. 90=48 C.W.N. 513=I.L.R. (1944) 2 Cal. 201.

——Cl. 17—High Court of Calcutta—Ordinary original jurisdiction—Parties Jews subject to Jewish law—Contract alleged to be invalid according to personal law—High Court must ascertain what the personal law is—Jewish law.

The Calcutta High Court in exercise of its ordinary orginal civil jurisdiction could not, before the Government of India Act, 1915, administer any personal law other than the personal laws of the Mohammadans and the Hindus in certain specified matters. But since 1915 that High Court in exercise of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction has been empowered to apply all personal laws, i.e., of all communities but only in certain specified matters and in no other matter.

Where both parties to the suit are Jews and subject to Jewish law and the suit is filed in the ordinary original civil jurisdiction, if the defendant claims that the contract in suit is invalid by reason of the provisions of the personal law of the parties it is incumbent on the Calcutta High Court after 1915 to ascertain what that personal law is and what effect that law has on the facts of the case in general and on the contract in suit in particular. A.I.R. 1946 Cal. 90=48 C.W.N. 513=I.L.R. (1944) 2 Cal. 201.

——Cl. 17—Law to be administered.

Appointment of guardian of minor under Cl.17—High Court should follow principles adopted by Court of Chancery in England—Guardians and Wards Act, how far applicable stated. A.I.R. 1944 Cal. 433=I.L.R. (1943) 2 Cal. 554.

——Cl. 19—Decision according to justice and right—Duty of High Court.

Under Cl. 19 of the Letters Patent read with Cl. 14 of the Charter, the High Court on its original side must decide causes according to justice and right, when no specific law is applicable. I.L.R. (1948) 2 Cal. 119=52 C.W.N. 142.

——Cls. 22, 23, 24—Vakil's right of audience.

——Cl. 24.

Cls. 24, 29 Applications under Chap. XXXVII, R. 2, Crown Side Rules, for the exercise of the Extraordinary Jurisdiction conferred by Cls. 24 and 29 cannot be entertained on the Orginal Side of the High Court. 35 C.W.N. 1086=A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 394=137 Ind. Cas. 674.

——Cls. 24, 29—Crown Side Rules, Chap. XXXVII, R. 2—Jurisdiction of Original Side over Europeans.

The petitioners complained to the High Court against certain Police Officers of British India in respect of certain acts done by them in the French territory of Chandernagore. The petitioners did not obtain the certificate of the Political Agent or Local Govt. or sanction under S. 197, Criminal P.C.:

Held, (i) that neither the Extradition Act nor the British Foreign Jurisdiction Act had any application to the case;

(ii) that neither Cl. 24 nor Cl. 29 had any application to the case and the High Court, in its appellate side, had no jurisdiction to entertain the application;

(iii) that so far as the Indian subjects complained against were concerned, they could not be proceeded against without the certificate of the Political Agent, or the sanction of the Govt;

(iv) that as regards the Europeans who were resident within the ordinary original jurisdiction if any application lay at all, it must be made on the Original Side. 33 Cr.L.J. 322=A. I. R. 1932 Cal. 229=35 C.W.N. 1082=136 Ind. Cas. 598.

——Cl. 24.

Cl. 24 is the only clause of the Letters Patent which gives extraordinary original criminal jurisdiction to the Calcutta High Court. A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 123=35 C.W.N. 1088=33 Cr.L.J. 219=135 Ind. Cas. 880.

——Cl. 25.

The words in Cl. 41 "By any Court which has exercised original jurisdiction" have reference only to words in Cl. 25 "Courts constituted by one or more Judges of the High Court." A. I R. 1935 Cal. 477=39 C.W.N. 235=62 C. 389=36 Cr.L.J. 1211=157 Ind. Cas. 653.

——Cls. 25 and 26—Cases stated for opinion of Full Bench—Right to begin.

If in a Sessions trial the Judge convicts the accused but reserves the question of admissibility of the evidence for the opinion of the Full Bench, the Counsel for the accused should begin and have a right of reply before the Full Bench. Under Cls. 25 and 26 of the Letters Patent the Full Bench is not competent to order a retrial but should finally decide the matter on review. The Full Bench is not competent to investigate, independently of the evidence erroneously admitted, whether there was sufficient evidence to justify the verdict of the Jury. As it was doubtful whether a reasonable Jury would have found the accused guilty on the residue of the evidence, the conviction must be set aside. 47 Cal. 671=24 C.W.N. 501=31 C.L.J. 402=58 Ind. Cas. 929 (F. B.)

——Cls. 25 and 26—Certificate—Whole case open.

When points of law have been reserved or certified by the Advocate-General under the clauses and the High Court on review holds on the point of law in favour of the accused, it can consider the whole case on the evidence and pass such sentence as it thinks to be just. 44 Cal. 477=24 C.L.J. 400 =21 C.W.N. 33=18 Cr.L.J. 385=38 Ind. Cas. 945 (F. B.)

——Cl. 25—Procedure.

The initial step is for the trial Judge to reserve a point of law or for the Advocate-General to grant a certificate. The successive stages of the process which follows inevitably may be enumerated:—

(i) The Court reviews the entire case or such part of it as may be necessary.

(ii) The Court finally determines the point or points of law reserved or certified.

(iii) The Court thereupon alters the sentence passed by the Trial Court.

(iv) The Court passes such judgment and sentence as shall seem right to the Court.

The term "thereupon" must be construed with reference to the context; and it may, with good reason, be interpreted as equivalent to "upon final determination of the point of law reserved or certified in favour of the prisoner." It is not necessary that the contention of the prisoner should succeed in its entirety; if the opinion of the trial Judge on the point reserved or certified, which forms an ingredient of the reasons for conviction and sentence, is not supported, the conviction cannot be sustained, and it then becomes open to the Court to alter the sentences passed by the trial Judge. 81 Ind. Cas. 353=28 C.W.N. 170=38 C.L.J. 411=25 Cr.L.J. 817=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 257 (F.B.)

——Cl. 25 and 26—Right of appeal—Extent.

The right of appeal or revision in the case of trials on the Sessions Side of a High Court is limited, to the two clauses. 44 Cal. 723=21 C.W.N. 167=18 Cr.L.J. 311=38 Ind. Cas. 423.

——Cl. 26.

Original Criminal trial by High Court—Advocate-General carefully considering the matter and declining to grant certificate—No rule can be issued calling upon him to show cause why he should not issue a certificate. 63=Cal. 838.

——Cl. 26—Certificate of Advocate-General—Statement of trial Judge—Weight due to.

A certificate under S. 26 of the Letters Patent should reflect the judgment of the Advocate-General and must be granted in the interests of justice after a careful consideration of all the available materials. It must be in conformity and not in conflict with the statement of the Judge who presided at the trial. Once the Advocate-General grants a certificate the Court has to deal with the case. The statement of the trial Judge as to what took place before him is conclusive. 19 C.W.N. 653 =21 C.L.J. 377=16 Cr.L.J. 561=30 Ind. Cas. 113 (F. B.)

——Cl. 26—Joint trial.

Where a Judge in his discretion under S. 239, Cr. P. C. desires to try a number of accused jointly it is not a matter for interference on a certificate of the Advocate-General under Cl. 26 of the Letters Patent. A defective summing up to the jury unless it causes a failure of justice is no ground for reversing a conviction. 76 Ind. Cas. 966=25 Cr.L.J. 294=38 C.L.J. 309 (F.B).

——Cl. 26—Powers under S. 537, Cr. P. Code.

Per Rankin, J.—S. 537, Cr. P. Code is applicable under Cl 26 of the Letters Patent. 93 Ind. Cas. 33=53 Cal. 350=43 C.L.J. 310=30 C.W.N. 276=27 Cr.L.J. 385=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 470 (F. B.).

——Cl. 26—Procedure—Advocate-General must hear both sides—Allegation by parties must be verified.

Per Mookerjee and Richardson, JJ.—It is clear on the language of Cl 26, that the Letters Patent requires that the certificate should reflect the judgment of the Advocate-General and is presumably granted in the interest of justice after careful consideration of all available materials. If that judgment is founded on incomplete materials or inaccurate allegations, its weight is obviously diminished in a corresponding degree. In a case where the error ascribed to the Judge depends on the evidence adduced at the trial, it is plainly desirable that the notes of the evidence, as recorded by the Judge, should be laid before the Advocate-General when he was asked to grant the certificate. The requisite materials can always be obtained on application to the Judge. The Advocate-General must hear not merely Counsel for the prisoner, but also Counsel for the Crown before he grants the certificate. The allegations embodied in the petition to the Advocate-General should be verified by Counsel present at the trial or by other responsible person. 81 Ind Cas. 353=28 C.W.N 170=38 C.L.J. 411=25 Cr.L.J. 817=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 257 (F.B.).

——Cl. 26—Verdict of jury.

Per Rankin, C. J.—The verdict of the jury cannot be allowed to stand unless the High Court in review under Cl. 26 be of opinion that the same verdict would have been arrived at, had they been correctly and sufficiently directed. It is not open to direct retrial in such a case. 47 Cal. 671 (F. B.), Rel. on.

Per C. C. Ghose, J.—The word "thereupon" means that the determination of the point or points of law reserved or certified must be in favour of the prisoner before the Court can interfere with the conviction and sentence. If it be found that the opinion of the trial judge on the point or points reserved or certified cannot be supported it is not open to the High Court to direct a retrial. No doubt the High Court has power under Cl. 26 to examine evidence and determine for itself whether after the exclusion of the evidence or matter which may be considered inadmissible, the residue and the record are sufficient to justify the conviction. The Court will not substitute its own finding for the verdict of the jury. It must consider whether the evidence on record improperly admitted was of such a nature that it possibly may have considerably influenced the minds of the jury and whether it was reasonably certain that the jury would, not might, have acted on the unobjectionable evidence if the wrongly admitted evidence or matter had not also been presented to them. S. 537, Cr. P. Code, has no application to a case under Cl. 26. 44 Cal. 477 (F.B.), Appr. A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 470 (F.B.), Not appr.

Per Jack J.—The Court can, on review, examine evidence for itself and determine without reference to the probable verdict of the jury, whether, excluding inadmissible evidence, the residue is sufficiently justifiable for the conclusion. If the Court is convinced on the evidence that the accused is guilty, he should not be acquitted merely on account of a defective charge. The unanimous verdict of the jurors should not be set aside on the mere speculation that certain allegations might have influenced them to some extent when it is clear that the verdict is entirely justifiable by the evidence. S. 167, Evidence Act, is imperative and applies even to the decision of the High Court when exercising its powers under Cl. 26. 119 Ind Cas. 103 = 50 C.L. J. 106 = 33 C.W.N. 1121 = 30 Cr L. J. 993 = 1929 Cr.C. 228 = A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 617 (S.B.).

——Cl. 28—Scope.

Cl. 28 is limited to such officers and Courts as were subject to reference or revision by the High Court at the time of the grant. The Secretary to the Local Government of Bengal acting under Bengal Act I of 1923 in the Goondas Act even on the assumption of his being a Criminal Court does not come under Cl. 28. 83 Ind Cas. 500 = 51 Cal. 460 = 26 Cr.L.J. 20 = A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 698.

——Cl. 29.

Applications under Chap. XXXVII, R. 2, Crown Side Rules for the exercise of the Extraordinary Jurisdiction conferred by Cls. 24 and 29 cannot be entertained on the Original Side of the High Court. A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 394 = 35 C.W.N. 1086 = 137 Ind. Cas. 674.

——Cl. 29.

The petitioner complained to High Court against certain Police Officers of British India in respect of certain acts done by them in the French territory of Chandernagore. The petitioners did not obtain the certificate of Political Agent or local Govt. or sanction under S. 197, Criminal P. C.

Held, neither Cl. 24 nor Cl. 29, had any application to the case. A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 229 = 35 C.W.N. 1082 = 33 Cr.L.J. 322 = 136 Ind. Cas. 598.

——Cl. 29.

Cl. 29 deals really with transfer of cases and an application upon a complaint to the High Court to take proceedings against certain persons some of whom are not Indians and some are either Indians or else residing within the original jurisdiction of the High Court does not lie to the High Court under Cl. 29. 35 C.W.N. 1088 = A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 123 = 33 Cr.L.J. 219 = 135 Ind. Cas. 880.

——Cl. 29—Proceedings under S. 145, Cr. P. C.—Transfer—Jurisdiction of High Court.

Per Taylor, J.—The High Court of Calcutta has jurisdictoin under Cl. 29 of the Letters Patent to transfer a proceeding under S. 145, Cr. P. C. 28 C. 709 = 5 C.W.N. 749.

——Cl. 30—Law applicable—Criminal prosecution for damages—Statement in course of judicial proceeding by party thereto—No absolute privilege applies—Same rule applies even under Letters Patent.

If a party to a judicial proceeding is prosecuted for defamation in respect of a statement made therein on oath or otherwise, his liability must be determined by reference to the provisions of S. 499, I. P. C. Under the Letters Patent the question must be solved by the application of the provisions of the Indian Penal Code and not otherwise; the Court cannot engraft thereupon exceptions derived from the Common Law of England or based on grounds of public policy. Consequently, a person in such a position is entitled only to the benefit of the qualified privilege mentioned in S. 499, I. P. C.

If a party to a judicial proceeding is sued in a Civil Court for damages for defamation in respect of a statement made therein on oath or otherwise, his liability, in the absence of statutory rules applicable to the subject, must be determined with reference to principles of justice, equity and good conscience. There is a large preponderance of judicial opinion in favour of the view that the principles of justice, equity and good conscience applicable in such circumstances should be identical with the corresponding relevant rules of the Common Law of England. A small minority favours the view that the principles of justice, equity and good conscience should be identical with the rules embodied in the Indian Penal Code. (Case-law fully discussed.) 59 Ind. Cas. 143 = 48 Cal. 388 = 22 Cr.L.J. 31 = A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 1 (S.B.).

——Cl. 30—Offence under Penal Code — High Court must apply Penal Code only.

Cl. 30 of the Letters Patent which is now in force makes the argument entirely untenable that the High Court is not to administer criminal law as contained in the Indian Penal Code but is to engraft thereon the rules of the Common Law of England. It is indisputable that all persons brought before the High Court for trial in the exercise of its original criminal jurisdiction or in the exercise of its jurisdiction as a Court of Criminal Appeal, Reference or Revision, if charged with an offence under the Indian Penal Code, shall be liable to punishment under that Code and not otherwise. 59 Ind. Cas. 143 = 48 Cal. 388 = 22 Cr.L.J. 31 = A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 1 (S.B.).

——Cl. 32—Admiralty Jurisdiction—Extent of.

The admiralty jurisdiction of the Calcutta High Court rests on Cl. 32 of the Letters Patent of 1865 which continues Cl 31 of the Letters Patent of 1862. The effect of these clauses is to vest in the High Court such civil and maritime jurisdiction as might be exercised by the supreme Court as a Court of Admiralty, or by any Judge of that Court as Commissary of the Vice-Admiralty Court. The Admiralty Jurisdiction of the Supreme Court is defined by Cl. 26 of the Charter of 1774. It conferred upon the Supreme Court a jurisdiction of Admiralty "as the same is used and exercised in that part of Great Britain called England". A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 122=171 Ind. Cas. 513.

——Cl. 32—Admiralty Jurisdiction—High Court—Law applicable.

The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court, rests on Cl. 32 of the Letters Patent of 1865 which continues Cl. 31 of the Letters Patent in 1862. The effect of these clauses is to vest in the High Court such Civil and Maritime jurisdiction as might be exercised by the Supreme Court under Charter of 1774, Cl. 26. Assuming that the High Court in its Admiralty jurisdiction did not acquire jurisdiction over maritime necessities by any previous enactments such jurisdiction now rests on Ss. 2 and 35 of the Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act of 1890, which vests in the High Court the powers described in S. 5 of the Admiralty Act 1861. To oust the jurisdiction so conferred on the High Court under S. 5, it is not enough that the owners of the ship should be in fact domiciled in Br. India; this domicile has to be proved to the satisfaction of the Court. The Court when it made the order for arrest had prima facie jurisdiction to do so, and as the exception to its jurisdiction had not been established the order cannot be treated as coram non judice or a nullity. 42 Cal. 85=28 Ind. Cas. 463.

——Cl. 34—Calcutta High Court—Testamentary jurisdiction over Assam.

The Calcutta High Court has testamentary and intestate jurisdiction over Assam.

If a person dies in Assam, leaving properties in Assam, Bengal and the United Provinces, exceeding Rs. 10,000 in each case, an application for probate having effect throughout British India may be made to the Calcutta High Court as the Court having jurisdiction in Assam. In such a case, the Assam rate and not the Bengal rate should be adopted in assessing the ad volorem Court-fees. I.L.R. (1946) 1 Cal. 77=49 C.W.N. 695.

——Cl. 34—Grant of probate—Jurisdiction of High Court—Property outside local limits of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction—Succession Act, Ss. 2 (bb) and 300.

The High Court has jurisdiction to grant probate of a will, although the property which is the subject-matter of the will is situated outside the local limits of its oridinary original civil jurisdiction and the testator lived and died outside the local limits of the said jurisdiction. Under Cl. 34 of the Letters Patent, the High Court's jurisdiction in testamentary matter is co-extensive with the limits of the province. This jurisdiction cannot be said to interfere with those provisions of the Succession Act which confer jurisdiction on District Judges to grant probates. The exercise by the High Court of its testamentary jurisdiction beyond the local limits of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction is not exclusive of, but concurrent with the jurisdiction of the District Judge. S. 300 (1), Succession Act, does not require that any portion of the property should be within the limits of the oridinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court. Further, the definition of "District Judge" given in S. 2 (bb) of the Act includes a Judge of the High Court on the Original Side. A.I.R. 1950 Cal. 377=54 C.W.N. 225.

——Cl. 34.

Cl. 34 is not controlled by Cl. 11. I.L.R. (1943) 2 Cal. 554=A.I.R. 1944 Cal. 433.

—— Cl. 34—Jurisdiction under Succession Act.

Court exercising jurisdiction under S. 302 acts in pursuance of testamentary and intestate jurisdiction with which it is vested under Cl. 34. Letters Patent and not of its oridinary original jurisdiction. The Court is moreover not competent on an application under S. 302 to determine any disputed questions of title, the jurisdiction of the Court under that section being confined to the issue of direction to the executor relating to management of estate. 12 Bom. 638, Rel. on. 122 Ind. Cas. 197=56 Cal. 979=A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 258.

——Cl. 35—Scope.

Suit for judicial separation—Parties professing Jewish religion—Wife praying for order on her husband to pay her costs.

Held, that neither Cl. 35, Letters Patent (Calcutta) nor the Divorce Act applied to the case, but the suit came within the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court under Cl. 12, Letters Patent, and the procedure as regards payment of costs was that laid down by C. P. Code, of which S. 35 did not give the Court power to direct the order prayed for. 34 C.W.N. 319=A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 558.

——Cl. 36—Applicability—Assam High Court—Difference of opinion between the two Judges of that Court—Procedure—C. P. Code, S. 98.

Cl. 36 of the Letters Patent of the Calcutta High Court, which has been made applicable, with necessary modifications, by the Assam High Court Order, 1948, presupposes that the High Court consists of more than two judges. The necessary modification in the application of that clause would mean that so long as the Assam High Court consists of two Judges only that clause is, for all practical purposes, inoperative. Where, therefore, there is a difference of opinion between the two Judges who constitute that Court while hearing an appeal under S. 96, C. P. Code, the decree of the Court from which the appeal has been preferred must be confirmed. I.L.R. (1950) Assam 100=A.I.R. 1950 Assam 80.

——Cl. 36—Costs—Difference of opinion—Original Side appeal.

As regards the costs of an original side appeal, the Judges having differed, S. 98, C. P. C. is not applicable but Cl. 36 of the Letters Patent applies and the opinion of the Chief justice prevails. 24 C.W.N. 352=58 Ind. Cas. 421.

——Cl. 36—Difference of opinion in Bench.

In appeal from subordinate Courts a difference of opinion between two Judges forming a Division Bench is regulated by the provisions of S. 98, C. P. Code, and not by Letters patent, Cl. 36. 91 Ind. Cas. 897=52 Cal. 1018=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 121.

——Cl. 36—Difference of opinion—Criminal revision—Govt. of India Act, S. 107.

If case is outside S. 435, Cr. P. Code, S. 439 cannot apply to it and in such a case, either S. 36 of the Letters Patent applies or there is no law regulating the procedure. In the latter case the Court should act in accordance with the principle underlying S. 36 of the Letters Patent. 24 C.W.N. 97=31 C.L.J. 183=21 Cr.L.J. 25=54 Ind. Cas. 169.

——Cl. 36—Difference of opinion—Costs.

Where there is a difference of opinion on the question of costs, the opinion of the Senior Judge prevails under Cl. 36 of the Letters Patent. 18 C.W.N. 106=17 C.L.J. 75=16 Ind. Cas. 922.

——Cl. 36—Judges differing—Reference of case under Cl. 36.

Per Buckland, J.—On the question of the admission of the appeal, there are three courses open to the Judges constituting a Division Bench of two Judges: either to concur in rejecting it, or to concur in admitting it or to differ. If they differ, it is possible for the one to give way to the other. But that is a matter purely between the Judges themselves and it is not a practice in the technical sense so as to impose a rule upon the Bench. If one of the Judges will not give way to the other and they deliver dissentient judgments, the case must be referred under Cl. 36 of the Letters Patent to a third Judge to decide whether the appeal should be admitted. 61 C. 365=A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 633=152 Ind. Cas. 597.

——Cl. 36—Scope.

Per Suhrawardy, J. (Walmsley, J., contra).—To the extent to which S. 98, C.P. Code is inconsistent with Cl. 36 of the Letters Patent the former has by virtue of the power conferred on the Indian Legislature by Cl. 44 of the Letters Patent superseded or modified the latter. 88 Ind. Cas. 637=52 Cal. 894=41 C.L.J. 456=29 C.W.N. 755=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 845 (F.B.)

——Cl. 37.

If the rules of the Civil P. C., are contrary to the rules of the High Court made under the Letters Patent, the latter must prevail.

The rules made under Cl. 37 prevail over O. 3 R. 4 (5), Civil P. C. 59 C. 370=A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 1=35 C.W.N. 1100=135 Ind. Cas. 789.

——Cl. 37.

The High Court has the power under the Letters Patent to make rules inconsistent, if that be necessary, with the rules to the schedule to the Civil P. C. But until it does so, the Orders and Rules of the Civil P. C. apply to the Original Side. Any 'practice' of the Original Side inconsistent with the Code which applies, is contrary to law. Where a rule of the Code, owing to the operation of the rules framed by the High Court, cannot be applied exactly, it must be applied as reasonably as possible; where it can be applied strictly it must be so applied. 58 C. 510=A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 688=133 Ind. Cas. 587.

——Cl. 39—Appeal to the Privy Council—Remand—Account taken under order of Privy Council by an Appellate Bench—Order, a final decree of a Division Court—'Division Court,' meaning of.

Where the Privy Council remanded a case to the High Court directing accounts to be taken on a certain footing, an order made by a Bench of two Judges sitting on the appellate side, upon taking accounts as directed, was a final decree of a Division Court from which an appeal did not lie to the High Court under S. 15 of the Letters Patent. An appeal, therefore, lay from it to the Privy Council under S. 39 of the Letters Patent, when the amount in dispute exceeded Rs. 10,000. The expression 'Division Court' does not apply only to a Division Court sitting on the Original Side. Semble:—The case did not fall within Ss. 595 and 596 of the Civil Procedure Code (1882). 9 C.W.N. 566=32 C. 963.

——Cl. 39—Decision of High Court in Criminal Appeal.

The words "in any matter not being of criminal jurisdiction" in Cl. 39, govern all the classes of judgments; decrees or orders which are thereinafter in that clause mentioned and the High Court has, therefore, no power to grant leave to appeal to the Privy Council against a decision of the High Court sitting in Criminal Appeal from a trial by a Court of Session. 58 C. 344=A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 526=32 Cr.L.J. 1183=134 Ind. Cas. 544.

——Cl. 39—Final judgment made on appeal—Leave to appeal to Privy Council—Order allowing a party to sue "in forma pauperis".

An order passed by the High Court under S. 622 C. P. Code (old) deciding that a certain party should be allowed to sue in forma pauperis is not a "final judgment made on appeal" within the meaning of S. 39 of the Letters Patent. 8 C.W.N. 296, ——S. 39—Order on appeal—Order under S. 15, Charter Act—Final order', meaning of.

An order passed under S. 15 of Charter Act also is one passed on an appeal for the purposes of S. 39 of the Letters Patent. (21 W. R. 203, F, 30 C. 679, Dist.) 'Final order' in S. 39, Letters Patent means an order finally deciding any matter directly at issue in the case in respect of the rights of the parties. 13 C.L.J. 90=15 C. W. N. 848=9 Ind. Cas. 183.

——Cl. 41—Appeal to Privy Council.

Whether appeal lies to Privy Council from order on certificate by the Advocate-General was not decided as the Privy Council dismissed the appeal on merits. 85 Ind. Cas. 47=29 C.W.N. 181=1925 M.W.N. 20=3 Pat. L.R.Cr. 1=6 L.R.P.C.Cr. 1=27 Bom. L.R. 148=6 Pat. ——Cl. 41—Appeal to Privy Council.

In a criminal case the Court's only power to grant leave to appeal to the Privy Council is under Cl. 41. There is no help if any case does not come under its strict application. 82 Ind. Cas. 763=38 C.L.J. 406=25 Cr.L.J. 1371=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 338.

——Cl. 41—Appeal to Privy Council—Leave—Order under S. 118, Cr.P. Code.

An order of the High Court affirming an order under S. 118, Cr.P.C. whereby the petitioner was bound down to be of good behaviour and to execute a bond with sureties is not appealable to the Privy Council under Cl. 41 of the Letters Patent. 18 C.L.J. 119=14 Cr.L.J. 598=21 Ind. Cas. 470.

——Cl. 41—Bail.

High Court has jurisdiction to grant bail, especially when the High Court has declared the case to be a fit one for appeal, or when the Privy Council has granted special leave. 72 Ind. Cas. 362=24 Cr.L.J. 362=50 Cal. 585=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 64.

——Cl. 41—'By any Court,' meaning of.

The words 'by any Court' in Cl. 41, have reference only to the Original Criminal Jurisdiction of the High Court. Cl. 25 refers to 'criminal trials before Courts of Original Criminal Jurisdiction' which may be constituted by one or more Judges of the High Court, and it proceeds to state that it shall be at the discretion of any such Court to reserve any point or points of law for the opinion of the High Court. The words in Cl. 41 "by any Court which has exercised Original Jurisdiction" have reference only to the words in Cl. 25 'Courts constituted by one or more Judges of the High Court.' A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 477=39 C.W.N. 235=62 C. 389=36 Cr.L.J. 1211=157 Ind. Cas. 653.

——Cl. 41.

Quaere.—Whether an appeal lies to the Privy Council under Cl. 41 where the decision appealed from is upon a question reserved for the opinion of the Court by a Court of Original Criminal Jurisdiction or where the High Court declares the case fit one for appeal to Privy Council. A.I.R. 1939 Cal. 682=1.L.R. (1939) 1 Cal. 187=43 C.W.N. 133=41 Cr.L. J. 59=184 Ind, Cas. 614.

——Cl. 41—Contempt proceedings — If come within Original Criminal jurisdiction.

Contempt of Court proceedings do not come within words "Orginal Criminal jurisdiction" in Cl. 41—No leave to appeal to Privy Council can therefore be asked for. 63 C. 287=39 C.W.N. 823.

——Cl. 41—Contempt proceedings.

Per Derbyshire, C.J. and Costello, J.—Proceedings for contempt of Court do not come within the phrase "original criminal jurisdiction of the High Court" within the meaning of Cl. 41. Proceedings for contempt of Court are of a peculiar nature; though it may be that in certain aspects, they are quasi-criminal, they are not exercised as part of the original criminal jurisdiction of the High Court.

There is inherent right to take such proceedings in the Calcutta High Court by virtue of its position as a Superior Court of Record. The power of the High Court to exercise jurisdiction of a summary character in a case of contempt was conferred or affirmed by the Charter under which the Supreme Court was originally established; which power the Calcutta High Court has inherited. The power to punish for a contempt of Court is a power sui generis. It is not a power which is or can be exercised under the ordinary criminal jurisdiction of the Court. When the High Court, as a Court of Record, thinks it fit to exercise summary jurisdiction and under that jurisdiction, punishes for contempt of Court, it is not open to the person concerned to ask the High Court for leave to appeal to His Majesty-in-Council. A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 419=39 C.W.N. 770=36 Cr.L.J. 1053=61 C.L.J. 376=63 C. 217=156 Ind.Cas. 1055 (F.B.).

——Cl. 41—Conviction by Presidency Magistrate upheld by High Court — Petition for leave to appeal from the decision—Maintainability.

Where a Judge of the High Court confirms a conviction on revision from the order of conviction and sentence of the Presidency Magistrate, the order made by the judge is not made in the exercise of the original criminal jurisdiction, nor is it made in any Criminal case where any point or points of law had been reserved for the opinion of the High Court by any Court which had exercised original jurisdiction and hence a petition for leave to the Privy Council to appeal from the decision is not maintainable. A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 477=39 C.W.N. 235=62 C. 389=36 Cr.L.J. 1211=157 Ind. Cas. 653.

——Cl. 41—Criminal appeal—Difference between two Judges—Reference to the third Judge—Leave to appeal to Privy Council.

Under Cl. 41 of the Letters Patent no appeal lies to the Privy Council from the judgment of a Judge of a High Court on a reference to him on a difference of opinion between two other Judges of the same Court. 18 C.L.J. 121=14 Cr.L.J. 672=21 Ind. Cas. 912.

——(EAST PUNJAB), Cl. 10—Certificate of fitness of case for appeal—Who can grant.

Under Cl. 10, Letters Patent, the only person who can grant a certificate declaring that a case is a fit one for appeal is the Judge who passed the judgment and no other Judge. A.I.R. 1950 E.P. 288 = 52 P.L.R. 223.

——(LAHORE)—Original Criminal Jurisdiction.

According to the Letters Patent the Original Criminal Jurisdiction of the Lahore High Court is co-extensive with that of the Chief Court of the Punjab, which had no original criminal jurisdiction to try any person except the European British subjects. 115 Ind. Cas. 428 = 30 Cr. L.J. 460 = 12 A.I. Cr. R. 413 = A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 217.

——Original Criminal Jurisdiction.

Unless expressly prohibited by the Letters Patent to take cognizance of a certain offence the High Courts constituted after 1915 have the power to take cognizance of all offences which have been made cognizable by such Courts by the statutory laws in force in India. 115 Ind. Cas. 428 = 30 Cr.L.J. 460 = 12 A.I.Cr. R. 413 = A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 217.

——Cl. 8—Conviction of legal practitioner under S. 17 (1), Criminal Law Amendment Act, whether sufficient ground for suspension.

Where a legal practitioner has been convicted and he has neither moved the High Court nor appealed from the conviction, it is not open to him to ask the High Court to go into the merits of the conviction when called upon under Cl. 8 to show cause why his name should not be removed from the list of practitioners or attorneys of the Court.

In a proceeding under Cl. 8, the Court has to look to the character and position of the persons and judge of the acts committed by them upon the same principle as if the Court were considering whether or not a person is fit to become an Attorney, the principle on which the Court acts being to see that the suitors are not exposed to improper officers of the Court.

Being a member of an association which interferes with the maintenance of law and order, or is a danger to the public peace may well be considered to render a man an improper person to be a practitioner in a Court of Justice but it by no means follows that a man, who has committed an isolated act which assists the operations of an unlawful association, is necessarily such an improper person. Much would depend upon the nature of the act done and the particular operation assisted.

The mere fact that a lawyer assisted in the celebration of the Independence Day by a Congress Committee, in the absence of any evidence as to the nature of the acts done by him is no ground for punishing him under Cl. 8.

The fact that a legal practitioner had made a speech at a meeting organized by an unlawful association condemning the action of the Government in arresting a popular leader is not in itself sufficient to show that he is an improper person to be a legal practitioner.

Per Jai Lal, J.—Every conviction of a legal practitioner under S. 17 (1), Criminal Law Amendment Act does not necessarily attract the disciplinary jurisdiction of the High Court. 14 L. 532 = A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 577 = 143 Ind. Cas. 737 (S.B.).

——Cl. 8—Removal or suspension from practice.

A conviction under S. 17 (1) of the Criminal Law Amendment Act (14 of 1908) constitutes a reasonable cause within the meaning of Cl. 8, Letters Patent, (Lahore), for the removal orsuspension from practice of an Advocate or Vakil. Strictly speaking, proceedings under Cl. 8 are neither civil suits nor criminal prosecutions. The High Court exercises a special jurisdiction over legal practitioners in pursuance of the authority conferred upon it by the Letters Patent or an Act of the Legislature and has inherent power to apply such rules of procedure as may ensure a fair trial of the matter requiring adjudication. What is essential is that the parties concerned should have a proper notice and a reasonable opportunity to be heard. The propriety in law or in fact of the conviction cannot be questioned in the proceedings taken by the Court in the exercise of its disciplinary jurisdiction. Advocate or Vakil may be struck off the rolls for an offence which has no relation whatsoever to his character as a legal practitioner but the mere circumstance that he has been convicted of an offence does not make it imperative on the Court to remove or suspend him from practice. It is not necessary that the act of a legal practitioner which is relied upon for striking his name off the roll should have subjected him to anything like a general infamy or imputation of bad character. 44 Bom. 418 (F.B.); 49 Cal. 732 and 49 Cal. 845 (P.C.), Rel. 76 Ind. Cas. 385 = 4 Lah. 271 = 25 Cr.L.J. 161 = 6 L.L.J. 491 = A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 123 (S.B.).

——Cl. 8—Disciplinary action against advocate convicted of criminal offence—Legality of conviction——If can be challenged.

In proceedings under Cl. 8, Letters Patent, for disciplinary action against an Advocate who has been convicted of a criminal offence, the legality of the conviction cannot be challenged except perhaps on the ground of jurisdiction. If the conviction is by a Court of competent jurisdiction, it must be taken to be correct for the purposes of these proceedings, as obviously the High Court cannot sit in appeal in these proceedings on the merits of convictions for criminal offences. I.L.R. (1947) Lah. 150 = 49 P.L.R. 62 = 226 Ind. Cas. 470 = A.I.R. 1946 Lah. 338 (F.B.).

——Cls. 8 and 29—Order of High Court made under disciplinary powers—Expunging of remarks in judgment—Application to High Court for leave to appeal to Privy Council—If competent.

Orders made under Cl. 8 of the Letters Patent merely amount to the exercise of disciplinary powers by the High Court in respect of Advocates or vakils and do not fall within the purview of Cl. 29 of the Letters Patent. Consequently, an application to the High Court for leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council from its order made under its disciplinary powers or for getting certain remarks expunged from its judgment is not competent under Cl. 29 of the Letters Patent and S. 109-C, C.P. Code. I.L.R. (1947) Lah. 720 = A.I.R. 1949 Lah. 83 (F.B.).

——Cl. 8—Scope.

Under Cl. 8, no person whatsoever but an Advocate, Vakil or Attorney of High Court shall be allowed to act or plead for or on behalf of any suitor in the High Court. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 318 = 174 Ind. Cas. 239.

——Cl. 8—High Court's discretion to take action, whether can be fettered by the Local Government.

The Local Government have no locus standi in any way to fetter the discretion of the High Court to take or not to take any action under Cl. 8 or under the Legal Practitioners' Act, against any legal practitioner; the matter is one which is entirely within the discretion of the High Court and consequently, as the Local Government, is not competent to claim that action should be taken against any particular legal practitioner, it follows from this that it has no right or power either to abandon any proceedings or to condone the conduct of the legal practitioners so far as it comes within the purview of the disciplinary jurisdiction of the High Court so as to bind it in any way. 15 L. 354 = A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 251 = 35 Cr.L.J. 1010 = 36 P.L.R. 510 = 149 Ind. Cas. 764 (S.B.).

——Cl. 9—Transfer of proceeding in insolvency from the Lower Court to the High Court.

The word "suit" in Cl. 9 should be interpreted widely and the word "suit" in the Letters Patent does include a proceeding in the Insolvency Court. The Lahore High Court, under its extraordinary powers, has jurisdiction to transfer a proceeding in insolvency from the lower Court to the High Court for disposal. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 608 = 38 P.L.R. 235 and 1013 = 17 L. 582 = 160 Ind. Cas. 972.

(15) Miscellaneous.

(1) Appeal.

——Cl. 10—Appeal.

A decree or order passed by Single Bench of Lahore High Court on second appeal from the appellate decree of Subordinate Court is under Cl. 10, Lahore Letters Patent, appealable to a Bench of two or more Judges of the High Court. A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 169 = 44 P.L.R. 318 = I.L.R. (1942) Lah. 592 = 201 Ind. Cas. 468 (F.B.).

——Cl. 10—Appeal.

Order of High Court holding application under S. 235, Companies Act by the Liquidator maintainable—Order is appealable under S. 202—Aggrieved party can appeal to Division Bench under Cl. 10, Letters Patent. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 658 = 180 Ind. Cas. 254.

——Cl. 10—Appeal—Burden of proof.

Where the evidence has already been fully examined by a Judge of the High Court and is considered to be insufficient for the purpose of establishing the plaintiff's allegation, the onus lies heavily on the plaintiff in a Letters Patent appeal by him, against the decision to show that the conclusion arrived at by the Judge is legally erroneous. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 644 = 39 P.L.R. 293 = 173 Ind. Cas. 165.

——Cl. 10—Appeal—Refusal to set aside—Dismissal "for default."

It is only in the exercise of his appellate power that a Judge of the High Court can exercise his jurisdiction under O. 42, Civil P.C., read with O. 41, R. 19 and whatever order he may pass, it does no doubt affect the original appeal. When a Judge dismisses an appeal "for default," he confirms the Judgment and decree of the lower Appellate Court and in refusing to set aside that order, he declines as it were to re-open the case or, in other words, to withdraw his order confirming the decree of the lower Appellate Court. The order of refusal is therefore, made in respect of the appeal and in the exercise of appellate jurisdiction. The certificate required by Cl. 10 is, accordingly, necessary before an appeal against the order can be presented to a Division Bench of the High Court. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 815 = 156 Ind. Cas. 454.

——Cl. 10—Appeal—Refusal to re-admit appeal dismissed for default.

An appeal lies under Cl. 10 from the order of a Judge in chambers rejecting an application under O. 41, R. 19, C.P. Code, for the re-admission of an appeal dismissed in default. 89 Ind. Cas. 795 = A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 617.

——Cl. 10—Appeal—Refusal to set aside dismissal.

An appeal lies under Cl. 10 from an order made by a single Judge rejecting an application for an order to set aside a dismissal of an appeal. 3 Lah. 188 ; A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 380 and 43 Cal. 857, Foll. 71 Ind. Cas. 824 = A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 412.

——Cl. 10—Appeal—Dismissal of appeal.

A judgment dismissing an appeal against the appellant is not appealable. 77 Ind. Cas. 477 = A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 504.

(2) Certificate.

——Cl. 10—Certificate—Only the Judge who passes judgment has authority to make declaration that case is fit for appeal.

The grounds on which a review is competent are different from those on which a further appeal lies under Cl. 10 after the certificate has been granted by the Judge who had decided the case. Hence, when permission for appeal under Cl. 10 is refused, the petition cannot be treated as an application for review. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 330 = 16 L. 602 = 37 P.L.R. 708 = 157 Ind. Cas. 23.

——Cls. 10 and 26—Certificate—Declaration of fitness of case for appeal to the Privy Council—Whether should be made by the Judge who passed the judgment.

Clause 10 requires the declaration of fitness of a case for appeal to the Privy Council to be made by the Judge who passed the judgment sought to be appealed against. Clause 26 does not empower any Judge of the High Court to make the declaration in the absence of the Judge who passed the judgment. 34 P.L.R. 469 = A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 534 = 143 Ind. Cas. 141 (1).

(3) Final order.

——Cl. 10—Final order, what is.

After the passing of the preliminary and final decrees in a mortgage suit against father, the son brought an objection against the sale of his share, instituted a suit and got an order of stay. His suit was dismissed and he filed an appeal and, on the day the appeal came for preliminary hearing, a stay order was again granted on 23rd July, 1921, ex parte. The decree-holder then applied for the discharge of the stay order, praying in the alternative that security for the amount of the decree and costs be taken. The application of the decree-holder was dismissed on 24th March, 1922, and he filed an L.P.A. against this order on 1st May, 1922. It was contended that the order of the 24th March, was not a final order within the meaning of Cl. 10, Letters Patent.

Held, if that objection is acceded to, it would follow that the appellants would be bound by an ex parte order without power to question that order, Justice would be done by treating this appeal admitted on 15th May as being one from the order of the 23rd July, 1921, and extending the time within which that appeal would have to be brought. Justice will be met by allowing the appeal on the terms that security be given by the respondent for the full decretal amount without regard to the security of the property attached. 84 Ind. Cas. 24 = 5 L.L.J. 287 = A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 428.

(4) Finding of Fact.

——Cl. 10—Finding of fact.

An appeal under the Letters Patent is one preferred against the decree, and all the points necessary to be investigated for the determination of the correctness of the decree are open for consideration. But as a Court of appeal the High Court would of course be slow to take, upon a point of fact, a view contrary to the concurrent opinions of the trial Judge and of the Judges of the Division Bench. A.I.R. 1949 E.P. 349 = 51 P.L.R. 70.

——Cl. 10—Finding of fact.

In appeal under Cl. 10 of the Letters Patent the High Court can set aside the judgment of a single Judge who has interfered with an erroneous finding of fact in second appeal. 31 Punj. L.R. 381 = A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 144.

(5) Joint order by dissenting Judges.

——Cl. 10—Joint order by dissenting Judges.

Cl. 10 confers a right of appeal and that right is not extinguished simply because the Judges while considering the effect of their dissent on the result of appeal joined in making an order that the decree should be framed in a particular way.

There would hardly be any case in which the dissenting Judges would not be required to concur in an order disposing of the appeal in accordance with the opinion of the one Judge or the other. 93 Ind. Cas. 344 = 7 Lah. 179 = 27 P.L.R. 50 = 8 L.L.J. 13 = A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 65.

(6) Judgment.

——Cl. 10—Judgment in Cl. 10, if synonymous with decree.

The word "judgment" in Cl. 10 is not synonymous with decree. The clause contemplates orders other than judgment in a decree. Whether an order amounts to a "judgment" within the clause must be considered on the facts and circumstances of each case and the tests propounded. A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 95 = 44 P.L.R. 140 = I.L.R. (1942) Lah. 491 = 200 Ind. Cas. 652 (F.B.).

——Cls. 10, 29—Judgment.

The word "judgment" in Cl. 10 is not the same as the words "final judgment" in Cl. 29. A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 95 = 44 P.L.R. 140 = I.L.R. (1942) Lah. 491 = 200 Ind. Cas. 652 (F.B.).

——Cl. 10—Judgment—What is.

An order determining the forum in which the suit is to be tried, amounts to a judgment within Cl. 10 and hence, is appealable. A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 95 = 44 P.L.R. 140 = I.L.R. (1942) Lah. 491 = 200 Ind. Cas. 652 (F.B.).

——Cl. 10—Judgment, interlocutory.

The term 'judgment' in S. 10 of Letters Patent includes any interlocutory judgment which decides so far as the Court pronouncing such judgment is concerned whether finally or temporarily any question materially in issue between the parties and directly affecting the subject matter of the suit. 77 Ind. Cas. 327 = A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 185.

——(PUNJAB), Cls. 10, 29 and 30—"Judgment"—Interlocutory order—Stay of execution.

The term "Judgment" in the Letters Patent is a very wide one, having a not much narrower connotation than the definition given in the C. P. Code. 'Judgment' in S. 10 of the Letters Patent includes any interlocutory judgment which decides so far as the Court pronouncing such judgment is concerned, whether finally or temporarily, any question materially in issue between the parties and directly affecting the subject-matter of the suit. An order on an application to stay execution pending appeal, comes within the definition of 'Judgment' and so is appealable. 12 P.W.R. 1920 = 79 P.L.R. 1920 = 55 Ind. Cas. 933.

——Cl. 10—"Judgment"—Reference under Income-tax Act.

The decision of a High Court upon a case stated and referred to it by the Chief Revenue Authority under the Income-tax Act is not a final "judgment" within the meaning of Cl. 10 of the Letters Patent of the Lahore High Court but is merely advisory and not final. 88 Ind. Cas. 570 = 6 Lah. 30 = 26 P.L.R. 144 = A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 336.

——Cl. 10—Judgment—Refused to transfer case.

An order refusing to transfer a suit is a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 10 and hence is appealable. A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 95 = 44 P.L.R. 140 = I.L.R. (1942) Lah. 491 = 200 Ind. Cas. 652 (F.B.).

[Overrules A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 540 = 102 Ind. Cas. 843].

——Cl. 10—"Judgment"—Refusal to transfer case.

An order refusing to transfer a case pending before a Subordinate Court is not a judgment within Cl. 10 of the Letters Patent as it does not put an end to the proceeding before that Court. 102 Ind. Cas. 843 = 3 Lah. 681 = 29 P.L.R. 16 = A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 540.

——Cl. 10—Judgment—What is—Order registering decree as that of Revenue Court under S. 100, Punjab Tenancy Act, 1887, if "Judgment."

[Overruling A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 785 = 166 Ind. Cas. 292.]

——Cl. 10—"Judgment," What is.

An order passed in an appeal from preliminary decree restraining the trial Court from passing a final decree during the pendency of the appeal amounts to a "judgment" within the meaning of Cl. 10. 111 Ind. Cas. 274 = 29 P.L.R. 571 = 10 Lah. 132 A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 904.

——Cl. 10—Judgment.

Order directing the issue of notice to the respondents in Europe, which will have the effect of postponing the hearing of the appeal indefinitely, cannot be held to be a judgment. An adjudication on an application which is nothing more than a step towards obtaining a final adjudication in the suit or appeal is not a judgment within the meaning of the Letters Patent. However, making the ad interim order staying execution absolute constitutes a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 10. 93 Ind. Cas. 351 = 8 L.L.J. 35 = 27 P.L.R. 109 = A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 174.

——Cl. 10—Judgment—What is—Determination of question whether suit can be brought 12 years after mutation is a judgment.

If the effect of an order, whatever its form may be, and whatever be the nature of the application on which it is made, is to put an end to the suit or proceeding so far as the Court before which the suit or proceeding is pending is concerned, or if its effect, if it is not complied with, is to put an end to the suit or proceeding, the adjudication is a judgment within the meaning of the clause. But it is impossible to lay down any definite rule, and the only thing which can be said is that in determining whether an order constitutes a judgment or not, the Court must consider the nature of the order and its effect upon the civil proceeding in which it was made. Though a mere formal order or an order merely regulating the procedure cannot be viewed as a judgment, it cannot be held that the words "right" and "liability" were used in a narrow sense. The determination of the question whether the plaintiff is entitled to bring his suit after the lapse of twelve years from the date of the mutation is a determination of right, and the adjudication thereupon certainly affects the merits of the question between the parties. 67 Ind. Cas. 388 = 3 Lah. 188 = A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 380.

(7) Land acquisition cases.

——Cl. 10—Land acquisition cases—Judgment of single Judge confirming award of District Judge—Letters Patent appeal from, is not barred by S. 54.

The word "only" does not restrict the right of appeal but was intended to make it clear that the forum of appeal in Land Acquisition cases is always the High Court and not the District Court; and that it is immaterial whether the amount of compensation awarded by the Court of first instance does or does not exceed Rs. 5,000 and whether the Court of first instance is the Court of a District Judge or that of a Subordinate Judge or an Assistant Judge. It is beyond dispute that Cl. 10 of the Letters Patent gives in express terms a right of appeal and that right has not been impliedly taken away by S. 54 more especially when the section is merely an enabling section and was enacted in order to confer a right of appeal to His Majesty in Council. 69 Ind. Cas. 428 = 3 Lah. 420 = A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 275.

(8) Limitation.

——Cl. 10—Limitation—Forum and right of appeal given by Letters Patent—S. 12, Lim. Act, if applies.

An appeal from a judgment passed by the High Court in the exercise of its original civil jurisdiction whether ordinary or extraordinary, in which not only the forum of appeal, but also the right of appeal is given by the Letters Patent, is governed by Art. 151, Lim. Act which is subject to S. 12, Lim. Act. Hence in such a case, the appellant is entitled to exclude under S. 12 the "time-requisite" for obtaining a copy, whether such copy is filed or not. A.I.R. 1941 Lah. 257 = 43 P.L.R. 297 = I.L.R. (1941) Lah. 191 = 195 Ind. Cas. 452 (F.B.).

[Overrules A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 26 = 61 Ind. Cas. 327.]

——Cl. 10—Limitation.

Ignorance of law is no excuse for delay and therefore the fact that the appellant previously was under the impression that limitation was 90 days for a Letters Patent Appeal in Lahore is no excuse for not filing it within the 30 days period prescribed by the rules. 61 Ind. Cas. 327 = 2 Lah. 127 = 3 L.L.J. 415 = 74 P.L.R. 1921 = A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 26.

——Cl. 10—Limitation.

The period for an appeal under the Letters Patent is governed exclusively by the Rules made by the High Court, which provide inter alia that no copy of the decree, order, or judgment appealed from need accompany the memorandum of appeal. Ignorance of the rules or the fact that the period expired during the vacation is not an excuse for presenting appeal out of time. 60 Ind. Cas. 737 = 3 L.L.J. 361 = A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 237.

(9) New point.

——Cl. 10—New point.

A plea that the appeal may be taken to have been filed by the executive officer under S. 35 (1), Punjab Municipal Act which had never been advanced before cannot be permitted to be advanced for the first time at the stage of Letters Patent Appeal. A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 318 = 45 P.L.R. 365 = 211 Ind. Cas. 353.

——Cl. 10—New Point.

An objection that an application is barred by time is not purely one of law. It is a mixed question of fact and law and cannot be allowed to be raised for the first time in Letters Patent Appeal. A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 129 = 207 Ind. Cas. 561.

——Cl. 10—New point.

The plea that the subsequent mortgagee cannot claim the right of subrogation on the ground that the date on which he paid off the prior mortgagee, the prior mortgage was not subsisting as more than 12 years had elapsed from the date of the prior mortgage, depends on questions of fact and cannot be allowed to be raised for the first time in Letters Patent Appeal. A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 113 = 45 P.L.R. 143 = 209 Ind. Cas. 75.

——Cl. 10—New point.

The point that in deciding the question whether an alienation by a Hindu widow governed by custom was or was not for necessity, the amount of the income of the estate is irrelevant in the particular tribe to which the widow belonged, cannot be raised for the first time in Letters Patent Appeal. A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 200 = 44 P.L.R. 274 = I.L.R. (1943) Lah. 406 = 201 Ind. Cas. 511.

——Cl. 10—New point.

The point that there was a mistake apparent on the face of the record which was not noticed by oversight of all concerned and that it should be corrected, can be allowed to be raised for the first time in Letters Patent Appeal. A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 204 = 42 P.L.R. 7 = 188 Ind. Cas. 679.

——Cl. 10—New point.

Where the objection was not specifically raised before the Single Judge of the High Court, it cannot be allowed to be raised in Letters Patent Appeal under Cl. 10. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 555 = 166 Ind. Cas. 603.

——Cl. 10—New point.

The question whether abstinence, to sue, when coupled with other circumstances would or would not amount to waiver is largely, if not wholly, a question of fact. Such a point, when not taken before the Single Judge, cannot be allowed to be raised in Letters Patent Appeal. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 159 = 162 Ind. Cas. 673.

——Cl. 10—New point.

It is not open to a party to raise a new point in an appeal under the Letters Patent. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 685 = 34 P.L.R. 853 = 145 Ind. Cas. 416 (1).

——Cl. 10—New point.

An appellant is not entitled in an appeal under the Letters Patent to be heard on a point which had not been raised before the Judge from whose judgment he prefers the appeal.

A plaintiff, therefore, who distinctly states in the plaint and admits before the single Judge that his suit is governed by the Punjab Limitation (Custom) Act cannot be allowed to contend in a Letters Patent Appeal that it is not so governed. 31 P.L.R. 282 = A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 632.

——Cl. 10—New point.

The point not raised before the Division Bench who heard the appeal cannot be taken in an appeal under Letters Patent. 120 Ind. Cas. 284 = 30 P.L.R. 433 = 11 L.L.J. 425 = A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 536.

——Cl. 10—New point.

A new plea that the suit is barred by Art. 144 cannot be permitted in appeal since its decision would involve a finding of fact whether the appellant's possession was adverse to the knowledge of the respondent. 80 Ind. Cas. 321 = 6 L.L.J. 151 = A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 468.

——Cl. 10—New point.

In an appeal under the Letters Patent an appellant is not entitled to be heard on a point which has not been raised before the Judge from whose judgment he is appealing. 79 Ind. Cas. 281 = A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 151.

——Cl. 10—New point.

It is not open to the parties to raise in appeal under the Letters Patent a contention which was not urged before the Court from the judgment of which the appeal is preferred. 2 Lah. L.J. 1 = 11 P.W.R. 1920 = 28 P.L.R. 1920 = 55 Ind. Cas. 983.

(10) Parties.

——Cl. 10—Parties.

An appeal cannot be proceeded with if necessary parties to the appeal are not impleaded. 89 Ind. Cas. 298 = 7 L.L.J. 182 = 26 P.L.R. 150 = A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 392.

(11) Question of law.

——Cl. 10—Question of law—Whether from facts proved permanent tenancy can be inferred is question of law.

The question whether on facts proved an inference of there being a permanent tenancy or not can be drawn is a question of law and not a question of fact and can, therefore, be reconsidered even in the Letters Patent Appeal. A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 9 = 45 P.L.R. 339 = 211 Ind. Cas. 366.

——Cl. 10—Question of law.

Per Division Bench.—A contention based on a point of law which cannot be concluded by any admission that may have been made before the Single Judge can be raised in Letters Patent Appeal. A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 42 = 43 P.L.R. 689 = 199 Ind. Cas. 677.

(12) Rejection of petition under S. 491, Cr.P. Code.

——Cl. 10—Rejection of petition under S. 491, Cr. P. Code—Appeal.

A Judge of the High Court disposing of a petition under S. 491, Cr.P. Code, exercises criminal jurisdiction, and as such no appeal is competent under Cl. 10 of the Letters Patent from his order rejecting the petition. I.L.R. (1945) Lah. 573.

(13) Revision.

——Cl. 10—Revision.

No appeal lies under Letters Patent against order passed in revision. 94 Ind. Cas. 521 = 6 Lah. 250 = A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 624.

(14) Scope of appeal.

——Cl. 10—Scope of appeal.

When the plea of subrogation was not specifically pleaded but all the necessary facts were clearly stated in the plaint and one of the issues framed was comprehensive to cover the plea and the parties were fully cognizant that the plaintiff claimed priority as subrogee and the arguments were addressed on the point in the first Court, and in all Courts, this was one of the main points considered and decided, it is too late for the appellant to object in appeal under the Letters Patent that this plea, not having been specifically taken in the plaint, should be disallowed. A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 113 = 45 P.L.R. 143 = 209 Ind. Cas. 75.

——Cl. 10—Scope of appeal.

The use of the word "wherever" in Cl. 10 is not intended to confine the scope of the appeal to the point or points on which there is a disagreement between the Judges.

When once the right of appeal is established, the appellant can raise, not only the points upon which the Judges have differed, but also those on which they have agreed. 93 Ind. Cas. 344 = 7 Lah. 179 = 27 P.L.R. 50 = 8 L.L.J. 13 = A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 65.

(15) Miscellaneous.

——Cl. 10—Miscellaneous.

A memorandum of appeal cannot be put in at any time in cases where an order appealed from does not require a certificate of the Judge who made the order. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 328 = 37 P.L.R. 504 = 16 L. 448 = 156 Ind. Cas. 668 (F.B.).

——Cl. 10—Miscellaneous.

While hearing a Letters Patent Appeal from the decision of a Single Judge, it is open to the Bench to grant a stay when the Single Judge has not exercised any discretion in the matter and has not given any decision on the merits of the application. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 361 = 150 Ind. Cas. 985 (1).

——Cl. 10—Miscellaneous.

Though an appeal may lie from an order made by a Single Judge in the exercise of his discretion, the fact that the making of the order was a matter of discretion may be a good ground for refusing to exercise the appellate jurisdiction. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 881 = 14 L. 804 = 35 P.L.R. 98 = 144 Ind. Cas. 672.

——Cl. 10—Miscellaneous.

The order passed by a High Court transmitting an order in Council for execution is appealable 123 Ind. Cas. 277 = 31 P.L.R. 182 = 12 L.L.J. 93 = A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 674.

——Cl. 26—Applicability.

All cases of difference of opinion among the Judges composing the Division Bench are governed by Cl. 26, Letters Patent (Lahore) and not by S. 98, Civil P.C. since the addition of sub-section (3). A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 371 = 15 L. 425 = 35 P.L.R. 760 = 149 Ind. Cas. 575 (F.B.).

——Cl. 26—Applicability.

When the Judges of a Division Bench, of the High Court differ, even in the case of appeals from the moffussil, the case is governed by Cl. 26 and not by S. 98. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 648 = 34 P.L.R. 584 = 142 Ind. Cas. 427.

——Cl. 26—Applicability.

Where an appeal is heard by a Bench composed of two Judges who differ in opinion the decision of the appeal is regulated by S. 98, C.P.C., if the appeal is from a Subordinate Court under the Civil Procedure Code or any local or special statute. In all other cases the decision is governed by Cl. 26 of the Letters Patent (Lahore). 93 Ind. Cas. 344 = 7 Lah. 179 = 27 P.L.R. 50 = 8 L.L.J. 13 = A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 65.

——Cl. 26—Referee Judge must return his finding on point of difference to Division Bench for pronouncing decision of appeal.

When a point is referred to a third Judge under Cl. 26 on a difference of opinion between the two Judges hearing the appeal, the jurisdiction for the decision, not only of the appeal as a whole, but also of the point of difference, remains with the referring Bench. All that Cl. 26 lays down is a method by which, in the case of a difference of opinion, the difficulty is to be resolved. Hence, it would be the duty of the referee Judge to express an opinion on the point or points of difference and to return the case with his opinion to the Division Bench seized of the case which must pronounce the final judgment, according to the method provided by Cl. 26. If, in the interval, a change has occurred in the constitution of the Division Bench in question, it would be necessary for the Chief Justice to constitute another Division Bench as the successor of the referring Bench. Consequently, the third or referee Judge should return his finding on the point of difference to the referring Bench for it to pronounce the decision of the appeal. In such a case, the decree is that of the original Bench, and not of any other Bench. A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 84 = 45 P.L.R. 166 = I.L.R. (1943) Lah. 539 = 206 Ind. Cas. 247 (F.B.).

——Cl. 26—Scope.

Where the senior Judge does not press his opinion and instead of deciding the appeal the Division Bench sends it to the Chief Justice who orders the appeal to be heard by a Full Bench, no objection can be taken to the constitution of the Full Bench on the ground that under Cl. 26 the appeal should be decided according to the opinion of the Senior Judge. 61 Ind. Cas. 926 = 2 Lah. 133 = 3 L.L.J. 297 = 75 P.L.R. 1921 = A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 1 (F.B).

——Cls. 26 & 10—Scope.

Under Cl. 10, declaration of fitness of case for appeal to the Privy Council should be made by the Judge who passes the judgment. Cl. 26 does not empower any Judge of the High Court to make the declaration in the absence of Judge who passed the Judgment. 34 P.L.R. 469 = A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 534 = 143 Ind. Cas. 141 (1).

——Cl. 27—Rules under Cl. 27, if 'special law' within meaning of S. 29, Lim. Act—S. 12, Lim. Act—If applies.

The statutory rules framed by the High Court under Cl. 27, under the authority delegated to it by His Majesty who in turn, was acting under the powers conferred on him by Act of Parliament are a 'special law.' It follows, therefore, that by virtue of the provisions of S. 29, Lim. Act, S. 12 governs appeals under Cl. 10 from the judgments passed by the High Court in its appellate jurisdiction and therefore, the 'time requisite' in obtaining a copy of the judgment appealed from must be excluded. A.I.R. 1941 Lah. 257 = I.L.R. (1941) Lah. 191 = 43 P.L.R. 297 = 195 Ind. Cas. 452 (F.B.).

[Overrules A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 26 = 61 Ind. Cas. 327].

——Cl. 29—Cl. 29 of Lahore Letters Patent pemits appeal to His Majesty-in-Council from (1) any final judgment, decree or order of the High Court made on appeal and (2) any final judgment, decree, or order made in the exercise of original jurisdiction by Judges of the High Court or of any Division Bench of the Court. In either of these cases, however, condition must be satisfied that from such judgment, decree or order "an appeal does not lie under provisions in Cl. 10, Letters Patent." A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 169 = 44 P.L.R. 318 = I.L.R. (1942) Lah. 592 = 201 Ind. Cas. 468 (F.B.).

——Cl. 29—No appeal lies to His Majesty-in-Council under Cl. 29 of Letters Patent (Lahore) from a decree on order passed by Single Bench of Lahore High Court on second appeal. A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 169 = 44 P.L.R. 318 = I.L.R. (1942) Lah. 592 = 201 Ind. Cas. 468 (F.B.).

——Cl. 29—The word 'judgment' in Cl. 10 is not the same thing as words 'Final Judgment' in Cl. 29. A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 95 = 44 P.L.R. 140 = I.L.R. (1942) Lah. 491 = 200 Ind. Cas. 652 (F.B.).

——(MADRAS), Cl. 8—It is incorrect to say that Cl. 8 of Madras Charter, 1800, gave jurisdiction to the Supreme Court to issue the writ of certiorari to a Court of Company anywhere throughout the Province. Cl. 8 gives and defines an authority which is to be exercised over those who, by the later clauses, are made subject to it. The writ does not issue to correct purely executive acts. The object of writ is to secure by the exercise of authority of superior Court that the jurisdiction of inferior tribunal should be properly exercised. 56 M.L.W. 460 = A.I.R. 1943 P.C. 164 = 1943 M.W.N. 525 = 48 C.W.N. 18 = (1943) 2 M.L.J. 254 = 10 B.R. 278 = I.L.R. ——Cls. 9, 10—Vakil—Right of audience.

Vakils have a right of audience on the Original Side of the Madras High Court; Attorneys have not the right of audience on the Original Side of the Madras High Court. R. 533 of the Original Side Rules of the Madras High Court of 1902 is not ultra vires of the Letters Patent. 31 M.L.J. 698 = (1916) 2 M.W.N. 529 = 37 Ind. Cas. 699.

A vakil who sends a notice reciting facts which are false to the knowledge of the vakil is guilty of unprofessional conduct and he is not protected by the fact that it was "under instructions" from his client. 6 M.L.T. 329 = 11 Cr.L.J. 165 = 4 Ind. Cas. 1072.

——Cl. 10—Vakil—Professional misconduct—Perjury—Asserting absolute title in himself—Getting a conveyance benami.

Where a vakil taking advantage of the ignorance and needy position of his clients bought the equity of redemption for much less than its value and afterwards fraudulently executed a fresh mortgage deed in favour of the plaintiff s mortgagee in order to defraud his clients and to secure for himself the property in fraud of the understanding between himself and his clients which he sought to support in Court by giving false evidence and securing evidence of false witnesses, Held, he was guilty of professional misconduct and was debarred from practising for 2 years. 40 Mad. 69 = 18 Cr.L.J. 449 = 39 Ind. Cas. 289.

——Cl. 10—Vakil—Professional misconduct—Suggestion to influence a Judge in his favour.

A vakil is guilty of professional misconduct, meriting more than a mere warning, for suggesting that he is in a position to influence a Judge in his favour by indirect and improper means. 26 M.L.J. 429 = 23 Ind. Cas. 789.

——Cl. 10—Vakil—Suspension—Reasonable cause—Negligence—Duty to the Court and the client.

Where a vakil, though acquitted of personal fraud, permitted his clerks, guilty to his own knowledge of practising fraud and gross deception upon his client to continue in correspondence with him, there is "reasonable cause" to suspend the vakil from practice under Cl. 10 of the Letters Patent. It is the general function of the Bar and the solicitors that they must in the conduct of all suits entrusted to them co-operate with the Court in the orderly and pure administration of justice. 35 Mad. 543 = 39 All. 191 = 16 C.W.N. 1081 = 23 M.L.J. 114 = 13 Cr.L.J. 680 = 12 M.L.T. 396 = 14 Bom. ——Cl. 11—Original and ordinary original jurisdiction—Distinction between ordinary original and original civil jurisdiction of the High Court.

There is a distinction between the original jurisdiction of the High and the ordinary civil jurisdiction of the High Court. All applications to the High Court are either civil or criminal. They are original civil when matters come for the first time to the High Court, and they are appellate civil when they come in the form of appeals. The granting of probates or succession certificates will come within the original civil jurisdiction, but it would not come under ordinary original civil jurisdiction, which, by the Letters Patent, seems to be confined to suits and matters under Cls. 12 to 21, which refer to the exercise by the High Court of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction. 53 Mad. 237 = 59 M.L.J. 17 = 32 M.L.W. 4 = 126 Ind. 1. Carrying on business.

——Cl. 12—Carrying on business—Insurance Company having head office at Calcutta and branch office at Madras.

A company only carries on business where it enters into contracts relating to its business, not at places where it may have canvassers or agents for the purpose of obtaining offers of business and attending to matters ancillary to its business.

Where, therefore, an insurance company with its head office at Calcutta has its branch office in Madras but the contracts of insurance are made in Calcutta and not in Madras, it cannot be said that the company is carrying on business in Madras within the meaning of Cl. 12, Letters Patent. 52 M.L.W. 625 = (1940) M.W.N. 1078 = (1940) 2 M.L.J. 688 = A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 270 = I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 109 = 195 Ind. Cas. 201.

——Cl. 12—Carrying on business, etc.

The words "carry on business or personally work for gain" are inapplicable to the Secretary of State for India in Council. 14 Cal. 256, rel. on. 105 Ind. Cas. 576 = 50 Mad. 449 = 39 M.L.T. 304 = 26 M.L.W. 558 = A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 689 = 53 M.L.J. 355.

——Cl. 12—Carrying on business.

Whereas the words "carry on business" apply to a corporate body and to limited companies, and "personally work for gain" to an individual or individuals, the word "dwell" can only apply to an individual in a private sense and not to an entity. 105 Ind. Cas. 576 = 50 Mad. 449 = 39 M.L.T. 304 = 26 M.L.W. 558 = A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 689 = 53 M.L.J. 355.

——Cl. 12—Carrying on business through agent is within the clause.

"Carrying on business" includes carrying on business through an agent. 12 Ch. D. 522, foll. and 12 B. 507, diss.

Under Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent the power to try suits against persons is expressly conferred in the case of defendants dwelling or carrying on business or personally working for gain within the jurisdiction and it is impossible to construe 'defendant' to include foreigners in two out of three cases and not in the third, as all three occur in the same sentence. 'Defendant' therefore includes foreigners. 76 Ind. Cas. 752 = 18 M.L.W. 515 = 1923 M.W.N. 739 = 33 M.L.T. 19 = A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 158 = 45 M.L.J. 471.

2. Cause of action.

——Cl. 12—"Cause of action" meaning of—Jurisdiction of High Court—Contract, breach of.

The words "cause of action" in S. 12 mean all those things which are necessary to give a right of action; and in a suit for breach of contract the High Court has no jurisdiction where leave has not been given unless it is proved that the contract as well as the breach of it occurred within the local limits of the Court. 27 M. 494.

——Cl. 12—Cause of action—Posting of offer or despatch of offer by telegram.

The posting of an offer or the despatch by telegram of an offer from a particular place cannot be regarded as part of the cause of action. The offer is made at the place where it is received and if it is made by post or telegram, the place of despatch is not a material factor. Similarly, the notice of rejection must be taken to have been given in the place where the letter was received. The place of rejection is not material. A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 49 = 50 M.L.W. 597 = (1939) M.W.N. 171 = (1940) 1 M.L.J. 676 = I.L.R. (1940) Mad. 195 = 190 Ind. Cas. 154.

——Cl 12—Cause of action.

A suit, without leave under Cl. 12, to recover goods or price of goods confiscated by Collector of Customs, after seizure thereof by the District Officer on the ground that they were smuggled into British India, does not lie on the original side, simply because the order of the Collector was made within its jurisdiction, where the goods were seized outside its limits. 105 Ind. Cas. 576 = 50 Mad. 449 = 39 M.L.T. 304 = 26 M.L.W. 558 = A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 689 = 53 M.L.J. 355.

——Cl. 12—Cause of action—International Law—Foreigner, action against—Personal action—Submission to jurisdiction—Probate—Costs.

One V. A. of Seringapatam in Mysore left a will by which he appointed the four defendants, executors and, inter alia provided that the moneys due on policies issued to him by two life insurance companies of Bombay and Calcutta should be collected and invested in Government promissory notes and that four-fifths of the same should go to his daughter, the plaintiff for life, and then to her children and the remaining one-fifth should go to his widow for life, and after her death to her children. Soon after the testator's death in 1862 the executors obtained probates in the High Court of Madras in respect of properties in the Madras Presidency in the District Court of Civil and Military Station, Bangalore, in respect of properties in the Province of Mysore. The Madras probate did not include the policy moneys. The 1st defendant, who was the son of the testator, was left by the other executors sole possession of the properties of the testator. He collected the policy moneys and instead of investing them in the Government securities, advanced the moneys on the securities of lands in Mysore. He was paying interest to the plaintiff regularly till 1897, when a dispute arose as to whether she should have the Government interest only or the actual interest under the mortgage. The 1st defendant at first denied her right to more than Government interest, but finally questioned the validity of the father's will and the right of the plaintiff thereunder. This action for administration was commenced against the executors, the 2nd and the 4th being residents of Madras, and the 1st and the 3rd of the Mysore Province. The 3rd defendant appeared but did not plead to the jurisdiction of the Court. The 1st defendant raised the point of jurisdiction in his written statement, not however, on the ground that he was a foreigner though even that contention he raised in an affidavit he filed early in the case. Shephard, J., dismissed the suit as against defendants 1 and 3, on the ground that they did not reside, nor the cause of action arose within the jurisdiction; and as against the other two, on the ground that it would be useless to give a decree against them as they were not in possession of the properties. On appeal, held, that the action was rightly dismissed as against the 1st defendant, but that there should be a decree against the other three, the 3rd defendant, assuming he was a foreigner, having submitted to the jurisdiction of the Court. Per Chief Justice.—In any view of the plaintiff's cause of action, whether it was her right to the administration of the trust or the defendant's repudiation of the trust, or the investment of the money in improper securities. The whole cause of action did not arise in Madras. And the Court will have no jurisdiction unless the whole cause of action as defined in 8 Cal. 107, arose in Madras. See (1900) 2 Q.B. 43—Obiter.—On a proper construction of Art. 12 of the Letters Patent foreigners are not exempt from the jurisdiction of the High Court and the 1st defendant cannot, therefore, take the exception to the jurisdiction on the ground that he was a foreigner, especially as he had not taken it in his written statement or obtained an issue on the point. Per Davies, J. Obiter.—It is very doubtful whether (1900) 2 Q.B. 43 is applicable to any but actions on contract. In cases like this the trust follows the beneficiary and the place of performance is the place where the beneficiary resides. The whole cause of action, therefore, arose at Madras. But a personal action against a non-resident foreigner will not lie if he does not submit to the jurisdiction of the Court. The suit against the 1st defendant should, on this ground, be dismissed. In dismissing a suit for the administration of trusts on the ground of want of jurisdiction, the Court has power under S. 220, C.P.C. and Art. 21 of Letters Patent to direct the plaintiff's costs to be paid out of the estate. 11 M.L.J. 91.

——Cl. 12—Cause of action—Part of cause of action—Promissory note payable in Madras or Secunderabad—Payments of interest in Madras.

Where a promissory note was executed in plaintiff's favour at Vizianagaram, payable in Secunderabad or Madras, and payments of interest were made in Madras. Held, that part of the cause of action had arisen in Madras, and a suit could be filed in the High Court with leave to sue. 24 M. 259.

3. Dwell.

——Cl. 12—Dwelling within limits, meaning of.

The defendant who was a domiciled resident in Mysore left his house in charge of a servant, hired a house in Madras to which he brought his wife and children, and apprenticed himself to a vakil for a year in Madras. In a suit brought against him some months after, on the Original Side of the High Court, with leave under Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent. Held, that as the defendant had taken up his abode in Madras with the intention of dwelling there for several months and was living there at the time of the institution of the suit, the suit was cognizable by the High Court on the Original Side. 34 Mad. 257 = 38 I.A. 129 = 15 C.W.N. 741 = 8 A.L.J. 774 = 13 Bom. L.R. 520 = (1911) 2 M.W.N. 375 = 14 C.L.J. 64 = 21 M.L.J. 669 = 10 M.L.T. 263 = 11 Ind.Cas. 447 (P.C.).

——Cl. 12—"Dwell"—Jurisdiction over foreigner—Essentials—Parts of the cause of action—Executor—Jurisdiction of Court over executor—Estoppel—Will—Adverse title by executor—Presumption.

The mere presence of a foreigner within the local limits of a Court's jurisdiction at the time of the institution of the suit gives jurisdiction over the foreigner to the Court. (21 I.A. 171, explained). In India a suit is instituted on the mere filing of the plaint. The presence of a foreigner in order to confer jurisdiction need not be an abiding in the place involving permanency as opposed to a temporary stay or a mere temporary locality of existence; nor need it be that there should have been personal service or even issue of the writ of the foreigner while he is within the territory. The word 'dwell' in Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent does not import any permanency of residence. Where the defendant in the case shut up his house in Bangalore (foreign territory), took up a house within the Court's jurisdiction for his exclusive occupation and occupied it with his wife and child and entered at the same time into a contract of apprenticeship with a professional man in the new place in order to qualify himself to the Bar (the same involving an uninterrupted stay in Madras) and acted upon the contract for a period of six months. Held, that the defendant dwelt within the jurisdiction of the Court within the meaning of Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent. A breach of an undertaking to a Court to administer the estate is part of the cause of action within the meaning of Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent in a suit against the executor in respect of the administration. A Court from which an executor takes out probate or letters has jurisdiction over the executor in respect of the administration even though he be a foreigner. Where the Court has jurisdiction to make a grant of probate it has power to decide whether the will is a valid testamentary disposition. A proprietor of a foreign immovables or person interested in such, may be compelled by the King's Court if it has jurisdiction over him to dispose of his property or his interest in them so as to give effect to any obligation relating to them which arises from, or as from, his own contract or tort provided there is nothing in the foreign law preventing him from doing what the Court directs. The presumption is that the legislature does not intend to exceed its jurisdiction ; the occasion for its application arises only when the words of the enactment leave room for doubt as to whether jurisdiction has been conferred. Per White, C.J.—When a cause of action arose wholly in Madras, the High Court would have jurisdiction under Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent to entertain a suit against a person in respect of that cause of action, notwithstanding he might be an absent foreigner. 1 M.L.T. 71 = 16 M.L.J. 238 = 29 M. 239. Affirmed in 8 A.L.J. 774 = 13 Bom.L.R. 520 =15 C.W.N. 541 (P.C.).]

4. Effect of amendment.

——Cl. 12—Effect of amendment.

The provisions of the amended Letters Patent cannot be read as conferring jurisdiction upon High Court in a case where one or more of the several defendants reside within its jurisdiction. The real question to be considered is the balance of convenience. Where major portion of the cause of action arises outside Madras, leave to sue in Madras should be refused. 72 Ind. Cas. 982 = 1922 M.W.N. 841 = A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 272.

——Cl. 12—Jurisdiction—Submission of accounts—at Madras—Defendant residing out of Madras.

If the defendant submits the accounts of his agency to the plaintiff in his shop at Madras, the High Court in its Original Side does not cease to have jurisdiction merely because the defendant resides in a place outside such jurisdiction. (1915) M.W.N. 519 = 29 Ind. Cas. 462.

5. Leave to sue.

——Cl. 12—Leave exhausted by filing suit.

Leave was given to sue in the High Court, but the suit was withdrawn under S. 373, C.P.C. A fresh suit was sought to be filed on the same cause of action and leave was applied for, but refused. Held (1) that the previous leave was exhausted by the filing of the suit, and the Court could grant or refuse leave as it deemed proper ; (2) that the order passed by the Court in the due exercise of its discretion should be up-held. 24 M. 293.

——Cl. 12—Leave to sue—Mortgaged properties partly within Madras and partly outside—It is immaterial whether or not mortgagors had good title to property alleged to be within the jurisdiction of the Court.

Where the plaintiff seeks to obtain leave to institute a suit against the defendant on a mortgage by the defendant of certain properties one of which is alleged to be within the original jurisdiction of the High Court, it makes no difference whatever, as to the jurisdiction of the Court whether or not the mortgagor had a good title to the property situated within the jurisdiction of the Court. 71 Ind. Cas. 390 = 14 M.L.W. 563 = A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 701 (F.B.).

——Cl. 12—Leave to sue granted—Motion to revoke—Written statement.

Where leave to sue was granted a motion to revoke that leave should be made at once, as a major portion of the cause of action had arisen in Madras, or the party should take an extension of time for filing his written statement on that ground. It is for the interest of the parties that the question whether leave is to be revoked or not should be decided at the outset before any costs are incurred. 8 M.L.T. 349 = (1910) M.W.N. 564 = 8 Ind. Cas. 299.

——Cl. 12—Leave to sue—Discretion, exercise of—Convenience.

The High Court should in granting leave to sue a non-resident foreigner exercise its jurisdiction with caution ; and the question of convenience of trial is not a matter to be excluded from the consideration of the Court in granting leave to sue. 17 M.L.J. 304 = 30 M. 438.

6. Relative scope of Cls. 12 & 18.

——Cls. 12 and 18—Relative scope.

Cl. 12, Letters Patent, does not affect the provisions of Cl. 18. 40 Mad. 810, rel. on. 112 Ind. Cas. 149 = 51 Mad. 540 = 28 M.L.W. 285 = A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 732 = 55 M.L.J. 171 (F.B.).

——Cls. 12 and 18—Relative scope.

S. 12 does not control S. 18. 40 Mad. 810 = 20 M.L.T. 311 = 4 M.L.W. 425 = 36 Ind. Cas. 524.

7. Suit for land.

——Cl. 12—Suit for land.

A suit to avoid an incumbrance on land, is a suit for land. 12 M.L.T. 229 = (1912) M.W.N. 974 = 23 M.L.J. 726 = 17 Ind. Cas. 342.

——Cl. 12—Suit for land—Administration suit.

An administration suit is not a suit for land. And where leave to sue has been granted High Court can decide question of title to land even where the land is wholly outside its jurisdiction.

But the High Court will not grant leave unless a substantial portion of the cause of action has arisen within the jurisdiction, and, if the leave has been wrongly granted, it is quite open to the defendants apply for that leave being revoked. 110 Ind. Cas. 276 = 28 M.L.W. 583 = A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 760 = 55 M.L.J. 266.

——Cl. 12—"Suit for land"—Specific performance action.

A suit by a purchaser of lands situate outside the presidency town for specific performance of a contract to sell, made in the presidency town by parties resident therein is not a suit for land within the meaning of Cl. 12 and so is cognizable by the High Court in its Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction. 118 Ind. Cas. 73 = 52 Mad. 809 = 30 M.L.W. 169 = A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 721 = 57 M.L.J. 190 (F.B.).

——Cl. 12—Suit for land—Suit for damages for cutting and carrying away trees.

A suit for damages for cutting and carrying away trees is a suit for land or other immovable property within the meaning of Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent. 30 M.L.J. 120 = 33 Ind. Cas. 906.

——Cl. 12—Suit for land—Claim for damages for trees cut—Test.

The suit is one for land under Cl. 12, where on the allegations in the plaint, title to land has to be determined either expressly or by implication so as to preclude it from being raised in any subsequent suit. A suit for the recovery of damages for trees cut and carried away from the plaintiff's casuarina plantation is a suit for land. 26 M.L.J. 567 = 15 M.L.T. 411 = 24 Ind. Cas. 895.

——Cl. 12—Suit for land—Originating summons regarding legacy outside city limits.

Legacy comprising lands situated outside limits of city of Madras—Question whether proceedings pursuant to originating summons constitute suit for land under Cl. 12, involves substantial question of law. (1940) M.W.N. 1223 = 52 M.L.W. 881 = A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 194 = (1941) 1 M.L.J. 186 = I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 226 = 195 Ind. Cas. 767.

——Cl. 12—Suit for land—Suit for account of management of trust is not "suit for land."

The expression "suit for land" must be construed as an action, the primary object of which is to establish claims regarding the title to property or possession of property and no suit can be described as a "suit for land" as the result of the decision in which the title to, or possession of, immovable property will not in any manner or measure be directly affected.

A suit for an account of the management of a trust is really, a suit for administration of a trust and not a "suit for land" and, therefore, is not excluded from the jurisdiction of the High Court, though the trust properties are in the moffussil. 90 Ind. Cas. 188 = 22 M.L.W. 160 = 1925 M.W.N. 395 = A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 1084 = 49 M.L.J. 311.

——Cl. 12—Suit for land—Suit for maintenance—Charge on specific immovable property.

Plaintiff sued for maintenance on the Original Side of the High Court and prayed that her maintenance may be made a charge on certain lands of the defendant. Held, that the suit was "for land" within Cl. 12 and the High Court could entertain the suit. A suit for maintenance in which the plaintiff only prays for a decree charging her maintenance on ancestral property, without specifying any particular portion of that property, may not be a suit for land, as no relief is claimed against any specific property but where the maintenance is sought to be made a charge on specified immovable property the plaintiff prays for a decree to operate directly on the immovable property and the suit is therefore one for land. 33 Mad. 131 = 6 M.L.T. 263 = 20 M.L.J. 103 = 3 Ind. Cas. 930.

——Cl. 12—Suit for land—Lands situate partly within and partly without—Leave to sue, discretionary.

Where land is situated partly within and partly without the local limits of the original civil jurisdiction of the High Court the granting of leave to sue under Cl. 12 is purely discretionary and the High Court will not in appeal, interfere. Per Seshagiri Aiyar, J.—A plaint presented on the granting of a provisional leave becomes invalid the moment the leave is withdrawn. 35 M. 1, foll. (1916) 1 M.W.N. 146 = 3 M.L.W. 107 = 32 Ind. Cas. 423.

——Cl. 12—Suit for land—Suit for movables within jurisdiction and for immovables outside—Leave to amend—Partial partition.

A suit praying for accounts for the administration of the estate by the Court and for possession of the plaintiff's share in a houses situate outside the original jurisdiction is a suit for land within the meaning of the clause; and the prayer for administration in view of the ascertainment of plaintiff's share cannot convert the suit into an administration suit. In a suit for partition of movables within the jurisdiction and of immovables without, brought without obtaining leave, the suit ought to be dismissed only in so far as it relates to land outside the jurisdiction; or leave to amend the plaint by omitting therefrom so much as related to land outside the jurisdiction ought to be given. In a suit for partition the fact that a portion of the common property lies outside the jurisdiction of the Court in which the suit was brought does not in itself bar the maintenance of the suit. 28 M. 216.

——Cl. 12—Suit for sale of mortgaged property.

A "suit for land" includes any suit in which a decree is asked for operating directly upon the land and therefore includes any suit brought to enforce a security upon land. "Suit for land or other immovable property" as used in Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent includes all suits mentioned in Cls. A to F in S. 16, C.P.C. (1882). Consequently the High Court has no jurisdiction to try a suit for realization of a debt by sale of lands situate outside the original jurisdiction of the High Court and in respect of which the title deeds have been deposited by the defendants with the plaintiff in respect of the debt. 27 M. 157.

8. Miscellaneous.

——Cl. 12—Miscellaneous—Jurisdiction of High Court Judge on Original Side—Issue of warrant against judgment debtor resident oustide original jurisdiction.

An order made by a Judge of the High Court sitting on the Original Side directing a warrant to issue against the person of a judgment-debtor and directing a special bailiff to execute the warrant against the judgment-debtor wherever he might be found in the Presidency is bad for want of jurisdiction. 26 M. 120.

——Cl. 13—Amendment of plaint—Amendment ousting the jurisdiction of the Trial Court cannot be allowed.

No Court will permit a plaint to be so amended as to oust its own jurisdiction to try the suit.

A suit was filed originally in the City Civil Court, Madras, and was transferred to the High Court in the exercise of its extraordinary original civil jurisdiction. Later, an application to amend the plaint was made, the effect of which was to convert the suit into one which the City Civil Court (the forum originally chosen by the plaintiff) would have no jurisdiction to try.

Held, that the amendment could not be allowed as the powers of the High Court under Cl. 13 are those of the City Civil Court itself. 108 Ind. Cas. 413 = 27 M.L.W. 609 = A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 400 = 54 M.L.J. 145.

——Cls. 13 and 15—Jurisdiction—Appellate order under Charter Act.

An order of a single Judge in the exercise of the power of superintendence under S. 15 of the Charter Act (S. 107 Government of India Act) and dealing with the decision of a Court subject to the appellate jurisdiction is one made in the exercise of the appellate jurisdiction of the Court within the meaning of Cl. 13 of the Letters Patent. (1913) M.W.N. 595 = 20 Ind. Cas. 633.

——Cl. 13—Powers of Vacation Judge—Suit to be filed in Court outside High Court's Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction—Closing of the Court—High Court cannot entertain suit.

There is no provision of law by which the High Court can in the first instance receive a plaint which ought to be filed in some inferior Court within the Presidency and pass orders pending the disposal of the suit and although the Court in which it was to be filed was closed owing to vacation, the Vacation Judge of the High Court cannot entertain such a suit except perhaps where the claim has arisen within the limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court and where the High Court has concurrent jurisdiction along with other Courts of the Presidency Town. 113 Ind. Cas. 412 = 52 Mad. 52 = 28 M.L.W. 684 = A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 29 = 55 M.L.J. 690.

——Cl. 13—Procedure.

A suit was brought in an inferior Court but as the Court was closed owing to vacation, an application was made to the High Court for an order of injunction.

Held, that the procedure followed by the applicant was not correct. The proper procedure to be followed would be that the petition on the face of it should apply for a transfer of the suit in an inferior Court temporarily to the High Court, and the application should be made for injunction and another application for a re-transfer of the case to the original Court. 113 Ind. Cas. 412 = 52 Mad. 52 = 28 M.L.W. 684 = A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 29 = 55 M.L.J. 690.

——Cls. 13 and 20—Proceedings in District Court—Transfer of, to High Court.

The powers of the High Court in a case transferred from the District Court are confined to those exercisable by a District Court, but for the transfer. 38 Mad. 807 = 41 I.A. 314 = 27 M.L.J. 30 = 18 C.W.N. 1089 = 1 M.L.W. 520 = (1914) M.W.N. 585 = 16 M.L.T. 165 = 20 C.L.J. 253 = 16 Bom. L.R. 625 = 12 A.L.J. 1155 = 24 Ind. Cas. 290 (P.C.).

——Cl. 13—Scope—High Court, power of, to withdraw suit from Subordinate Court, quash objectionable interim order passed by it and then send case back for trial to same Court—That power is given by S. 24, Civil P.C.

Cl. 13 does not give the High Court power to withdraw a suit from a Subordinate Court and quash an objectional interim order passed by such Court and then send the suit back to the original Court for trial. That power is conferred by S. 24, Civil P.C. (1945) 1 M.L.J. 14 = 58 M.L.W. 7 = 1945 M.W.N. 1 = I.L.R. (1945) Mad. 389 = A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 69 = 218 Ind. Cas. 267 (F.B.). [Overrules A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 29 = 113 Ind. Cas. 412.]

——Cl. 13—Scope.

Under Cl. 13, the High Court has power to withdraw a suit from a Subordinate Court and try and dispose of the action itself. 69 M.L.J. 776 = 42 M.L.W. 945 = (1935) M.W.N. 1329 = A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 55 = 160 Ind. Cas. 80 (F.B.).

——Cl. 13—Scope.

Where a suit is pending in a moffussil Court, which is closed for the summer recess, the High Court can transfer the case to itself under Cl. 13 of the Letters Patent and pass interim orders in the case but such an application for such transfer must be made on the Original Side of the High Court and in cases or suits which are not pending in a moffussil Court, the High Court has no power to make any order with regard to them. (1934) M.W.N. 157 = A.I.R. 1934 Mad. 314 = 66 M.L.J. 428 = 39 M.L.W. 493 = 57 M. 453 = 148 Ind. Cas. 849.

——Cl. 13—Transfer to High Court—Court-fee.

When a suit is transferred to High Court under Cl. 13, Court-fees payable are governed by the Court-fees Act and not by High Court Fees Rules. 60 M.L.J. 435 = 33 M.L.W. 318 = A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 457 = 132 Ind. Cas. 647.

——Cl. 13—Transfer of suit from Presidency Small Cause Court to High Court—To be made to Judge on the Original Side.

An application for the transfer of a suit from the Presidency Small Cause Court to the High Court is governed by S. 13 of the Letters Patent and must be made to a Judge sitting on the Original Side of the High Court. (1912) M.W.N. 150 = 11 M.L.T. 159 = 22 M.L.J. 187 = 13 Ind. Cas. 860.

(1) Amendment.

——Cl. 15—Amendment—Effect—No retrospective effect.

The amended Letters Patent which came into force on 31st January, 1928, making the judgment of a single Judge of the High Court in a second appeal appealable only with the leave of the Judge does not apply retrospectively to second appeals pending at the time of the amendment. 115 Ind. Cas. 811 = 52 Mad. 361 = 29 M.L.W. 390 = 1929 M.W.N. 57 = A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 381 = 56 M.L.J. 369 (S.B.).

(2) Appeal.

——Cls. 15, 44—Appeal—Order passed in appeal under S. 39, Arbitration Act—No appeal, lies under Cl. 15

No second appeal lies under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent from an order passed in appeal under S. 39, Arbitration Act, in view of S. 39 (2) of the Arbitration Act and Cl. 44 of the Letters Patent. (1945) 1 M.L.J. 54 = 58 M.L.W. 10 (1) = 1945 M.W.N. 164 (2) = I.L.R. (1945) Mad. 564 = A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 184.

——Cl. 15—Appeal—Order on claim petition by single Judge.

Neither S. 283 nor S. 591 of the C.P. Code, 1882, takes away the right of appeal conferred by Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent from an order of a single Judge of the High Court on a claim petition. 39 Mad. 1196 = 17 M.L.T. 208 = (1915) M.W.N. 211 = 28 Ind. Cas. 367.

——Cl. 15—Appeal—Order on claim petition.

Four persons lent money on mortgage, the deed, with the consent of all, being prepared in favour of one of them alone. It however specified the amount that each had advanced and provided that if the nominal mortgagee should receive any instalments from the mortgagors, they should be distributed among them according to the amount advanced by them. The nominal mortgagee died, leaving a will appointing executors, who had not, however, taken out probate. A judgment-creditor of the mortgagor attached the property. The three mortgagees filed a claim petition. Held: (1) An appeal lies from an order by a Judge sitting on the Original Side of the High Court, dismissing a claim preferred under Ss. 278 and 282 of the Code of Civil Procedure (1882) by the mortgagees of immovable property which has been attached in execution of a decree; (2) The applicant could put in the claim petition, for they had 'some interest' in the attached property within the meaning of S. 279 of the Code. If the nominal mortgagee was the agent of the applicants, they had a legal interest in the property attached, and if he was a trustee, they had a beneficial or equitable interest in it. A beneficial interest is as much an interest within the meaning of S. 279 as a legal interest in the property attached. 11 M.L.J. 346 = 25 M. 555.

——Cl. 15—Appeal—Order refusing leave to file Letters Patent Appeal against judgment of single Judge in second appeal.

An order refusing leave to appeal under the Letters Patent against the judgment of a single Judge in second appeal is a part of the judgment in the second appeal itself, and against such an order there is no appeal under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent. I.L.R. (1950) Mad. 747 = A.I.R. 1950 Mad. 216 = 62 M.L.W. 816 = 1949 M.W.N. 690 = (1949) 2 M.L.J. 641.

——Cl. 15—Appeal—Order setting aside order of abatement.

An appeal lies under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent against an order of a single Judge of the High Court sitting on the Original Side setting aside the abatement of a suit, as such order is judgment under Cl. 15. 2 L.W. 948 = 31 Ind. Cas. 38.

——Cls. 15 and 44—Appeal against judgment of single Judge in second appeal—Necessity for certificate of fitness for appeal.

By Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent (Madras) it is necessary that the Judge who has passed the judgment in a second appeal shall certify it as a fit case for appeal in order that an appeal under that clause may lie. It cannot be suggested that Cl. 44 in any way abrogates the effect of Cl. 15. 228 Ind. Cas. 640 = A.I.R. 1947 Mad. 5 (1) = 1946 M.W.N. 508 (1) = (1946) 2 M.L.J. 165.

(3) Certificate.

——Cl. 15—Certificate.

By Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent it is necessary that the Judge who has passed the judgment in a second appeal shall certify it as a fit case for appeal in order that an appeal under that clause may lie. It is wrong to suggest that Cl. 44 somehow abrogates the effect of Cl. 15. (1946) 2 M.L.J. 165 = 1946 M.W.N. 508 = A.I.R. 1947 Mad. 5 (1).

——Cl. 15—Certificate—Refusal by Single Judge to grant certificate under S. 205, Government of India Act—Interference in appeal.

When a Single Judge of a High Court hearing a revision petition has refused to grant a certificate under S. 205, Government of India Act, the Letters Patent Bench cannot interfere with his order. The order of the Single Judge is the order of the High Court within S. 205. (1945) 1 M.L.J. 37 = 58 M.L.W. 87 (2) = 1945 M.W.N. 162 (1) = A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 156 = I.L.R. (1945) Mad. 623.

——Cl. 15—Certificate.

The Judge granting a certificate under Cl. 15, declaring the case a fit one for appeal, has no power to limit the ground of appeal. It is for the higher Appellate Court to say what are the questions it will allow to be raised. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 481 = 1941 M.W.N. 456 = 53 M.L.W. 650 = (1941) 1 M.L.J. 800 = I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 775 = 196 Ind. Cas. 87 (F.B.).

(4) Committal for contempt.

——Cl. 15—Committal for contempt.

Appellant giving undertaking not to alienate property in suit—Alienation in breach—It is contempt—Order committing appellant to prison is appealable under Cl. 15. A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 541 = (1943) 1 M.L.J. 400 = 56 M.L.W. 316 = 1943 M.W.N. 462 = I.L.R. (1944) Mad. 197 = 210 Ind. Cas. 425.

(5) Court-fee.

——Cl. 15—Court-fee—Appeal from order of Judge of High Court—Fee payable is that payable under the Charter Act directly and not under S. 3 of the Court-fees Act.

S. 3 of the Court-fees Act must be controlled by S. 15 of the High Courts Charter Act. S. 15 of that Act which speaks of the settling fees to be allowed to Sheriffs, Attorneys and all clerks and officers of the Court, will not cover a case of Court-fee payable on a memorandum of appeal from an order of a Judge of a Chartered High Court because S. 3 of the Court-fees Act clearly points to the fee which is to be taken by the officer as a perquisite. The power under which Court-fees are levied on the Original Side of the High Court was derived from the general powers to issue general rules for regulating the practice of Courts. Such powers necessarily include imposition of fees and the collection of them, and the Court can collect the fees only through its proper officers. The fee leviable on an appeal is the fee payable for the time being to the officers of the High Court by virtue of the High Courts Charter Act directly. 70 Ind. Cas. 813 = 45 Mad. 849 = 1922 M.W.N. 511 = 16 M.L.W. 210 = A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 421 = 43 M.L.J. 436.

(6) Criminal jurisdiction.

——Cl. 15—Criminal jurisdiction.

No appeal lies to the High Court from the decision of a Judge of the High Court in the exercise of criminal jurisdiction. 71 Ind. Cas. 126 = 45 Mad. 928 = 16 M.L.W. 365 = 1922 M.W.N. 594 = 31 M.L.T. 287 = 24 Cr. L.J. 78 = A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 495 = 43 M.L.J. 375 (F.B.).

(7) Criminal trial.

——Cl. 15—Criminal trial—Appeal.

No appeal lies under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent against an order passed by a single Judge of the High Court in the exercise of its Criminal Revisional Jurisdiction. 27 M. 510, Foll. 2 L.W. 363 = 16 Cr. L.J. 464 = 29 Ind. Cas. 96.

——Cl. 15—Criminal trial—Order for compensation under S. 250 of the Cr. P. Code.

An order for compensation under S. 250 of the Cr. P. Code is an order in a criminal trial and the Judgment of the single judge of the High Court in revision from that order is not open to appeal under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent. 19 Cr. L.J. 208 = 43 Ind. Cas. 624.

——Cl. 15—Criminal trial—Order to grant trial.

An order of a High Court Judge to grant trial to an accused person is an order in a criminal trial. It is not a judgment within Cl. 15 and is therefore not appealable to a Division Bench. 19 M.L.J. 478 = 11 Cr. L.J. 279 = 4 Ind. Cas. 871.

——Cl. 15—Criminal trial—Order passed in revision under Cr. P. Code, S. 488—Appeal.

The order of a single Judge of High Court passed in revision in proceedings under S. 488, Cr. P. Code, is one passed in a "criminal trial" within Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent and no appeal lies therefrom. 39 Mad. 472 = 28 M.L.J. 483 = 17 M.L.T. 330 = 16 Cr. L.J. 326 = 28 Ind. Cas. 662.

——Cl. 15—Criminal trial—Revision—Order of a single Judge—Appeal, Cr. P. Code, S. 118.

No appeal lies against the order of a single Judge on a revision petition presented against the order of Magistrate acting under S. 118 of Cr. P. Code. Proceedings taken for binding over persons to keep the peace under Ch. VIII of Cr. P. Code are criminal trials within Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent. The portion of the Letters Patent commencing with S. 22 dealing with criminal jurisdiction gives the right of appeal against the order of a single Judge acting as a Court of Revision. 39 Mad. 539 = 28 M.L.J. 307 = (1915) M.W.N. 224 = 16 Cr. L.J. 303 = 28 Ind. Cas. 527.

——Cl. 15—"Criminal trial"—Judgment—Order passed in revision under S. 145, Cr. P.C.—Appeal.

The judgment of a single Judge of the High Court, passed on revision in proceedings under S. 145, Cr. P.C. is not one made in a "criminal trial" within the meaning of S. 15 of the Letters Patent; and consequently, appeals lie from such orders. 17 M.L.J. 158.

——Cl. 15—Criminal trials.

Appeal lies from order of Judge on original side extending time for prosecution under S. 195, Cl. 6. 9 C.W.N. 321 = 32 C. 379. Also Order of remand. 35 C. 1096.

——Cl. 15—Appeal lies from order refusing to issue commission to witness beyond 200 miles. 30 M. 143.

——Cl. 15—Appeal lies from order refusing to issue commission to examine witness. 14 M.L.J. 329 = 28 Mad. 28.

(8) Difference of opinion in Bench.

——Cl. 15—Difference of opinion in Bench.

In appeals governed by S. 96, when the two Judges of the High Court are divided in opinion, the judgment of that Judge who confirms the decree of the lower Court prevails. 86 Ind. Cas. 857 = 21 M.L.W. 721 = A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 1032.

(9) Finding of fact.

——Cl. 15—Finding of fact.

A finding that a person was insane during certain period cannot be challenged in Letters Patent Appeal. 55 M.L.W. 476 = A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 606 = 1942 M.W.N. 496 = (1942) 2 M.L.J. 206 = I.L.R. (1943) Mad. 107 = 202 Ind. Cas. 747.

(10) Interlocutory orders.

——Cl. 15—Interlocutory order.

An order on an interlocutory application in a second appeal granting stay of proceedings in the lower Court till disposal of the second appeal is a "judgment" within the contemplation of Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent (Madras) against which an appeal lies. 61 M.L.W. 70 = A.I.R. 1948 Mad. 371 = 1948 M.W.N. 66 = (1948) 1 M.L.J. 62.

——Cl. 15—"Interlocutory order"—Order refusing stay.

Where an application to the High Court for stay of execution could not have been made independently of and apart from the second appeal pending, it is the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court that is invoked, and the order of dismissal of application is made in exercise of that jurisdiction; over such an order Letters Patent Appeal under S. 15 does not lie. 53 Mad. 158 = 30 M.L.W. 976 = 1929 M.W.N. 878 = A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 427 = 57 M.L.J. 783.

——Cl. 15—Interlocutory order.

An order made by a single Judge refusing a stay of execution is not a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 15 and no appeal lies therefrom. 95 Ind. Cas. 808 = 14 M.L.W. 701.

——Cl. 15—Interlocutory order.

An order refusing to stay execution of a decree is not a judgment within the meaning of S. 15 of the Letters Patent and is, therefore, not appealable under that section. The fact that an order under S. 244 has been declared to amount to a decree for the purposes of the Code of Civil Procedure does not give it the force of a judgment under the Letters Patent. 24 M. 358.

——Cl. 15—Interlocutory order—Order to bring person on record as legal representative.

An order directing the respondent in an appeal to be brought on the record as the legal representative of the deceased original appellant is not a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 15, and is not appealable under the Letters Patent, for it is not a judgment which finally settles the rights of parties but has the effect of allowing litigation which is proceeding to further proceed to a final adjudication.

Such an order stands on a different footing from an order setting aside an abatement. 37 M.L.W. 460 = 64 M.L.J. 493 = (1933) M.W.N. 237 = A.I.R. 1933 Mad. 417 = 56 M. 689 = 142 Ind. Cas. 679.

——Cl. 15—Interlocutory order—Order adding party.

Order adding a party is not a "judgment" and therefore is not appealable. 1930 M.W.N. 971 = A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 987 = 60 M.L.J. 237.

——Cl. 15—Interlocutory order.

Where a civil revision petition is filed and interlocutory applications are made in the civil revision petition for reliefs, the High Court can only act in its exercise of revisional jurisdiction in dealing with these applications and orders passed on such applications in the exercise of that jurisdiction are not appealable under the Letters Patent. 107 Ind. Cas. 813 = 51 Mad. 165 = 1928 M.W.N. 30 = 27 M.L.W. 18 = A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 169 = 54 M.L.J. 323.

——Cl. 15—Interlocutory order—Order allowing evidence.

An order giving permission to a party to adduce in the first appeal Court evidence which that Court had refused time to the party to call is not a final judgment or order within Cl. 15. 105 Ind. Cas. 720 = A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 1021.

——Cl. 15—Interlocutory order.

Under Cl. 15 an order of a merely interlocutory nature passed by a single Judge on the Original Side is not appealable. 75 Ind. Cas. 901 = 18 M.L.W. 615 = 1923 M.W.N. 894 = A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 234 = 46 M.L.J. 71.

——Cl. 15—Interlocutory order.

An order on an independent proceeding auxiliary to the suit such as one for interim injunction or a Receiver's appointment is a judgment under S. 15 though it does not affect the merits of the suit and determine any rights. The word judgment in S. 15 covers a preliminary or interlocutory judgment as well as final ones but not an interlocutory order. This interpretation is uncontrolled by C.P. Code. An order declining to frame an issue asked for by a party is not appealable. To make an adjudication a judgment, its effect should be to put an end to the suit or proceeding in which the adjudication is given so far as the Court is concerned, its form being immaterial. If the adjudication is a mere step to obtain time, the adjudication is not a judgment. 35 Mad. 1 = (1910) M.W.N. 697 = 8 M.L.T. 453 = 21 M.L.J. 1 = 8 Ind. Cas. 340 (F.B.).

(11) Judgment.

——Cl. 15—'Judgment'.

Order dismissing application by decree-holder of insolvent for a sum of money in the hands of Official Assignee is a 'judgment' and is appealable. 25 M. 406 = 12 M.L.J. 282.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Dismissal of case by single Judge.

Where a single Judge dismissed a case with costs in the exercise of his discretion, the order is not a judgment under Cl. 15 and no appeal lies. 8 M.L.T. 288 = (1910) M.W.N. 423 = 7 Ind. Cas. 695.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Order refusing to extend time for paying costs.

Application for restoration of suit dismissed for default—Applicant ordered to deposit costs of suit before certain date, on fulfilment of which the order of dismissal would stand as set aside—Application for extension of time for payment—Court's order refusing to extend time—Such order is judgment and is appealable. 1936 M.W.N. 915.

——S. 15—Judgment—Order as to costs.

An order awarding costs though discretionary is a judgment within S. 15 and is appealable. 22 Ind. Cas. 551 (Mad.).

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Order as to costs.

An order as to costs is not a "judgment" within the meaning of S. 15 of the Letters Patent, and is consequently not appealable. 17 M.L.J. 569.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Order to furnish security for costs—Appeal.

An order, that plaintiff should furnish security for costs is a judgment within the meaning of S. 15 of the Letters Patent. 26 M. 502. Also 13 M.L.J. 362 = 27 M. 121.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Taxation of costs.

An order as to costs passed by a Judge, sitting on original side, on a review of taxation by the taxing officer is a 'Judgment' and hence appealable. 42 Mad. 352 = 9 L.W. 322 = 36 M.L.J. 351 = 25 M.L.T. 292 = 50 Ind. Cas. 14 (F.B.).

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Order calling for finding.

In an appeal against a decree of the City Civil Judge in a suit for recovery of damages for breach of contract, a single Judge of the High Court directed the trial Court to take fresh evidence that may be adduced by the parties on the issue as regards the difference in the price of the goods on the date of the receipt and the date of delivery and send up its findings on the evidence so recorded. In an appeal against that order under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent, on a preliminary objection as to the maintainability of the appeal.

Held, the order calling for a finding was not a "judgment" within the meaning of Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent and the appeal was incompetent. I.L.R. (1949) Mad. 319 = A.I.R. 1949 Mad. 169 = 1948 M.W.N. 536 = 61 M.L.W. 531 = (1948) 2 M.L.J. 191.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Order calling for finding.

An order of a single Judge calling for a finding on an issue newly framed by him, or old, whether raised in the pleadings or not is not a judgment within Cl. 15, for no right or title can be said to be adjudicated upon by the mere framing of an issue and by directing that issue to be tried. 99 Ind. Cas. 585 = 25 M.L.W. 95 = 38 M.L.T. 206 = A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 317.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Order granting review.

An order which not only grants a review but also amends the decree, is a judgment under Cl. 15 and is therefore appealable. 106 Ind. Cas. 172 = 1927 M.W.N. 411 = A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 261.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Orders in ancillary proceedings—Independent proceeding ancillary to suit but not step towards judgment—Order is judgment.

An order in an independent proceeding which is ancillary to the suit, not instituted as a step towards judgment, but with a view to rendering the judgment effective if obtained, is a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent.

Where during the pendency of a suit by a Mahomedan widow to recover her share in the properties of her deceased husband in the hands of the other heirs an order was passed to the effect that the plaintiff should be paid a certain sum every month for her maintenance.

Held, that an order imposing an obligation of this nature in a pending suit is clearly more than a mere step towards final judgment or a mere interlocutory order necessary for proceeding with the suit and that it is a "judgment" within the meaning of Cl. 15. 86 Ind. Cas. 909 = 21 M.L.W. 308 = 1925 M.W.N. 109 = A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 443 = 48 M.L.J. 395.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Orders in partnership suit.

In a suit for dissolution of partnership and accounts, when the suit came for trial, the Court without determining any of the matters in controversy in the suit passed the following order:—"The whole case is referred to the Official Referee to determine what share the plaintiff had in the business carried on by the deceased H, and having determined that to take a full account as in an ordinary partnership action and report to this Court."

Held, that the order is not an interim decree or even a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 15 of Letters Patent. 73 Ind. Cas. 903 = A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 406.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Order on application for injunction.

An order on an application for an interim injunction is a judgment within the meaning of this Article, as its effect is to render the final judgment effective, if obtained. 95 Ind. Cas. 956 = 21 M.L.W. 310 = A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 586.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Order on Official Referee's report.

An order referring back a report of the Official Referee for further consideration is not a final order determining the rights of the parties within the meaning of Cl. 15 as a Judge is not precluded from varying or discharging such report and that it cannot take effect until it has received his imprimatur. Therefore, no appeal lies from that order. 107 Ind. Cas. 639 = 51 Mad. 235 = 1928 M.W.N. 45 = 27 M.L.W. 172 = A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 470 = 54 M.L.J. 136.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Order refusing amendment of plaint—Appeal.

An order refusing leave to amend is not a judgment. (1916) 1 M.W.N. 146 = 3 M.L.W. 107 = 32 Ind. Cas. 423.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Order refusing inspection.

An order refusing to allow inspection of certain accounts which were disclosed in the affidavit of documents of a party is not a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 15. 100 Ind. Cas. 642 = 25 M.L.W. 483 = 1927 M.W.N. 162 = A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 409 = 52 M.L.J. 192.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Refusal to transfer case.

An order refusing to transfer case is not appealable under Cl. 15. 106 Ind. Cas. 890 = 39 M.L.T. 605 = 1927 M.W.N. 804 = A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 232.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Refused to transfer case.

An order refusing to transfer a suit from one Court to another cannot be said to put an end to any of the rights of the parties, as its effect is only to allow the proceeding to go on and so no appeal lies against it. 107 Ind. Cas. 806 = 51 Mad. 330 = 27 M.L.W. 164 = A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 209 = 54 M.L.J. 710.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Order transferring suit.

An appeal lies from an order of the Judge sitting on the Original Side transferring a suit from the District Court to the High Court under Cl. 13 of the Letters Patent, the order being a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent. 73 Ind. Cas. 1054 = 1923 M.W.N. 681 = 47 Mad. 136 = A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 90 = 45 M.L.J. 153.

——C. 15—Judgment—Preliminary issue.

Where there is an issue directly to be tried and there is decision of a Judge upon matters in issue in the action between the parties, one cannot but call what he did, a judgment. 68 Ind. Cas. 921 = 16 M.L.W. 608 = 31 M.L.T. 284 = A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 44 = 43 M.L.J. 480.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Refusal to extend time for award.

An order refusing to enlarge the time for the submission of an award remitted to the umpire on an application under S. 13, Arbitration Act, is a judgment and is appealable. 109 Ind. Cas. 70 = 51 Mad. 103 = 1928 M.W.N. 107 = 27 M.L.W. 51 = A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 69 = 54 M.L.J. 49 (F.B.).

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Refusal to strike off pleadings.

An order by a Judge sitting on the Original Side of the High Court refusing to direct certain allegation in defendants' written statement to be struck out at the instance of the plaintiff as being unnecessary and scandalous is not a judgment. 91 Ind. Cas. 566 = 1925 M.W.N. 785 = 22 M.L.W. 868 = A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 64 = 49 M.L.J. 632.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Stay of execution—Judgment is one that puts an end to proceedings before the Court—Appeal lies against stay of execution.

Per KRISHNAN, J.—The test seems to be not what is the form of the adjudication but what is its effect on the suit or proceeding in which it is made. If its effect, whatever its form may be and whatever may be the nature of the application on which it is made, is to put an end to the suit or proceeding so far as the Court before which the suit or proceeding is pending is concerned or if its effect, if it is not complied with, is to put an end to the suit or proceeding, the adjudication is a judgment within the meaning of the clause. An adjudication on an application which is nothing more than a step towards obtaining a final adjudication in the suit is not a judgment within the meaning of the Letters Patent.

Per WALLER, J.—"All orders passed after contest inter partes are judgments."

An appeal lies under the Letters Patent against the order of a single Judge refusing stay of execution pending the disposal of an appeal or second appeal in this Court. The fact of there being a declaration is no bar to this Court staying the execution of the decree. 79 Ind. Cas. 109 = 47 Mad. 316 = 19 M.L.W. 427 = 34 M.L.T. 32 = 1924 M.W.N. 167 = A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 597 = 46 M.L.J. 138.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Stay order.

The word 'judgment' does not include an order granting stay of further proceedings on terms during the pendency of an appeal preferred from preliminary decree in a mortgage suit and an appeal against such order by judgment-debtor dissatisfied by the terms imposed is not maintainable. 117 Ind. Cas. 123 = 29 M.L.W. 510 = A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 197 = 56 M.L.J. 197.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Stay order.

An order granting injunction staying execution proceedings passed by a single Judge of the High Court is a judgment and is appealable. 102 Ind. Cas 396 = 38 M.L.T. 364 = 1927 M.W.N. 259 = A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 592 = 52 M.L.J. 670.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Stay order.

An order of a single Judge of the High Court staying execution of a decree of a moffussil Court is a "judgment" within the meaning of Cl. 15 and an appeal therefrom is maintainable under that clause. 100 Ind. Cas. 157 = 50 Mad. 380 = 25 M.L.W. 511 = 38 M.L.T. 51 = 1927 M.W.N. 248 = A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 398 = 52 M.L.J. 161.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Stay order.

No appeal lies under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent from an order of a single Judge of the High Court staying further trial of a suit. 18 M.L.T. 312 = 30 Ind. Cas. 942.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Transposing parties.

A determination, call it what you will, which has the effect, whether on a technical ground or on the merits, of putting an end to the proceedings as regards the particular people or in toto is a judgment and is appealable; but if the pronouncement leaves the suit free to go on, then it is not a judgment within the meaning of the clause. Every order on a contested petition is not a judgment. The line dividing judgments from orders must be drawn somewhere short of this. An order passed on the Original Side of the High Court transferring certain persons from the position of the defendants to that of plaintiffs is not a decision the effect of which is to put an end to the suit or proceeding and therefore it is not a judgment within Cl. (15). 94 Ind. Cas. 456 = 49 Mad. 539 = 23 M.L.W. 592 = 1926 M.W.N. 366 = A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 554 = 50 M.L.J. 361.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Refusal to extend time for furnishing security.

An order refusing to extend time for furnishing security ordered to be deposited for staying an administration suit and thus dismissing the application for stay is not a judgment. 105 Ind. Cas. 124 = 26 M.L.W. 333 = 39 M.L.T. 146 = 1927 M.W.N. 809 = A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 154 = 53 M.L.J. 494.

——Cl. 15—Judgment in revision.

An order of a single Judge of High Court interfering with the order of the lower Court in revision is a judgment, and is therefore, appealable. An order of a single Judge of the High Court rejecting a revision pettion on the ground that the objection therein taken to the jurisdiction of the lower Court was not substantiated amounts to a judgment and is appealable. An appellate Court has no jurisdiction in an appeal from an order under S. 195, Cr. P.C., to direct the lower Court to take fresh evidence. Ss. 568, 569, C.P.C., are not made applicable by S. 647, C.P.C., to proceedings before Civil Courts under S. 195, Cr.P.C. Proceedings under S. 195, Cr. P.C. are of a criminal rather than of a civil nature, notwithstanding that such proceedings before Judges of Civil Courts may be revisable under S. 622, C. P. Code. 30 M. 311 = 17 M.L.J. 123 = 2 M.L.T. 84.

——Cl. 15—Judgment.

An order directing a receiver in a suit to advance money to a guardian ad litem to conduct the defence on behalf of a defendant is not a judgment. 24 M. 511.

——Cl. 15—Judgment.

The fact that notice was sent or that the parties were heard or that costs were awarded cannot necessarily make the refusal a judgment. But where the Court is bound to decide one way or the other, any question of right or liability, the order, whatever that may be, is a judgment irrespective of the form or language in which it is expressed. 27 M. 432.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, S. 25—Order under.

A single Judge of the High Court when disposing of an application under S. 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (9 of 1887) exercises "Appellate jurisdiction" within the meaning of S. 13 of the High Courts Act and his order is a judgment even when the Judge merely declines to interfere in revision. It is immaterial whether before such refusal the records were called for and a notice issued to the other side. An appeal lies from such an order under S. 15 of the Letters Patent. In matters of discretion, the Court will not ordinarily interfere in appeal though it has jurisdiction to do so. 39 Mad. 235 = 18 M.L.T. 46 = 29 M.L.J. 12 = 29 Ind. Cas. 846.

——Cl. 15—Judgment—Dismissal of revision petition under S. 25 of Act (9 of 1887)—"Dismissal" after notice—Appeal.

The "dismissal" of a revision petition under S. 25, of Act (9 of 1887), by a single Judge of the High Court is a mere refusal to interfere in the exercise of his discretion and is not a judgment within the meaning of S. 15 of the Letters Patent. Consequently there is no appeal in such a case. The fact that such refusal is after notice to the other side and after the records are called for does not make it a judgment. 27 M. 340.

——Cl. 15—Order of single Judge—Small Cause—Revision.

A Letters Patent Appeal will lie against an order of rejection by a single Judge of the High Court of a petition for revision of a Small Cause judgment. [The Letters Patent have now been amended so as to exclude an appeal in a case like this.] 1 M.L.W. 726 = 16 M.L.T. 253 = 27 M.L.J. 480 = (1914) M.W.N. 832 = 26 Ind. Cas. 57.

——Cl. 15—Order of High Court Judge on a revision petition under S. 25 of Act (9 of 1887)—Appeal.

Under Cl. 15 no appeal lies to a Bench of the High Court against the order of a single Judge deciding a revision petition under S. 25 of the Act (9 of 1817). 6 M.L.T. 345 = 3 Ind. Cas. 953.

(12) Land Acquisition Appeal.

——Cls. 15 and 36—Land Acquisition Appeal—Dissenting judgment—Appeal.

The decision of the High Court in an appeal under S. 54 of the Land Acquisition Act is not a judgment within Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent. 41 Mad. 943 = 8 M.L.W. 261 = 24 M.L.T. 155 = 35 M.L.J. 110 = (1918) M.W.N. 540 = 49 Ind. Cas. 27.

(13) Leave to appeal.

——Cl. 15—Leave to appeal—Second appeal—Decision of single Judge—Leave to appeal—Considerations—Leave whether can be restricted to some points.

No hard and fast rule can be laid down as regards the grounds on which leave to appeal should be granted by a Judge under Cl. 15 of the amended Letters Patent against his decision passed in second appeal. The mere fact that there was a question of fact involved in the second appeal or that the second appeal was allowed and the decision of the lower Appellate Court reversed or modified, or that the valuation of a second appeal was not insignificant, is not by itself conclusive for the grant of such leave to appeal. Leave to appeal however may be limited to certain points only in which case the appellant will be confined to such points. Where the decision in second appeal was based on the construction of a deed of adoption which contained certain peculiar provisions.

Held, that leave should be refused. Principles applicable to granting of leave to appeal elaborately discussed. 53 Mad. 405 = 1930 M.W.N. 65 = 31 M.L.W. 254 = 58 M.L.J. 388.

——Cl. 15—Leave to appeal—Refusal.

An order refusing leave to appeal against a judgment in second appeal is not appealable.

Even if an order refusing leave to appeal could be regarded as a judgment under the first part of Cl. 15, an order to a different effect by a Division Bench on appeal therefrom would not suffice to confer right of appeal against the second appellate decree, because, under the second part of Cl. 15, the second appellate decree will be appealable only on a certificate granted by the Judge who heard the second appeal. (1935) M.W.N. 1308 = 42 M.L.W. 941 = A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 134 = 59 M. 293 = 160 Ind. Cas. 1036.

——Cl. 15—Leave to appeal—Refusal.

The intention of the legislature as appearing from Cl. 15 is that a judgment passed by a single Judge in a second appeal after 1st February, 1929, is final and not appealable and that an appeal could be entertained against the said judgment only if the Judge who decided the second appeal granted leave to appeal. If leave to appeal is refused by such Judge no appeal lies from the order refusing leave to appeal. 121 Ind. Cas. 621 = 52 Mad. 952 = 30 M.L.W. 386 = A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 75 = 57 M.L.J. 398.

——Cl. 15—Leave to appeal as pauper—Order excusing delay in applying for leave to appeal as pauper.

An order refusing to set aside an order excusing delay in the presentation of an application for leave to appeal as a pauper and admitting the appeal is not a 'judgment' within Cl. 15 and no appeal lies therefore under the Letters Patent. (1936) M.W.N. 41 = 43 M.L.W. 310 = 70 M.L.J. 306 = 59 M. 656 = A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 387 = 161 Ind. Cas. 416.

(14) New point.

——Cl. 15—New point.

The question, as to the reasonableness and sufficiency of notice to quit given by a landlord to his tenant for a year, is a pure question of fact and not one of law; and so, if it is not specifically raised in the lower Courts it cannot be raised for the first time in a Letters Patent Appeal in the High Court. 118 Ind. Cas. 279 = 30 M.L.W. 583 = A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 617.

(15) Order refusing to bring on record assignee.

——Cl. 15—Order refusing to bring on the record assignee of plaintiff.

An appeal lies from an order refusing to order assignee of plaintiff to be brought on the record, as such order amounts to a judgment. 24 M. 252.

(16) Order refusing to grant bail.

——Cl. 15—Order refusing to grant bail—Order in criminal trial—Appeal.

An order refusing to grant bail before the actual commencement of the trial is not a judgment within the meaning of S. 15 of the Letters Patent, but is an order in a criminal trial within the meaning of that clause. 19 M.L.J. 478 = 4 Ind. Cas. 871.

(17) Order under S. 195, Cr. P. Code.

——Cl. 15—Order under S. 195, Cr. P. Code.

Whether an appeal lies under the clause against an order of the High Court under S. 195, Cr. P. Code is doubtful. 39 Mad. 768 = 18 Cr. L.J. 434 = 38 Ind. Cas. 994.

(18) Pauper petition.

——Cl. 15—Pauper petition—Grant of—Appeal.

Appeal lies from an order by a single Judge on the Original Side giving leave to sue in forma pauperis. Such order being a judgment, is within the meaning of Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent. 85 Ind. Cas. 201 = 48 Mad. 700 = 20 M.L.W. 845 = 35 M.L.T. 136 = A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 167 = 47 M.L.J. 932.

——Cl. 15—Pauper petition—Refusal of—Appeal.

Whether there may be a right of appeal against an order rejecting an application for leave to file a memorandum of objections in forma pauperis or not, the appellate Court should not interfere. The question is one of the exercise of discretion and when the determination complained of is merely the result of the exercise of discretion on the part of the Judge in a matter, which was a proper subject for the exercise of that discretion the appellate Court would rightly decline to interfere. 3 M.H.C.R. 384, Appl. 94 Ind. Cas. 45 = 23 M.L.W. 511 = 1926 M.W.N. 255 = A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 656 = 50 M.L.J. 426.

(19) Refusal to revoke leave to sue.

——Cl. 15—Refusal to revoke leave to sue.

An order refusing to revoke an order giving leave to sue on the Original Side of the High Court is not a jdugment and thus no appeal lies therefrom. 105 Ind. Cas. 159 = 50 Mad. 770 = 26 M.L.W. 227 = 39 M.L.T. 339 = A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 846 = 53 M.L.J. 329.

(20) Refusal to receive security.

——Cl. 15—Refusal to receive security—Appeal.

An order refusing to receive security for costs directed to be furnished is, within the meaning of S. 15 of the Letters Patent, a judgment, and an appeal lies against such order. Where an order directing the appellant to furnish security for the costs of respondent did not specify a day within which to furnish the security and the Court afterwards refused to receive the security furnished, it was held, that the order was wrong and the appellants were directed to furnish security within a specified day. 12 M.L.J. 34 = 25 M. 654.

(21) Revenue Board.

——Cl. 15—Revenue Board.

The mere fact that the Civil Procedure Code is made applicable to proceedings under the Act including presumably the proceedings of the Board of Revenue cannot by itself convert the Board of Revenue into a Civil Court subordinate to the High Court unless for some other reason it is a Civil Court subordinate to the High Court, such as is referred to in S. 3, C.P. Code, which it is not. Unless it can be said that the Board of Revenue is subject to the superintendence of the High Court when acting under S. 205 it is impossible to hold that it is a Court subordinate to the High Court.

The Board of Revenue exercises judicial powers and is in that sense a Court as pointed out in 9 Cal. 295 but that does not make it necessarily an inferior Court subject to the High Court as the superior Court. In the absence of any provisions declaring the Board of Revenue to be subject to the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court it must be held that it is not so subject.

Cl. 16, Letters Patent, says that every Civil Court of the Presidency is subject to the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court. S. 15, Charter Act (Replaced by S. 107, Government of India Act) provides that every Court subject to the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court is subject to its power of superintendence. Reading these two provisions together every Civil Court of the Presidency is subject to the High Court's power of superintendence, in other words, is subordinate to that Court. 9 Cal. 295 (P.C.), Foll.

Revenue Courts, although so designated, on account of their more limited jurisdiction, are nevertheless, properly understood, Civil Courts.

The revenue officers having been by the very terms of the Act, constituted Courts, when hearing certain suits or applications, it is a necessary corollary, that the Board, governed as it is by the same rules of procedure, should also be deemed a Court, when dealing with the same matters at a later stage.

It is wrong to assume that the Courts mentioned in S. 107 of the Government of India Act (S. 15, Charter Act) as being subject to the High Court's appellate jurisdiction, are restricted to such Courts as were in existence, at the time of the passing of the Charter Act or the issue of the Letters Patent. 114 Ind. Cas. 161 = A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 1032 = 55 M.L.J. 798 (F.B.).

(22) Review.

——Cl. 15—Review—Order refusing to review judgment passed in second appeal.

Cl. 15, when properly construed, means that no judgment of a Judge of the High Court in the exercise of second appellate jurisdiction is appealable without leave. An order of High Court refusing to grant review from its judgment passed in second appeal is an order made in the exercise of such second appellate jurisdiction. Consequently, there is no appeal without leave from such an order. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 399 = 47 M.L.W. 178 = (1938) M.W.N. 312 = (1938) 1 M.L.J. 402 = I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 633 = 177 Ind. Cas. 762.

——Cl. 15—Review of judgment passed in appeal under C.P. Code, S. 114—Practice.

The High Court is competent to entertain an application to review a judgment passed in a Letters Patent Appeal. S. 114, C.P.C. applies to judgment under the High Court's Letter Patent. 40 Mad. 651 = 19 M.L.T. 126 = (1916) 1 M.W.N. 135 = 3 L.W. 172 = 32 M.L.J. 144 = 32 Ind. Cas. 873.

(23) Revision and appeal.

——Cl. 15—Revision and appeal.

Whether it is doubtful whether the decision appealed from was in revision or second appeal but the party aggrieved had a right of second appeal, it must be construed as an appeal and a Letters Patent Appeal. would lie in an appropriate case. A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 489.

(24) Sanction for prosecution.

——Cl. 15—Sanction for prosecution.

A sanction for prosecution by a single Judge sitting on the Original Side is an order and not a judgment and no appeal lies. 71 Ind. Cas. 126 = 45 Mad. 928 = 16 M.L.W. 365 = 1922 M.W.N. 594 = 31 M.L.T. 287 = 24 Cr. L.J. 78 = A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 495 = 43 M.L.J. 375 (F.B.).

——Cl. 15—Sanction—Judgment—Criminal trial—Probability of conviction.

An order passed under S. 195, Cr. P.C. is not a sentence or order 'in a criminal trial' and is therefore appealable under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent. 12 M.L.J. 408.

(25) Scope.

——Cls. 15 and 39—Scope—Final judgment in appeal by the Judges of the High Court against judgment of the Original Side Judge of the High Court—Whether governed by Cl. 39 of the Letters Patent.

An appeal preferred to a Bench of Judges against a decision of a single Judge sitting on the Original Side of the High Court under the provisions of Cl. 15, Letters Patent, confers, not original, but appellate jurisdiction upon the Court to entertain an appeal; and when such an appeal has been entertained and heard, it is pursuant to the appellate jurisdiction conferred by Cl. 15. Though the appeal relates to a matter decided in the exercise of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction, the appeal itself is not in the exercise of that jurisdiction, but as mentioned in the exercise of appellate jurisdiction. That being the position such a judgment in respect of which an application for leave to appeal to the Judicial Committee of His Majesty's Council is made is not a final judgment, decree or order in the exercise of the Court's original jurisdiction, and hence it does not come within Cl. 39 of the Letters Patent. 61 M.L.W. 214 = A.I.R. 1948 Mad. 331 = 1948 M.W.N. 189 = (1948) 1 M.L.J. 230.

——Cl. 15—Scope.

——Cl. 15 is not controlled by Civil P.C., and hence an appeal against the judgment of a single Judge of the High Court passed on appeal under O. 43, Civil P.C. lies under Cl. 15. 38 M.L.W. 96 = A.I.R. 1933 Mad. 570 = 65 M.L.J. 222 = 56 M. 915 = (1933) M.W.N. 850 = 145 Ind. Cas 449 (F.B.).

——Cl. 15—Scope.

Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent is not controlled by S. 105, C.P. Code. And it is open to a person though he does not appeal against the order of remand, to attack it in his appeal against the final decree. 118 Ind. Cas. 291 = 30 M.L.W. 787 = A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 349.

——Cl. 15—Scope and nature.

Per THIRUVENKATACHARIAR J.—Both S. 98, C.P. Code, and Cl. 36, Letters Patent, are mere rules of procedure, differing in that respect from Cl. 15, Letters Patent, which gives a right of appeal in certain cases from the decision of a single Judge or of a Division Bench. 116 Ind. Cas. 343 = 29 M.L.W. 823 = 52 Mad. 563 = A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 641 = 57 M.L.J. 264 (F.B.).

(26) Scope of appeal.

——Cl. 15—Scope of appeal—Whole case if open.

Where there is an appeal under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent the whole case is open on the appeal and not merely the point upon which the Judges composing the Division Bench had differed. 32 Mad. 95 = 4 M.L.T. 110 = 18 M.L.J. 497 = 1 Ind. Cas. 977 (F.B.). See too 11 M.L.J. 10 (F.B.).

(27) Trial.

——Cl. 15—Trial—If includes appeal.

The word "Trial" includes an appeal under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent. 22 M.L.J. 44 = 10 M.L.T. 502 = (1911) 2 M.W.N. 479 = 12 Cr. L.J. 565 = 12 Ind. Cas. 653.

——Cl. 15—Miscellaneous—Order of single Judge directing prosecution under S. 478, Cr. P. Code—Appeal Cr. P. Code, Ss. 215 and 478.

Even if an appeal lies under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent from an order of commitment under S. 478 of the Cr. P.C. by a Judge of the High Court trying a Civil Suit in the Original Side, the order cannot under S. 215 of the same Code be set asidee exept on a poirt of law. 21 Cr.L.J. 28 = 10 M.L.W. 568 = 37 M.L.J. 652 = 54 Ind. Cas. 172.

——Cls. 15, 18—Miscellaneous—Insolvency Act, S. 73.

Where Judges of the High Court hearing an appeal from a Commissioner's order in Insolvency do not agree in their opinion, a further appeal lies according to S. 15, S. 18 confers the power given by S. 73 of the Insolvency Act but does not deny the right of further appeal. 34 Mad. 121 = 8 M.L.T. 101 = 6 Ind. Cas. 387.

——Cl. 15. See C.P.Code, S. 104. 13 M.L.J. 497.

——Cl. 15—Application for postponement of.

A suit was referred to a Judge in Chambers and a certificate was agreed to by the defendant which left certain matters undermined. The case was set down for hearing in order that a decree might be passed in terms of the certificate. The plaintiff applied for a postponement of the passing of the decree will the matters had been determined. Held, that the application should be granted. 24 M. 252.

——Cl. 16—Revision—Revenue Court's decision.

No revision lies under S. 115, C.P. Code, or S. 107 of the Government of India Act or Cl. 16 of the Madras Letters Patent against an order of the Revenue Divisional Officer acting under Act (3 of 1895) as such officer is not a Court subject to the superintendence of the High Court. Meaning of 'appellate jurisdiction' discussed. 66 Ind. Cas. 556 = 14 M.L.W. 548 = 1921 M.W.N. 767 = A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 337 = 41 M.L.J. 577.

——Cl. 16—Court subordinate to High Court closed for vacation—Appeal, if can be received by High Court.

The High Court has no jurisdiction to receive an appeal which should be filed in a Court subordinate to it, when that Court is closed for vacation. A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 423 = 58 M.L.W. 329 = (1945) 2 M.L.J. 131 = 1945 M.W.N. 418 = I.L.R. (1946) Mad. 261.

——Cl. 17—Scope of the jurisdiction under—Power of High Court to appoint guardian in respect of the undivided property of minor members of a Hindu joint family and to sanction sale of such property.

In the exercise of its inherent jurisdiction vested in it under the Letters Patent, which jurisdiction is preserved by S. 3 of the Guardian and Wards Act, the High Court has power to appoint a guardian in respect of the person and property of minors covering even their undivided interest.

The father and manager of a Hindu joint family who had besides five minor sons, two adult sons and his wife and an unmarried daughter who have rights of maintenance, applied under Cl. 17 of the Letters Patent for being appointed guardian of the ancestral joint family property belonging to the minor sons and for sanction of the sale of that property as being beneficial to the interest of the minor sons. On a question whether the High Court had jurisdiction to entertain such an application and power to pass the orders as prayed for.

Held, that the High Court would be justified in appointing the guardian both by virtue of the power conferred under Cl. 17 of the Letters Patent and of the practice in this High Court and according sanction to the proposed sale as, in the circumstances, it was highly advantageous and beneficial to the interests of the entire family including the minor coparceners, subject of course to proper safeguards being provided for the minors' share of the purchase money being invested in Government securities and deposited with the Registrar of the Court. A.I.R. 1949 Mad. 260 = (1948) 2 M.L.J. 47.

——Cl. 17—Infants.

In Cl. 32, there is no restriction either as to place or persons, as it provides in the most general terms, that the Supreme Court, in the matter of appointing guardians for infants, is authorised to follow the same order and course, as that "observed in that part of Great Britain called England." The High Court can have jurisdiction over an infant though not of British birth although residing outside the limits of the Presidency town. (1936) M.W.N. 1285 = 44 M.L.W. 904 = 71 M.L.J. 873 = A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 51 = I.L.R. (1937) Mad. 383 = 169 Ind. Cas. 189.

——Cl. 17—Charter of 1800, Cl. 22 — Inhabitant of Madras can invoke jurisdiction for protection of parental rights.

By Cl. 22 of Charter of 1800, jurisdiction is conferred upon the Supreme Court (Madras) over the inhabitants of Madras, irrespective of any question of race or birth. Where a person owns a valuable and spacious house at Madras, for which he pays the rates, keeps up an establishment there and resides in it during his visits to the city at frequent intervals, he would answer the description of "inhabitant of Madras." (1936) M.W.N. 1285 = 44 M.L.W. 904 = 71 M.L.J. 873 = A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 51 = I.L.R. (1937) Mad. 383 = 169 Ind. Cas. 189.

——Cl. 17—Resident of Madras can invoke jurisdiction for protection of parental rights.

Cl. 17 does not impose as a condition the residence of the infant for the exercise of the jurisdiction thereunder. A resident of Madras can, therefore, invoke the jurisdiction of the High Court of Madras for the protection of his right as a parent. The question as to where the children are residing is immaterial so long as they are within the Presidency. (1936) M.W.N. 1285 = 44 M.L.W. 904 = 71 M.L.J. 873 = A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 51 = I.L.R. (1937) Mad. 383 = 169 Ind. Cas. 189.

——Cl. 18—Power of High Court to entertain insolvency petition of mofussil debtor.

Under Cl. 18 the High Court is not empowered to adjudicate a debtor, who is outside the limits of the Presidency Town, an insolvent, and pass interim orders even when the mofussil Courts which would ordinarily exercise the jurisdiction happen to be closed. The clause only means that, with regard to the original jurisdiction of the High Court, that is to be governed by the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act and that with regard to the appellate jurisdiction in respect of cases arising under the Provincial Insolvency Act, that is to be regulated by that Act. (1934) M.W.N. 157 = 66 M.L.J. 428 = A.I.R. 1934 Mad. 314 = 39 M.L.W. 493 = 57 M. 453 = 148 Ind. Cas. 849.

——Cl. 18—Scope.

Cl. 12, Latters Patent, does not affect the provisions of Cl. 18. 112 Ind. Cas. 149 = 51 Mad. 540 = 28 M.L.W. 285 = A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 732 = 55 M.L.J. 171 (F.B.).

——Cl. 21—Inherent powers.

The High Court has inherent powers apart from S. 151, Civil P. C. but can exercise them only on Original Side. A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 161 = 1943 M.W.N. 731 = 56 M.L.W. 698 = (1943) 2 M.L.J. 557 = 216 Ind. Cas. 44.

——Cl. 21—Scope.

Where the High Court deals as appellate or revisional authority with a case coming from a mofussil Court, it can only apply such law or equity and rule of good conscience as would be applied by the mofussil Court. Therefore, it can grant only an injunction in respect of such a case in accordance with the provision of O. 39. Consequently, the High Court has no power in such a case to grant an injunction staying the execution of a decree in a mofussil Court pending a revision petition. 37 M.L.W. 110 = (1933) M.W.N. 18 = 64 M.L.J. 112 = 56 M. 563 = A.I.R. 1933 Mad. 500 = 141 Ind. Cas. 607.

——Cl. 25—Scope.

Per Mockett and Lakshmana Rao, JJ.—The words of Cl. 25 give a most important and unfettered right of reservation of points of law at Sessions. A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 353 = (1936) M.W.N. 281 = 43 M.L.W. 548 = 70 M.L.J. 635 = 37 Cr.L.J. 637 = 162 Ind. Cas. 592 (2) (F.B.).

——Cl. 25—Scope.

The plea of autrefois acquit arose "in the trial" or "in the course of the trial" according to Cl. 25 or S. 434, Criminal P.C. and was taken at proper time and that the trial Judge was entitled to reserve the question if he thought fit as a point of law which had arisen in the trial. A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 353 = (1936) M.W.N. 281 = 43 M.L.W. 548 = 70 M.L.J. 635 = 37 Cr.L.J. 637 = 162 Ind. Cas. 592 (2) (F.B.).

——Cl. 25—In the trial, significance of.

For the purposes of Cl. 25, it is not necessary that the point referred should have been taken at the trial and decided by the Judge. The words "in the trial", in the Letters Patent and "on the trial" in the English Court of Crown Cases Act, on which are founded the provisions of Cl. 25 mean the same thing. A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 353 = (1936) M.W.N. 281 = 43 M.L.W. 548 = 70 M.L.J. 635 = 37 Cr.L.J. 637 = 162 Ind. Cas. 592 (2) (F.B.).

——Cls. 25 and 26—Criminal Law Amendment Act (14 of 1908), S. 6 (2)—Judgment under—Appeal.

The judgment of a speical Criminal Bench of the High Court constituted under S. 6 (b) of the Indian Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1908, is open to review on a certificate granted by the Advocate-General under Cl. 26 of the Letters Patent. The Court of review cannot go into matters not covered by the certificate of Advocate-General. 35 Mad. 397 = (1912) M.W.N. 549 = 12 M.L.T. 1 = 13 Cr.L.J. 352 = 14 Ind. Cas. 896 (F.B.).

——Cl. 26—Alleged inadmissible evidence allowed.

Per Full Bench (Madhavan Nair and Curgenven, JJ., dissenting).—"Decision" in Cl. 26 does not cover a case where the Judge has not applied his mind to the matter and has not pronounced an opinion on it. Consequently where the Judge has allowed certain alleged inadmissible evidence and no objection is taken to it either at the time when the evidence is given or when such evidence is referred to by the Judge in his summing up to the jury, there is no decision on a point of law regarding the admissibility of such evidence and as such the granting of certificate by Advocate-General is incompetent.

Per Madhavan Nair, J.—On an inquiry following the grant of a certificate the High Court has jurisdiction to say that the Advocate-General's certificate is misconceived and should not have been granted on the ground that there is no decision on a point of law involved in the case and if it comes to that conclusion, the petition may straightaway be dismissed without any further consideration of the merits of the case. (1934) M.W.N. 1410 = A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 486 = 42 M.L.W. 53 = 58 M. 523 = 36 Cr.L.J. 1398 = 68 M.L.J. 1 (Sup.) = 158 Ind. Cas. 662 (F.B.).

——Cl. 26—Altering sentence.

The expression 'alter the sentence' in Cl. 26 of the Letters Patent includes setting it aside. The High Court can on review not merely reduce the sentence but has the power to set aside the conviction. 1930 M.W.N. 249 (F.B.).

——Cl. 26—"Decision."

Held, (Eddy, J. dissenting) that the word 'decision' in Cl. 26 includes every mental conclusion on which the judgment or charge is based and not merely matters actually stated at the Bar for the direct decision of the Court. It thus includes directions, misdirections or non-directions, to a jury. 1930 M.W.N. 249 (F.B.).

——Cl. 26—"Point of law."

The expression "point of law" in Cl. 26 of the Letters Patent means the same thing as matter of law in S. 418 of the Cr. P. Code. It includes such misdirection or non-direction as would permit an appeal against the verdict of a jury. And misdirection includes not only an error in laying down the law by which the jury are to be guided but also a defect in summing up the evidence or in not summing it up or in summing it up erroneously.

Per Eddy, J., dissenting.—'A point of view' referred to in Cl. 26 means a point of law submitted to and decided by the trial Judge or any direction as to the law given by him in the course of his summing up to the jury. 1930 M.W.N. 249 (F.B.).

——Cls. 28, 29—Power of High Court to stay criminal proceedings taken in consequence of order under S. 476, Cr.P.C.—Stay of proceedings pending appeal on the civil side from original decree. See HIGH COURTS ACT, S. 15. 18 M.L.J. 466 = 31. M 510 = 4 M.L.T. 186. Also 3 Bom. L.R. 58 = 25 B. 478.

——Cl. 36—Per Krishnan Pandalai, J.—The correct procedure to be followed by the Judge to whom a case is referred under Cl. 36 of the Letters Patent of the Madras High Court is to send the case back for disposal to the referring Judges after pronouncing his opinion, though it may be possible in some cases for the referee Judge to decide the whole case in accordance with the view of the majority. (1934) M.W.N. 135 = 39 M.L.W. 588 = A.I.R. 1934 Mad. 436 = 67 M.L.J. 721 = 57 Mad. 979 = 152 Ind. Cas. 75.

——Cl. 36—Full Bench decision doubted—Reference to arger Bench—Proper procedure.

Per Beasley, C.J. and Reilly, J.—When a question of law has been referred to a Full Bench and the Bench or the majority, of the Bench has given an answer, no Judge sitting alone and no Bench of two Judges is at liberty to disregard that answer or to treat it as not binding on them as if it was an opinion expressed obiter in disposing of an ordinary case and unnecessary for the disposal of that case, or to refer it to a larger Bench. The proper procedure is to refer the matter to the Chief Justice who may then consider whether the question should be referred to a larger Bench. A.I.R. 1932 Mad. 612 = (1932) M.W.N. 350 = 36 M.L.W. 292 = 63 M.L.J. 450 = 55 M. 883 = 140 Ind. Cas. 331 (F.B.).

——Cl. 36—Difference of opinions among Judges.

Per Full Bench.—Whether the appeal is under C.P. Code, or under the Letters Patent, the procedure to be adopted in either case by the High Court in case of an equal division of opinion between the Judges is to be governed by Cl. 36, Letters Patent, and not by S. 98, C.P. Code. 116 Ind. Cas. 343 = 52 Mad. 563 = 29 M.L.W. 823 = A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 641 = 57 M.L.J. 264 (F.B.).

——Cl. 36—Difference among Judges—In a Small Cause revision.

In case of difference among Judges forming the High Court Bench, S. 98, C.P. Code, does not apply but Cl. 36 of the Letters Patent applies and senior Judge's opinion prevails. 85 Ind. Cas. 1016 = A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 281 = 47 M.L.J. 876.

——Cl. 36—Difference of opinion—Revision—Procedure.

In cases of difference of opinion in revision cases, Cl. 36 and not S. 98, C.P.C. regulates the procedure. 18 M.L.T. 591 = 17 Cr.L.J. 42 = 32 Ind. Cas. 330.

——Cl. 36—Civil revision petition—Heard by two Judges—Difference of opinion—Latters Patent, Art. 36 applies and not S. 575 of Civil Procedure Code.

Where a civil revision petition is heard by two Judges and there is a difference of opinion between them, S. 575, C.P.C. (O.C.), applies and not Art. 36 of the Letters Patent. 25 M. 548.

——Cl. 36—Difference of opinion among Judges—Sanction, Cr. P. Code, S. 195 (6).

Where two Judges of the High Court differ in opinion as to whether a sanction given by the Lower Court should be revoked on an application under S. 195 (6) the provision in Cl. 36 of the Letters Patent applies and the opinion of the senior Judge prevails. 39 Mad. 750 = 11 M.L.T. 367 = (1912) M.W.N. 499 = 22 M.L.J. 419 = 13 Cr.L.J. 209 = 14 Ind. Cas. 305 (F.B.).

——Cl. 36—Scope.

Per Thiruvenkatachariar, J.—Both S. 98, C.P. Code and Cl. 36, Letters Patent, are mere rules of procedure, differing in that respect from Cl. 15, Letters Patent, which gives a right of appeal in certain cases from the decision of a single Judge or of a Division Bench. 116 Ind. Cas. 343 = 29 M.L.W. 823 = 52 Mad. 563 = A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 641 = 57 M.L.J. 264 (F.B.).

——Cl. 36—Applicability of amended clause pending cases.

The amended Cl. 36 applies to all pending cases. 119 Ind. Cas. 160 = 52 Mad. 584 = 29 M.L.W. 874 1929 M.W.N. 564 = A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 497 = 57 M.L.J. 22 (F.B.).

——Cl. 36—Senior Judge's decision to prevail—Appeal from Original Side of High Court.

In an Original Side appeal, when Judges are equally divided in opinion, the opinion of the senior Judge prevails. S. 575, C.P.C. (O.C.) has no application. 29 M. 1 at 24.

——S. 37—Rule 105 of Appellate Side Rules—If ultra vires.

R. 105 of the Appellate Side Rules of the High Court is authorised by S. 37 of the Letters Patent, and is therefore not ultra vires. R. 105 of the High Court Appellate Side does not contravene the provisions of the C.P.C. by limiting the right of appeal conferred by S. 100, C.P.Code or by varying the provisions of O. 41 as to the mode of disposing of appeals. 2 L.W. 999 = 18 M.L.T. 383 = 29 M.L.J. 784 = (1915) M.W.N. 817 = 31 Ind. Cas. 74.

——Cl. 39—Applicability.

Final judgment in appeal by the Judges of the High Court against judgment of the Original Side Judge of the High Court. See LETTERS PATENT (MAD.), CLS. 15 AND 39. (1948) 1 M.L.J. 230 = A.I.R. 1948 Mad. 331 = 61 M.L.W. 214.

——Cl. 39—Decree in testamentary matter.

A decree of the High Court in a testamentary matter is appealable to His Majesty in Council when the case is such that if it were an ordinary civil case it would be appealable under S. 109. 97 Ind. Cas. 836 = 49 Mad. 954 = 1926 M.W.N. 931 = A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 986 = 51 M.L.J. 299.

——Cl. 39—Deputy Collector sanctioning prosecution on Income-Tax Officer—High Court order refusing to quash proceedings, if appealable—Privy Council—Leave to appeal.

Where the High Court refuses to quash by its writ of certiorari the prosecution sanctioned by a Deputy Collector on Income-Tax Officer, leave to the appeal of the Privy Council should be given under Cl. 39 of the Letters Patent, since it appertains to criminal jurisdiction. Moreover Cl. 39 of the Letters Patent does not apply to the case of a writ of certiorari. 14 M.L.T. 421 = 25 M.L.J. 565 = 14 Cr.L.J. 656 = 21 Ind. Cas. 896.

——Cl. 39—Order in insolvency proceedings—Appeal lies to Privy Council against order under S. 8.

A judgment passed under S. 8 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act by the High Court in its appellate jurisdiction setting aside or annulling a prior order is appealable under Cl. 39 of the Letters Patent to the Privy Council.

In an insolvency matter (original or appellate) an application for leave to appeal lies under Cl. 39 of the Letters Patent, even if no such application lies under S. 109 of the C.P. Code. 91 Ind. Cas. 126 = 35 M.L.T. 57 = 22 M.L.W. 362 = A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 243.

——Cl. 39—Revisional jurisdiction of the High Court is a part of appellate jurisdiction under Cl. 39. 1934 M.W.N. 5 (F.B.).

——Cl. 39—Order in revision by single Judge—No appeal lies to the Privy Council from the decree or order of one Judge of a High Court.

By S. 44 of the Letters Patent, the Letters Patent are subject to imperial legislation. So S. 39 of the Letters Patent fails as against S. 111 of the C.P. Code. Hence, though since the amendment of the Letters Patent, the judgment of a Single Judge sitting in revision is not appealable to two Judges and therefore may be regarded as a final decree of a High Court from which a right of appeal to the Privy Council is given in all cases by S. 39 of the Letters Patent. S. 111 of the C. P. Code, prevails and no appeal lies to the Privy Council from the decree of a single Judge of a High Court. 75 Ind.

Cas. 604 = 46 Mad. 958 = 18 M.L.W. 655 = 1923 M.W.N. 719 = A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 399 = 46 M.L.J. 117.

——Cl. 39—Small Cause revision—Question raised in—Leave must be granted on substantial question of law.

Under Cl. 39 of the Letters Patent, leave to appeal to the Privy Council should be granted where the decision of the High Court involves a substantial question of law even in cases of revisions under S. 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, if they necessitate the interpretation of the section of the statute which may be of great private importance. In this case the question was about the meaning of S. 12 of Madras Estates Land Act and the right in dispute was not exactly measurable in money. 66 Ind. Cas. 686 = 1922 M.W.N. 46 = 15 M.L.W. 140 = 30 M.L.T. 42 = A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 34 = 42 M.L.J. 78.

——Cl. 39—Suspension of Vakil from practice.

No leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council can be granted against an order suspending a Vakil from practice which is a disciplinary matter and not a judgment. 69 Ind. Cas. 290 = 16 M.L.W. 328 = 1922 M.W.N. 530 = 31 M.L.T. 173 = A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 440 = 43 M.L.J. 382 (F.B.).

——Cl. 41—Right of appeal to Privy Council depends on High Court declaring case as fit.

The right of appeal given by Cl. 41 is subject to the proviso that the High Court shall declare that the case is a fit one for appeal. The High Court, therefore, has the duty of satisfying itself, before declaring a case fit for appeal, that the case falls within the limits prescribed by the Privy Council for the entertainment of appeals in criminal matters. A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 793 = (1935) M.W.N. 5 = 68 M.L.J. 93 (Sup). = 42 M.L.W. 140 = 37 Cr.L.J. 64 = 159 Ind. Cas. 240 (S.B.).

——Cl. 44—If abrogates the effect of Cl. 15. See Letters Patent (Madras), Cls. 15 and 44. (1946) 2 M.L.J. 165 = A.I.R. 1947 Mad. 5 (1).

——Cl. 44—Appeal to Privy Council—No appeal lies to the Privy Council from the decree or order of one Judge of a High Court.

By S. 44 of the Letters Patent, the Letters Patent are subject to Imperial legislation. So S. 39 of the Letters Patent fails as against S. 111 of the C. P. Code. Hence, though since the amendment of the Letters Patent, the judgment of a single Judge sitting in revision is not appealable to two Judges and therefore may be regarded as a final decree of a High Court from which a right of appeal to the Privy Council is given in all cases by S. 39 of the Letters Patent. S. 111 of the C.P. Code, prevails and no appeal lies to the Privy Council from the decree of a single Judge of a High Court. 75 Ind. Cas. 604 = 46 Mad. 958 = 18 M.L.W. 655 = 1923 M.W.N. 719 = A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 399 = 46 M.L.J. 117.

——Cl. 44—Scope of.

The provisions of Cl. 44 do not enable Courts by implication to supplement the Letters Patent by importing into it all Acts ejusdem generis passed by the Governor-General in Council. The provision is only intended to empower the Governor-General in Council to legislate with a view to supplement the omission in the Letters Patent. 40 Mad. 651 = (1916) 1 M.W.N. 135 = 3 L.W. 172 = 19 M.L.T. 126 = 32 M.L.J. 144 = 32 Ind. Cas. 873.

——(Malta)—S. 33—Membership of Senate or Assembly.

Court of Appeal in Malta is finally to determine all questions which may arise as to the right of any person to be or remain a member of the Senate or the Legislative Assembly and an appeal does not lie to the Board of Privy Council. 124 Ind. Cas. 582 = A.I.R. 1930 P.C. 227 = 59 M.L.J. 416 = 33 M.L.W. 51 (P.C.).

——(Nagpur) Cl. 10—Applicability—Judgments delivered prior to constitution of High Court.

Cl. 10 deals with appeals against judgments of the Judges of the High Court or of one Judge of any Division Court and it has no application to judgments delivered previous to the constitution of the High Court. A.I.R. 1936 Nag. 118 = I.L.R. (1936) Nag. 58 = 164 Ind. Cas. 1072.

——Cl. 10—Applicability.

The right of appeal from a decree of a single Judge to the High Court is not governed by S. 96 or S. 100 or S. 104 of the Civil P.C. but by Cl. 10 of the Letters Patent. The Code makes no provision for an appeal within the High Court, that is to say, from a Single Judge of the High Court. 1940 N.L.J. 37 = A.I.R. 1940 Nag. 39 = I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 141 = 186 Ind. Cas. 129 (F.B.).

——(Nagpur) Cl. 10—"Judgment"—Meaning of—Order appointing a receiver—Appeal.

The word "Judgment" in Cl. 10 of the Letters Patent means "decree" in civil cases. The mere fact that a particular order is one from which an appeal lies as an appeal from an order under the C.P. Code, does not make that order a decree. An order appointing a receiver, although appealable as an order made by an original Court, would not render it a judgment. Such an order passed by a single Judge of the High Court during the pendency of an appeal is not appealable under Cl. 10 of the Letters Patent. I.L.R. (1947) Nag. 51 = 229 Ind. Cas. 222 = 1947 N.L.J. 51 = A.I.R. 1947 Nag. 159.

——(Nagpur) Cl. 10—Judgment—Meaning.

The word 'judgment' as used in Cl. 10 means in civil cases a decree. Order admitting legal representative on record is not a "judgment." A.I.R. 1946 Nag. 424 = I.L.R. (1946) Nag. 482 = 1946 N.L.J. 377.

——Cl. 10—'Judgment'—Meaning of.

A judgment in the Letters Patent must mean not a judgment as defined in the Civil P. C. but a judgment in its final definitive sense embodying a decree. Consequently, a decision by a Single Judge of the High Court in a matter concerning the admission of legal representatives on the record is not appealable under Letters Patent because it is not a decision of finality or one that goes to the root of proceedings. It has the effect of allowing the litigation which is proceeding to further proceed to a final adjudication. 1945 N.L.J. 128 = I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 286 = A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 156.

——Cl. 10—Judgment—Meaning—Order under O. 41, R. 5, Civil P. C.

The term "judgment" in the Letters Patent of the High Court means, in civil cases, a decree and not a judgment in the ordinary sense. An order granting stay of execution or refusing to vacate the stay order already passed under O. 41, r. 5, Civil P. C. is not a decree within the meaning of S. 2 (2) Civil P. C. It is merely an order and not a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 10. No Letters Patent appeal, therefore, lies against such order. A.I.R. 1943 Nag. 282 = 1943 N.L.J. 389 = I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 453 = 211 Ind. Cas. 237.

——Cl. 10—"Judgment"—Order dismissing appeal from order refusing to extend time for payment under O. 34, R. 2 (2), C. P. Code—Appeal.

An order of a Judge of the High Court dismissing an appeal filed against an order of the trial Court refusing to extend the time for payment of mortgage-money under O. 34, R. 2 (2) C. P. Code, is not a decree as defined in S. 2 (2) but is an order as defined in S. 2 (14), C. P. Code, and is, therefore, not a judgment within Cl. 10 of the Letters Patent. Consequently no Letters

Patent appeal lies against the order. I.L.R. (1947) Nag. 351 = A.I.R. 1948 Nag. 85 = 1947 N.L.J. 365.

——Cl. 10—Judgment—Order refusing application for leave to appeal in forma pauperis.

An order refusing an application for leave to appeal in forma pauperis is not a "judgment" within the meaning of Cl. 10 of the Letters Patent as it does not amount to a decree, and is therefore not appealable. 230 Ind. Cas. 449 = 1947 N.L.J. 26.

——Cl. 10—'Judgment'—Order rejecting application to rehear second Appeal—Appealability.

The term 'judgment' referred to in Cl. 10 of the Letters Patent for the Nagpur High Court means in civil cases a decree as defined in S. 2 (2), C. P. Code. An order rejecting an application under O. 41, R. 21, C. P. Code, read with O. 42 of that Code, to rehear a second appeal, does not come within the term "decree" and so it is not appealable under Cl. 10. I.L.R. (1948) Nag. 188 = A.I.R. 1949 Nag. 188 = 1948 N.L.J. 406.

——Cl. 10—Land Acquisition Act, S. 54

Appeal can be filed from the decision of a single Judge exercising powers in first appeal under S. 54, Land Acquisition Act. A.I.R. 1944 Nag. 284 = 1944 N.L.J. 267 = I.L.R. (1944) Nag. 780.

——Cl. 10—Leave to appeal, if can be restricted to particular point of law.

While granting leave to appeal under Cl. 10, it is competent for the Judge of the High Court to declare on what particular point of law he allows permission to appeal. A.I.R. 1943 Nag. 175 = 1943 N.L.J. 79 = I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 540 = 206 Ind. Cas. 602.

——Cl. 10. Leave to appeal should not be lightly given. Though it is doubtless very difficult to lay down a hard and fast rule, leave should not be granted where the matter in dispute is trifling, however interesting it may be. A.I.R. 1943 Nag. 23 = I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 67 = 1942 N.L.J. 506 = 203 Ind. Cas. 67.

——Cls. 10, 27—Leave to appeal—Refusal—Judge—If can subsequently re-call his own order and declare case fit for appeal.

R. 10 of the rules made by the Nagpur High Court, under the powers conferred by Cl. 27 read with sub-sec. (1) of S. 106 of the Government of India Act, precludes any possibility of an applicant approaching a Judge a second time when his application for a declaration under Cl. 10 that the case is a fit one for appeal has been refused. Hence when once a Judge has refused to declare that a case is fit one for appeal under Cl. 10, he cannot subsequently revise or review his own order and recall it and declare that the case is fit one for appeal under Cl. 10. A.I.R. 1940 Nag. 47 = 1939 N.L.J. 535 = I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 34 = 187 Ind. Cas. 253.

——Cl. 10—Leave when necessary.

Leave to file an appeal under the Letters Patent is necessary only for an appeal from a judgment passed by a single Judge in the exercise of his appellate powers in second appeal but not for those which are passed by him in the exercise of his original or first appellate jurisdiction. A.I.R. 1940 Nag. 39 = 1940 N.L.J. 37 = I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 141 = 186 Ind. Cas. 129 (F.B.).

——Cl. 10—Leave when given.

As a rule one does not, on motion hearing, refuse to admit a second appeal unless one is satisfied that there is no case to be made out by the appellant. If a Judge is so clearly satisfied as to even refuse to admit the appeal, he is not justified in granting leave to file a Letters Patent Appeal which leave is only given as a rule where there is a point of law of difficulty and importance about which the Judge entertains a doubt. A.I.R. 1939 Nag. 193 = I.L.R. (1941) Nag. 460 = 1939 N.L.J. 256 = 183 Ind. Cas. 341.

——Cl. 10—Limitation for appeal.

In a Letters Patent Appeal, the time requisite for obtaining certified copies can be deducted to computing the period for limitation. I.L.R. (1944) Nag. 714 = 1944 N.L.J. 455 = A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 52 = 219 Ind. Cas. 390.

——Cl. 10—Limitation.

In a Letters Patent Appeal, the appellant is not entitled to urge grounds that are concluded by the decision in second appeal except the one to which leave was confined. I.L.R. (1944) Nag. 743 = 1944 N.L.J. 337 = A.I.R. 1944 Nag. 370.

——Cl. 10—Limitation for appeal.

It is desirable to warn the legal profession 'that the Letters Patent appeals may well be held to be out of limit if not filed within 30 days in future.'

[In this case, however, the appeal was admitted even though out of time under the discretion to admit for good cause shown].

Quaere.—Whether in computing 30 days, the period during which the Court is closed should be excluded.

Where an award made pursuant to the provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act comes to the High Court under S. 30, Workmen's Compensation Act, and the matter is disposed of by a Judge of the High Court, his decision does not amount to a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 10 and therefore, no Letters Patent Appeal lies against it. But the Judge who has to deal with either an appeal or a reference under the Workmen's Compensation Act, might well be justified in any case of difficulty or raising a point of importance, in referring the matter to a Bench. A.I.R. 1939 Nag. 122 = I.L.R. (1939) Nag. 124 = 1939 N.L.J. 63 = 182 Ind. Cas. 970.

——Cl. 10—Order on reference under Municipalities Act.

The answer of a single Judge of the High Court on a reference under S. 83 (2) C.P Municipalities Act, is merely an order of an advisory nature and no appeal lies from it under the Letters Patent. 1944 N.L.J. 499 = I.L.R. (1944) Nag. 827 = A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 75 = 220 Ind. Cas. 41.

——Cl. 10—Order passed in second appeal—Appealability.

Cl. 10 of the Letters Patent for the Nagpur High Court prohibits an appeal without special leave from the order of a single Judge of the High Court passed in the exercise of second appellate jurisdiction. The prohibition is on all orders passed in the exercise of that jurisdiction. whether or not they seek to uphold, revise or modify an order of a lower appellate court. I.L.R. (1948) Nag. 188 = 1948 N.L.J. 406 = A.I.R. 1949 Nag. 188.

——Cl. 27—Rule 10 of the rules made by Nagpur High Court under the powers conferred by Cl. 27 read with S. 106 (1) of the Government of India Act precludes any possibility of an applicant approaching a Judge second time when his application for a declaration under Cl. 10 that the case is a fit one for appeal has been refused. 1939 N.L.J. 535 = I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 34 = A.I.R. 1940 Nag. 47 = 187 Ind. Cas. 253.

——Cls. 29 and 10—Decision of single Judge in second appeal—Leave to file Letters Patent Appeal refused—Application for leave to appeal to Privy Council—If lies.

Under Cl. 29 of the Letters Patent an application for leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council from the decision of a single Judge in second appeal does not lie, as Cl. 29 is confined to cases in which no appeal lies to the High Court and as Cl. 10 confers the right of a Letters Patent Appeal from the decision of a single Judge in second appeal. It is true that the right conferred by Cl. 10 could not be exercised in a particular case because leave was refused, but that is a very different thing from saying that no appeal lies under Cl. 10. Cl. 10 deals with the right of appeal in general but merely circumscribes the conditions under which it can be exercised. The right of the Judicial Committee to grant special leave is of course not affected. I.L.R. (1948) Nag. 425 = 1948 N.L.J. 304 = A.I.R. 1949 Nag. 96.

——Cl. 29—Final order.

Meaning of—Partition suit—Appeal to single Judge of High Court—Order by single Judge declaring and bringing legal representatives of deceased party on record—Letters Patent Appeal to Divisional Bench from such order—Order of Division Bench that single Judge's order was not 'judgment' within Cl. 10 and no appeal lay is not 'final order' contemplated by Cl. 29. A.I.R. 1946 Nag. 424 = I.L.R. (1946) Nag. 482 = 1946 N.L.J. 377.

——Cl. 29—" Judgment."

Appeal to single Judge of High Court—Order by single judge declaring and bringing legal representatives of deceased party on record.—Letters Patient — Appeal to Divisional Bench from such order—Order that sing e Judge's order was not 'judgment' within Cl. 10 and no appeal lay is not 'judgment' within Cl. 29. A.I.R. 1946 Nag. 424 = I.L.R. (1946) Nag. 482 = 1946 N.L.J. 377.

——Cls. 29, 30—Petition by First Grade Pleaders of Nagpur Judicial Commissioner's Court to be enrolled as Advocate of High Court without stamp duty.

The petitioners who were First Grade Pleaders of the Judicial Commissioner's Court applied to be enrolled either (a) as Advocates. of the High Court without any stamp duty being levied or (b) as Pleaders of the High Court without any stamp duty being levied, the second prayer being only sought "after necessary amendments to the Rules framed under the clauses" have been made. The Court rejected the petition on the ground, primarily, that it raised a question that was purely an administrative question. The petitioners applied for leave to appeal to the Privy Council;

Held, that the order was one disposing of a petition which raised no point capable of judicial determination, and the dismissal was not a "judgment, decree or order" within either Cl. 29 or Cl. 30. What was sought for was a judicial discretion to the Judges to make rules in a particular way. Leave to appeal could not, therefore, be granted. A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 318 = I.L.R. (1938) Nag. 186 = 172 Ind. Cas. 478.

——Cl. 30—Granting of permission under the clause to appeal against an interlocutory or preliminary order is entirely discretionary with the High Court and there is appeal as of right. I.L.R. (1946) Nag. 482 = 1946 N.L.J. 377 = A.I.R. 1946 Nag. 424.

——Cl. 39—An application for leave to appeal to the Privy Council from a sentence of death can only be entertained by Chartered High Court. A.I.R. 1933 Nag. 216 = 34 Cr.L.J. 934 (2) = 29 N.L.R. 340 = 145 Ind. Cas. 246.

——(Patna), Cl. 9—Order removing case from Sub-Judge's Court to High Court.

The mere non-recording of reasons in an order removing a case from the Subordinate Judge's Court to the High Court as required by Cl. 9 does not, in any way, affect the jurisdiction of the High Court nor does it make its decision illegal. It is only an irregularity which does not affect the jurisdiction. 14 P.L.T. 258 = A.I.R. 1933 Pat. 250 = 12 Pat. 727 = 149 Ind. Cas. 809.

——(Patna) Cls. 9, 10 and 26.

Original jurisdiction—Extent of—Succession Certificate—Jurisdiction to grant. See Succession Act, Ss. 371 and 372. 27 Pat. 18 = A.I.R. 1949 Pat. 318.

——Cl. 9—" Purposes of justice "—Meaning of—Questions of public importance and unusual difficulty involved—Sufficiency for transfer to High Court.

" Purposes of justice " for which the extraordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court is to be exercised, are served when the questions which arise in a suit are questions of public importance and unusual difficulty and when the interests of neither party will be seriously prejudiced if the suit is tried in the High Court instead of being tried locally in a Subordinate Court. 24 Cal. 183 ref. A.I.R. 1950 Pat. 179.

——Cl. 10—Appeals—Preliminary hearing—Practice—High Court Rules—Validity—Effect.

The High Court Rules which contemplate and authorize the procedure of preliminary hearing of Letters Patent appeals in the manner provided by O. 41, R. 11 C.P.C. having received the sanction of the Governor-General-in-Council and of the Local Government, have the force of law. Even if no procedure were provided either by the Code or by the rules of the Court or elsewhere, it would be the duty of the Court to deal with appeals under Cl. 10 of the Letters Patent in conformity with the practice aforesaid, as it is rule of justice, equity and good conscience. (1919) Pat. H.C.C. 146 = 4 Pat. L.J. 695 = 54 Ind. Cas. 230.

——Cl. 10—" Judgment "—Remand order.

Where a Judge of the High Court without setting aside the decision of the lower Appellate Court merely remands the case for the finding of an issue with directions to return that finding before finally disposing of the appeal, that is not a judgment within the meaning of the Letters Patent; but where the Judge sets aside the decision of the lower Appellate Court and orders a retrial by that Court, that decision amounts to a judgment within the Letters Patent and in such cases an appeal is permissible from the decision. 75 Ind. Cas. 946 = A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 336.

——Cl. 10—Judgment—Remand Order.

If a Judge sitting singly sets aside the judgment and decree of the lower Appellate Court and remands the case for re-hearing, the order of remand being a 'judgment' under Cl. 10 of the Letters Patent (Patna) is appealable. 65 Ind. Cas. 175 = 3 P.L.T. 343 = 1 Pat. 246 = A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 384.

——Cl. 10—Judgment—What is.

Order under S. 185, Companies Act, reversed—Order refusing restitution is judgment within Cl. 10. A.I.R 1944 Pat. 192 = 23 Pat. 24 = 10 B.R. 594 = 213 Ind. Cas. 340.

——Cl. 10—Judgment—What is not.

Single Judge refusing to recall under S. 151, his order passed after consideration of everything that could be said on both sides—Order is not "judgment" within Cl. 10 and not appealable under Letters Patent. 14 P.L.T. 1 = 12 Pat. 202 = A.I.R. 1933 Pat. 139 = 142 Ind. Cas. 455.

——Cl. 10—Finding of fact cannot be disturbed either in second appeal or Letters Patent appeal.

The finding of the lower Appellate Court on the question whether anything had been paid by the defendant as canal dues for the period in suit is a finding on a pure question of fact, and cannot be disturbed either by a single Judge in second appeal or by a Bench in Letters Patent Appeal. 7 B.R. 493 = 22 P.L.T. 219 = A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 253 = 20 Pat. 556 = 192 Ind. Cas. 851.

——Cl. 10—Finding of fact.

A question of fact cannot be raised in Letters Patent appeal. A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 56 = 16 P.L.T. 342 = 1 B.R. 347 = 154 Ind. Cas. 853.

——Cl. 10—Leave to appeal—Single Judge in second appeal refusing—High Court, if can hear appeal.

High Court can only hear an appeal from a judgment of a single Judge delivered in a second appeal in cases where such single Judge has granted leave to appeal. Where such leave has been refused, High Court has, by the very terms of the Letters Patent no right whatsoever to hear the appeal. The Letters Patent of the Patna High Court govern the jurisdiction of the Patna High Court and there is nothing in S. 9, High Courts' Act of 1861, which is inconsistent with the provisions of the Letters Patent. A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 425 = 20 P.L.T. 404 = 5 B.R. 943 = 183 Ind. Cas. 416.

——Cl. 10—"Leave to appeal"—When can be given.

"Leave to appeal" under the Letters Patent should not be given too lightly. A certificate should not be granted merely on the ground that a point of law arises in the case as might be the case in dealing with admissions of second appeal. The Judge from whose judgment appeal is sought, should certify the case as a fit one for appeal. In exercising the responsibility given to them by the Letters Patent to hear appeals singly, they should remember that it is only when a case presents some difficulty and in which the Judge really feels that the matter before him requires further consideration by a larger Court that "leave" should be granted. If a Judge decides the case with confidence that should be an indication that it is not a fit case for appeal, and if he accepts the responsibility which is cast upon him by the Letters Patent, his decision will be final. 15 P.L.T. 456 = A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 466 = 13 Pat. 587 = 151 Ind. Cas. 921.

——Cl. 10—Limitation.

Rule 2, Chap. 7 of the Patna High Court Rules, excludes the applicability of S. 12 of the Limitation Act to appeals under Cl. 10 of the Letters Patent. 59 Ind. Cas. 179 = A.I.R. 1921 Pat. 365 (F.B.).

——Cl. 10—Limitation—Time taken for getting copy of judgment—Cannot be deducted.

Under R. 2 of Ch. VII of the rules of the Patna High Court, a copy of the judgment of a single Judge is not required to be filed along with a Letters Patent Appeal and the time taken in obtaining such copies should not be deducted from the period of 30 days. (1920) Pat. H.C.C. 333 = A.I.R. 1921 Pat. 365.

——Cl. 10—Miscellaneous.

Per Courtney-Terrell, C.J. and James, J.—Where a Letters Patent appeal is filed on the contention that the suit was for defamation but it is clear from the pleadings that the suit is for wrongful dismissal and not for defamation, the appeal is not maintainable. 19 P.L.T. 186 = A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 190 = 5 B.R. 626 = 181 Ind. Cas. 585.

——Cl. 10—Order of single Judge staying criminal trials—Appeal.

An order of a Judge of the High Court sitting alone, staying a criminal trial, is not a judgment and is not appealable under Cl. 10 of the Letters Patent of the Patna High Court. The object of Cl. 10 was to prohibit appeals, (i) in respect of sentences and orders passed or made in the exercise of criminal jurisdiction and (ii) in respect of orders, made in the exercise of revisional jurisdiction in civil cases. (1919) Pat. H.C.C. 218 = 3 Pat. L.J. 509 = 5 Pat. L.W. 153 = 19 Cr.L.J. 1008 = 48 Ind. Cas. 348.

——Cl. 10—Scope.

The High Court cannot, in Letters Patent appeal entertain any point which the appellants were not competent to raise in second appeal. A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 322 = 19 Pat. 104 = 7 B.R. 52 = 190 Ind. Cas. 418.

——Cl. 11—If gives jurisdction to High Court to hear appeals from decision of single Judge of High Court.

Cl. 11, gives the High Court no jurisdiction whatever to hear an appeal from a single Judge of the Court. The right conferred by Cl. 11 is a right to hear appeals from the Civil Courts of the province and from all other Courts subject to the superintendence of the High Court. In short, this clause gives the High Court a right to hear appeals from what are commonly called the subordinate or lower Courts. 5 B.R. 943 = A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 425 = 20 P.L.T. 404 = 183 Ind. Cas. 416.

——Patna (1916). Cl. 11—Subordinate Courts.

The Letters Patent must be read subject to the special legislation in the form the Regulation V of 1893 which declares that the Courts other than the Sessions Court are not subordinate to the Patna High Court as their High Court. 108 Ind. Cas. 419 = 7 Pat. 337 = 9 P.L.T. 468 = 29 Cr.L.J. 427 = A.I.R. 1928 Pat. 241.

——Cl. 11—Decision of single Judge in revision.

No appeal lies to a Divisional Court under Cl. 10 from the decision of a Judge passed in the exercise of revisional jurisdiction.

The words "which has been called for by the said Court" are general in their application and refer both to the case in which the High Court has suo motu called for the records and the case where the records have been called for on the application of one of the parties. A.I.R. 1931 Pat. 292 = 12 P.L.T. 599 = 10 Pat. 428 = 133 Ind. Cas. 676.

——Cl. 19—Review.

Application for review does not lie against a decision of the High Court on Letters Patent appeal. A.I.R. 1931 Pat. 409 = 12 P.L.T. 652 = 134 Ind. Cas. 630.

——Cl. 27—Declaration of validity of marriage.

The jurisdiction of the High Court in matters matrimonial is only such jurisdiction as is comprised within the provisions of the Indian Divorce Act. A suit therefore for a declaration that marriage was a valid and lawful marriage does not lie. 72 Ind. Cas. 657 = 1923 P.H.C.C. 127 = 1 Pat. L.R. 129 = A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 301.

——Cl. 28—Applicability—Appeal—Hearing by Division Bench of two Judges—Difference on point of law—Procedure—C.P. Code, S. 98—Applicability. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, S. 98. 27 Pat. 332.

——Cl. 28—Difference of opinion between two Judges in appeal from Subordinate Court.

The effect of the amendment of S. 98, Civil P.C. by adding sub-cl. (3) by Act XVIII of 1928, is to make Cl. 28 apply to appeals from the decisions of the moffussil Courts as well. The addition also excludes the Chartered High Courts from the operation of S. 8 where their Letters Patent provide for a difference of opinion between the Judges.

Per Jwala Prasad, J.—Cl. 28 permits such a reference to be heard by a single Judge and S. 108, Government of India Act, Cl. (2), read with the saving provision in Cl. 10 of Chap. II of the Rules of the High Court gives power to the Chief Justice to order such a reference to be heard by a single Judge. 11 Pat. 772 = A.I.R. 1933 Pat. 67 = 14 P.L.T. 374 = 141 Ind. Cas. 369.

——Cl. 28—Contempt proceedings.

Under Cl. 28 of the Letters Patent (Patna) Divisional Bench has power to issue a rule to show cause on its own motion against committal for contempt. A.I.R.

1941 Pat. 185 = 7 B.R. 261 = 42 Cr.L.J. 225 = 21 P.L.T. 980 = 20 Pat. 306 = 191 Ind. Cas. 834.

——Cl. 28—Contempt proceedings.

The rule for contempt proceedings need not be issued by the Court as an entire body and the whole of its judiciary need not be consulted. A single Judge or Division Bench has jurisdiction to issue the rule. 117 Ind. Cas. 180 = 30 Cr.L.J. 741 = A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 72 (F.B.).

——Cl. 28—Procedure in appeals.

Per Das and Foster, JJ.—There is no conflict between the Code and the Letters Patent. The special procedure indicated in the Letters Patent applies to Letters Patent appeals ; the procedure indicated in S. 98 of the Code applies to appeals from Subordinate Courts. 43 Bom. 433 foll. 87 Ind. Cas. 849 = 88 Ind. Cas. 141 = 4 Pat. 510 = 6 P.L.T. 634 = A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 625.

——Cl. 29—Appeal—Dismissal of appeal for failure to furnish printed papers—Privy Council—Appeal.

There is no appeal to the Privy Council from an order of the High Court dismissing an appeal or failure of the appellant to prepare and deliver a list of the papers to be inserted in the paper book in accordance with R. 8 of Ch. IX of the Patna High Court Rules, 1916. 5 Pat. L.J. 719 = 2 P.L.T. 112 = 60 Ind. Cas. 285 = 1926 P.H.C.C. 97 = A.I.R. 1921 Pat. 13.

——Cl. 29—Rules.

The High Court Rules of Patna were framed under Cl. 29 of the Letters Patent. Although the rules were not submitted to any Rule Committee they are quite legal. Ss. 122 and 123, C.P. Code do not include the High Court at Patna as it was not established when the C.P. Code of 1908 was enacted. 60 Ind. Cas. 285 = 5 Pat. L.J. 719 = 2 P.L.T. 112 = 1926 P.H.C.C. 97 = A.I.R. 1921 Pat. 13.

——Cl. 31—Administrative and disciplinary orders.

Right of appeal to Privy Council does not extend to administrative or disciplinary orders of High Court. It may always be necessary in performing administrative acts for the Court or the Judge or the person whose duty it is to carry out these acts to consider and come to a conclusion as to what his powers may be under a particular act of Council and the mere fact that such a consideration arises does not take the case out of the ordinary course. 70 Ind. Cas. 172 = A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 603 = 1 Pat. 590 = 4 P.L.T. 229.

——Cl. 31—Disciplinary action against pleader—Appeal to Privy Council—Leave.

There is no provision in the Legal Practitioners Act conferring a right of appeal to His Majesty in Council from an order passed by the High Court under S. 13 of that Act. Cls. 31 to 34 of the Letters Patent do not apply to orders passed in the exercise of administrative or disciplinary powers conferred on the Court by earlier clauses or statute. 4 P.L.J. 423 = 20 Cr.L.J. 679 = 52 Ind. Cas. 599.

——Cl. 31—Final judgment or order—Restitution order in summary proceeding is not final order.

A restitution order passed in a summary proceeding under S. 185, Companies Act, does not determine the rights of the parties finally and so is not a "final order or judgment" within the meaning of Cl. 31, Letters Patent (Patna). A.I.R. 1946 Pat. 141 = 24 Pat. 614 = 228 Ind. Cas. 205 = 12 B.R. 156.

——Cl. 31—Application under S. 66 (3), Income Tax Act, 1922, dismissed by High Court—Appeal to Privy Council does not lie. A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 225 = 22 P.L.T. 341 = 20 Pat. 561 = 7 B.R. 951 = 195 Ind. Cas. 589 (S.B.).

——Cl. 33—Construction.

The wording of Cl. 33, Letters Patent (Patna) is very precise and must be strictly construed. 15 P.L.T. 833 = A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 66 = 1 B.R. 469 = 36 Cr.L.J. 815 = 14 Pat. 318 = 155 Ind. Cas. 577.

——Cl. 33—Jurisdiction exercised by High Court in reference for confirmation of death sentence.

The jurisdiction excerised by the High Court in a reference for confirmation of death sentence is of an appellate character and can, in no sense, be said to be of an original nature.

Where, therefore, there is no right of appeal granted by the Letters Patent or under the Privy Council Act, those who desire to appeal must have recourse to the prerogative and approach His Majesty in Council direct for leave to present their case. In such cases, that is to say, where an appeal is presented for the exercise of the royal prerogative, either leave or a certificate from the tribunal which passed the appellate decision is not required as a preliminary step. They can proceed direct, without an intermediate application to the High Court, to His Majesty in Council and there obtain leave to present their case. 15 P.L.T. 833 = A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 66 = 1 B.R. 469 = 36 Cr.L.J. 815 = 14 Pat. 318 = 155 Ind. Cas. 577.

——Cl. 35—Vacation Judge—Jurisdiction to hear matters arising in Orissa.

Under Cl. 35, read with r. 5 in Chap. XXII of the Rules of the High Court, the Vacation Judge has no jurisdiction to hear at Patna matters arising in the Division of Orissa. 11 P.L.T. 862 = A.I.R. 1931 Pat. 61 = 130 Ind. Cas. 262.

——Cl. 35—Vacation Judge cannot hear revisional applications at Patna which should be heard in Orissa.

It is not open to a Vacation Judge, sitting at Patna, to hear a revisional application against the orders of the Subordinate Judge of Cuttack, granting time to the opposite party to move their Lordships of the Privy Council for review of a judgment as under Cl. 35, read with rule 5 in Chapter 22 of the Rules of the Patna High Court, he has no jurisdiction to hear such an application, which could be heard only in Orissa. 11 P.L.T. 862 = A.I.R. 1931 Pat. 26.

——Cl. 40—"Judgment"—Order directing trial of certain issue—Court hearing appeal after return of findings if entitled to disregard order of remand.

There is no appeal under the Letters Patent of the Patna High Court against an order of a single Judge directing the trial of a certain issue and a Judge before whom the case comes up for final hearing with the findings after remand can disregard the order of remand and dispose of the appeal on the original findings of the Appellate Court. (1917) Pat. H.C.C. 342 = 2 Pat. L.J. 663 = 2 P.L.W. 71 = 41 Ind. Cas. 337.

——Cl. 41—Cl. 41 is a clear and specific provision in the Letters Patent to the effect that an Ordinance passed by Governor-General in cases of emergency under S. 72, Government of India Act (Sch. IX) may curtail or limit the powers of the High Court under the Letters Patent. A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 24 = 23 P.L.T. 747 = 9 B.R. 146 = 44 Cr.L.J. 209 = 22 Pat. 160 = 204 Ind. Cas. 430 (F.B.).

——Cl. 45—Writ of mandamus—Patna High Court has no power to issue writ of mandamus.

Patna High Court does not possess any power either under S. 45 or Letters Patent to issue writ of mandamus similar to those possessed by the Calcutta High Court and the High Courts of Bombay and Madras. A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 538 = 11 P.L.T. 839 (F.B.).

——(Rangoon) 1922, Cl. 7—Advocates of Judicial Commissioner's Court.

Advocates of the late Judicial Commissioner's Court of Upper Burma should be enrolled in the Rangoon High Court according to their qualifications. The Legal Practitioners Act did not extend to Upper Burma and therefore, the Practitioners of the Judicial Commissioner's Court of Upper Burma do not come within the exception to Art. 30 of the Stamp Act, unless they are Vakils of an Indian High Court who have already paid that fee. 74 Ind. Cas. 13 = 1 Rang. 142 = A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 1 (F.B.).

——Cl. 8—Acts not in professional capacity.

When an officer committed what might have been adequately corrected by the ordinary punishment for an offence of that nature and the offence was not one which subjected the individual who committed it to anything like general infamy or any imputation of bad character so as to render his remaining in the Court as a practitioner improper : Held, it was not competent to the Court to inflict upon him a professional punishment for an act which was not done professionally and which act per se did not render him improper to remain as a practitioner of the Court.

Although High Court has a very wide discretion in the exercise of its disciplinary powers, nevertheless, in a case where the acts charged were not committed in a professional capacity, and where they involve a criminal offence, it would not ordinarily be convenient for the High Court to exercise those powers until the charges have been investigated in a Criminal Court. 76 Ind. Cas. 827 = 2 Bur. L.J. 210 = 25 Cr.L.J. 267 = A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 113 (S.B.).

——Cl. 8—Appeal against suspension.

The provisions of the C.P. Code have no application whatever to orders made by virtue of Cl. 8 of Letters Patent and so where a High Court removes or suspends for reasonable cause advocates, pleaders or attorneys of the High Court, the High Court has no power to grant a certificate that the case is a fit one for appeal to His Majesty in Council. 8 Rang. 40 = A.I.R. 1930 Rang. 150 = 125 Ind. Cas. 260.

—Cl. 10—Jurisdiction.

M who had an office in Calcutta but whose head office was in Rangoon entered into an agreement to act as selling agent in Rangoon for S to sell dried prawns from Bengal on commission basis. S was merchant trading in Bengal and was to deliver prawns to M at his office in Calcutta. M at his Calcutta office was to make advances to S against the value of prawns so delivered. M by his Calcutta manager was to ship the prawns to Rangoon. M at Rangoon was to sell the prawns for S on commission and M was to pay S the proceeds of the sale of the prawns, less advances, commission and charges. M sued to recover a balance of advances made by him in Calcutta in excess of the value of prawns when sold, in Rangoon.

Held, that in the present case no payments by S to M were contemplated by the contract. M was to pay advances to S in Calcutta and was to pay S the balance of the sale proceeds also presumably in Calcutta. As the amounts were expressly made payable in the agreement they were certainly payable in Calcutta, the reasonable inference also would be that accounts were to be settled in Calcutta and if any amount should be found payable to M it should be payable to him in Calcutta just as amounts payable by him to S were payable in Calcutta. Calcutta Court had, therefore jurisdiction to try the suit. A.I.R. 1930 Rang. 216 = 127 Ind. Cas. 466.

——Cl. 10—Leave under Cl. 10.

As regards suits for land, the High Court can take cognizance, if the land is situate wholly within the local limits or, where the land is situate in part only within such limits, if leave has been first obtained ; and as regards suits, other than those for land, the High Court has jurisdiction, if the cause of action has arisen wholly within the limits or where the cause of action has arisen in part only within the limits, if leave of the Court should have been first obtained, or if the defendant dwells or carries on business or personally works for gain within those limits. It follows, therefore, that the High Court can pass a mortgage decree not only in respect of lands situated within its ordinary original civil jurisdiction but also in respect of lands situated outside its ordinary original civil jurisdiction when leave under Cl. 10, is obtained. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 119 = 176 Ind. Cas. 811.

——Cl. 10—Leave, whether can be revoked.

Plaintiff applied for leave to file a suit under Cl. 10, Letters Patent (Rangoon) and R. 25, High Court, Rules (Original Side). No notice was required to be issued to defendants and none was issued. After a month, the defendants applied to set aside the leave :

Held, that R. 8 did not apply to ex parte orders of this nature and the Court had full power to revoke at any stage leave granted to a plaintiff to file a suit, should it be shown that the order granting leave ought not to have been passed. A.I.R. 1935 Rang. 367 = 13 R. 330 = 159 Ind. Cas. 142.

——Cl. 10—Suit for land—Mortgage suit.

A mortgage suit is a suit "for land" within the meaning of Cl. 10. A mortgage being a suit to realize an interest in immovable property, it cannot be placed in the same category as a suit in which the plaintiff merely seeks a money-decree. 12 R. 690 = A.I.R. 1934 Rang. 369 = 153 Ind. Cas. 375.

——Cl. 10—Suit for land—Suit for sale by mortgagee —Whether a 'suit for land'.

The term "suit for land or other immovable property" in Cl. 10 means : "suits in which, having regard to the issues raised in the pleadings, the decree or order will affect directly the proprietary or possessory title to land or other immovable property." It does not matter whether other issues are raised in the suit or whether some other issue raises the "main" or "substantial" question in the suit and the Court need not embark upon a consideration of the question whether "the primary or substantial object of a mortgage suit is the payment of the debt." 12 R. 370 = A.I.R. 1934 Rang. 250 = 151 Ind. Cas. 519 (F.B.).

——Cl. 10—Suit for land—Suit for money and for declaration that a property is mortgaged to plaintiff and for a decree in respect of it—Whether a suit for land.

The expression "suit for land or other immovable property," in Cl. 10, means suits in which, having regard to the issues raised in the pleadings the decree or order will affect directly the proprietary or possessory title to land or other immovable property.

Where the plaintiff prayed for a decree for a certain sum of money against defendants Nos. 1 to 5 and also for a declaration that a certain property was mortgaged to him and asked for a mortgage-decree in respect thereof, and defendant No. 9 challenged the right of defendants Nos. 1 to 5 to mortgage the property and claimed that the property belonged to him :

Held, that the suit directly involved the title to the land and was a suit 'for land' within the meaning of Cl. 10. A.I.R. 1934 Rang. 35 = 6 Rang. 344 = 149 Ind. Cas. 940.

——Cl. 10—Suit for trespass on immovable property— Dispute as to title—Jurisdiction of High Court—Tests.

By an agreement in writing between the plaintiff and the Secretary of State, the plaintiff purchased certain buildings and materials situated at S and undertook to remove them within a given period. Subsequently, the defendants became the owners by purchase of the land at S. The plaintiff brought an action on the Original Side of the High Court claiming an injunction and damages for the wrongful and tortious act of the defendants in the fact that they had prevented him from carrying out his contract to remove the buildings and materials in his original agreement. The defence was that the buildings and materials in dispute or some of them were the property of the defendants and were not covered by the plaintiff's contract and he was not entitled to take them away :

Held, (1) that since the real dispute between the parties was with reference to the title to immovable property, the suit should have been instituted in the District Court which had jurisdiction over the property and not in the High Court. A.I.R. 1931 Rang. 109 = 134 Ind. Cas. 511.

——Cl. 11—Application for transfer.

It is desirable that the application for removal to the High Court of a suit under S. 11 should also be dealt with in the original jurisdiction of the Court. 76 Ind. Cas. 479 = 1 Rang. 226 = A.I.R. 1923 Rang. 185.

——Cl. 11—Transfer of Insolvency case in inferior Courts.

Original Side of the High Court is not competent to transfer insolvency proceedings from one Court to the other. The powers conferred by S. 5 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, which are made subject to the other provisions of the Act, cannot be exercised in such a way as to give the Original Side of the High Court a jurisdiction from which it is expressly excluded by the terms of the Act whether that section is read with S. 24, C.P. Code or Cl. (11) of the Letters Patent. 100 Ind. Cas. 265 = 4 Rang. 554 = A.I.R. 1927 Rang. 105.

——Cl. 12—The term "suits for land or other immovable property" in Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent means suits in which, having regard to the issues raised in the pleadings, the decree or order will affect directly the proprietary or possessory title to land or other immovable property. 9 R. 13 = A.I.R. 1931 Rang. 109 = 134 Ind. Cas. 511.

——Cl. 12—Objection as to jurisdiction—Waiver.

Where in a suit, leave of the High Court, although necessary under Cl. 12, Letters Patent, is not obtained, the defendant must raise the objection as to the jurisdiction of the High Court at the first available opportunity. If he fails to do so, and at first submits to the High Court's jurisdiction, such submission constitutes waiver which cures the defect created by omission to apply for leave. 115 Ind. Cas, 898 = 6 Rang. 680 = A.I.R. 1929 Rang. 61.

(13) Limitation.

(1) Appeal.

——Cl. 13—Appeal—New plea.

When a question of law is raised for the first time in a Court of last resort, upon the construction of a document, or upon facts either admitted or proved beyond controversy, it is not only competent but expedient, in the interests of justice, to entertain the plea. The expediency of adopting that course may be doubted, when the plea cannot be disposed of without deciding nice questions of fact, in considering which the Court of ultimate review is placed in a much less advantageous position than the Courts below. But the course ought not, in any case, to be followed unless the Court is satisfied that the evidence upon which they are asked to decide establishes beyond doubt that the facts, if fully investigated, would have supported the new plea :

Held, that as the question whether the guardian had power to execute the security bond in question depended upon certain state of facts which the materials on record were insufficient to enable the Court to determine definitely one way or the other, the plaintiff could not be allowed to raise it and challenge his power for the first time in Letters Patent Appeal. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 236 = 1938 Rang. L.R. 256 = 177 Ind. Cas. 573.

——Cl. 13—Appeal—Order deciding jurisdiction.

An order, passed by the Court on its Original Side, deciding that the Court has jurisdiction to entertain a suit, is appealable although appeal will not lie against a similar finding of a Court other than the High Court. 105 Ind. Cas. 472 = A.I.R. 1928 Rang. 20.

(2) Certificate.

——Cl. 13—Certificate—Effect.

When a "case" is certified to be fit for appeal to the Letters Patent, the word "case" includes an order for costs made or refused in that case which is obviously ancillary to the substantive order made in the case. A.I.R. 1941 Rang. 63 = 1940 Rang. L.R. 693 = 194 Ind. Cas. 306.

——Cl. 13—Certificate—Effect.

Certificate under Cl. 13 obtained upon representation that important point of law is involved—Appellate Court should not allow Counsel to abandon point of law and to reanvass matter on facts alone. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 412 = 178 Ind. Cas. 772.

——Cl. 13—Certificate—Practice of Court in granting.

The practice of the Rangoon High Court is to grant certificates under Cl. 13, only in cases in which doubtful questions of law or procedure exist which deserve reconsideration, and this practice is sound in principle in view of the fact that questions of fact cannot constitute valid grounds even of a second appeal under the Code. A.I.R. 1939 Rang. 59 = 179 Ind. Cas. 946.

——Cl. 13—Certificate of fitness.

A certificate declaring that a case is a fit one for appeal can be granted only by the Judge who passed the judgment, because the intention of the Letters Patent is to confine the granting of a certificate to the Judge who actually heard the appeal and passed the judgment. 93 Ind. Cas. 124 = 3 Rang. 546 = 4 Bur. L.J. 185 = A.I.R. 1926 Rang. 1 (F.B.).

(3) Certiorari.

——Cl. 13—Certiorari.

A decision of a single Judge of the High Court or of any Division Court making absolute or discharging a rule nisi on a petition for the issue of a prerogative writ is a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 13. A.I.R. 1941 Rang. 199 = 195 Ind. Cas. 551.

——Cl. 13—Certiorari.

No appeal lies against an order making absolute a rule nisi for certiorari granted by a Judge on the Original Side of the High Court, as such an order is not a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 13. 1941 Rang. L.R. 694 = A.I.R. 1941 Rang. 227 = 196 Ind. Cas. 470 (F.B.).

(4) Copy of judgment.

——Cl. 13—Copy of judgment.

Rule 5 of the Rangoon High Court Appellate Side Rules was intended to apply and does apply to appeals against judgments of the Original Side under Cl. 13 of the Letters Patent and therefore in the case of such appeals the memorandum of appeal must be accompanied by a certified copy of the judgment which is under appeal unless the Court dispenses with it. 98 Ind. Cas. 689 = 5 Bur. L.J. 75 = A.I.R. 1926 Rang. 143.

(5) Delay.

——Cl. 13—Delay.

A delay of 4 months was considered as not excusable. Where substantial justice was done to the parties, and the petitioners were attempting to take advantage of a technical defect to which they had once themselves agreed, declaration was refused. 79 Ind. Cas. 441 = 79 Ind. Cas. 744 = 2 Bur. L.J. 164 = A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 45.

(6) Finding of fact.

——Cl. 13—Finding of fact.

After two Courts have properly considered the evidence and come to a concurrent finding upon an issue of fact, it is not the function of the Court hearing a Letters Patent Appeal to try the issue upon the evidence over again. A.I.R. 1939 Rang. 59 = 179 Ind. Cas. 946.

(7) " Judgment "—Meaning.

——Cl. 13—" Judgment "—Meaning.

The word " judgment " in Cl. 13 means and is a decree in a suit by which the rights of the parties at issue in the suit are determined. A.I.R. 1941 Rang. 69 = 1940 Rang. L.R. 702 = 194 Ind. Cas. 250.

——Cl. 13—" Judgment " meaning of.

The word " judgment " in Cl. 13 means a decree in suit by which the rights of the parties at issue in the suit are determined. A judgment may be a final judgment or it may be merely interlocutory. A final judgment is a decree in a suit by which all the matters at issue therein are decided ; and interlocutory judgment is a decree in a suit by which the right to the relief claimed in the suit is decided, but under which further proceedings are necessary before the suit in its entirety can be determined. All other decisions are " orders " and not " judgments " under the Letters Patent, or appealable as such. The Original Side of a High Court is just as much the High Court as the Appellate Side, and rights of appeal are given, not by the Code, but by Cl. 13. 1937 Rang. L.R. 97 = A.I.R. 1937 Rang. 268 = 170 Ind. Cas. 822.

——Cl. 13—" Judgment " — Meaning —Tests as to whether an order is a " Judgment ".

Where, in a mortgage suit filed in the High Court with regard to immovable property situated outside the jurisdiction of the Court, on a preliminary objection as to absence of jurisdiction to try the suit, the Court held that it had and decided the suit on merits, and an appeal was preferred only against the preliminary order on the point of jurisdiction :

Held, that the order of the Court on the point of jurisdiction was not a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 13, as the order neither finally determined nor purported to determine the rights of the parties nor put an end to the suit, but merely determined that the Court had jurisdiction to try the suit.

Whether any particular order is a " judgment " within the meaning of Cl. 13, or not depends upon the effect of the order as made. 11 R. 19 = A.I.R. 1933 Rang. 15 = 142 Ind. Cas. 58.

(8) Judgment—Order on pauper petition.

——Cl. 13—Judgment—Order on pauper petition.

In the Letters Patent of the Rangoon High Court, the word " judgment " means and is a decree in a suit by which the rights of the parties at issue in the suit are determined.

The rejection of the petition for leave to sue as a pauper does not finally decide the matters in issue between the parties. On rejection of the petition, the plaint is not automatically rejected but the plaintiff can still file his plaint in the ordinary way, that is to say, with proper Court-fee attached ; all that he loses is the right to a certain procedure and this is not a final determination of the matters in issue between the parties. The right to sue as a pauper in certain circumstances is given not even in the Civil P.C. but in the Schedule attached to the Civil P.C., and a substantive right cannot be given in a Code which deals only with procedure. No appeal, therefore, lies from an order rejecting the petition to sue as a pauper. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 58 = 1938 Rang. L.R. 68 = 174 Ind. Cas. 268.

——Cl. 13—Judgment—Order on pauper petition.

Order of Judge on Original Side of High Court refusing to allow person to sue as pauper is appealable as judgment—(Per Heald, Ag. C. J.)—But not where permission to sue as pauper is given. A.I.R. 1930 Rang. 259 = 126 Ind. Cas. 650.

——Cl. 13—Judgment—Order on pauper petition.

An order allowing a party to sue in forma pauperis is not a " judgment " within the meaning of Cl. 13. A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 167, Dissented from ; 26 Mad. 437 and 21 All. 133, Appr. 95 Ind. Cas. 523 = 4 Rang. 20 = 5 Bur. L.J. 6 = A.I.R. 1926 Rang. 110.

(9) Judgment—Order returning award.

——Cl. 13—" Judgment "—Order returning award.

Where the trial Court held that the arbitrators, by not giving notice to the parties before sending the award to the Court, acted with material irregularity and in breach of the statutory obligation imposed by S. 11 (2), Arbitration Act, and ordered the award to be sent back to the arbitrators to enable them to act according to law,

Held, that such an order was not a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 13 of the Letters Patent and no appeal lay on it. 45 Cal. 502 and A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 43, Foll. 114 Ind. Cas. 521 = 6 Rang. 25 = A.I.R. 1928 Rang. 110.

——Cl. 13—Judgment—Order remanding award.

Order of Court remanding the award for making a fresh award on the ground of arbitrator's misconduct, is a " judgment ". 76 Ind. Cas. 525 = 2 Bur. L.J. 193 = 1 Rang. 661 = A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 47.

(10) Judgment—Order directing trustee to fill up vacancy.

——Cl. 13—" Judgment "—Order directing continuing trustees to fill up vacancy—Order, if ' judgment ' within Cl. 13, or ' decree ' within S. 2, Civil P.C.

In a suit on the Original Side, a scheme was framed for appointing new trustees and settling a scheme of management. The new scheme provided for election of trustees and a clause set out the procedure to be followed when a vacancy occurred. Two vacancies occurred after the new trustees had been appointed and the respondent applied to the Court for an order directing the continuing trustees to call a meeting for the election of two new trustees in accordance with the provisions of the scheme. This application was granted :

Held, that the order was not a judgment under Cl. 13 and no appeal lay from it. The order was an order directing the trustees to do what they were required by the scheme which was embodied in the final decree and was neither a judgment within Cl. 13 nor even a decree within the meaning of S. 2, Civil P.C. 1937 Rang. L.R. 97 = A.I.R. 1937 Rang. 268 = 170 Ind. Cas. 822.

(11) Judgment—What is.

——Cl. 13—Judgment — What is — Appointment of Receiver.

Where an appeal from an order is allowed by the C.P. Code, the Court will construe such an order as a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 13, and from an order appointing a Receiver under O. 40, R. 1, an appeal lies. 101 Ind. Cas. 791 = 5 Rang. 99 = A.I.R. 1927 Rang. 139.

——Cl. 13—Judgment—What is—Companies Act, 1913, S. 156—Order rejecting proxies and directing another meeting—Appealability.

Certain persons who had been appointed by the Court to assist the Chairman of a statutory meeting of creditors held under S. 153, Companies Act, filed a petition for directions as to the validity of certain proxies which had been used at the statutory meeting. An order was passed to the effect that the proxy forms should be rejected and that another meeting of the creditors must be held :

Held, (i) that the order was a judgment within Cl. 13, Letters Patent and appealable inasmuch as the effect of the order was finally to determine that the decision of the creditors who had voted as to the proposed scheme was not to be ascertained or recorded and that the poll taken at the meeting was inoperative ;

(ii) that the scrutineers appointed by Court as above-said had no right to decide themselves whether any proxy was good or bad, and had no locus standi to present a petition for the Court's directions as to the validity of the proxies. A.I.R. 1932 Rang. 96 = 10 R. 189 = 137 Ind. Cas. 444.

——Cl. 13—Judgment—What is—Order staying hearing.

An order under S. 10, Civil P.C. staying hearing of a suit is a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 13 of Letters Patent (Rang.) A.I.R. 1935 Rang. 73 = 12 R. 687 = 154 Ind. Cas. 774.

——Cl. 13—Judgment—What is—Order on application for review of order arising out of decree in second appeal, whether "judgment."

In a second appeal arising out of a suit for specific performance of a contract for sale of land, a single Judge of the High Court gave the plaintiff a decree and directed him to pay the money in Court within a certain date. Another Judge subsequently extended the time, but on an application for review of that order, he cancelled his own previous order and dismissed the suit on the ground that the plaintiff had not deposited the money in time :

Held, that the order dismissing the suit was a 'judgment' within the meaning of Cl. 13 and leave of the Judge was a condition precedent to the maintainability of an appeal therefrom. 9 R. 31 = A.I.R. 1931 Rang. 147 = 131 Ind. Cas. 729.

——Cl. 13—Judgment—What is—Refusal to add parties.

An order tantamount to refusing to join persons as parties finally adjudicates or concludes the matter so far as those persons are concerned and it is consequently a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 13 of the Letters Patent.

An order refusing to allow a person to be joined as defendant in a suit under S. 92, C.P. Code without the permission of Government Advocate is appealable. 103 Ind. Cas. 261 = 5 Rang. 263 = A.I.R. 1927 Rang. 180.

——Cl. 13—Judgment—What is—Refusal to amend plaint.

An order refusing leave to amend a plaint followed by dismissal of the suit is a "judgment" within Cl. 13 and is appealable. 101 Ind. Cas. 628 = 5 Rang. 115 = 6 Bur. L.J. 49 = A.I.R. 1927 Rang. 154.

——Cl. 13—Judgment—What is—Order in Insolvency.

Order of a Judge directing that the Official Receiver is entitled to a certain amount as commission as against heirs of the estate sold through the Receiver, is a judgment. 114 Ind. Cas. 673 = A.I.R. 1928 Rang. 301.

(12) Judgment—What is not.

——Cl. 13—Judgment—What is not—Order of transfer by High Court under S. 24, Civil P.C.

In the Letters Patent of the High Courts, the word 'judgment' means and is, a decree in a suit by which the rights of the parties at issue in the suit are determined. The term 'suit' in the Letters Patent includes suits instituted by a plaint or by an originating summons in the manner prescribed under the rules of the Court. A final judgment is a decree in a suit by which all the matters at issue therein are decided. A preliminary or interlocutory judgment is a decree in a suit by which the right to the relief claimed in the suit is decided, but under which further proceedings are necessary before the suit in its entirety can be determined. All other decisions are orders, and are not 'judgments' under the Letters Patent, or appealable as such. Consequently, an order of the High Court under S. 24, Civil P.C. transferring a suit from a Subordinate Court to the High Court does not fall within Cl. 13. A.I.R. 1935 Rang. 267 = 13 R. 457 = 157 Ind. Cas. 1107 (S.B.).

[Overrules A.I.R. 1929 Rang. 41 = 114 Ind. Cas. 524 (F.B.)].

——Cl. 13—'Judgment'—What is not—Insolvency proceedings.

An order by Insolvency Court declining to adjudicate upon the claim that certain property in the hands of Official Assignee was in reality held by insolvent in trust and directing the claimant to enforce his claim by regular suit is not a judgment within Cl. 13 and is not, therefore, appealable. 111 Ind Cas. 836 = 6 Rang. 363 = A.I.R. 1928 Rang. 246.

——Cl. 13—Judgment—What is not—Conditional order granting leave to defend.

An order refusing absolutely an application for leave to defend is an order which finally disposes of the rights of the parties. But a conditional order granting leave to defend does not determine any of the rights of the parties and is not a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 13. It is only an order merely regulating the procedure in the suit and does not determine any right or liability as between the parties. 13 R. 239 = A.I.R. 1935 Rang. 245 = 157 Ind. Cas. 778.

——Cl. 13—Judgment—What is not—Conditional order directing setting aside of ex parte decree.

Where an order was passed directing the setting aside of an ex parte decree on condition that defendants would pay into Court within ten days a certain sum of money plus costs but before the expiry of the ten days, an appeal was filed against the order:

Held, that the order was not a judgment within Cl. 13, and that no appeal lay from it. A.I.R. 1934 Rang. 192 = 151 Ind. Cas. 402.

——Cl. 13—Judgment—What is not—Order dispensing with security for costs of suit continued by receiver in insolvency.

An order directing that the Receiver of an estate in insolvency should not be required to give security for the costs of a suit filed by the debtor before he became insolvent, and which the Receiver has elected to continue, under Or. 22, r. 8, Civil P.C., is an order relating to procedure, and it does not put an end to the suit, or in any way affect the merits of the suit, in whole or in part. Such an order is not, therefore, a "judgment" within Cl. 13 and is not appealable under the said clause. A.I.R. 1931 Rang. 286 = 9 R. 478 = 134 Ind. Cas. 750.

——Cl. 13—Judgment—What is not—Acceptance of security.

An order merely deciding as to the sufficiency of the security offered by the judgment-debtor where execution has been stayed by the appellate Court is not a judgment. 88 Ind. Cas. 740 = A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 225.

——Cl. 13—Judgment—What is not—Appointment of Commissioner in partnership suit.

A decision which affects the merits of the question between the parties by determining some right or liability may rightly be held to be a "judgment." An order which merely paves the way for the determination of the question between the parties cannot be considered to be a 'judgment' nor can a mere formal order regulating the procedure in the suit, or one which is nothing more than a step towards obtaining a final adjudication. Where in a suit for dissolution of partnership for accounts thereof being taken and for recovery of plaintiff's share therein a preliminary decree was passed by consent declaring partnership to be dissolved and ordering all proper accounts of the partnership being taken, and where a commissioner was appointed to take accounts and the commissioner applied to the Court for directions with reference to certain questions as regards the accounts and where the Court passed an order giving directions but not deciding on the merits of the suit or the rights and liabilities of the parties as regards the partnership, held, that the order was not a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 13. 84 Ind. Cas. 291 = 2 Rang. 469 = A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 43.

——Cl. 13—Judgment—What is not—Attachment before Judgment.

An order made under the provisions of O. 38, R. 5 is not a "judgment" within the meaning of Cl. 13 of the Letters Patent, because it is a mere interlocutory order which does not affect the merits of the dispute between the parties by determining some right or liability which is in controversy between them in the suit and therefore no appeal lies from that order. 90 Ind. Cas. 995 = 4 Bur. L.J. 108 = 3 Rang. 307 = A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 267.

——Cl. 13—Judgment—What is not—Decision on preliminary point.

The proper procedure, when a preliminary question of limitation is raised, is to hear that question and decide it as a preliminary point and if it is so decided, it cannot be said that the appellate Court which had not heard the appeal on its merits, either confirms or reverses the decree appealed from; and their decision cannot be a "judgment" within the meaning of Cl. 13. 77 Ind. Cas. 385 = 1 Rang. 584 = A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 148.

——Cl. 13—"Judgment"—What is not—Finding as to nature of document.

If the effect of an adjudication "is to put an end to the suit or proceeding so far as the Court before which the suit or proceeding is pending is concerned, or if its effect, if it is not complied with, is to put an end to the suit or proceeding the adjudication is a judgment, otherwise not.

The finding that the parties intended to treat a document on which the suit was filed as an inland and not as a foreign instrument, which had the effect of allowing the suit to proceed, does not amount to a judgment within the meaning of Art. 13. 114 Ind. Cas. 524 = Rang. 703 = A.I.R. 1929 Rang. 41 (F.B.).

——Cl. 13—Judgment—What is not—Order that a person should be examined under S. 196, Companies Act.

An order directing that a person should be examined under S. 196, Companies Act, is not a judgment within Cl. 13, Letters Patent, and hence no appeal lies against the order. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 166 = 14 R. 15 = 161 Ind. Cas. 749 (1).

——Cl. 13—Judgment—What is not—Rejection of claim.

Refusal of summary remedy given by O. 21, R. 58, C.P. Code, leaves open the right of bringing a regular suit and having the question in issue finally decided. It, consequently, cannot be a "judgment" within the meaning of Cl. 13, Letters Patent. 104 Ind. Cas. 330 = 5 Rang. 381 = 6 Bur. L.J. 162 = A.I.R. 1927 Rang. 287.

——Cl. 13—Judgment—What is not—Refusal to issue commission.

Refusal to issue a commission is a matter within the discretion of the Insolvency Judge and no appeal lies under Letters Patent (Rangoon) S. 13. 13 Mad. 143; 14 Mad. 88 and 28 Mad. 20, dissented from. 93 Ind. Cas. 211 = 4 Bur. L.J. 254 = 3 Rang. 605 = A.I.R. 1926 Rang. 64.

——Cl. 13—Judgment—What is not—Refusal to issue commission.

An order refusing to issue a commission, however serious the ultimate results to the party, is a purely interlocutory order and not a judgment terminating a suit or other proceedings or affecting the merits. 90 Ind. Cas. 967 = 4 Bur. L.J. 103 = 3 Rang. 293 = A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 290.

(13) Limitation.

——Cl. 13—Limitation.

The period of limitation for an appeal from a judgment of the Original Side under Cl. 13 of the Letters Patent is 20 days and from the date of the judgment, and in such appeals the memorandum of appeal must be accompanied by a certified copy of the judgment unless the Court dispenses with it, but need not be accompanied by a certified copy of the decree. 98 Ind. Cas. 417 = 4 Rang. 265 = 5 Bur. L.J. 187 = A.I.R. 1927 Rang. 20.

——Cl. 13—Limitation for Appeal.

The words "decree or order" as used in Art. 151 are wide enough to cover a "judgment" in the sense in which that word is used in Letters Patent, Cl. 13 and therefore the period of limitation for an appeal under Cl. 13 of the Letters Patent from a judgment of the High Court on its Original Side is 20 days from the date of the judgment. 98 Ind. Cas. 689 = 5 Bur. L.J. 75 = A.I.R. 1926 Rang. 143.

——Cl. 17—Interpretation—"Law"—Meaning.

The word "Law" as used in Cl. 17 of the Letters Patent, merely means the legal enactments of the Indian and Burmese Legislatures, the English Common Law and Equity, etc., which was applied by the late Chief Court of Lower Burma. It cannot of necessity be read as to include the published decisions of that Court, which decisions, until merged in an enactment, or used to modify or repeal any enactment, are not, strictly speaking, law. What the clause meant was that the institution of the High Court did not involve any change in the law to be administered by the Court on its Original Side, and that the enactments and the principles of law which would have been followed by the Chief Court should be followed by the High Court. 98 Ind. Cas. 526 = 4 Rang. 313 = A.I.R. 1927 Rang. 4 (F.B.).

——Cl. 17—Law—Applicable.

The Original Side of the Rangoon High Court will administer the Mahomedan Law in the matter of determining a gift by Mahomedan. 103 Ind. Cas. 189 = 5 Rang. 252 = A.I.R. 1927 Rang. 242.

——Cl. 28—Transfer of Criminal cases.

The High Court's power of revision are in express terms limited to those conferred by certain sections mentioned in S. 439, Cr. P. Code. S. 526 is not one of these. The Letters Patent does not confer any power of transfer over and above that conferred by S. 526 since Cl. 28 is qualified by Cl. 36. 77 Ind. Cas. 885 = 1 Rang. 632 = 2 Bur. L.J. 236 = 25 Cr.L.J. 485 = A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 100.

——Cl. 34—Difference of opinion between two Judges —Point, if can be referred to several Judges successively for separate decisions.

Per Dunkley, J.—Although under Cl. 34 the point on which the original Judges differed may be referred to more than one Judge for decision, the clause does not contemplate, that the point shall be referred to several Judges successively for their separate decisions, and there is nothing in Cl. 34 which permits of a case being first referred to a third Judge for his decision upon a particular point, and then when his decision still appears to leave the matter in doubt, it being referred to a fourth Judge. Moreover, it is plain from the provisions of Cl. 34 that the third Judge to whom the case is referred after the first two Judges have differed, has jurisdiction only to decide the point upon which those Judges have differed and he has no jurisdiction to deliver any opinion. The case should be placed before the original Bench for final decision. A.I.R. 1937 Rang. 324 = 170 Ind. Cas. 946.

——Cl. 34—Scope.

Cl. 34 of the Letters Patent does not in all cases override the provisions of S. 98 of the Code of Civil Procedure and where that section can properly apply it may be resorted to in spite of the provisions of Cl. 34 when it seems obviously right for the differing Judges to refer the point of law on which they differ. Cl. 34 of the Letters Patent applies only to those cases in which the appeals come before the Court by virtue of a right of appeal given by the Letters Patent. Where an appeal lies under the ordinary law of the land, the Letters Patent will not override the provisions of the Code, applicable to the appeal. 77 Ind. Cas. 385 = 1 Rang. 584 = A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 148.

——Cl. 35—High Court has power to regulate its procedure by Cl. 35, Letters Patent which necessarily includes the imposition and collection of fees. A.I.R. 1935 Rang. 460 = 13 R. 156 = 159 Ind. Cas. 1060.

——Cl. 35—Scope.

Cl. 35 of the Letters Patent as well as S. 122 of the C.P. Code and S. 108 of the Government of India Act (1915) merely give the High Court power to make rules and orders for the purpose of regulating proceedings in civil cases. 93 Ind. Cas. 124 = 3 Rang. 546 = 4 Bur. L.J. 185 = A.I.R. 1926 Rang. 1 (F.B.).

——Cl. 36—Transfer of Criminal Case.

The High Court's powers of revision are in express terms limited to those conferred by certain sections mentioned in S. 439. S. 526 is not one of these. The Letters Patent does not confer any power of transfer over and above that conferred by S. 526 since Cl. 28 is qualified by Cl. 36. 77 Ind. Cas. 885 = 1 Rang. 632 = 2 Bur. L.J. 236 = 25 Cr.L.J. 485 = A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 100.

——Cl. 37—"Final decree or order"—Decree of High Court under S. 91 (3) of Rangoon City Municipal Act is not appealable to Privy Council.

In the case of special and often technical enactments, if a person or a Court is specifically, designated to determine disputes arising out of the application of such enactments, the Court or person is not functioning in an ordinary, but in an extraordinary manner and parties to any litigation arising thereunder will not be permitted to appeal further than these specially appointed persons or tribunals.

A decree of the High Court under S. 91 (3) of the Rangoon City Municipal Act is not a final judgment, decree or order within the meaning of Art. 37 of the Letters Patent or S. 109 of the C.P. Code, and is not appealable to His Majesty in Council. 99 Ind. Cas. 994 = 4 Rang. 508 = 6 Bur. L.J. 1 = A.I.R. 1927 Rang. 88.

——Cl. 37—Order dismissing application to appeal in forma pauperis.

An order dismissing an application for granting of leave to appeal in forma pauperis is not a final judgment, decree or order of the High Court within Cl. 37 and hence no appeal lies to His Majesty in Council. 157 Ind. Cas. 39.

——Cl. 37—Order refusing leave to appeal in forma pauperis.

An order refusing to allow a party to appeal in forma pauperis, is not a final order within the meaning of Cl. 37 and certificate to appeal to the Privy Council from such an order cannot be granted. A.I.R. 1932 Rang. 192 = 10 R. 504 = 141 Ind. Cas. 277 (1).

——Cl. 37—Order remanding case for further consideration.

Though an order of remand, remanding a case for further consideration prima facie, does not purport finally to dispose of the rights of the parties, yet if the effect of the order is that the Court has finally determined the cardinal issue in the suit, and only subsidiary and subordinate issues remain to be decided, the remand order is a final order within Cl. 37 and appealable as such. 10 R. 499 = A.I.R. 1932 Rang. 189 = 141 Ind. Cas. 275.

——Cl. 39—Wrong admission of evidence—Course of trial not deflected—Whether ground for application under Cl. 39.

Leave to appeal is not granted except where some clear departure from the requirements of justice exists nor unless by a disregard of the forms of legal process, or by some violation of the principles of natural justice or otherwise, substantial and grave injustice has been done.

The mere fact that some evidence has been wrongly admitted is not a ground on which an application under Cl. 39 can be granted when the course of the trial is in no way deflected. It is incumbent upon the applicant to make out, at any rate, a prima facie case that there has been a violation of the natural principles of justice, so demonstratively manifest as to convince the Court first, that the result arrived at was opposite to the result which they would themselves have reached, and secondly, that the same opposite result would have been reached by the local tribunal also if the alleged defect or misdirection had been avoided.

In order to dispose of an application under Cl. 39, it is unnecessary to discuss in detail the facts disclosed by the evidence. It is sufficient that the Court should hold that there was ample evidence adduced at the trial to justify the finding of the jury that the applicant was guilty of the crime. A.I.R. 1935 Rang. 214 = 13 R. 141 = 36 Cr.L.J. 1232 = 157 Ind. Cas. 821.

——Cl. 39—Conviction in High Court Sessions.

Where the accused is convicted of murder and sentenced to death by the High Court Sessions, an application under Cl. 39 for a declaration that the case is a fit one for appeal to the Privy Council is competent. A.I.R. 1935 Rang. 214 = 13 R. 141 = 36 Cr.L.J. 1232 = 157 Ind. Cas. 821.

LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANIES ACT (6 OF 1912). S. 2 (3)—"Court"

So far as the Punjab is concerned, "Court" in the Life Assurance Companies Act means the District Court only. 44 P.L.R. 1=A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 74=I.L.R. (1942) Lah. 800=199 Ind. Cas. 381.

——S. 2 (6)—"Policy of assurance upon human life", meaning of.

Where the policies issued by an insurance company provide for payment of a certain sum of money whether fixed or calculated in any other manner on the happening of the contingency stipulated for taking place during the lifetime of the member, and not providing for payment of anything to the legal representatives of the member in the event of his dying without the happening of such contingency, the contract between the members and the society. whether it be called a policy or a certificate of membership, is not an instrument on which the payment of money is assured on the happening of the contingency depending upon human life within the meaning of S. 2 (6). But were the policies provide for payment of some money, however small, to the legal representatives of a member, in the event of his dying without the happening of such contingency, they fall within the ambit of S. 2 (6). A.I.R. 1937 Sind 113=31 S.L.R. 416=169 Ind. Cas. 631.

——S. 2 (7)—Assignee, whether "policy-holder".

The words "for the time being" in S. 2 (7) clearly mean that a person must, at the date of the petition, be the legal holder of a policy. After a policy is assigned, the legal holder of the policy is the assignee and not original policy-holder. A.I.R. 1938 Bom. 182=40 Bom. L.R. 52=174 Ind. Cas. 593.

——Ss. 2 (7), (5), (6), 22—Where none of the members of the Provident Society applying for its winding-up under S. 22, Life Assurance Companies Act. read with the Companies Act are policy-holders under Cl. 7, S. 2 either read by itself or in the light of Cls. 5 and 6 of the Act, the Court has no jurisdiction to wind-up the Society under the Act. A.I.R. 1936 Sind 165=30 S. L.R. 92=164 Ind. Cas. 906.

——S. 6—Preferential creditor to fund.

The right of the policy-holders to rank as preferential creditors in respect of an assurance Fund must be founded on some act of the Legislature or recognized law of the land. Neither S. 6, Life Assurance Companies Act, nor any other Act gives such a right. A.I.R. 1938 Bom. 91=39 Bom. L. R. 1163 : 173 Ind. Cas. 727.

——S. 22—Application should be made to District Court.

The provisions of Life Assurance Companies Act as contained in S. 22 are kept intact and not affected by the provisions of the Companies Act. Consequently, the Court to which an application for winding-up an insurance company is to made, is the principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction in the District where the head office of the company is situate, i.e., the District Court and such application must be made by the persons and subject to the qualifications mentioned in S. 22. A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 74=44 P.L.R.1=I.L.R. (1942) Lah. 800=199 Ind. Cas. 381.

——S. 22—Petition must be by ten policy-holders.

The right to wind-up a company is a statutory right and unless the petitioner can bring his case within the terms of S. 22, he is not entitled to maintain the petition.

The right given to policy-holders to present a petition is given to them because they are prospective or contingent creditors, and although in the case of a company which does not fall under the category of life assurance companies, the petition can be presented by a single prospective or contingent creditor, in the case of petition presented by policy-holders of a life assurance company, the petition must be by at least ten policy-holders. To hold otherwise would be to completely nullify the provisions of S. 22, because a policy holder is a contingent or prospective creditor, and if such a single policy-holder can present a petition, there is no sense in the Legislature enacting that a petition must be made by ten or more policy-holders. A.I.R. 1938 Bom. 182=40 Bom. L.R. 52=174 Ind. Cas. 593.

——Ss. 22, 2 (7)—Application by members for winding-up of Provident Society.

Where none of the members of the Provident Society applying for its winding-up under S. 22, Life Assurance Companies Act, read with the Companies Act., are policy-holders under Cl. 7, S. 2, either read by itself or in the light of Cls. 5 and 6 of the Act, the Court has no jurisdiction to wind-up the Society under the Act. To such a case, S. 22 has no application. A.I.R. 1936 Sind 165: 30 S.L R. 92: 164 Ind. Cas. 906.

——S. 34—It is wrong to contend that under S. 34, besides the company, only persons falling under any of the categories specified therein can be punished. A.I.R. 1940

1. Crown.

——Against Crown.

As regads limitation against the Crown, the legal presumption is that unless the Crown is specifically mentioned in a Statute, it is excluded from its operation. 86 Ind. Cas. 757 (Sind).

2. Determination of.

——Determination of—Basis for—Allegations in plaint and reliefs asked for and not on what reliefs should have been asked for.

The limitation applicable to a suit can only be ascertained on the allegations in the plaint and the reliefs prayed for, and not by speculating as to what relief the plaintiff should have prayed for. If the plaintiff prays for a relief to which he is not entitled, the Court may reject his claim, but the Court has no jurisdiction to find out what relief he should have claimed and then apply the provisions of the Limitation Act by reference to the relief which the plaintiff should have claimed but has not claimed A.I.R. 1950 Bom. 401=52 Bom.. L.R. 614.

——Determination of.

The questions of limitation cannot be decided inferentially. It is on the facts actually found and not merely upon those alleged in the plaint that limitation has to be computed. 118 Ind. Cas. 62=A.I.R. 1929 Nag. 124.

——When the law of limitation is to be applied the Court must look at the pleadings and not at the result of the suit. 98 Ind. Cas. 31=24 M.L.W. 475=1926 M.W.N. 767=A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 1190=51 M.L.J. 845.

3. Exclusion.

——Exclusion of time—Alternative remedies.

There is no provision of law according to which a plaintiff, who upon failling to obtain one remedy sues for an alternative one, is entitled to exclude the time taken up by the former proceedings. 100 Ind. Cas. 40=25 M.L.W. 11=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 273.

——Period of notice under C.P. Code. S. 80.

In the case of a suit alleged to be barred under a special law of limitation, the party is not entitled to deduct the period of two months for service of notice under S. 80 of the C.P. Code. 66 Ind. Cas. 287=34 C.L.J. 205=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 661.

4. Onus.

——Onus.

It is wrong to place the onus on the defendants to prove that the suit was time barred; on the other hand it is the plaintiff that should be called upon to prove that the suit was within time. 1948 A.W.R. (Rev). 165=1948 R.D. 262.

5. Plea.

See also LIMITATION ACT, S. 3.

——Nature of plea.

A plea of limitation is not a mere technical plea. A party who can invoke the law of limitation in his favour is certainly justified in doing so and he ought not to be deprived of the advantages gained on the ground of the alleged technicality of the plea raised. 76 Ind. Cas. 119 =17 S.L.R. 263=A.I.R. 1924 Sind 47.

——Not a technical plea.

Where the right sought is one involving the dispossession of a perfectly lawful purchaser of property, it is not quite accurate to say that a plea, that such a suit has not been brought within the proper period of time limited by the Act is a technical plea, if by a technical is meant a plea which asserts rights which have no merits for their support. 57 Ind. Cas. 606=48 Cal. 110 =25 C.W.N. 289=13 M.L.W. 49=47 I.A. 255=18 A.L.J. 1095=22 Bom. L.R. 1370=3 P.W.R. 1921=28 M.L.T. 149=2 U.P.L.R. 124=A.I.R. 1921 P.C. 50=39 M.L.J. 195 (P.C.).

——Raising of plea—In second appeal.

Where the facts necessary to support a plea of limitation are either admitted or are apparent on the face of the record, Court will not be justified in refusing to entertain in the plea, even if raised for the first time in a second appeal. 114 Ind. Cas. 734=1929 A.L.J. 229=A.I.R. 1928 All. 689.

——General rule.

The general rule is that points of limitation should not be allowed to be raised for the first time in appeal where they involve a decision upon questions of fact. Points of limitation should not be decided against the parties unless attention has been drawn to the question of limitation and an opportunity given them to meet it on the evidence.

If limitation is urged as bar, the facts on which it is barred must be proved after an issue has been framed. 66 Ind. Cas. 287=34 C.L.J. 205=A. I. R. 1921 Cal. 661.

——It is necessary that limitation should be pleaded in all cases. But particularly this is so where the bar is alleged under some special law. 66 Ind. Cas. 287=34 C.L.J. 205=A. I. R. 1921 Cal. 661.

6. Revision application.

——Revision application.

Revision applications are not admitted beyond the time allowed for appeals except for special reasons. 7 O.W.N. 894=128 Ind. Cas. 739=A.I.R. 1930 Oudh. 496.

7. Right of redemption.

——Right of redemption.

The right to redeem can be exercised at any time before an order absolute for sale had been passed, and therefore the deposit is valid even though made long after the expiry of three years from the date of the decree. There is no period of limitation prescribed for such an application. 66 Ind. Cas. 944=9 O.L.J. 14=A.I.R. 1922 Oudh 33.

8. Starting point.

——Vendor's failure to keep up the express and implied covenants of title and quite enjoyment—Suit for damages by vendee—Limitation runs only from the date of actual physical disposition.

The right of a vendee to sue his vendor for damage on the ground that the vendor failed to keep up the express and implied covenants of title and quite enjoyment, arises only when there is actual physical dispossession of the vendee. The right would not be affected by limitation as long as the vendee remained in possession of the property and time will begin to run against him only from the date of actual dispossession, even though his right to remain in possession might have been lost by a decree against him. 62 L.W. 249=1949 M.W.N. 298=A.I.R. 1949 Mad. 652=(1949) M.L.J. 456.

——Suit for contribution—Execution of a pro-note.

Where a decree is passed against two judgment debtors, and one of them satisfies the decree by executing a pro-note in favour of the decree-holder that does not give him a right to contribute as against the other judgment-debtor. The limitation for a suit for contribution will run only from the date of satisfaction of the pro-note. 26 Mad. 322 and 14 M.L.J. 285, Foll. 99 Ind. Cas. 438=38 M.L.T. 106=A.I.R. 1927 Mad.1137.

——Starting point

Per Mukerji J.—The starting point of limitation does not always synchronise with the cause of action in many cases it does, but in others it dates from some specified events which again is either anterior or posterior to the accrual of the cause of action. The period prescribed by the Act are more or less arbitrary, and the fixing of the periods is founded on consideration of public policy. 89 Ind. Cas. 1000=29 C. W. N. 973=43 C.L.J. 155=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 65.

——Starting point.

No limitation begins to run against an appellant until a decree is drawn up and signed. 89 Ind. Cas. 937 =A.I.R. 1926 Nag. 207.

——Omission of names in the decree—Amendment date.

Where a decree as passed omitted the same of appealing defendants but they did file an appeal and the appellate Court having made an enquiry, the trial Court added their names in the decree.

Held, that the right of the defendants to appeal from those decrees—if they had any right to appeal—arose when the decrees were amended by the addition of their names. 85 Ind. Cas. 627=A. I. R. 1925 All. 567.

——Where within six years of the denial of the plaintiff's title there is an adjudication by a Civil Court deciding against the defendant; a subsequent denial of the plaintiff's title is a fresh denial and not necessarily in continuation of the preceding one. Time must be calculated only from the later denial. 87 Ind. Cas. 647 =47 All. 416=23 A.L.J. 291=6 L.R.A. (Civ.) 237= A.I.R. 1925 All. 421.

——Plaintiff's share in mortgaged property wrongly entered in revenue papers, to plaintiff's knowledge—Limitation for declaratory suit to rectify error runs from entry—Assertion of plaintiff's title to larger share, by plaintiff's pleader in redemption suit by plaintiffs and defendants, does not necessarily imply a fresh denial of plaintiff's title by defendants giving rise to fresh cause of action. 86 Ind. Cas. 117=7 L.L.J. 35= A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 417.

——Instalment Bond—Option to sue for whole in case of default—Limitation runs from date of first default.

The bond amount was payable within six months and was to bear a certain rate of interest. This interest was to be paid month by month, and in the event of failure to pay in any month, compound interest was to accrue on the unpaid interest and the plaintiff was to have a right to file a suit at once, without waiting for the stipulated period of six months. Interest was never paid.

Held, that a suit not brought within three years of the date of the first default of payment of interest was barred by limitation notwithstanding that the plaintiff was entitled at his option not to sue on default in payment of interest but to wait till the expiry of the period of the bond. It is not open to the parties to an agreement to contract themselves out of the Law of Limitation by inserting in their agreement to alternative starting points for limitation A.I.R. 1923 All. 1 (F.B.), Foll. 85 Ind. Cas. 280=27 O.C. 318=A. I. R. 1925 Oudh 502.

——Rule in Madras.

In Madras Presidency where there is an option open to a person to call up the whole debt on default, or not as he chooses, if he does not exercise that option, it will not be held against him that his cause of action had arisen on the default itself. 84 Ind. Cas. 118=20 M.L.W. 430=1924 M.W.N. 828=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 233.

——Instalment bond.

A suit on an instalment bond which enables the creditor to claim the entire amount on default of any one of the instalments is not time-barred in respect of the instalment, which fell due within the period of limitation, although the suit is filed after the expiry of the period of limitation from the date on which the earliest instalment in respect of which default was made fell due. 90 Ind. Cas. 249=4 Pat. 829=1925 P.H.C.C. 215=A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 557.

——Per Crump, J.—It is only where it is necessary to consider the act plus the consequences as the cause of action, that the time runs from the consequences are injurious. S. 84 Ind. Cas. 736=25 Bom. L.R. 1333=A.I.R. 1924 Bom. 290.

——The true testto determine when a cause of action has accrued is to ascertain the time when plaintiff could first have maintained his action to a successful result. 79 Ind. Cas. 520=39 C.L.J. 40=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 600.

——For a suit under Art. 120 the starting point of limitation is the date of the first decree and not the date of the appellate decree confirming the same. 46 Cal. 670, Foll. 70 Ind. Cas. 45=16 M.L.W. 285=1922 M.W.N. 561=3 M.L.T. 169=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 23.

——An entry in the Record-of-Rights-of-merely raises a presumption of correctness. and is not a starting point for the computation of the period of limitation. 63 Ind. Cas. 954=25 C.W.N. 1022=35 C. L. J. 19=A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 251.

——The limitation for an application for the determination of mesne profits is to be computed from the date of the final decree by which ihe award of mesne profits was confirmed. 36 All. 350 and 39 All. 641 Foll. 68 Ind. Cas. 896=25 O.C. 132=10 O.L J. 56=A.I.R. 1922 Oudh 197.

—Where a borrower executes first a mortgage bond and later on a charge deed and the deed contains a condition to repay the debt at any time before the redemption of the previous mortgage, the date of payment is fixed by the deed, and the limitation does not begin from the date of exceution of the bond. 65 Ind. Cas. 408=8 O.L.J. 660=A.I.R. 1922 Oudh 102.

——Fresh Cause of action—Starting point.

Where a debtor annulled the satisfaction of his debt on the ground of coercion and obtained a decree, the creditor gets a fresh cause of action and time begins to run from the date of the annulment. 9 Cal. 255 (P.C.); 12 M.I.A. 244, Foll. 59 Ind. Cas. 472=43 Mad. 845=12 L.W. 240=1920 M.W.N. 505=39 M.L.J. 312.

9. Suspension.

——Suspension.

It is not necessary nor would it be good law to invoke theory of suspension of limitation in any case in which suspension is not expressly provided for either in the Limitation Act or in some special statute. 10 P.L.T. 879=A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 694 (F.B.).

——Time—When extended.

The period of limitation is extended where there has been a suspension of the cause of action or where the cause of action accrued not on the date indicated in column 3 of the Schedule to the Limitation Act, but at a subsequent date, for no fault of the plaintiff. An original decree is not suspended by presentation of an appeal. nor is its operation interrupted where the decree on appeal is one of dismissal. 46 Cal. 670 (P.C.), Foll.

Time runs from the date on which the rights of the the party suing are finally settled, giving birth to his cause of action, and once its starts running it cannot be stopped by any act which does not being about any change in those rights. 85 Ind. Cas. 1007=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 1216.

——Time granted at debtor's request.

A verbal promise on the part of the client to pay the attorney the latter's costs which have become overdue, when money is recovered in certain execution cases—a promise on the strength of which the attorney has not taken steps to enforce payment—is an answer to any objection based on limitation made by the client against an application by the attorney for an order for payment. 66 Ind. Cas. 209=48 Cal. 817=25 C.W.N. 800=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 67.

10. Transposition of parties.

——Transposition of parties.

Where a paaty is transposed—No question of limitation arises. 99 Ind. Cas. 687=24 M.L.W. 826=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 204=52 M.L.J. 33.

11. Miscellaneous.

——Remedy barred—Revivor by adding another less effective.

It would be reductio ad absurdem to hold that where a party has allowed a valuable right to be extinguished by the lapse of time he should be allowed to revive his right by claiming in his suit another relief which is still within time but is for other reasons ineffective. 129 Ind. Cas. 201=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 993.

——Compromise.

No compromise or agreement can prevent the law of limitation from taking effect. 92 Ind. Cas. 732=13 O.L.J. 138=A.I.R. 1926 Oudh 311.

——Failure to bring suit for declaration of a bare chance—No prejudice can result.

It is not necessary for a man to institute a perfectly vain litigation under peril of losing his property if he does not do so.

A Hindu widow claimed certain properties as the heir of her predeceased natural born son. She willed away the income of the property before her death. Her title was disputed by another lady who claimed to be the adoptive mother of the deceased son. The validity of the adoption was challenged by the natural mother and the matter was before the Courts. The estate was being managed by the Court of Wards, and later, by Court Receivers.

Held, that under the circumstances of the case, the beneficiaries under the will were not bound to sue the testatrix's heir her death, for the payment of the legacies if and when he might be in possession of assets out of which the legacies might have been payable. 87 Ind. Cas. 324=52 I.A. 214=1925 M.W.N. 441=3 Pat. L.R. 208=29 C.W.N. 989=23 A.L.J. 261=6 L R. (P.C.) 82 =48 Mad. 312=27 Bom. L.R. 823=A. I. R. 1925 P.C. 105=48 M.L.J. 627 (P.C.).

LIMITATION (OF SUITS) ACT (14 OF 1852)—(Repealed by Act 9 of 1871)

——S. 1, R. 12—Suit by reversioner—Time as to 'when the cause of action arises.'

Under Limitation Act of 1859, the limitation for a suit by a reversioner who succeeded to the property was 12 years from the time when the cause of action arises. 'In the case of a suit for possession by a reversionary heir after the death of the widow, who takes by inheritance from her husband and is dispossessed, the period of limitation as against the reversioner, in the absence of fraud, is not to be reckoned from the time when he succeeds to the estate but from the time at which it would have been reckoned against the widow if she had lived and brought the suit.' The possession of a mortgagee under the Bengal Regulation (15 of 1793) does not become adverse simply because he remains in possession after the mortgage money has been paid out of the usufruct and the suit for redemption of a mortgage effected before the passing of the Limitation Act of 1859 is governed by 60 years rule. 33 A. 97, Foll. 34 All. 261=9 A.L.J. 131=13 Ind. ——S. 1 (15)—Acknowledgment by manager or agent.

Per Dar, J.—The acknowledgment of a manager of a joint Hindu family or an agent was not a good acknowledgment under the Lim. Act of 1859 and was wholly ineffective to save time. A. I. R. 1943 All. 393 (1943) A.L.J. 548=1943 A. W. R. (H. C.) 291=I. L. R. (1944) All. 76=212 Ind. Cas. 238 (F.B.).

——S. 1 (15)—Words "in the mean time"—Meaning of.

Per Full Bench.—The words "in the mean time" in S. 1 (15), Limitation Act (14 of 1859), mean within 60 years from the date of the mortgage. An acknowledgment to be valid under Cl. (15) of S. 1, Lim. Act, has to be made within sixty years of the date of the mortgage and an acknowledgment made more than sixty years after the date of the mortgage, though made at a time when there was no period of limitation prescribed for redemption suits or when the mortgage was subsisting on account of period of grace granted by S. 18 of Act 14 of 1859, is not a valid acknowledgment within the meaning of Cl. (15) and cannot save time for redemption suits beyond the period of grace given by S. 18 of Act 14 of 1859.

The entries in the khewat of 1852 were merely to the effect that Lachman and others were in possession as mortgagees and that the mortgage-money was Rs. 274—4—0 in one case and Rs. 383 in the other. The entries were attested by the mortgagees or their representatives. It was contended that the entries amounted to acknowledgment that the mortgage was subsisting and the acknowledgment having been made at a time when there was no period of limitation prescribed for a suit for redemption, the acknowledgment was sufficient to extend the period of limitation even if made more than 60 years of the date of the mortgage:

Held, (1) (Per Full Bench).—That as the date of the mortgage was not established, the mortgagor had failed to show that the acknowledgement was made within 60 years of the mortgage and hence the acknowledgment was wholly ineffective to save limitation.

(2) (Per Collister, Bajpai, Hamilton and Dar, JJ).—That the entries could not be construed as acknowledgment by the mortgagees of the title of the mortgagor or that the mortgages were subsisting in law. 1943 A.W.R. 291=A.I.R. 1943 All. 393=(1943) A.L.J. 548=I.L.R. ——S 1. Cl. 15 and 18—Mortgage—Redemption—Act IX of 1908, S. 29 and Art. 148—Acknowledgment of title after expiry of period prescribed for redemption—Effect of.

Plaintiff sued to redeem a mortgage of 1798. Under Cl. 15 of S. 1 of the Limitation Act of 1859 the mortgagor has sixty years to redeem unless there was an acknowledgment of the mortgagor's title in the meantime. The sixty years expired in 1858. There was an acknowledgment in 1861, i.e., within two years of grace allowed by S. 18 of the Act to bring a suit.

Held, that the suit brought in 1911 was barred by limitation. The words "in the meantime" occurring in S. 1, Cl. 15 of the Act of 1859 refer to the sixty years mentioned in the first part of the clause and the right of the mortgagors to sue, having become barred in 1858, their right to the property was extinguished by S. 29 of the Act of 1871. The subsequent acknowledgment was ineffective to save limitation. 27 C. 1004 (P. C.); 5 M. 182, Foll. 33 M.L.J. 753=(1917) M.W.N. 864=22 M.L.T. 419=43 Ind. Cas. 50.

The plaintiff instituted, on the 7th of June, 1899, a suit for redemption of an alleged usufructuary mortgage executed on the 14th of August, 1781, for a term of 70 years. Held, that the suit was barred by limitation under S. 1 (15) and S. 8 of Act No. XIV of 1859, as the limitation provided for by the Act was only 60 years from the date of the mortgage and not from the date of the cause of action as in the Act of 1877. 1906 A. LIMITATION ACT (11 of 1871) (REPEALED BY 15 of 1877)—Art. 129—Possession by setting aside adoption—Twelve years from the date of adoption of the adoptive father.

Article 129 of the Second Schedule of Act 9 of 1871 relates to all suits in which the plaintiff cannot succeed without displacing an apparent adoption by virtue of which the defendant is in possession. That article prescribed twelve years as the period of time within which a suit "to establish or set aside an adoption" might be brought, and that such period of twelve years should begin to run from the date of the adoption, or (at the option of the plaintiff) from date of the adoptive father's death. Act 9 of 1871 did not give to a reversioner, whose right to sue for possession accrued upon the death of Hindu widow any further time than the twelve years given by Art. 129 to any plaintiff. 92 Ind. Cas. 85=28 Bom. L.R. 173=30 C.W.N. 313=6 L.R. (P.C.) 169=52 I.A. 322=42 C.L.J. 563=48 Mad. 883=1926 M.W.N. 11=A.I.R. 1925 P.C. 249=49 M.L.J. 769 (P.C.).

——Art. 129—Adopted son not entitled to present possession—Title recognised within 12 years by adversaries—No suit need be brought.

In 1856, estate of a deceased Raja was confiscated by the Government. Afterwards it was relinquished by the Government in favour of the Raja's heirs in 1862. By the order of re-grant, the estate was to be enjoyed by the Raja's widows during their life-time, and after them, the Raja's daughter or failing her, the Raja's next heirs were to inherit the property. In 1863, the senior widow adopted a son to her deceased husband. In 1866, the validity of the adoption was questioned in a suit filed by the other widows. But the decree in the suit expressly refused to adjudicate on the validity of the adoption. The factum of adoption was not disputed by any body but only its validity. After the decree was passed in the suit the other widows recognised (within the period of 12 years from the adoption) the adopted soon as their son. The decree only decided that the adopted son had no present right to possession and entrusted the property to a receiver who was to be in possession during the life-time of the widows or during such period as the Court thought fit. The daughter of the Raja predeceased the last surviving widow. After the death of the last surviving widow, in 1912, the Receiver filed an inter-pleader suit. The sons of the adopted son were among the contesting defendants. It was contended that their right had become barred under the Limitation Act of 1871, Art. 129 as the adopted son had not sued to establish the adoption within 12 years from the date on which it had taken place.

Held, that the adopted son's right had not become barred, for the following reasons:—(1) Whithin twelve years from his adoption the same was recognished by those who had contested it. (2) The decree in the suit of 1866 refused to adjudicate upon the validity of the adoption and a suit by the adopted son in face of this decree would not have lain. (3) A suit filed by him for a declaration that under the terms of the grant he was entitled to succeed to the properties as adopted son on the death of all the widows and on the contingency of the daughter of the Raja predeceasing them would be dismissed on the ground that no Court would grant a declaration of a bare possibility which may or may not ripen. (4) The rival claimants in the inter-pleader suit being in the posttion of plaintiffs would themselves be debarred from challenging the adoption if the adopted son was debarred from supporting the adoption, as the former had not sued within the period fixed by the Act of 1871, to set aside the adoption.

Per Spencer, Offg. C.J.—The adopted son might have sued for a bare declaration but was not bound to do so. 93 Ind. Cas. 705=48 Mad. 1=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 497.

The Act of 1877 applies only to declaratory suits in respect of adoptions and not to suits for possession of immovable property. 93 I.C. 705=48 Mad. 1=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 497.

——Art. 179—Execution of mortgage-decree.

Under Art. 179, the period of three years runs from the date of the decree appealed against and not, from the date of the order to dismiss the appeal for want of prosecution. In a case a decree nisi for sale is made in a mortgage suit, the period of limitatation is three years from the date of the decree. It cannot be extended by six months, the period given by the decree for redemption. The decree is operative from its date and it is the length of time during which it is operative that the Limitation Act looks to. 74 Ind. Cas. 660=30 M.L.T. 95=1922 M.W.N. 338=24 Bom. 1. Act is exhaustive Code.

——Act is exhaustive Code.

The Limitation Act is an exhaustive Code in itself and effect must be given to its provisions unhampered by questions of expediency and the like. A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 534=1938 N.L.J. 336=I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 334=180 Ind. Cas. 903.

——Act is a complete Code—Provision saving bar of limitation must be contained or necessarily implied from the Act.

The Limitation Act, being the enactment of the Legislature which has dealt with all matters connected with the limitation of actions, applications, appeals and so on, is really in the nature of the Code. The essence of a Code is its completeness and therefore, on a proper interpretation and construction of the statute, no Court would be entitled to invoke any principle for the purpose of holding the claim as not barred by the law of limitation which is not contained or necessarily implied in any of the sections or articles of the Limitation Act. 111 Ind. Cas. 210=51 Mad. 549=29 M.L.W. 460=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 509.

——Act is complete in itself.

The Court cannot introduce a new period of limitation on any ground of equity. The Limitation Act is complete in itself and any ground for extension of time must be sought for, within the four corners of the Act itself. 85 Ind. Cas. 272=20 M.L.W. 987=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 334=48 M.L.J. 74.

——The Act is meant to be exhaustive. A.I.R. 1936 All. 383=(1936) A.L.J. 503=1936 R.D. 139=1936 A.W.R. 388=163 Ind. Cas. 244.

2. Appeal.

——Appeal.

Where parties' Counsel have been duly communicated the date fixed for delivery of judgment limitation for appeal will run from such date in spite of the fact that neither the parties nor the Counsel were present. 98 Ind. Cas. 942=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 59.

3. Applicability.

(a) General.
(b) Defence.

3. (a) General.

——Applicability of Act in Shan States.

In the Shan States, the Limitation Act as such is not in force. A.I.R. 1937 Rang. 477=1937 Rang. 287=173 Ind. Cas. 160.

——Applicability—Laccadive Islands.

The law applicable to the Islands is to be found in Regulation 1 of 1912. The Limitation Act has not been applied to these Islands and therefore time for filing an appeal cannot be extended under S. 5 of the Lim. Act. 13 Mad. 353, .Appl. 93 Ind. Cas. 341=49 Mad. 419=23 M.L.W. 636=A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 657.

——Aden.

The Indian Limitation Act extends to the whole of British India of which Aden forms part and S. 16 of the Aden Civil and Criminal Justice Act (Act 2 of 1864) makes any Act or Acts in relation to civil procedure in force for the time being applicable to the Courts at Aden. 84 Ind. Cas. 796=25 Bom. L.R. 1333=A.I.R. 1924 Bom. 290.

—Applicability—Application by Receiver under S. 4, Provincial Insolvency Act. See Provincial Insolvency Act, S. 4. 52 Bom. L.R. 606=A.I R. 1950 Bom. 399.

——Law Applicable—Place where suit is brought.

The law of limitation is a law of procedure and has to be strictly construed. It may bar the remedy but does not extinguish the right. In considering whether a particular remedy is open to a party, the law applicable to the place where the suit is brought is applicable. The law of limitation prevailing in the place where the obligation arose has not to be considered. A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 522=I.L.R. (1939) Bom. 639=41 Bom. L.R. 1084=186 Ind. Cas. 393.

——Local law—Execution of decree passed by Baroda Court—Transfer to Br. Court.

In 1913, an application to execute the decree of 1909 was made in Baroda. It was within time according to the law of Baroda. In 1915, the decree was tranferred for execution to a British Court in Ahmedabad. Held, that the application was barred by time, because suits and applications are governed by the local law of the country in which the suit or the application is brought. 12 Bom. L.R. 844, Foll. 40 Bom. 504=18 Bom L.R. 481=36 Ind. Cas. 369.

——Retrospective effect.

A statute which takes away or impairs rights acquired under the existing law must not be construed to have a retrospective force, unless, by express words or necessary implication, it appears that such was the intention of the Legislature which passed it. It is true that ordinarily the enactments which regulate procedure take effect immediately on the principle that "no suitor has a vested interest in the procedure" and that an Act of limitation. being a law of procedure, will ordinarily govern all proceedings, to which its terms are applicable, from the moment of its enactment. But this rule must admit of the qualification that when the retrospective application of the statute of limitation would destroy vested rights, or inffict such hardship or injustice as could not have been within the comtemplation of the Legislature, then the statute is not any more than any other law to be construed retrospectively. A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 282=20 P.L.T. 139=18 Pat. 355=5 B.R. 902=183 Ind. Cas. 212.

——Retrospective effect—Reasons stated.

Per Pandurang Row, J.—The intention of the law of limitation being practically to put an end to existing rights after a certain lapse of time, the reason why a new rule of limitation is applied retrospectively is not because the law of limitation is a law of procedure but because the express intention of the law of limitation is to destroy or extinguish existing rights of action after a certain lapse of time. It is retrospective if it is clearly intended to be retrospective and not because it is merely a matter of procedure. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 688=(1938) M.W.N. 682=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 44=48 L.W. 81=179 Ind. Cas. 16.

——Retrospective effect—Retrospective unless it confiscates vested right under old Act—If effect of new Act is only to curtail the period it should be given retrospective effect, e.g., suit by a minor under the old and new Acts.

Statutes of limitation cannot be considered as anything else than matters relating to procedure and ordinartily such statutes have their operation from the date fixed in the statute and govern all matters before the court after the commencement of the operation of the statute. There is however one exception and it is that where under the Act as amended the application could not be made the amendment will not apply retrospectively, for the principle is that the effect of an amendment is to regulate and not to confiscate of vested right.

A right to apply under C.P. Code. O. 34, R. 6, accrued to a minor in September, 1908. The mortgagee was under a disability of minority till 23rd September, 1923. Under the old Act the minor could make application within three years of the cessation of the disability. The new Act subsituted for this, three years from the date right to apply accrued. On the date of the coming into force of the new Limitation Act the minor had two years and nine month's time under the new Act within which to apply.

Held, that inasmuch as the effect of change was to cut the period within which to apply and not to take away the right, the new Act should be given retrospective operation. 122 Ind. Cas. 201=49 C.L.J. 362=33 C.W.N. 519=56 Cal. 1117=A.I.R 1930 Cal. 34.

——Right of limitation

No one has a vested right in a period of limitation. 110 Ind. Cas. 719=50 All. 865=26 A.L.J. 1317=A.I.R. 1928 All. 708.

——Law of.

The law of Limitation is a branch of the adjective law and governs all proceedings to which it is applicable from the date of its enactment. 1 Pat. L.J. 214 and 11 All. 408 (F.B.), Foll. 62 Ind. Cas. 100=2 P.L.T. 669.

——Applicability of—Pending Suit—Law applicable.

The provisions of the Lim. Act applicable to a suit are the provisions which exist on the date when the suit is instituted.

[Provisions of S. 20 as amended by Act. XVI of 1942, held operated to decide the question of limitation.] A.I.R 1946 Pat 60=24 Pat. 391.

——Law Applicable.

There can be no doubt that, in the ordinary way the law of limitation which geverns a suit is the law in force at the time of the institution of the suit and not that in force at the timeof the cause of action (1944) O.W.N. 242.

——New Act—Law applicable.

The Law of Limitation, being a branch of the adjectival law, the statute of limitation applicable to a particular suit or legal remedy is that which is in force at the date when the suit is instituted or the remedy is sought and not the statue which was in force at the time of the transaction or vesting of the cause of action on which the suit or remedy is based. A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 122=20 P.L.T. 38=5 B.R. 398=18 Pat. 1=180 Ind. Cas. 414.

——Limitation—Amendment of law of limitation—Cause of action before amendment—Law applicable.

It is certainly not the rule that when a statute introduces a shorter period of limitation, suits instituted after the amendment of the law in respect of causes of action accuring before such amendment are governed by the rule of limitation,which was in force on the date when cause of action accrued. On the contrary, the rule ordinarily applicable is the law which is in force at the time of the institution of the suit. The case is diffierent when there is an interval between the passing of the Act and its coming into force so that a party affected by the new period of limitation has a reasonable time during which he could avail himself of his remedy before the new period of limitation came into force. In such a case, the limitation is governed by the Amending Act and it is so even in cases where the cause of action has arisen before the Amending Act came into force. 18 P.L.T. 193=A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 311=3 B.R. 534=169 Ind. Cas. 78.

——Law applicable.

The law of limitation applicable to a suit or proceeding is the law in force at the date of the institutions of the suit or proceeding, unless there is a distinct provision to the contrary. 34 C.W.N. 733.

——Rules of limitation are prima facie rules of procedure, and unless there is something special in the rules which justifies a contrary inference, the rules applicable to application or appeal would be rules which are in force at the time when the appeal or the application is filed. A statute of limitation is retrospective in its operation and governs all proceedings from the moment of its enactment, even though the cause of action might have accrued before the Act came into existence. 35 All. 227 (P.C.), Foll. 110 Ind. Cas. 719=50 All. 865=26 A.L.J. 1317=A.I.R. 1928 All. 708.

——Law applicable.

The law of limitation which prevails when a suit is brought, applies to that suit, unless it be shown that one or other of the parties have acquired vested rights under some earlier statute of limitation. 35 All. 227 (P. C.), Foll.

Plaintiff whose enjoyment of an easement as against the Crown began in 1865 cannot acquire a prescriptive right against the Crown in view of S. 15, Easements Act, and S. 26, Limitation Act, 1877, does not apply to such a case. 86 Ind. Cas. 757=21 S.L.R. 195= A.I.R. 1927 Sind 270.

——The law of limitation applicable to a suit of proceeding is the law in force at the date of the institution of the suit or proceeding unless there is a distinct provision to the contrary. 35 All. 227, (P.C.), Foll. 90 Ind. Cas. 274=48 All. 121=23 A.L.J. 977=6 L.R.A. Civ. 582=A.I.R. 1926 All. 93.

——Applicability of—Suit or proceeding—Law of Limitation applicable.

The Law of Limitation applicable to a suit or proceeding is the law in force at the date of the institution of the suit or proceeding, unless there is a distinct provision to the contrary. 29 Ind. Cas. 833. (Cal.).

——Applicability—Pending proceedings.

The law of limitation is a law relating to procedure and the law applicable to suits or proceedings is the law in force at its institution unless there is a distinct provision to the contrary. 21 Ind. Cas. 113 (Cal.).

——Applicability—Retrospective operation.

The law of limitation applicable to a suit is prima facie the law in force at the time of the institution of the suit, in the absence of circumstances indicating an intention of the part of the legislature to affect retrospectively existing causes of action. One such circumstance is that a new law ls brought into immediate operation without any opportunity afforded to litigants to enforce their rights under the old law. 35 A. 227 Foll. 18 C.L.J. 274=20 Ind. Cas. 821.

——Applicability of—Date of suit.

A suit is governed by the Limitation Law in force at the time of its institution and not by subsequent statute which comes into operation during the pendency of the suit. 19 C.L.J. 187=19 Ind. Cas. 968.

——Applicability—Law in force at the date of the suit or proceeding.

Unless there is a distinct provision to the contrary, the law of limitation applicable to a suit or proceeding is the law in force at the date of the institution of the suit or proceeding. 35 All. 227=40. I.A. 74=25 M.L.J. 131=13 M.L.T. 437=17 C.W.N. 605=11 A.L.J. 389=(1913) M.W.N. 470=17 C.L.J. 488=15 Bom. L.R. 489=19 Ind. Cas. 291 (P.C.).

——Applicability—Suits after 1877, but before acknowledgment under Act of 1859.

Where an acknowledgment was made when the Limitation Act 14 of 1859, was in force and the in suit was instituted when the Act of 1877, came into force: Held, that the law of limitation in force at the date of the institution of the suit of proceeding applied unless there was a distinct provision to the contrary. 7 B. 459, Foll. 32 All. 33=6 A.L.J. 931=6 M.L.T. 348=3 Ind. Cas. 725.

——Applicability of—Pending proceedings.

The law of limitation is a branch of the adjective law and governs all proceedings to which it is applicable from the date of its enactment. 20 C.W.N. 952= 2 P.L.W. 370=1 P.L.J. 214=34 Ind. Cas. 27.

——Applicability of Pending cases.

The new Act may be applied without hardship as the legislature has postponed its coming into operation, two years after passing it. The principle is not affected by cases of individual hardship. 34 Mad. 292=7 M.L.T. 115=20 M.L.J. 347=(1910) M.W.N. 516=5 Ind. Cas. 420.

——Applicability—Retrospective operation—Limits of.

Though laws affecting limitation might abridge or enlarge periods of limitation in cases of suits or causes of action which are alive at the date when the new enactment comes into force which under the old law would expire afterwards, the change cannot, unless there is clearly expressed an intention to the contrary either by apt words in the enactment or otherwise operate retrospectively so as to destroy rights of suits which were alive on the date. 39 Mad. 645=29 M.L.J. 1=18 M.L.T. 67=(1915) M.W.N. 547=2 L.W. 661 =30 Ind. Cas. 94.

——Applicability—Retrospective effect—Right barred prior to amendment is not revived—But right if not barred, amended law applies.

In the absence of anything to the contrary if a claim is within limitation according to the old Limitation Act on the date when the new Limitation Act comes into force and a proceeding is commenced after the coming into force of the new Act it is the new Act which would govern all decisions on the point of limitation. If, however, the right to sue or the right to apply had already been barred by the provisions of the old Act then in force, then unless there was something in the new Act which could be deemed to apply retrospectively to revive claims which had already become barred, the new Act could not be availed of for the purpose of saving limitation. A. I. R. 1946 All. 58=1945 A. W. R. (H.C.) 246=223 Ind. Cas. 175=I. L. R. (1945) All. 896.

——Ordinarily, the suit would be governed by the Lim. Act 9 of 1908, which is the law in force when the suit is instituted; but if the defendants are able to show that the right of action had become barred under the Act of 1859, then the title that they had acquired could not be defeated by the subsequent Lim. Act. A. I. R. 1942 P.C. 54=(1942) A.L.J. 392=8 B. R. 874=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 249=48 C. W. N. 1008=23 P. L. T. 717=1942 O.W.N. 806=(1942) Kar. (P.C.) 1111 (Sup.)=I.L.R. (1943) Mad. 1=69 I.A. 110=202 Ind. Cas. 1 (P.C.).

——In the absence of an express intention to the contrary, it is well-established that extension of the period of limitation of a suit by a new Act cannot revive a right of suit which had already been barred by the repealed Act. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 115=70 C.L.J. 218=44 C.W.N. 38.

——New statute—Retrospective effect.

When, under the existing law, a right of suit has become barred and a person has consequently acquired title, such right of suit cannot be revive and such itle cannot be extinguished by subsequent legislation. A.I.R. 1936 All. 858=1936 A. L. J. 1373=166 Ind. Cas.

——Applicability of — Barred rights—Not revived.

A right to sue barred under a repealed Limitation Act is not revived by the passing a new Act in the absence of a provision to that effect in the later enactment. 33 M.L.J. 753=(1917) M.W.N. 864=22 M.L.T. 419=43 Ind. Cas. 50.

——Applicability—Reversioner's suit for possession from heirs and representatives of adopted son —Suit within 12 years of death of widow—Right barred under Act of 1871 not revived by Act of 1877.

The right to sue to set aside an adoption, if barred under Art. 129, while the Limitation Act (1871) was in force, is not revived by the Act of 1877 or by that of 1908. 40 Mad. 846=6 L.W. 253=41 Ind. Cas. 546.

——Applicability of—Rights barred under old Act—Not revived by the passing of the new Act.

The intention of the law of limitation is, not to give a right where there is none, but to interpose a bar after a certain period to a suit to enforce an existing right. Nothing in the new Limitation Act can revive a right which has already become barred under the old Act. 33 All. 356=38 I.A. 87=15 C.W.N. 545 =8 A.L.J. 552=13 C.L.J. 575=13 Bom. L.R. 427=10 M.L.T. 25=(1911) 1 M.W.N. 432=21 M.L.J. 645=10 Ind Cas. 477. (P.C.).

——New Act—Retrospective effect.

Where, in an Act, amending and shortening a period of limitation, a period of time is given between the passing of the Act and the date upon which it is intended that it should come into force, such an Act must be given a retrospective effect. The Legislature have given all persons affected by the Amending Act a period of time to bring their suits, the causes of action of which accrued before the Amending Act came into force and which would otherwise be barred under the Amending Act. If suits are not brought within such period, then the amending statute must be held to bar them. A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 122=20 P.L.T. 38=5 B.R. 398=18 Pat.=180 Ind. Cas. 414.

——New Statute— Retrospective effect.

Where a new statute of limitation reduces the time previously allowed for commencement of the suit, but does not come into operation forthwith and allows a reasonable time for the enforcement of existing causes of action, the Court will not hesitate to hold that the statute may affect causes of action already accrued in the same manner as those accruing after its passage. A I.R. 1939 Pat. 282=20 P.L.T. 139=18 Pat. 355=5 B.R. 902=183 Ind. Cas. 212.

——Applicability of general provisions.

The general provisions of Limitation Act are founded mainly on equitable considerations which apply as much to the period of limitation prescribed by the special Act, as to period of limitation prescribed by the Limitation Act itself. 34 All. 496, Foll. 122 Ind. Cas. 810=10 P. L.T. 769=9 Pat. 172=A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 14.

——Quaere.

If the general provisions of the Limitation Act providing for extending the period of limitation apply only to the period prescribed in the schedule to that Act or also to the periods prescribed in special Acts like the Karachi Port Trust Act. 89 Ind. Cas. 376 (Sind)

——Applicability of—Application to Court.

The Limitation Act does not apply to applications to a Court to do what it cannot refuse, nor to applications for the exercise of functions of a purely ministerial character. 9 Bur. L. T. 148=8 L. B. R. 422=35 Ind. Cas. 950.

——Applicability—Action to be taken by Court.

The provisions of the Limitation Act do not apply to action which it is the duty of the Court to take up without any formal application by parties. 19 C.W.N. 473= 22 C.L.J. 66=28 Ind. Cas. 211.

——Applicability to all kinds of applications.

The Limitation Act does not pretend to provide for all kinds of application to Courts whatsoever. The Act certainly does not apply to applications to the Court to do what the Court has no discretion to refuse; nor can the provisions of the Act be held to apply to an application to the Court to terminate a pending proceeding the final order in which has been postponed for the benefit of the defendant or for the convenience of the Court. 15 C.W.N. 337=6 Ind. Cas. 537=12 C.L.J. 328=37 C. 796.

——Applicability of—Questions of private international law.

Obiter—Limitation is a law of procedure for some purposes, e.g., when questions of private international law have to be decided and a Court has to settle the law of which state should be applied in case of conflict. 36 Mad. 108=21 M.L.J. 777=10 M.L.T. 75=(1911) 2 M.W.N. 565=11 Ind. Cas. 635.

——Applicability and scope—Proceeding before arbitration.

In the absence of a agreement to the contrary, the Limitation Act is applicable to a proceeding before arbitrators. A.I.R. 1943 All. 162=(1943) A.L.J. 69=I.L.R. (1943) All. 467=1943 A.W.R. H.C. 62=207 Ind. Cas. 571.

——Bihar and Orissa Municipal Act.

The Limitation. Act applies for recovery of dues under the Bihar and Orissa Municipal Act, since no special period of limitation is provided in the Act. 18 P.L.T. 252=A.I.R. 1937Pat. 360=3 B.R. 561=16 Pat. 302= 169 Ind Cas. 364.

——Special law—Tenancy.

If there is special law and a general law, the special must prevail over the general. This principle is applicable to matters of tenancy where the question of limitation is involved. A.I.R. 1936 Nag. 180=I. L. R.= (1936) Nag. 5=165 Ind. Cas. 122.

——Applicability to Advocate-General and Charitable trusts.

There is nothing in the Limitation Act which exempts the Advocate-General or any charity from the operation of the Act. (1905) 7 Bom. L. R. 772.

——Applicability to suits and proceedings under special or local laws.

The general provisions of the Indian Limitation Act 1877, are applicable to suits and proceedings under special or local laws except in so far as they affect or alter the period of limitation prescribed by those laws, unless the special or local law is complete code in itself. 1902 A.W.N. 34.

3. (b) Defence.

——Applicability—Plea in defcnce.

It is open a defendant to resist a suit for possession by a plaintiff on the ground that the sale in favour of the plaintiff is voidable at his instance. The fact that the defendant's suit for cancellation of the sale is barred by time cannot debar him from raising the plea that the sale is voidable, for the simple reason that being in possession it was not necessary for him to bring the suit. It is now well settled that the Limitation Act only applies to suits or applications mentioned therein and does not debar a person from raising a plea in defence. The only case where a man loses not only the remedy but also the right by his failure to bring an action within time is the one which comes within the purview of S. 28 of the Limitation Act. 50 P.L.R. 167 =A.I.R. 1949 E.P. 29.

——Applicability to the case of defendant.

The Limitation Act is not applicable to the case of a defendant and the party in possession is not affected by it. It refers only to the remedy of the plaintiff and not even to his rights and even though the remedy may be barred, the right may still exists. 21 Luck. 194=1946 A L.W. (C.C.) 1=1946 O.A. (C.C.) 12= 1946 A.W.R. (C.C.) 12=1946 O. W. N. 1=A. I. R. 1946 Oudh 129.

——Application to defences.

The plea of limitation is not available against defences. (1932) A.L J. 595=A. I. R. 1932 All. 558= 138 Ind. Cas. 492.

——Defence.

There can be no limitation against a plea in defence. 113 Ind. Cas. 750=A.I.R. 1929 All. 77.

——The Limitation Act applies to the bringing of suits and not to defences. A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 257, Foll. 110 Ind. Cas. 571=A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 810.

——Even though the remedy of a suit may be barred the defence of the invalidity of transfer is not necessarily barred. 107 Ind. Cas. 897=A I.R. 1928 Nag. 262.

——Claim by way of defence.

Limitation cannot be pleaded against a claim made by way of defence. 92 Ind. Cas. 675=1 Luck. 92 =29 O.C. 118=13 O.L.J. 10=3 O. W. N.121=A.I.R. 1926 Oudh 228.

—Claim of defendant.

The statute does not apply to the claim of a defendant. 84 Ind. Cas. 168= 5 Lah. 375=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 32.

—Defences—Not subject to.

There can be no limitation against a defence. 5 O. L. J. 768=49 Ind. Cas. 115.

—Defences—No bar of limitation.

There is no Limitation under the Act to bar defence of fraud to an action.

The time limit under the Act applies only to actions brought by the Plaintiff and not to rights set up in defence. 35 Ind. Cas. 610. (Cal.)

—Defences—Fraud.

There is no limitation under the Indian statute which will bar the defence of fraud to an action. The Limitation Act does hot bar defences. 31 M.L.J. 362= 20 C. W. N. 957=(1916) M.W.N 433=3 L.W. 528= 14 A.L.J. 1236=34 Ind. Cas. 37 (P.C.)

—Defence—Laches.

A defence of laches cannot prevail where a statutory period of limitation is prescribed. 41 Cal. 771=18 C.W.N. 631=26 Ind. Cas. 284.

4. Construction.

(a) General

(b) Equitable considerations.

4. (a) Construction—General Interpretation of the Act.

The Court Fees Act and Limitation Act are not in pari materia. 1941 N.L J. 205=A.I.R. 1941 Nag. 236 =I.L.R. (1941) Nag. 392=196 Ind. Cas. 556.

—Relation with C. P. Code—Both should be interpreted together.

Per Das, J. —Code of Civil Procedure and the Indian Limitation Act are the two great procedural Codes in India and they were amended in the same year and were to come into operation on the same day. They are statutes in pari materia and are to be taken together as forming one system, and as interpreting and enforcing each other. 78 Ind. Cas. 200=3 Pat. 371= 5 P.L.T. 145=1924 P.H.C.C. 33= A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 1 (F.B.).

—Interpretation of the Act.

There is no place in law of limitation for general principle of suspension of limitation—Act must be strictly construed. A I R 1939 All 82: (1939) A L J 29=I.L.R. (1939) All. 207=1939 A. W. R 93=180 Ind. Cas. 927.

—Construction—Extension of scope of Act by implication—Permissibility.

It is an elementary principle of construction that the scope of the Limitation Act cannot be extended by implication, and a party's rights to go to Court cannot be taken away unless the Act expressly provides that his right is so barred. 50 Bom. L.R. 747=A.I.R. 1949 Bom. 104.

—Construction—Strict construction—Bar of limitation by analogy—Permissibility.

It is dangerous to assume that a suit is barred by limitation by virtue of any analogy. The law of a limitation deprives a party of his legal rights and has got therefore to be construed strictly according to its letter. No claim can be barred by analogy unless it is expressly barred by the statute. 1950 Comp. C. 15.

—Interpreation to be adopted—Necessity for law of limitation.

The provisions of the Limitation Act require to be very strictly interpreted. Limitation laws are very necessary, otherwise no person could remain certain that he would not be dragged before the Courts to answer for a debt allegedly incurred by some earlier ancestor of his. Persons who delay to enforce their claims in the Courts are guilty either of laches or must be held to delay to the uttermost extent for reasons of their own. It does not seem to me to be the duty of the Courts therefore, to attempt to interpret the law of limitation wherever possible in favour of the creditor. There must be no attempt to force the Limitation law to condone this suggested technical difficulty. 1946 A. M.L.J. 13.

—Interpretation.

Per Abdur Rahman, J.—If no other interpretation is possible, the words of the statute must be given effect to, however, unfortunate the result may be. But one must struggle against such interpreation as far as is possible and in doing so, he must, where the language is ambiguous, construe the words of the statute in favour of the plaintiff's right to proceed. Even if two interpretations are found to be equally possible, the Court must impute a reasonable intention to the Legislature and hold the suit not to be falling within shorter period of limitation. Limitation statute being a statute of repose, has to receive such interpretation as would effectuate the intention of the Legislature. Where therefore, two constructions are permissible without straining the language of the statute, the one which leads to undesirable or unexpected results or is liable to cause hardship must be avoided as not having been intended by the Legislature. A.I.R. 1945 Lah. 324=I.L.R. (1945) Lah. 523=47 P.L.R. 302 (F.B.).

—Interpreation of the Act.

Per Stone, C. J.—Limitation Act should be construed so as to save rather, than bar a proceeding. A.I.R. 1939 Nag. 150=I.L.R. (1939) Nag. 185=1939 N.L.J. 173=182 Ind. Cas. 662.

—Construction.

Statutes of limitation must be strictly construed and no man is to be deprived of rights which would, by law, belong to him unless the specific provisions of law, which are alleged to take away these rights can be shown to apply clearly and in precise terms to his case. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 23=181 Ind. Cas. 728.

The provisions of Limitation Act should receive a fair and not too technical a construction. Its language ought not to be strained in favour of the judgment-debtor who has not paid his debt and the words should be liberally interpreted in favour of the decree-holder. A. I. R. 1938 Mad. 323=(1938) M. W. N. 191=(1938) 1 M. L. J. 135=47 L. W. 693=178 Ind. Cas. 749.

——Interpretation of the Act—Principles.

In construing Acts of Limitation, Courts must always remember that the object of the Legislature is to induce people to be active in the assertion of their rights, and to penalise those who sleep upon their rights; and if it is possible to avoid giving a statute of limitation a meaning wich has the effect of destroying a right to sue before that right has effectively arisen, the Court should do so. A.I.R. 1933 Bom. 439=35 Bom. L. R. 956=57 B. 593=147 Ind. Cas 919.

——Different periods of limitation—Duty of Court.

The Courts should have no hesitation in applying the Statue of Limitation whereit clearly applies, but where there are two possible views under this Statute one tending to deprive a person his just dues and the other entitling him to recover them, there is no reason way one should not lean in favour of the view which does not entail any hardships or lead to any unjust consequences A. I. R. 1931 pat. 285=12 P. L. T. 755=11 Pat. 112 =134 Ind Cas. 609.

——Construction—Favourable to plaintiff.

Courts in dealing with questions of limitation should, as far as possible, place upon the Act a construction favourable to plaintiffs. 1930 M. W. N. 930=32 M. L .W. 502= A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 991=59 M. L. J. 881.

——Limitation Act has to be strictly construed and unless a suit clearly falls with the ambit of the article sought to be applied the decision should be in favour of the continuation of the suit. 121 Ind. Cas. 379=30 P.L.R. 440=11 L. L. J. 431=A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 513.

——Words must not be construed to restrict rights unless so expressed — Provisions cannot be extended to cases not covered by the wording—Form of suit will determine what article should be applied.

Inasmuch as the Limitation Act is an Act which takes away or restricts rights to start legal proceedings it must receive such a construction as the language in its plain meaning imports. It cannot be interpreted so as to restrict rights unless it is clear that the Legislature intended that this should be done. It cannot also be forgotten that the provisions of the Limitation Act must not be extended to cases which are not strictly within the enactment or do not come within the strict meaning of the words used. The object of the Limitation Act is not to create or define causes of action but simply to prescribe the period within which existing rights can be enforced in the Courts of law.

It therefore follows that whether a particular suit is of the nature contemplated by a particular article must depend upon the form in which the suit is brought and the relief claimed therein; for unless it comes within the wording of the first column of that article in the schedule, the limitation specified in the third column of that article cannot be made applicable to it. 98 Ind. Cas. 22=22 N. L. R. 147=9 N.L.J. 198=A.I.R. 1927 Nag. 10.

——Construction—Benevolent interpretation.

The Limitation Act operates as a bar to legally enforceable claims and it should therefore be construed as much as possible in favour of the person whose right is sought to be barred. 41 Mad. 18=33 M.L.J. 35=6 L. W. 192=41 Ind. Cas. 807.

——Construction—Strict interpretation.

The Limitation Act being one in which the rights are rendered ineffective if not abrogated, must be be read strictly. 9 Bur. L. T. 45=32 Ind. Cas. 536.

——Construction—Strict construction.

The Law of Limitation must be strictly interpreted and applied. No right or remedy is to be regarded as barred unless it is clearly shown to be shut out by the enactment. 11 N.L.R. 18=27 Ind. Cas. 935.

——Interpretation of the Act.

The Limitation Act. is the rule of procedure and must be interpreted strictly. A.I.R. 1938 Bom. 281=40 Bom. L.R. 377=I. L. R. (1938) Bom. 327=175 Ind. Cas. 528.

——Interpretation of the Act.

Provisions must be construed with reasonable strictness. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 115.

——Construction—Two Articles applicable.

As between two Articles that are applicable to the case, the more specific Article will apply. 127 Ind. Cas. 889=A.I.R. 1930 Nag. 300.

——Construction—Two Articles applicable.

In giving effect to a statute of Limitation if two Articles limiting the period for bringing the suit are wide enough to include the same cause of action and neither of them can be said to apply more specifically than the other, that which keeps alive rather than that which bars the right to sue should generally apart from other equitable considerations be preferred. 4 Pat. 448, Foll· 127 Ind. Cas. 889=A.I.R. 1930 Nag. 300.

——Two Aricles applicable—One general and one specific—Specific article to govern.

If there be two articles which may cover the case, the one however more general, and the other more particular or specific as a principle of construction, the more particular and specific article ought to be recorded as the one governing the case. 26 C. 72, foll. 4 Bom L.R. 72=26 B. 430.

——Determining article applicable—Form of relief does not determine character of suit.

It is not the form of the relief claimed which determines the real character of the suit for the purpose of ascertaining under which articles of the Limitation Act the suit falls. Though the relief claimed in the suit is possession of immovable property sued for is held by the contesting defendant under a sale or other transfer which is not void, but only voidable, and he cannot obtain possession without the transfer being set aside, the suit must be regarded as one brought to set aside the transfer though no relief in those terms is prayed for, but the prayer is only for possession of the property. 13 Cal. 308 (P.C.) and 25 Bom. 337 (P.C.), Foll.; 44 Bom. 742 (F.B.), Appr. 118 Ind. Cas. 481=29 M.L.W. 169=1929 M. W. N. 124=A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 313=56 M.L.J. 332.

——Construction—Sections and Articles

The section in the Act govern and control the applications of the articles except where the language of a particular article clearly precludes the application of a section. 10 M. L. T. 418=(1911) 2 M. W. N. 450=21 M.L.J. 1041=12 Ind. Cas. 695.

——Construction—Rules for—Schedule.

Courts are not at liberty to allow periods of suspension not provided for in the Act. It is equally inadmissable under the Act to say that time shall not begin to run from the time limited in the article except under some express provision of the Act. Per Abdur Rahim and Seshagiri Iyer, J.J.—It is a well-known rule for constuing the Indian Statute of Limitation that the first and the third columns of an article should be given the same meaning as in other columns. Per Seshagiri Aiyar, J.—Where both first and third colums of an article do not apply to a case the residuary article must be applied. Per Srinivasa Iyengar, J.—In construing the articles of the Limitation Act undue stress ought not to be laid on the first column of the article which describes the nature of the suits and it ought not to be held that all suits of that class must be governed by that article, though the starting point fixed in the third column cannot be applied to all or cannot be applied without working injustice. 40 Mad. 1040=33 M.L.J. 320=22 M.L.T. 236=(1917) M.W.N. 609=6 L.W. 464=43 Ind. Cas. 31 (F.B.).

——Constrction—Common law and statutory liability.

A statutory liability will be governed by the same articles of the Limitation Act as a Common Law liability if the words of the articles are capable of covering it. 6 L.W. 277=22 M.L.T. 146=33 M.L.J. 379=(1917) M.W.N. 710=42 Ind. Cas. 502.

——Construction—Principles.

Statues of limitation like all others ought to receive such construction as the language in its plain meaning imports. 36 Cal. 1003=36 I.A. 148=10 C.L.J. 284=6 A.L.J. 857=11 Bom. L.R. 1234=19 M.L.J. 530=14 C.W.N. 1=4 Ind. Cas. 449 (P.C.).

——Construction—How far affects substantive law.

The Limitation Act, being a law of procedure, should not be presumed to have effected any change in the rights of parties given by the substantive Hindu law. 10 Bom. L.R. 1029=Ind. Cas. 647=33 B. 88=1 Also 20 M.L.J 347.

——Statutes of limitation—Construction.

When the Legislature intends that a fresh period of limitation is to operate as against certain persons only, it says so in distinct terms. (1906) 11 C.W.N. 107=33 Cal. 1278.

——How to be construed—Curtailing rights.
See 5 C.W.N. 386.

——English principles.

There is no warrant for importing into the Limitation Act the provisions of a special English statute of limitation such as Ss. 3 and 4, Real Property Limitation Act, 1833. 116 Ind. Cas. 581=A.I.R. 1929 Sind 140.

4. (b) Construction—Equitable cosiderations.

——Interpretation.

The provisions of the Lim. Act must be construed strictly. Hardship is no consideration. A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 67=56 L.W. 658=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 510=1943 M.W.N. 728=I.L.R. (1944) Mad. 410=215 Ind. Cas. 318.

——Interpretation of the Act—Equitable considerations.

Equitable considerations are out of place when construing the Lim. Act. and the strict grammatical meaning of the words is the only safe guide. A.I.R. (1941) Mad. 449=53 L.W. 569=I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 599=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 644=1941 M.W.N. 408=199 Ind. Cas. 225 (F.B.)

——Interpretation of Act—Hardship, no ground for enlarging period.

Limitation Act ought to receive such a construction as the language in its plain meaning imports. A law of limitation and prescription may appear to operate harshly or unjustlyin particular cases, but where such law has been adopted by the State, it must, if unambiguous, be applied with stringency. The rule must be enforced even at the risk of hardship to a particular party. The Judge cannot on equitable grounds, enlarge the time allowed by the law, postpone it operation or introduce exceptions not recognised by it. A.I.R. 1941 P.C. 6=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 88=1941 O.W.N. 4=I.L.R.(1941) Bom. 202=72 C.L.J. 497=53 L.W. 212=1941 M.W.N. 321=67 I. A. 416=I.L.R. (1941) Kar. (P.C.) 11 (Supp.) =43 Bom. L.R. 346=45 C.W.N. 429=43 P.L.R. 138=7 B.R. 666=193 Ind. Cas, 225 (P.C.).

——Interpretation of the Act.

Equitable considerations are irrelevant in construing Act—No principle can be involved to add to or supplement the provisions of the Act. A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 1=40 Bom. L. R. 1134=I. L. R. (1939) Bom. 173=179 Ind. Cas. 178.

——Interpretation of the Act—No equitable considerations.

In construing the Act, equitable considerations are out of place and the strict grammatical meaning of the words is the only safe guide. A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 581=41 C.W.N. 1151=67 C.L.J. 92=173 Ind. Cas. 584.

——Justice, equity and good conscience.

Justice, equity, and good conscience cannot be invoked to overrule the law of limitation. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 305=164 Ind. Cas. 286.

——The fixation of periods of limitation must always be, to some extent, arbitrary, and may frequently result in hardship. But in construing such provisions, equitable considerations are out of place, and the strict grammatical meaning, of the words is the only safe guide. A.I R. 1932 P. C. 165=36 L. W. 7=36 C.W.N. 803=(1932) A.L.J. 643=34 Bom. L.R. 1065=33 P.L.R. 621=9 O.W.N. 681=(1932) M. W. N. 817=55 C.L J. 528=59 I. A. 283=63 M. L. J. 329=60 C. 1=137 Ind. Cas. 529 (P.C.).

——Equitable construction.

The statutes of limitation are in their nature strict and inflexible and are not susceptible of equitable construction. 11 P.L.T. 403=A. I. R. 1930 Pat. 455.

——No exceptions should be made on the ground of hardship.

In applying the Limitation Act to particular cases the Courts are not warranted in introducing savings or exceptions which are not found in the statute either because these may be within the reason of other exceptions which are to be found in the statute or because of considerations of mere hardship. 117 Ind. Cas. 543=56 Cal. 61=32 C. W. N. 971=A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 616 (S.B.).

——Principles and scope—General principles extraneous to the Act—Examined and explained—No equitable construction.

The cases which are said to have sanctioned the application of some general principle enuring to the benefit of the plaintiff and extraneous to the act itself, may broadly be classified into two groups, viz., those in which the starting point of limitation fixed by the statute has been held to have arisen at a subsequent date and those in which it has been held that the operation of the statute has been suspended after time has begun to run. In the case of such of the articles of the Limitation Act in which the starting point of time synchronises with the cause of action, the test is to ascertain the time when the plaintiff could have maintained his action to a successful issue. In such a case, at the time when the cause of action arises there is no person capable of suing upon it, the statute does not run; similarly it is necessary that there shall be a person to be sued; and it is also necessary that the cause should be complete, that it is, all the facts must have happened which are material to be proved in order to entitle to the plaintiff to succeed. There are cases in which Courts of equity will interpose to prevent the bar of statutes of limitation as for example, if a party has perpetrated a fraud which has not been discovered until the statutable bar may apply to it at law. That the enactment is positive is not allowed to be used against conscience, and an equitable tribunal will supply and administer within its own jurisdiction a substitute for an original legal right of which a party has been fraudulently and unjustly deprived. Except perhaps in cases where injustice has been occasioned by a Court by its own acts or oversights there is no scope for the application of any principles of equity in the administering of the statutes of limitation. The Judicial Committee has not, however much the language used by their Lordships in some of the decisions may suggest the same, laid down any such principle as being of universal applicability and all the decisions of the Judicial Committee as well as most of the cases decided in this country are supportable on grounds which are in no sense founded on any general equitable principle extraneous to or unauthorised by the statute. In cases in which the question arises as to the starting point of time for the purposes of the limitation, these decisions are mostly reconcilable with a proper appreciation of what the cause of action means when the starting point is the cause of action or with a proper interpretation of the words used in the third column of the articles in other cases; and in cases where the question of suspension arises, if time has once begun to run, it never again ceases to run, but there may be satisfaction of a claim or the cancellation of a cause of action operating to suspend the rights of the plaintiff who may, on the removal of the satisfaction or cancellation, avail of a fresh cause of action which arises by reason thereof. The substitution of a new legal right on principles of equity is hardly permissible under the statute law as its stands and revival of an old cause of action once satisfied or cancelled is foreign to its conception. In applying the principles of limitation the Indian Courts are not permitted to travel beyond the articles and the exceptions and provisos embodied in the Act itself. and apart from the provisions of the Act itself, there is no principle which can legitimately be invoked to add to or supplement its provisions. 89 Ind. Cas. 1000=29 C.W.N. 973=43 C.L.J. 155=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 65.

——Construction—Strict interpretation.

Statute of limitation are in their nature strict and inflexible and are not capable of equitable extension. 47 Ind. Cas. 122 (Cal.).

——Equity.

There is no question of equity in cases governed by the Limitation Act. 118 Ind. Cas. 670=1929 A. L. J. 976=A.I R. 1929 All. 677.

——It is wrong to import considerations of equity in the application of the statute of limitation. 101 Ind. Cas. 62=31 C.W.N. 82=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 117.

——The Limitation Act must be taken to be exhaustive as regards extension of the period of limitation, and no equitable principle can find a place there. 87 Ind. Cas. 17=12 O.L J. 66=2 O.W.N. 144=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh. 369.

5. Effects on rights.

——Nature of bar of limitation.

The rule is now well settled that lapse of limitation, apart from S. 28, bars only the remedy and does not extinguish the title of the claimant. 1930 A.L.J. 1416=A. I. R. 1930 All. 858.

——Though creditor's remedy may be barred his right is not.

It is well understood that though remedy which the creditor has, may be extinguished the debt may nevertheless subsist, and even after the period of limitation for a suit for recovery of the debt has passed, the creditor has a right to receive the sum due to him from his debtor if the latter is disposed to pay him. It is further clear that a payment made to discharge a time-barred debt could not in law be recovered by the debtor. 78 Ind. Cas. 911=46 All. 384=22 A.L.J. 369=5 L.R.A. Civ. 306=A.I.R. 1924 All. 543.

——Limitation bars remedy but does not extinguish right.

Limitation bars the remedy but does not extinguish the right. The defendant, though unable to enforce his right by suit, can still rely upon it as a defence to an action brought against him. Limitation is not applicable to fix the period for which interest on the mortgage debt is payable by a mortgagor to a mortgagee in a redemption suit in which the mortgagee is necessarily a defendant. 147 P.R. 1890 (F.B.), Foll. 57 Ind. Cas. 348=8 P.L.R. 1921=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 351.

6. Laches.

——Filing of suit on last day—Suit, if not in time.

If a suit is filed on the last date of limitation it is perfectly all right and no Court will be justified to say that it should have been filed "more punctually" and that it was therefore barred. 1948 A.W.R. (Rev.) 147=1945 R.D. 147.

——Laches—Applicability of doctrine.

The principle of laches or delay is based on the equitable doctrine of English Courts and cannot be allowed to prevail when the legal rights of a party to a proceeding come up before the Court for determination. It might be different if the party is asking for an equitable relief. Where he is asking for a legal relief and the only question is whether this is barred by the statute of limitation, there is no room for the application of any equitable defence such as laches or delay. A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 281=49 L.W. 768=(1939) M.W.N. 624=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 469=189 Ind. Cas. 185.

——Laches—Application of doctrine of.

The statutory period of limitation cannot be cut down by mere inaction. The delay must be such delay as to lead to the inference that the parties had abandoned the reference to arbitration and any thing short of this inference does not make any difference. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 18=150 Ind. Cas. 674.

—Laches when bar to a legal remedy—Injunction—Mandatory—Projecting eaves on other's land—Pardah lady and minor plaintiffs.

Mere delay is on bar to a legal remedy unless it amounts to a waiver or abandonment of the right sought to be enforced or to acquiescence in the act complained of. 29 B. 245, foll. It is not the practice of the Courts in India or of the Privy Council to press either against an infant or a Hindu or Mahomedan female a presumption by acquiescence in a rival claim from the mere non-contestation for a limited time of an adverse title. This principle holds good as to waiver or abandonment. Mere laches unless it amounts to one of these three is not sufficient to disentitle a person to equitable relief. Where there is a vested right or interest in any party he cannot waive or abandon that right except by acts which are equivalent to an agreement or license. The defendants erected a house in 1900 and projected the eaves on plaintiff's land. Plaintiff's were one of them, a purdah woman and the others minors. The suit was brought in 1904: Held, that the plaintiffs were entitled to an injunction. 9 Bom. L.R. 1117.

——Laches and acquiescence—When bar to right to equitable relief.

Delay and acquiescence would not bar a defendant's right to equitable relief unless he knew he had the right or being a free agent at the time, deliberately determined not to enquire what his rights were or to do or act upon them. 17 M.L.J. 19=2 M.L.T. 4=30 M. 169 (F.B.).

——Laches—Bar to suit—Waiver—Abandonment—Acquiescence.

Laches means a neglect to do something which by law a man is obliged to do. To bar a remedy it must amount either to waiver, abandonment or acquiescence. To raise the presumption of any of these, the evidence of conduct must be plain and unambiguous. (1905) 7 Bom. L.R. 200=29 Bom. 234.

——Equitable relief.

Persons who desire the assistance of the Court in obtaining equitable relief must come quickly. In each case it is a question to be decided on the facts whether the delay on the part of the plaintiff is such that the Court ought not to exercise its powers. 72 Ind. Cas. 868=17 M.L.W. 216=1923 M.W.N. 1=46 Mad. 148=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 284=44 M.L.J. 107.

7. Object of.

——Object of.

The object of limitation is to quiet long possession and to extinguish stale demands. Statutes of limitation are statutes of repose, to quiet titles, to suppress frauds, and to supply the deficiency of proof arising from the ambiquity or the antiquity of transactions. A.I.R. 1943 Sind 33=I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 466=205 Ind. Cas. 304.

——Intention.

The intention of the law of limitation is not to give a right where there is not one but to interpose a bar after a certain period to a suit to enforce an existing right. 83 Ind. Cas. 812=3 Pat. 880=5 P.L.T. 513=A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 721.

——Per V. Rao, J.—The intention of the Law of Limitation is, not to give a right where there is not one, but to interpose a bar after a certain period to a suit to enforce an existing right. 21 Cal. 8 (P.C.) and, 33 All. 356 (P.C.), Foll. 72 Ind. Cas. 488=1923 M.W.N. 195=18 M.L.W. 35=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 462=44 M.L.J. 303.

—Applicability of—Suits governed by.

The Limitation Act purely prescribes within what periods suits must be brought and does not create an obligation to sue, where none exsited. 39 Mad. 456=28 M.L.J. 571=29 Ind. Cas. 1.

—Object of—Not to confer right.

The intention of the law of limitation is not to give a right of suit where there is none but to impose a bar, after certain period, to a suit to enforce an existing right. 17 C.W.N. 5=16 C.L.J. 282=16. Ind. Cas. 742.

8. Miscellaneous.

—Substantive rights of parties.

The substantive rights of parties under a bond or a decree cannot be derived from, or sought for in the Limitation Act. A.I.R 1946 Cal. 500=50 C.W.N. 735=226 Ind. Cas. 343=81 C.L.J. 325 (F.B.).

——Pleadings.

The provisions of Sch. I, App. A., Civil P. C., requiring a party to specify the article or articles of the Lim. Act, under which the suit is, according to him, barred, is salutary and must be complied with as far as possible. The omission to mention the article may prevent the plaintiff at times from producing such oral or documentary evidence as he might have been capable of doing in answer to the objection raised by the defendant and in so far as the onus of proving limitation is on the plaintiff invariably, it may put him at a disadvantage, if some evidence is led on behalf of the defendant, after the case on the plaintiff's side is closed which he would be ordinarily unable to rebut. At all events, this device enables a party to conceal his hand up to the time of final arguments and to spring a surprise on his opponent in a large number of cases. A practice like this cannot but be deprecated and must be discouraged. A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 386=55 L.W. 90=1942 M.W.N. 129=(1942) 1 M L J. 274=206 Ind. Cas. 539.

——Law in force before 1877.

It is not correct to say that because the first Lim. Act was not introduced until 1877 there was no law of limitation in force in 1872. There was a law of limitation laid down in S. 14 of Regn. 3 of 1793 which provided a period of 12 years for the cause of action for any suit. A.I.R. 1940 All. 29=I.L.R. (1939) All. 990=(1939) A.L.J. 1127=1940 A.W.R. 21=187 Ind. Cas. 485.

——Objections.

Where in an execution case limitation was urged and was denied on the ground that on a particular date an affidavit had been filed to the effect that there were no encumbrances on the property but where there was then no written application to have the property sold and on the date fixed for dssposing of the matter, but on the back of the affidavit there was an endorsement of the Court directing that it should be filed,

Held, that it was filed some time later on the same date but that no oral application for sale could have been made then and that therefore the plea against limitation failed. 78 Ind. Cas. 631=22 A.L.J. 410=5 L.R.A. Civ. 318=A.I.R. 1924 All. 811.

—Period of limitation—Loose and strict sense.

The phrase "period of limitations" can be used in two senses (1) a strict and (2) a loose sense. In the strict sense it means such a period that a proceeding to which it is sought to be applied will be in time, if filed within the period, and beyond time, if filed after it. Sections 3, 5 and 7 to 25 of the Limitation Act, 1908, apply only to "periods of limitation" in the strict sense such as those prescribed by the schedules to that Act and not to periods of limitation in the loose sense such as that prescribed by S. 48 of the C. P. Code.

In the loose sense it means a secondary period which applies as a further check to an application or suit which is found not wanting when the primary or strict period of limitation is applied. Section 48, C. P. Code, 1908, for example prescribes a period of limitation in the loose sense. 70 Ind. Cas. 396=45 Mad. 785=16 M.L.W. 68=1922 M.W.N. 424=31 M.L.T. 140=A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 268=43 M.L.J. 168.

——Nature and scope—If a mere adjective or substantive law.

Per Page, C. J.—The law of limitation, in so far as it prescribes the period within which litigants are entitled to pursue in the Civil Courts the remedy in which the law provides for the redress of grievances is a part of the adjective law.

Per Carr, J.—The law of limitation is something more than mere adjective law and much more than merely rules of procedure. The effect of the law of limitation is to extinguish after the prescribed period a legal right. The law of contract gives the party a right of suit on a contract. But the law of limitation then adds that this right of suit shall cease to exist after a certain period. The result of the two laws together is to create a right of suit available for a certain time. It may be that after the time has elapsed the party has still a moral right to a relief. But it is no longer a legal one. Thus the law of limitation is just as much substantive law as is the law of contract. 8 Rang 380=127 Ind. Cas. 161=A.I.R. 1930 Rang. 228 (F.B.).

——S. 2 (3)—Administration bond.

An administration bond falls within the terms of the definition of bond given in S. 2 (3), Lim. Act. A.I.R. 1941 P.C. 6=1941 O.W.N 4=72 C.L J. 497=53 L.W. 212=43 Bom. ——S. 2 (4)—'Defendant'—Tacking on of possession—Independent trespassers—Limitation Act (15 of 1877), S. 3.

Where the Govt. after taking possession of reformed lands has released them to persons claiming to be entitled thereto as their own, those persons do not derive their liability to be sued from or through the Govt. and cannot tack on, the possession of the Govt. to their own. 44 Cal. 858=1 P.L.W. 593=32 M.L.J. 505=21 C.W.N. 642=15 A.L.J. 398=25 C.L.J. 487=19 Bom. ——Ss. 2 (5) and 26—Applicability—Right to take earth from land of another—If easement—Acquisition by prescription. See EASEMENTS ACT, S. 4. A.I.R. 1950 Pat. 202.

——S. 2 (5)—Easement—Whether includes profit a prendre.

What is known as profit in England is included in India in the term 'easement' in S. 2 of the Lim. Act of 1908. 16 P.L.T. 192=A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 188=1 B.R. 533=155 Ind. Cas. 966.

——S. 2 (5)—Although profits a prendre are regarded as easements in India this does not apply to profits a prendre in gross where there is an absence of servient and dominant tenements. 1938 N. L. J. 306=A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 497=I.L.R. (1939) Nag. 81=181 Ind. Cas. 825.

——Ss. 2 (5) and 26—Easement rights—Indeterminate and fluctuating body if can acquire.

Under Ss. 2 (5) and 26, 20 years uninterrupted enjoyment confers the absolute right on a determinate person and not an indeterminate and fluctuating body like the Sontals and Ghatwals. 2 P.L.J. 323=2 P.L.W. 282=39 Ind. Cas. 868.

——Ss. 2 (7) 14—Good faith—Proceedings contrary to express provision of law.

Proceedings contrary to a clearly expressed provision of law cannot be regarded as prosecuting another civil proceeding in good faith in the sense in which the words "good faith" are defined in the Lim. Act. A.I.R. 1940 Bom. 5=41 Bom. L.R. 1190=187 Ind. Cas. 85.

——Ss. 2 (7) and 14—Good faith—General Clauses Act (10 of 1897), S. 3 (20), C.P.C. (Act 5 of 1908), S. 80.

Where a suit for damages was brought by a person against a public Officer and it was dismissed for want of notice to the Officer and the plaintiff brought another suit after giving the required notice and claimed to exclude from the period of limitation the time taken by the first suit it was held that notice was imperative under S. 80 of the C. P. Code and that the plaintiff could not be taken to have acted in good faith within the meaning of S. 2 (7) of the Limitation Act or S. 3 (20) of the General Clauses of the Act. 5 S.L.R. 181=13= Ind. Cas. 260.

——Ss. 2 (7) and 5—Good faith—Sufficient cause—Wanton negligence of legal adviser.

'Good faith' implies what was done with due care and attention; wanton negligence on the part of a legal adviser is not a sufficient ground for extending the period of limitation under S. 5 of the Act. 3 P.L.J. 484=5 P.L.W. 136=46. Ind. Cas. 509.

——S. 2 (8)—"Plaintiff".

Under S. 2 (8), Lim. Act, the "plaintiff" includes any person from or through whom the plaintiff derives his right to sue. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 228=190 Ind. Cas. 405.

——S. 2 (8)—"Plaintiff"—Watandar.

A succeeding watandar claims under his predecessor. So adverse possession against the previous holder operates equally as bar to a suit by the successor against the vendee of watan lands. 32 Bom. L.R. 1398=A.I.R. 1931 Bom. 24.

——S. 2 (8) and Art. 144—"Plaintiff"—Purchaser of tenant's right in homestead land under Ghatwal—Ejectment.

An ejectment suit against the purchaser of the right, title and interest of a tenant in homestead land under a Ghatwal, falls under Art. 144 of the Lim. Act. Time runs from the date when the possession of the defendant became adverse to the plaintiff. A ghatwal does not claim through his father and is not included in the word "plaintiff" in S. 2 of the Limitation Act. 40 Cal. 173=17 C.W.N. 137=16 C.L.J. 202=16 Ind. Cas. 365. Also 37 M. 38; 15 C.W.N. 572.

——S. 2 (8)—Purchaser from Government.

Where a purchaser of land from Government sued to recover possession within sixty years or more than 12 years from the commencement of adverse possession but within 12 years of the purchase.

Held, that the suit was barred. Art. 144 applied and there was only 12 years' limitation. Under S 2 (8) the period runs as against plaintiff's predecessor-in-title, viz., the Government in this case, and it should be reckoned against plaintiff. 81 Ind. Cas. 675=28 C.W.N. 66=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 394.

——S. 2 (8)—Cause of action—Transfer of title.

A cause of action cannot be prolonged by mere transfer of title. 4. W.R. (P.C.) 37, foll. Ind. Cas. 216 (Cal.)

——S. 2 (9), Schs 1, Art. 80—War bond.

A war bond is a promissory note for purposes of limitation and is governed by Art. 80. 64 M.L.J. 172: 37 L.W. 302=A.I.R. 1933 Mad. 376=142 Ind. Cas. 286.

——S. 2. (10)—'Suit'—How construed.

The definition of suit given in S. 2 (10) is subject to the rule that there is nothing repugnant in the subject or context. 2 Ind. Cas. 632 (All.).

1. Applicability and Scope of section.

——S. 3—Applicability—Execution proceedings—Notice under O. 21, R. 22, C.P. Code, served on judgment-debtor—Latter, if precluded from raising issue of limitation at time of sale. See C.P. CODE, S. 11—EXECUTION PROCEEDINGS. 54 C.W.N. 900=A.I.R. 1950 Cal. 513.

——S. 3—Execution of award.

Section 3 of the Lim Act, applies to the application for execution of an award under Bom. Co-operative Society Act. A.I.R. 1938 Bom. 424=40 Bom. L.R. 889=177 Ind. Cas. 897.

——S. 3—Arbitration.

Although the Limitation Act does not in terms apply to arbitrations in mercantile references it is an implied term of the contract that the arbitrator must decide the dispute according to the existing law of contract, and that every defence which would have been open in a Court of law can be equally proposed for the arbitrator's decision unless the parties have agreed to exclude that defence. Section 3 therefore applies to arbitration proceedings. 115 Ind. Cas. 713=1929 A.L.J. 254=33 C.W.N. 485=29 M.L.W. 682=6 O.W.N. 473=49 C.L.J. 462=31 Bom. L.R. 741=56 I.A. 128=1929 M.W.N. 546=56 Cal. 1048=A.I.R. 1929 P.C. 103=56 M.L.J. 614 (P.C.).

——S. 3—Fraudulent transfer set aside—Application for mesne profits—Presidency Towns Insolvency Act, S. 7.

Held, that proceedings under S. 7 of the Presi-Towns Insol. Act were equivalent to a suit for the purposes of S. 3, Lim. Act and the Official Assignee could recover mesne profits only for a period of three years before the date of application. (1936) M.W.N. 609=71 M.L J. 289=A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 778=44 L.W. 280=59 M. 1020=164 Ind. Cas. 660 (F.B.).

——S. 3—Application for transfer.

Application under S. 39, C.P. Code, is governed by S. 3 (1), Limitation Act, and Court in considering such application must go into the question of limitation. 116 Ind. Cas. 113=29 M.L.W. 246=1929 M.W.N. 36=A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 199.

——S 3—Reference to Judge.

The Act does not apply to references to a Judge on an order by a Deputy Registrar of the Chief Court of Lower Burma, such reference neither being an appeal nor one of the applications set out in the third division of the schedule of the Act. 9 Bur. L.T. 226=38 Ind. Cas. 563.

——S. 3—Appeals from Revenue Courts.

The Act applies to appeals from Revenue Courts to the Dt. Judge. 17 O.C. 254=25. Ind. Cas. 703.

——S. 3—Scope—Suit for possession of land as raiyat.

Suit for possession of land as raiyat is not covered by S. 3, Lim. Act. 43 C.W.N. 1096=I.L.R. (1939) 2 Cal. 358=A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 113=187 Ind. Cas. 301.

——S. 3—Scope—Different claims in one suit.

Different claims in one suit—More than one period of limitation can be applied. 1941 M.W.N. 807=A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 786=(1949) 2 M.L.J. 244.

——S. 3—A combination of claims in one action can be split up into its component parts, each of which comes under its own rule of limitation. A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 309=130 Ind. Cas. 574.

——S. 3—Evading law of Limitation.

A party who should bring a suit for possession cannot be allowed to circumvent the law of limitation by bringing a suit for injunction. A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 181=19 Pat. 852=7 B.R. 739=22 P.L.T. 986=194 Ind. Cas. 243.

——S. 3—Articles cannot be evaded by phraseology of plaint.

Per Sulaiman, C. J.—The Lim. Act is in a sense, a purely arbitrary enactment and the various starting points for purposes of limitation laid down in cl. 3 of Sch. I are equally arbitrary. It is not absolutely necessary that there should be a consistency or a uniformity of any definite principle in fixing the various starting points. It is a mere matter of choice dependent on public policy; in some cases, the starting point is fixed as the date of the execution of the bond. In other cases the starting point is the date fixed for payment; in some other cases it is the date of the first default. Each article has, therefore, to be interpreted according to the particular language employed in that article and ordinarily irrespective of somewhat similar language employed in other articles.

In order to decide what article is applicable, the nature of the suit and the relief claimed are important. At the same time one has to see what is in substance the nature of the claim, and if the language of a statutory enactment is imperative, the evasion of that law cannot be tolerated simply because the phraseology of the plaint has been carefully selected. A.I.R. 1934 All. 661=(1934) A.L.J. 1035=3 A.W.R. 845=57 A 108=151 Ind. Cas. 585 (F.B.).

——S. 3—Evasion of limitation.

Where the suit, in substance, is a suit attacking the will, it is not open to the plaintiffs by cleverly wording their plaint to avoid the proper limitation for the suit. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 913=155 Ind. Cas. 1104.

——S 3—Parties cannot by contract alter the statutory period of limitation. Nor can they alter the statutory starting point of limitation. A.I.R. 1934 All. 661=(1934) A.L J. 1035=3 A.W.R. 845=57 A. 108=151 Ind. Cas. 585 (F.B).

——S. 3—Amended plaint filed after limitation for suit—No new cause of action introduced—Question of limitation does not arise. A.I.R. 1939 Nag. 23=1939 N.L.J. 21=181 Ind. Cas. 106.

——S. 3—Where the objection of the defendant is that the decree is a nullity owing to the failure of the plaintiff to carry out the condition imposed by the decree, there is no limitation of time for raising a point of this nature. 1938 A.W.R. 415=A.I.R. 1938 All. 497=(1938) A.L.J. 673=177 Ind. Cas. 824.

2. Burden of proof.

——S 3—Suit within time—Burden of proof—Redemption suit—C. P. Code, O. 7, Rr. 1, 6 and 11.

It is clear from the provisions of S. 3 of the Limitation Act and O. 7, Rr. 1, 6 and 11, C. P. Code, that the burden rests in the first instance upon a plaintiff to show that his suit was not instituted after the period prescribed therefor by the first schedule and accordingly is not required to be dismissed under S. 3 of the Limitation Act. Accordingly in a suit for redemption where there is no evidence that the mortgage was for any fixed term, the plaintiff has to show that the mortgage was effected within 60 years of the date of suit. Mere proof by him that it was in existence within that period is not sufficient to shift to the defendant the burden of showing that the suit was not filed within time. 74 I.A. 285=I.L.R. (1947) Lah. 727=50 P.L.R. 21=29 P.L.T. 157=50 Bom. L. R. 539=1948 A.L.J. 20=1948 M.W.N. 34=61 L.W. 76=A.I.R. 1948 P. C. 36=52 C. W. N. 132=(1948) 1 M. L. J. 130 (P.C.).

——S.3—When an objection is taken that a suit is time barred, the onus is upon the plaintiff to prove that it is within time. A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 639=(1940) M. W. N. 446.

——S. 3—Execution applications—Dates of previous payments.

Where a plea of limitation is taken, burden is on the plaintiff or the applicant to show that his suit or his application is within the period prescribed by law. But each case is to be decided on its own circumstances. Where, in an execution application certain payments are shown on certain dates and the judgment-debtor admits those payments but pleads limitation and does not deny the date of any specific payment the date of each payment need not be proved by the decree-holder in order to show that his application is not time-barred. A I.R. 1937 Sind 261 = 172 Ind. Cas. 221.

——S. 3—Grounds in plaint—If can be changed.

Per Bajpai, J.—If the plaint shows the grounds of exemption, the requirement of the Code is satisfied, but this does not preclude the plaintiff from taking another and an inconsistent ground to get over the bar of limitation if he believes that the latter is the true ground. The test is that justice should not be allowed to be defeated simply because a party has not been able to prove the case which he attempted to prove, but has proved certain other facts which nevertheless entitle him to a decree, provided the aggrieved party is not taken by surprise. A.I.R. 1935 All. 946: (1935) A.L.J. 1029: 1935 A. W. R. 1155=58 A 261=159 Ind. Cas. 387 (F.B.).

——S. 3—When a defendant, in an action based on tort seeks to show that the suit is not maintainable by reason of the expiry of the statutory period of limitation, it is upon him to prove the necessary facts. 13 Pat. 752=A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 507=I.B.R. 5=16 P.L.T. 611 =151 Ind. Cas. 995.

——S. 3—Onus.

The plaintiff must prove from his own allegation that his suit is not barred by limitation. He cannot rely on deft's allegations. 6 P.R. 1912=218 P.L.R. 1911=204 P.W.R. 1911=12 Ind. Cas. 453.

3. Defence.

See also NOTE 3 (b) UNDER LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), SUPRA.

——S. 3—It is a settled rule of law that limitation cannot be pleaded against a claim made by way of defence. 11 O.W.N. 1601=10 Luck. 481=A.I.R. 1935 Oudh 213=153 Ind. Cas. 307.

——S. 3—Defence.

The law of limitation does not prescribe any period which is to operate as a statutory bar to a defence. The articles of the Limitation Act apply to suits and applications and not to pleas by way of defence. 108 Ind. Cas. 149=25 A.L.J. 1086=A.I.R. 1928 All. 99.

——S. 3—There is no bar of limitation to a defence unless the suit for the relief involved in the defence falls within S. 26 or 28. 30 Mad. 444, Foll. 59 Ind. Cas. 118=45 Bom. 45=A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 257=22 Bom. L.R. 1082.

——S. 3—Defence—Applicability to.

A further advance was made by an usufructuary mortgagee on the security of the same property on condition that the second simple mortgage was to be paid off before redemption of usufructuary mortgage; held, since the suit on the simple mortgage was barred, the plaintiff can redeem the usufructuary mortgage without paying off the simple mortgage. 37 A. 634, Foll. 40 Ind. Cas. 404 (All.).

——S. 3—Defences—Applicability to.

A defence can be allowed though a suit to enforce. the claim is time-barred. 20 C. W. N. 957 (P. C.) Foll. (1917) M. W. N. 327=40 Ind. Cas. 820.

——S. 3 and Art. 44—Defences, applicability to.

A person, whose right to set aside an alienation is barred under Art. 44, cannot avoid it as deft. by denouncing it in a suit for possession brought by the alienee. 41 Mad. 102=33 M. L. J. 309=40 Ind. Cas. 664.

——S. 3—Defences—Applicability to.

Unless the mortgagee is compelled to bring a suit for money within S.3 he is entitled to set up every claim in defence to a suit for redemption that he has in law to support the debt which still remains due, although his right to sue under the bond be barred. 5. L. W. 593=40 Ind. Cas. 358.

——S. 3—Defences—Applicability to.

Sch. 1 provides limitation within which suit must be brought and neither it nor S. 28 applies to defences. 1 P.R. 1916=206 P.W.R. 1915=32 Ind. Cas. 485.

4. Duty of Court.

——S. 3—Duty and power of Court.

S. 3 of the Limitation Act is peremptory and lays a duty upon the Courts to act suo motu in all cases where the suit is instituted beyond the statutory period and the fact that parties may have thought differently or may not have noticed the point, does not make the slightest difference. The Act must be applied at whatever stage it is found applicable provided it is before a final order or decree is passed. I. L. R. (1947) Nag. 245=230 Ind. Cas.377=1947 N.L.J. 274=A.I.R. 1948 Nag. 41.

——S. 3—Powers of Board under Bengal Agri. Debtors' Act.

Under S. 3, Debt Settlement Board under Bengal Act 7 of 1936 must decide whether a judgment debt is barred by limitation. A. I. R. 1945 Cal. 399=49 C.W.N. 541=80 C.L.J. 157=221 Ind. Cas. 397.

——S. 3 and Civil Procedure Code, O. 8, R. 2—Apparent contradictions between.

Seemingly contradictory provisions of S. 3, Lim. Act and O. 8, R. 2, Civil P. C., are easily reconcilable. Section 3 makes the question of limitation a material question although not raised by the parties, but a Court is not bound to raise and decide a question of fact of its own motion. Hence where the question of limitation is purely one of law capable of determination on the facts admitted or proved before the Court, the Court is bound under the provisions of S. 3 to raise the question suo motu and decide it.

But where the question of limitation raises issues of fact not arising from the plaint, the defendant is bound under O. 8, R. 2, to raise such question in his written statement; if he fails to do so thereafter, it is within the discretion of the Court to allow the question to be raised or not. A.I.R. 1940 Rang. 207=1940 Rang. L.R. 273=193 Ind. Cas. 61.

——S. 3—Cause of action before 1877.

The Lim. Act does not make any distinction as to whether the cause of action arose in a suit in regard to a document before or after 1877. The Act says clearly that every suit instituted after the period prescribed therefor shall be dismissed. A.I.R. 1940 All. 29=I.L.R. (1939) All. 990=(1939) A.L.J. 1127 =1940 A.W.R. 21=187 Ind. Cas. 485.

——Ss. 3, 5—S. 3, if peremptory—Applicability of rule to applications under O. 22, R. 9.

The Court has no general discretion outside the limits of the Lim. Act to dispense with its provisions or to relieve a suit from the operation of the Act on the ground of hardship or mistake. The provisions of S. 3. of the Act are peremptory and impose a duty upon the Court to dismiss a suit or, an application as the case may be which is out of time unless the delay can be condoned under S. 5 of the Act or under any other provision of law for the time being in force. This rule applies equally to an application under O. 22, R. 9, Civil P.C. In all such cases, the burden lies heavily upon the person who claims relief under S. 5 of adducing distinct proof of the sufficient cause on which he relies. A.I.R. 1936 Sind 169=30 S.L.R. 242=165 Ind. Cas. 91.

——S. 3—Section 3 is peremptory and the duty of the Court is to notice the Act and give effect to it, even though it is not referred to in the pleadings. 1935 A.W.R. 615=1935 O.W.N. 527=(1935) M.W.N. 438=41 L.W. 629=(1935) A.L.J. 578=A.I.R. 1935 P.C. 85=39 C.W.N. 640=68 M.L.J. 665=61 C.L.J. 267=37 P.L.R. 395=37 Bom. L.R. 533=57 A. 242=1 B.R.479=62 I.A. 80=155 Ind. Cas. 205 (P.C.).

——S. 3—Discretion of Court.

There is authority to support the proposition that there is some sort of judicial discretion which would enable the Court to relieve the decree-holders from the operation of the Limitation Act in a case of hardship, particularly when it is alleged that the decree-holder was, in regard to the proceedings which he took by way of execution, in some way misled by some mistake in the form of the preliminary decree. It is impossible to hold that in a matter which is governed by the Act, an Act which, in some limited respects, gives the Court a statutory discretion there can be implied in the Court, outside the limits of the Act, a general discretion to dispense with its provisions. 1935 A.W.R. 615=1935 O.W.N. 527=(1935) M.W.N. 438=I.B.R. 479=41 L.W. 629=(1935) A.L.J. 578=61 C.L.J. 267=37 P.L.R. 395=37 Bom. L.R. 533=57 A. 242=A.I.R. 1935 P.C. 85=39 C.W.N. 640=68 M.L.J. 665=62 I. A. 80=155 Ind. Cas. 205 (P.C.).

——S. 3—Mandatory.

Courts are bound to apply the law of limitation in suits whether it is pleaded or not and to dismiss a suit which is apparently beyond time, Conversely they are bound, not to dismiss, as barred a suit which, on the face of it, is not barred. A.I.R. 1935 All. 946=58 A. 261=1935 A.L.J. 1029=1935 A.W.R. 1155=159 Ind. Cas. 387 (F.B.).

——S. 3—Decree of admission.

If a claim is barred, it is entirely barred and there can be no question of relief being given on the ground of admission made by the defendant in his evidence. 40 L.W. 538=(1934) M.W.N. 1250=A.I.R. 1934 Mad. 691=152 Ind. Cas. 266.

——S. 3—Suit filed after period of limitation—Limitation not set as defence.

By virtue of S. 3 a Court is bound to dismiss a suit if it has been filed after the period of limitation prescribed therefore by Sch. I of Act even if limitation has not been set up as a defence. The question of limitation, when it arises upon the facts before a Court must be heard and determined whether or not it is directly raised in the pleadings or in the grounds of appeal. (1933) A.L.J. 1283=A.I.R. 1934 All. 386=149 Ind. Cas. 651.

——S. 3—Court must see whether suit is not barred.

It is the duty of a Court under S. 3 to see that a suit is not barred by time. A general finding that a suit is not barred by limitation may become inconclusive if, on the finding of further facts, it is discovered that some other article is applicable which bars it. (1931) A.L.J. 858=A.I.R. 1932 All. 16=135 Ind. Cas. 558.

——S. 3—Duty of Court.

A Court is bound to see whether a plaintiff has brought this suit within the statutory period of limitation. 97 Ind. Cas. 635=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 30.

——S. 3—Action by Court.

The Court has to act suo motu, if necessry, should it appear that a suit is barred by limitation. 93 Ind. Cas. 930=27 Bom. L.R. 1456=A.I.R. 1926 Bom. 54.

——S. 3—Construction—C.P. Code, S. 151 if affects.

C.P. Code, S. 151 does not override S. 3 of the Limitation Act. 57 Ind. Cas. 15 (Lah).

——S. 3—Duty of Court.

The question of limitation can by law be raised at any stage of the proceedings and it is always a court's duty, whether it is raised or not, to see whether the claim is barred. 40 Ind. Cas. 661. (Pat.).

——S. 3—Mandatory.

The provisions of S. 3 are mandatory where the bar appears on the face of the plaint, which does not involve questions of fact. 9 L.B.R. 71=11 Bur L.T. 73=39 Ind. Cas. 154.

——S. 3—Mandatory.

A suit or an application shall be dismissed though limitation has not been set up. The section is mandatory. 24 C.L.J. 467=21 C.W.N. 564=38 Ind. Cas. 17.

——S. 3—Plea of limitation—Effect of not raising.

Where question of limitation is not merely a question of law and is not raised by the deft. the court ought not to dismiss the suit on the ground of limitation 23. Ind. Cas. 360 (Cal.).

——S. 3—Plea of limitation—Duty of court.

Under S. 3, it is obligatory upon the Court to dismiss a time barred application although limitation is not set. as a defence. 22 C. L. J. 589=19 C. W. N. 970=29 Ind. Cas. 476.

——S. 3 (S. 4)—'Every suit'—Whole or part—Admission of claim as to part—Plea of limitation in second appeal relating to portion not admitted but decreed—Plea going to the root of the whole claim.

Where a decree has been based partly upon the admission of the defendant and partly otherwise, and the appeal is only as to this latter part and there is no appeal from the part of the decree passed upon admission, it is not open to the appellant to raise for the first time in second appeal a question of limitation if such question will also relate to the claim under the decree not appealed against. The obligation cast upon a court to dismiss a suit or an appeal under S. 4 of the Limitation Act is only in cases where it is in a position to dismiss the whole claim or suit. 5 C.L.R. 267; 9 C. 655, foll. (1904) 15 M. L. J. 402=28 M. 67.

——S. 3 (S. 4)—Issue as to limitation—Point not raised in the pleadings—Discretion of court to raise issues.

When the question of limitation is not raised in the pleadings. the judge is not bound to raise an issue about it, and it is left to his discretion to do so or not. 4 Bom. L.R. 543=6 C.W.N. 641=25 M. 367=29 I.A. 76 (P.C.).

——S. 3 (S. 4)—Limitation, plea of, not taken by parties—Court's duty.

A court is bound to take notice of a point of limitation even though no plea is raised by the parties. (1901) 12 M.L.J. 77=29 C. 167=4 Bom. L. R. 161=6 C.W.N. 266=25 P. R. 1902=29 Ind. Cas. 51 (P.C.).

——S. 3 (S. 4)—Limitation—Dismissal of suit—No plea or issue.

If upon the record it appears clearly that a suit is barred, the court can take cognisance of it and dismiss the suit, even though there was no such plea or issue. (1900) 5 C.W.N. 160=28 Cal. 86=(1903) 9 C.W.N. 58.

——S. 3—Limitation Question as to—Raising—Point of time.

An objection as to limitation can be taken at any stage of a suit or other proceeding including the appellate stage. S. 3 makes is mandatory on the Court to dismiss a suit which is barred even if it had not been pleaded in defence. 1949 R. D. 419.

——S. 3—Action by Appellate Court.

An appellate Court is not bound to take notice suo motu of the fact that an application made at the Trial Court was barred by limitation. 121 Ind. Cas. 552=A.I.R. 1929 All. 485.

——S. 3—Where the decision on the question of limitation depends on enquiry on facts and the plea has not been raised in the jawab-i-dawa or put in issue, the appellate Court cannot take up the question suo motu and dismiss the suit as time-barred. 115 Ind. Cas. 71=11 L.L.J. 91=30 P.L.R. 296=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 432.

——S.3—Plea of limitation—Non-raising of—Effect.

A question of limitation arising upon the facts before a Court must be heard and determined though it is not directly raised in the pleading or in the appeal. S. 3 is not controlled by any rule of pleadings, e. g., O. 41, R. 2. C. P. Code. Where the claim decreed is found to be barred by limitation in appeal the Appellate Court is not only competent, under O. 41, R. 33, C. P. Code, but must under S. 3 dismiss the suit. 8 N.L.R. 174=17 Ind. Cas. 638.

——S. 3—Plea of limitation—Respondent precluded from raising—Duty of Court.

If the respondent is precluded from raising the objection of limitation, the Court itself is bound to take cognizance of the question. 5 N.L.R. 50=2 Ind Cas. 229.

——S. 3. (S. 4)—Duty of appellate Court—C.P.C., S. 542.

Held, by the majority (Rampini, Brett, Mitra, Mookerjee, Caspersz and Sharfuddin, JJ., Woodroffe. J. dissenting)—The provisions of S. 4 of the Limitation Act are mandatory and ought to be given effect to even though the point of limitation is taken at a late stage of the case in the court of second appeal. Per Woodroffe, J:—S. 4 of the Limitation Act, 1877, is controlled by S. 542, C.P.C., 1882. The illustrations to S. 4, cannot affect the precise provisions of the other statutes. It is therefore in the discretion of the appellate court to allow or disallow a plea of limitation not set out in the grounds of appeal. Per Mookerjee, J:—S. 542, C.P.C. (1882) and S. 4 of the Limitation Act, are not controlled by each other. Their combined eeffct is this:—The appellant is not entitled without the leave of the court to urge or be heard in support of the ground of limitation, if that has not been set forth in his memorandum of appeal. The appellate court may grant the leave; whether it should do so depends upon the circumstances of each case. But the appellate court may, of its own motion, consider the question of limitation, though the plea has not been taken in the memorandum of appeal, and rest its decision on that ground, provided that the opposite party is given adequate opportunity to be heard on the point. In either case, however, the bar of limitation must be patent in the face of the proceeding. (1907) 11 C.W.N. 959=6 C.L.J. 237=34 C. 941 (F.B.).

——S. 3. (S. 4)—Whether an appellate court could reverse the decree on a point of limitation not set up. 8 C.W.N. 251=30 Cal. 761.

——S. 3—Provisions are mandatory—Limitation cannot be applied on equitable grounds. A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 335=8 B.R. 116=197=Ind. Cas. 217.

——S. 3—The Courts have no power, on consideration of hardship or equity, to invent new grounds of exemption from the bar of limitation not recognized by the statute. A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 487=I.L.R. (1942) Mad. 562=55 L. W. 264=(1942)=1 M.L.J. 472=202 Ind. Cas. 514.

——S. 3—Hardship.

There is no judicial discretion to relieve a party from the operation of the Lim. Act in a case of hardship or any authority in the Court to dispense with its provisions A.I.R. 1940 Rang. 276=1941 Rang. L.R. 1=192 Ind. Cas. 625 (F.B.).

——S. 3—Enlargement of time.

An application to set aside an ex parte decree is governed by the period of limitation prescribed by Art, 164. Section 3, Lim. Act, renders it imperative that an application presented after the period of limitation shall be dismissed. It is not open to the Courts to enlarge the period of limitation laid down by the statutory law. A.I.R. 1935 Pesh. 146.

——S. 3—Presumption.

Though it is the Court's duty to decide the point of limitation, even if it was not taken by the parties it must be assumed, until the contrary is shown, that the Court decided the question of limitation and if unfortunately it decided wrongly that does not affect its jurisdiction to make the order. 101 Ind. Cas. 694=8 P.L.T. 494=A.I.R. 1927 Pat. 261.

5. Effect on rights.

See also NOTE 5 UNDER LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908) SUPRA.

——S. 3—Mortgage barred by limitation—It can still be used by mortgagee on defence to his right of possession.

Even if a mortgage is barred by limitation, it is still available to the mortgagee as a shield to defend his possession: Limitation does not extinguish the liability but only bars the remedy. That the mortgage did not confer upon the mortgagee a right to possession is immaterial where the suit is one for partition calling for the adjustment of mutual rights and liabilities. A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 370=56 M. L. W. 44=1943 M.W.N. 96=(1943) 1 M.L.J. 100=209 Ind. Cas. 330.

——S. 3—Debt remains but remedy is barred.

The effect of S. 3, is to bring about the automatic dismissal of the suits, appeals and applications founded upon debts or causes of action which according to their various periods of limitation, are time-barred. What the Lim. Act does not do is to extinguish the debt. The debt remains, but the remedy is destroyed. A.I.R. 1941 All. 278=1941 O.W.N. 548=I.L.R. (1941) All. 415=1941 A.W.R. 133=194 Ind. Cas. 839.

——S. 3—Time barred debt repaid after expiry of limitation—Debtor, if can recover it—Contract Act, Ss. 60 and 61.

Obiter.—If a time-barred debt is repaid after the period of limitation has expired, no action will lie for its recovery on the ground that it was barred at the date of the payment—the reason being that though the remedy at law was barred, the right in the debt still subsisted. This principle is also recognised in Ss. 60 and 61, Contract Act, which gives the right to a creditor to appropriate payments even towards time-barred debts when they are not specifically paid towards other debts. A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 166=42 P.L.R. 29=188 Ind. Cas. 833.

——S. 3—Act bars remedy only by way of suit—Right exists and can be enforced by other remedy.

The rule of limitation is a rule of proceedure, a branch of the adjective law, and does not either create or extinguish rights, except in the case of acquisition of title to immovable property by prescription under S. 28. Lim. Act. It is only the remedy by way of a suit that is barred, but the right itself continues to exist; and if there is some other remedy by which that right can be enforced the Lim. Act cannot come in the way. Thus, where the recovery of a debt is barred by lapse of time, the right to the debt is not extinguished, and if the debtor without being aware of the bar of time, pays up, he cannot sue the creditor to refund the money to him on the ground that his claim for recovery of the debt had become time-barred. A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 494=41 Bom. L. R. 1002=I. L. R. (1939) Bom. 685=185 Ind. Cas. 366.

——S. 3—Act refers only to remedy of plaintiff and not his rights.

Section 3, refers only to the remedy of the plaintiff and not to his rights and even though the remedy may be barred, the right may exist, but it does not refer at all to a defendant. The object of the Lim. Act is to prevent a party from putting forward stale or antiquated demands, and a ground of defence cannot become stale or barred by the law of limitation. All that the Act does it to take away the remedy of a plaintiff to enforce his rights by an action, and it is open to a defendant to put forward any defence though such defence as a claim made by him may be barred on the date it is put forward. A.I.R. 1935 Bom. 326=37 Bom. L. R. 471=59 B. 502=159 Ind. Cas. 213.

——S. 3—Under the Lim. Act, a debt is not destroyed, only the remedy to recover is barred. 36 Bom. L.R. 32=A.I.R. 1934 Bom. 97=150 Ind. Cas. 645.

——S. 3—Effect on rights.

The law of limitation as distinguished from the law of prescription merely bars the remedy of the plaintiff but does not extinguish his right. A barred debt can constitute a valid consideration for a fresh contract. Limitation affects only the claim of the plaintiff and has no application to a plea urged by the defendant. The defendant may therefore interpose a demand though barred as a defence to the suit. 96 Ind. Cas. 844=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 633.

——S. 3—In the case of a personal action for a debt limitation merely bars the plaintiff from having the particular remedy by way of suit and does not extinguish the debt. Thus if the creditor has any form of lien upon property, he can exercise that lien notwithstanding that by the terms of the Limitation Act he could not bring a suit. 66 Ind. Cas. 203=48 Cal. 817=25 C.W.N. 300=A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 67.

6. Execution cases.

——S. 3—Execution cases.

Any Court having an application for execution made to it must suo motu determine the question of limitation. It has not only power but duty to determine such question. 1930 A.L.J. 1400=128 Ind. Cas. 607=A.I.R. 1930 All. 699.

——It is only when the point of limitation is concluded by proceedings in a previous execution that the judgment debtor is not allowed to take the objection of limitation in a subsequent execution of the decree. But so long as an execution application is pending the judgment-debtor can show at any stage that the application is barred; and the Court will have no option but to dismiss the application under S. 3, Limitation Act. (1920) P.H.C.C. 109, Foll.; 9 Pat. 306=A.I R. 1930 Pat. 330.

——S. 3.—Executiug Court—Power of.

An Executing Court cannot extend the period of limitation by allowing the decre-holder to file a fresh application within a certain time. 75 P.L.R. 1909=113 P.W.R. 1909=4 Ind. Cas. 958.

7. Exemption from limitation.

——S. 3.—Exemption other than in Act, if can be claimed.

In view of the provisions of S. 3, it is not permissible to claim any exemption apart from what is contained in the Lim. Act. But where there was a cancellation of the cause of action for delivery of possession by a decree operating to suspend the rights of the auction-purchasers, they are entitled, on removal of the cancellation by the Appellate Court, to avail themselves of a fresh cause of action which arose by reason there of 1935 Cal. 333=62 Cal. 66=158 Ind. Cas. 191 (D.B.).

——Ss. 3 and 6—Exemption from limitation, grounds of.

Limitation being the results of statute law no exemption from it can be recognised apart from what the statute itself provides. 37 Mad. 186=13 M. L. T. 79 =(1913) M.W.N. 114=24 M. L. J. 96=18 Ind. Cas. 586.

——S. 3—Grounds for exemption from limitation must be specially pleaded. (1933) M. W. N. 352=38 M.L.W. 301=65 M.L.J. 271=A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 675=145 Ind. Cas. 933.

——S. 3—Intention.

It appears to be the intention of the Limitation Act that where an appellant has proceeded with due diligence, no right shall accrue to the respondent by reason merely of the lapse of the statutory period. 114 Ind. Cas. 88=32 C.W.N. 935=56 Cal. 136=A.I. R. 1929 Cal. 214 (F.B.).

——S. 3—Juristic person—Exemption from limitation.

(Per Full Bench).—"Juristic" person like other plaintiffs are subject to the law of limitation and enjoy no special privilege in this respect. The position of a juristic person is not that of a minor and it is doubtful whether a suit instituted on behalf of juristic person through a next friend is properly instituted. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 369=40 P. L. R. 319=175 Ind, Cas. 945 (F.B.).

——S. 3—Suit relating to mosque—Exemption from limitation.

Per Full Bench (Din Mohammad, J., dissenting.)—The personal law of the Muhammadans has been modified by the Punjab Laws Act, and the Lim. Act. Every suit is subject to the Lim. Act, and the Act applies without distinction to suits concerning both sacred and secular property; nor does it make any difference if the plaintiffs in such suits are divine or human. There being no provision in the Lim. Act exempting suits relating to waqf properties from its operation, the suit relating to a mosque must be held to be subject to the rules of limitation prescribed in the Lim. Act, and not to rules of Muhammadan Law. 40 P. L. R. 319= A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 369=175 Ind. Cas. 915 (F.B.).

——S 3—Arts. 142 and 144—Exemption from limitation—Disqualified proprietor—Bengal Court of Wards Act, S. 6 (a).

For purpose of limitation possession of the Court of Wards is possession of the ward. A disqualified proprietor under S. 6 (2) of the Bengal Court of Wards Act does not suffer under such a legal disability as to get an extended period of limitation under the Limitation Act. Consequently for a suit by him to set aside a sale of his property by the Court of Wards and to recover possession, time runs from the date when possession is given to the purchaser and not from the date when the Court of Wards gives up possession of the ward's Property. 46 Cal. 694= 36 M. L. J. 210=17 A. L. J. 202= 23 C. W. N. 531=29 C. L. J. 355= 25 M.L.T. 341=21 Bom. L. R. 611= 1 U. P. L. R. (P.C.) 16= (1919) M. W. N. 318=50 Ind. Cas. 202 (P.C.).

——S. 3—Exemption from limitation—Court of Wards.

Under the Limitation Act, no other disqualification than those of minority, insanity or idiocy can be admitted to save limitation. In spite of S. 35 of the Bengal Court of Wards Act of 1879, the right of suit is in the disqualified proprietor and no exemption can be made in his favour for the period of management by the Court of Wards. 19 C. W. N. 1193=28 Ind. Cas. 818.

8. Extension of time.

Held, that Courts had no jurisdiction to relieve parties from the operation of the Lim. Act on the ground of hardship. A. I. R. 1944 Oudh 135-1944 O. W. N. 118=1944 A.W.R. 92=211 Ind. Cas. 499.

——S. 3—Amended plaint—Amended plaint filed beyond time—Effect.

When an amended plaint is filed at a time when the suit was barred by time, but a perusal of the two plaints shows that the amended plaint does no more than furnish particulars and introduces no new cause of action, no question of limitation arises. A.I.R. 1939 Nag. 23=1939 N.L.J. 21=181 Ind.Cas. 106.

——S. 3—If a person could extend the time for suing by alleging that he had mistaken the meaning of an instrument, a most serious inroad would be made into the law of limitation and that quieting of title which is the reason for and the policy behind the statutes of limitation would be gravely disturbed. A. I. R. 1938 Mad. 60=180 Ind. Cas. 462.

——S. 3—Negligence of defendant—Exemption of time.

The Court will not allow negligent plaintiffs to turn round and say that, inasmuch as the defendants have been late in coming to Court, although within the statutory period of limitation, extension of time should be allowed to them, namely, to the negligent plaintiffs, in order that they may prosecute their claim. 61 C. 22=A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 438=151 Ind. ——Ss. 3, 5, 29—Time for appeal fixed by Ordinance—If can be extended.

In view of the terms of S. 29, Lim. Act, S. 5 thereof cannot be applied to extend the time for filing an appeal prescribed by the Bengal Emergency Powers Ordinance, and the High Court is prohibited by S. 3. from entertaining an appeal, filed after that period. 37 C. ——S. 3—Extension—The maxim lex non cogit ad impossiblia cannot prevail against the express provision of S. 3.

The principle that when the law creates a limitation, and the party is disabled from conforming to that limitation, without any default in him, and he has no remedy, law will ordinarily excuse him, is merely an application of the maxim "lex non cogit ad impossibilia" cannot prevail against the express provisions of S. 3 any more than principles of equity can prevail against the provisions of statutory law such as S. 49, Registration Act and Ss. 91 and 92, Evidence Act, especially when there is no hardship or impossibility. 115 Ind. 9. Institution of suit

See also NOTE 10.

——S. 3—"Suit" meaning of.

The word "suit" ordinarily means, and apart from some context, must be taken to mean, a civil proceeding instituted by the presentation of a plaint.

An application by the liquidators in the compulsory winding of a company under S. 186 of the Companies Act for recovery of money from a contributory is not a suit within the meaning of S. 3, Lim. Act. Even if such a claim against such a Company could be held by virtue of the explanation to S. 3, Lim

Act, to be a "suit instituted", there is nothing in the explanation to justify a similar holding in regard to a claim by such a company.

The explanation to S. 3, Lim. Act, is not concerned with the question of what is a suit, or is to be considered a suit, within S. 3. It assumes the existence of a suit which has been instituted by the presentation of a a plaint, and is concerned only with the point of time at which that suit is, for the purpose of S. 3, to be treated as being instituted.

The latter portion of the explanation only means that in the case of a suit against a company which is being wound up by the Court, the institution of the suit is (for the purposes of s. 3) advanced also to an earlier date, viz., the date when the claim was first sent to the Official Liquidator. It does not extend the meaning of the word 'suit' in that section so as to include mere applications in winding-up. (1933) M.W.N. 190=A.I.R. 1933 P.C. 63=(1933) A.L.J. 175=35 Bom. L.R. 319=37 L.W. 445=64 M.L.J. 403=37 C.W.N. 379=54 A. 1067=57 C.L.J. 166=60 I.A. 13=142 Ind. Cas. 7 (P.C.).

——S. 3, Expl.—Date of institution of suit—Amendment of plaint on account of circumstances happening after institution of suit.

Amendment of a plaint at a later stage on account of certain circumstances happening after the institution of the suit, cannot, by any stretch of imagination, be considered to mean the institution of a new suit, particularly when the parties are the same and the dispute is the same. A suit for a declaration without consequential relief filed within limitation cannot become time-barred on account of a later amendment of the plaint adding a consequential relief which could be granted to the plaintiff by reason of certain circumstances happening subsequent to the filing of the suit. A.I.R. 1950 Pepsu 21.

——S. 3—Suit against minor.

Order 32, R. 3, Civil P.C., as amended in the Central Provinces contemplates distinctly a suit brought against a certain defendant in which a dispute about minority is raised and in which the Court has to be satisfied about the fact of minority and then on being satisfied, it has to appoint a proper person to be the guardian. It does not mean that the suit is a nullity until that is done or that no suit can be taken to have been instituted until a guardian has been oppointed. The Lim. Act contemplates a suit brought against particular person; it does not matter whether that person is a major or a minor. The suit is not instituted against the guardian but against the minor himself and the minor does not become another person simply because he is subsequently described as a major. Consequently the suit, so far as the Lim. Act is concerned, is again, the proper person whether he is described as a major or a minor and, therefore, is within time if it is within time on the date on which the suit is instituted by the presentation of the plaint. The question of guardianship is a separate matter and relates, not to the institution of the suit, but to the right of the plaintiff to carry it on against the person who, in point of fact, is a minor. If no proper guardian is appointed, the suit of course, in the result becomes a nullity. But it is a nullity not because it is not instituted in time but because the procedure for continuing the suit against the minor and for obtaining a decree or order against him has not been carried into effect. A.I.R. 1941=Nag. 30=I.L.R. (1942) Nag. 322=1941 N.L.J. 115=193 Ind. Cas. 805.

——S. 3—Presentation of plaint with deficient Court-fee—Extension of time to make up deficiency—Effect.

Where a Court, whether rightly or otherwise, allows time under S. 149, Civil P.C., to pay court-fee even after the plaint is rejected, the order until it is set aside by a superior Court or in proper proceedings, remains a perfectly good order. It is not open to defendant to treat it as non-existent. The proper course is to apply either in review or revision to have it set aside and if this is not done, it remains in force and the suit cannot be dismissed as time barred. A.I.R. 1939 Cal 722=69 C.L.J. 379.

——S. 3—Presentation of plaint with deficient court-fee—Extension of time.

A plaint was presented on August 20, 1934, to the Judge personally at about 9 p.m. When the plaint was presented, it did not bear the requisite court-fee stamp, but it was accompanied by an application for an extension of time for the payment of the court-fee. The limitation for the suit expired on August 21, 1934. On 20th, the Judge made a note that the plaint had been presented to him and he transferred the suit for trial to the Subordinate Judge. The plaint ultimately reached the Court of the Subordinate Judge on August 22. Before the plaint reached this Court the plaintiffs had made up the deficiency in the court-fee stamp by paying the same in the Judge's Court where it was originally presented:

Held, that the plaint, under the circumstances, must be deemed to have been presented on August 20, and as court-fee was made good on 21st, the suit was within time. Even if it be assumed that the court-fee was made good on the 22nd or 23rd, it will not make any difference because the plaint having been presented on August 20, the Court was competent to extend the time for payment of the requisite cout-fee stamp under S. 149, Civil P.C., and the Court must be deemed to have granted time by accepting the court-fee on a subsequent date. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 111=38 P.L.R. 445=167 Ind. Cas. 291.

——S. 3—Institution of suit—Deficiency in Court-fee made up within time allowed.

A plaint duly registered but insufficiently stamped was presented within time. The deficiency was subsequently discovered, time was allowed to make it good and it was made good within the time allowed. Held, that the suit was not barred by time. 29 A. 749, Foll. 3 Ind. Cas. 55 (All.).

——S. 3—Plaint presented with insufficient court-fee—Deficiency made up within time allowed by court but after expiry of limitation—C P.C., S. 54 (b)—Court Fees Act, S. 28.

There can be no doubt that under S. 54 (b), C.P.C., (1882) read with S. 28 of the Court Fees Act, it is in the discretion of the court to fix a time within which the requisite court-fee is to be furnished and that if the stamp be made good within the time indicated, the date of the institution of the suit is to be reckoned from the date of presentation of the plaint. 19 C. 780, 27 C. 814, foll. (1903) 31 C. 75.

——S. 3 (S. 4)—Plaint presentation of, insufficiently stamped—Supply of deficiency at a later date—Date of institution—Civil Procedure Code, S. 54—Plaint rejection of, power of.

Where a plaint is presented on a paper insufficiently stamped, and the deficiency in stamp is made up at a subsequent date, the plaint, for the purposes of S. 4 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, is not to be taken as presented on the day on which the plaint is presented but on the day when the deficiency in stamp is supplied. The power of rejection of a plain under S. 54 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1882, does not arise merely because the plaint is written upon paper insufficiently stamped, but there must be the additional circumstance of a failure on the part of the plaintiff to supply the equrisite stamp paper within the period fixed. 27 Bom. 330=5 Bom. L.R. 198.

——S. 3—When a plaint is returned by a Court for want of jurisdiction and is represented to another Court, the suit is considered to be instituted on the date on which the plaint is presented to the latter Court and if by that time the period of limitation prescribed by the law in force (Punjab Act 3 of 1923 in this case) has expired the suit becomes time barred. 117 Ind. Cas. 900=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 877.

——S. 3—Presentation of plaint.

——S. 3—A suit must be deemed to hava been instituted on the date when the plaint was filed in Court and not on the date when it was ordered to be registered. Even if there is a defect in the verification the Court can allow an amendment at any stage ; such amendment would not make the suit open to objection on the ground of limitation. 66 Ind. Cas. 923=34 C.L.J. 465=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 277.

——Ss. 3 and 5—Institution of suit.

Where a suit is readmitted after dismissal for default, it is deemed as filed on the date of the presentation of plaint and not the date of the readmission. 31 P.R. 1909=36 P.W.R. 1909=49 P.L.R. 1909=3 Ind. Cas. 484.

10. Pauper Proceedings.

——S. 3—The explanation to S. 3, Limitation Act is intended to show when limitation begins to run on a suit being instituted and not to affirm that an application for leave to sue as a pauper is tantamount to the filing a suit. 45 Bom. L.R. 1002=I.L.R. (1943) Bom. 721=A.I.R. 1944 Bom. 63=212 Ind. Cas. 608.

——S. 3, Expl.—Scope and effect—Pauper—Application for leave to sue as—Subsequent payment of Court-fee pending application—Effect—Date of institution of suit for limitation.

Where pending an application for leave to sue in forma pauperis, the plaintiffs-applicant pays the necessary Court-fee on the plaint, and it is numbered and registered as a suit, the date of the institution of the suit, for purposes of limitation is the date on which the application for leave is filed and not the date on which the Court-fee is subsequently paid. The explanation to S. 3, Limitation Act, is quite explicit. 27 Pat. 259=A.I.R. 1949 Pat. 465.

——S. 3, Explanation—Applicability of.

The provisions of the explanation S. 3 must be taken to have reference to a case in which an application to sue as pauper is granted, and it is not intended to apply to a case in which the application to sue as a pauper is rejected. A.I.R. 1939 Cal. 394=48 C.W.N. 686=I.L.R. (1939) 2 Cal. 68=69 C.L.J. 420=184 Ind. Cas. 345.

——S. 3, (S. 4)—Explanation—Per Banerjee J.—The explanation to S. 4 of the Limitation Act, 1877, applies only to a case where the application is granted. (1900) 28 C. 427.

——S. 3—Application not granted—Payment of court-fee—Date of institution of suit.

If the application in forma pauperis be not granted, the applicant may pay the court-fees on the plaint already presented and that the date of the institution of the suit will be the original date when the plaint was actually presented with the application. 41 C.W.N. 537=A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 246=55 C.L.J. 151=170 Ind. Cas. 758.

——S. 3—"Pauper," meaning of.

The word "pauper," in explanation to S. 3, means a "declared pauper" and not a person whose application to sue in forma pauperis is rejected. 17 L. 831=A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 151=39 P.L.R. 158=169 Ind. Cas. 368.

——S. 3—Pauper suit—When commences.

A pauper suit commences for the purpose of limitation on the day when the petition to sue in forma pauperis is presented to the Court under O. 23, R. 2 of C. P. Code, and not on the day when the application being granted it is numbered and registered under O. 23, R. 2.

The absence of signature and verification in the first instance does not prevent the petition as presented for being properly regarded as an application within the explanation to S. 3 of Limitation Act.

A who was dismissed by B on June 30, 1925, presented a petition for leave to sue forma pauperis for wrongful dismissal on June 28, 1928. There was an endorsement bearing the date June 30, 1928, by the Acting Prothonotary that it was to be interpreted and declared gratis. The petition itself was signed and solemnly declared on July 3, 1928. Leave to sue as a pauper was granted on July 24, 1928.

Held, that the application for leave to sue as a pauper was made when the petition was lodged in the Prothonotary Office on June, 28. The signature and verification were not essential in order to constitute an application for permission to sue and could properly be made subsequently. (1887) 4 B.H.C. (A.C.J.) 39 and 30 All. 95, Foll. 32 Bom. L.R. 1343=A.I.R. 1931 Bom. 47 (2).

——S. 3 (Ss. 4, 14)—Pauper application—Dismissal, effect of—Filing of suit within time granted by court after dismissal—C.P.C., S. 409

An application for leave to sue as a pauper was dismissed after the expiry of the period of limitation for the suit itself on the ground that the plaintiff was not a pauper and that he had concealed from the court material facts as to his property. The plaint was filed within one month of the dismissal date—the time allowed by the Court. Held, (1) that the suit was barred. 20 B. 508 foll. (2) that even supposing that S. 14 of the Limitation Act applied, there was no good faith on the part of the plaintiff in regard to the pauper proceedings. (1907) 9 Bom. L. R. 204.

11. Period of Limitation.

——See also NOTE 4 UNDER LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), SUPRA.

——S. 3—What determines.

It is not the basis of a suit or the recitals of events given in the plaint that ordinarily determine the application of an article of the Limitation Act but it is the relief and the cause of action on which the suit is founded that determines the article of the Act applicable to the case. A.I.R. 1945 Lah. 164=47 P.L.R. 122=221 Ind. Cas. 524.

——S. 3—For the purpose of considering which article of the Limitation Act applies, Courts should have regard to the suit, not as framed but to the suit as it ought to have been framed. A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 33=1941 O.W.N. 1079=1941 A.W.R. 291=17 Luck. 1=196 Ind. Cas. 457.

——S. 3—In considering whether a particular remedy is barred, one looks, not at the relief claimed but at the cause of action, that is, at the necessary allegations which have to be made and found before the relief sought can be given. A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 335=I.L.R. (1939) Nag. 1=177 Ind. Cas. 6 (F.B.).

——S. 3—Test to decide which article applies.

In order to decide which article of the Limitation Act applies, and whether the suit is barred or not, regard must be had to the nature of the suit and the relief claimed. It is the right of the plaintiff to frame his suit so as to bring it under any article of the Limitation Act, which is more favourable to him as giving a longer period than another. If he frames the suit wrongly, he take the consequences. But so long as the frame of the suit is consistent with the cause of action as alleged, the mere fact that he had made a claim which, on investigation is found to be unauthorized or which he was not entitled to make, cannot affect the question as to what article would apply. The question of limitation is to be decided with reference to the cause of action and to the frame of the suit when instituted and not with what is found at the end of the trial or the relief which is granted. 39 Bom. L.R. 224=A.I.R. 1937 Bom. 244=170 Ind. Cas. 172.

——S. 3—The article to apply in any proceeding is that article of the Act that relates to the from of remedy that the plaintiff seek. A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 709=42 L.W. 535=(1935) M.W.N. 1154=158 Ind. Cas. 121.

——S. 3. Two articles wide enough to include same cause of action—Which article to be preferred.

In giving effect to a statute of limitation, if two articles limiting the period for bringing a suit are wide enough to include the same cause of action and neither of them can be said to apply more specifically than the other, that which keeps alive rather than that which bars the right to sue should generally, and apart from other equitable considerations, be preferred. A.I.R. 1934 Bom. 491=36 Bom. L.R. 1068=154 Ind. Cas. 680.

——S. 3—Test to find out what article is applicable.

The test of the proper article to be applied to a suit is to consider the facts alleged in the plaint and the remedy granted by the Court. It is not necessarily to be measured by the remedy which the plaintiff may have asked but which has been refused. A.I.R. 1933 Pat. 695=150 Ind. Cas. 242.

——S. 3—The language of Col. 3, Sch. I, should be so interpreted as to carry out the true intention of the Legislature, that is to say, by dating the cause of action from a date when the remedy is available to the party. A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 333=62 C. 66=158 Ind. Cas. 191.

——S. 3—When limitation is specifically provided for, the specifie provision must prevail and not the general provision in Limitation Act. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 645=159 Ind. Cas. 1044 (1).

——S. 3—When a case falls within the provisions of a special article of the Limitation Act, there is no room for the application of the general article which is designed to meet cases for which no period of limitation is fixed by the Act. (1931) M.W.N. 8=A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 505=133 Ind. Cas. 193.

——S. 3—Suspension of limitation.

Apart from the provisions of the Limitation Act itself there is no principle which can legitimately be invoked to add to or supplement its provisions and there can be no suspension of the period of limitation. A.I.R. 1933 Pat. 693=146 Ind. Cas. 856.

——S. 3—Principles.

While on the one hand, no "suspension" in the proper sense of a period of limitation which has begun to run is permissible except as provided in S. 14, etc., the Courts will place a liberal, or an accurate construction on the somewhat loosely expressed words in col. 3, Sch. I, which prescribes the starting point of the period of limitation, by not requiring parties to start legal proceedings in circumstances when it would be futile for them to do so. 60 M.L.J. 239=33 L.W.=154=A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 149=(1931) M.W.N. 18=54 M. 455=130 Ind. Cas. 738.

——S. 3—Continuing or successive causes of action.

The notion of continuing or successive causes of action is not entirely foreign to the Limitation Act. Where, therefore, a party has recurring or successiye causes of action, whether under the terms of contract or by operation of law, each cause of action will give a fresh start to the period of limitation and the mere fact that a party has not availed himself of the earlier cause of action, will not prevent him from availing himself of a later one. A.I.R. 1931 Pat. 285=12 P.L.T. 755=11 Pat. 112=134 Ind. Cas. 609.

——S. 3—Period for suits.

The period for suits is that prescribed by the 1st schedule and by Ss. 4 to 26. 40 All. 198, Foll 81 Ind. Cas. 484=11 O.L.J. 297=A.I.R. 1924 Oudh 385.

——S. 3—Appeal—Presentation valid and appeal within time.

The Sub Magistrate delivered the judgment on August 25, 1928; two days were required for obtaining copy of the judgment and the appeal to the Sub-Divisonal Magistrate was presented on September 26, 1938, to the Second Clerk of that Court as the Head Clerk was absent on leave. The Sub-Divisional Magistrate passed an order dismissing the appeal on the ground that it was not filed within time allowed before the authority competent to receive it, that no reason for condoning the delay was given and that the appeal was time barred:

Held, that there was valid presentation of appeal. The appeal, therefore, was with in time. A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 669=49 L.W. 455=(1939) M.W.N. 319=40 Cr. L.J. 960=184 Ind. Cas. 353.

——S. 3—Memorandum of appeal filed on last day of limitation with insufficient court-fee—Deficit fee paid after limitation.

Where, on the last day of limitation, a memorandum of appeal was filed with a court-fee of eight annas though it was clear from the nature of the appeal and from what was stated in the memorandum itself that the proper court-fee payable was Rs. 15 and the deficit court-fee was paid by the appellant of his own accord some days latter :

Held, that the appeal must be deemed to have been presented only on the date when the full court-fee was paid and it was, therefore., barred by limitation. 44 L.W. 249=165 Ind. Cas. 57.

——S. 3—Right of plaintiff—Two causes of action

Where a person has two causes of action, one when a contract is broken and another arising when he pays money which defendant is legally bound to pay and he sues on the second, the suit is governed by Art. 61, though the suit for damages arising out of the first cause of action is barred. I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 437=20 N.L.J. 73=A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 152=169 Ind. Cas. 298.

——S. 3—Issue regarding limitation—How to be struck.

In striking an issue regarding limitation, the Court should first ascertain what article the parties consider to be applicable to the suit as framed. If the application of a particular article raises a question of fact, an issue should be strycit on those facts and if the facts are not in dispute, it may be possible to decide the question of purely legal arguments in the initial stages of the case without putting the parties to the expense of the trial. ——S. 3—Execution application—Court competent to decide question of limitation.

Where the decree has been sent to another Court for execution, both, the Court to which the decree is sent and the Court which passed it have jurisdiction to determine the question whether the execution of the decree is time-barred or not. The question which of the two Courts is more suitable depends upon the question of convenience and priority. A. I. R. 1941 Rang. 56=1940 Rang. L. R. 725=193 Ind. Cas. 318.

——S. 3—Plea by surety for promisor—To what extent available.

Where a surety for a promisor denies liability on the ground of limitation, the plea of limitation can apply only to the debt and interest thereon, which it is alleged, had become barred by limitation at the time of the institution of the suit, and cannot apply to interest and charges which had not become barred or which have accrued subsequently. A. I. R. 1940 Cal. 401=I.L.R. (1940) 2 Cal. 362=44 C. W. N. 985=191 Ind. Cas. 608.

——S. 3—Basis for determination.

The question whether a suit is within time must be decided primarily on the basis of the plaintiff's own pleadings and not on the basis of the defence set up. A. I. R. 1933 Lah. 404=147 Ind. Cas. 57.

——S. 3—The question whether a particular claim is within limitation or not can be decided only after the plaint has been admitted. (1932) A. L. J. 489=A.I.R. 1932 All. 543=54 A. 525=138 Ind. Cas. 396.

——S. 3—Point of limitation can be taken in appeal.

Where the point of limitation is taken for the first time in the High Court that the plaintiff's claim was out of time, though the point had not been pleaded or taken in the Court below, the High Court is bound to take notice of it. A. I. R. 1940 Pat. 609=21 P. L. T. 442=6 B. R. 689=188 Ind. Cas. 411.

——S. 3—Plea at appellate stage.

It is true that the plea of limitation can be urged at any stage having regard to S. 3 but when a party does take the appropriate defence but does not put before the Court materials to sustain that defence, it become difficult for the Court sitting in appeal to give effect to the defence contention and the Court is justified in rejecting it. A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 382=64 C. L.J. 513=166 Ind. Cas. 900.

——S. 3—Plaint showing point of limitation on its face—Point not argued—Defendants can raise it on appeal. A. I. R. 1934 Rang. 329=13 R. 43=154 Ind. Cas. 153.

——S. 3—Plea of limitation in Second Appeal.

The mere fact that the question of limitation was not raised in the Trial Court or in the first appellate Court or in the memorandum of appeal does not debar the Court of second appeal from going into the question if it arises on the pleadings and no question of fact has to be enquired into to dispose of the question. 35 C.W.N. 103=A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 703.

——S. 3—C. P. Code, S. 100.

No doubt, it is the duty of the Court in second appeal to entertain even for the first time the question of limitation ; but to remand a case on the ground that further investigation would disclose facts which would show that the plaint is time barred is wrong. 115 Ind. Cas. 606=32 C.W.N. 778=A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 870.

——S. 3—Plea of prescriptive right.

Plea of prescriptive right, i.e., positive limitation, cannot be taken at any stage. Plea of prescription belongs to the branch of substantive law of limitation which primarily strengthens title of a party and, therefore cannot be taken at any stage.

The plea of limitation which can be taken at any stage of the suit and even in second appeal relates to that part of the law of limitation which is negative in its operation. 109 Ind. Cas. 293=A.I.R. 1928 Nag. 203.

——S. 3—Where the determination of the question of limitation requires an investigation into facts, in order to see whether a particular payment was made in such a manner has to extend time, the question should not be allowed to be raised in appeal for the first time. 94 Ind. Cas. 457=27 P.L.R. 432=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 511.

——S. 3—Though point of limitation is not raised in the trial Court nor in the grounds of appeal, it can be raised for the first time at the hearing of appeal. 94 Ind. Cas. 251=27 Pat. L. R. 870=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 451.

——S. 3—Second Appeal—Mixed question.

Under S. 3 the Court, in second appeal, cannot go into a question of limitation of its own accord and dismiss the suit as barred by limitation although it was not pleaded in defence when such a question is not a question purely of law but is one of mixed fact and law. 78 Ind. Cas. 960=A.I.R. 1925 Nag. 178.

——S. 3—Where the question as to limitation was raised in the written statement and an issue was framed, but it was not pressed in the trial Court:

Held, that the defendants-respondents were entitled to press that point on appeal. Section 3 of the Limitation Act and S. 184 of the Bengal Tenancy Act are clear upon the point. 89 Ind. Cas. 340=3 Pat. L. R. Civ. 132=7 P.L.T. 253=A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 549.

——S. 3—The plea of limitation can be taken at any stage of the case, and under S. 3 the Court of Appeal is bound to give effect to this plea when raised. But in order that this plea may be given effect to when raised in appeal it is necessary that the facts showing that the suit is barred should be apparent on the record. 67 Ind. Cas. 386=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 283.

——S. 3—General rule.

The general rule is that points of limitation should not be allowed to be raised for the first time in appeal where they involve a decision upon questions of fact. Points of limitation should not be decided against the parties unless attention has been drawn to the question of limitation and on opportunity given them to meet it on the evidence.

If limitation is urged as bar, the facts on which it is barred must be proved after an issue has been framed. 66 Ind. Cas. 287=34 C.L.J. 205=A. I. R. 1921 Cal. 661.

——S. 3—A point of limitation can be taken in second appeal for the first time, if there are sufficient findings of fact on which it could be argued as a question of law. 63 Ind. Cas. 785 (Cal.).

——S. 3—Although the defendants have not raised a plea in their written statement that the debt for which the mortgagee was executed was time barred, they can raise the same in appeal for the first time. 61 Ind. Cas. 20=2 P.L.T. 318=6 P.L.J. 256=A.I.R. 1921 Pat. 99.

——S. 3—A question of limitation cannot be raised for the first time in appeal. It must be raised by the defendant, in his pleading according to C. P. Code, O. 8, R. 2. 60 Ind. Cas. 280=32 C.L.J. 236.

——S. 3—Plea of limitation—High Court's power to take up.

Where a question of limitation is raised by the written statement but no issue was framed thereon nor raised in the first appeal, Held, that the High Court can take the matter into consideration and dismiss the suit if it is barred. U. B. R. (1913) 164=20 Ind. Cas. 360.

——S. 3—Plea of—Limitation—Appeal.

The Court can take on a second appeal, notice of the question of limitation although it has not been taken up in the Courts below. 46 Cal. 455=22 C.W.N. 994=47 Ind. Cas. 25.

——S. 3—Plea of limitation—Appellate Court not bound to reinvestigate unless pressed.

A suit was dismissed on the merits, the Courts holding that it was not barred by limitation. The question of limitation was not reinvestigated on appeal as the defendant did not argue it. Held, that the Appellate Court was not called upon to determine the question of limitation, and was concerned only with the merits. 16 Ind. Cas. 418 (Cal.).

——S. 3—Plea of limitation—Appellate Court.

The abandonment of a point of limitation in a Lower Court does not relieve an Appellate Court of the duty of taking notice of the statute. But the plea of limitation in order to be effective must be properly put before the Court. 14 P.W.R. 1918=44 Ind. Cas. 890.

——S. 3—Plea of limitation—When to be taken.

A plea of limitation in the original court must be heard and decided if it is taken before issues are raised; and after the issues are fixed, the court can refuse to entertain the plea but when once the matter goes on appeal and the plea is not taken either in the original court or in the grounds of appeal but is raised in the course of arguments, the appellate court would be justified in refusing to entertain it. 84 P.R. 1911=255 P.W.R. 1911=13 Ind. Cas. 792.

——S. 3—Plea of limitation—Appellate Court—Duty of.

S. 3 of the Limitation Act does not lay upon an Appellate Court the duty of dismissing suits filed out of time in the original Court, unless its attention is drawn to it. 32. I. C. 785, Foll. 42 Ind. Cas. 536 (Mad.).

——S. 3—Plea of limitation—Point taken in Second appeal.

A plea of limitation cannot be taken for the first time in appeal, unless the point can be determined on pleadings and no evidence is necessary. A plea that the suit was barred under S. 7 as the plaintiff's elder brother could give a discharge was not allowed to be taken in second appeal as the point could not be determined without evidence as to whether he was a manager and did not collude with the defendant. 28 M.L.J. 115=28 Ind. Cas. 378.

——S. 3—Plea of limitation—Appeal—Court, when bound to enquire.

Where a plea of limitation was not taken in either of the courts below and the determination of the question involves a fresh investigation of facts, it could not be entertained on appeal. 4 Pat. L.J. 645=(1920) P.H.C.C. 91=52 Ind. Cas. 125.

——S. 3—Appellate Court—Power of, to take cognizance of.

An Appellate Court can take cognizance of the question of limitation for the first time when no further evidence is required for deciding it. 259 P.L.R. 1914=25 Ind. Cas. 354.

—— S. 3—Plea of limitation.

Where a point as to limitation was raised for the first time in application for review, the party was allowed to raise it but was ordered to pay the costs of that application to the party. 109 Ind. Cas. 1=6 Rang. 302=55 I.A. 161=5 O.W.N. 479=30 Bom. L.R. 842=47 C.L.J. 510=26 A.L.J. 657=32 C.W. N. 845=28 M.L.W. 207=A.I.R 1928 P.C. 103=54 M.L.J. 696 (P.C.).

——S. 3—Plea of limitation —Raising of.

The question of limitation can be taken at any time in the course of proceedings. 1 Pat. L.J. 221=2 Pat. L.W. 374=36 Ind. Cas. 960.

——S. 3—Plea of limitation—When to be raised.

A plea of limitation can be raised at any stage of execution proceedings if facts are patent on the face of the record. 35 Ind. Cas. 337. (Pat.).

——S. 3—It is necessary that limitation should be pleaded in all cases. But particularly this is so where the bar is alleged under some special law. 66 Ind. Cas. 287=34 C.L.J. 205=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 661.

13. Set-off.

——S. 3—Set-of—Limitation applicable.

Where a defendant pleads for a sum of money as set-off, which is in excess of the plaintiff's claim the time for computation is to be reckoned not from the date of the plaintiff's suit but from the date when defendant filed his written statement. 46 C.W.N. 882=A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 559=I.L.R. (1942) 2 Cal. 485=76 C.L.J. 396=203 Ind. Cas. 336.

——S. 3—A set-off to be pleaded must be within the period of limitation at the time the action of the plaintiff was brought. 5 B. R. 202=A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 142=179 Ind. Cas. 172.

——S. 3—A set-off should not be allowed where the claim is barred by limitation. A.I.R. 1936 Nag. 290=I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 481=170 Ind. Cas. 1004.

——S. 3—Set-off—Limitation applies.

So far as the position of a defendant asserting a right to set-off is concerned the limitation bar does apply to him. It applies to him as if he were bringing an independent suit of his own, the only difference being that where he is defending himself by way of set-off, if his claim was not barred at the time of the issue of plaint, he may prosecute a set-off even although the time may have elapsed before his filing, say, a written statement, claiming the set-off. But with that exception as to the terminus ad quem of the period of time, it is the law in India as well as in England that limitation applies to a set-off. 66 Ind. Cas. 209=48 Cal. 817=25 C.W.N. 800=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 67.

14. Waiver.

——S. 3—Objections regarding limitation cannot be waived and even if they are waived, they can be taken up again by the parties waiving them or by the Courts themselves. A. I. R. 1940 Lah. 75=190 Ind. Cas. 379.

——S. 3—Per Sharpe, J.—It is impossible for parties by consent or agreement to extend or alter the period of limitation; parties cannot waive the statute. A. I. R. 1938 Rang. 328=178 Ind. Cas. 20.

——S. 3—Plea of—Omission to raise.

Where, in an appeal, after court-fee had been made good, notice was given to the respondents of the application for restoration of the appeal and the Court passed an order, after hearing the parties that the appeal be restored, and that a certain amount should be paid as the cost of respondents:

Held, that if the respondents had any objection to the restoration of the appeal on the ground that it was barred by limitation, it was obviously their right and their duty to put forward that plea as a ground for refusing the restoration of the appeal and that the parties were bound by the order restoring the appeal and it was not open to the respondents subsequently to plead that the appeal was barred by limitation. 1935 O.W.N. 68=A.I.R. 1935 Oudh 198=10 Luck. 606=153 Ind.Cas. 878.

——S. 3—Delay not amounting to estoppel or waiver, whether bars suit.

Mere delay cannot create an estoppel or waiver and is therefore, no ground for the dismissal of the suit where the plaintiff has got a cause of action and had instituted his suit within the time allowed to him under the Limitation Act. 58 C. 1359=35 C.W.N. 823=A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 221=135 Ind. Cas. 296.

——S. 3—Waiver—Effect.

Where the plea of limitation is waived though the suit is time barred, the decree following is a consent-decree and thus not appealable. 18 A.L.J. 625=(1920) M.W. N. 366=39 M.L.J. 68=28 M.L.T. 97=12 L.W. 260=44 C.W.N. 1055=2 U.P.L.R. (P.C.) 122=56 Ind. Cas. 539 (P.C.).

——S. 3—Waiver—Extension of time.

The period of limitation cannot be extended by express agreement between the parties nor can it be extended by an agreement which can be implied from circumstances such as those of the present case. It is the duty of the Court to give effect to a bar by limitation though the parties waive the plea. 3 Pat. L.J. 132=44 Ind. Cas. 570.

——S. 3—Waiver—Willingness to pay barred instalments in previous suit.

Where in a previous suit for the recovery of unpaid instalments to defendant was willing to pay barred instalments, he is not estopped from pleading limitation in respect of the same in a subsequent suit. 24 Ind. Cas. 507 (Mad.).

——S. 3—Waiver—Agreement to postpone suit—Invalidity of.

There is no estoppel against a statute. Parties cannot waive or contract themselves out of the Law of Limitation. An agreement by a person not to take advantage of a cause of action would not extend the period unless it amounts to an acknowledgment. 38 Mad. 374=(1913) M. W. N. 676=25 M. L. J. 264=21 Ind. Cas. 24.

——S. 3—Waiver—Contract against limitation—Invalid.

Parties are not at liberty to contract themselves out of the law of limitation, and the Quilibet protest renunciare jure po se introducto is restricted to legal provisions intended for the benefit of individuals and does not apply to rules of law based, as are statutes of limitation, on public policy and general considerations. 17 C.W.N. 518=18 Ind. Cas. 595.

15. Miscellaneous.

——S. 3—Wrong decision—Whether ultra vires—Proper remedy.

Whether a particular application is barred by limitation or not is a matter to be decided by the authority who is to act on that application. If that authority decides the question wrongly, the remedy is an appeal to the higher authority, and not a suit in the Civil Court. Where the Deputy Commissioner has decided that the cause of action for filing the application accrued when the villagers felt the necessity of having a headman, it is not for the Civil Court to say whether or not that interpretation is correct. No appeal lies to the Civil Court against the order of the Deputy Commissioner. An order passed on a barred application is not a nullity or ultra vires. 2 B. R. 457=17 P.L.T. 445=A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 202=15 Pat. 488=162 Ind. Cas. 582.

——S.3—Wrong decision—Award not in accord with law of limitation—Legality.

It cannot be laid down that all awards which have not been decided in accordance with terms of Limitation Act are invalid. (1931) M.W.N. 451=A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 619=34 L. W. 507=(1931) Mad. 762 (2)=133 Ind. Cas. 522 (2).

——S. 3—Proper Court.

A person wishing to appeal from a decree of the Consul-General at Kashgar must present his memorandum of appeal to the Court, that is, Consul-General, who is then charged with the duty of transmitting it to the High Court. The Consul-General it not to decide if the appeal is barred by time. The question of limitation can be taken only at the time of hearing of the appeal. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 681=14 L. 656=34 P.L.R. 937=146 Ind. Cas. 45.

——S. 3—"Making application."—Filing notice of motion is making application (Obiter).

Where an "application" is to be made to the Court within the period of limitation prescribed by any Act, it is deemed to be made for the purposes of limitation when the notice of motion is first filed in the proper office of the Court. 25 Q.B.D. 230 ; A.I.R. 1924 Bom. 36 ; 17 M.L.J. 215, Foll. 115 Ind. Cas. 83=55 Cal. 1341=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 193.

——S. 3—Revision—Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, S. 25.

Revision lies from an order wrongly dismissing a suit as time barred. 115 Ind. Cas. 757=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 274.

——S. 3—Construction—Question of limitation—If question of jurisdiction.

S. 3 of the Act does not say that the suits or applications filed after the period of limitation shall not be entertained but what it says is that such suits or applications shall be dismissed. A question of limitation is therefore not a question of jurisdiction. 46 Ind. Cas. 569 (Pat.).

——S. 3—Art. 164—Construction—Ex parte decree—Application to set aside—Limitation.

Art. 164 applies to an application to set aside an ex parte decree made after that Act came into force, the decree being passed before the Act came into force : S. 3 clearly lays a rule to that effect. 70 P. L. R. 1911=265 P.W.R. 1911=10 Ind. Cas. 823.

——S. 3—(Ss. 4, 14)—Regulation Collector under the Court of Wards not a courts—See COURT OF WARDS. 18 M.L.J. 581=31 Mad. 495.

——S. 4.

Synopsis.

1. Applicability of section.
2. Court closed—Meaning of.
3. Court reopens—Meaning of.
4. Court must take judicial notice of holidays.
5. Plaint, appeal or application must be presented to proper Court.
6. Scope and Effect of section.

1. Applicability of section.

(a) General.

(b) Payment of money into Court.

1 (a) Applicability of section—(General).

——S. 4—Applicability—Assignment of pronote on reopening day—Suit by assignee.

Where on the last day for a suit on a pro-note the Courts were closed and on the re-opening day the payee assigned the pro-note and the assignee filed suit on the very day :

Held, that on the date of the assignment, there was an interest that could be assigned. Section 4 applied to the case and the suit was maintainable. A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 908=52 L.W. 221=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 251=(1940) M.W.N. 777=194 Ind. Cas. 401.

——S. 4—Assignment of debt—After limitation but in Court vacation—Suit filed on re-opening—Maintainability.

When the period prescribed for a suit to recover a debt expires during the Court vacation and before re-opening the debt is assigned, the suit brought by the assignee on the re-opening day is within time. 15 Bom. L. R. 348=19 Ind. Cas. 820.

——S. 4—Applicability to deposit of costs.

Per Agarwala, J:—An "application" in S. 4, Limitation Act means an application to the Court to take some step which the Court is empowered to take only on being requested to do so, such as execute a decree, set aside an execution sale, etc. When making a deposit of costs, the appellant does not move the Court to do anything. Section 4, therefore, does not apply to deposit of costs. A. I. R. 1939 Pat. 667=20 P. L. T. 905=6 B.R. 159=19 Pat. 123=185 Ind.Cas. 353 (F.B.).

——S. 4—Applicability—Application under Oudh Courts Act.

The provisions of S. 4 are quite general and would apply to an application under S. 12 (2), Oudh Courts Act. A. I. R. 1938 Oudh 1861=938 O. W. N. 706=14 Luck. 138=177 Ind. Cas. 48.

——S. 4—Applicability—Application under Prov. Insol. Act.

By virtue of S. 29, Lim. Act, S. 4 of that Act applies to applications made under Prov. Insol. Act. A. I. R. 1938 Nag. 454=I. L. R. Nag. 377=178 Ind. Cas. 479.

——S. 4—Insolvency petition—Applicability.

Where three months from the date of transfer have expired during the vacation, an insolvency petition cannot be presented just after the vacation. 38 M. 794=42 L. W. 330=69 M. L. J. 283=(1935) M. W. N. 685=A. I. R. 1935 Mad. 857=158 Ind. Cas. 1 (F.B.) [Overruling A. I. R. 1934 Mad. 294=149 Ind. Cas. 339=58 Mad. 794].

——S. 4—Applicability—Prov. Insol. Act, S. 68.

Section 4 applies to application under S. 68, Prov. Insol. Act. A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 209=9 R. 150=134 Ind. Cas. 223.

——S. 4—Collector's Court.

Transfer of decree to Collector for execution—Limitation for application under O. 21, R. 89, Civil P. Code, expiring when Civil Court was closed—Application presented when Court re-opened:

Held, that the application was in time, even though the Collector's Court might have been open on the day when the limitation expired. A. I. R. 1938 Bom. 209=40 Bom. L. R. 152=175 Ind. Cas. 221.

——S. 4—Applicability—Sikh Gurdwaras Act (1925), S. 28.

Section 29 (2) (a), Limitation Act as amended in 1922, excludes the applicability of S. 4 only when a special or local law expressly excludes it. Sikh Gurdwaras Act, however, does not expressly excludes S. 4 and so its applicablity cannot be barred in the case where the Managing committee of a Gurdwara takes proceeding under S. 28, Gurdwara Act, and brings a suit for possession. A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 800.

——S. 4—Punjab Limitation (Custom) Act, Ss. 6 and 5.

The words "notwithstanding anything herein contained" do not repeal S. 5 in so far as the applicability of the provisions of Ss. 4to 25 to suits governed by S. 6 is concerned. They are intended to govern the period of limitation prescribed by the Act, and the object of section was to prescribe a maximum period of one year after the commencement of the Act for a suit which the period of limitation had commenced to run before the enforcement of the Act. 8 Lah. 711=9 L. L. J. 420=29 P. L. R. 148=A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 348.

——S. 4—Applies to applications to set aside sales on deposit.

After a sales was held in execution of a decree on 25th August, 1920, the Civil Court closed for the long vacation. When on 25th Octber, it re-opened an application was made to set aside the sale by applicant who also filed a tender offering the whole amount with compensation on the same day. The Judge signed the tender the next day on money being deposited:

Held, S. 4 applied and as the delay in payment was not due to any fault of the judgment-debtor the application was not time-barred. 67 Ind. Cas. 321=20 A. L. J. 543=A. I. R. 1922 All. 195.

——S. 4—Applicability — Private contracts between parties—Execution of decree.

S. 4 of the Limitation Act has no application to a case where a certain date has been fixed for payment by agreement of parties. A decree-holder agreed to set aside the sale, on the judgment-debtors's deposing the decretal amount within a fixed time. The Court being closed on the last day money was deposited the next day. The sale was not set aside. 1 Pat L. T. 227=56 Ind. Cas. 495.

——Ss. 4 and 31 (1)—"Prescribed" meaning of—General Clauses Act (11 of 1897), S. 10.

A suit, to which the two years period of grace provided for by S. 31 (1) was applicable, was instituted on 8th August, 1910, the 7th August being a Sunday Held, the suit was not barred by limitation. Although it such a case the limitation would not be saved under S. 4 of the Limitation Act, yet it would be so under the provisions of S. 10 of the General Clauses Act. 36 B. 268, not foll. 9 A.L.J. 439, Foll. 15 O. C. 373=15 Ind. Cas. 439.

——S. 4—Applicability—Period of grace under S. 31 (1)—Time, how reckoned—Sundays.

S. 4 is not applicable to the period of grace allowed by S. 31 (1) consequently when the last day of the two years fell on a Sunday the suit instituted on Monday i.e., the next day was held as time-barred. When an act providing a given number of days for doing a particular act says nothing about Sunday, the days are to be reckoned, as consecutive days including Sunday. Where, therefore, the last day fails on a Sunday, to do the act on Monday would be too late. 36 Bom. 268=13 Bom. L. R. 1153=12 Ind. Cas. 811.

——S. 4—Applicability—Suits under S. 77 of the Registration Act.

S. 4 of the Limitation Act, 1877 (corresponding to S. 4 of the Act of 1908) applies to suits under S. 77 of the Registration Act. If the last day for bringing a suit under S. 77, Registration Act was a holiday and the suit is brought on the next working day, the suit was not barred. The 30 days must be counted from the date when the order was communicated to the plaintiff. 16 C. W. N. 20=12 Ind. Cas. 33.

——S. 4—Applicable to suits under S. 77, Registration Act, to compel registration—See 1905 A.W.N. 175=2 A.L.J. 714=28 A. 48.

——S. 4 (S. 5)—Applicability—Not to orders S. 75 of the Registration Act, by the District Registrar—See REGISTRATION ACT, S. 75. 5 C.L.J. 188.

——S. 4—Applicability—Suit is barred.

Section 4 is applicable to the day on which the Court is closed only it such day is at the end of period of limitation and not otherwise.

Where the last day was the 9th September which was a holiday and the suit was filed in a wrong Court on the 10th and on return thereof the plaintiff represented the same in the proper Court:

Held, that S. 4 cannot operate to exclude the period between the 9th and 10th September, in computing the period of limitation. 69 Ind. Cas. 724=16 M.L.W. 911=31 M.L.T. 258=1923 M.W.N. 42=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 114=43 M.L.J. 579.

——S. 4—Letters Patent appeals—S. 4 and other general provisions do not apply.

When the special or local law is not in itself a complete Code, the general provisions of the Limitation Act, e.g., Ss. 4, 5, 12 and so on, are ordinarily applicable to proceedings under it, inasmuch as such general provisions do not affect or alter the period prescribed by the special or local law, but only the manner in which that period is to be computed. Letters Patent being a complete Code the provisions of the Limitation Act do not apply to proceedings thereunder. 61 Ind.Cas. 327=2 Lah. 127=3 L.L.J. 415=74 P L.R. 1921=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 26.

——Ss. 4—and 14 Applicability—Claim made within time—Reference by Decree Collector—Extension of time.

Where there were both a Regulation Collector and Decree Collector and claim was preferred to the Regulation Collector in respect of a debt before the recovery of it was barred by limitation, the claim is not liable to be dismissed as barred on the ground that the reference by the Decree Collector to the Civil Court was made after the expiry of the limitation period in consequence of the delay that happened in the disposal of the Regulation Collector. The reference by the Decree Collector to the court is not to be regarded as the institution of a suit by the claimant, and S. 4 of the Limitation Act has no application to it. The question that could properly be referred is whether the claim was legally enforcible when it was made to the Regulation Collector and not whether it was legally recoverable on some subsequent date arbitrarily fixed by the Regulation Collector. Obiter:—The case will be different if there was no Decree Collector at all, but there was only the Regulation Collector, when the suit will have to be filed before it is barred. A Regulation Collector is not a court "which from defect of jurisdiction was unable to entertain the claim" within the meaning of S. 14 of the Limitation Act, and S. 14 will not avail for the exclusion of the time taken before the Regulation Collector. (1907) 18 M.L.J. 581=31 M. 495=4 M.L.T. 321.

1 (b). Applicability of section—Payment of money into Court.

——S. 4—Deposit—Applicability—Amount to be deposited on a particular date—Vacation—Deposit on reopening day.

Where parties are prevented from doing a thing in Court on a particular day, not by any act of their own but by the act of the Court itself, they are entitled to do it at the first subsequent opportunity. Consequently, if the judgment-debtors are entitled to pay the money into Court on a certain date but they are prevented from doing it due to the vacation of the Court, they are within their rights if they make the deposition the re-opening of the Court. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 369—158 Ind. Cas. 352.

——S. 4—Pre-emption decree—Last day for deposit falling on holiday — Deposit on re-opening day—Tender—Officers of Court too busy—Deposit on next day.

If a party fails to perform an act because the last day of the period allowed to it is a holiday and performs it on the next opening day of the Court, he must be deemed to have complied with his duty. This principle applies to deposit of money under a decree for pre-emption.

If there was a tender of the money on the due date but the money was not actually deposited because the officers of the Court were too busy to take it, the tender should be considered sufficient for the purpose of absolving to party concerned of any further responsibility in the matter. 33 P.L.R. 91=A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 388=134 Ind. Cas. 201.

——S. 4—Payment of money.

Where a decree is passed conditional on payment of money it is open to the party to deposit the money after the re-opening of the Court, if the Court was closed on the last date on which the money could be deposited. A.I.R. 1924 All. 218 (F.B.), Foll. 87 Ind. Cas. 620=6 L.R.A. (Civ.) 287=A.I.R. 1925 All. 687.

——S. 4—Deposit made on re-opening day the Court being closed on the day of deposit, is valid.

By an appellate decree, the plaintiff in two pre-emption cases was given one month from the 27th of September, 1921, within which to deposit certain money, if he desired to obtain the benefit of the decree in his favour. The Civil Courts closed for the vacation in that year on the 30th of September and re-opened on the 4th November. On that date the successful plaintiff made the deposit required by the decree:

Held, that the deposit tendered by Muhammad Jan the plaintiff on the 4th November, 1921, was in time under the terms of the decree. Although the parties themselves cannot extend the time for doing an act in Court, yet if the delay is caused, not by any act of their own, but by some act of the Court itself, such as the fact of the Court being closed, they are entitled to do the act on the first opening day. 41 All. 47, Overruled. 78 Ind. Cas. 1014=22 A. L. J. 110=4 L.R.A. (Civ.) 88=46 All. 328=A.I.R. 1924 All. 218 (F.B.).

——S. 4—Pre-emption decree.

The plaintiff was given a decree on condition that he should pay a certain sum within a certain period. The Court was closed from the next day. The plaintiff tendered the money into Court on the next day on which the Court was open. In the meanwhile the period fixed by the decree had expired, Held, that the payment was within time. 67 Ind. Cas. 772=3 L. L. J. 310=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 6 (F.B.).

——S. 4—The payment in satisfaction of a compromise decree can be made either directly to the decree-holder or into the Court. If the judgment-debtor chooses to pay the money into the Court and if on the day within which the payment has to be made, the Court is closed, the judgment-debtor can deposit the money in Court at the earliest possible opportunity afterwards, viz., the date of the re-opening of the Court. There is a generally recognised principle of law, under which parties, who are prevented from doing a thing, not by any default of their own, but by the Court itself, are entitled to do it, at the first subsequent opportunity. 87 Ind. Cas. 560=1925 M. W. N. 566=21 M. L. W. 469=A. I. R. 1925 Mad. 743=48 M. L. J. 596.

——S. 4—Effect of S. 10, General Clauses Act.

The appellant sued the respondents for joint possession of a plot of land acquired by the defendants. On the 29th November, 1920 a decree of joint possession was passed in the plaintiff's favour subject to his paying one hundred rupees as contribution within six months from the date of the decree. The period of six months expired in the vacation when the Courts were closed, and the appellant deposited his money in Court on the day that the Court re-opened:

Held, that in view of S. 10, General Clauses Act, the payment was in time. 7 N.L.R. 176, Foll. 72 Ind. Cas. 388=19 N.L.R. 116=A. I. R. 1923 Nag. 246.

——S. 4—Where on the last day for payment of any sum of money under a decree which fixed a certain period thereof, the Court is closed, payment made on the re-opening day of the Court is valid. 60 Ind. Cas. 894=19 A. L. J. 49=A. I. R. 1921 All. 44.

2. Court closed—Meaning of.

——S. 4—Presiding officer on leave—Court whether closed'....

The mere absence of the presiding offier on leave is not tantamount to the Court being closed within the meaning of S. 4 if the office of the Court was opened and documents could have been presented during the period.

The question whether the Court was closed owing to the absence of the presiding officer leave is purely a question of fact. A. I. R. 1933 Lah. 239=34 P. L. R 338=142 Ind. Cas. 307.

——S. 4—Whether Court is closed.

——Per Blackwell, J.—Whether a Court is or is not closed is in each case a question of fact and must depend upon the pratice which pervails in the particular Court. 103 Ind. Cas. 540=51 Bom. 848=29 Bom. L. R. 981=A. I. R. 1927 Bom. 480.

——S. 4—Court open during vacation for receiving plants, etc., is deemed to be open.

When a Court is adjourned for the vacation but the notification states that the Court will be open on certain days for the reception of plaints, petitions and other papers, the Court cannot be treated as closed on those days when it was open for the above purpose. 5 Mad. 189 (F. B.), Foll.

As matter of practice, it is well understood that plaints, which are not presented in the Presidency Small Cause Court on the days when the office is open for receiving them during the vacation become time-barred after the expiration of the period of limitation appropriate to such suits and plaintiffs cannot claim to exclude the whole of the Samll Cause Court's vacation. The words "other papers" are very wide and must include applications for re-trial of the suit. 70 Ind. Cas. 888=46 Mad. 938=17 M. L. W. 705=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 435=44 M. L. J. 100.

——S. 4—Court closed — Meaning of — Officer absent in camp—Madras Civil Rules of Practice, R. 14—Applicability.

A court is not closed within S. 4, if the Officer authorised to receive plaints is absent from head-quarters and is in camp. R. 14 of the Madras Civil Rules of Practice does not apply to proceedings before a Revenue Court. 38 Mad. 295=29 Ind. Cas. 449 (F.B.).

——S. 4 (S. 5)—Plaint—Presentation on opening day of Court.

A plaint the period of limitation for filing which expires while the court is closed for vacation, presented on the opening day after the vacation, is to be treated as presented in time although the Prothonotary's office is working in the vacation for urgent work. (1907) 9 Bom. L. R. 1329.

——S. 4—Letters Patent appeal—Nagpur High Court.

The Nagpur High Court is open for receiving Letters Patent appeals during the long vacation. Section 4 cannot, therefore, be called in aid where time for such appeal expires during vacation and it is filed on the opening day of the High Court after vacation. A.I.R. 1941 Nag. 216=I.L.R. (1941) Nag. 563=1941 N.L.J 284=197 Ind. Cas. 415.

——S. 4—Original Side of High Court—Bombay.

According to prevailing practice in the Bombay High Court, suits on the Original Side can be filed in the summer vacation and therefore the Bombay High Court Original Side is not "closed" within S. 4 in the vacation. A.I.R. 1924 Bom. 144, Foll. 103 Ind. Cas. 540=51 Bom. 848=29 Bom. L. R. 981=A. I. R. 1927 Bom. 480.

——S. 4—Original Side of High Court is not closed during summer vacation—Whether Court is closed or not is a question of fact. 89 Ind. Cas. 529=25 Bom. L.R. 1296=A.I.R. 1924 Bom. 144.

3. Court re-opens—Meaning of.

——S. 4—Re-opening of Court but judicial work taken up on a later date—Application filed on that date—If within time where limitation expired during vacation.

The notification regarding the summer vacation of the High Court for the year 1942 prescribed that the Court would be closed from 28th April until the 4th July, both dates inclusive. The first day on which the Court was not closed but was open for receiving papers was 5th July, but the Judges actually sat for judicial work only from the 7th July. An application for which the prescribed period of limitation expired during the holidays was presented on 7th July instead of on 5th July.

Held, that the application was barred by limitation as having been presented out of time. 1948 M. W. N. 28=A. I. R. 1948 Mad. 521=61 L. W. 44=(1948) 1 M. L.J. 49.

——S. 4—Re-opening—Meaning of.

Office re-opening on April 3—Registrar sitting for first time after re-opening on April 5.

Held, application filed on 5th April was in time. A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 454=I.L.R. (1937) 2 Cal. 612=174 Ind. Cas. 1009.

4. Court must take Judicial notice of holidays.

——S. 4—Exemption not mentioned in plaint.

Limitation expiring during Court holidays—Presentation of plaint on re-opening day—Plaint not mentioning ground of exemption;

Held, that the omission of the ground will not entail dismissal of suit inasmuch as the Court is bound to take judicial notice of the holidays. A.I.R. 1937 Pesh. 41=39 P.L.R. 528=168 Ind. Cas. 384.

——S. 4—Holidays—Judicial notice of.

The Court is bound to take judicial notice of public holidays notified as such in the Official Gazette and a litigant is entitled to presume that the Court will take such notice thereof. 14 L. 240: A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 558 34 P.L.R. 540=149 Ind. Cas. 958.

5. Plaint, appeal or application must be presented to proper court.

—See also NOTE b (c).

——S. 4—Plaint presented in wrong Court returned for presentation to proper Court—No endorsement under Civil P. C., O. 7, R. 10—Pro-note basis of suit returned two days later.

Where a plaint is presented to the wrong Court, plaintiff is not entitled to any deduction on account of holidays, as what is necessary under S. 4, Lim. A ct, is that the plaint must have been presented to the proper Court.

Where, on a suit on a pro-note, being filed in the wrong Court, the Court returned the plaint for presentation to the proper Court but with no endorsement as required under O. 7, R. 10, Civil P. C., and the pro-note was returned a couple of days later and the plaint was presented to the proper Court on the day next after receipt of the pro-note.

Held, that the absence of any endorsement on the plaint as required by O. 7, R. 10, Civil P. C., was a mere irregularity and it could not be held that the proceedings were not terminated merely because the necessary endorsement was not made on the plaint. The time which was taken by the plaintiff, for obtaining the pro-note also could not be deducted. It was true that according to O. 7, R. 14 Civil P. C., any document on which a suit was based had to be produced with the plaint, but in the present instance, if the pro-note was in Court and not in possession of the plaintiff, it was open to him to state the fact in the list of documents to be attached to the plaint. The suit was, therefore barred by time. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 464=173 Ind. Cas. 740.

——S. 4—"Proper Court", meaning of.

Section 4, refers to "the proper Court" in which the application ought to be made, even if the jurisdiction given to such Court be for administrative convenience.

Whatever the meaning of the "proper Court" may be, a phrase which S. 4 does not employ, it is clear that the section can only refer to the Court in which the suit is actually instituted at the time when the section is being applied. It cannot refer to other Courts in which an unsuccessful attempt at institution was made. I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 217=A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 215=170 Ind. Cas. 798.

——S. 4—Scope of—Application not made to Proper court.

The provision in S. 4 means the proper Court in which the application ought to have been made and when it is impossible to say that the application was made to the proper Court on the day on which that Court re-opened, S. 4 will not apply. 1935 O.W.N. 527: 1935 A.W.R. 615: 62 I.A. 80: 1935 M.W.N. 438 41 L.W. 629: (1935) A.L.J. 578 A.I.R. 1935 P.C. 85 39 C,W.N. 640: 68 M.L.J. 665: 61 C.L J. 267: 37 P.L.R. 395: 37 Bom. L.R. 533: I.B.R. 479: 57 All. 242: 155 Ind. Cas. 205 (P.C.).

——S. 4—Proper Court—Meaning of.

Judge temporarily absent—Plaint received by Naib Sheriff having no authority to accept it—Plaint time-barred when placed before Judge though in time when fild:

Held, that the period during which the Court was closed had to be deducted in computing the period of limitation and the suit was therefore in time. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 622 (1)=15 Lah 308=36 P.L.R. 466=152 Ind. Cas. 618.

——S. 4—(S. 5)—'The Court'.

'The court' in S. 5. of the Limitation Act, is the court to which the appeal lies direct and the High Court is not the proper court to entertain the application, when the matter comes before it by way of appeal from another order, which the party had preferred under an erroneous impression of the law. (1905) 7 Bom. L R. 664=30 B 56.

6. Scope and effect of section.

(a) General.
(b) Ss. 4 and 12.
(c) Ss. 4 and 14.
(d) Ss. 4 and 19 and 20.

——6 (a) Scope and Effect of section (General).

S. 4—Court closed on the last day of limitation—Right to take steps on the next working day.

Where on the last day of limitation for taking certain steps, the Court is closed then according to the provisions of S. 4 of the Limitation Act, those stepss could be taken on the next working day. A.I.R. 1950 A. 367=1950 A.W.R. 164.

——S. 4 and General Clauses Act, S. 10 if extend limitation or furnish data for computation of limitation.

Per Dave, J.—Section 4, Limitation Act, and S. 10, General Clauses Act, give expression to the general principle of law enunicated by the maxims lex non cogit ad imposibilia—the law does not compel a man to do that which he cannot possibly perform, and actus curiae neminem gravaeit—an act of the Court shall prejudice no man. These sections do not, in any way, extend the period of limitation, nor do they furnish any data for computation of time; they merely embody a rule of elementary justice that if the time allowed by statute to do an act or to take a proceeding expires on a day when the Court is closed, it may be done on the next siting of the Court. A.I.R 1942 All. 429=(1942) A.L.J. 592: I.L.R. (1943) All. 84: 1942 A.W.R. 368: 204 Ind. Cas. 1 (F.B.).

——S. 4, if extends period of limitation.

All that S. 4 provides is that the suit might be brought on the day when the Court re-opened if the Court happened to be closed when the period prescribed expired. The section does not extend limitation. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 234=I.L.R. (1938) Lah. 193=40 P.L.R. 533=174 Ind. Cas. 277 (F.B.).

——S. 4—Scope.

Section 4, Limitation Act has nothing to do with computing the prescribed period but merely provided that if the prescribed period for a suit expires when the Court is closed, the suit may be instituted on the day when the Court re-opens, so that there is nothing in the section which alters the length of the prescribed period. A.I.R. 1940 Nag. 401=1940 N.L.J. 227=188 Ind. Cas. 585.

——S. 4—Suit triable both by Village Munsif and District Muusif—Limitation expiring during vacation of latter Court and suit filed on first opening day—Former Court open during latter's vacation.

The Court ought not to imply that a litigant should be deprived of his right to go to a normal Court subject to normal procedure because a Court of a very special nature, the village Court, happened to be open to him. To take away the right given by the Limitation Act requires some more substantial basis than implication.

Where, therefore, a suit which is triable by both the Village Munsif and the District Munsif and the limitation for which has expired during long vacation of District Munsif's Court, is instituted in that Court on the opening day of that Court, the suit is within limiiation under S. 4, Limitation Act. It is not barred by limitation merely because the Village Munsif's Court was open during vacation of the District Munsif's Court and the suit could have been instituted there, because, prima facie the plaintiff is entitled to sue in the Disirict Munsif's Court and there is no compulsion to go to the Village Munsif's Court. 51 Mad. L.W. 179= A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 945=I.L.R. (1940) Mad. 684=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 220=(1940) M.W.N. 152=194 Ind. Cas. 434.

——S. 4—Scope.

A promissory note was executed at X and was payable at Y. On the last day of limitation for the suit on the pro-note, the Court at X was open but the Court at Y was closed for vacation. The suit was filed in Court at Y on the day on which it re-opened :

Held, that the suit was within time. A. I. R. 1940 Cal. 443=I.L.R. (1940) 1 Cal. 323=44 C.W.N. 609= 191 Ind. Cas. 52.

——S. 4—Jurisdiction of Court when several causes of action are united—How determined.

Plaintiff unitting several causes of action against same defendant before Court competent to try suit as a whole —Questions of limitation under S. 3 and S. 4, Limitation Act. must be regarded with special referenee to that Court's jurisdiction and not to jurisdiction of other Courts which might have been able to try those causes of action when split up had they been brought before them. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 786=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 244=1941 Mad. 786=1941 M.W.N. 807.

——S. 4—Limitation expiring on holiday—Adjudication of debtor on reopening day—Proof of debt in insolvency.

Where the period of limitation for a suit to recover a debt of expires on a holiday and the judgment-debtor is adjudicated an insolvent on the next re-opening day, the debt can be proved in the insolvency. It is not necessary for the creditor to file a suit on the re-opening day for keeping the debt alive. 62 M.L.J. 256=35 L.W. 260=(1932) M.W.N. 216=A.I.R. 1932 Mad. 287=55 M. 630=136 Ind. Cas. 822 (F.B.).

——S. 4—Extension permissible on ground of minority.

Obiter—In order to ascertain the date of the expiration of the prescribed period, any extention permissible on the ground of minority would be included. A. I. R. 1943 Nag 284=I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 331=1943 N. L. J. 286=207 Ind. Cas. 338.

——Ss. 4, 6—Suit by ex-minor—Expiry of limitation on holiday.

If the period within which an ex-minor can institute a suit under the provisions of S. 6, expires on a day when the Court is closed, the suit can be filed on the re-opening day under S. 4. (1931) M.W.N. 1127=34 L.W. 650=61 M.L.J. 675=A.I.R. 1932 Mad. 139=55 M. 286 =135 Ind. Cas. 587.

——Ss. 4—"Prescribed" means that prescribed by first Schedule and as qualified by Ss. 5 to 25.

"The period of limitation prescribed" in S. 4 of the Act is equivalent to the period of limitation prescribed therefor by Sch. I, as mentioned in the general S. 3, to which S. 4 and most of the following sections of the Act are in the nature of provisos. But the period of limitation mentioned in S. 4 must be understood not only as prescribed in the schedule but also as qualified by Ss. 5 to 22.

An ex-minor brought a suit after three year- from the time of his having become major plus some days on which the Court was closed:

Held, that the siut was within time. 115 Ind. Cas. 509=A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 1255.

——S. 4—Meaning of "prescribed."

The proper construction of the word "prescribed" in S. 4 is 'prescribed by the Act' and not merely by the 1st Schedule. 81 Ind. Cas. 434=11 O.L.J. 297=A.I.R. 1924 Oudh 385.

——S. 4—What S. 4 says is that, if the time for presenting an application expires while Court is closed, the applicant may present it to the Court on the date when its opens again. The date of presentation goes back to the day when it ought to have been but could not be presented. A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 1255, Foll. 120 Ind. Cas. 377 (Mad.).

——S. 4—Principle.

Per Crump, J.—The principle underlying S. 4 is that when a party has to do something before a certain day and if upon that day or before that day he cannot do that thing by the reason of the act of the Court, them he is entitled to an extention of time over that period during which he is delayed by the Court's action. 103 Ind. Cas. 540=51 Bom. 843=20 Bom. L. R. 981=A.I.R. 1927 Bom. 480.

——S. 4—Operation of.

Although a party cannot extend a period allowed by law for doing an act in Court by his own act yet if the Court is closed on the last day of that period, he is entitled to do the act on the first opening day. 7 N.L.R. 176=12 Ind. Cas. 810.

——S 4—Plaint—Validity of, if depends upon validity under Court-fees Act.

The validity of plaint under S. 4 of the Limitation Act does not depend on its validity for the purposes of the Court-fees Act. 32 Mad. 305=6 M.L.T. 129=4 Ind. Cas. 503.

6 (b). Scope and effect—Ss. 4 and 12.

——Ss. 4 and 12—Extension under both sections cannot be combined.

Section 12 assumes that the time requisite for obtaining the copy of decree must begin before the prescribed period is over. Under S. 4, the right to present a suit or appeal or application on the day on which a Court re-opens is a special right which cannot extend the period of limitation prescribed in the Act. The section presupposes that that period has already expired. Therefore, under S. 4, the only privilege which is granted to the suitor or appellant, is that he may file his suit or appeal on that particular day and that particular day alone. If he delays in making his application for a copy until that day then he is applying for a copy when the period of limitation has already expired and the extension which is granted to him by the application of S. 4 cannot be combined with the extension which he seeks under S. 12. A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 604=55 L.W. 426=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 104=1942 M.W.N. 503=I.L.R. (1942) Mad. 868=203 Ind. Cas. 5.

——S. 4. Limitation expiring on Sunday—Application for copies on Monday—Filing of appeal on next day of getting copies—Appeal, held within time—One day's delay, held excusable. A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 46=40 Bom. L.R. 1211=179 Ind. Cas. 645.

——Ss. 4, 12—"The period of limitation prescribed" meaning of—Period prescribed should be subjected to correction under S. 12.

The words 'the period of limitation prescribed for any suit appeal or application, in S. 4, refers to the period prescribed by the Act having regard to the general application of the article appropriate to the particular class of suit, appeal or application subject to the corrections under S. 12 appropriate to the particular suit, appeal or application in question, and it contemplates the performance of an act which would otherwise have been performed at the end of that period being performed on the opening day of the term next following and not on any subsequent day. 15 P.L.T. 369=A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 367=13 Pat. 632=151 Ind. 6 (c). Scope and effect—Ss. 4 and 14.

——Ss. 4 and 14—Scope and effect.

Ss. 4 and 14 of the Limitation Act are not similar in their effect. Whereas under S. 14 of the Act the time spent can be excluded, S. 4 does not entitle a person to add the days on which the Court is closed to the statutory period. I.L.R. (1947) Nag. 494=A.I.R. 1948 Nag. 63=1947 N.L.J. 279.

——S. 4—Whether can be tacked on to S. 14.

S. 4 of the Limitation Act can be tacked on to the time excluded under S. 14 of that Act. What S. 4 provides is that where the period of limitation prescribed expires on a day when the Court is closed the application may be made on the day when the Court re-opens and "the Court" means the proper Court in which the application ought to have been made. I.L.R. (1947) Nag. 375=231 Ind. Cas. 134=A.I.R. 1948 Nag. 15=1947 N.L.J. 209.

——S. 4—Section 4 can be applied to a case in which extension of time has been claimed under S. 14 and a plaintiff is entitled to the benefit of S. 14 and S. 4 tacked together. 83 C.W.N. 221=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 315.

——Ss. 4, 12 and 14—Scope and effect—Computation of limitation—Proper method.

Though S. 4 of the Limitation Act allows an appellant to file an appeal on the opening day of the Court though time has expired when the Court was closed, it does not operate so as to extend the prescribed period of limitation the proper method is to take what is primarily the prescribed period and then add to it the periods which are excluded by reason of S. 12 or S. 14 or such like. If these periods all taken together happen to expire on the date on which the Court is closed, the party can wait and file an appeal on the date when the Court re-opens. I. L. R. (1946) Lah. 107=230 Ind. Cas. 73=A.I.R. 1947 Lah. 168.

——Ss. 4 and 14—Distinction.

There is a marked distinction in form between Ss. 4 and 14. The language employed in S. 4 indicates that it has nothing to do with computing the prescribed period. What the section provides is that where the period prescribed expires on a day when the Court is closed, notwithstanding that fact, the application may be made on the day that the Court re-opens so that there is nothing in the section which alters the length of the prescribed period; whereas in S. 14, and other sections of similar nature in the Act, the direction begins with the words: 'In computing the period of limitation prescribed for any application, certain periods shall be excluded. Therefore where there is ground for excluding certain period under S. 14, in order to ascertain what is the date of the expiration of the prescribed period, the days excluded from operating by way of limitation have to be added to what is primarily the prescribed period. A.I.R, 1938 All. 606=1938 A.W.R. 572=(1938) A.L.J. 1183=I.L.R. (1938) All. 861=178 Ind. Cas. 668.

——Ss. 4 and 14—Distinction between—Computation under S. 14—How to be made.

There is a marked distinction in form between Ss. 4 and 14. The language employed in S. 4 indicates that it has nothing to do with computing the prescribed period. ——Ss. 4, 14, Sch. I, Art. 181—Application for execution of final mortgage decree—Time during Which preliminary decree was executed, if can be deducted.

It cannot be said, apart from any other objection that an application to obtain execution under a preliminary mortgage-decree is an application for the same relief as the application to the Court for a final mortgage-decree for the sale in the suit. Consequently, it is not permissible, on the basis of S. 14, Limitation. Act, in computing the period of limitation prescribed for an application for execution, to exclude the period during which the decree-holder was seeking execution under the preliminary decree. 1935 O. ——Ss. 4, 14—Limitation expiring during vacation—Plaint presented to wrong Court on opening day—Plaint returned for presentation to proper Court on and at once presented to such Court:

Held, that S. 14 allows one day to be excluded from the computation of limitation in this case, Section 4 merely allows the suit to be filed on the first day on which the Court re-opens. The suit was not instituted in the Court of Subordinate Judge, Second Class, on the day on which the Courts re-opened. Therefore S. 4 can have no application. If the appellant considered he had a right to insist on the Court of the Subordinate Judge, First Class, trying the case, he should have applied in revision against the order returning the plaint. I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 217=A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 215=170 Ind. Cas. 798.

——S. 4—Suit in wrong Court—Suit to be within time having to take help of S. 4, it being instituted in wrong Court—S. 14 will not apply to, when instituted in proper Court.

Where a suit, which, in order to be within limitation, had to take the advantage of a holiday under S. 4, was instituted in a wrong Court, S. 14 will not be applicable to bring it within time when subsequently instituted in proper Court. ——S. 4—Presenting application in wrong Court—Applicant cannot take advantage of both Ss. 4 and 14.

Provisions of S. 4 can be available only where the period prescribed expires when the Court is closed and the application is made to the proper Court on the day on which the Court re-opens; but if on the re-opening day the applicant files his application in a wrong Court he cannot be entitled to take advantage of both the sections and to tack on the vacation in the period spent in prosecuting the application filed in the wrong Court. 36 Mad. 131=.A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 654=14 A.L.J. 310= A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 114, Foll.=118 Ind. ——S. 4—Suit instituted in Court having no jurisdiction.

Where on the day the limitation period expires the Court having jurisdiction is closed and on the day of re-opening, the suit is instituted in a Court having no jurisdiction and the plaint is thereafter returned for presentation to the proper Court and is accordingly presented therein, the suit should be held to be barred; for the purposes of S. 4 account cannot be taken of the closing and re-opening of any other Court than that in which the suit was rightly instituted. 36 Mad. 131=36 Mad. 482 and 8 S.L.W. 256, Foll.

The period allowed by S. 14 cannot be tacked on to the period during which the proper Court was closed, when such latter period proceeds the period under S. 14. 63 Ind. Cas. 924=44 Mad. 817=13 M.L.W. 631=1921 M. W. N. 442=A. I. R. 1921 Mad. 654= 41 M.L.J. 84.

——Ss. 4 and 14—Wrong Court—Presentation in, on re-opening day—Subsequent presentation in proper Court—Deduction of time.

Plaintiff instituted a suit on the day after the last day of filing (the last day being a holiday) in a court within whose jurisdiction one only of the defendants resided. The court declined to grant leave under S. 20 (b) of the C. P. Code and returned the plaint for presentation to the proper court which was subsequently done. Held, that the plaint not having been presented to proper court on the day after the last day of limitation the suit was barred S. 4 of the Limitation Act as a particular statutory provision not for the purpose of computing the period of limitation but for allowing in certain circumstances the filling up the suits after the period had expired. This section avails only where there has been a presentation to the proper Court. S. 14 is a provision relating to the computation of the period of limitation and the time occupied in conducting bona fide proceedings, in a wrong court after the last day of limitation cannot be deducted in reckoning the number of days to see if the time prescribed by the article has expired. There is nothing improper or want of good faith, within S. 14 of the Act, in a creditor to discharge the debt. 24 M.L.T. 214=8 L.W. 256=47 Ind. Cas. 624.

——Ss. 4 and 14—Wrong Court—Presentation in, on re-opening day—Exclusion of holiday.

The last day of limitation for a suit on a promissory note happening to be a Sunday the suit was filed the next day in a court having no jurisdiction and having been returned by that court to be presented to the proper court; it was done so but was dismissed as barred by limitation. Held, that even allowing he days during which the suit was pending in the wrong court, the suit was barred by time as the plaintiffs were not entitled to exclusion of the extra day. 14 A.L.J. 310= 35 Ind. Cas. 292.

——Ss. 4 and 14—Wrong Court—Presentation in, on the re-opening day—Exclusion of holidays.

Where a suit, on the last day for filing which the Court closed for recess was filed in a wrong Court on the re-opening day and was returned several months later for presentation in a right Court and was presented there soon after, the period from the date of filing to the date of presentation in the right Court would be deducted under S. 14 of the Limitation Act but not the period of recess and S. 4 could not be invoked to save the later period. 36 Mad. 131=10 M.L.T. 254=(1911) 2 M.W.N. 221=21 M.L.J. 1000=12 Ind. Cas. 58.

6. (d) Scope and effect—Ss. 4, 19 and 20.

——S. 4—Acknoledgement on re-opening of course.

Section 4 has nothing to do with computing the period prescribed under S. 19, Limimitation Act. Where, on the date when the previous acknowledgement was due to expire, the Courts were closed for the summer vacation, the limitation would not be saved even if the fresh acknowledgment was executed on the day when the Courts re-opened. The argument that because a suit could have been instituted on the old acknowledgement when the Courts re-opened, the party could accept the fresh acnowledgement while still he had right to sue is not good. A.I.R. 1941 Nag. 100= 1940 N.L.J. 607=I.L.R. (1941) Nag. 144=194 Ind. Cas. 806.

——Ss. 4, 19—Acknowledgment.

Section 4 has no aplication to acknowledgments where the period of limitation expires on a holiday and an acknowledgment is made on the next day. Such an acknowlement is not valid. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 642= 174 Ind. Cas. 258.

——S. 4,—Applicability and scope—Acknowledgments under S. 19.

Section 4 applies to acknowledgments under S. 19 A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 162=38 P.L.R. 934=164 Ind. Cas. 650.

——Ss. 4, 19—Acknowledgment within period of limitation extend by S. 4—Validity of.

On a true construction of the language of S. 19 of the Limitation Act, the words "period prescribed for a suit" can have reference only to the period prescribed at the end in Sch. I of the Act and the special provision which has been made applicable to suits by reason of the Court being unable to entertain a suit, application of an appeal on a day the Court is closed cannot be made applicable to acknowledgments under S. 19 of the Act. 35 C.W.N. 370=A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 785= 58 C.1148=134 Ind. Cas. 1132.

——S. 4—Per Ramesam, J. Section 4 cannot be tacked on prior to the period of extension given by S. 19. 26 Bom. 782, Foll. 63 Ind. Cas. 924=44 Mad. 817=13 M.L.W. 631=1921 M.W.N. 442=A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 654=41 M.L.J. 84.

——S. 4—Consideration of S. 4 is not to be introduced in wording of Ss. 19 and 20.

It is quite unworkable and really impossible to suppose that the effect of a payment or the effect of an acknowledgment should depend upon the day on which some body who never brought a suit at all could have brought it. If one was to introduce into the wording of Ss. 19 and 20, the consideration that is brought into force by S. 4, the Limitation Law would become extremely unworkable.

Where interest was paid after the expiration of the period limited for payment on the bond but during the period of the Civil Court vacation and where no suit was instituted on the day that the Court re-opened;

Held, that a fresh period of limitation could not be computed, as interest had not been paid before expiration of the prescribed period. 26 Bom. 782, Foll. 15 Bom. L.R. 348, Diss from. 114 Ind. Cas. 483=55 Cal. 1210=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 68.

——Ss. 4 and 20—Scope and effect of S. 4—Payment during holidays after expiry of limitation—If would save limitation.

S. 4 of the Limitation Act does not prescribed a period of limitation but merely enables a suit, the limitation of which has expired during the time when the Courts are closed, to be filed on the reopening day. It does not add to any period of limitation. Accordingly, a payment made after the expiry of limitation but during the holidays when the suit could not be filed cannot be pleaded to save limitation. 21. Luck. 447=A. I. R. 1947 Oudh 3=225 Ind. Cas. 497=1946 A.W.R. (C.C.) 175=1946 O.A. (C.C.). 175=1946 O.W.N. 224.

——Ss. 4, 20—S. 4, if can be employed to extend period prescribed under S. 20.

Section 4 cannot be employed to extend the prescribed period under S. 20.

The plaintiff sued on October 4, 1933, on the basis of a promissory note dated September 13, 1927. He relied on a payment made on October 4, 1930, as saving limitation. The date on which the payment was made was more than three years from the date of promissory note, but the plaintiff relied on the provisions of S. 4, for the purpose of extending the period of limitation:

Held, that the plaintiff could not employ S. 4 to extend the period of limitation prescribed by S. 20 and hence the suit was time-barred. A.I.R. 1939 All. 252=1939 A.W.R. 153=181 Ind. Cas. 899.

—1. (a) Applicability of section—Appeals.

——S. 5 Appeal, meaning of, explained.

Section 5, contemplates an appeal, application for review of judgment or for leave to appeal or any other application to which S. 5 may be made applicable, and an appeal there means an appeal that is to be instituted for the first time and not an appeal which has already been instituted but is amended latter on account of any defect having been noticed in the memorandum of appeal. Unless, therefore, this section is made especially applicable to such cases, S. 5 cannot be invoked by an appellant, who has omitted to implead a necessary respondent in the case and the effect of whose omission is the dismissal of the appeal. A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 314=42 P.L.R. 355=190 Ind. Cas. 332.

——S. 5—Applicability—Letters Patent Appeal.

The provisions of S. 5 of the Limitation Act do not apply to cases which are governed by a special or local law, and cannot, therefore, be invoked in the case of a Letters Patent Appeal. 51 P.L.R. 50=A.I.R. 1949 E. P. 299.

——S. 5—Applicability—Appeal against decision of Calcutta Improvement Trust Tribunal—Calcutta Improvement Act, 1911.

S. 5 of the Limitation Act is applicable to an appeal against the decision of the President of the Tribunal, as the case may be, established under the Calcutta Improvement Act. A.I.R. 1950 Cal. 356=54 C.W.N. 297.

——S. 5—Applicability—Bengal Land Revenue Sales Act—Appeals—Delay in presentation—Power to excuse.

S. 5 of the Limitation Act has no application to cases of Revenue sales under the Bengal Land Revenue Sales Act and appeals arising therefrom.

The Land Revenue Sales Act is a self-contained Act, even in respect of limitation, and it does not provide for appeals being admitted when presented after a certain period (1947) P.W.N. 23.

——Ss. 5 and 29 (2)—Scope and effect of S. 29 (2)—Applicability of S. 5 to appeals under special laws—Application under Madras Agriculturists' Relief Act (IV of 1938)—Dismissal—Revision—Right of appeal given newly by S. 25-A—Appeal on dismissal of revision—Application to excuse delay under S. 5, Limitation Act—S. 29 of the Limitation Act if excludes the Application of S. 5 of that Act.

All that S. 29 (2) of the Limitation Act lays down is that where a special or local law prescribes a special period of limitation the excluded provisions of the Limitation Act shall not apply. In S. 25-A, newly introduced into Madras Act (IV of 1938), though a right of appeal is given no period of limitation different from the period prescribed by the first schedule to the Limitation Act is indicated. Therefore the provisions of S. 29 (2) of the Limitation Act have no application so as to exclude the provisions of S. 5 of the Limitation Act from being applied to appeals under the special law. A debtor's application under the provisions of the Madras Agriculturists' Relief Act was dismissed on some legal ground, and because of the lack of a right of appeal under the then existing provisions of the Act he had to file a revision petition to the High Court. But in the meantime owing to the amendment of that Act in 1943 by the addition of S. 25-A he became entitled to appeal against that order and preferred an appeal after the rejection of his revision petition and also prayed that the delay in filing the appeal should be excused under S. 5 of the Limitation Act.

Held, that S. 5 of the Limitation Act would apply to the case and that the petition has to be disposed of on the merits. 59 L.W. 202=1946 M.W.N. 385=A.I R. 1946 Mad. 351=(1946) 1 M.L.J. 271.

——Ss. 5, 29 —Time for appeal fixed by Bengal Emergency Powers Ordinance cannot be extended under S. 5, Lim. Act. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 132=37 C.W.N. 201=34 Cr. L.J. 299=60 C. 618=142 Ind. Cas. 280.

——S. 5—Limitation prescribed by Ordinance.

Where a person is convicted and sentenced by a Special Magistrate under S. 39 (1), Ordinance II of 1932, and he files an appeal after a period of seven days fixed for filing the appeal by S. 39 the Court is not competent to extend the period under S. 5, inasmuch as a general provision cannot be read as interfering with the specific provision in regard to question of Limitation. A.I.R 1933 Cal. 124=37 C.W.N. 195=34 Cr. L.J. 633=60 C. 571=143 Ind. Cas. 802.

——S. 5—Appeal—Appeal requiring leave to be filed—Leave obtained after expiry of limitation.

Where the law allows an appeal to be taken only by leave to do so, the appeal cannot be regarded as having been duly instituted until such leave is obtained.

Where such a leave is obtained long after the expiry of the period of limitation from the date of the order which is to be appealed against, it is essential that sufficient cause must be shown within the meaning of S. 5, for not duly instituting the appeal within the period of limitation. It will render the provisions in the Limitation Act prescribing the period of limitation for an appeal nugatory, if it is held that in all cases leave to appeal may be obtained after the period of limitation for the appeal and the appeal filed either within the period of limitation or after its expiry is rendered competent by the grant of leave to appeal at any time.

[Sufficient cause, when can be said to be made out explained.] A.I.R. 1937 Rang. 283=172 Ind. Cas. 253.

——S. 5—Appeal filed without Court-fee.

In principle, there is no difierence between a plaint or memorandum of appeal bearing no court-fee stamp at all and that bearing insufficient court-fee. An appeal filed without a court-fee stamp should not be deemed a nullity and would be a case for the application of S. 5. 1935 O.W.N. 162=1935 R.D. 78=A.I.R. 1935 Oudh 231=10 Luck. 569=154 Ind. Cas. 135.

——S. 5—Criminal Appeal—Time cannot be extended.

In an application of a criminal nature it would not be proper to extend the time given for the appeal even if the delay arises in consequence of any genuine mistake which could have been averted by a proper enquiry. 95 Ind. Cas. 316=20 S.L.R. 90=27 Cr. L.J. 780=A.I.R. 1926 Sind 215.

Non-applicability to appeals to Privy Conneil. See C.P. CODE S. 108. 1906 A.W.N. 55=28 A. 391.

1. (b) Applicability of section—Compromise decree.

—S. 5—Applicability—Compromise decree.

As neither S. 5 of the Limitation Act nor S. 10 of the General Clauses Act applies to a compromise decree, a party who was bound to do a particutar thing under such decree is not entitled to any extension of time on account of the Courts being closed on that day. On the question of the date, from which the time should be counted:

Held, that it should be counted from the date of decree. 66 Ind. Cas. 273=9 O.L.J. 53=A.I.R. 1922 Oudh 145.

1. (c) Applicabiliy of sections—Execution—Applications.

——S. 5—Section 5 does not apply to applications in execution at all. A.I.R. 1941 Rang. 56=1940 Rang. L.R. 725=193 Ind. Cas. 318.

Section 5 cannot be invoked in the case of an application for execution of decree. A.I.R. 1932 All. 601=(1932) A.L.J. 731=138 Ind. Cas. 692.

——S. 5—Applicability—Execution applications.

Section 5 does not apply to execution applications. It applies only to such applications as to which it has been expressly made applicable. 93 Ind. Cas. 292=A.I.R. 1926 All. 345.

——S. 5.—Applicability—Execution application—Extension of time.

In the absence of any rule of enactment making S. 5 of the Act applicable to an application for execution of a decree the section does not apply to such an application. 3 Pat. L. J. 132=44 Ind. Cas. 570.

——S. 5—Section has no application to application for setting aside sale in execution under O. 21. Rr. 90 and 91, Civil P. Code. A.I.R. 1939 Cal. 310=69 C.L.J. 138=43 C.W.N. 383=I.L.R. (1939) 1 Cal. 452=184 Ind. Cas. 453.

——S. 5—Section 5 does not apply to an appication made under R. 90, O. 21. Civil P. Code A.I.R. 1934 All 314, (1934) A.L.J. 859=3 A.W.R. 545=151 Ind. Cas. 244.

——S. 5—Execution application.

Period of limitation under Art. 166 being fixed by statute and not by Court, it cannot be extended under S. 148, Civil P. Code or under S. 5, Limitatoin Act. A.I.R. 1934 Pesh. 25:=148 Ind. Cas. 1082.

——S. 5—Deposit under O. 21, R. 89, Civil P.Code

Under O. 21, R. 89, Civil P. Code the money to get the sale set aside must be deposited within 30 days of date of sale and there is no provision of law under which this time can be extended. Section 148, Civil P. Code does not apply inasmuch as this period of 30 days is not fixed as granted by the Court but it is fixed by the Code, and cannot be extended by Limtation Art. A.I.R. 1933 Rang. 8=147 Ind. Cas. 130.

——S. 5—Applicability—Setting aside—Sales.

The provisions of S. 5 of the Limitation Act do not apply to an application under O. 21, R. 89. 87 Ind. Cas. 722=12 O.L.J. 137=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 411.

——S. 5—Applicability—Application under Art. 166—Extension of time.

S. 5 does not apply to extend the period of 30 days provided by Art. 166. 2 P.W.R. 1919=29 P.L.R. 1919=50 Ind. Cas. 610.

——Ss. 5 and 18—Applicability—Cases under S. 47 of the C.P. Code.

Neither S. 5 nor S. 18 of the Limitation Act has any application to cases under S. 47 of the C.P. Code 23 Ind. Cas. 240 (Cal.)

——1. (d) Applicability of section—Insolvency petitions.

——S. 5—Section 5 does not apply to petitions for insolvency. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 821=6 R.L. 753 (2)=149 Ind. Cas. 853.

——S. 5—Insolvency petition.

The power to excuse delay in respect of applications uinder S. 78, Prov. Insol. Act by reference to

S. 5 Limitation Act is not applicable to excuse delay in filing a 'creditors' petition' under S. 9 of the Prov. Insol. Act. Such a petition filed more than 3 months after the alleged act of insolvency is barred by limitation. A.I.R. 1932 Mad. 352=(1932) M. W. N. 204=35 L.W. 544=53 M.L.J. 152=55 M. 766=137 Ind. Cas. 740.

——S. 5—Insolvency petition.

Where a person was indebted to a firm, and one of the partners of the firm describing himself as the managing partner applied for the adjudication of the debtor as an insolvent but the petition was not in the firm name or in the name of all the members of the firm, nor signed on behalf of firm or its members:

Held, that S. 5 could not be invoked inasmuch as an insolvency petition was not an application by a creditor or debtor 61 M.L.J. 544=A.I.R. 1932 Mad. 112=(1932) M.W.N, 164=34 L.W. 799=135 Ind. Cas. 613.

——S. 5—Applicability.—Petition to adjudicate a person as insolvent—Section in applicable.

Although it is true that S. 78, Provincial Insolvency Act, makes S. 5, Limitation Act, applicable to appeals and applications under the Provincial Insolvency Act, yet does not extend the application of S. 5, Limitation Act, to petitions to adjudicate a person insolvent. Such petitions are not included in the word "applications" as used in S. 78, Provincial Insolvency Act. Delay in presenting petitions beyond three months will not therefore be excused in any case. 112 Ind. Cas. 646=A.I.R. 1928 Sind 177.

——S. 5—Section 5 of the Indian Limitation Act did not apply to petitions made under Act III of 1907. But under the new Insolvency Act, S. 5 has been specifically declared to be applicable. 90 Ind. Cas. 254=7 L.L.J. 201=26 P.L.R. 501=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 436.

——S. 5—Applicability—Provincial Insolvency Act.

S. 5 Applies to proceedings under Prov. Insol. Act. 80 P.W.R. 1916=33 Ind. Cas. 730.

——1. (e) Applicability of section—Other application and proceedings.

——S. 5—Applicability—Application under S. 66 (1), Income-tax Act—Delay in making—Condonation—Power of Appellate Tribunal and of High Court. See INCOME-TAX ACT, S. 66 (1) AND (3). 1950 I.T.R. 72.

——S.5—Section 5 has not been extended to applications under S.s. 26-F. Ben. Ten. Act. A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 388=40 C.W.N. 506=166 Ind. Cas. 492.

——S. 5—Suit dismissed for default—Application to set aside order the granting of.

Whete an order dismissing a suit for default is arbitrary and illegal, the Court would be justified in granting the benefit of S. 5 of the Limitation Act in the case of an application to set aside the order of dismissal made beyond time. 1950 R. D. 96.

——S 5—Section 5, is not applicable to applications for restorations of suit dismissed for default and the Court has no power to extend the time for making such applications. A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 557=147 Ind. Cas. 179.

——S. 5—Applicability—Dismissal for default—Civil P.C., O. 9, R. 4—Time to file application under R. 4 cannot be extended under S. 5.

Where an application for restoration of the case under O. 9, R. 4, is filed more than 30 days after the date of the dismissal, time cannot be extended under S. 5, Limitation Act, as there is no express provision in that order which S. 5 applicable to such application. 113 Ind. Cas. 767=51 All. 487=1929 A.L.J. 323=A.I.R. 1929 All. 127.

—S.5. Section 5 has not been made applicable to applications under O. 9, R. 4. 110 Ind. Cas. 47=1928 M.W.N. 239=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 556.

——S. 5—Section made applicable by rate under S. 122 to application under O.9, R. 9—Rule is intra vires and retrospective.

The extension of the provisions S. 5, Limitation Act, to an application under C.P. Code, 9, R. 9, is not an enactment of a new period of limitation. Section 5 is not in any way amended or repealed. The change effected by the rule under C.P. Code, S. 122, relates to the procedure governing applications to restore suits, dismissed for defaul, to the file. The application was governed by Limitation Act, Art. 164, and it continued to be governed by the same article. The rule, therefore, extending S. 5, Limitation Act, to O. 9, R. 9 is intra vires and is retrospective. 53 Bom. L.R. 453=31 Bom. L.R. 484=A.I.R. 1929 Bom. 262.

——S.5—Section 5 has not been made applicable by any enactment or rule to an application under O. 9, R. 9, and therefore, the Court has no jurisdiction to admit the application on the ground that the applicant had sufficient cause for not preferring his application within the time prescribed. 90 Ind. Cas. 610=49 Bom. 839=27 Bom. L.R. 1150=A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 521.

——S. 5—Application for setting aside ex parte decree.

In the absence of special rules in that behalf, the Courts have no power to exend time under S. 5 for applications for setting aside ex parte decrees. Judicial Commissioner's Court at Nagpur have not framed any rules under S. 122, Civil P.C., extending the application of s. 5 to enlarge the time under Art. 164. A.I.R 1934 Nag. 43=144 Ind. Cas. 394.

——S. 5—Application to set aside ex parte decree time-barred—Court re-opening decree—Exercise of jurisdiction not vested by law—Revision.

Section 5 does not apply to applications for re-opening an ex parte decree.

Where a Judge who had before him application for re-opening an ex parte decree which, on the face of it, was time-barred, and which he recognized as time-barred allowed an extension of time:

Held, that in re-opening the case, he exercised a jurisdiction which he had not got and that the order re-opening the case should be set aside. A.I.R. 1933 Rang. 110=144 Ind. Cas. 980.

——S. 5—Applicability—Ex parte decree.

Section 5 does not apply to application under Art. 164. 100 Ind. Cas. 936=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 342.

——S. 5—Section 5 of the Act applies only to appeals or applications for review of judgment or for leave to appeal. The section does not apply to applications to set aside ex parte decree or to restore an application dismissed for default. 85 Ind. Cas. 324=2 Rang. 655=A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 187.

——S. 5—The High Court rule under the C.P Code, under S. 122, extending S. 5 of the Limitation Act to applications under O. 9, R. 13 is intra vires. 80 Ind. Cas. 877=47 Mad. 824=20 M.L.W. 332=35 M.L.T. 43=1924 M.W.N. 682=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 14 =47 M.L.J. 409 (F.B.).

——S. 5—Section 5 of the Limitation Act does not apply to an application to set aside an ex parte decree. Section 151 of the C.P. Code must not be used to defeat the imperative provisions of S. 3 of the Limitation Act. 66 Ind. Cas. 270=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 266.

——S. 5—Applicability—Exparte decree, application for.

S. 5 has not been extended to applications to have an ex parte decree set aside. 12 Bom. L. R. 462=6 Ind. Cas. 901.

——S. 5—The provisions of S. 5 are applicable to applications for substitution of names under O. 22, Ri. 3 and 4 of the Civil P.C. A. I. R. 1939 All. 717=(1939) A. L. J. 928=1939 R. D. 516=I. L. R. (1939) All 892=139 A. W. R. 713=185 Ind. Cas. 402.

——S 5—The provisions of S. 5, apply to an application under sub-r.R. (2) of r. 9 of R. 22, Civil P. C. A. I. R. 1938 Bom. 6=39 Bom. L.R. 1156=I.L.R. (1938) Bom. 64=172 Ind. Cas. 919.

——S. 5—Applicability—Legal representative.

——The provisions of S. 5 of the Limitation Act do not apply toapplica tions to bring on to the record the legal representatives of a deceased respondent. 65 Ind. Cas. 121=14 P.W.R. 1922=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 131.

——S. 5—Applicability—Application for substitution.

S. 5 dose not apply to an application for substitution field beyond six months, but the remedy of the party after the abatement is to apply to have it set aside on the ground that he was prevented by sufficient cause; to this S. 5, I.L.A. will apply. 36 All. 235=12 A. L. J. 299=25 Ind. Cas. 48.

——S. 5—Applicability—Application under Art. 158.

The Court cannot extend the time prescribed by Art. 158. 18 C. L. J. 35=18 C. W. N. 626=17. Ind. Cas. 7.

——S. 5—Applicability—Application under O., 34, R. 5, C. P. Code, for final decree in mortgage suit.

S. 5 of the Limitation Act has no application to an application for a final decree in a mortgage suit and hence the Court has no power to condone the delay in making such an application under O. 34, R. 5, C. P. Code. I. L. R. (1946) Mad. 889=226 Ind. Cas. 153=59 L. W. 150=1946 M. W. N. 207=A.I.R. 1946 Mad. 381=(1946) 1 M. L. J. 192.

——S. 5—Applicabliity—Application under O. 41, R. 19 C. P. Code.

S. 5, Limitation Act, dose not govern applications under O. 41. R. 19, C.P. Code. A.I.R. 1950 E.P. 255.

——S. 5—Application under R. 41, r. 19, Civil Procedures Code—S. 5, if applies.

There is no general discretion given to the Court to waive the period of limitation, or to extend it in hard cases. Section 5 does provide for extension in certain cases, but this section only applies to appeals or applications to which this section has been made specifically applicable; it dose not apply to applications under O. 41, R. 19, Civil P. C. for it has not been specifically made to apply. A. I. R. 1943 Sind 132: (1943) Kar. 409=209 Ind. Cas. 326.

——S. 5—Application to set aside ex parte decree appeal.

There is no law extending the provisions of S. 5 to an application under O. 41, r. 21 Civil P.C., for setting aside an ex parte decree passed in appeal. (1944) 2 M. L. J. 121=1944 M. W. N. 522=A. I. R. 1944 Mad. 571=218 Ind. Cas. 451.

——S. 5.—The provisions of S. 5 apply to an application for leave to appeal in forma pauperis. A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 240 : 1942 O.W.N. 106=1942 R.D. 181=1942 A.W.R. 79 (2)=17 Luck. 628=199 Ind. Cas. 614.

——S. 5.—Section 5 has no application to an application under O. 44, R. 1, Civil P. C. 1940 A. W. R 89 (1)=1940 O.W.N. 172=(1940) 95 Luck. 390=186 Ind. Cas. 161.

——S. 5—Application for leave to appeal.

An order rejecting an application for leave to appeal as a pauper on the ground of limitation at the preliminary stage before it is actually judicially considered by the Court under O. 44, R. 1. Civil P.C., is technically an order rejecting a moeion to present an application and not an order reject the application itself undet O. 44, r. 1. and where an application is rejected ar that stage, the Court cannot subsequently entertain an application under S. 5 Lim. Act, for extension of time. A. I. R. 1933 All. 308=(1933) A. L. J. 585=144 Ind. Cas. 79.

——S. 5—Applicability—Pauper application.

Per Ross J.—When an appeal is instituted with an application for leave to appeal in forma pauperis, the terms of R. 1 of O. 44 make it clear that the judgment and decree are appealed from and the rejection of the application has no effect necessarily on the appeal from the judgment and deerce. There is a distinction between the proceedure in a pauper appeal. In the latter case there is an appeal before Court which was presented within the time limited by law but as no part of the Court fee has been paid S. 149, C. P. Code, gives the Court a discretion to allow the payment at any stage. Even if S. 149 had not this effect, this would be a case for the application of S. 5 Limitation Act. 115 Ind. Cas. 678=9 P.L.T. 613.

——S. 5—Construction—"For leave to appeal."

The words "for leave to appeal" in the section are wide enough to include an application for leave to appeal as a pauper. 111 Ind. Cas. 655=26 A.L.J. 847=A.I.R. 1928 All. 499.

——S. 5.—Delay in filing an application to appeal in forma pauperis cannot be condoned S. 5. 30 Cal. 790, Foll. 101 Ind. Cas. 320=A.I.R. 1927 Nag. 197.

——S. 5.—Section 5 is applicable to an application for leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council. Where an application for review of an order dismissed after it was granted:

Held, the order being wrong must be ignored and the time taken must be deducted in computing the period of limitation for appeal from the original order. 74 Ind. Cas. 214=9 O. L. J. 531=26 O. C. 24=A. I. R. 1923 Oudh 93.

——S. 5—Applicability—Privy Council—Appeal.

An application for leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council clearly comes within the purview of S. 5. Where on affidavit was filed to the effect that the agent of the applicant was coming to Allahabad for the purpose of filing the application that when he reached the Aligarh station, he had an attack of Renal Colic, which confined him to bed till the 2nd of November, following and the affidavit was uncontradicted and supported by a medical certificate.

——S. 5—Applicability—Privy Council—Appeal.

Held, that sufficient reason had been shown for the delay. 76 Ind. Cas. 375=A.I.R. 1923 All. 536.

An application for leave to appe l to Privy Council field during long vacation comes under Art. 5 of the Limitation Act. 10 C.L.J. 120=3 Ind. Cas. 401.

——S. 5—Applicability—Application for leave to Appeal to P. C.

S. 5 of the Act applies to Art. 179 of the Act. Thus the benefit of S. 5 of the Act may be invoked for an application for leave to appeal to the Privy Council, where such application was filed in the office of the High Court when it was closed during the long action. 10 C.L.J. 1183=Ind. Cas. 400.

——S. 5—Applicability—Land Acquisition Act.

Section 5 has no application to proceedings under the Land Acquisition Act. 103 Ind. Cas. 295=8 P.L.T. 710 A.I.R. 1927 Pat. 333.

——S. 5—Applicability—Provincial Small Cause Courts Act.

A Court has discretion under S. 5 of the Limitation Act to excuse delay in making the application as required by S. 17 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act. 102 Ind. Cas. 228=10 N. L. J. 76=A. I. R. 1927 Nag. 238.

——S. 5—The proviso as to a deposit or security being made at the time of presenting an application is merely directory and not mandatory and Court has power to extend the time. 99 Ind. Cas. 779=A. I. R. 1927 Nag. 165.

——S. 5—Applicability—Provincial Small Cause Courts Act.

The provisions of S. 5 of the Limitation Act do not apply to an application under the Provincial Small Causes Courts Act, S. 17 to set aside an ex parte decree. 89 Ind. Cas. 482=2 O. W. N. 440=A. I. R. 1925 Oudh 446.

——S. 5—Court can excuse the delay.

Along with an application to set aside the ex parte decree which was passed under the provisions of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, the full amount of the decree and costs was not, owing to a mistake on the part of the vakil's gumasta, paid within the 30 days. The difference was made up after the 30 days when the error was discovered.

Held, the Court could excuse the delay. The payment of the decretal amount into the Court is not independent of the petition for setting aside the ex parte decree. 66 Ind. Cas. 104=46 Mad. 628=15 M.L.W. 494=1922 M.W.N. 266=30 M.L.T. 342=A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 186=42 M.L.J. 484.

——S. 5—Applicability—Application under S. 17, Provincial Small Causes Courts Act.

An application for review of judgment of a Small Cause Court was made on the last day of the period prescribed for limitation but without deposit of the amount of costs or security for the same as required by S. 17. On the following day the Court allowed the applicant time for making the deposit which was eventually made and the application for review was granted:

Held, that the application failed to comply with S. 17 and was barred under Art. 161, Limitation Act., it was doubtful whether S. 5, Limitation Act applied to the case at all as the application was made within time. 24 C.W. N. 380=31 C.L.J. 197=56 Ind. Cas. 551.

——S. 5—Applicability—Rangoon Rent Act.

Section 5 does not apply to application under S. 18 of the Rangoon Rent Act to the Chief Judge of the Small Cause Court. 84 Ind. Cas. 284=3 Bur. L.J. 157 =A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 377.

——S. 5—Applicability—Revision to Oudh Chief Court.

Revision applications cannot be admitted by the Chief Court beyond the time allowed for appeals except for special reasons. 7 O. W. N. 894=A. I. R. 1934 Oudh 496.

——S. 5—Applicability—Rules of High Court.

Whether in a case the limitation is fixed not under the Limitation Act, but under the rules framed by the particular High Court, the section is not applicable and time cannot be extended if there is no power to extend under the rules. 110 Ind. Cas. 719=50 All. 865=26 A.L.J. 1317=A.I.R. 1928 All. 708.

——S. 5—Applicability—Setting aside Award.

Section 5 does not apply to applications under Art. 158. 100 Ind. Cas. 955=8 Lah. 274=28 P.L.R. 441=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 273.

1. (f) Applicability of section—Proceedings under special or local law.

See also Notes (1) (a) and (e).

——S. 5—Scope—If excluded by S. 29 (2) (b).

S. 29 (2) (b) of the limitation Act cannot be read as excluding the operation of S. 5 of the Act. S. 29 (2) (b) only applies for the purpose of determining the period of limitation prescribed for a suit, appeal or application. Once that period has been determined, S. 5 of the Act comes in and gives the Court discretion o extend it for sufficient cause. 12 B R. 62.

——S. 5—Applicability—Special or local law.

Section 5 under which the Court can excuse delay is not one of the provisions, the application of which is extended by Act X of 1922 to proceedings under a special or local law. 71 Ind. Cas. 217=16 M. L. W. 764=24 Cr. L.J. 89=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 95=43 M.L.J. 561.

1. (g) Applicability of section—Suits.

——S. 5—Applicability—Suits.

Section 5 does not appear to apply to suits, and it provisions can only be invoked when the period of limitation has actually expired. A.I.R. 1934 Nag. 145= 30 N.L.R. 294=149 Ind. Cas. 956.

——S. 5—Applicability—Suits.

Section 5 of the Limitation Act applies only to those proceedings which are specifically mentioned in that section or to which the section may be made applicable by or under any enactment for the time being in force. A suit is not such a proceeding. 87 Ind. Cas. 17=12 O. L. J. 66=2 O. W. N. 144=A. I. R. 1925 Oudh 369.

——Ss. 5 and 29—Applicability—Suit under S. 77 Registration Act—Extension of time.

The special rule of limitation in S. 77, Registration Act is controlled by S. 5 of the Limitation Act. Hence a suit under S. 77 brought on the day on which the Court is opened after it was closed on the day on which the limitation ended, is within time. 8. C. 910. Foll. 5 Ind. Cas. 416 (Cal.).

2. Amendment of Act.

——S. 5—Amendment of Act—Party's acknowledge Effect not appreciated—No excuse.

While it might be permissible to regard a "mistake of law" as amounting to "sufficient cause" within the meaning of S. 5 in certain circumstances on the ground that an amendment of an Act was not fully appreciated by the Bar, it cannot be so regarded where the alteration of law is proved to be known to the party (even though it may be Government through its law officers) seeking to take advantage of the plea especially when the delay is a long one. 104 Ind. Cas. 281=9 Lah. 76=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 216.

——S. 5.—The Limitation Act was amended so as to reduce the period of limitation for application under Art. 177 from six months to 90 days between the death of a defendant on 30th September, 1920 after the passing of the preliminary decree in a suit for dissolution of partnership and his son applying on the 6th January, 1921 to be brought on the record;

Held, that in the circumstances of the case it was in the interests of justice necessary for all parties interested to be added under O. I. R. 10, 78 Ind Cas. 168=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 347.

——S. 5.—Mistake of pleader—Delay was excused.

Where the applicant's application for leave to appeal to His Majesty-in-Council was out of time by about a fortnight, owing to his local legal advisers not knowing the recent change in law curtailing the period of limitation for such applications but applicant acted in good faith and with due diligence.

Held, the delay should be excused. In re Coles and Ravenshear, (1907) 1 K.B. 1 is no longer good law. (1908) W. N. 9, Foll; 23 Bom. L R. 89 Foll. 8-Ind. Cas 862=48 Bom. 442=26 Bom. L. R. 395=A.I.R. 1924 Bom. 399.

——S. 5.—Where an application for leave to appeal to Privy Council was made 29 days beyond time and the party alleged that he was misled by the advice of his Counsel who was not aware of the reduction in limitation brought about by Act XXVI of 1920:

Held, that there was no sufficient cause to excuse delay. 78 Ind. Cas. 154=A.I.R. 1924 Nag. 279.

——S. 5—The error that the defendant's heirs were brought on the record more than three months after the death of the original defendant without formally setting aside the abatement of the suit which resulted in consequence of the lapse of three months from the date of the defendant's death, was rightly excused as the application was made within six months, which was the period allowed by the Act of 1908 and the change in the period of limitation effected by Act XXVI of 1920 may not have been and probably was not known to the parties, and the omission to set aside the abatement was a formal defect not affecting the merits of the order. 75 Ind. Cas. 283=47 Bom. 92=24 Bom. L.R. 909=A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 449.

3. Amendment of decree.

——S. 5—Amendmenent of decree. If the grounds of appeal taken, or any one of them are intimately connected with the ground for amendment of the decree, or if the appeal is directed against the decree so far has it has been amended, the extension of time under S. 5 will be granted almostas a matter of course. If they are not so, the Court in considering theapplication for extension of time will have to exercise its discretion, and time can be extendedin a fit case. 40 C.W.N. 83=165 Ind Cas 53.

——S. 5.—Amendment after expiry of time for appeal.

Where there has been no mistake in the operative part of the decree and the application for amendment, which was made after the time for appealing from the decree had expired, did not touch the operative part, but was directed to the correction of the mistakes in the recital of the claim of the plaintiff as made in the said decree, the Court will be exercising its discretion rightly in not extending the time under S. 5. 40 C.W.N. 83=165 Ind. Cas. 53.

——S. 5—Whether ground for extension.

Under S. 5, the Court may admit an appeal after the period of limitation prescribed therefor, where the decre has been amended even in a case in which the amendment has no relation to the grounds upon which the validity of the decree is sought to be challenged in appeal if there is nothing to show that the appellant's conduct in not preferring the appeal eariler was not actuated by anything else than a bona fide belief that he was entitled to wait. A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 534=36 C.W.N. 218=59 C 1052=138 Ind. Cas. 754.

——S. 5—Time, whether runs from origina decree.

Where in a suit, upon a mortgage a decree, was made directing the mortgagor to redeem on playment of a certain sum and on a subsequent application by the mortgagor, the amount was reduced and the mortgage thereupon appealed, questioning the right of the mortgagor to redeem. after the expiry of the period of limitation for filing an appeal from the original decree but within the period of limitation from the date of the amended decree.

Heid, that even assuming that an appeal from the original decree would be the proper appeal in which the question of mortgagor's right to redeem could be raised, the case was a fit one for extension of time under S. 5.

Per Suhrawardy, J.—The appeal was not time barred as the appeal against amended decree is the only appeal the mortgagee could bring, and in such appeal he had the right to question the very right of the mortgagor to redeem. A.I.R. (1931) Cal. 578=35 C.W.N. 251=133 Ind. Cas. 571.

——S. 5.—Amendment of decree—Amendment uncounected with Grounds of Appeal—No extension.

It is not every amendment in a decree which has been made suo motu by the Court that entitles a party to claim an extension of time under S. 5; whether there is sufficient cause for extension must depend on the circumstances of each individual case. If the amendment has no relation to the grounds upon which the validity of the decree has been challenged, such appeal should not be admitted out of time.

Where the only mistake was, that in two suits against the same defendant, the decree which should have been attached to the file of the first case was attached to the second and vice versa. and the decrees were subsequently amended and it was contended that limitation ran from the date of the amendment:

Held, that no sufficient cause had been shown for extension of the period of limitation for the appeal. The grounds of appeals were not based upon the form which the decrees had taken alter the amendment A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 463.

——S. 5.—Whether a decree is amended or is no amended the date of the decree is the date of the judgment and the fact that the decree is amended does not operate of itself to extend the time, for appealing. 50 C.L.J. 12=33 C.W.N. 958=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 676.

——S. 5—When there has been an amendment of decree and it is reasonable that the time for appealing should be extended recourse has to be had to the power of the Court under S. 5. 50 C.L.J. 12=33 C.W.N. 958=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 676.

——S. 5—Whether pendency of application for amending decree saves limitation depends on the facts of each case.

Whether an application for review or an application for an amendment is or is not a sufficient ground for extension of time depends upon the particular facts of each case.

Where the fact, that the application for amendmet of the decree was pending. did not prevent the petitioner from presenting his application to the High Court for leave to appeal as a pauper mainly upon the merits of the case, and the question of costs in regard to which the application for amendment was made would have been only one of the grounds upon which he would be entitled to asail the decree:

Held, that the pendency of the application for amendment of the decree was not a sufficient ground for extension of time. 113 Ind. Cas. 580=A.I.R. 1928 Pat. 265.

——S. 5—Every amendment made in a decree does not necessarily entitle a party who prefers an appeal against the decree to claim an extension of time under the second paragraph of S. 5. If the amendment has no relation to the grounds upon which the validity of the decree is sought to be challenged in appeal, an admission of the appeal out of time cannot be claimed merely on the ground that an amendment has been mad ein the decree. 61 Ind. Cas. 69=43 All. 380=19 A.L.J. 152=A.I.R. 1921 All. 60.

——S. 5—' Sufficient cause '—Amended decree—Appeal from—When amendment " sufficient cause ".—

Where the plaintiff obtained a decree in a mortgage suit on the 31st January 1901 which was made absolute on the 28th September following and the decree was subsequently amended under S. 206, C.P.C., on the 12th July, 1902, and the plaintiffp referred an appeal the High Court against the amended decree.—Held, that an amended decree was a decree between the parties within the meaning of the Code, and, as such, was appealable, and the plaintiff was accordingly competent to prefer an appeal against the amended decree. 9 C.W N. 605 foll. Held, also, that for the purpose of determining whether the appeal was barred by limitation, time must be taken to have run from the date of the decree as originally drawn up 14 M. 150; 6 C. 22; and 22 M. 364, foll. Every amendment made in a decree under S. 206, C.P.C. does not necessarly entitle a party, who prefers an appeal against the decree, to claim an extension of time under the second paragraph of S. 5 of the Limitation Act. Whether there is sufficient cause for such extension mus depend upon the circumstances of each individual case.' If the amendment has no relation to the grounds upon which validity of the decree is sought to be challenged in appeal such appeal should not be admitted out of time. On the other hand, if the grounds on which the appeal is based are intimately connected with the amendment of the decree, or if the grounds are directed against the decree only in so far as it has been amended the court should exercise in his favour the discretion vested in it by para. 2 of S. 5 of the Limitation Act. (1905) 3 C.L.J. 188.

4. Appeal, Second appeal and Revision.

——S. 5—The order of the Single Judge refusing to extend time under s. 5 is not a judgment within Cl. 10, Letters Patent and accordingly, no appeal lies from that order. A.I.R. (1935) All. 620 (2)=1935 A.W.R. 743=(1935) A.L.J. 681=57 A. 983=157 Ind. Cas. 347 (F.B.).

——S. 5 Discretion of Court—Appeal—Interference.

A Court of appeal will not interfere if the discretion of the lower Court under S. 5 of the Limitation Act has been judicially exercised. But if it is found to have been exercised arbitrarily or on a wrong conception of law, it is the duty of the appellate Court to interfere with it and pass an order which would be in the circumstances in consonance with justice and in accordanee with law. 225 Ind. Cas. 291=A.I.R. 1947 Lah. 76=48 P.L.R. 325.

——S. 5—In Letters Patent Appeal High Court will not interfere with the discretion of the Judge in Chambers in refusing to excuse delay in presenting the appeal. 69 Ind. Cas. 895=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 170.

——S. 5—Appeal to P.C.—Delay in presenting appeal to High Court—Interference.—

Where the High Court refused to admit an appeal, on the ground that it was out of time, and there was no sufficient cause for not presenting it in time the Judicial Committee held that they could not interfere, unless they were satisfied that the refusal was wrong; and that the delay which had occurred since the rejection of the appeal by the High Court and which was not accounted for miliated against any interference. (1902) 30 C. 309=30 I.A. 20 (P.C.).

——S. 5—" Sufficent cause "—Erroneous advice given by pleader on question of limitation for filing appeal—Finding by lower appellate Court that mistake of pleader is not bona fide—Interferences in second appeal.

The High Court in second appeal will not interfere with a finding of the lower appellate Court that an erroneous advice given by a pleader on the question of limitation for filing an appeal cannot be regarded as a bona fide mistake on pleder's part such as would justify an extension of the period of limitation under S. 5 of the Limitation Act. A.I.R. 1949 Assam 24.

——S. 5—Discretion of Court—Interference in second oppeal.

The question of excusing or condoning the delay under S. 5 of the Limitation Act is a matter of discretion of the Court concerned and so long as that the Court exercises that discretion in a judicial manner, its decision is perfectly within its competence and within legal validity and when sound and plausible reasons have been given by an appellate Court its order is not open to question in second appeal. 1948 A. W. R. (Rev.) 318=1948 R. D. 420.

——S. 5—No second appeal lies from an order refusing to excuse delay under S. 5, Lim. Act. 55 L.W. 426=(1942) 2 M. L. J. 104=A. I. R. 1942 Mad. 604=1942 M.W.N. 503=I.L.R. (1942) Mad. 868=203 Ind. Cas. 5.

——S. 5—District Judge exercising discretion and condoning delay in filing appeal which was originally filed in wrong Court:

Held, that the order was not illegal and cannot be contested in second appeal. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 767=39 P.L.R. 995=174 Ind. Cas. 927.

——S. 5—Plea that lower Court was wrong in applying S. 5—Interference.

The High Court will not entertain a second appeal on a plea that the lower Appellate Court was wrong in not applying the provisions of S. 5, but the High Court would interfere if the Court rejected such a plea arbitrarily without exercising a judicial discretion or if its reasoning is based on erroneous view of law. A. I. R. 1936 Lah. 742=168 Ind. Cas. 698.

——S. 5—Discretion under S. 5 exercised properly—No interference in second appeal—But where it has been exercised arbitrarily, it may be challenged in second appeal. (1933) A. L. J. 561=A. I. R. 1933 All. 294=144 Ind. Cas. 133.

——S. 5—Extension of time—Discretion—Interference.

Where the Court below, upon consideration of the facts before it and the surrounding circumstances, comes to the conclusion that no proper case has been made out for exercising its discretion for extending the period of limiation under S. 5 and dismisses the appeal upon that ground, there is no point of law involved in the case under Section 100 of the Civil P. C. for interfernce in second appeal. A.I.R. 1931 All. 28=(1930) A. L. J. 1256=130 Ind. Cas. 840 (2).

——S. 5—Discretion of Court.

——The question whether sufficient case existed for non-presentation of an appeal within time in the lower Appellate Court is primarily one for decision by that Court. High Court cannot interfere with the exeise of that discretion when exercised in a sound and reasonable manner and after due enquiry and careful consideration concerned. There is no ground for interfering under S. 115, Civil procedure Code, with the exercise of such a discretion by a lower Court.

Ignorance of the death of a defendant would constitute sufficient cause within the meaning of S. 5, Limitation Act, for excusing the delay in seeking to set aside the abatement caused by the death of that defendant. 1949 M.W.N. 29=A I.R. 1949 Mad. 624=(1949) 1 M.L.J. 144.

—S. 5 Court has discretion to excuse delay under S. 5—Interference.

Under S. 5, itis a matter for the Court's discretion to decide wheiher it should excuse the period of delay or not, and when it has decided that no sufficient grounds existed for excusing the delay, it is not within the High Court's powers of revision under S. 115, Civil P. C., to interfere with that decision. A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 604=55 L.W. 426=1942 2 M.L.J. 104=1942 M.W.N. 503= I.L.R. (1942) Mad. 868=203 Ind. Cas. 5.

——S. 5—Delay in applying for leave to appeal in forma pauperis—Extension of time under S. 5. granted—Interfereuce.

An appeal was filed within the period of limitation. The appellant was asked to pay a larger court fee and then he applied for leave to appeal in forma pauperis after the period of 30 days, allowed by Art. 170, Lim. Act. The Court extended the time for making the application ufider S. 5 Limitat on Act in view of the special circumstances of the case and the bona fide action of the appellant :

Held, that the Court could not be said to have acted illgeally or with material irregularity so as to justify interference in revision. A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 240=1942 O.W.N. 106=17 Luck. 628=1942 R.D. 181=1942 A.W.R. 79=199 Ind. Cas. 614.

——S. 5—Lower Court exercising discretion wrongly—Interference.

In revision, it is not the practice os the Patna High Court to interfere in the exercise of discretion under S. 5, Limitation Act by the Court below even when the exercise of that discretion is founded on a mistaken view of the law. A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 528=4 B. R. 540=171 Ind. Cas. 700.

——S. 5. When once a discretion has been exercised in the matter under S. 5 by the lower Appellate Court, the High Court will not interfere. 37 P.L.R. 784=A. I. R. 1936 Lah. 200=159 Ind. Cas. 173.

——S. 5—Ex parte order excusing delay.

An ex parte order excusing delay under S. 5, is liable to revision and re-consideration by the Appellate Court at the hearing of the appeal. 44 L. W. 152=A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 600=1936 M. W. N. 804=165 Ind. Cas. 471.

——S. 5 Discretion exercised by Judge under S. 5, Limitation Act, will not be interfered within revision. A.I.R. 1936 Pesh. 97=162 Ind. Cas. 416.

——S. 5 There is no ground for the High Court to interfere under S. 115 Civil P.C., where an application for extension of time under S. 5 is rejected by the Court in the exercise of its discretion. 35 P. L. R. 374=153 Ind. Cas. 259 (1).

——S. 5 Failure of Appellate Court to consider question of extension of time under S. 5, Limitation Act.

Held, also, that the lower Court acted with material irregularity in rejrcting the appeal without considering the question of extentsion of time under S. 5 and that the application for revision was competent. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 260=145 Ind. Cas. 153.

——S. 5—Application for review time-barred—Proceedings thereon are wishout jurisdiction.

Legal duty of Judge to determine question of "sufficient cause" for extension of period—Where review application was prima facie time-barred lower Court's order admitting it, without sufficient cause being shown for delay, is not only irregnlar but without jurisdiction —Proceedings consequent on review must be set aside as of no legal effect. 29 I. C. 975. Foll. 1930 A.L.J. 1057=A.I.R. 1930 All. 815.

——S. 5 Where a lower Appellate Court has exercised its discretion to extend or refuse to extend the period of time allowed for filling an appeal the High Court has no jurisdiction ta decide whether the Court was or was not right in refusing to extend the time. 9 A.L.J. 292, Foll. 111 Ind. Cas. 816=A.I.R. 1929 All. 31.

——S. 5 Discretion exercised by the lower Appellate Court will not interfered with by the High Court. 103 Ind· Cas. 90=28 Pat. L.R. 257=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 908.

——S. 5.—No revision lies against an order refusing extension of time under S. 5, where it ought to be extended as at the best it amounts to an error of law. 24 I.C. 872, Foll. 98 Ind. Cas. 892=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 43.

——S. 5—Discretion of Court.

In admitting appeals under S. 5 of the Act there must be a judicial exercise of discretion on judicially congnisable facts and the High Courts will not distrust the lower Court's exercise of it discretion unless for want of appreciation and consideration of material facts on right principle. 8 L.B.R. 566=10 Bur. L.T. 221=37 Ind. Cas. 815.

——S. 5—Discretion of Court—Interference.

Punjab Chief Court will interfere in exceptional cases. Partieularly in cases of change introduced by the new Punjab Courts Act, on the ground of erroneous legal advice. 18 P.W.R. 1916=33 Ind. Cas. 808.

——S. 5—and C.P. Code, S. 115—Revision of order—Delay in presentation of appeal—Order refusing to excuse if open to revision.

An order refusing to excuse delay in presentation of an appeal is not open to revision even for showing that the appeal was in time. 24 Ind. Cas. 872 (Mad.).

5. Burden of proof—See also Note 8.

——S. 5.—" Deligence " is not a word which occurs in s. 5, and although it is frequently referred to in judgments on the meaning of this section, the question of deligence arises only in cases where there has been a delay beyond the period of limitation after the judgment from which the appeal is preferred has been delivered in accordance with law. Under that section all that the appellants have to do is to satisfy the Court that they had sufficient cause for not preferring the appeal within the period os limitatson allowed. A.I.R. 1941 Rang. 194=1941 Rang. L.R. 213=195 Ind. Cas. 296.

——S. 5—Illness.

It is the duty of a litigant to know the last date on which he can present his appeal, and if, through delay on his part, it becomes necessary for him to ask the Court to exercise in his favour the favour the power contained in s. 5, the burden rests on him of adducing distinct proof of the sufficiene cause on which he reliess.

A certificate obtained from a native physician some time afrer the appeal has been filed in which the physician himself does not say that he treat the appellant is of no evidentiary value and cannot, be relied upon to show that the appellant was ill so as not to be prompt in filing the appeal. A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 156 I.L.R. (1938) Nag. 409=173 Ind. Cas. 369.

——S. 5—For the application of S. 5, sufficient cause to satisfy the Court is necessary. (1936) 38 P.L.R. 311.

——S. 5—Where no reason is shown why when the applicant was away at another place, he should not have given instructions to his Advocate to present the appeal in time and there is no medical certificate or any other corroborateive evidence to support the allegation of the case, even though the High Court itself would have arrived at a different conclusion if it had heard the case as Court of first appeal. A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 445. Foll. 123 Ind. Cas. 83.

——S. 5—Interference with—When justified.

In matters of discretion a Court of second appeal ought not and ordinarily dose not interfere with the exercise of discretion on the part of the subordinate Courts, but that non-interference must necssarily be limited to cases where there is sufficient material on record to justify the exercise of discretion in any particular way. Where, however, it appears that the lower Appellate Court has exercised its discretion in a judicially unsound manner without proper legal materials to support its decision, the High Court will surely interfere.

A memo. of appeal was accepted by the appellate Court after the period of limitation had expired, without enquiring into sufficient cause for condoning the delay in the presentation of the memo. The appeal was acceptod on merits setting aside the deerce of the lower Court :

Held, that the appellate Court acted wrongly in entertaining appeal as it had no jurisdiction to touch the decree, and decide the case on merits on the basis of time-barred memo. 25 Mad. 166 Foll. 114 Ind. Cas. 612=11 N. L. J. 186=A.I.R. 1929 Nag. 8.

——S. 5—The Court of second appeal cannot consider the sufficiency or otherwise of the reasons given by the lower Appellate Court for declining to exercise his discretion under S. 5. 95 Ind. Cas. 565=A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 542.

——S. 5—The discretion under S. 5, is a judicial one and when it is not exercised after appreciation and consideration of such facts as are relevant and after application of the right principles to those facts, the High Court can interfere in second appeal. 94 Ind. Cas. 396=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 445.

—S. 5—Where discretion has been exercised one way or the other by an appellate Court under S. 5, the High Court will not interfere in second appeal. 91 Ind. Cas. 865=A.I.R. 1926 All. 252.

—S. 5 Discretion, judicially exercised—Appellate Court will not interfere.

Where a Judge purporting to exercise discretion does so under the view that there is no general rule when in fact there is one which he ought to follow as being binding upon him, he misdirects himself as to the law to be applied to the case ; he does not exercise a judicial discretion and an appellate Court should either remand the case or exercise the discretion itself ; but where he does exercise a judicial discretion, the High Court will not interfere in second appeal. 74 Ind. Cas. 1039=21 A.L.J. 319=45 All. 432=4 L.R.A. Civ. 178=A.I.R. 1923 All. 455.

—S. 5—Discretion of Court—No interference in second appeal.

When Lower Appellate Court has considered the matter carefully and decided that the period of limitation need not be extended under S. 5, the Chief Court will not interfere in second appeal. 92 P.R. 1916=36 Ind. Cas. 614.

—S. 5—Discretion of Court—Second appeal—"Sufficient cause".

"Sufficient cause" is a question of fact and there can be no second appeal as to the exercise of discretion by the Lower Court. 43 P.W.R. 1916=88 P.R. 1916=132 P.L.R. 1916=35 Ind. Cas. 67.

—S. 5—Discretion of Court—Second appeal.

If the Lower Appellate Court has come to a definite finding as to the 'Sufficient cause' for filing an appeal beyond time, High Court will not interfere in second appeal. 20 C.W.N. 1303=1 Pat. L.J. 485=1 Pat. L.W. 209=35. Ind. Cas. 888.

—S. 5—Discretion of Court—Interference in Second Appeal.

Where the Lower Appellate Court has refused to act under S. 5 and dismissed the appeal, the High Court will not interfere in second Appeal unless the Lower Court has acted arbitarily and without exercising discretion. 9 A.L J. 292=14 Ind. Cas. 59.

—S. 5—Judicial discretion—Second appeal—Civil Procedure Code (1882), S. 584.

Where an appellate court dismissed an appeal as one presented out of time after consideration of all the facts and not arbitrarily, there is no legal ground to interfere with such exercise of discretion in second appeal. An appellant who ought to have appealed to the District Court within a month, but was under the impression that the appeal lay to the High Court owing to a bona fide mistake as to valuation, discovered the mistake after time and preferred the appeal to the District Court more than a month after the dicovery of the mistake. The District Judge having refused to excuse the delay on the ground that the delay after discovery was unexplained :— Held, that there was no ground for a second appeal. 1902 A.W.N. 203=25 A. 71.

—S. 5—Delay in appeal—Dismissal of Karnam—Suit—Reference to Revenue Court—Proceedings in Revenue Courts—Appeal—Delay—Diseretion to excuse—Duty of Appeallate Court :

A zemindari karnam, dismissed by the zemindar in 1893, applied for redress to the Revenue authorities in 1894. Having been referred to a civil suit, he filed this suit for a declaration of his right to the office and for recovery of its emoluments in the District Munsif's Court of Satur. On January 29, 1898, the Munsif dismissed the suit as he was of opinion that Act II of 1394 ousted the jurisdiction of civil courts. The plaintiff obtained a copy of the judgment on February 18 and moved the Deputy Collector on March 5. The petition having been rejected on June 13, he appealed to the Cellector on July 25. copy of the order rejecting his petition having been furnished to nim on the 14th. This appeal was rejected on the 25th November. A copy of this order he obtained on December 7, and the records were returned to him on the 28th. Now he prefered an appeal to the District Court against the order of the Munsif dated January 29, 1898, on the 4th Jrnuary 1899. The Subordinate Judge of Tinnevelly who heard the appeal excused the delay on the ground that the appellant was misled by the District Munsif and had lost time by trying to follow his advice. But he did not consider the delay between November 25, 1898, and January 4, 1899, in filing the appeal. Held by Benson and Boddam, JJ., that the suit being one for satisfaction of wrongful dismissrl under S. 11 of Regulation XXV of 1802, was triable by a District Munsif and not by a Subordinate Judge. S. 7 of Regulation XXIX of 1802 has no application to such a suit. Per Benson J.—Act II of 1894 was not applicable to such a suit as the same came into force only in 1897 as regards this zamindari. Held by the Court (Benson, J., dissenting) that the delay was inexcusable and the appeal was barred by limitation. An appellate tribunal should not interfere with the discretion of the lower court where it has been exercised judicially after a consideration of all the facts. But where, as in this case, facts having a material bearing on the exercise of a discretion have not been considered, the exercise of discretion is judicially unsound and should be corrected. (1901) 25 M. 166=11 M.L.J. 406. (F.B.).

—S. 5—Discretion of Court—Interference under S. 115, Civil Procedure Code.

The question of excusing the delay and the question whether sufficient cause for excusing the delay is made out are essentially within the discretion of the Court of the applicant that he was ill at all, the applicant must be held to have failed to discharge the onus that lies upon him to satisfy the Court that he had sufficient cause for not preferring the appeal within the time limited by law. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 183=14 R. 155=162 Ind. Cas. 664 (2).

——S. 5—Section 3, Lim. Act imposes a duty upon the Court to dismiss a suit or an application, which is out of time unless the delay can be condoned under S. 5. In case relief under S 5 is claimed, the burden lies heavily on the person who claims it of adducing distinct proof of the sufficient cause A.I.R. 1936 Sind 169=30 S.L.R. 242=165 Ind. Cas. 91.

——S. 5—Misleading of letter of Counsel's clerk—Non-production of letter.

Where the period of limitation for filing an appeal expired on December 9, 1931, but the appeal was filed on December 19, 1931, and S. 5 of the Lim. Act was called in aid on the ground that the appellant had made a mistake in reading the date in the letter sent to him by his Counsel's clerk and the letter itself was not produced:

Held, that under the circumstances of the case, the appellant had not made out sufficient cause for the delay in filing the appeal. 9 O.W.N. 227=A.I.R. 1932 Oudh 167=136 Ind. Cas. 338.

——S. 5—It is the duty of a litigant to know the last day on which he can present his appeal, and if, through delay on his part, it become necessary for him to ask the Court to exercise in his favour the power contained in S. 5, the burden rests on him of adducing distinct proof of the sufficient cause on which he relies. 24 S.L.R. 415=A.I.R. 1931 Sind 58=132 Ind. Cas. 473.

——S. 5—Onus.

It is the duty of the litigant to know the last day on which he can present his appeal and if there is delay the burden rests on him of adducing strict proof of the sufficient cause on which he relies. 41 M. 412=34 M. 6. Delay not explained.

——S. 5.—Delay not oxplained.—Extension cannot be allowed.

The decree of the trial Court was passed on 29th August, 1924. On 22nd October, 1924, the appeal was field. Application for copies was made on 17th September, 1924. The application was returned for correction of particulars on 2nd October, 1924. It was re-field on 3rd October, 1924. The copies were ready for delivery on 9th October, 1924. Actual delivery was taken 11th October, 1924. There was no affidavit explainting the delay, or the facts as to what happened between the 3rd and 11th:

Held, that no ground was shown for extension of time under S. 5. 98 Ind. Cas. 942=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 59.

——S. 5.—It is a well-recognised principle that a petition field out of time must show on the face of it the reason for delay, and there must further be an express prayer for condonation of the delay under the section. 92 Ind Cas. 179=4 Pat. 766=7 P.L.T. 362=A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 73.

——S. 5.—Delay of 53 days owing to negligence of. Dewan of plaintiff—Delay was not excused.

The reason for not filing the copy of the decree appealed against, along with the memorandum of appeal was that the Dewan of the appellant did not send a copy of the decree along with the papers to be field and as the last day for filing the appeal was the 7th November, 1918, the clerk of the Vakil for the appellant, field the appeal without the copy of the decree. On the application to set aside the ex parte order excusing the delay, no affidavit had been filed either by the appellant or his Dewan or any other person explaining why a copy of the decree was not sent along with the other papers or why there was a delay of 53 days:

Held, that the delay has not been properly explained. 72 Ind. Cas. 308=17 M.L.W. 352=32 M.L.T. 232=1923 M.W.N. 164=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 482=44 M.L J. 279.

——S. 5—Delay not explained—Effect.

If the plaintiff has brought his suit just within limitation no adverse inference can be drawn from the delay but when each day's delay entails additional loss on a plaintiff, his omission to bring a suit until just before the expity of the period requires some explanation without which his case becomes doubtful. 34 Ind Cas. 617 (Mad.)

——S. 5—Delay not explained—Effect

Omission to account for the major portion of the delay in presenting an appeal will disentitle a party to benefit under this section. 3 L.W. 109=19 M.L.T. 86=32 Ind. Cas. 579.

——S. 5 and C. P. Code Order XXII 22. 9—Delay explained—Effect.

An application made on 2nd October, 1914 for setting aside an abatement which took effect on the 23rd of November, 1913, is barred by limitation especially when no excuse is shown for the delay in bringing the legal representative on record and setting aside the order of abatement under O. 22, R. 9 of the C.P.Code. 16 M.L.R. 547=26 Ind. Cas. 472.

——S. 5—Delay not explained—Effect of.

When the delay is not sufficiently explained it should not be excused under S. 5 of the Act. 12 A.L.J 837=25 Ind. Cas. 30.

7. Discretion and duty of Court.

——S. 5.—The Court is not bound to show indulgence to a litigant, who is not prompt in seeking his remedy, by extending time under S. 5, Lim. Act. A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 488=1942 O.W.N. 475=1942 A.W.R. 309 (3) =202 Ind. Cas. 87.

——S. 5—A Court is not bound to show indulgence to a litigant who is not prompt in seeking his remedy. 68 Ind. Cas. 777=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 96.

——S. 5—Delay of several years.

Where the order appealed against was passed several year ago, the Court should be reluctant to grant the necessary extension except on very strong grounds. A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 339=1942 O.W.N. 248=1942 A.W.R. 173=199 Ind. Cas. 801.

——S. 5—The question of excusing the delay has to be approached from the point of view of the petitioner's conduct rather than of the advantage gainend by the other side. A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 170=1941 M.W.N. 989 =(1941) 2 M.L.J. 873=201 Ind. Cas. 84

——S. 5,—Extension of time on equitable grounds.

Obiter.—Where rights of third parties have not intervened, it is not only in the power, but it is the duty of the Court to relieve a party of the injury done to him by it, by reason of its mistakes and defaults or mistakes and defaults of its offieers inadverteatly committed. The principle, Actus curiae neminem gravabit ought to be applied even when for relieving a party from such injury, the Court has to consider the question of time. Consequently, the Court should grant the extension of time on equitable grounds apart from S. 5 40 C,W.N. 680=A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 343=63 C. 1079=166 Ind. Cas. 641.

——S. 5—The Court has a discretion under S. 5 to excuse delay that takes place between the date on which the copy of the decree is delivered to the applicant and the date of actual filing of the appeal The discretion is judicially exercised when the Court thinks that that time is reasonably necessary for the appeal to be prepared. 11 O.W.N. 1359=A.I.R. 1935 Oudh 30=10 Luck. 250=152 Ind. Cas. 419.

——S. 5—Discretion of Court.

Whether there is sufficient cause within the meaning of S. 5 is a question of fact, and on account of the elasticity of the term "sufficient cause," the Court has a wide field of discretion in determining what, in the circumstances of a particular case, amounts to sufficient cause, but it gives no countenance to the view that a time-barred application not falling within the purview of R. 5, can, in the exercise of discretion, be admitted. A.I.R. 1935 Rang. 466=13 R. 595=159 Ind. Cas. 845.

——S. 5—Delay in filing appeal is excusable if Court is satisfied that the petitioner was prevented from filing is on the last day of limitation prescribed. (1931) M.W.N. 1161.

——S. 5—Reasonable diligence is the test.

Where in case of a belated appeal the delay having been due to the mistake of a clerk, the Subordinate Judge refused to exercise discretion favourably on the ground that the mistake of a clerk is tantamount to the mistake of a party.

Held, that the sole index for the exercise of such discretion is whether the appellant has acted with reasonalble diligence. A.I.R. 1917 P.C. 156, Foll. 119 Ind. Cas. 447=A.I.R. 1929 All. 351.

——S. 5—Court should exercise its discretion in each case.

In determining whether there is a sufficient cause the discretion of the Court has to be exercised on all the facts in each particular case, no vide and general rule can be laid down.

Where, from ordinary point of view, the mistake had been made without any real excuse.

Held, that there was not "sufficient cause" within S. 5. A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 249.

——S. 5—Discretion allowed by S. 5 should be exercised only when application is made beyond time but without delay. 100 Ind. Cas. 727=A. I. R. 1927 All. 386.

——S. 5—Laches.

In exercising discretion in favour of the applicant under S. 5 of the Limitation Act, the Court must be satisfied that the applicant was not guilty of unnecessary laches. 86 Ind. Cas. 270=12 O. L. J. 94=2 O. W. N. 58=28 O. C. 378=A. I. R. 1925 Oudh 371.

——S. 5—Bad case on merits—No ground for refusal.

The lower Appellate Court did not apply its mind to the question whether having regard to the circumstances under which the appeal before it was filed after the expiry of the usual period of limitation, appellant should be granted an extension of time. The only ground on which it refused to extend the time was that in its opinion the appellant had a bad case on the merits.

Held, that this is wrong and under the circumstances the High Court should interfere as no proper thought was given to the cause of presenting appeal out of time. The lower Appellate Court had not used its discretion judicially and reasonably. 122 Ind. Cas. 575=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 1068.

——S. 5—Merits—Immaterial.

That the appellant has a good case on the merits is not a ground for excusing delay in filing the appeal within time. A valuable right accrues to the opposite party by reason of the appeal having become barred by time. 2 Lah. 277, Foll. 73 Ind. Cas. 910=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 144.

——S. 5—Merits of case.

An appellant filing in time but in a wrong court under a bona fide mistake may be allowed to put the mistake right unless disentitled by laches on his part; but not when he appears to have no substantial point to argue. 14 A.L.J. 212=33 Ind. Cas. 546.

——Ss. 5 and 12—Merit's of case—Consideration of—Time for obtaining a copy.

Where a party wishing to file an appeal waited till the 90 days were about to expire and then applied for judgment and decree and was asked to present the application at the proper place and the appeal was consequently filed a day too late it was held that he was not entitled to an extension of time and that the plea of the appeal being a strong one and likely to succeed would not entitle him to indulgence. 66 P.W.R. 1912 =170 P.L.R. 1912=13 Ind. Cas. 714.

——S. 5—Merits of the case.

The Court would excuse the delay in the presentation of an appeal if there are any merits in the appellant's case. But when the appeal is on a mere technical ground the principle of technicality defeating technicality may well be brought into play. 25 Ind. Cas. 28 (Mad.).

——S. 5—Copy of main connected judgment not filed. Time was extended. 96 Ind. Cas. 416=8 L.L.J. 239 =27 P.L.R. 841.

——S. 5—Discretion of Court—Extension of time—Subsequent amendment of decee.

The defendants are not obliged to appeal at a time when the plaintiff had, within the period of 90 days allowed for an appeal, already applied for an amendment and in any event the Court would grant an extension of time under S. 5 of the Limitation Act to the defendants. 64 P.R. 1919=51 Ind. Cas. 712.

——S. 5—Discretion of Court.

Where in a redemption suit the Lower Court framed two issues, viz. (1) as to limitation and (2) as to the amount due to defendant and decided the first issue in favour of the plaintiff on 22nd March and the 2nd issue on 31st May and the defendant appealed to the Dt. Judge against the final order on 25th June but the Dt. Judge rejected the appeal as time-barred, calculating the time from the 22nd March. Held, on appeal (1) that the order of the 22nd March was not a preliminary decree against which a separate appeal could have been preferred and therefore the appeal was not barred by time (2) that even if technically it was time-barred, it was a fit case for excuse under S. 5 of the Limitation Act. 7 P. R. 1917=39. Ind. Cas. too.

——Ss. 5 and 12—Discretion of Court—When exercised—Expiry of time allowed for appeal on a holiday.

Indulgence under S. 5 on the ground of mistake is only allowed where it is shown that the appellant has acted with due care and diligence and in computing the period prescribed for an appeal time taken to obtain copies is excluded only if the application for copies is made while the right of appeal subsists. So where the last day of limitation expired on a holiday and an application was made for copies on the re-opening day and the appeal was filed as soon as the copies were received, it was held that even deducting the time spent in obtaining copies the appeal was time-barred. 55 P.W.R. 1916=125 P.L.R. 1916=79 P. R 1916=35 Ind. Cas. 233.

——S. 5—Discretion of Court—Letters Patent, S. 15—Power of High Court.

Under special circumstances the High Court can (has extended) extend the time by more than 5 years for preferring an appeal under S. 15 of the Letters Patent. 34 Ind. Cas. 584 (Cal.).

——S. 5—Discretion of Court.

In an appeal from a decree filed beyond the period of limitation from the date of decree but within time from the date of its amendment the appellant is to be limited to the grounds of appeal referring to the amendment unless he can claim benefit under S. 5. 34 Ind. Cas. 556 (Cal.).

——S. 5—Discretion of Court—Not to be fettered—No set rules should be laid down.

In the admission of appeals filed out of time the discretion of the appellate Court should not be fettered by any definite or crystallised set of rules. 19 C.W.N. 1113=31 Ind. Cas. 705.

——Ss. 5 and 14—Discretion of Court—Admission of appeal after time.

When the time for appealing is once passed, a very valuable right is secured to the successful litigant and the Court must be fully satisfied of the justice of the ground for an extension of the time for attaching the decree and thus perhaps depriving the successful litigant of the advantage he has obtained. 30 B. 329, Rel. upon. There is no analogy between Ss. 5 and 14 of the Act and the latter section cannot be of any use in the exercise of discretion under S. 5 of the Act. 17 C.L.J. 596=20 Ind. Cas. 513.

——Ss. 5 and 14—Construction.

S. 5 of the Act allows a discretion, the wording being 'May be admitted,' while S. 14 allows no such discretion, the words being 'shall be excluded'. 254 P.L.R. 1913 =159 P.W.R. 1913=20 Ind. Cas. 3.

——S. 5—Discretion of Court—Appeal filed without copy of decree—Appellant asked to file on next hearing day—Copy filed after expiry of limitation.

Where an appeal was filed without copy of the decree and the appellant being asked to file it on the next date of hearing and being misled by the order, filed it, long after the period of limitation had expired on the date of the hearing, it was held that there was sufficient cause for not filing the appeal in time. 189 P.W.R. 1912= 14 Ind. Cas. 244.

——S. 5—Discretion of Court.

Whether the application for permission to appeal in forma pauperis be treated as falling under S. 5 or under S. 7, the result would be the same. For an appeal the Court has jurisdiction to excuse delay under S. 5. 34 Bom. 589=12 Bom. L.R. 694=7 Ind. Cas. 944.

——Ss. 5, 7—Application for leave to appeal "in forma pauperis"—Delay—Excuse of delay—Minor applicant.

The plaintiff, a minor, filed a suit in forma pauperis for a declaration that he was the adopted son of Vyankat rao and to recover possession of his property. The suit was dismissed on 10th February, 1908. An application for leave to appeal in forma pauperis was presented to the High Court on the 10th April, 1908, but having been beyond time it was rejected. On an application to excuse the delay, the High Court excused the applicant being a minor and S. 7 of the Limitation Act, 1877, applied. At the hearing the respondent objected that the application for permission to appeal in forma pauperis must be treated as an appeal and that S. 5 and not S. 7 of the Limitation Act, 1877, applied to it. Held, overruling the contention that whether the application be treated as falling under S. 5 or 7 the result was the same. If it fell under S. 5 and was an appeal, then, under the second paragraph of that section which applied to appeals the Court had jurisdiction to excuse the delay. If, on the other hand, it be treated as an application and fell under S. 7 it was clearly within time and there was no need of excusing delay because the section provided that a minor son could apply even after he had attained the age of majority but within a period prescribed. 12 Bom. L.R. 694=34 B. 589=7 Ind. Cas. 944.

——S. 5, Art. 157—Delay in filing appeal—Excuse of delay.

S. 5 gives the Court a discretion which in respect of jurisdiction is to be exercised in the way in which judicial power and discretion ought to be exercised upon principles which are well understood, the words "sufficient cause" receiving a liberal construction so as to advance substantial justice when no negligence nor inaction nor want of bona fides is imputable to the appellant. 11 M. 269, followed. Delay on the part of the Government in filing appeal against acquittal not excused. 9 Bom. L.R. 893=6 Cr. L.J. 221.

——S. 5 (5-A)—Appeal, "in forma pauperis"—Court's duty.

The word "appeal" in S. 5 of the Limitation Act does not include an application for leave to appeal in forma pauperis. 2 M. 230, 12 A. 19 approved. The Court is bound when an application is out of time to dismiss it, even although the point may not be raised by the other side. But where an application for leave was dismissed their lordships allowed the applicant to file an appeal on payment of full Court-fee within a certain time. 8 C.W.N. 906=30 C. 790.

——S. 5—Discretion, exercise of.

When the time for appealing is once passed, a very valuable right is secured to the successful litigant and the Court must, therefore, be fully satisfied of the justice of the grounds on which it is sought to obtain an extension of the time for attacking the decree and thus perhaps depriving the successful litigant of the advantages which he has obtained. Held, also, that where the lower Court had exercised its discretion in one way, it is for the appellant to show that the discretion had been exercised arbitrarily or without proper material to support its decision. (1906) 8 Bom. L.R. 858=31 B. 33. Also (1905) 7 Bom. L.R. 965=30 B. 329.

——S. 5 (5-A)—Appeal "in forma pauperis"—Leave to appeal refused—Time granted to file a regular appeal—Discretion of Court.

Where a District Judge, after refusing an applicant leave to appeal in forma pauperis granted time beyond the expiry of the period of limitation for the applicant to file a regular appeal on the full Court-fee, Held, that inasmuch as the appeal could only be admitted by the aid of S. 5, Limitation Act, the Court must be taken to have exercised the powers conferred by the section, although the section was not referred to by that Court. 1904 A.W.N. 24= 26 A. 329.

8. Duty of applicant.

See also NOTES.

——S. 5—Duty of applicant.

The applicant is only required to satisfy the Court that he was unable to present his appeal in time on account of some misadventure on the last date on which it ought to have been presented; it is not necessary for him to account for his inactivity during the entire period prescribed by law. 34 C.W.N. 1119=58 Cal. 549 =A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 298.

——S. 5—An appellant who wilfully leaves the preparation and presentation of his appeal to the last day of the period of limitation prescribed therefore is guilty of negligence and is not entitled to an extension of time if some unexpected or unforeseen contingency prevents him from filing his appeal within time. 12 N.L.R. 171, Foll. 119 Ind. Cas. 679=A.I.R. 1930 Nag. 121.

——S. 5—Appellant unwell in the last portion of limitation and filing his appeal two days later—Two days delay should be excused, but the whole period of sickness cannot be excused—The period of sickness is not to be added like the period for obtaining copies. 119 Ind. Cas. 215=6 Rang. 571=A.I.R. 1928 Rang. 165.

——S. 5—Appellant seeking to avail of S. 5 must explain each day of delay. (1937) 39 P.L.R. 897.

——S. 5—It is settled law that in order to have the benefit of S. 5 it is the duty of the appellant to explain the delay for every day that elapses beyond the period allowed by the Limitation Act for filing an appeal. 103 Ind. Cas. 498=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 717.

——S. 5—Equitable relief.

Persons who desire the assistance of the Court in obtaining equitable relief must come quickly. In each case it is a question to be decided on the facts whether the delay on the part of the plaintiff is such that the Court ought not to exercise its powers. 72 Ind. Cas. 868=46 Mad. 148=1928 M.W.N. 1=17 M.L.W. 216=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 284=44 M.L.J. 107.

9. Ex parte admission.

——S. 5—Ex parte admission.

Where an order admitting an appeal and condoning the delay is made ex parte, a Court has jurisdiction to re-consider, the question when the appeal comes for hearing. A.I.R. 1917 P.C. 179, Foll. 111 Ind. Cas. 816=A.I.R. 1929 All. 31.

——S. 5—Admission of a time-barred appeal on hearing the appellant only on the grounds of sufficient cause cannot be revised where the respondent did not object to the admission in the course of his argument. 80 Ind. Cas. 617=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 148.

——S. 5—Where an ex parte order is passed excusing the delay under S. 5, Limitation Act, it is open to the other party to apply to have it set aside Courts no doubt have power to excuse the delay in the presentation of a copy of the decree appealed against, if they are satisfied that the discretion vested in them under S. 5 of the Limitation Act should be exercised in favour of the appellant. 72 Ind. Cas. 308=17 M.L.W. 352=32 M.L.T. 232=1923 M.W.N. 164=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 482=44 M.L.J. 279.

——S. 5—The admission of the appeal subject to objection was irregular. An appellate Court ought not to interfere with the discretion exercised by the Court below, merely because, upon the material before it, it might have arrived at a different conclusion. But where no discretion at all is exercised it is certainly open to the party aggrieved to raise the question on appeal. 64 Ind. Cas. 55=1922 P.H.C.C. 20=3 Pat. L.T. 110=6 Pat. L.J. 444=A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 47.

——S. 5—An order admitting and appeal ex parte, is not binding on the respondent, who can at the hearing raise any objection to such admission, that is legally possible. 63 Ind. Cas. 726 (Lah.).

——S. 5—An ex parte order granting an application for excuse of delay in applying for leave to appeal as a pauper, may be considered at the instance of the party prejudicially affected thereby. 60 Ind. Cas. 212=12 M.L.W. 500.

——S. 5—Ex parte admission—Sufficient cause—Burden of proof—Duty of Court to decide the question of excusing the delay before final hearing—Question of limitation—Power to decide.

An appellant seeking the benefit of S. 5 of the Limitation Act must adduce distinct proof of sufficient cause on which he relies and must furnish a detailed affidavit explaining the cause of the delay. Where an Appellate Court exercises the discretion vested in it, it must record the reasons for allowing an extension of the period of Limitation. Where a respondent fails to object to the admission of a time-expired appeal, the Court is not precluded from considering the question of limitation. Even an agreement between the parties that the objection should not be raised would not prevent the High Court from interfering. The practice of admitting appeals out of time provisionally without notice to the respondent and allowing objection to its admission to be taken at the hearing should be discontinued. 54 Ind. Cas. 36 (Pat.).

——S. 5—Ex parte admission—Appeal filed after time—Effect of.

The admission of an appeal after the period of limitation deprives the respondent of a valuable right, for it puts in peril the finality of the decision in his favour. Where therefore an order for such admission is made ex parte, it is open to consideration at the respondent's instance at the hearing. It is an implied term of the order. The question of limitation should not however be left open till the hearing of the appeal. The Courts in India should adopt a procedure which will secure to the stage of admission the final determination of any question of limitation affecting the competence of an appeal. 41 Mad. 412=34 M.L.J. 63=4 P.L.W. 54=16 A.L.J. 57=7 L.W. 156=23 M.L.T. 101=27 C.L.J. 253=2 P.L.R. 1918= 22 C.W.N. 481=21 Bom. ——S. 5—Exparte admission—Right of respondent to contest.

A respondent is entitled to contest an ex parte order extending the appeal time. 90 P.L.R. 1915=46 P.R. 1915=71 P.W.R. 1915=29 Ind. Cas. 265.

——S. 5—Ex parte admission—Competency of Court.

Where an appeal has been provisionally admitted, a Judge can entertain and decide the question whether there was sufficient cause for extending the time for appeal under S. 5 of the Limitation Act. 38 Bom. 613=16 Bom. L.R. 516=25 Ind. Cas. 369.

——S. 5—Ex parte admission—If can be set aside by the successor of admitting Judge.

An ex parte order by a Judge admitting an appeal presented out of time can be questioned and set aside by his successor in office at the final hearing of the appeal after notice. 9 M. 450; 21 M. 228; 34 C. 216; 1 L.W. 440, Foll. 1 L.W. 517=27 M.L.J. 147=16 M.L.T. 100=(1914) M.W.N. 619=25 Ind. Cas. 746.

——S. 5—Ex parte admission—Objections overruled and appeal admitted—Effect.

White, C.J., Oldfield, J., Contra.—Where notice as to why delay should not be excused was served by appellant's vakil but without proper order from Court and the appeal was admitted on appearance of other respondents and after hearing them, held, the respondent was not entitled on the hearing of the appeal to set up want of notice of proceedings in the Admission Court. Notice without proper order of Court is a nullity and cannot by mere inaction amount to an estoppel. 25 M.L.J. 281=(1913) M.W.N. 751=21 Ind. Cas. 96.

——S. 5—Ex parte admission—If respondent can object afterwards.

The order admitting an appeal ex parte can be reopened on the objection of the respondent at the hearing. 17 C.L.J. 596=20 Ind. Cas. 513.

——S. 5—Ex parte admission by Dt. Judge—Transfer to Sub-Judge.

An appeal was admitted by a Dt. Judge under S. 5 of the Limitation Act, on the ex parte statement of the appellant, the respondent not having entered appearance. The case was thereafter transferred to Sub-Judge for trial. Held, that the Sub-Judge had jurisdiction, on proper cause being shown to cancel the ex parte order and dismiss the appeal on the ground that it was barred by limitation at the time when it was admitted. 40 Cal. 259=17 C.W.N. 42=16 Ind. Cas. 407.

——S. 5—Ex parte admission—Re-opening of.

The opposite party can raise objection at the hearing to the admission of an appeal without notice to him after the prescribed period of limitation. 23 M.L.J. 219=12 M.L.T. 260=(1912) M.W.N. 962=16 Ind. Cas. 486 [Affirmed O.A. 41 M. 412=43 Ind. Cas. 493 P.C.].

——S. 5—Ex parte admission—Appeal filed out of time.

A respondent is not bound by an order of admitting a barred appeal in the exercise of the discretion under S. 5, Limitation Act if it is passed before an issue of process to him, but such admission order cannot be at once discharged on an objection of the respondent on the ground already considered before the order and made before the Judge other than that who passed the order of admission in the exercise of his discretion. 8 N.L.R. 50=15 Ind. Cas. 562.

——S. 5—Application for admission granted ex parte by a Division Court—Application for discharge of order by respondent—Delay—Costs incurred by appellant.

Where an application for the admission of an appeal which was filed out of time by two days was heard ex parte before a Division Bench and admitted.

Held, that though the order was not conclusive on the respondents and they are entitled to object to the admission of the appeal at a later stage the order of the Division Bench admitting the appeal should not be discharged when no facts which were not before that bench are urged on behalf of the respondents.

Held further, that on the facts of the present case, the order admitting the appeal should not be discharged inter alia because the respondent's application was made after the records had been printed and costs incurred by the appellants although the respondents appeared to have become aware of the filing of the appeal out of time shortly after it was filed. Per Woodroffe, J.—Each case must be decided on its own facts. In this case besides the delay on the part of the respondents in bringing their objections before the Court there was a bona fide mistake of calculation on the part of the appellant's pleader which led to the delay in filing the appeal. (1907) 12 C.W.N. 25.

10. Inability without fault.

——S. 5—Illness of applicant.

Delay of 16 days in filing revision application, caused by an acute attack of appendicitis to the applicant a week before the expiry of limitation was condoned. 1942 N.L.J. 311.

——S. 5—Illness of applicant.

A mere plea of sickness in itself unless the effect of the sickness was such that in the circumstances it would afford reasonable excuse for the delay in presenting the appeal would not justify the Court in exercising its discretion in admitting the appeal under S. 5. It is a matter for the Court to consider in each case whether the effect of illness as proved is such that it afforded sufficient cause for the failure to present the appeal within the time prescribed by law. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 183=14 R. 155=162 Ind. Cas. 664 (2).

——S. 5—Act of God—Legitimate excuse.

A party prevented by an act of God from prosecuting a copy application has a legitimate excuse. 1932 M.W.N. 328.

——S. 5—Inability without fault.

Copies of judgment and decree sent to a lawyer for advice lost in transit—New application made on last day of limitation and copies obtained on expiration and appeal filed immediately—Extension under S. 5 was granted. 120 Ind. Cas. 169=11 Lah. 111=31 P.L.R. 356=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 216.

——S. 5—Delay caused by the appellant not having knowledge of complaint under S. 476, Cr.P. Code, can be excused. 108 Ind. Cas. 26=52 Bom. 164=30 Bom. L.R. 76=29 Cr.L.J. 315=9 A.I. Cr.R. 435=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 64.

——S. 5—Extension of time.

Where at the instance of the Court a party is informed that his application cannot be received on that day, but the next day limitation expires, he is entitled to the necessary extension of limitation under S. 151, C.P. Code. 96 Ind. Cas. 376=9 N.L.J. 57=A.I.R. 1926 Nag. 331.

——S. 5—Where the person who is bound to pay the money produces the money in Court and complies with the rule which requires him to take out a challan and pay the money at a different place and there is a delay in the actual payment of the money into the treasury bank owing to reasons beyond the control of the person making the payment, the payment must be deemed to have been made on the date the money is produced and the challan obtained. To hold otherwise would be to penalise a party for events beyond his control. 79 Ind. Cas. 651=47 Mad. 543=18 M.L.W. 844=33 M.L.T. 106=1923 M.W.N. 811=A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 324=45 M.L.J. 849.

——S. 5—Where the filing of the cross-objection raised a question of proprietary title and thus made the appeal to the Commissioner incompetent.

Held, the delay in filing it in Court of District Judge should be excused as appellant could not take this event into consideration when he filed the appeal. 77 Ind. Cas. 955=A.I.R. 1923 All. 170.

——S. 5—Appeal without judgment copy not possible to be filed before filing of main appeal—Court would excuse delay. 74 Ind. Cas. 383=36 C.L.J. 389=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 261.

——S. 5—The last day for filing an appeal in a Sessions Court expired during the Court's civil vacation. On that day the Judge held criminal sittings of which, however, neither the appellant nor his Counsel had timely notice. The appeal was filed on the day Court re-opened after the civil vacation.

Held, that as notice of Judge's intention to hold sittings on the day when limitation for the appeal expired was not given either to the appellant or to his Counsel the appeal ought not to have been dismissed as time-barred but time for the same should have been extended. 61 Ind. Cas. 714=22 Cr.L.J. 426.

——S. 5—Inability without fault—Party not able to conform to limitation created by court without any fault of his own.

When the Court creates a limitation and a party is unable to conform to it, for no fault of his own e.g., failure to set a Conciliator's certificate owing to the cancellation of the appointment of Councillor or Government, and has no other remedy, the law will ordinarily excuse him. 38 Bom. 656=16 Bom.L.R. 444=25 Ind. Cas. 67.

——S. 5—Inability without fault—Party not able to conform to law—Without any fault of his.

Where the law creates a limitation and a party is unable to conform to it for no fault of his own e.g., failure to get a Conciliator's certificate owing to the cancellation of the appointment of Conciliator or the Government and he has no other remedy, the law will ordinarily excuse him. 38 Bom. 653=16 Bom.L.R. 441=25 Ind. Cas. 66.

11. Litigant misled by practice of Court.

——S. 5—Litigant misled by practice of High Court in computing limitation—Formal application under section—If necessary.

Where the appellant is misled by the judgments and practice of the High Court before which he files the appeal in computing the period of limitation prescribed for it, no formal application under S. 5 of the Limitation Act is necessary. I.L.R. (1950) Assam 12=A.I.R. 1950 Assam 83.

——S. 5—'Sufficient cause'—Litigant misled by change in practice of Court.

Under S. 5, Limitation Act, time can be extended when a litigant has been misled by a change in the practice of the Court. 85 C.L.J. 299.

——S. 5—Land Acquisition Act—Appeal under—Appeal wrongly preferred to High Court returned for re-presentation to District Court—Exclusion of time.

An appeal under the Land Acquisition Act was filed in the High Court on 15th July, 1925. On 18th September, 1930, it was directed to be returned and re-presented to the District Court. It was duly re-presented but it should, in the normal course, have been presented to the District Court on 15th April, 1925. The District Judge held that the period between 15th April, 1925, and 15th July, 1925 could not be excluded in computing the period of limitation though the period aftr 15th July, could be excluded :

Held, that as the practice was to file such appeals in the High Court, until the High Court decided otherwise in 1927, the period between 15th April, and 15th July should also be excused. A.I.R. 1934 Mad. 637=(1934) M.W.N. 991=67 M.L.J. 902=152 Ind. Cas. 155 (2).

——S. 5—Omission to file copy of award in time—Excused.

In an appeal from an award of District Judge in a land acquisition case, the appellant failed to file a copy of the award with the appeal. The appeal was filed in 1922. The decision of Lahore High Court in A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 438, under which the amendment to Land Acquisition Act in 1921 was interpreted making the filing of copy of award with appeal obligatory, was decided in 1925. The appellant's counsel applied during the hearing of the appeal in 1927 for an extension of time under S. 5, Limitation Act, and put in a complete copy of the award together with an affidavit and statement of reasons asking for indulgence.

Held, that the application should be allowed and that the appeal should be heard. 112 Ind. Cas. 797=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 263.

——S. 5—Where the appellant has been misled by the rules of the Court followed for a long time, the provisions of S. 5 can be invoked. 88 Ind. Cas. 443=48 Mad. 631=21 M.L.W. 672=1925 M.W.N. 190=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 725=48 M.L.J. 384.

——S. 5—Ignorance of a change in a rule of practice is no excuse where the change was given ample publicity before it was brought into force. 75 Ind. Cas. 878=A.I.R. 1925 Nag. 193.

——S. 5—Doubtful point of practice.

Where a matter allowed several possible views, and a party reasonably doubted the course to be followed he should be excused for delay in filing an appeal. A judgment was altered at the instance of one of the defendants and other defendants applied for revision, but did not succeed in it. Then they appealed against the decree based on the altered judgment :

Held, that the matter allowed several views and the delay in filing the appeal should be excused. 6 O.L.J. 622=58 Ind. Cas. 995.

——S. 5—Doubtful point of practice.

Time may be extended when a litigant has been misled by a change in the practice of the Court. 32 C.L.J. 121=58 Ind. Cas. 408.

——S. 5—Doubtful point of practice—Sufficient cause—Appellant misled by practice.

An appellant is entitled to an extension of time if he had been misled by the practice which had hitherto prevailed in the Subordinate Courts but which has recently been held to be wrong. An appellant relying on S. 5 of the Limitation Act ought ordinarily to be deemed to have acted with ordinary diligence during the whole period between the date of the decree appealed against and the date of presenting the appeal. The time spent in applying a review of judgment might, if bona fides is proved to be deducted under S. 5 of the Limitation Act, when the appeal would be in time but for the time spent in review. 52 Ind. Cas. 959 (Pat.).

——S. 5—Doubtful point of practice—Conflicting decisions of the High Court.

Certain conflicting decisions of the High Court confused the appellant as to the proper remedy against an order directing the amendment of a decree, viz., whether it is by notion or by way of appeal, and then prevented him from presenting the appeal within time,

Held that it was a sufficient excuse. 13 N.L.R. 25=39 Ind. Cas. 54.

——S. 5—Doubtful point of practice.

An appeal from the order of the District Judge was preferred to the High Court. A single Judge held that the appeal from the order of the Settlement Officer lay to the Commissioner and not to the District Judge. When the memorandum of the appeal was presented to the Commissioner, he held that appeal lay to the District Judge. Then the appellant's application for review of the judgment of the single Judge of the High Court who had heard the case was dismissed. Thereupon they appealed under S. 10, Letters Patent.

Held, that there was sufficient cause for delay in presenting the appeal beyond time. 15 A.L.J. 200=37 Ind. Cas. 818.

12. Mistake in calculation.

——S. 5—Mistake in calculation—Party misled by neither legal adviser nor clerk.

Calculation done neither by Pleader not by clerk but by somebody else—Appeal filed 2 days after the period of limitation was over :

Held, that the case was not one for the exercise of the discretion of the Court under S. 5 as the mistake was not of the legal adviser or of his clerk but of somebody else who was in no better position than the man in the street. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 462=57 C.L.J. 39=145 Ind. Cas. 116.

——S. 5—Mistake in calculation—Differing opinion of two Judges about limitations—Appellant probably misled—Time should be extended.

Where there was a case decided by two Judges of the High Court, where one was of opinion that an appeal under S. 476-B, Cr.P. Code, must be treated as an ordinary appeal under the Cr.P. Code, but the other was of opinion that such an appeal must be treated as a miscellaneous civil appeal and regulated by O. 41, C.P. Code.

Held, that the difference of opinion between two Judges may afford a reasonable ground for a party to suppose that such an appeal was a civil appeal and he had 90 days' time from the date of the order to prefer an appeal and in such a case extension of time should be granted.

104 Ind. Cas. 456=46 C.L.J. 40=8 A.I. Cr.R. 433=28 Cr.L.J. 840=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 718.

——S. 5—Discretion under S. 5 should be exercised in favour of a party who has been misled by a judgment of the High Court in computing the period of limitation. 102 Ind. Cas. 123=A.I.R. 1927 Nag. 247.

——S. 5—Where an applicant on his own mistaken view files the appeal on the last possible day extension should not be granted. 94 Ind. Cas. 121 (Nag.).

——S. 5—An appellant who does not display promptitude must suffer if his calculation is wrong. 61 Ind. Cas. 889=A.I.R. 1921 Nag. 141.

——S. 5—Mistake in calculation.

A mistake in calculating the period of limitation for filing an appeal is not a sufficient cause for extending the period under S. 5 of the Act. 41 Mad. 855=35 M.L.J. 138=5 P.L.W. 179=8 L.W. 167=16 A.L.J. 725=(1918) M.W.N. 621=24 M.L.T. 231=28 C.L.J. 403=20 Bom.L.R. 1041=23 C.W.N. 177=46 Ind. Cas. 481=45 I.A. 156 (P.C.).

——S. 5—Mistake in calculation.

Mistake in calculating period of limitation is not sufficient cause of for extension. 46 Ind. Cas. 480 (Cal.).

——S. 5—Mistake in calculation.

If a man chooses to adopt his own method of calculation which is found to be erroneous, and files an appeal on the last possible day, no extension can be granted. 13 N.L.R. 89=40 Ind. Cas. 425.

——S. 5—Mistake of pleader—Mistake in calculation.

Delay caused by the mistake of the party's Vakil in calculating the time is sufficient cause for excusing delay under S. 5. 86 Ind. Cas. 114=21 M.L.W. 24=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 462.

——S. 5—Mistake in calculation—Bona fide miscalculation by pleader whether sufficient cause.

The expression sufficient cause in S. 5 should be liberally construed so as to advance substantial justice when no negligence nor inaction nor want of bona fides is imputable to appellant. A bona fide mistake by the pleader in calculating the period of limitation in consequence of which the appeal is filed out of time may constitute sufficient cause whcih must be decided by the court having regard to all the facts and circumstances of the case. 17 C.W.N. 807=19 Ind. Cas. 931.

13. Mistake of Court or its office.

——S. 5—The dictum that one of the first and highest duties of all Courts is to take care that the act of the Court does no injury to any of the suitors should be read together with S. 5, Limitation Act and the expression "sufficient cause" used therein should not be construed in too narrow a sense. A litigant is entitled to expect that the infringement of the rules and orders of the Court by the Judge should not hamper him in his appeal. A.I.R. 1941 Rang. 194=1941 Rang. L.R. 213=195 Ind. Cas. 296.

——S. 5—First Appellate Court pronouncing judgment without notice to parties, contrary to O. 41, r. 30, C.P. Code—Appellant in second appeal, if entitled to full statutory period from date of his knowledge of judgment.

Where the lower Appellate Court grants a decree to the appellant, but in contravention of the provisions of O. 41, r. 30, C.P. Code, pronounces the judgment some weeks later without giving notice to the parties, the appellant, in second appeal from such decision, cannot be prejudiced by the irregularity, committed by the first Appellate Court and under S. 5, must be granted the period allowed by statute in which to file the second appeal from the date on which he came to know of the judgment of the first Appellate Court. It would be to put a new standard into the law of limitation to say that when a Court made a mistake of this character the appellant was only to be given such time as the superior Court might, in the exercise of its judgment, think reasonable. The standard of what is reasonable depends upon the period of limitation which the Legislature has sought to impose in the first case. 1941 Rang. L.R. 213=A.I.R. 1941 Rang. 194=195. Ind. Cas. 296.

——S. 5—Where the necessity for filing the second memorandum late, arose out of the erroneous rejection of the first memorandum which had been filed within time, this in itself forms a sufficient ground for extending time under S. 5. A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 108=7 B.R. 126=22 P.L.T. 549=190 Ind. Cas. 671.

——S. 5—Error in certified copy.

Omission of the name of the Official Receiver from the array of parties to the appeal—Mistake caused by the error in certified copy of the judgment of the lower Court supplied to the appellant—Application to add the Official Receiver after the period of limitation has expired

Held, that the delay should be condoned under S. 5, and the name be added. A.I.R. 1941 Lah. 402=43 P.L.R. 471=I.L.R. (1942) Lah. 603=198 Ind. Cas. 726.

——S. 5—Charge against complainant under S. 211, Indian Penal Code—No opportunity to show cause why complaint should not be made, given to him—Complainant soon after knowing of complaint having been filed against him applying for copy of order of complaint and by that time, his appeal to High Court going out of time more than thirty days having elapsed :

Held, that the delay must be condoned. A.I.R. 1939 Sind 78=40 Cr.L.J. 449=I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 648.

——S. 5—Appeal from Civil Court's order filing complaint under S. 476, Cr.P. Code—Time to be computed from filing of complaint—Ignorance of filing of complain, sufficient cause to condone delay. (1938) 1938 N.L.J. 183.

——S. 5—Held, on facts that the delay was due to the mistake of the Court in giving wrong date on the copy of the decree and, therefore, the decree-holder should not be prejudiced by such mistake. 4 B.R. 427=A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 149=174 Ind. Cas. 397.

——S. 5—An appeal to Sessions Judge against conviction under S. 124-A, I.P.C., wrongly admitted and sentence reduced—Accused again appealing to the High Court, but beyond limitation :

Held, that there was sufficient cause for extension of time under S. 5. (1937) A.L.J. 365=A.I.R. 1937 All. 466=(1937) A.W.R. 401=38 Cr.L.J. 972=170 Ind. Cas. 874.

——S. 5—Copy of grounds of appeal not given along with copy of judgment by copying department.

An application for a copy of the grounds of appeal before the lower Appellate Court was made along with an application for the copy of the judgment appealed against and the copy of the grounds of appeal was not given along with the copy of the judgment by the negligence of the Copying Department. Subsequently, another application for the copy of the grounds of appeal was made on which a copy was given to the appellant :

Held, that the time should be extended under S. 5. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 691=39 P.L.R. 34=171 Ind. Cas. 812.

——S. 5—Where the reason why a defendant's name was omitted from the names of the respondents obviously was that his name did not find a place in the decree and he was impleaded later on within 30 days of the amendment :

Held, that the Appellate Court erred in the exercise of its discretion in dismissing the appeal merely on the ground that the appellant had not applied under S. 5,

Limitation Act. A.I.R. 1936 All. 666=1936 R.D. 300 (1)=(1936) A.W.R. 702=(1936) A.L.J. 1281=164 Ind. Cas. 1066.

——S. 5—Applicant misled by action of Court.

Where, due to the Action of the Copying Department in not following the rules prescribed, it may very well be urged on behalf of the appellant that he was misled into thinking that his period of limitation would exclude all the days from 29th August till 19th September, i.e., the period from the date of the application for the copy of the judgment and the decree to the date on which the copies were obtained ; inasmuch as where a person has been misled by the action of the Court or any officer of the Court, S. 5 should be applied. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 670=38 P.L.R. 852=161 Ind. Cas. 215.

——S. 5—Decree not clear—Respondent also filing appeal in wrong Court—Appellant filing appeal in wrong Court.

Where the decree as framed by the lower Court was not clearly worded and the plaintiff respondent was himself misled in choosing the forum, having been the first to file the appeal and the appellant subsequently filed the appeal in the wrong Court :

Held, that the provisions of S. 5, applied and the period during which the appeal remained pending in the wrong Court should be excluded. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 168=161 Ind. Cas. 251.

——S. 5—Application for copy made personally—Copying Department accepting it without objection and not demanding deposit of fees—Endorsement that certain number of days have been requisite for supply :

Held, that the applicant is entitled to deduction of the time required for getting the copies and the Court refusing an extension under S. 5, Limitation Act, errs in the exercise of its jurisdiction. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 693=38 P.L.R. 903=165 Ind. Cas. 516.

——S. 5—Delay in filing appeal due to wrong practice of Copying Department.

Where the delay in filing the appeal was due to the delay caused by Copying Agency on account of the erroneous practice prevailing in the District :

Held, that there was sufficient cause for not filing the appeal within the period of limitation. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 200.

——S. 5—Where any delay that took place in the applicant's getting copies of the judgment and decree was attributable more to the Copying Department of the trial Court than to the applicants, they are entitled to the benefit of S. 5, Limitation Act. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 132 =161 Ind. Cas. 457.

——S. 5—Where delay in filing an application for review is caused by the supply of wrong information on the part of the copying department which resulted in delay in getting the copy of the decree, a person making the application is not entitled to deduction, of time under S. 12 as of right. He has to satisfy the Court that the wrong information was given in circumstances for which he was not responsible, and if the Court is satisfied as to the justness of his contention, the Court will then extend the time under S. 5. Where the appeal, on the face of it, is time-barred, it is the duty of the applicant to append to his appeal the reason for the delay and to ask for condonation of the delay under S. 5.

An appellant is entitled to presume the accuracy of the figures which are given him in the copy of the judgment. A.I.R. 1935 Nag. 109=155 Ind. Cas. 588.

——S. 5—Where it is stated in the affidavit accompanying an application under S. 5 that the application was not made earlier because, at the time of presentation of the appeal, the Court accepted it as within time, and the appeal was presented in the High Court at the earliest opportunity after the memorandum had been returned by the District Judge :

Held, that there was, in the circumstances, sufficient cause for the appeal not being presented to the High Court earlier and that the period of limitation could be extended under S. 5. 1935 O.W.N. 168=A.I.R. 1935 Oudh 296=10 Luck 587=154 Ind. Cas. 125.

——S. 5—Where no application for leave to appeal from an order under S. 61, Provincial Insolvency Act has been made, it cannot be inferred that leave was granted because the appeal was admitted. Leave could be granted at the hearing and time extended under S. 5. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 33=149 Ind. Cas. 935 (1).

——S. 5—Order returning plaint for presentation to proper Court—Delay of office in returning :

Held, that the plaintiff, in computing period of limitation was entitled to exclusion of the period till the date he received the plaint back from the office. No litigant or party can suffer on account of the laches ro delay of the Court or its office. 34 P.L.R. 634=A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 611=144 Ind. Cas. 5.

——S. 5—Where the appellant claimed exclusion of time in respect of the copies of the judgment and the decree and it appeared that the copies were to be despatched by post and the appellant urged that he was never informed that any advance had first to be deposited by him and that, as a matter of fact, an order was passed in his presence that necessary copies be supplied :

Held, in revision, that in the circumstances extension of time under S. 5 ought to have been granted. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 260=145 Ind. Cas. 135.

——S. 5—Appellant prosecuting case in good faith and with diligence—Delay in filing appeal, if can be condoned.

Where the appellant has been prosecuting his case in good faith and with due diligence, but the case has not been tried on merits and the appellant has been sent from Court to Court without the matter in controversy being decided, the delary in filing appeal could be condoned under S. 5. A.I.R. 1933 Oudh 83.

——S. 5—The applicant who had applied for copies failed to supply the additional folios. It appeared, however, that he did not know of the deficiency and that when he came to know of it, he took the necessary steps in all haste. He filed the appeal seven days after vacation but the period for filing appeal had expired during vacation. It appreared, further, that the procedure of the copying department was not such that the applicant could be held to have received information of the deficiency :

Held, that the Court could, under the circumstances, excuse the delay in filing the appeal. 8 O.W.N. 191 = 6 Luck. 578=A.I.R. 1931 Oudh 314.

——S. 5—Mistake of Court—Mistake of Court is sufficient excuse.

Before an appeal is admitted, it is the duty of the Court to see that all the papers that should be filed have been filed before the Court. Where an appeal is filed without a copy of the decree and the Court instead of bringing the omission to the notice of appellant admits the appeal it cannot subsequently dismiss the appeal on the ground that it had not been filed in time and the appellant should not suffer for the fault of the Court in not discovering his mistake in time. 126 Ind. Cas. 641=A.I.R. 1930 Rang. 235.

——S. 5—Persons misled by order of Court can claim benefit of S. 5.

An appeal was filed without copy of decree. The appellant had filed an affidavit to the effect that he had made an application for copy but could not get it as no decree was found in the proceedings. The appellate Court granted the application for dispensing with the copy and to prosecute the appeal without it. When the copy was filed, the appeal was time-barred and consequently dismissed.

Held, that in view of the steps taken by the appellant when he filed an appeal and the order of the Court dispensing with the copy, the appellant must be considered to have exercised due care and attention. 127 Ind. Cas. 167=A.I.R. 1930 Rang. 182.

——S. 5—Where the date actually entered on the decree apparently misled the appellant it would obviously be a sufficient cause for admitting the appeal after time. 126 Ind. Cas. 543=A.I.R. 1930 Rang. 67.

——S. 5—Where the proper Court-fee was not paid within time owing to the fact that the value of purposes of Court-fees was not correctly given in the copy of the judgment appealed from.

Held, that an extension of time should be granted under the circumstances. 112 Ind. Cas. 455=29 P.L.R. 410=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 737.

———S. 5—Appellant misled by error of Court and paying insufficient Court-fee due to bona fide mistake is protected. 92 Ind. Cas. 319=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 509.

——S. 5—Legal representatives—Wrong.

Where on the death of the executor of one of two defendants, during the pendency of suit, plaintiff applied for substitution of heirs of defendant on the record and the Court without investigating under R. 5 whether the heirs were proper representatives directed the suit to proceed but subsequently at the appellate stage it transpired that the proper legal representative was the next executor and not heir of defendant and therefore the suit was contended to have abated.

Held, that plaintiff was misled by the order of Court allowing suit to proceed and should be entitled under S. 5 of the Limitation Act to have the abatement, if there was an abatement set aside. 93 Ind. Cas. 129= 4 Pat. 448=7 P.L.T. 431=1925 P.H.C.C. 345=A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 765.

——S. 5—When the appellants did not appeal in time owing to an omission on the part of the Trial Court in not mentioning their names in decree.

Held, that the delay, if at all, should be excused on the ground of honest mistake. 85 Ind. Cas. 627=A.I.R. 1925 All. 567.

——S. 5—Where a Court dismissed a suit as plaintiff was not ready with his witnesses as he had not paid the process fee in time but the Court drew up a decree after 17 months of such dismissal and that too after it was directed by the High Court so to do.

Held, that an appeal filed within time computed from the drawing up of the decree was in time and that the question of excusing delay did not arise in such a case. 78 Ind. Cas. 996=20 N.L.R. 131=A.I.R. 1924 Nag. 271.

——S. 5—Court's neglect to do its duty, namely, to draw up a decree, is a sufficient cause for excusing the delay. 78 Ind. Cas. 996=20 N.L.R. 131=A.I.R. 1924 Nag. 271.

——S. 5—Wrong order as to jurisdiction, Civil and Revenue Courts.

A pattidar sued for the recovery of revenue paid on account of the defendants, who were sub-pattidars. The Munsif before whom these suits were pending thought that they were excluded from the cognizance of the Civil Court. He returned the plaints for presentation to Revenue Court; the latter held that the suits were cognizable by the Civil Court. The order of the Revenue Court was upheld in appeal by the Deputy Commissioner. The plaintiffs then came back to the Civil Court and sought relief by filing the same plaints again in the Court of the Munsif. The Munsif then held that the decision in the previous proceedings operated as res judica'a. The plaintiff then filed two sets of appeals directed against the original order of the Munsif and against the subsequent order. The former set of appeals was barred by time.

Held, that time should be extended under S. 5. 74 Ind. Cas. 263=26 O.C. 56=A.I.R. 1923 Oudh 238.

——S. 5—Mistake of Court—Notice of judgment date not given.

A delay in filing an appeal caused by the failure of the Court to give notice of the date of delivery of judgment ought to be excused. A discretion exercised by the Court under S. 5 should not be interfered with on appeal unless exercised arbitrarily or illegally. 9 Bur.L.T. 250=38 Ind. Cas. 575.

——S. 5—Mistake of Court—Notice of judgment date not given.

Where a court delivers judgment without notice to the parties or their pleaders as prescribed in O. 20, R. 1, C.P. Code and the appeal becomes barred entirely through the negligence of the Judge, it is a fit case for excusing the delay. 8 Bur.L.T. 99=27 Ind. Cas. 784.

——S. 5—Mistake of Court—Decree of Appellate Court legally incorrect in form—Inability to obtain relief in lower Court—Remedy.

Where a decree of the Appellate Court is legally incorrect in form and so a decree-holder cannot obtain relief in the Lower Court, his remedy is for review of judgment of the Appellate Court and not for revision of the Lower Court's order and the time spent in seeking relief under the decree is allowable to him when he applies for a review. 1 O.L.J. 193=24 Ind. Cas. 113.

——S. 5—Mistake of Court—Appeal—Presentation in proper time to proper Court—Return of appeal—Subsequent presentation.

An appeal was presented within the period of limitation to the proper Court, which taking a wrong view of the jurisdiction value, returned it for presentation to the Chief Court where it was filed after the period of limitation.

Held, that as the appeal was presented in time to the Divisional Court, it was not barred. The Chief Court instead of returning the appeal for re-presentation to the Divisional Court treated it as transferred from that Court to its own file. 12 P.L.R. 1912 Sup.=276 P.W.R. 1912=16 Ind. Cas. 979.

14. Mistake of fact.

——S. 5—Mistake of fact—Gazetted holiday—Substitution of by another day—Second appeal.

When an appellant was misled by a particular day, gazetted public holiday being substituted by another day,

Held, that it was sufficient cause for excusing the delay and when the Lower Appellate Court does not apply its mind to the question, it can be considered in second appeal. 77 P.R. 1917=147 P.W.R. 1917= 42 Ind. Cas. 343.

——S. 5—Mistake of fact—Sufficient cause.

When a judgment disposes of two differently valued suits and the appellant being misled files an appeal, under the bona fide mistake in the Court of District Judge after time, the appeal is not time-barred under S. 5. 2 O.L.J. 562=32 Ind. Cas. 380.

——S. 5—Mistake of fact.

An appellant is bound to show that there has been no negligence, inaction or want of bona fides before he can claim an extension of time on the ground of a mistake of fact. When a pleader was misled as to the date of the decree the copy having been dated wrongly and the appeal unverified, was consequently filed out of tim there was no sufficient cause within the section to excuse the delay. 8 S.L.R. 235=28 Ind. Cas. 82.

——S. 5—Mistake of fact.

The Court can extend the period in favour of an appellant under S. 5 of the Act if he has omitted to include the name of a respondent on account of oversight or bona fide mistake. 12 A.L.J. 941=26 Ind. Cas. 68.

——S. 5—Mistake of fact—Two cross-appeals—Two decrees—Appellant believing in one decree—Sufficient cause.

Two cross-appeals were decided by an Appellate Court and two separate decrees were framed. A second appeal was filed in respect of only one decree. The appellant in the second appeal was misled into thinking that only one decree had been drawn up.

Held, that the appellant had sufficient cause within S. 5 for not filing the appeal as to the other decree within the prescribed period and should be allowed to file a copy of the other decree. 115 P.R. 1912=6 P.L.R. 1912 Supp.=191 P.W.R. 1912=15 Ind. Cas. 140.

——S. 5—Mistako of fact—Date on which copy ready.

A bona fide mistake as to the date on which the applicant was told by the copying department to come to take delivery of decree copy, is sufficient cause to justify extension of time under S. 5. Where an appellant has no notion at the time of filing his appeal that it is time-barred he cannot be expected to have explained the cause of delay at the time of filing the appeal. 71 P.W.R. 1911=79 P.L.R. 1911=9 Ind. Cas. 607.

15. Mistake of law.

——S. 5—Sufficient cause—Ignorance of law.

Ignorance of law is not a sufficient ground for condoning the delay in filing an appeal. 1949 R.D. 265.

——S. 5—Ignorance of law.

The ignorance of the law prevailing in the minds of the clients and their Counsel is no sufficient cause under S. 5. A.I.R. 1943 Oudh 57=1942 O.W.N. 438=1942 R.D. 850=1942 A.W.R. 114 and 292=203 Ind. Cas. 579.

——S. 5—Sufficient cause—Mistake of law.

An error of law is no ground for extending the period of limitation under S. 5, Limitation Act. A.I.R. 1943 Oudh 78=1942 O.W.N. 465=1942 A.W.R. 305=205 Ind. Cas. 628.

——S. 5—Bona fide ignorance of the law, where there is no question of bad faith or negligence can be, in proper cases, a good excuse for extension of time under S. 5, Limitation Act. A.I.R. 1937 Rang. 199=169 Ind. Cas. 398.

——S. 5—Mistako of law, when can be condoned.

A mistake of law is not a good ground for condonation under S. 5. The rule is subject to certain qualifications. There must be no negligence ; there must be no inaction ; and there must be no want of good faith ; a party who has legal advice at his elbow and does not choose to avail himself of it is either lacking in good faith, or is acting negligently and hence such a person is not entitled to condonation under S. 5. A.I.R. 1936 Nag. 246=167 Ind. Cas. 260.

——S. 5—Court-fees.

Where the only question is that the court-fees are payable ad valorem on a particular amount, there is no bona fide mistake justifying extension of time for appeal. 33 P.L.R. 12=142 Ind. Cas. 829 (1).

——S. 5—Where an appeal is preferred against decree based on a modified award instead of against order modifying award under a bona fide belief that such appeal lies, it is a good ground to allow extension of time under S. 5, Limitation Act. 36 C.W.N. 1069=A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 713=138 Ind. Cas. 848.

——S. 5—A mere mistake of law is not per se sufficient for asking the Court to exercise its discretion under S. 5. A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 171=36 C.W.N. 40=144 Ind. Cas. 561.

——S. 5—Ignorance of law as explanation for late objection.

Although ignorance of law is no excuse, it may explain why an objection was not raised at an early stage. (1931) A.L.J. 653=A.I.R. 1931 All. 689=53 All. 747=136 Ind. Cas. 353.

——S. 5—Mistake of law.

Ignorance of law cannot be sufficient excuse for not filing an application in time. 12 Bom. 320 and 12 All. 461, Foll. 117 Ind. Cas. 282=A.I.R. 1929 Nag. 74.

——S. 5—Misconstruing law is not sufficient cause.

The words "sufficient cause" should receive a liberal construction so as to advance substantial justice when no negligence nor inaction nor want of bona fides is imputable to the appellant but the mere fact that an appellant has misconstrued one of the rules and by reason of such mistake has omitted to bring his appeal in time is not a sufficient ground for enlarging the time for appeal. 104 Ind. Cas. 281=9 Lah. 76=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 216.

——S. 5—Sufficient cause—Test laid down.

If the mistake or carelessness is real and unintentional and no damage has been done to the other side that cannot be repaired by costs or otherwise, the application must be granted ; if on the other hand, the negligence is culpable.or there are mala fides on the part of the applicant, or irreparable hurt would result to the other side, the application must be dismissed.

Where a suit by a minor through next friend was conducted by the aged father of the next friend and on the death of a defendant, the suit abated as no L.R.'s were brought on record and ignorance of law was pleaded as an excuse.

Held, that the delay must be excused and the abatement set aside. 108 Ind. Cas. 288=27 M.L.W. 756=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 404=54 M.L.J. 234.

——S. 5—Bona fide ignorance of law can be "sufficient cause."

Where the appellant was an ignorant milkman with out any previous experience of litigation and pleaded his ignorance of his duty to substitute the legal representative of the deceased respondent though he was warned of the respondent's death.

Held, that in the circumstances of the case, the delay was bona fide and that sufficient cause was shown within the meaning of S. 5. 94 Ind. Cas. 929=29 C.W.N. 472=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 684.

——S. 5—Ignorance of law cannot be accepted as a sufficient cause for not filing an application for leave to appeal as pauper. 87 Ind. Cas. 952=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 602.

——S. 5—The fact of the plaintiff having made a mistake of law does not necessarily preclude him from obtaining the benefit of the section 45 Cal. 94. Foll. 78 Ind. Cas. 677=22 A.L.J. 365=5 L.R.A. Civ. 298=A.I.R. 1924 All. 867.

——S. 5—Rule newly passed—Ignorance of the rule is sufficient excuse.

Where the Lahore High Court made a rule on 17th October, 1917 that in the case of second appeals the memorandum of appeal shall, in addition to the copies specified in O. 41, R. 1, be accompanied by a copy of the judgment of the Court of the first instance, which was published in the Punjab Government Gazette of the 24th October, 1919, as Notification No. 4685-G and the appeals in question were filed on the 30th October, 1919 in other words, six days after the new rule was published in the Government Gazette,

Held, that there is a sufficient cause within the meaning of S. 5 for admitting the appeals beyond time, as there had not been sufficient time for the new rule to become well-known by the 30th October, 1919. 74 Ind. Cas. 451=4 Lah. 122=5 L.L.J. 246=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 41.

——S. 5—Ignorance of law is no excuse for delay and therefore the fact that the appellant previously was under the impression that limitation was 90 days for a Letters Patent Appeal in Lahore, is no excuse for not filing it within 30 days period prescribed by the rules. 61 Ind. Cas. 327=2 Lah. 127=3 L.L.J. 415=74 P.L.R. 1921=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 26.

——Ss. 5 and 12—Mistake of law—Leave to appeal to Privy Council—Two appeals one judgment—Delay in preparing decrees.

The practice of the Patna High Court being to insist upon the filing of the decree either along with the petition for leave to appeal to the Privy Council or if it is not ready to allow the decree to be filed later on, when it is obtained, the period of six months was not to be computed from the date when the decree was signed but from the date of the decision. The time actually spent in obtaining a copy of the decree could only be deducted under S. 12 (2) of the Limitation Act. 13 Cal. 104, Not Foll. 12 All. 461 (F.B.); 23 Bom. 442 ; 39 Cal. 766, Rel. Where there are two appeals decided by one and the same judgment two petitions for leave to appeal have to be presented in respect of the two decrees. The above practice being well known and the later decisions having settled the law, no indulgence could be granted under S. 5. 1 P.L.T. 262=57 Ind. Cas. 312.

——S. 5—Mistake of law—Stare decisis—Procedure—Discretion—Appellate Court.

The judicial discretion given by S. 5 of the Limitation Act to admit an appeal after the prescribed period of limitation should be exercised if the appeal has been prosecuted with due diligence. The time occupied by an application,in good faith for review of the judgment, although made on a mistaken view of the law, might be excused. The Privy Council refused to overrule this practice it having been acted upon for many years by all the courts in India though not warranted on a strict construction of the language of S. 5 of the Limitation Act, where in the exercise of a judicial discretion a Judge fails to apply a rule laid down for its exercise the Appellate Court should either remit the case or itself exercise the discretion. 45 Cal. 17=22 M.L.T. 403=22 C.W.N. 74=26 C.L.J. 557=16 A.L.J. 1=34 M.L.J. 1=20 Bom.L.R. 38=(1918) M.W.N. 16=7 L.W. 94=4 P.L.W. 1=44 I.A. 229=42 Ind. Cas. 849 (P.C.).

——S. 5—Mistake of Law—Mistaken proceedings.

Mistake of law is per se no ground for exclusion of time but when in fact erroneous proceedings are instituted owing to the mistake, extension may be granted. 45 Cal. 94=44 I.A. 218=33 M.L.J. 486=22 M.L.T. 362=6 L.W. 592=126 P.W.R. 1917=15 A.L.J. 777=19 Bom. L.R. 866=3 Pat.L.W. 313=26 C.L.J. 572=104 P.R. 1917=(1917) M.W.N. 811=22 C.W.N. 169=127 P.L.R. 1917=42 Ind. Cas. 43 (P.C.).

——S. 5—Mistake of law.

A bona fide mistake of law is a sufficient cause for excusing delay in presenting an appeal. Where a person mistook the preliminary order as a final order which a man of ordinary prudence would not have mistaken and filed an appeal against it beyond the period of limitation."

Held, that the mistake was not a "sufficient cause" for excusing the delay. (1917) M.W.N. 362=39 Ind. Cas. 975.

——S. 5—Mistake of law.

The respondent brought on record by an order passed before he was a party can challenge the validity thereof after he is made a party. A mistake of law is not 'used cient cause' unless it was made in 'good faith ,'i.e., in spite of due care and attention. A court should no doubt interpret the words "sufficient cause" liberally. but it must be in accordance with judicial principle. The apeal time must not be extended simply because the appellant's case is hard. 59 P.L.R. 1913=88 P.W.R. 1913=59 P.R. 1913=18 Ind. Cas. 37.

——S. 5—Mistake of law—Sufficient cause.

Ignorance by a pardanashin lady of the rule of procedure is not sufficient cause within S. 5 of the Limitation Act. 8 P.W.R. 1911=9 Ind. Cas. 222.

——S. 5—"Sufficient cause".

The fact that an appeal was not presented under the erroneous impression that a memo. of objection will lie as between co-respondent in a particular case is no sufficient cause within the meaning of S. 5. (1903) 30 C. 655.

16. Mistake of pleader.

See also NOTE 19.

——S. 5—Sufficient cause—Wrong legal advice owing to negligence or want of legal knowledge.

A bona fide mistake of fact or law will be a sufficient cause within the meaning of S. 5, Limitation Act, to excuse a delay, but it must have been committed bona fide, that is in spite of due care and caution. This means that every wrong advice given by the counsel will not amount to sufficient cause. It will amount to sufficient cause when the advice was given bona fide ; but it is was due to the negligence or gross want of legal skill on the part of the counsel, the mistake cannot be held to be a bona fide mistake. A.I.R. 1950 Raj. 2.

——S. 5—Sufficient cause—Wrong legal advice.

Where the delay is due to the wrong legal advice which though sound was wrong because of later rulings, it would be sufficient cause to excuse the delay. 1949 R.D. 35 (2).

——S. 5—Sufficient cause—Mistake of junior counsel.

S. 5 of the Limitation Act can only be invoked where the circumstances are exceptionally strong and justify its use. The mistake of a junior counsel which was responsible for the delay would not be a 'sufficient cause' within the meaning of S. 5. 1947 A.W.R. (Rev.) 105 (2).

——S. 5—Sufficient cause—Application for copies—Delay in making caused by erroneous advice of advocate—If sufficient cause for excusing delay.

Where the delay on the part of an appellant for applying for copies is caused by the advice, erroneous though it be, received by the appellant from his advocate, that is a sufficient cause for excusing the delay under S. 5, Limitation Act. I.L.R. (1946) Bom. 431=226 Ind. Cas. 95=48 Bom.L.R. 97=A.I.R. 1946 Bom. 437.

——S. 5—Su=cient cause—Delay 'caused by counsel's mistake.

It cannot be laid down as a general proposition that the delay caused by counsel's mistake can never be regarded as a sufficient cause within the meaning of S. 5 of the Limitation Act. 225 Ind. Cas. 291=48 P.L.R. 325=A.I.R. 1947 Lah. 76.

——S. 5—Where, on the mistaken advice by the Pleader who was not conversant with recent notification the party filed his appeal in the wrong Court.

Held, that there was sufficient causewithin the meaning of S. 5, Limitation Act and the time taken in transmitting the appeal from such Court to the proper Court should be excluded. A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 94=43 P.L.R. 502=199 Ind. Cas. 851.

——S. 5—Delay in filing appeal due to mistaken advice of Counsel—Mistake natural :

Held, there was sufficient cause for time being extended 1941 O.W.N. 1282=1941 A.W.R. C.C. 379=A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 125=17 Luck. 487=197 Ind. Cas. 723.

——S. 5—There is no provision in the Limitation Act which would entitle a party who has failed to file a cross objection within period of limitation to extension of time simply because his legal advicer was under a wrong impression. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 150=70 C.L.J. 397 =187 Ind. Cas. 416.

——S. 5—Mistake of Counsel, when justifies extension of time.

The mistaken advice of Counsel is not sufficient to justify extension of time under S. 5, unless the advice was given in good faith, that is, with due care and attention. A.I.R. 1939 Oudh 245=1939 O.W.N. 755= 1939 A.W.R. 123=1939 R.D. 467=14 Luck. 701= 183 Ind. Cas. 436.

——S. 5—Where there has been negligence or want of reasonable skill that such a skilled person as a legal adviser, might make, the litigant is entitled to indulgence But where there has been negligence or gross want of legal skill in the legal adviser and not a bona fide, mistake, the party should not be allowed to avail of the benefit of S. 5. (1938) 67 Cal.L. J. 107.

——S. 5—Mistaken advise of Counsel.

Held, that Counsel did not act in good faith and no extension could be granted. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 81= I.L.R. (1938) Lah. 379=40 P.L.R. 986=178 Ind. Cas. 510.

——S. 5—Delay, when can be condoned.

When the time for filing the appeal has once passed, a very valuable right is secured to the successful litigant and the Court must, therefore, by fully satisfied of the justice of the grounds on which the appellant seeks to obtain an extension of time for attacking the decree, and thus perhaps depriving the successful litigant of the advantages which he has obtained.

An appellant who wilfully leaves the preparation and presentation of his appeal to the last day of the period of limitation prescribed therefore, is guilty of negligence and is not entitled to an extension of time if some unexpected or unforeseen contingency prevents him from filing the appeal within time. Where an appellant relies on a letter of his Pleader's clerk and being misled by it as to the duration of the High Court's vacation, presents his appeal beyond the period of limitation, the cause is not sufficient as the applicant cannot be said to have acted with due care and attention. In fact the mistake of a Pleader's clerk amounts to the mistake of the party himself. There is no authority for the view that a mistake of a legal adviser, however gross and inexcusable, if bona fide acted upon by a litigant, will entitle him to the protection of S. 5. A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 156= I.L.R. (1938) Nag. 409=173 Ind. Cas. 369.

——S. 5—Advocate choosing wrong forum—No lack of due deligence.

The duty of the appellant is over when he consults a lawyer of a long standing who is known as a careful advocate. No amount of care or diligence on the part of any advocate can make him anticipate what view the Judge would take upon such a difficult matter as the valuation of a suit for the purpose of court-fees, where the value depended upon an addition or substraction of the amount claimed as mesne profits, past, present and future and the advocate cannot be said to have acted without due diligence if it is found by the Court that the appellant has taken a wrong forum of appeal and memorandum is returned to be presented to proper Court. In such a case, the time should be extended under S. 5, when the appeal is filed in a proper Court. A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 413=19 P.L.T. 309=17 Pat. 507= 4 B.R. 841=177 Ind. Cas. 564.

——S. 5—Party acting on advice of Counsel and filing appeal in wrong Court—Counsel found not negligent—Appeal presented before proper Court beyond limitation ;

Held, on facts there was 'sufficient cause' within S. 5, for extension of time. A.I.R. 1937 P.C. 276=46 M.L.W. 219=1937 O.W.N. 771=41 C.W.N. 1189= 3 B.R. 756=1937 R.D. 362=39 Bom.L.R. 1021= (1937) M.W.N. 937=18 P.L.T. 878=1937 A.W.R. 979= 31 S.L.R. 672=169 Ind. Cas. 769 (P.C.).

[Reversing : A.I.R. 1934 Oudh 360=11 O.W.N. 653].

——S. 5—Copy understamped.

Where the copy of trial Court's order refusing costs directed to be paid by Privy Council has been understamped on account of the impression which the Counsel has that orders passed in execution of the decree of His Majesty in Council have not the force of a decree and it is a bona fide mistake under S. 149, C.P. Code, the appellate Court can allow the appellant to make up the deficiency and under S. 5 condoned the period from the day on which the appeal was presented with an insufficiently stamped copy up to date. A.I.R. 1937 Pesh. 3=167 Ind. Cas. 879.

——S. 5—Extension of time to make up deficient court-fee—Error of Counsel not bona fide.

Where application for extension of time to pay deficient court-fee is not made by the Pleader till after about seven months since the time when the deficiency is discovered and the question of court-fee, not being difficult, the error of Counsel cannot be treated as a bona fide, one, refusal to grant time for making up the deficiency is proper. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 935=39 P.L.R. 448=167 Ind. Cas. 756.

——S. 5—Mistaken advice of Counsel.

Where a Counsel gives advice with due care and attention but nevertheless arrives at a mistaken conclusion and the appellant, misled by that advice, files in good faith an appeal beyond limitation, the Court is justified in admitting the appeal filed after limitation but not otherwise, and an appellant is not entitled to the benefit of S. 5 of the Limitation Act where he has acted in good faith on the advice of the Counsel, which advice has been given honestly, though negligently. The fact that the defendants were guilty of omission or commission by way of admissions or otherwise is immaterial when the Counsel of the plaintiffs has acted negligently in advising his clients to file the appeal in the wrong Court. 11 O.W.N. 1530=A.I.R. 1935 Oudh 108=153 Ind. Cas. 161.

——S. 5—Pleader authorised to entrust presentation of appeal to another Pleader entrusting it to another Pleader in good faith—Appeal presented by another Pleader without written authority—No objection at first hearing—Extension of time, should be granted. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 444 (2)=150 Ind. Cas. 731.

——S. 5—Whether a litigant is entitled to an extension of limitation owing to a mistake of his Pleader must depend entirely on the circumstances of the case. He is not precluded from showing that he acted on the advice given him by the Pleader, but that advice must be honest advice arrived at after study of the case. He is not entitled to extension of time if the advice of the Pleader was given recklessly and carelessly, (e.g., failure to notice the effect of a Full Bench decision concerning the law in the province where the pleader, himself, practices). A.I.R. 1934 Nag. 52 =141 Ind. Cas. 41.

——S. 5—Where, through honest mistake and advice of the Counsel and not due to carelessness or negligence on their part the appellants prefer their appeal in the Court of the District Judge instead of the Court of the Judicial Commissioner, where it properly lay, the appellants should not suffer for the mistake of their Counsel and an extension of time under S. 5, Limitation Act, should be given to them. A.I.R. 1934 Pesh. 57= 152 Ind. Cas. 323.

——S. 5—A legal adviser's mistake to justify extension of time must be a bona fide one, that is, his act must have been done with due care and attention. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 568=144 Ind. Cas. 627.

——S. 5—Filing of appeal in wrong Court through honest but careless and negligent advice of Counsel —Whether sufficient cause for exemption from bar of limitation—Practice of Courts in Oudh.

On the dismissal of an application for execution, the decree-holder filed an appeal in the Chief Court. On objection by the judgment-debtor that the appeal lay to the District Judge and not to the High Court, the memorandum of appeal was returned for presentation to the proper Court. The appeal was presented to the District Judge with an application under S. 5, read with S. 14, Limitation Act, praying that, in the circumstances of the case, the appellant should be deemed to have had sufficient cause for not filing the appeal within time. He also filed an affidavit stating that he had filed the appeal in the Chief Court on the advice given to him by a Vakil of the Subordinate Court and that the mistake was not pointed out to him even by the Advocate who filed the appeal in the Chief Court :

Held, that the appellant was not entitled to the benefit of S. 5, Limitation Act, though he had acted in good faith on the advice of Counsel which advice had been given honestly but negligently. 10 O.W.N. 1154= A.I.R. 1933 Oudh 523=9 Luck. 193=146 Ind. Cas. 127 (F.B.).

——S. 5—Copy of wrong decree filed by bona fide mistake.

Where, owing to a bona fide mistake, a copy of a decree which had been passed at an earlier stage of the suit was filed with a memorandum of appeal against a decree which had been subsequently passed and the applicant's Counsel, on discovering the mistake, filed a copy of the proper decree :

Held, that there was a proper case for condoning the delay under S. 5. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 1=33 P.L.R. 1085= 140 Ind. Cas. 495.

——S. 5—Where an Advocate, on proceeding to England left the matter of an appeal entirely to his clerk and his clerk misappropriated the copying charges sent by the client during his absence and absconded and the Advocate did not look into the matter even for three months after his return :

Held, that as reasonably due care had not been exercised by the Advocate, the delay could not be excused.

In the case of a mistake of an Advocate in order that the provisions of S. 5 of the Limitation Act may be invoked in favour of an appellant, it must be found that the error which caused the delay was one that might easily have occurred even if reasonably due care and attention had been exercised by the Advocate. A.I.R. 1933 Rang. 96=142 Ind. Cas. 185.

——S. 5—Bona fide but gross and inexcusable mistake of lawyer.

It cannot be laid down that a mistake of a legal adviser, however gross and inexcusable, if bona fide acted upon by a litigant, will entitle him to the protection of S. 5. In case where a suitor has suffered from negligence or gross want of legal skill of his legal adviser, he has his remedy against that legal adviser and meantime the suitor must suffer. But where there has been a bona fide mistake, not through misconduct or through negligence nor through want of reasonable skill, but such as a skilled person might make, there is no reason why the rights of the client should be forfeited thereby. In such cases, the client is entitled to indulgence. A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 589 =36 C.W.N. 420=59 Cal. 781=140 Ind. Cas. 662.

——S. 5—When the Counsel made bona fide mistake in failing to get a fresh power-of-attorney after the death of the party for the purposes of impleading the legal representative :

Held, that the Court could extend time under S. 5. 133 Ind. Cas. 877.

——S. 5—Under S. 5, a bona fide mistake on the part of a Pleader may be condoned, but gross negligence on his part cannot justifiably be condoned. In the latter case the client has his remedy against the legal adviser. A.I.R. 1931 Rang. 80=131 Ind. Cas. 507.

——S. 5—Mistake of pleader—Bona fide.

Though an error on the part of an advocate might be sufficient cause within the meaning of S. 5 the mistake or error must be a bona fide one, that is, it must have been made in spite of due care and attention having been exercised. Where the advocate does not himself consider that matter and accepts the statement of his clerk that 8 days are allowed for obtaining copies of decree and does not examine the paper himself to see whether the statement was correct, he cannot be said to have exercised due care and attention. A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 148, Foll. 127 Ind. Cas. 379=A.I.R. 1930 Rang. 209.

——S. 5—Mistake of pleader—Good faith—Counsel's advice.

When it is established in the first place that a Counsel has given advice with due care and attention but has nevertheless arrived at a mistaken conclusion, and that the appellants, misled by that advice, has in good faith filed an appeal beyond limitation, then when compliance has been made with all these conditions a Court is justified in admitting an appeal filed after limitation, but not otherwise. 28 All. 414 and 29 All. 638. Held broadly decided. 6 O.W.N. 1042=A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 49.

——S. 5—Where a party intending to engage a pleader executes a vaklatnama but by pure mistake omits to mention his name in the said vakalatnama and the pleader in his turn fails to endorse his acceptance and the mistakes are due to pure inadvertence and accident and do not proceed from any dishonest intention there is sufficient cause for extending the period of limitation of an appeal, which, though in proper form has been presented after a short delay. 121 Ind. Cas. 546=1930 A.L.J. 394=A.I.R. 1930 All. 112.

——S. 5—No doubt a bona fide mistake on the part of a pleader is sufficient cause for admitting an appeal after time, but no mistake is bona fide unless made in spite of due care and attention. Time cannot be excused under S. 5 on the ground that the pleader accepted the statement of the clerk of the Court that an application for copy would not be accepted until decree was signed 117 Ind. Cas. 251=7 Rang. 18=A.I.R. 1929 Rang. 116.

——S. 5—Mistake of pleader—Oversight.

The oversight of an advocate is a sufficient cause for extending the period of limitation. 34 C.W.N. 119.

——S. 5—Mistake of pleader—When sufficient.

The mistake of the vakil may be pleaded as sufficient ground under S. 5 to excuse limitation, but such mistake is not in all circumstances conclusive ground. 112 Ind. Cas. 307=A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 91.

——S. 5—The mistake of a legal practitioner or his clerk causing delay of one day was found sufficient cause within the meaning of S. 5 for condoning the delay. 108 Ind. Cas. 619=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 643.

——S. 5—Mistake of pleader—Party not bound.

In a matter falling under S. 5, the pleader does not act as an agent of his client and his act or default is not binding upon the latter within the meaning of S. 5. 111 Ind. Cas. 708=55 Cal. 798=32 C.W.N. 372=A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 468.

——S. 5—Mistake of pleader—Proceeding in wrong Court.

A mistake of a pleader cannot always and under all circumstances afford ground for extension of time under S. 5—Appeal filed in a wrong Court on the advice of a pleader—Appeal filed in proper Court after limitation.

Held, that the appellant was entitled to the extension of time as the appeal was wrongly filed before the District Judge on the advice of a pleader of some standing on whose words he had good reason to rely. 111 Ind. Cas. 708=55 Cal. 798=32 C.W.N. 372=A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 468.

——S. 5—An appeal filed on 17th September, 1926, was found to be one day beyond time. All the papers of this appeal had been made over to the pleader who thought that the appeal was not due till the 22nd, but at the instance of the appellant it was filed at an earlier date, viz., the 17th.

Held, that it was neither just nor proper that the plaintiff appellant should suffer for his pleader's mistake and hence he was entitled to an extension of time under the provisions of S. 5. 105 Ind. Cas. 217=46 C.L.J. 257=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 829.

——S. 5—A bona fide mistake on the part of a pleader may be sufficient cause within the meanirg of S. 5. But no mistake is bona fide unless made in spite of due care and attention. A.I.R. 1927 Rang. 20, Foll. 101 Ind. Cas. 363=5 Bur.L.J. 227.

——S. 5—Mistake of pleader—Negligence.

Whether a mistake made by a counsel does or does not amount to sufficient ground for extending time within S. 5, depends upon the peculiar facts of each case and it is not possible to lay down a hard and fast rule applicable to all cases.

But if the mistake on the part of counsel cannot be said to be due to inadvertence or ignorance but is manifestly the result of sheer carelessness, i.e., a total lack of due care and attention ; it cannot be a ground for extending time. 93 I.C. 876 and 95 P.R. 1917, Foll. 110 Ind. Cas. 533 (Lah.).

——S. 5—Mistake of pleader—Honest mistake.

An honest mistake that is committed by a litigant because of an incorrect advice given to him by his lawyer, constitutes a sufficient cause for extending the period of limitation for filing an appeal. A.I.R. 1922 All. 490 (F.B.), Foll. 101 Ind. Cas. 777=8 L.R.A. (Rev.) 1109=A.I.R. 1927 All. 758.

——S. 5—Though a bona fide mistake on the part of a pleader may be sufficient cause for admitting an appeal after time, no mistake is bona fide unless made in spite of due care and attention. A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 148, Foll. 98 Ind. Cas. 417=4 Rang. 265=5 Bur.L.J. 187=A.I.R. 1927 Rang. 20.

——S. 5—Where the delay in filing the copy of the first Court's judgment was due to the fact that the pleader in his remainder for a copy stated by mistake that a copy of the decree was wanted instead of mentioning that a copy of the judgment was required, but the original application was only for a copy of the judgment, Held, there was sufficient cause to excuse the delay. 94 Ind. Cas. 629=8 L.L.J. 101=27 P.L.R. 239=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 92.

——S. 5—The delay in filing an appeal caused by honest mistake of the party's Vakil in calculating the time is sufficient cause for excusing the delay under S. 5. A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 462, Foll. 96 Ind. Cas. 857=7 A.I. Cr.R. 28=9 N.L.J. 180=27 Cr.L.J. 1001=A.I.R. 1926 Nag. 503.

——S. 5—Whether a mistake on the part of a pleader is or is not a sufficient cause for the extension of time will depend on the facts of each case. 95 P.R. 1917, Foll. Where a suit is deliberately undervalued in order to minimise the cost of litigation and as a result the appeal is filed in a wrong Court, the delay caused due to such mistake cannot be excused. 93 Ind. Cas. 876 (Lah.).

——S. 5—It is not each and every mistake of a Counsel which per se is to be considered a sufficient ground for automatically giving his client the benefit of S. 5. Where a party has a vested right in the order of the lower Court in his favour which is sought to be attacked in appeal he should not be deprived of this advantage unless there has been on his part some conduct raising an enquiry against him, or unless there has been some inevitable accident. 92 Ind. Cas. 33=A.I.R. 1926 Nag. 162.

——S. 5—General rule as to discretion must be applied to each case—Discretion must be judicially exercised and on materials judicially cognizable.

The true guide for a Court in the exercise of discretion is whether the appellant has acted with reasonable diligence in prosecuting his appeal and, that he ought ordinarily to be deemed to have acted with ordinary diligence when the whole period between the date of the decree appealed against and the date of presenting the appeal does not after excluding the time spent in prosecuting with due diligence another proceeding challenging the judgment exceed the period prescribed by law for presenting the appeal. 45 Cal. 94, Foll. There may be a general rule as to the exercise of discretion but each case must nevertheless be examined as to its own circumstances to see whether they make it fall within the terms of the general rule. The discretion in admitting an appeal under S. 5 must be judicially exercised and must be based on materials judicially cognisable though it has been held that a bona fide mistake of a pleader affords sufficient cause for admitting an appeal after time that mistake must have been one made in spite of due care and attention that had been exercised. Fact that the error had escaped the attention of the counsel for the respondent and also that of the Judge does not affect the matter in the slightest degree. The real question is whether the error was one that is in any way excusable or whether it was one which might easily have occurred even if reasonably due care and attention had been exercised by the Advocate. In some cases, no doubt, such as when there is a reald oubt as to the forum or the question is for some reason difficult to decide, the fact that it has not been observed by other people may tend to excuse the mistake. But where there was a mistake that can only be accounted for by the fact that no care at all was taken, that no consideration was given to the question as to the forum in which the appeal lay and the very obvious necessity for considering the value of the lands for purposes of jurisdiction was entirely neglected.

Held, there is no sufficient cause for admitting the appeal after due date. 77 Ind. Cas. 385=1 Rang. 584 =A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 148.

——S. 5—Where the only excuse put forward in the affidavit for not filing the appeal within time was that the appellants had no knowledge, before the order of the District Judge returning the memorandum of appeal, that it had to be presented to the High Court but there was sufficient room to hold that they had such knowledge, and the same pleader had been working for the appellants and had filed various appeals rightly, in connection with this case.

Held, the mistake pleaded in this case was not bona fide and extension was refused. 72 Ind. Cas. 732=28 P.W.R. 1923=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 612.

——S. 5—It could not be laid down as an inflexible rule of law that in no case can be circumstance that a litigant has under the erroneous advice of Counsel or Pleader, presented on appeal out of time, be deemed a sufficient cause' within the meaning of S. 5. Where the mistake is of such a description that it may arise even amongst practitioners of experience, a litigant should not be made to suffer for such an error.

A person could not deduct the same perod twice over and where a legal practitioner though he could.

Held, that such a mistake cannot be sufficient cause. 63 Ind. Cas. 278=3 P.L.T. 96=6 P.L.J. 237=A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 140.

——S. 5—An honest though a negligent mistake about High Court practice by a pleader in the muffasil was held to be a sufficient cause for extending the period of limitation under S. 5 in the present state of the profession in the muffasil. 68 Ind. Cas. 812=44 All. 636= 20 A.L.J. 674=A.I.R. 1922 All. 490 (F.B.).

——S. 5—S. 5 of the Act must be applied under equity to a case where an appeal is filed in time and no laches can be attributed to the appellant, but the pleader through oversight did not sign the memorandum of appeal. 63 Ind. Cas. 726 (Lah.).

——S. 5—Where an appeal is preferred in the wrong Court, on the advice of a pleader, want of good faith need not be necessarily presumed. "In good faith" means honestly though negligently. 20 Bom. 133, Foll. 60 Ind. Cas. 744=45 Bom. 607=23 Bom.L.R. 89=A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 302.

——S. 5 and Art. 152—Mistake of pleader.

An appeal which lay to the District Court was presented under wrong legal advice to the High Court which returned it for presentation to the District Court. At the time of presentation to the District Court the time for appealing to that court had expired, but the appeal would have been in time if it lay to the High Court. The District Judge admitted the appeal ex parte subject to objections on the ground of limitation. The appeal was afterwards transferred to the High Court, which excused the delay holding that the mistake of appellant's legal adviser was sufficient cause within S. 5.

Held, that the order of the High Court was proper. 45 Cal. 94 (P.C.), Foll. 43 Bom. 376=1919 M.W.N. 254=23 C.W.N. 753=20 Bom.L.R. 1148=46 I.A. 15= 52 Ind. Cas. 897 (P.C.).

——S. 5—Mistake of pleader—Bona fide advice based on false information.

An honest and bona fide advice of a legal adviser given upon an untrue statement of facts by the party is not a sufficient cause within S. 5 of the Limitation Act. 49 Ind. Cas. 1000 (Pat.).

——S. 5—Mistake of pleader—Recalling order excusing delay.

In order that a mistake of the pleader may be sufficient cause for granting an extension of time under S. 5, there must be a proper evidence establishing that a bona fide mistake was committed. A Judge has power to revoke an order excusing delay before the appeal is admitted. 45 Ind. Cas. 725 (Cal.).

——S. 5—Mistake of pleader.

A legal advisor's mistake in order to justify an extension of time must be a bona fide one. Filing an appeal in a court which has obviously no jurisdiction cannot be considered to be a bona fide mistake. A mistake is not bona fide if it is done without due care and attention. 10 P.L.R. 1918=69 P.W.R. 1918=45 Ind. Cas. 542.

——S. 5—Mistake of pleader.

A legal advisor's mistake to justify an extension under S. 5 of the Limitation Act, must be a bona fide one. 95 P.R. 1917=174 P.W.R. 1917=13 P.L.R. 1918=43 Ind. Cas. 317.

——S. 5—Mistake of pleader.

A pleader's mistake is a good ground for admitting a time-barred appeal, when the mistake is bona fide, i.e., made in of due care and attention. 8 L.B.R. 566=10 Bur.L.T. 221=37 Ind. Cas. 815.

——S. 5—Mistake of pleader.

Where an appeal was filed out of time under the advice of a pleader who was misled by a change in law, it was held that there was sufficient cause under S. 5 for not filing within time. 17 C.W.N. 807, Foll. 37 P.W.R. 1916=32 Ind. Cas. 640.

——S. 5—Mistake of pleader.

Where an advocate's firm delayed presenting an appeal by two days after the last date for filing it, despite their knowledge that costs and fees had been sent to them by Telegraph money-order which could not be received owing to the absence of the member of the firm to whom it was addressed.

Held, there was no sufficient cause to excuse the delay. 27 Ind. Cas. 639 (L.B.).

——S. 5—Mistake of pleader—Omission to file copy of decree.

Where the copy of the decree appealed from had been given to the vakil but by an unexplicable mistake it had not been filed along with the memorandum of appeal and the vakil had since died the High Court extended the time under S. 5 of Limitation Act. 17 C.L.J. 66=17 Ind. Cas. 155.

——S. 5—Mistake of pleader.

The plaintiffs correctly valued their claim for Court Fees at a certain sum; but for the sake of jurisdiction they valued it erroneously due to the legal adviser's omission to give effect to S. 8 of Suits Valuations Act. Defendants did not raise objection to the same. Plaintiff's case was dismissed and they appealed to the District Judge where also they did not object at once but asked for an adjournment. At the hearing they raised the objection on which the memorandum of appeal was returned to be presented to the High Court. They promptly filed at before the High Court but after the expiry of due period.

Held, that sufficient cause required by S. 5 of the Limitation Act had been made out and the appeal, ought to be admitted even though out of time as some responsibility was on the defendant for the difficulty which the plaintiffs presently experienced. 16 C.L.J. 366=16 Ind. Cas. 425.

——S. 5—Mistake of pleader.

Though generally erroneous advice of pleader is not a sufficient cause, a litigant should not be made to suffer for the pleader's error if the mistake is of such a nature as would mislead even experienced practitioners. The true test is whether the litigant has acted under honest though mistaken belief, formed with due care and attention. 12 Ind. Cas. 677 (Cal.).

——S. 5—Mistake of pleader.

A mistake of law by an advocate showing lack of ordinary diligence is not a sufficient cause within S. 5 of the Limitation Act. 4 Bur.L.T. 175=11 Ind. Cas. 812.

——S. 5—"Sufficient cause"—"Bona fide misled" by pleaders as to court to which appeal lay.

The fact that the appellant was bona fide misled by advice of his pleaders as to the court to which the appeal lay is "sufficient cause" within the meaning of this section. 1903 A.W.N. 32. See also (1) 1906 A.W.N. 67=3 A.L.J. 218=28 A. 414.

(2) 1907 A.W.N. 219=4 A.L.J. 515=29 A. 638.

17. Mistake or fraud of pleader's clerk.

——S. 5—Application to set aside ex parte small cause decree—Delay in depositing amount due to bona fide mistake of Pleader's clerk:

Held, that the applicant was entitled to the benefit of S. 5 whether the mistake was on the part of the vakil or his clerk is immaterial if it is bona fide. 61 M.L.J. 710=34 L.W. 795=A.I.R. 1932 Mad. 142=135 Ind. Cas. 737.

——S. 5—Mistake of Counsel's clerk.

Mistake on the part of counsel's clerk cannot be considered a sufficient ground for extension of time under S. 5. A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 401, Foll. 110 Ind. Cas. 374=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 488.

——S. 5—Where an appeal is filed a day later, through oversight of the counsel's clerk, time may be extended under S. 5. 98 Ind. Cas. 514=8 L.L.J. 479=27 P.L.R. 623=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 693.

——S. 5—Mistake of the pleader's clerk is not sufficient cause.

The mistake of the clerk of the pleader does not stand on a higher plan than a mistake of a party and is no ground of extension of time under S. 5. 82 Ind. Cas. 484=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 189.

——S. 5—Where an appeal is not filed in time due to a deliberate fraud of the Counsel's clerk and there is no fault on the part of the client who has paid everything required to be paid by him or on the part of the Counsel who trusted his clerk, there is sufficient reason for the extension of time under S. 5, Limitation Act. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 986.

18. Negligence of party.

——S. 5—Party asking Counsel to file appeal and leaving it entirely to him to take necessary steps —Appeal filed in wrong Court:

Held, that the litigant cannot be said to have acted in good faith unless lawyer so acted. 1939 Rang.L.R. 639=A.I.R. 1940 Rang. 14=186 Ind. Cas. 715.

——S. 5—Negligence of party.

Where the applicant has been negligent in leaving the matter in the hands of his counsel without making any enquiry about his application for four months he is not entitled to the benefit of S. 5 Negligence on the part of the pleader's clerk is negligence on the part of the party and is not sufficient cause within the meaning of S. 5. 118 Ind. Cas. 212=A.I.R. 1929 Sind 206.

——S. 5—Setting aside ex parte decree—Gross Negligence of defendant.

Where the defendant did not apply to set aside an ex parte decree in a proper manner in the proper Court, but instead filed an appeal beyond limitation together with an application to extend the time:

Held, that the defendant was guilty of gross negligence and carelessness in the matter, and no case was made out to grant an extension of time under S. 5, Limitation Act. 11 O.W.N. 256=A.I.R. 1934 Oudh 131 (1)=151 Ind. Cas. 529 (1).

——S. 5—Sufficient cause—Agent's mistake or negligence.

It is possible for the act of an agent done within time to be subsequently ratified by the principal and in such circumstances, the act becomes the act of the principal even though when it was performed, it was performed without his knowledge or approval. Subsequent approval means the adoption of the act of the agent by the principal as to the date when the agent performed the act. 15 P.L.T. 233=A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 290 (2)=149 Ind. Cas. 596.

——S. 5—Application for copies was returned—Application not represented in time-applicant saying that he waited till the printing charges were called for by Court—Court could not compute charges as application was with the vakil's clerk.

Held, that the excuse put forward was not one which would excuse delay. 1932 M.W.N. 328.

——S. 5—Sufficient cause for non-presentation on last day—Antecedent inaction or negligence of appellant, whether material.

Where the appellant sent all the documents relating to the appeal to his Counsel on the last day of limitation but the Counsel, being too busy with more pressing work, was unable to examine the papers and on looking into them, when he returned from the office in the evening discovered that the period of limitation had expired on the same day, and the appeal was presented the next day with an application for an extension of time under S. 5:

Held, per Suhrawardy and Mitter; JJ. (Graham, J., contra.)—That sufficient cause for exercise of powers under S. 5 had been made out inasmuch as it was only through accident that the appeal was not filed in time and the delay caused was not due to any fault on the part of the client.

Per Graham, J., Contra.—The cause required to be shown applies not to any particular part of the period but to the entire period and if no explanation whatever be forthcoming why the appeal was not filed during the major portion of the period of limitation, an explanation, designed merely to explain why it was no filed on the last day before it became time-barred is insufficient. 34 C.W.N. 1119=A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 298=58 Cal. 549.

——S. 5—A judgment was delivered on October 19, 1925. An application for a copy was made on December 11. The plaintiff's attorney sent a letter on January 21, 1926, stating that he had applied in December for the copies to be sent to him by post, but there was in fact; no such application; The appellant waited till January,25 , when he arranged with another person to get the copies. The latter got the copies on January, 27; and the appeal was filed on February 4, a fortnight after the correct time.

Held that there was no ground for extending time. 24 S.L.R. 415=A.I.R. 1931 Sind 58.

——S. 5—An appellant, filing an appeal after the expiry of limitation owing to stupid misconstruction of the lower Court's order appealed against is not entitled to the benefit given under S. 5. 91 Ind. Cas. 867=13 O.L.J. 172=A.I.R. 1926 Oudh 206.

——S. 5—Negligence of client's agent is not sufficient cause.

The appeal was decided in the Court below on the 28th March. About 6 weeks later the appellant's agent went to a pleader's clerk and deposited Rs. 6 with him to obtain copies. No instructions were given to the pleader himself. A week later the Subordinate Courts closed for thirty days for the vacation. The copies were not applied for till 27th June, a week after the Courts re-opened, and were obtained on July 3. Even then the copy of the judgment of the Trial Court was not applied for and this was obtained between July 3 and July 5.

Held, that no sufficient cause was proved so as to admit the appeal beyond time. 75 Ind. Cas. 254=21 A.L.J. 817=4 L.R.A. Civ. 580=A.I.R. 1924 All. 176.

——S. 5—Sufficient cause—Great laches disentitle party to benefit of section.

The decision appealed against was dated the 20th June, 1921. An application for copies of the decrees and the lower Appellate Court's order was filed on the 27th June of 1921 and those copies appeared to have been received by the appeliant on the 9th of July, 1921. The appeal itself was filed on the 4th of October, 1921, and was returned on the same date on the ground that it was not accompanied by a copy of the judgment of the Trial Court. The appellant appeared to have done nothing further in the matter until the 26th October, 1921; when he applied for a copy of the necessary judgment which was ready on the 31st of that month and actually delivered to the appellant on the 7th of November, 1921. The appeal was then re-filed on the 22nd of November, 1921, Held, even allowing for the fact that Kangra is at some distance from Lahore and the parties are Jats, this delay is unwarranted and time cannot be extended. 79 Ind. Cas. 812=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 208.

——S. 5—Where there is want of due diligence in the filing of an appeal within the proper time, the appellant is not entitled to any extension of time. 68 Ind. Cas. 792=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 98.

——S. 5—Where an appeal which was returned was not represented for 3 weeks though appellant could have easily done so.

Held, no sufficient cause is made out. 4 L.L.J. 475=39 P.L.R. 1922=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 95.

——S. 5—Where the last day of limitation was 25th June, 1919 and the appellant applied for copy of the Trial Court's judgment by post on the 24th June, 1919, but the application did not reach the Copyist Department till the 2nd July, 1919.

Held, that period between the 25th June and 2nd July cannot be excused. 72 Ind. Cas. 797=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 415.

——S. 5—In two appeals one judgment was passed but two decrees were made, Plaintiff in second appeal, filed along with the memo. of appeal copies of decree and judgment in one appeal only. to which the parties in other appeal were not parties. Subsequently they produced the other decree and prayed for excusing the delay.

Held, it would not be fair to them to extend the time under S. 5. 77 Ind. Cas. 541=3 Lah. 215=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 390.

——S. 5—Where negligence of the party is alone responsible for the delay in filing the copy of the lower Court's decree, time need not be extended. 4 L.L.J. 381=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 266.

——S. 5—The delay caused in filing an appeal by applying for a translation of the judgment appealed against due to ignorance or to carelessness cannot be excused under S. 5 of the Lim. Act as an appellant guilty of such delay cannot be said to have acted bona fide, i.e., with due care and attention. 59 Ind. Cas. 965 (Lah.).

——S. 5—Negligence of party—Notice of judgment—Date.

In the absence of any indication to the contrary it must be presumed that the notice required under O. 20, R. 1; C. P. Code was given. A person who wishes to take advantage of S. 5 must show that he has not been negligent and that he has been prosecuting his case with due deligence. 22 O.C. 379=2 U.P.L.R. (J.C.) 60=55 Ind. Cas. 837.

——S. 5—Negligence of party—Carelessness.

Delay due to carelessness is not sufficient cause to enable a Court to excuse delay under S. 5 of the Limitation Act. 55 Ind. Cas. 271 (Pat.)

——S. 5—Negligence of party—Negligence of servant or agent.

The Court can extend time under S. 5 only for sufficient cause. The negligence of a servant in the performance of the duties entrusted to him does not amount to sufficient cause. 55 Ind. Cas. 17 (Pat.)

——S. 5—Negligence of party—Delay — Explanation—Negligence of servant.

Where law provides a time limit within which a step is to be taken and a party waits until the last moment before taking that a step, he is not entitled to the Court's indulgence if an accident prevents the step from being taken within the time. A party is not entitled to plead the negligence of his servants as a ground for excusing delay. 3 Pat.L.J. 381=52 Ind. Cas. 225.

——Ss. 5 and 2 (7)—Negligence of party—Due care on appellant's part required.

Due care and attention are required on the part of an appellant to warrant an extension of the appeal time by the Court under S. 5 of the Act. 27 P.W.R. 1917=37 Ind. Cas. 828.

——S. 5—Negligence of party—No extension of to negligent appellant.

An extension of time to appeal cannot be granted on the ground of unforeseen contingency in the case of negligent appellant postponing to present the appeal till the last day of the prescribed period. 12 N.L.R. 171=37 Ind. Cas. 503.

——S. 5—Negligence of party—Appeal filed with copy of the judgment but without copy of decree.

Appeal filed without copy of decree though with copy of judgment is not properly presented and becomes barred if the copy of decree is filed after the period of limitation. 8 P.W.R. 1911=9 Ind. Cas. 222.

——S. 5—"Sufficient cause" — Each day's delay should be explained—Mistakes of unqualified agent, no excuse — Want of funds, no sufficient cause.

The words "sufficient cause" in S. 5 should receive a liberal construction so as to advance substantial justice when of no negligence nor inaction nor want bona fides is imputable to the appellant. A client who entrusts his business wholly to an unqualified man cannot be heid to have acted without negligence and bona fide, i.e.: with due care and attention, and he cannot be allowed to plead the mistake made by his unqualified agent as sufficient cause within the meaning of the section. Want of funds is not sufficient cause within the meaning of S. 5, Cl. (2). An appellant who invokes the discretion vested in the courts by reason of S. 5 is bound to give a proper explanation for every day's delay. (1908) 19 M.L.J. 209=5 M.L.T. 28=1 Ind. Cas. 73. See also 25 M. 166=11 M.L.J. 406.

19. Negligence of pleader.

See also NOTE 16.

——S. 5—Sufficient cause — Negligence of counsel.

Negligence of counsel is no ground for giving the benefit of S. 5 of the Limitation Act. 1948 R.D. 433.

——S. 5—Party in position of Municipal Board, if can be relieved from the hardship caused by negligence of counsel.

Held, on facts, that though it was easy to conceive of circumstances where Counsel might be faced with two possible views, and if he honestly took one view rather than the other, his advice given on the strength of this view and acted upon by the litigant, could not be deemed to be advice given negligently, yet the present was not a case in which there was the slightest justification for the Counsel for the Municipal Board in spite of the amended limitation having been in force for nearly 23 years, to think or to labour under any misapprehension that the old period of limitation was still in vogue. It is an elementary proposition that ignorance of law is no excuse and the presumption that the law is well known and well understood was particularly strong in the case of responsible public bodies, such as the Municipal Board which, including the Chairman, had several legal gentlemen represented on it. A.I.R. 1944 Oudh 135=1944 O.W.N. 118=1944 A.W.R. C.C. 92=211 Ind. Cas. 499.

——S. 5—Held, that after sending the copies of judgment and decree to a senior lawyer for filing the application for leave to appeal to the Privy Council, the Municipal Board was not completely absolved of its responsibility to see that necessary steps were taken by the Counsel in the matter. The Municipal Pleader, or any other official of the Legal Department, could very easily have been deputed to see that action was taken by Counsel in pursuance of the Board's resolution. The alleged misapprehension in the mind of the Counsel as to the period of limitation in filing the application on the ground that he relied on the old edition of the standard commentary on the Lim. Act, could not be said to be bona fide misapprehension. Such negligence of Counsel in the circumstances of the case did not entitle the Board to urge that it was prevented by any sufficient cause from filing the application for leave within time. 1944 O.W.N. 118=A.I.R. 1944 Oudh 135=1944 A.W.R. 92=211 Ind. Cas. 499.

——S. 5—Appeal filed with deficit court fee—Order for making good deficiency within time fixed—Appeal rejected on default:

Held, that extension cannot be granted as it is the appellant's business, or the business of any Pleader who is acting for him in connection with this matter, to ascertain the date fixed for the depositing the deficit court-fees. In a case of this sort, it is expected that Pleaders shall make themselves acquainted with the nature of the orders passed and it is not the duty of the Court to send record to the Pleaders in order that their signatures may be taken on the order sheet. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 530=71 C.L.J. 540=191 Ind. Cas. 701.

——S. 5—'Good faith', if necessary to bring a case under S. 5.

In order to bring a case within the purview of S. 5, the element of "good faith" is necessary.

Where an appeal lies to the District Court but is preferred to the Chief Court and is returned for presentation to proper Court and there is no proof that the presentation of appeal to the Chief Court was due to the Council's bona fide mistake, it is a case of gross negligence and cannot be excused and the appellant is not entitled to the benefit of S. 5. 10 O.W.N. 1247=A.I.R. 1934 Oudh 10=147 Ind. Cas. 799 (1).

——S. 5—Negligence of pleader—No ground for extension of time.

A woman advised by her pleader filed a suit valuing her claims for jurisdiction and pleader's fee at an amount bringing it within the category of special jurisdiction cases, appeal from which lay to High Court. The case was admitted and registered as special jurisdiction case and was treated as such throughout the proceedings. From the decree in that suit the woman acting on the advice of the same pleader preferred an appeal to the District Court. The appeal was returned for want of jurisdiction and was subsequently presented to High Court. On the day when it was presented to High Court, it was out of time. The woman claimed extension under S. 5.

Held, that there was no likelihood of any reasonable or bona fide belief that the suit was not a special jurisdiction case and the appeal lay to the District Court; that the advice given by the pleader was result of negligence and not of any bona fide or considered belief and the woman was not entitled to extension of time and the appeal was barred. A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 148; 34 Cal. 216, Foll. 31 Bom.L.R. 954=A.I.R. 1929 Bom. 393.

——S. 5—The carelessness of the pleader is no ground for extending the period of limitation. 114 Ind. Cas. 101=A.I.R. 1929 Sind 32.

——S. 5—Where the appellant's Counsel acted with gross negligence in valuing the appeal, and thus it was presented with insufficient Court-fees and the deficit was made good beyond limitation, Held, that the delay in making good the deficiency that occurred in consequence of clear negligence cannot be condoned. A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 233; 1 Lah. 234 and 55 P.R. 1913, Foll. 102 Ind. Cas. 615=9 L.L.J. 290=28 P.L.R. 338=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 884.

——S. 5—Omission to implead a person as respondent owing to negligence in drafting the appeal is no ground for extending the time for impleading him. 99 Ind. Cas. 619=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 118.

——S. 5—A bona fide act is one done with due care and attention.

Where clear provisions of the Court-fees Act were brought to the notice of the party's Counsel and he was asked to make up the deficit Court-fees, but Counsel and the party were both negligent in not paying the deficit Court-fee.

Held, there was no ground to extend the time. 92 Ind. Cas. 991=27 P.L.R. 91=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 343.

——S. 5—The fact that an appeal is presented beyond time owing to forgetfulness of the appellant's Counsel is not a sufficient reason for excusing delay under S. 5. 85 Ind. Cas. 693=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 374.

——S. 5—Where an appeal was filed without the order appealed against being stamped and the same was returned and filed again with proper stamp but out of limitation.

Held, a Counsel when filing an appeal ought to see that all the documents which require stamp are properly stamped. He cannot shelter himself behind his clerk, and if his clerk has been guilty of any carelessness he is responsible for that. 71 Ind. Cas. 736=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 401.

——S. 5—Where the mistake of pleader is pleaded as a ground for extension of time but it is found that the pleader was negligent in advising his client, no extension would be allowed. 72 Ind. Cas. 158=A.I.R. 1923 Nag. 133.

——S. 5—Negligence of pleader.

Where it is shown that an Advocate who is a Barrister or other professional gentleman, received and accepted instructions to file an appeal or make an application and the client lost his right to appeal or make the application as a result of the negligence of the Barrister or practitioner to file the appeal or application within time, such Barrister or Vakil would be liable in a Court of Law. That however is no ground for excusing the delay. When an appeal was filed 37 days out of time, and no explanation for the delay was given except that instructions had been given in time to the Barrister together with a sum of money for costs the Dt. Judge could not admit the appeal. 37 All. 267=13 A. L. J. 286=28 Ind. Cas. 265.

——S. 5—Negligence of pleader.

Under S. 5 neither delay caused by negligence in applying for delivery of copies at the office nor delay caused by pleader's clerk's negligence in filing the appeal is "sufficient cause". 7 S.L.R. 201=24 Ind. Cas. 977.

——S. 5—Negligence of pleader—Sufficient cause—What is.

Appellant's mukhtear omitted to file his power-of-attorney authorising him to present an appeal, and the copy of the first Court's judgment with the appeal and filed them long after the presentation of the appeal and no reasons were given for the delay. Held, the appeal was barred by limitation. 94 P.L.R. 1918.

——S. 5—Negligence of pleader.

Where an appeal is filed in a wrong Court owing to gross carelessness of the pleader and after return was filed in the right Court after time, it was held there was no sufficient cause for not filing in time. 9 P.L.R. 1914=23 P.W.R. 1914=23 Ind. Cas. 86.

——S. 5—Negligence of pleader—Appeal presentation for—Vakalatnamah not signed by appellant.

Where the memorandum of appeal was presented in time but was signed by a pleader whose vakalatnamah was not signed by the appellant the mistake being bona fide, is a sufficient cause for extending time under S. 5 of the Limitation Act. 11 A.L.J. 779=21 Ind. Cas. 444.

——S. 5—Negligence of pleader—Sufficient cause.

Notwithstanding the carelessness of the appellant's counsel in filing a copy of deposition instead of a copy of the decree, at the time of filing an appeal, time should be extended to enable him to file a copy of decree. 104 P.W.R. 1913=173 P.L.R. 1913=85 P.R. 1913=19 Ind. Cas. 438.

——S. 5—"Negligence of pleader — Delay when excusable.

Held that "Sufficient cause" within S. 5, for not filing the appeal within time had been made out, though the pleader was not free from blame as the pleader's clerk neglected to file the papers in time. The Counsel must see that their client's appeals are presented within time. 126 P.W.R. 1912=7 P.L.R. Sup. 1912=16 Ind. Cas. 488.

——S. 5—Negligence of pleader's clerk.

Negligence of the agent is negligence of the principal and there is no distinction between the two. 101 Ind. Cas. 448=A. I. R. 1927 Pat. 232.

20. Poverty.

——S. 5—Sufficient cause—Poverty of litigant.

The poverty of a litigant cannot possibly be regarded as a sufficient cause for the extension of time under S. of the Limitation Act. 227 Ind. Cas. 95=48 P.L.R. 393=A. I. R. 1947 Lah. 210.

——S. 5—Poverty—If sufficient cause for extending periods of limitation.

Poverty is not a sufficient cause within S. 5 for extending the period of limitation. 7 L.B.R. 90=22 Ind. Cas. 884.

——S. 5, Cl. (2)—Poverty — 'Sufficient cause'—What is.

Entrusting the business of filing an appeal to an incompetent man who filed the appeal out of time and want of sufficient funds are not "sufficient cause" within the meaning of S. 5, Cl. (2). 5 M.L.T. 28=19 M.L.J. 209=1 Ind. Cas. 73.

——S. 5—Appeal in forma pauperis—Leave refused—Court fee paid after limitation but within time allowed—Condonation of delay — Applicability of S. 149, C. P. Code.

Where an application for leave to appeal in forma pauperis is dismissed, but no time is given to the applicants to pay court fee at the time but only when the applicants apply for it after the expiration of limitation for filing the appeal and the court fee is paid within the time so allowed, the case is covered by S. 149 and the appeal is within time. Even if it is not, the delay would be condoned by S. 5, Limitation Act. 1945 A.W.R. (C.C.) 5=1945 O.W.N. (C.C.) 20=A. I. R. 1945 Oudh 172.

——S. 5—Poverty — Application to appeal as pauper.

An appeal presented after time with full stamp, may be admitted if a previous application for leave to appeal as pauper was presented within time and rejected. 74 P.R. 1916=173 P.W.R. 1916=30 P.L.R. 1917=36 Ind. Cas. 84.

——S. 5 (5-A)—Sufficient cause—Application for leave to appeal "in forma pauperis" not allowed—Court-fee not paid within time allowed.

Application to be allowed to file an appeal in forma pauperis was not granted but the ground that the applicant was allowed time to pay up the Court-fee and he failed to do so. On his application further time was allowed to him subject to just exceptions. The court fee was paid up during the extended period. The respondent contended that the limitation period having expired at the date when application to file the appeal in forma pauperis was refused, and the appellant having failed to pay court-fee within the time alowed to him, he was not entitled to any extension of time. Held, that the contention was valid and the appeal must be dismissed as barred by limitation. 130 P.L.R. 1909=94 P.R. 1909=95 P.W.R. 1909=4 Ind. Cas. 896.

——S. 5 (5-A)—Appeal—Delay—Excuse.

Over the thirty days beycnd the prescribed period an application was made for leave to appeal as a pauper and rejected. The appellant stamped the memo of appeal which was one day beyond time. Held, that it was no sufficient excuse. (1904) 6 Bom.L.R. 373.

——S. 5—Poverty—Application for leave to appeal as a pauper—Subsequent change of condition if sufficient cause.

Where during the pendency of an enquiry into the financial condition of an applicant applying for leave to appeal as a pauper, the applicant inherited some properties and paid court-fee after the expiry of the limitation peiod held, that the applicant was entitled to an extension of time under S. 5 of the Act. 47 P.R. 1899; 26 C. 925, Foll. 34 P.W.R. 1912=52 P.L.R. 1912=13 Ind. Cas. 73.

21. Power of successor.

——S. 5—Power of successor — Order excusing delay—Successor of Judge bound.

An order made by one Judge extending time owing to delay in getting copies of decree should not be interfered with, by his successor. 50 Ind. Cas. 882 (Cal.).

——S. 5—Power of successor—Appeal admitted—Successor of Judge bound—Admission subject to objection.

An order admitting a time-barred appeal subject to objection at the hearing is binding on the successor of the Dt. Judge who cannot re-open it except at the instance of the respondent. The practice of admitting appeals 'subject to objection at the hearing' has been condemned by Privy Council and should therefore cease. 50 Ind. Cas. 374 (Cal.).

22. Procedure.

——S. 5—An order granting an application under S. 5 Limitation Act, for extending the period of limitation for filing a Letters Patent appeal under Cl. 15 , without giving the respondent an opportunity to present his case with regard to the prayer of the appellant for extension of the period of limitation is irregular. A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 606 =I.L.R. (1942) 1 Cal. 403=75 C.L.J. 419=46 C.W.N. 131=203 Ind. Cas. 580.

——S. 5—Per Suhrawardy, J.—An order passed extending time under S. 5, Limitation Act, should give sufficient indication that the discretiin given by the law has been judicially exercised.

In all cases where an appeal is presented beyond the period of limitation, notices ought to be issued before registering it, upon the respondents and the question of extension of time under S. 5 of the Limitation Act should be determined before such registration. A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 482=59 C. 388=138 Ind. Cas. 643.

——S. 5—Order rejecting memorandum of appeal for insufficient court-fee — Fresh memorandum of appeal with requisite court-fee after limitation:

Held, that the Judge should not register the appeal without deciding the question as to whether the appellant was entitled to extension of time under S. 5. If, however he omits to do that and registers it, the order cannot be said to be passed without jurisdiction but there is a tacit term that the question will be considered on objection being taken the by the respondent. A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 482=59 C. 388=138 Ind. Cas. 643.

——S. 5—Procedure.

A legal duty is cast upon the Judge to determine the question in the first instance as to whether there is sufficient cause for extending the period of limitation under Limitation Act, S. 5. Where the Court below in an application for review wihch is prima facie time-barred without determining the question of limitation proceeds to admit the application for review, the order passed by the Court is not only irregular but is possibly without jurisdiction. If review as apparently time-barred is admitted without cause being shown for the delay the entire proceedings consequently on such review must be set aside as of no legal effect. 29 Ind. Cas. 975, Foll. 1930 A. L.J. 1057=128 Ind. Cas. 753=A.I.R. 1930 All. 815.

——S. 5—Court ought to give detailed reasons while rejecting an appeal under S. 5 for an appealable decree follows such a judgment. 112 Ind. Cas. 246=A.I.R. 1929 All. 101.

——S. 5—Where, in ignorance of the death of a respondent, the appeal is heard and a decree is passed against the respondent, the appellate Court is competent to decide the question as to whether the application for substitution should be entertained having regard to the provisions of S. 5 of the Limitation Act and decide the appeal after impleading the representatives af esh. 101 Ind. Cas. 841=1 L.C. 60=2 Luck. 592=A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 221.

——S. 5—The question of extending time under S. 5 arises when a memorandum of appeal accompanied by certified copies of decree and the judgment are filed. Parties are not entitled to invite the Court to decide the question of limitation before they actually file an appeal. 95 Ind. Cas. 959=24 A.L.J. 602=A.I.R. 1926 All. 555.

——S. 5—Application under, made but rejected—Court should record opinion on it. 98 Ind. Cas. 748=44 C.L.J. 44=30 C.W.N. 926=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 1105.

——S. 5—Application for setting aside abatement —Court must investigate whether the plaintiff was lawfully prevented from applying within statutory period. 90 Ind. Cas. 811=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 175.

——S. 5—According to the rules framed by the Lahore High Court, an affidavit to account for the delay should be filed along with the memoran lum of appeal. 95 Ind: Cas. 565=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 542.

——S. 5—Opposite party should be heard—Applicant must show good faith and due diligence.

Where an application is made to the Court for an extension of time for presentation of the appeal under S. 5 of the Limitation Act, a rule should be issued on the respondent to show cause why an extension of time should not be granted. 41 Mad. 412 (P.C.) Foll.

If the appellant succeeds in establishing due diligence, good faith and the absence of neglect, he is entitled to argue that it will be sufficient cause within the meaning of S. 5 so as to persuade the Court to extend the time for presentation of the memorandum of appeal.

Whether the time should be extended under the section should be answered in the light of the peculiar circumstances of each case. The broad proposition that where there is a chance of mistake the Court should in every case excuse the delay is not supported by authority. 79 Ind. Cas. 924=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 175.

——S. 5—Criminal appeals.

A criminal appeal filed after the expiry of the prescribed period of limitation may be admitted if the Court is satisfied that the appellant had sufficient reason for not preferring the appeal within the period of limitation. But if the appellate Court is not satisfied that the appellant had sufficient reason for the delay, it cannot excuse the delay. If in such a case, the appellate Court desires to help the appellant the proper procedure would be to move the High Cout to exercise its powers of revision.

In this case where the lower Appellate Court had extended the period of limitation without being satisfied as to the sufficiency of the grounds for doing so and had admitted the appeal, the High Court in revision refused to interfere as there was no gross miscarriage of justice occasioned by the lower Court's action. 88 Ind. Cas. 278=26 Cr.L.J. 1110=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 709=48 M.L.J. 457.

——S. 5—Procedure.

If there was no evidence at all before the Court, explaining or accounting for the delay in making the application, any order that may be purported to be made under S. 5 excusing the delay, is an order made without jurisdiction, or is the result of material irregularity in the exercise of jurisdiction. 86 Ind. Cas. 905=21 M.L.W. 220=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 494.

——S. 5—Appeal admitted out of time—Preliminary objection raised after one year should not be allowed.

An appeal presented out of time was admitted by the Court under S. 5. After over a year when the appeal came on for hearing, the respondent raised a preliminary objection to the appeal.

Held, it is not a preliminary point at all, and any such application ought to be made by way of motion and even by way of motion a Court will never allow people to wait upon their rights while the other party incurs expenses in a case of this kind it being open to the respondent to move the Court to set aside the leave. 70 Ind. Cas. 827=16 M L.W. 662=1922 M.W.N. 727=31 M.L.T. 466=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 82.

——S. 5—Procedure — Delay in filing appeal—Extension of time—Implied from the procedure of the High Court.

The Secretary of a company registered was granted by the company a charge on the unpaid calls. In the winding up proceedings, the Secretary applied to enforce the charge and the District Court recognised the validity of the charge though unregistered, in spite of the opposition of the liquidator. Neither the liquidator nor the debenture holders appealed against the irder. More than a year after the expiry of the time for appeal, when it was sought to enforce the charge the debenture-holders objected and on their objections being overruled by the District Court, appealed to the High Court on the ground of non-registration. The High Court allowed the appeal on that ground.

Held, that the High Court must be taken to have impliedly extended the time for appealing against the first order of the District Judge, though the proper procedure would have been to allow an extension of time on an application for leave to appeal. 43 M. 550=38 M.L.J. 444=18 A.L.J. 489=22 Bom. L.R. 568=28 M.L.T. 28 12 L.W. 92=(1920) M.W.N. 419=2 U.P.L.R. (P.C.) 118=56 Ind. Cas. 163 (P.C.).

——S. 5—Procedure — Delay in presentation of appeal—Procedure.

When a memorandum of appeal is presented beyond the prescribed period of limitation the judge should endorse upon it the date of presentation and order that notice be given to the respondents. The Court should secure at the stage of admission the final determination (after due notice to all parties) of any question of limitation affecting the competence of the appeal. 43 Bom. 376=(1919) M.W.N. 254=23 C.W.N. 753=21 Bom.L.R. 1148=46 I.A. 15=52 Ind. Cas. 897 (P.C.).

23. Proceedings in wrong Court.

——S. 5—Sufficient cause — Proceedings in wrong Court.

In considering the words "sufficient cause" under S. 5, the equities on which S. 14 is based may be taken into account even if that section may not in terms, be applicable. Hence the existence of circumstances mentioned in S. 14 constitutes a sufficient ground for excusing the delay under S. 5, caused by wrong proceedings. A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 170=1941 M.W.N. 989=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 873=201 Ind. Cas. 84.

——S. 5—Appellant wrongly filing revision instead of appeal.

Where the appellants had wrongly applied for revision of the Assistant Commissioner's order to the Commissioner although this was not a proper way of proceeding in the matter:

Held, that it was a mistake which afforded them a reasonable excuse for not preferring the appeal in the Court of the District Judge within the time provided by law. Difficult questions of jurisdiction constantly arise in appeals of this nature and a bona fide mistake as this should not be held to debar the appellants from being heard in the proper tribunal, viz., that of the District Judge. (1936) A.L.J. 132=1936 A.W.R. 218=1936 R.D. 95=A.I.R. 1936 All. 366=161 Ind. Cas. 52.

——S. 5—When the suit was valued wrongly for the purpose of jurisdiction and appeal prosecuted in wrong Court in good faith—Appeal to proper Court after expiry of time.

Held, that the appellants should be held to have had sufficient cause within the meaning of S. 5. 1936 O.W.N. 325.

——S. 5—Application under S. 151, C. P. Code, when other remedy open.

When a remedy is provided by law, resort to the inherent jurisdiction under S. 151, C. P. Code, is not permissible. Where a person prosecutes an application under S. 151, when he has another remedy open to him under some other provisions of the Code, he cannot be said to be acting i good faith, and delay due to such wrong prosecution cannot be condoned under S. 5. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 672=38 P.L.R. 868=165 Ind. Cas. 661.

——Ss. 5, 14 and 3—S. 14, if applies to appeals—Defence n t pleading bar of limitation — Appeal filed out of time—Duty of Court to dismiss it in the absence of sufficient cause under S. 5.

Section 14 is not applicable to appeals. But under S. 5 it is competent to a Court to admit an appeal after the expiry of the period of limitation if the appellant satisfies the Court that he had sufficient cause for not preferring an appeal within the prescribed time. Where an appeal is filed out of time, it is open to the Court to admit it on being satisfied that the appellant had shown good cause for not filing the appeal within the time allowed by law. It is the duty of the Court to see that an appeal which had not been filed within time should be dismissed even if the defence did not take up such a plea unless sufficient cause was shown by the appellant for its admission under the provisions of S. 5. 18 R.D. 706=A.I.R. 1935 All. 92=4 A.W.R. 1460=152 Ind. Cas. 939.

——S. 5—Bona fide presentation in wrong Court.

An appeal was presented to the Court of a Senior Subordinate Judge within time but a copy of the decree could not be filed as no decree-sheet had been prepared. The appeal was transferred by the District Judge to his own Court and a copy of the decree sheet was filed in the District Court as soon as the appellant got it from the trial Court. The then District Judge, holding that the transfer was ultra vires, returned the memorandum of appeal and it was re presented by the appellant on the same day in the Court of the Subordinate Judge, Objection was raised that the appeal was time-barred:

Held, that the time during which the appeal was pending before the District Court should be excluded as there was a bona fide mistake and the appeal was not, therefore, time barred. 32 P.L.R. 907=33 P.L.R. 27=A.I.R. 1932 Lah. 183 =135 Ind. Cas. 221.

——S. 5—Proceedings in wrong Court.

Where an appeal which lies to the High Court, is filed beyond time but the appellant sufficiently explains the delay by the circumstance that he was prosecuting in good faith the appeal before other Courts, time for filing the appeal should be extended. 120 Ind. Cas. 125=1930 A.L.J. 224=A.I.R. 1930 All. 15.

——S. 5—Instead of preferring appeal claimant filing suit against what was subsequently held to be order under S. 47 by High Court—Suit dismissed—Subsequently claimant filing appeal—Time taken in prosecuting suit can be excluded. A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 307=129 Ind. Cas. 660.

——S. 5—Scope of Ss. 5 and 14 explained.

Under S. 5 two matters have got to be considered: (1) whether there was sufficient cause for not preferring the appeal within the time prescribed by law, and (2) whether there are circumstances which would justify the Court in exercising the discretion that is granted to it under that section for extending the time for preferring the appeal.

A revenue officer rejected the application of appellant to adduce further evidence and made final order making correction in the record as against appellant. Appellant first appealed against the portion of the order rejecting his application believing bona fide that he would thereby get the whole relief that he wanted. The appeal, however, was dismissed. About 17 or 18 days after the appeal was dismissed he again appealed against the other portion of the order whereby correction in the record was made against him.

Held, that S. 14 constitutes sufficient cause within the meaning of S. 5, but that section would entitle one to the deduction of the period during which the suit or proceeding was prosecuted.

Held, further, that S. 14 is not exhaustive of all the circumstances that may constitute sufficient cause. In this case as the appellant acted bona fide in preparing his first appeal, there was sufficient cause for him for not preferring the present appeal within time. And this case is fit for the Court to exercise its discretion under S. 5, since the 17 or 18 days that elapsed between the dismissal of the first and the preferring of the present appeal is not a period which can be called unreasonable or which would show that there was any want of dilligence on the part of the appellant in preferring the appeal. 119 Ind. Cas. 383=33 C.W.N. 76=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 240.

——S. 5—Where an appeal was filed in time in wrong Court following wrong advice, but was subsequently filed in right Court, by which time the date of limitation had expired.

Held, that the delay could be excused and the period of limitation extended. 108 Ind. Cas. 123 =9 L.R.A. Rev. 26=A.I.R. 1928 All. 144.

——S. 5—What constitutes.

An appeal was preferred to the Court of the District Judge, but the presiding officer returned the memorandum of appeal for presentation to the proper Court as the value of the claim was below Rs. 1,000. Appeal was, therefore, re presented the same day to the 1st Additional Judge of the District Court, who found that the appeal was presented one day late, but after inquiry held that there was sufficient cause for condoning the delay of one day. He thought that this was not, however, the only thing for him to decide. He considered that he could not condone the delay of eight days caused by the presentation of appeal in the District Court.

Held, that the question of limitation never arose as the District Court and Additional District Judge's Court were part and parcel of the same District Court. No question of the exercise of judicial discretion and condoning delay for sufficient cause within the meaning of S. 5, Limitation Act, ever really arose or could have arisen before him so as to necessitate the application of the principle laid down in 5 N.L.R. 25 to the facts and circumstances of the case. A.I.R. 1917 P.C. 156, Foll. 109 Ind. Cas. 79=A.I.R. 1928 Nag. 199.

——S. 5—The circumstances contemplated in S. 14 might and ordinarily would constitute a sufficient cause in the sense of S. 5. 91 Ind. Cas. 865=A.I.R. 1926 All. 252.

——S. 5—If a party files an appeal in a wrong Court under the advice of his pleader, he is not precluded from showing that it was owing to the reliance placed on such advice that he could not present the appeal in the proper forum within the proper time. In such cases the true guide is whether the appellant acted with reasonable diligence in the prosecution of the appeal. 43 Bom. 376 (P.C.) and 45 Cal. 94 (P.C.), Foll. 95 Ind. Cas. 245=43 C.L.J. 106=30 C.W.N. 479=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 688.

——S. 5—Bona fide mistake about forum.

Where, due to bona fide mistake, appeal was presented to a District Judge who dismissed it, which really lay to the High Court, an appeal from the decree of the District Judge, was held to be within limitation by exclusion of the time taken in the Court of the District Judge. 84 Ind. Cas. 741=40 C.L.J. 288=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 212.

——S. 5—That there was serious illness in the petitioner's family and that some time was required in making arrangement in the Court is not sufficient explanation for the delay. Under S. 14, Limitation Act, the appellant who seeks to deduct the period must prove that he carried on the litigation with due diligence. 79 Ind. Cas. 924=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 175.

——S. 5—Where a responsible officer like the Commissioner never thought that the appeals were not entertainable by him, under the circumstances, if the appellants thought that, they had a right of appeal to the Commissioner and the mistake must be taken to be a bona fide mistake until the contrary is shown. 82 Ind. Cas. 594=5 L.R.A. Rev. 163=A.I.R. 1924 All. 915.

——S. 5—Where the point of law was a doubtful one and the appellants filed their appeal in a wrong Court but within 5 days of the return of memorandum of appeal by the wrong Court, filed it in the proper Court.

Held, that extension of time under S. 5 ought to be granted. 79 Ind. Cas. 402=A.I.R. 1923 All. 364.

——S. 5—When an appeal is presented, out of time, the Court when called upon to exercise the discretion vested in it under S. 5 may well be guided by the provisions of S. 14, though it does not in terms apply to appeals. 68 Ind. Cas. 575 =35 Cal. 106=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 247.

——S. 5—Revision deliberately filed instead of appeal—Revision found not to lie—No sufficient cause exists for excusing delay for filing appeal later on. 2 Lah. 1=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 233.

——S. 5—Delay in filing a criminal appeal should be excused under S. 5 of the Limitation Act where it was erroneously filed in another Court since there is no question of a litigant losing a "valuable right". 59 Ind. Cas. 556=22 Cr.L.J. 124 =1 Lah. 508.

——S. 5—Proceedings in wrong Court—Duty of Court.

When time-barred appeals are filed in wrong Court the Court can dismiss them and need not return them for presentation to the proper Court in order that the latter might consider the question as to whether the time for presentation could be extended. 39 M.L.J. 195=28 M.L.T. 149 =18 A.L.J. 1095=22 Bom.L.R. 1370=47 I.A. 255=57 Ind. Cas. 606 (P.C.).

——S. 5—Proceedings in wrong Court — Legal advice—Bona fides of appellant.

Where an appeal is preferred to a wrong Court in good faith under legal advice the time spent in prosecuting the same should be excused under S. 5 of the Limitation Act. 45 Cal. 194 (P.C.) and 20 C.W.N. 49, Foll. 10 U.P.L.R. (J.C.) 9= 52 Ind. Cas. 235.

——Ss. 5 and 14—Proceedings in wrong Court—Sufficient cause.

The Bona fide prosecution of an appeal in a wrong Court should be regarded as a proper ground or as sufficient cause within S. 5 of the Act for extending the time for filing an appeal, notwithstanding that S. 14 of the Act does not apply to appeals. 24 C.W.N. 594=46 Ind. Cas. 116.

——Ss. 5 and 14—Prosecution of invalid application.

Where there was no actual delay in fact but only a kind of constructive delay imputed to the appellant, a Muhammadan female by reason that certain applications made from time to time by her legal advisers were not applications valid and efficient under the law, held that it was a case calling for the application of Ss. 5 and 14 of the Act. 42 Bom. 295=20 Bom.L.R. 343=46 Ind. Cas. 14.

——S. 5—Proceedings in wrong Court—Bona fide mistake of guardian—Sufficient cause.

Where an illeterate mother of a minor, as his guardian, presented the appeal in a wrong Court but on its being returned presented it to the proper Court the mistake is bona fide and the delay in presenting the appeal to the proper Court is excusable. 2 O.L.J. 325=30 Ind. Cas. 211.

——S. 5—Proceedings in wrong Court—Mistake of law.

The presentation of appeal to a wrong Court through a mistake of law is not sufficient excuse for admitting the appeal out of time. The appellant must, when he files an appeal out of time; state in his memorandum of appeal the grounds on which he seeks to get the delay excused. 7 Bur.L.T. 250=27 Ind. Cas. 967.

——S. 5—Proceedings in wrong Court.

The High Court ordered under S. 5 of the Limitation Act that the memorandum of appeal to the District Judge be registered as an appeal from an original decree against the order of the Sub-Judge. 17 C.W.N. 116=16 C.L.J. 77=16 Ind. Cas. 940.

——Ss. 5 and 14—Proceedings in wrong Court—Carelessness—Minority—Effect of.

Held, that as S. 86 of the Probate and Administration Act clearly specified the High Court as the Appellate Court, the appeal against an order appointing a receiver was filed in the Divisional Court by carelessness and not by mistake of law. There was no sufficient cause for not filing the appeal in the High Court within the time prescribed. The time taken up in the Divisional Court could not be excluded; the fact that the appellant was a minor did not justify extension of the period of limitation. 205 P.W.R. 1912=15 Ind. Cas. 170.

——S. 5—Proceedings in wrong Court.

An appeal was filed by oversight in the Divisional Court instead of the Chief Court and the Court passed judgment thereon without noticing the error. The facts are a sufficient cause for not presenting the appeal within time. 4 Bur.L.T. 224=12 Ind. Cas. 28.

——Ss. 5, 14—Proceedings in wrong Court—Bona fide mistake—Discretion of Court.

Where an appeal filed in time but in wrong Court owing to a b na fide mistake, is returned on the last day of limitation for presentation to a proper Court, the fact that it is not presented on the proper day ought not to be a ground for rejecting it as barred; judicial discretion should point to its admission. 8 A.L.J. 793=11 Ind. Cas. 814.

——S. 5—Proceedings in wrong Courts — Sufficient cause for excuse.

On the 25th November, 1909, a judgment-debtor was sent to jail by the Court executing the decree. He had filed a petition in Insolvency which was then pending. He sought the aid of the Insolvency Court to release him prior to adjudication. That Court by order passed on the 19th March, 1910, held that it had no power to release him. Then he appealed against the order of the 25th November. Held, that though the appeal was prima facie barred by limitation there was sufficient cause for entertaining it under S. 5 of the Act. 83 P.W.R. 1910=81 P.L.R. 1910 =7 Ind. Cas. 351.

——S. 5—Proceedings in wrong Court—Presentation of appeal in wrong Court.

Held, there was not a shadow of execuse for filing the appeal in the wrong Court and that the mistake was not excusable and the appeal was barred. 2 Lah.L.J. 390.

——S. 5—Proceedings in wrong Court.

Where a memorandum of appeal was wrongly presented to a Court owing to the mistake of the clerk of the appellant's counsel it was held that time could not be deducted and that these facts were not sufficient cause within the meaning of S. 15. The rule to be applied in explaining delay is whether the wrong action was taken b na fide under a mistaken belief and with due care and attention. Mere presentation in wrong Court is no ground for exemption; there must be a mistaken belief besides. 5 N.L.R. 25=1 Ind. Cas. 904.

——S. 5—Proceedings in wrong Court — Discretion.

If the appellant did not file the appeal in a proper Court, owing to some bona fide mistake as to jurisdiction, the period during which he had been under the mistake shall be excluded from the period of limitation. 1 Ind. Cas. 902 (All.).

——S. 5—Proceedings in wrong Court — Appeal presented in proper Court after limitation.

Where an appeal was originally presented in a Court which was afterwards found by the second appellate Court to have no pecuniary jurisdiction over that appeal, and then the appeal was filed in the proper Court, it was held that these facts were sufficient cause within the meaning of S. 5 for the appeal not being filed in time. 12 O.C. 31 =1 Ind. Cas. 687.

——S. 5—'Sufficient cause' — Appeal preferred to wrong Court—Mistake—Due diligence—Negligenc —Extension of time — Ex parte order—Respondent, if binding on.

Where the appellants, being themselves pleaders and well acquainted with the facts of the case, preferred an appeal from an order in a suit valued at over Rs. 50,000 to the District Judge instead of to the High Court (the proper tribunal under Act XII of 1887), they had not acted in good faith but with gross negligence and carelessness and they were not entitled to an extension of time under S. 5 of the Limitation Act. The words 'sufficient cause' should receive a liberal con t uction so as to advance substantial justice when no negligence nor inaction nor want of bona fides is imputable to the appellant. The fact that the appeal was filed a month after the District Judge had returned the memorandum of appeal for presentation to the proper court was an additional proof of want of diligence in the appellants. The order of the court for admission of an appeal under S. 5 before notice is given to the respondent is in no way binding upon the respondent when he appears, and he may question the validity of such order. (1907) 5 C.L.J. 380=34 C. 216.

24. Review.

——S. 5—Review application — Period for, can be excluded unless not made in good faith.

The time taken by a review application may be excluded unless the application has not been made in good faith. The period, need not, however, invariably be excluded. The mere fact that the grounds shown in the application were not such grounds as are referred to in the provisions in r. 1 of O. 47 for such an application does not by itself warrant the inference that the application was made in bad faith merely with the object of gaining time. A.I.R. 1944 Oudh 193=1944 A.W.R. 72=1944 O.W.N. 46 =216 Ind. Cas. 107.

——S. 5—Review application.

Mere presentation of an application for review does not entitle a litigant as of right to deduct the period during which the application for review remains pending from the period of limitation required for filing an appeal, specially when the grounds for review were really grounds of appeal. A.I.R. 1940 Oudh 310=1940 O.W.N. 281=15 Luck. 526=1940 A.W.R. 145=187 Ind. Cas. 83.

——S. 5—Section 5 is applicable to review proceedings. 42 C.W.N. 317=A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 321=I.L.R. (1938) 2 Cal. 22=177 Ind. Cas. 729.

——Ss. 5, 14 — Review application—Time taken, if can be excluded in computing period for subsequent appeal.

Although S. 14, Limitation Act does not in terms apply to appeals as it deals with suits and not with appeals, that section is relevant in considering applications under S. 5, Limitation Act, and may be availed of in excluding the period taken by an appellant in applying to the lower Court for review of judgment. 30 S.L.R. 301= A.I.R. 1936 Sind 43=162 Ind. Cas. 257.

——S. 5—Review application.

Where the appellant shows sufficient cause within the meaning of S. 5, for not filing the appeal within time as he was prosecuting with due diligence his application for review in the lower Appellate Court, the appeal cannot be held to be barred by time. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 844=159 Ind. Cas. 641.

——S. 5—Review application.

Under S. 5, the time spent in prosecuting with due diligence a proper application for a review should be excluded in calculating the period of limitation for preferring an appeal. A.I.R. 1931 Sind 3=25 S.L.R. 242=130 Ind. Cas. 545.

——S. 5—Review.

It is possible for a party to make an application for review and at the same time before that is decided to file an appeal. The right course where parties adopt simultaneous remedies or endeavour to do so if the review measures are successful to any extent whatever is that a new decree should be drawn up and the party choosing to file an appeal should file it against the decree as it appears in its final shape.

Per Suhrawardy, J—In a proper case the Court may grant time to a party to file an appeal from the final decree in the place of the appeal from the original decree. 34 C.W.N. 1002=A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 323.

——S. 5—Applicability — Review of order passed under—Companies Act.

The provisions of S. 5, are applicable to an application for review of an order passed under Companies Act as there is no special period prescribed by the latter Act for such an application. 116 Ind. Cas. 427=A.I.R. 1929 Nag. 185.

——S. 5—Where the Court finds that the appellant had presented and prosecuted a petition for review with due diligence, the time spent in prosecuting the infructuous application should be excluded as it is a sufficient cause within the meaning of S. 5 for not preferring the appeal in time. 117 Ind. Cas. 96=11 L.L.J. 491=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 824.

——S. 5—The ground that the appellants were presenting, in good faith, an application for review which was granted but was subsequently reversed on a point of law is sufficient for granting extension of time. 120 Ind. Cas. 179=11 L.L.J. 61=30 P.L.R. 283=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 283.

——S. 5—Where an application for review is admitted to a hearing and there is a reasonable ground for review inasmuch as the Court had referred to statements that were not a part of the record of the suit, the application is prosecuted bona fide and the period should be exempted. A.I.R. 1917 P.C. 156, Foll. 116 Ind. Cas. 315= A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 964.

——S. 5—Where party applies to the High Court for excusing his delay in prosecuting an application for leave to appeal to Privy Council he is bound to satisfy the Court that there are sufficient circumstances existing in his case to account for the delay. Time taken in prosecuting an application for review ought not to be deducted in calculating the period of limitation, unless there is a reasonable ground for asking for a review. 18 Bom. 48; 15 Cal. 242, Foll. 101

Ind. Cas. 432=29 Bom.L.R. 344=A.I.R. 1927 Bom. 221.

——S. 5—In computing the period of limitation for an application for leave to appeal to Privy Council, the time taken up for review of the judgment sought to be appealed against should be excluded. 85 Ind. Cas. 191=49 Bom. 149=26 Bom.L.R. 1261=A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 137.

——S. 5—If an appellant claims extension of time on account of his prosecuting a review application, all that the applicant has to show is that he prosecuted the review application with due diligence and that there were reasonable grounds for filing such an application for review. If these conditions are fulfilled, the Court is to decide whether it should exercise its discretion to extend time. 92 Ind. Cas. 1031=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 677.

——S. 5—The issue of notice by the Court upon the opposite party is sufficient evidence of the reasonableness of filing the application for review. Prospect of success in such application is not the test. 92 Ind. Cas. 1031=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 677.

——S. 5—Time taken for review in lower Court may be excused but appellant must be otherwise diligent in presenting and prosecuting the appeal and the application for extension of time. 85 Ind. Cas. 996=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 457.

——S. 5—A proper application for review of judgment prosecuted with due diligence entitles appellant to exclusion of time but where the application for review does not state the reason and where no reasonable ground for seeking the review is shown extension of time cannot be claimed. 80 Ind. Cas. 786=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 253.

——S. 5—Time in prosecuting a well-founded application for review should be excluded in computing the period of limitation provided for the appeal against the order. 88 Ind. Cas. 326=26 P.L.R. 456=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 534.

——S. 5—The time spent in prosecuting with due diligence a proper application for review of judgment can be deducted. 78 Ind. Cas. 677=22 A.L.J. 365=5 L.R.A. Civ. 298=A.I.R. 1924 All. 867.

——S. 5—Want of knowledge of a fact is a good excuse.

Where a party could not reasonably know a defect in the decree but applied for amendment immediately after knowledge and the application was rejected on a technical ground,

Held, the application could be treated as a review application and prior delay may be excused. 76 Ind. Cas. 786=18 M.L.W. 876=33 M.L.T. 221=A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 225.

——S. 5—An appellate Court should not exercise its discretion under S. 5 in the case of an appeal being filed after time owing to review proceedings if the grounds for review seem to be unreasonable. 1 L.B.R. 313, Foll. 74 Ind. Cas. 39 =1 Bur.L.J. 154=A.I.R. 1923 Rang. 75.

——S. 5—The grounds for granting review on account of the discovery of fresh evidence may in certain cases be a ground for also extending time i.e., when the new evidence was discovered late and could not in spite of due diligence be discovered earlier. 78 Ind. Cas. 527=A.I.R. 1921 Nag. 174.

——S. 5—Where a litigant files an application for review on totally insufficient grounds, the time taken by him cannot be deducted under S. 5 of the Limitation Act. 64 Ind. Cas. 516=13 Bur. L.T. 219.

——S. 5—Review—Time taken in.

An appellant is not entitled as a matter of right to deduction of the period during which an application for review remained pending in the Court below. He has to seek extension of time under S. 5 of the Act. 28 C.L.J. 20=47 Ind. Cas. 677.

——S. 5—Review—Time spent in—Exclusion.

An application for review preferred with a reasonable expectation of success and not prosecuted with reasonable diligence, does not justify an excuse of the delay for filing an appeal caused by the prosecution of the review application. 125 P.W.R. 1918=107 P.R. 1918=103 P.L.R. 1918 =46 Ind. Cas. 23.

——S. 5—Review—Time taken in.

The time taken for review of judgment can be excluded under S. 5 of the Act reckoning the period of limitation for filing an appeal if the Appellate Court finds that there was a good ground for review and that the proceedings amount to sufficient cause within the meaning of the section. 88 P.W.R. 1918=89 P.R. 1918= 87 P.L.R. 1918=46 Ind. Cas. 588.

——S. 5, Art. 173 — Review — Cross-review—Extension of time.

Where one party applies for review the time for cross-review by the other party should be extended if necessary as one is a counter blast to the other. 94 P.W.R. 1917=144 P.L.R. 1917=42 Ind. Cas. 54.

——S. 5—Review.

Time spent in an infructuous application for review will not be excluded if the grounds of review were only grounds of appeal. And time spent in unsuccessfully prosecuting an application for review is not always "a sufficient cause". 34 Ind. Cas. 44 (Pat.)

——S. 5—Review—Time taken in.

The time spent in an infructuous application or review will not be excluded if the grounds of review were only grounds of appeal. 19 C.W.N. 1113=31 Ind. Cas. 705.

——S. 5—Review — Time taken for—Exclusion of.

A review was attempted by putting forwad a fresh document before the Court, which was rejected. An appeal was filed after the period of limitation but within time, if the time taken for adjudicating review was excluded from computation and the Appellate Court excused the delay in appealing and decreed the appeal on the basis of the new document.

Held, that the appeal was rightly admitted and the procedure of the Appellate Court was not irregular. 55 P.L.R. 1915=50 P.W.R. 1915=28 Ind. Cas. 926.

——S. 5—Review — Time taken in — Exclusion of.

Time occupied in obtaining a review of an erroneous order, cannot be deducted from the time required to present an appeal against the order sought to be reviewed. 26 M.L.J. 356=15 M.L.T. 263=(1914) M.W.N. 310=22 Ind. Cas. 919.

——S. 5—Review.

Where on an application for review the lower court heard fresh evidence, considered the merits of the case but finally reejected the application for review and it was not clear whether the lower Court granted the review and re heard the case or whether it had rejected the application for review and it was difficult to see from which decision of the lower Court the appeal should be made.

Held, that it was a fit case for admitting the appeal out of time under S. 5 of the Act. 20 Ind. Cas. 647 (All.).

——S. 5—Review—Time spent in.

Time spent in review proceedings based on reasonable grounds may be sufficient cause but an unexplained delay of two months after rejection of the review application is no sufficient cause. 140 P.L.R. 1911=222 P.W.R. 1911=10 Ind. Cas. 129.

——S. 5—Review — Time taken in — Exclusion of.

Pendency of an application for review is not a "sufficient cause" for not presenting an appeal within time unless the review is on reasonable grounds. 1 Ind. Cas. 242=183 P.R. 1888, F.B., Foll. 100 P.R. 1910=43 P.L.R. 1911=8 Ind. Cas. 1156.

——S. 5—Review—Time taken in—Exclusion.

A bona fide application for review made with good reason is a sufficient cause for not filing an appeal within time. What is a sufficient cause is a question depending upon the circumstances of each case. 10 C.L.J. 39=2 Ind. Cas. 961.

——S. 5—Sufficient cause — Review, bona fide application for.

What is or is not sufficient cause, within the meaning of S. 5 depends upon the circumstances of each particular case. Bona fide application for review of judgment is a sufficient cause for not presenting an appeal within the prescribed period. An application for review made without any good reason is not made bona fide merely because it was admitted in the first instance. 10 C.L.J. 39=2 Ind. Cas. 961.

——S. 5—'Sufficient cause' — Review, proceeding in, whether sufficient cause for not presenting appeal in time.

The general rule for extending the time to prefer an appeal and for extending the time taken up in prosecuting an application for review is that the delay may be excused if the applicant can show that he had reasonable grounds for applying for a review instead of preferring an appeal.

Per Rampini, J.—The general rule deducible from judicial decisions is that bona fide application for review of judgment presented and prosecuted with due diligence, should, except in special cases be regarded as a sufficient cause for not presenting an appeal within the prescribed period. The principle above laid down is a valuable guide in indicating the manner in which the judicial discretion of courts is to be exercised, but it does not embody an inflexible rule of law which fettered the exercise of that discretion in any particular case. What is a 'sufficient cause' within the meaning of S. 5, Cl. (2), must depend upon all the circumstances of each particular case. The words "sufficient cause" in the section ought to receive a liberal construction so as to advance substantial justice, where no negligence or inaction of want of good faith is imputable to the appellant. (1906) 3 C.L.J. 545=10 C.W.N. 986=33 Cal. 1323.

——S. 5, Art. 173—Second application for review beyond time—Time spent in first application—Deduction of.

A second application for review of judgment, if presented beyond the prescribed period, is barred by limitation, and the time occupied by the pevious application for review cannot be excluded in counting the period. (1902) 4 Bom.L.R. 121=26 Bom. 485.

25. Sufficient cause.

(a) Construction.

(b) Question, one of law.

(c) What is.

25. (a) Sufficient cause—Construction.

——S. 5—Sufficient cause—Good faith—If necessary.

In finding a "sufficient cause" under S. 5 of the Limitation Act, a man's good faith would have to be kept in view but that "good faith" is more in general sense of that word as grammatically understood rather than in the sense in which it has been defined in S. 2 (7) of the Act. 225 Ind. Cas. 291=48 P.L.R. 325=A.I.R. 1947 Lah. 76.

——S. 5—Construction of.

The words "sufficient cause" in S. 5 should be liberally construed so as to advance substantial justice particularly when no negligence nor inaction nor want of b na fides is imputable to the appellant. A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 170=1941 M.W.N. 989=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 873=201 Ind. Cas. 84.

——S. 5—Construction favourable to minor.

Minority is a factor to be taken into account when considering circumstances which justify the application of S. 5, Limitation Act. Applications for the extension of time under S. 5 have to be more liberally construed in favour of minors than other litigants. A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 439=I.L.R. (1939) Lah. 433=41 P.L.R. 843=186 Ind. Cas. 77.

——S. 5—'Sufficient cause'—Meaning.

The expression 'sufficient cause' in the context must be regarded merely as indicating that the Court must be satisfied that the delay was an excusable delay. 110 Ind. Cas. 837=1928 M.W.N. 634=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 690.

——S. 5—Sufficient cause.

In order that the provisions of S. 5 of the Limitation Act, should be available it should be shown that the party had sufficient cause for not preferring the appeal in time. Where there was nothing to show that the appellant had in any way been misled, Held, that the section could not be invoked. 50 C.L.J. 397=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 166.

——S. 5—Sufficient cause — Liberal construction of.

In interpreting S. 5 of the Limitation Act the expression "Sufficient cause" must be accorded a liberal construction. But when the time for appeal has once passed, a successful litigant acquires a valuable right which must not be taken away from him unless the Court is satisfied that it is necessary in the interests of justice to extend the time for appeal and unless it is further shown that the petitioner has not been guilty of any inaction or negligence on his part. 78 Ind. Cas. 953=17 S.L.R. 306=A.I.R. 1925 Sind 60.

——S. 5—Construction

Section 5 should be liberally construed so as to advance substantial justice but not when negligence in action or mala fides could be imputed to the appellant. 13 A.L.J. 1101=31 Ind. Cas. 876.

25. (b) Sufficient cause—Question, one of law.

——S. 5—"Sufficient cause" is a question of law.

The question of "sufficient cause", so far as it is one of inference drawn by Court as to whether certain facts found by it to have been established amount to sufficient cause or not is one of law and not of fact. (1946) 225 Ind. Cas. 291=48 P.L.R. 325=A.I.R. 1947 Lah. 76.

——S. 5—'Sufficient cause'—Question of fact or law.

Where the relevant facts have been found, the question whether these facts are such as to constitute sufficient cause becomes a question of law. A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 94=43 P.L.R. 502=199 Ind. Cas. 851.

——S. 5—Sufficient cause — Question of fact or law.

The question whether the admitted facts and circumstances constitute sufficient and reasonable cause for extension of time for preferring an appeal is one of law and not of law and not of fact. 32 P.L.R. 907=33 P.L.R. 27=A.I.R. 1932 Lah. 183=135 Ind. Cas. 221.

25. (c) Sufficient cause—What is.

See also NOTES 2, 3, 10 TO 20; 23; 24 AND 26 TO 29.

——S. 5—'Sufficient cause'—Extension of limitation—Application under O. 9, R. 9, C. P. Code.

When an application is made by the plaintiff under O. 9, R. 9; C. P. Code; after the expiry of the period of limitation prescribed under Art. 163 of the Limitation Act, the Court is not entitled to extend the period of limitation by taking into consideration certain circumstances which appear to operate harshly against the plaintiff. In order to obtain such extension, the plaintiff must satisfy the Court that there is "sufficient cause" for not making the application within the period of limitation. A.I.R. 1950 Cal. 217=54 C.W.N. 110.

——S. 5—Sufficient cause — Extension of limitation — Application to set aside order of dismissal for default. See C. P. CODE (5 OF 1908), O. 9, R. 9. (1946) 2 M.L.J. 382=A.I.R. 1947 Mad. 153.

——S. 5—Sufficient cause for not applying in time to bring L.R. on record—Failure of L.R. to instruct his advocate about the death of the party. See C. P. CODE (V OF 1908), O. 22, RR. 4, 9 AND 11 AND LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), S. 5. (1949) 2 M.L.J. 246=A.I.R. 1950 Mad. 52.

——S. 5—Sufficient cause — Delay in impleading legal representative—Omission by typist.

Where the omission to implead the legal representatives is due to the omission by the typist, it is not a good ground for allowing the benefit of S. 5 of the Limitation Act and condoning the delay. 1948 A.W.R. (Rev.) 227=1948 R.D. 410.

——S. 5—Time for appeal pasing before representatives are brought on file—Bona fides proved.

In a case in which the petitioner can prove his bona fides, the period for presenting the appeal can also be extended under S. 5, if the time for appealing has passed before the representatives are brought on the file. A.I.R. 1936 Pesh. 192 =165 Ind. Cas. 201.

——S. 5—Appeal — Wrong person impleaded as respondent — Court giving time—Party not brought on record within time:

Held, on facts that there was no sufficient cause within the meaning of S. 5. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 793=165 Ind. Cas. 154 (1).

——S. 5—Ignorance of the death of a party is not a sufficient ground for the extension of period of limitation, prescribed for substitution of the legal representative. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 478=37 P.L.R. 400.

——S. 5—Municipal Committee appellant—Respondent dying within limits of appellant—Failure to implead legal representative within time—Extension cannot be granted. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 556=146 Ind. Cas. 154.

——S. 5—Sufficient cause—What is.

Respondent living in different province—Dying four days before filing of appeal—Appellants, not aware of death—Application to amend memo. of appeal made after expiry of limitation—Time was extended. 123 Ind. Cas. 824=A.I.R. 1930 All. 131.

——S. 5—In an appeal which had been long pending and had numerous parties, a party failed to make an application for bringing the legal representative of a deceased party living at a long distance within time, due to ignorance of the latter's death. But he had been diligent in making several other applications of the same nature.

Held, under S. 5 time for making an application for setting aside abatement should be extended. 95 Ind. Cas. 236 (Lah.).

——S. 5—Fact of death of a party not known to parties for more than three months—Mistake excused.

The judgment under appeal was given on the 21st of January, 1922. The appeal was filed on the 19th of April, 1922. On the 6th July, 1922; an application was made to remove from the memorandum of appeal the name of one R and substitute the names of P and H as R had died before the presentation of appeal and name had wrongly been continued on the record. R had in fact died before the decision of the lower Appellate Court, but his name, by an oversight, was retained in the decree of the lower Appellate Court.

Held, that the retention of the name of the deceased was not intentional, that having regard to this circumstance the mistake should be overlooked and the time for appeal against the heirs of R should be extended. 75 Ind. Cas. 903=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 692.

——S. 5—Where the plaintiff failed to bring on record the legal representative of the defendant though with smallest diligence he would have discovered that defendant had died,

Held, the abatement could not be lightly set aside; the plaintiffs had to satisfy the Court that there was sufficient cause for not applying in time. 67 Ind. Cas. 917=49 Cal. 62=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 335.

——S. 5—'Sufficient Cause'—Ignorance of death.

Mere ignorance of death is not a 'sufficient cause' under S. 5. 118 P.R. 1916=38 Ind. Cas. 7.

——S. 5—Court holding that defendant was dead —Plaintiff instead of setting aside abatement—Appealing against order, and after its dismissal; applying for substitution of Legal Representatives —No sufficient cause. 84 Ind. Cas. 1001=2 Pat. 168=A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 417.

——S. 5—Sufficient cause—Laches.

Appeal by applicant under S. 4, U. P. Encumbered Estates Act—Creditors necessary parties, but not impleaded within time:

Held, that application under S. 5 cannot succeed. A.I.R. 1943 Oudh 78=1942 O.W.N. 465 =1942 A.W.R. 305=205 Ind. Cas. 628.

——S. 5—Sufficient cause—'Misled by order or judgment."

New statement of law by High Court—In view of certain rulings of High Court—Appellant advised that no second appeal lay—These rulings subsequently upset by Full Bench—Second appeal subsequently filed beyond limitation—Application to excuse delay:

Held, that there was no good ground for excusing delay. 1942 O.W.N. 439=A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 447=1942 R.D. 647=1942 A.W.R. 294= 201 Ind. Cas. 658.

——S. 5—Conflict of view on certain point.

In a case where there are conflicting views on a certain point and the delay caused in filing the appeal is due to adopting one of the views, even though the Court takes the contrary view, it can extend the time under S. 5, Limitation Act. A. I.R. 1941 Pesh. 74=196 Ind. Cas. 654.

——S. 5—Sufficient cause—Wrong remedy.

Where a party having two alternative remedies deliberately adopts one remedy, his failure to get it is not a sufficient cause for extending the period of limitation prescribed by law for seeking the other. A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 362=1942 O.W.N. 206=1942 A.W.R. 156=199 Ind. Cas. 835.

——S. 5—Two remedies allowed by law—Prosecution of one is good ground for extension of time. 98 Ind. Cas. 892=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 45.

——S. 5—Held, per Din Muhammad, J. (In order of reference).—The delay in filing appeal could be condoned under S. 5 as the appellant had sufficient cause for not preferring the appeal within time. A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 492=41 P.L.R. 610= I.L.R. (1940) Lah. 447=185 Ind. Cas. 877.

——S. 5—Counsel filing appeal on behalf of client —Signature on power-of-attorney doubted— Court directing personal appearance of client— Client not attending on ground of personal inconvenience—After final hearing, agent of client asking permission to sign power-of-attorney— Court disallowing on ground that it would defeat provisions of Limitation Act—Appeal dismissed under O. 41, R. 17, C. P. Code.

Held, that the non-appearance of the client on the ground of personal inconvenience was not a reasonable cause within the meaning of S. 5. A. I.R. 1938 Rang. 214=177 Ind. Cas. 364.

——S. 5—Parties, agreeing to end litigation by accepting High Court's decision as final—One of parties backing out of agreement — The other applying for leave to appeal to Privy Council but time expiring:

Held, that in the circumstances, there was sufficient cause for extending time under S. 5. A.I. R. 1938 Lah. 836=40 P.L.R. 399=181 Ind. Cas. 248.

——S. 5—Suit for declaration that plaintiffs and pro forma defendants were owners and entitled to profits as against A—Suit decreed —Appeal by A not impleading pro forma defendants — Appellate Court impleading them after the period of limitation for appeal:

Held, that the case was fit one to extend the time under S. 5. A.I.R. 1937 All. 82=1936 A. W.R. 1099=(1937) A.L.J. 424=167 Ind. Cas. 405.

——S. 5—Appeal filed without copy of decree— Copy not applied for till after filing appeal—Delay not excusable as appellant was not diligent. 1936 O.W.N. 1109=A.I.R. 1936 Oudh 9=158 Ind. Cas. 19.

——S. 5—Application for restoration.

Upon the dismissal of the application to restore the execution petition, the decree-holder is not entitled to extension of time for an appeal from the order discharging the surety, in respect of the time spent in the application for restoration. Such an application cannot be considered to be proper alternative remedy for getting the order of discharge of surety set aside, as the liability of the surety is not automatically revived on the restoration of the application. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 349= 155 Ind. Cas. 503.

——S. 5—Appeal memo. filed with no stamp—A delay of 21 days in payment of court-fees cannot be excused under S. 5, even though the applicant was a pardanashin lady. 37 C.W.N. 179=A. I.R. 1933 Cal. 796=146 Ind. Cas. 359.

——S. 5—The appeal was filed with insufficient stamp within limitation but the balance of Court-fees was made up within a week under the orders of the Court.

Held, the mistake clearly was a bona fide one, and this is a fit case for the extension of time under S. 5. 77 Ind. Cas. 416=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 513.

——S. 5—Two appeals from same order—Copy of order appealed against filed out of time in one.

Where from one and the same order, two appeals were filed, but only one copy of the order appealed against was filed along with the appeal and the copy was filed out of time in the other appeal:

Held, that though the latter appeal was technically time barred, it was a fit case in which the period of limitation should be extended under S. 5. 13 P.L.T. 612=A. I. R. 1932 Pat. 349=12 Pat. 36=141 Ind. Cas. 37.

——Ss. 5 and 14—The High Court delivered judgment on January 25, 1929 in favour of the opposite party. The petitioner who came to know of the order, immediately applied for leave to appeal to the Privy Council on April 22, 1929, and leave was granted on July 2, 1929. Their Lordships of the Judicial Committee held on March 20, 1931; that no appeal lay. The petitioner having come to know of this in the first week of May, 1931, filed an application for review of the judgment of the High Court on June 12, 1931:

Held, (i) that the petition was barred and that the period between the judgment of the High Court and the application for leave to appeal could not be excluded under S. 5. 36 C.W.N. 40= A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 171=144 Ind. Cas. 561.

——S. 5—Ignorance of date of order.

An objection to the valuation of a building was preferred to the Deputy Executive Officer on May 2, 1928 and it was heard and disposed of on the very day. The assessee had no knowledge of the order. He made efforts to ascertain about it by letter to the Chief Executive Officer and enquiries through Ward Councillor and Bill Collector and preferred an appeal beyond the period of limitation:

Held, that as the assessee, in making the enquiries that he did, acted under an honest belief that orders had not been passed on the date of hearing and as there was no want of bona fides on his part, the case was a fit one for extension of time under S. 5, Limitation Act. 35 C. W. N. 283=58 Cal. 793=A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 506=54 C. L.J. 475=133 Ind. Cas. 332.

——S. 5—Delay in making an application to set aside the ex parte decree was condoned on the ground that the plaintiffs had acter quite reasonably in waiting to see whether the legal representatives would resist the decree on the ground that it was a nullity being against a person of unsound mind. 34 C.W.N. 989=A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 168 =130 Ind. Cas. 878.

——S. 5—Suit instituted in Patna High Court for restitution of conjugal rights—Respondent wife on proper advice from her counsel offered no defence —Suit decreed — Subsequently wife seeking redress by petitioning to ecclesiastical Court at Calcutta where marriage was solemnised and on decree of that Court declaring marriage nullity, petitioning Calcutta High Court for same decree —Solicitors entrusted with petition, for first time coming to know of decree for restitution of conjugal rights against their client and advising her to apply for review of judgment to Patna High Court—Time for review was extended under circumstances. 120 Ind. Cas. 465=A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 63.

——S. 5—Appeal filed against an order on an application for restitution on Rs. 2 stamp — Court holding that Court-fee was payable ad valorem—Applicant taking time to pay deficiency but applying to permit to appeal as a pauper—Prayer to extend time also made—Application was allowed and time was extended. 111 Ind. Cas. 655=26 A.L.J. 847=A.I.R. 1928 All. 499.

——S. 5—C. P. Code, S. 92—Scheme suit.

In a representative suit about a temple property certain persons, on behalf of the temple; filed an appeal which was returned for representation. It was not represented in time. Certain other persons interested in the temple property and in the result of the appeal then applied to the appellate Court for taking the appeal on file and also paid fresh Court-fee. It was found that the non-representation of the appeal by the original appellant was not bona fide.

Held, that the fresh appellants should be considered as constructive parties and thus entitled to continue the appeal, and even assuming the representation was a fresh appeal, time should be excused under S. 5, Limitation Act. 108 Ind. Cas. 298=28 M.L.W. 279=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 456=54 M.L.J. 629.

——S. 5—Where a copy of the order of the Court below on a preliminary issue was not filed along with the copy of the final order, and when it was filed the period of limitation had expired, but it was found that preliminary order was not contested, Held, that it would be but fair to condone the delay under S. 5, Limitation Act. 106 Ind. Cas. 826=9 L.L.J. 566=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 905.

——S. 5—Delay in filing appeal—Appellant doubtful whether order appealed against was order or decree and therefore paying insufficient Court-fee —Court-fee made up after time—Delay should be excused. 86 Ind. Cas. 1=6 Lah. 233=7 L.L.J. 149=26 P.L.R. 100=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 381.

——S. 5—Where a judgment is delivered on the day preceding the last working day before the Court's vacation for a month and an application for a copy is made on the very day on which the Court opens after the vacation, the applicant is entitled to the indulgence of having his application for copy being accepted as equivalent to an application made a month earlier, nor does he forfeit his claim to indulgence because he arranges to have the copies sent to him by post. 90 Ind. Cas. 115=2 O.W.N. 678=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 643.

——S. 5—Filing copy of order referred to in the judgment as part of it after expiration of the limitation, where copy of the final judgment is filed in time may be excused under S. 5. 82 Ind. Cas. 609=6 L.L.J. 340=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 731.

——S. 5—Delay due to proceedings for obtaining Succession certificate was excused.

Decree-holder died during the pendency of the execution proceedings on the 21st October, 1918. As his legal representatives did not appear to proceed with the execution, the Court struck off the execution proceeding on the 14th December, 1918. The application for the substitution of their names was made on the 19th December, 1921. The delay was due to the fact that the legal representatives were minors, who could not have obtained execution without obtaining a succession certificate under Act VII of 1889. The succession certificate was obtained on the 31st August, 1920.

Held, that there was sufficient reason to excuse the delay within the meaning of S. 5, read with O. 22, R. 9 of the Code of Civil Procedure and Art. 181 of the Indian Limitation Act. 73 Ind. Cas. 215=26 O.C. 244=A.I.R. 1924 Oudh 83.

——S. 5—Where communication between client and pleader was interrupted by heavy rain,

Held, that it was not a sufficient cause to excuse even one day's delay. 75 Ind. Cas. 1055=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 599.

——S. 5—When the delay in filing the appeal is due to the fact that cholera broke out in the appellant's family,

Held, that this was a sufficient ground to extend the time for filing the appeal. 68 Ind. Cas. 787=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 100.

——S. 5—Ignorance of a special order is a ground for excusing delay.

The last day for filng an application (19-2-21) was a holiday as a penultimate Saturday. But the Court sat and the day was treated as not a public holiday with the special permission of the High Court given in its order date 4-2-21. But the Court's order permitting the Lower Court to sit on 19-2-21, though passed on 4-2-21, was despatched to the Lower Court only on 8-2-21, and was presumably received there next day.

Held, that it not being shown what publication of the order there was or that the petitioner who was a resident of mofusil could reasonably be expected to take notice of it, he had sufficient cause for assuming that the Court would as usual be closed on 19-2-21, the penultimate Saturday, and for postponing the presentation of his petition to the next Court day, 24-2-21. 72 Ind. Cas. 13=17 M. L. W. 413=1923 M.W.N. 211=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 489.

——S. 5—Addition of parties—In suit and in appeals after time has expired—Effect.

S. 22 of the Limitation Act does not prescribe any period of limitation for the joinder of a party to a suit under S. 32, C. P. Code (1882); O. 1; R. 10 or to an appeal under S. 559 of the old Code (O. 41, R. 20) and there is nothing to prevent such a joinder in either a suit or appeal even after it is barred by time. S. 22 of the Limitation Act applies to appeals as much as to suits in principle. But a suit in which a defendant is joined, after the period of limitation has expired, must necessarily be dismissed as against him. In an appeal, however; there may be possibly reasons justifying its admission after time under S. 5 of the Limitation Act. 66 Ind. Cas. 217=5 N.L. J. 192=A.I.R. 1922 Nag. 213.

——S. 5—Where an appeal against a preliminary decree was filed after passing of the final decree, but the appellant finding that this was not maintainable wished to file an appeal against the final decree and the same was barred by time, the Court may excuse the delay under S. 5 of the Act. 67 Ind. Cas. 261=A.I.R. 1922 Nag. 179.

——S. 5—Held, that having regard to the fact that the appellant was a pardanashin lady and was living with her parents in a different province there was sufficient cause for not filing her appeal by presenting it in person within the period allowed by law and that the representation of the papers by the appellant in person after the expiry of the period was sufficient. 11 Lah. L.J. 226.

——S. 5—Neglect of guardian.

Where the Court of wards had the authority to make an application on the wards behalf but did not so within the limitation period, the ward cannot after release from the superintendence of Court of wards, be said to have had sufficient cause for not making the application during the period of his wardship. 5 O.L.J. 153=46 Ind. Cas. 68.

——S. 5—Leave to appeal to P.C.—Application filed during vacation—Limitation Act (11 of 1877), Art. 177.

The second paragraph of S. 5 of the Limitation Act, 1877, applies to Art. 177. When, therefore, an application for leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council was filed in the Privy Council department of the office of the High Court during the long vacation when the Court was notified as closed, but the offices were open, the applicant was entitled to the benefit of the second paragraph of S. 5 of the Limitation Act. (1908) 10 C.L.J. 118=3 Ind. Cas. 400 Also=(1909) 10 C.L.J. 120=3 Ind. Cas. 401.

——Ss. 5, 14—Appeal—Delay—Excuse.

Where a party files a second appeal against the order of a District Judge on the ground that the latter had no jurisdiction to dispose of the appeal presented to him but should have returned it for presentation to the High Court and after the High Court disposes of the second appeal in his favour, prefers the original appeal to the High Court.

Held, that the appellant having become aware of the fact that the original appeal lay to the High Court and not to the District Court at least on the date on which he filed the second appeal to the High Court, there was no sufficient cause for excusing the delay from that date up to the date on which it was actually filed in the High Court, i.e., after the disposal of the second appeal within the meaning of S. 6 of the Limitation Act. (1903) 5 Bom.L.R. 947=28 B. 235.

26. Technical defect.

——S. 5—Appeal within time—Absence of names of parties in power-of attorney—Defect pointed out by office after limitation—Defect removed.

Where the power-of-attorney in favour of the Counsel for the appellant did not give the names of the parties at the time of filing the appeal but the defect was removed on the office pointing it out after the expiry of limitation :

Held, thot the appeal could not be said to be barred by time. At any rate, it was a fit case for extension of time under S. 5. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 1011=36 P.L.R. 277=155 Ind. Cas. 893.

——S. 5—Technical defect.

Appeal against O. 7, R. 10—Returned plaint with endorsement filed with memo. of appeal but not certified copy of order prior to endorsement—Appellant being under belief that filing of plaint with endorsement was sufficient—Objection raised that as appeal was not properly presented within limitation it should be dismissed—Tenchnical non-compliance with O. 43, R. 2, might well be condoned under Limitation Act, S. 5. A.I.R. 1930 Sind 252.

——S. 5—An appeal was instituted accompanied by a vakalatnama, which, though accepted by the counsel filing the appeal, was not properly signed. The appeal was returned to remedy the defect. At the time of re-institution the appeal was time-barred.

Held, that the defect was only technical and that it was a fit case for extending the time under S. 5. 36 All. 46, Not appr. 103 Ind. Cas. 537=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 618.

——S. 5—Omission to sign a memorandum of appeal by oversight, which was otherwise in order and had been duly presented, is sufficient cause for extension of time under S. 5. 84 Ind. Cas. 518=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 402.

——S. 5—Where the Vakalatnama filed along with an appeal was accepted by the pleader but by oversight the pleader's name was not inserted in the body of the Vakalatnama.

Held, that the error was such as to support an application to excuse delay under S. 5 61 Ind. Cas. 410=43 All. 392=19 A.L.J. 183=A.I.R. 1921 All. 210.

27. Time spent in proceedings to get ex parte decree set aside.

——S. 5—Ex parte decree—Time spent in proceedings to get ex parte decree set aside, cannot be excluded in computing limitation for appeal. A.I.R. 1938 Bom. 459=40 Bom.L.R. 957=178 Ind. Cas. 307.

——S.5—C.P. Code, O. 9, R. 13—Exclusion of time taken by proceedings under O. 9, R. 13.

The period of time taken by proceedings under O. 9, R. 13, C. P. Code, should not be deducted from the time taken to prefer an appeal from the decree under S. 5, when such proceedings have failed on the merits. A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 558=36 C.W.N. 352=59 C. 1057=138 Ind. Cas. 748.

——S. 5—Sufficient cause—Application for setting aside ex parte decree.

Where an appeal lies against the ex parte decree, the time taken by the party in applying for setting aside the ex parte decree and in preparing an appeal against the order refusing to set it aside cannot be excluded in computing the period of limitation for appeal against the main ex parte decree. 124 Ind. Cas. 266=A.I.R. 1930 Rang. 41.

——S. 5—Time spent in prosecuting application for setting aside ex parte order should be excused in appeal from original order.

A judgment-debtor applied under O. 21, R. 2, for an adjustment of the decree. An ex parte order allowing the adjustment was made without notice to the decree-holder. The decree-holder subsequ ntly applied for restoration of his case after setting aside the ex parte order but the application was rejected. An appeal was subsequently preferred against the ex parte order but beyond limitation.

Held, that the time spent in prosecuting application to set aside the ex parte order ought to have been excused. A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 67 and A.I.R. 1917 P.C. 156, Foll. 115 Ind. Cas. 467=30 P.L.R. 512=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 113.

28. Time taken in getting copies.

——S. 5—Second appeal—Time spent in obtaining copy of trial Court's judgment—If can be extended.

According to the statute no copy of the first Court's judgment need be filed with the memorandum in a second appeal, although it is required to be filed by a rule made by the Lahore High Court. Therefore the appellant is not entitled as of right to deduct the period spent in obtaining a copy of the first Court's judgment for the purpose of computing the period of limitation for filing a second appeal. But the Court can allow the time taken by him in procuring such copy in granting extension under S. 5 of the Limitation Act. In order to have the benefit of this section, the appellant is bound to explain every day by which the period allowed by the Limitation Act is exceeded thereafter. 49 P.L.R. 72=A.I.R. 1947 Lah. 276.

——S. 5—Exclusion of time in obtaining copy of judgment on review.

Though there is no absolute necessity to obtain a copy of a judgment on review it may help in the drafting of grounds of appeal. Hence the period taken in obtaining such a copy may be excluded in computing time for appeal. 1946 A.M.L.J. 26.

——S. 5—"Sufficient cause"—Disturbed state of country in 1942—Application filed late even after exclusion of time spent in taking copies in pursuing other remedies and the period of Court's vacation—Excuse of delay—Duty of Court.

The fact that the whole country was in disturbed state in 1942, and that it was not easy for litigants to appear in Court to make applications or take delivery of copies of documents applied for by them within a reasonable time of the copies being ready, would constitute "sufficient cause" entitling litigants to ask the Court to condone the delay in making applications to Court even when the application are late after excluding the time requisite for obtaining copies, the period of pendency of other proceedings and the period of the recess of the Court. 224 Ind. Cas. 160=12 B.R. 488=A.I.R. 1946 Pat. 417.

——S. 5—Limitation expiring on Sunday—Application for copies on Monday—Filing of appeal on next day of getting copies—Appeal, held within time—One day's delay, held excussable. A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 46=40 Bom.L.R. 1211=179 Ind. Cas. 645.

——S. 5—Time spent in obtaining copy of trial Court's judgment, if can be excluded—Delay of three or four days in making deposit.

Where, under the rules of the Court, an appeal would not be deemed to have been properly presented if the copy of the judgment of the first Court does not accompany the copies of the judgment and decree of the lower Appellate Court, the appellant can claim the benefit of the provisions of S. 5 Limitation Act, and ask the Court for excluding from the period of limitation the time spent in obtaining the copy of the trial Court's judgment:

Held, that delay of three or four days in making the deposit after the demand has been formally made cannot be treated as a result of negligence or carelessness. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 1007=169 Ind. Cas. 176.

——S. 5—When the copy of the trial Court's judgment has been obtained before the expiry of the period of limitation, the time spent in obtaining the same cannot be added under S. 5 of the Act to the end of the period of limitation. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 464=36 P.L.R. 103=148 Ind. Cas. 818 (1).

——S. 5—Delay in getting copies.

Where the Counsel for appellant makes a note in the memorandum of appeal that the copy of the judgment of the trial Court was applied for within period of limitation but was not received when the appeal was instituted and the copy is eventually filed only one day late, the necessary extension of time may be allowed. A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 129.

——S. 5—Memorandum of appeal was filed in time without the judgment and decree of the lower Court. Two days after expiry of limitation the decree and judgment of the lower Court was filed.

Held, that the case was a fit case for extension of period under S. 5. 6 O.W.N. 1035=A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 184.

——S. 5—Where the High Court insists also on a copy of the first Court's judgment being filed in appeal, time occupied in obtaining copy of such a judgment though it cannot be excluded under S. 12, should be allowed under S. 5. 115 Ind. Cas. 880=A.I.R. 1928 All. 416.

——S. 5—Where the copy of the first Court's judgment is applied for within limitation and it is only because of inordinate delay in the preparation of the copy that the appellants are unable to present it with the memorandum, under S. 5 time should be extended. 94 Ind. Cas. 959 =7 Lah. 447=8 L.L.J. 521=27 P.L.R. 660=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 458.

——S. 5—Delay in obtaining copy due to applicants not furnishing date of judgment cannot be excused. 91 Ind. Cas. 425 (All.).

——S. 5—Where the delay in producing a copy of the decree was due to the office not informing the applicant of the date when the copy would be ready, limitation was extended under S. 5. 91 Ind. Cas. 6=7 L.L.J. 595=26 P.L.R. 738=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 84.

——S. 5—Delay due to obtaining copy of judgment not required to be filed and for consulting a lawyer to prepare grounds of appeal under the Letters Patent is not excused to extend the period of limitation under the section. 92 Ind. Cas. 786=4 Bur.L.J. 138=A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 361.

——S. 5—Delay in getting copies—Mistake in copyist office.

A mistake in the copyist office, in not preparing copies of the judgment and decree is a sufficient cause under S. 5 of the Act. 25 Ind. Cas. 26 (Oudh).

——Ss. 5 and 12—Delay in getting copies—Appeal filed beyond time.

Where judgment was delivered on the 1st and the Court closed on the 3rd and the application for copies was made on the Court reopening and the appeal was filed the day after the copies were delivered, held there was sufficient cause for delay and furthe. the time spent in obtaining copies should be deducted. 23 Ind. Cas. 874 (All.).

——Ss. 5 and 12—Delay in getting copies—Appeal presented out of time—Delay, if can be excused.

Non-availability of a copy of a decree is sufficient ground for excusing delay in filing an appeal in time. 26 M.L.J. 356=15 M.L.T. 263=(1914) M.W.N. 310=22 Ind. Cas. 919.

——S. 5—Delay in getting copies—Appeal filed a day beyond—Delay in office to deliver copy—Sufficient cause.

Where an appeal was obliged to be filed a day beyond time on account of the delay caused by the officer of the Court it was held that this was sufficient cause for not filing the appeal in time. 9 A.L.J. 15=13 Ind. Cas. 943.

——Ss. 5 and 12 and Rules and Orders of the Chief Court, Vol. 1, R. 23 (1) and (2)—Delay in getting copies—Mistake of copyist Office.

It is the duty of the copying department to inform the applicant of the date on which a copy will be ready for delivery and omission to do so is sufficient cause for delay in filing an appeal. 11 P.W.R. 1912=13 Ind. Cas. 850.

——S. 5—Delay in getting copies.

A judgment was passed on 15th October and the decree was signed on 9th November. There was no delay in paying copying fees.

Held, that the delay was due to want of payment of proper copying fee and not to the late signing of the decree. Therefore the appellant cannot take advantage of S. 5 of the Limitation Act. 5 S.L.R. 47=10 Ind. Cas. 210.

——S. 5—Delay in getting copies—Sufficient cause.

Where the appellants did not apply for a copy of the judgment and decree themselves but came to Lahore to engage counsel who sent a letter to the Copying agent asking for copies without however remitting money until he replied asking for money and money was sent to him so late that he could apply for copies only after the expiry of the period of limitation.

Held, the appellants were guilty of gross negligence and were not entitled to the benefit of S. 5. 61 P.L.R. 1911=189 P.W.R. 1911=9 Ind. Cas. 381.

29. Want of stamp.

——S. 5—Want of stamp.

Delay in filing an appeal owing to the non-availability of stamp on the last day for filing the appeal will be excused. 1 Pat.L.J. 16 =37 Ind. Cas. 211.

——S. 5—Want of stamp—Difficulty in obtaining stamp.

Semble—Difficulties in the procuring of the necessary Court-fee stamp constitute sufficient cause within S. 5 for not having filed the appeal within time. 3 P.L.J. 74=5 P.L.W. 18=42 Ind. Cas. 675.

——Ss. 5 and 12—Want of stamp—Delay in presenting appeal.

In the case of presenting an appeal against a Lower Court's judgment when there is no unreasonable delay on the part of appellant to supply Folios and to follow up his application for copy, the appellant is entitled to the benefit of S. 12 of the Limitation Act and delay caused by Stamps not being procurable on the last day of limitation is excusable under S. 5 of the Act. 1 P.L.J. 163=37 Ind. Cas. 211.

——S. 5—Want of stamp.

An unstamped memorandum of appeal is held to be presented on the date on which the Court-fee is paid and the mere presenting of application to appeal as a pauper not made in good faith and within the time prescribed is not sufficient under S. 5 of Act to bring the appeal within time. 144 P.W.R. 1909=4 Ind. Cas. 1002.

30. Miscellaneous.

——S. 5—Bona fide mistake—Test to be applied.

Where the provisions of S. 5 of the Limitation Act are invoked on the ground of a bona fide mistake, the test is not merely whether the mistake was bona fide or not, but also whether in a case of bona fide mistake sufficient cause exists for condoning the negligence or other factor which might have led to that mistake. 1948 R.D. 433.

——S. 5—If can be applied in second appeal for first time.

Quaere.—It is doubtful whether the High Court can, in second appeal, apply the provisions of S. 5, when there was no application filed in the lower Appellate Court. A.I.R. 1939 Nag. 233=176 Ind. Cas. 33.

——S. 5—Jurisdiction.—Transferee Court, if can deal with question of limitation.

Where an appeal is transferred by the District Judge to the Subordinate Judge for hearing, the latter is fully competent to decide the appeal and deal with every point arising in it including the question of limitation. It cannot be said that the Subordinate judge had no jurisdiction to try the question of limitation after the appeal had been admitted under S. 5 of the Limitation Act by the District Judge. 1936 O W N 1109=A.I.R. 1936 Oudh 9=158 Ind. Cas 19.

——S. 5—Inherent powers.

The wording of S. 151, C. P. Code militates against the view that the inherent powers of the Court under it can be invoked to override the provisions of the Limitation Act. A.I.R. 1935 Rang. 466=13 R. 595= 159 Ind. Cas. 945.

——S. 5—Corporate body as party.

If a corporate body chooses to embark on litigation its officials and advisers must act with at least as much diligence as is expected from an ordinary litigant. The corporate is not entitled to greater indulgence than a private individual. 123 Ind. Cas. 83 (Lah.).

——S. 5—In considering an application for extending period fixed by law for presentation of appeal a distinction must be made between Government and a private person. Though any delay is evidence of laches in the case of a private individual, the same cannot be said of Government and so delay can be condoned if it is inevitable. A.I.R. 1929 Sind 211.

——S. 5—English Law is different.

There is considerable difference between the wording of the English Statute bearing on the point and the language employed in S. 5, Limitation Act. 110 Ind. Cas. 837=1928 M.W.N. 634=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 690.

——S. 5—The period between date of the judgment and the date of signing the decree should be excluded in computing the period of limitation. 13 Cal. 104, Foll. 97 Ind. Cas. 539=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 65.

——S. 5—In the absence of proof of sufficient cause under S. 5 extention of time to file appeal cannot be got by a party when he or his attorney has not made any application to the Registrar's Office to ascertain whether the plaintiff had in fact sent in a requisition to have the decree drawn up. 92 Ind. Cas. 563=29 C.W.N. 163 =A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 291.

——S. 5—Pauper appeals.

An order dismissing the application to appeal as a pauper does not affect the fact that the appeal has been preferred within the prescribed period of 30 days if the appellant has paid the Court-fee in obedience to the Court's order and the presentation of the appeal cannot be held to be after the expiry of limitation and the appellant is entitled to have the appeal heard. There is a distinction between applications to sue as a pauper and applications to appeal as such. In the former the plaint is an integral portion of the application ; in the latter the memorandum of appeal is a separate document. A person who wishes to sue as a pauper is expected to put in his application in sufficient time to allow of a suit being filed within limitation, if and after his application to sue has been rejected. In most cases a would-be appellant, who must file his appeal within 30 days, cannot secure a decision on his application within that period. 65 Ind. Cas. 741=3 Lah. 35=26 P.W.R. 1922=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 225.

——S. 5—A second appeal is not time-barred, because of the copy of the First Court's interlocutory order, which is mentioned in that Court's judgment as being a part of the judgment, is filed after the expiry of the period of limitation, when the points decided by the interlocutory order do not arise in the appeal. 4 Lah. L.J. 20=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 93.

——S. 5—Per Woodroffe, J.—An order dismissing an appeal as barred by limitation prescribed therefore after further refusing an application under S. 5 of the Limitation Act to admit the appeal after the prescribed time is "passed on appeal" under S. 109, C. P. Code. 62 Ind. Cas. 216=33 C.L.J. 128 =A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 415.

——S. 5—Delay of one day.

A delay of one day in presenting an appeal is as fatal as delay of any longer period. 10 S.L.R. 165=38 Ind. Cas. 464.

——S. 5—Appeal by heir.

An appeal preferred beyond time by the heir of the defendant who died just before judgment is barred. 18 Bom.L.R. 751=41 Bom. 15=36 Ind. Cas. 439.

——S. 5-A—Appeal by dead man—Legal representatives brought on record—Delay excused.

An appeal presented on behalf of a deceased party may be had, but the Court may, in a proper case, treat the appeal as filed on the day on which the legal representatives were brought on record and excuse the delay. (1908) 18 M.L.J. 461.

——S. 5—Appeal from wrong order—Conversion of appeal as one from another order—Limitation Act, S. 5—Return to the lower appellate Court.

When the High Court found that the order appealed against to the lower appellate Court did not lie in law, but that property the appeal should have been filed against another order of a different date, their Lordships converted the appeal to the lower appellate Court into an appeal from the right order and returned the records to the lower appellate Court for the exercise of its discretion under S. 5 of the Limitation Act, on a consideration of the facts that led up to the delay. (1905) 7 Bom.L.R. 664=30 B. 56.

——S. 5 (5-A)—Appeal against a representative of a party deceased since the passing of the lower Court.s decree.

In Rule 8 (d) of the Rules of Court of the 18th January, 1898, the words "subject to the law of limitation" means "subject to the law of limitation applicable to appeals. The words imply that the application for substitution must be made within the period prescribed for the appeal from the decision of the Court below, and that if the applicant seeks substitution after that period, he must bring the case within the terms of the second paragraph of S. 5 of the Indian Limitation Act (1877). 1901 A.W.N. 46.

——S. 5 (5-A)—Appeal—Delay—Excuse—Reasonable ground for only one appellant.

Where an appeal was preferred after time by a number of appellants and one of them alone applied to have the delay in prefering the appeal excused, his appeal alone should be admitted and the appeal by the rest should be dismissed as barred, unless such a case falls under S. 544, C. P. Code (1882) and the appellate Court should not interfere with the decree as regards the latter who are barred. (1901) 3 Bom.L.R. 400=25 B. 699.

1. Acknowledgment.

——Ss. 6 and 19—Applicability and scope—Minor—Extended period of three years—Acknowledgment made after expiry of period prescribed in scheme but within extended period given by S. 6—If gives fresh start.

The period of limitation prescribed for a suit for a minor is not the period mentioned in the First Schedule to the Limitation Act but a special period as mentioned in S. 6, Limitation Act. In the case of a minor, therefore, it cannot be said that the period of limitation has expired till the period of limitation laid down in S. 6 has elapsed. Where therefore an acknowledgment of liability is made by a debtor of the minor in his favour after the expiry of the period mentioned in the first schedule but within the extended period given to the minor under S. 6 such an acknowledgment is a valid acknowledgment giving a fresh start of limitation, and a suit brought by the minor within there years of such acknowledgement is within time and not barred. I.L.R. (1950) Bom. 741=A.I.R. 1950 Bom. 94=51 Bom.L.R. 830.

——Ss. 6, 19—S. 19, how far controls S. 6—Words "time from . . . . record" in S. 6, meaning of.

An effective acknowledgment does not postpone the time from which the limitation for a suit is to be reckoned and to that extent S. 19 must be said to control S. 6. The words "at the time from which the period of limitation is to be reckoned" occurring in S. 6 mean what they say, that is, the time at which the right to sue accrued to the plaintiff. Hence, when after the accrual of the cause of action, there is an acknowledgement which is valid under S. 19 to save limitation in the ordinary course, the time from which the period of limitation is to be reckoned must be taken to be the date of the acknowledgment and not the date of the cause of action. A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 248=44 Bom.L.R. 522=I.L.R. (1942) Bom. 574=202 Ind. Cas. 196.

——S. 6—Acknowledgment given when creditor was under legal disability.

Where, at the time when a payment by cheque towards a debt is made by a debtor, the creditor is under a legal disability, being a minor, the payment does not merely extend limitation for a period of three years but it operates under S. 6 to produce the result that at the time from which the period of limitation is to be recknoned, the creditors were under the legal disability of being minors and, therefore, they have all the period for their suit given to them by S. 6. A.I.R. 1936 All. 152=(1936) A.L.J. 59=1936 A.W.R. 99=161 Ind. Cas. 330.

——Ss. 6, 19—Mortgage—Suit by mortgagee's son within three years of becoming major—Mortgage becoming time-barred—Acknowledgment in another mortgage during plaintiff's minority—Plaintiff, is entititled to benefit of S. 6. 54 A. 1019=(1932) A.L.J. 1012=A.I.R. 1933 All. 100=142 Ind. Cas. 994.

——S. 6—Acknowledgment of liability—Proper time for valid acknowledgment.

Under S. 6, a minor may institute the suit and make an application within the same period after the disability has ceased as he would otherwise have been allowed from the time prescribed therefor in the third column of the first schedule. The time prescribed therefore in the third column of the first schedule is different from the extended period within which a minor may bring a suit after the disability has ceased. The acknowledgement of liability must, therefore, under S. 19, be given before the expiration of the period prescribed therefor in the third column of the first schedule and not before the expiration of the period within which a minor may bring the suit. 26 Bom. 782; 15 Bom.L.R. 348, Foll. 112 Ind.

Cas. 24=52 Bom. 521=30 Bom.L.R. 733=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 319.

2. After-born-son.

——S. 6—After-born-son—Period, when claimable—Person not in existence.

The extended period of 3 years' limitation after majority can be claimed only by a person entitled to institute a suit at the time from which the period of limitation is to be reckoned. A person not in existence at such time is not entitled to 3 years' extension. 46 Bom.L.R. 683=A.I.R. 1945 Bom. 63=219 Ind. Cas. 766.

——Ss. 6 and 7 both go together—After-born son not in existence at time mentioned in S. 6—S. 7, if can be invoked.

Both Ss. 6 and 7, Limitation Act go together. In fact worded, S. 7 is obvioulsy an extension of S. 6, where th point of time at whixh the existence of disability is to be recognized is clearly defined as "the time from which the period of limitation is to be reckoned." Consequently, the joint right of suit dealt within S. 7 will also have to exist at the time specified in S. 6 and if an after-born reversioner is non-existent then, S. 7 cannot be invoked in his case. 45 P.L.R. 345=A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 281=I.L.R. (1944) Lah. 287=209 Ind. Cas. 257 (F.B.).

——Ss. 6, 7, 8, 9—Alienation by widow in 1901 and 1904—Plaintiff adopted by widow in 1934, after death of prior major adopted son in 1918—Suit by plaintiff to set aside alienation.

Held, that since the effect of Ss. 6, 7,8 and 9, Limitation Act, was to bar the right of the prior adopted son to sue to set aside the alienation, no further right to sue in respect of these assignments could accrue to the plaintiff. A.I.R. 1941 Bom. 197=43 Bom.L.R. 222=195 Ind. Cas. 732.

——S. 6—After-born son.

An alienation by the manager without any legal necessity and consent of other co-parceners then living is invalid againstthose co-parceners and also other co-parceners born after the alienations provided the alienation has not been ratified by other co-parceners before his birth. Here the period of limitation would run from the date of the sale, and there is only one scause of action which would arise in favour of other members who have not consented to the sale. Successive causes of action cannot arise as new members are born year after year. Such after-born co-parcener cannot rely on S. 6 of the Limitation Act. A.I.R. 1940 Nag. 94=1939 N.L.J. 591=185 Ind. Cas. 881.

——S. 6—After-born son.

Under Hindu Law, a son, who was not born at the time of the alienation made by his father has no cause of action to institute a suit to set aside the alienation or to avail himself of the privileges given by S. 6, Limitation Act. (1935) M.W.N. 304=A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 431=41 L.W. 610=156 Ind. Cas. 83.

——S. 6—After-born son—Suit challenging alination under custom—Reversioner not born on date of alienation—Benefit of section.

Limitation for a suit challenging an alienation under the Customary Law begins to run from the date of alienation and where the reversioner is born subsequent to this date, he cannot avail himself of an extension of time under S. 6. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 290=154 Ind. Cas. 592

——S. 6—After-born son—Suit to impeach alienation by father—Cause of action—Starting point of limitation.

A, who was born on September 20, 1903, and B who was born on April 1, 1912, instituted a suit on February 23, 1922, for possession of the land in suit sold by their father f by registered deed, dated January 12, 1910.

Held, that owing to the minority of A on the date of alienation, time began to run against him from September 20, 1921, and that as B's right to sue was only derived from A's capacity to sue, time would not begin to run against B until September 20, 1921, and the time within which he could sue would be co-extensive with the time allowed to A:

Held, further that B was entitled to take advantage of the cause of action so long as it subsisted, though he did not obtain a fresh period of 21 years from the date of his birth. A.I.R. 1932 Lah. 605=13 L. 520=33 P.L.R. 808=140 Ind. Cas. 375.

——S. 6—Birth after cause of action.

For a suit to set aside an alienation by father the sons were not born on the date of alienation do not get a fresh cause of action from their birth, and at the most can only join in the suit with such sons as were born on the date of alienation and subject to the same period of limitation. 97 Ind. Cas. 591=A.I.R. 1927 All. 54.

——S. 6—After-born son—Elder son's right barred on date of suit—Suit not sustainable.

Where on the date of the suit by the eldest son who was over 21 the other sons were less than 21 and were within time so far as they were concerned and where they were not born on the date of the alienation by the father but were in existence before the eldest son attained majority.

Held, that the minor plaintiffs being not born when the right to sue accrues, i.e., the date of the alienation, the suit was barred by limitation. 59 Ind. Cas. 678=1 Lah. 558.

——S. 6—After-born son—Minor born or conceived after the expiry of limitation against all the coparceners existing at time of sale cannot revive, cause of action.

A son born in a joint Hindu family acquires by birth interest in ancestral property but does not acquire any interest in any right to sue. The cause of action accrues after an alienation when the purchaser take possession (See Art. 126, Limitation Act), and a new cause of action does not accrue upon the subsequent birth of a son in the family.

The after-born son does not acquire a fresh cause of action and arfesh period of limitation does not start from the date of his birth. In his case the time from which the period of limitation is to be reckoned is the date of the transfer and when he was not born on that date and was under no disability he cannot obtain the benefit of the provisions of S. 6 of the Limitation Act. He can take advantage of any cause of action existing at his birth and sue within the period of limitation but cannot start a fresh period at his birth. 8 W.R. 285; 4 All. 120, Foll. 82 Ind. Cas. 307=5 L.R.A. (Civ.) 663=A.I.R. 1925 All. 54.

——S. 6—After-born son—Co-parcener's existence on date of alienation entitles after born co-parcener to sue but only within the period within which the former co-parcener could sue.

Where a co-parcener who could challenge a deed was alive at the execution of the deed, and the plaintiffs were born during his lifetime and within twelve years of the alienation.

Held, they undoubtedly obtained a right to challenge it. A right to sue is not however co-parcenary property in which a son acquires interest by birth. Section 6 of the Limitation Act cannot be pleaded by a plaintiff who was not in existences when the alience took possession. He is entitled to take advantage of the existing cause of action so long as it subsists, but he does not obtain a fresh period of 21 years from the date of his birth. Even a co-parcener who challenges an alienation does so in virtue of his own independent right as a person who has acquired interest in the family estate by birth. Plaintiffs cannot rely on S. 7 where there was no joint right when the period of limitation commenced; plaintiffs can bring their suit within three years of the date when the co-parcener could have attained majoirty. 33 All. 654 ; 1 Lah. 558 ; 24 O.C. 330 ; 4 All. 235 ; 27 All. 704, Foll. 79 Ind. Cas. 1019=5 L.R.A. (Civ.) 325=A.I.R. 1924 All. 912.

——S. 6—After-born son—Subsequently born son has no fresh start for limitation though he can question alienation which was invalid at the time it is made.

Although it cannot be disputed that a subsequently born Hindu son has a right to avoid an alienation which took place at a time when other members of the family, not parties to the deed, were alive, it does not follow that he has fresh start for the purpose of limitation from the time of his birth. When an alienation is made which is not justified by necessity a cause of action arises in favour of the other members to have it set aside and to recover possession from the alienee but there is only one cause of action in favour of the other members of the family. Successive causes of action cannot arise as new members are born year after year. 83 Ind. Cas. 1052=5 L.R.A. (Civ.) 634=22 A.L.J. 809=46 All. 882=A.I.R. 1924 All. 798.

——S. 6—Son born after, cannot claim benefit of S. 6.

A son born in a joint Hindu family acquires by birth interest in ancestral property but does not acquire any interest in any right to sue. The cause of action accrues after an alienation, when the purchaser takes possession and a new cause of action does not accrue upon the subsequent birth of a son in the family. In the case of an after-born son the time from which the period of limitation is to be reckoned is the date of the transfer and as he was not born on that date and was under no disability on that date he cannot obtain the benefits of the provisions of S. 6 of the Limitation Act. When he cannot save limitation for himself he can give no benefit under S. 7 to his elder brothers. 66 Ind. Cas. 938=9 O.L.J. 45=A.I.R. 1923 Oudh 52.

3. Applicability and scope.

——Ss. 6 and 29 (2) (b)—Applicability of S. 6 to local laws.

It has been made clear in S. 29 (2) (b) of the Limitation Act that S. 6 of the Limitation Act does not apply to special or local Acts and as such the benefit of that section cannot be claimed in a suit under the U.P. Tenancy Act. 1949 R.D. 169 (1).

——S. 6—Applicability—Suits under U. P. Tenancy Act.

S. 6 of the Limitation Act is not applicable to suits under the U.P. Tenancy Act which is a local Act prescribing its own period of limitation. 1949 R.D. 400.

——S. 6—Applicability—Shebait on attaining majority bringing suit as next friend of deity—Exemption of period of minority.

If a shebait is a minor he is entitled to exemption of the period of his minority under the provisions of the Limitation Act when he brings a suit in his own name. This principle will also apply when the shebait on attaining majority brings the suit as the next friend of the deity. 51 C.W.N. 383=I.L.R. (1946) 2 Cal. 447.

——Ss. 6 and 7—Applicability—Both reversioners suing to set aside alienation born at the time of alienation—One of them a minor at the time of suit—Suit by one barred—Suits by the other, if and when barred. See HINDU LAW—ALIENATION. (1946) 2 M.L.J. 214=A.I.R. 1947 Mad. 102.

——S. 6—Applicability—Property in possession of Court of Wards continuously from time of plaintiff's father to date of attainment of majority—If saves limitation.

The fact that the property of a plaintiff has been in continuous possession of the Court of Wards from before the death of the plaintiff's father until the plaintiff attained majority will not prolong the period of limiation under S. 6 of the Limitation Act. 226 Ind. Cas. 97=12 B.R. 67 = A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 154.

——S. 6—Applicability—Subsequent disability arising after accrual of right to apply—Holder of decree dying two years after decree—Some heirs minors at that time—Execution application after attainment of majority of all—Limitation.

S. 6 of the Limitation Act cannot apply to a case of a subsequent disability ; it only applies to a case of an initial liability.

A decree for money was passed on 29th August, 1927. The decree-holder died two years later, when some of his legal heirs were minors. After they attained majority. an execution application was filed on 2nd October, 1945.

Held, that the application was barred, and S. 6 did not apply. 52 Mys. H.C.R. 332=27 Mys.L.J. 298.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope—Civil Procedure Code, S. 48.

S. 6 is not applicable to the limitation mentioned in S. 48, C.P. Code and the period mentioned in S. 48, C.P. Code would remain unaffected. A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 10=46 P.L.R. 26=I.L.R. (1944) Lah. 592=217 Ind. Cas. 119.

——S. 6 and Art. 182—Applicability and scope.

The provisions of S. 6 cannot be taken as overriding the prohibition, for they are expressly confined to cases falling under the same Act. The minor cannot also derive benefit from Art. 182, read with S. 6 for Art. 182, only applies in cases not covered by S. 48, C.P Code A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 68=46 P.L.R. 24=I.L.R (1945) Lah. 448=212 Ind. Cas. 228.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope—Application to set aside sale or proceedings in execution.

The benefit of S. 6, Lim. Act is available to a minor only in respect of a suit or an application for execution of a decree. The section does not apply to an application to set aside a sale or the proceedings in execution of a decree. A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 55=55 L.W. 663=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 558=1942 M.W.N. 660=205 Ind. Cas. 596.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope—Period of stay of proceedings.

Where after passing of a preliminary mortgage decree in favour of a minor represented by a next friend, the next friend dies and all further proceedings in the suit are stayed under Order 32,rule 10,C.P. Code the period during which the proceedings were stayed should be excluded in computing the period of limitation for making an application for final decree on the ground that the right to apply for a final decree was suspended during the period in which the suit was stayed. Section 6, Limitation Act has no application to such a case. A.I.R. 1941 Bom. 203=43 Bom.L.R. 329=I.L.R. (1941) Bom. 435=197 Ind. Cas. 30.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope.

Minor entitled by custom to succeed to office under Madras Hereditary Offices Act—Suit for recovery of office and endowments under that Act:

Held, that a decree for mesne profits for more than three years before the suit cannot be passed as S.6 of the Limitation Act does not apply to such a suit. 53 L.W. 736 =A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 693=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 91=1941 M.W.N. 620=200 Ind. Cas. 38.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope—Time from which limitation runs.

Where the appointment of the minor as a mahant automatically follows the death of the previous mahant of the math, the minor can claim the benefit of S. 6, Limitation Act, but where his appointment is made after the period of Limitation as started to run consequent on the death of the previous manager, S. 6, cannot help him. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 449=I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 599=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 644=53 L.W. 569=1941 M.W.N. 408=199 Ind. Cas. 225 (F.B.).

——Ss. 6, 7—Applicability and scope—S. 48, C. P. Code overrides Ss. 6 and 7 and not vice versa.

Section 6, Limitation Act is made to govern not the periods of limitation prescribed generally in and Act, but only the periods prescribed in the third column of the First Schedule of the Limitation Act itself. There is thus a very strong implication from the wording of S. 6 that it was intended not to apply to period of limitation prescribed under other Acts, and accordingly S. 6 is subject to S. 48 of the C.P. Code. Section 48¡(2) (b), C.P. Code. implies that S.48 is intended to affect remaining provisions of the Limitatation Act and this implication is supported by the wording of the first paragraph of S. 48, which does not merely prescribe period of limitation but lays down in categorical terms that in the circumstances contemplated no order for the execution of the same decree shall be made, the implication clearly being that this is meant to bar any order for execution even where, so far as limitation is concerned, the right to execute might otherwise exist.

Section 7, Lim. Act is, in a sense, a subsidiary section to S. 6 and must be read with it. This is clear from the fact that it is not self-contained. It refers only to 'such' disability the word "such" manifestly referring to the disabilities enumerated in S. 6. Where therefore S. 7, says that time will or will not run, that time must be taken to be the time referred to in S. 6, that is to say, the time specified in the third column of the First Schedule of the Act. Both Ss. 6 and 7 of the Limitation Act must be read subject to the provisions of S. 48, C. P. Code A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 45=21 P.L.T. 721=7 B.R. 15=20 Pat. 1=190 Ind. Cas. 369.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope.

Section 6 has no application when the plaintiff, all along her minority was under the impression that the possession of the defendant was on her behalf. It is when the plaintiff demands possession from the defendant and when the defendant refuses it that the caus of action for suit arises. 188 Ind. Cas. 872 (Bhopal).

——S. 6—Applicability and scope.

S. 6 does not govern S. 48 of the C.P. Code, I.L.R. (1939) Nag. 559= A.I.R. 1939 Nag. 245=1939 N.L.J. 387= 184 Ind Cas. 72.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope—Personal right—Assignee of minor, if can claim benefit of S. 6.

An assignee from a person, who was a minor cannot claim the benefit of S. 6.

Where a mother of a minor sells his property and the minor who is born in 1909, assigns in 1930 his right to recover the property as a reversioner and both the assignor and the assignee jointly bring a suit to recover the property on the ground that the sale by the mother was unauthorised without necessity and, therefore, void. The suit is not barred by limitation as the assignor, even after the transfer of his right in the property does not lose the right even to be joined as a co-plaintiff in a suit by assignee to recover possession of the property assigned by him. A.I.R. 1938 Bom. 358=40 Bom.L.R. 548=177 Ind. Cas. 475.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope.

S. 6, is limited to cases where limitation is prescribed in Sch. 1. Since S. 48, C.P. Code specially provides for limitation, it is not governed by the provisions of S. 6 or S. 7, Lim. Act. Hence the decree-holders are not entitled to that extended period. A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 25= I.L.R. (1937) 2 Cal. 373=65 C.L.J. 403=176 Ind. Cas. 212.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope.

A minor having the benefit of S. 6, is not precluded from bringing his suit before attaining majority. A.I.R. 1936 All. 152=(1936) A.L.J. 59=1936 A.W.R. 99= 161 Ind. Cas. 330.

——S. 6 (As amended in 1922), if applies to suit for recovery of proprietary profits.

Section 6 of the Lim. Act applies to suit by co-sharers for recovery of their shares of proprietary profits from the lambardar.

The amendment in 1922 in reality amplified the scope of the old S. 29 of the Lim. Act. The amended section applies to the local law certain specified sections, namely S. 4 and Ss. 9 to 18 and S. 22 unless they are expressly excluded by the local law and further says that the rest of the provisions of the Lim. Act in which S. 6 is included shall not apply. 18 N.L.J. 285=163 Ind. Cas. 623.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope.

Section 6 does not apply to cases, under para. 20, Sch. II, Civil P. Code. A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 161=17 P.L.T. 20=14 Pat. 855=2 B.R. 353= 161 Ind. Cas. 691.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope.

S. 6 only applies when the disability is in existence at time when limitation begins to run. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 144.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope—Application to set aside sale.

S. 6 deals with cases where a person entitled to institute a suit or make an application for the execution of decree is, at the time from which period of limitation is to be reckoned, a minor, or insane or an idiot. The section does not cover the case of an application under O. 21, R. 90, C.P. Code., to set aside a sale held in execution of a decree. A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 450=2 B.R. 693=16 P.L.T. 923=159 Ind. Cas. 253.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope.

Suit after death of widow whose alienation is challenged is governed by Act 120—Minority of plaintiff—Suit within three years of majority—Plaintiff is entitled to benefit of S. 6 if he was minor on date of alienation or subsequently born. 16 P.L.T. 236=A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 256=1 B.R. 418 =155 Ind. Cas. 244.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope—Minor in existence at time of alienation—Question of limitation does not arise if he brings suit during minority challenging it—Custom (Punjab)—Alienation.

Under the Punjab Customary Law, every minor who was in existence at the time of alienation which is being challenged by him, can bring a suit within three years of attaining majority. Therefore, where the plaintiff is still minor, he has ample time to bring his suit and no objection on the ground of limitation can be taken. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 908=154 Ind. Cas. 603.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope.

Suit by minor through father as next friend—Preliminary decree passed—Death of next friend —No fresh appointment—Suit does not abtate but remains in abeyance by virtue of O. 32, R. 10—Application for final decree within three years of minors attaining majority but after the expiry of thee years from date on which the period of grace fixed by the preliminry decree expired—Section 6 has no application—Application is not barred. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 508=37 C.W.N. 184=144 Ind. Cas. 768.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope.

If the period within which an ex-minor can institute a suit under the provisions of S. 6, expires on a day when the Court is closed, the suit can be filed on the re-opening day. (1931) M.W.N. 1127=34 L.W. 650=55 M. 286=A.I.R. 1932 Mad. 139=61 M.L.J 675=135 Ind. Cas. 587.

——Ss. 6 and 8—Applicability and scope.

Alienation by widow—Adoption—Death of adopted son during minority—Succession of mother—Suit by reversioner within 12 years of mother's death—Contentions that the mother was divested of the property by reason of adoption and that the period of limitation was abridged under S. 6 in the case of the adopted son who was a minor cannot stand as the mother succeeded him after his death. 59 M.L.J. 949=(1930) M.W.N. 811=33 L.W. 378=A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 273=129 Ind. Cas. 460.

——Ss. 6, 7—Applicability and scope—Disqualification under Court of Wards Act—Whether extends limitation.

The Lim. Act does not touch disqulification under S. 6 (a), Court of Wards Act, and a disqualified proprietor is not exempted from suing so long as the property remains in the hands of the Court of Wards. A.I.R. 1931 Oudh 177=8 O.W.N. 349=136 Ind. Cas. 642.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope—Idol or math.

The only disabilities which save the operation of the Limitation Act are those which are created by the statute itself, S. 6 of which recognizes only three classes of persons as being under legal disability, namely, a minor and insane person and an idiot, and does not include idol or math. 11 P.L.T. 403=A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 455.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope—Principal and agent.

Where an agency does not terminate with the death of the principal but terminates with the completion of a transaction which has occurred in the lifetime of principal, the terminus a quo for limitation under Art. 89 begins from the completion of the transactions and the minor claiming through the principal, an amount credited to the name of the principal in a firm account, cannot ask the help of S. 6. A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 883.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope—Restitution proceedings.

S. 6 applies to an application made under S. 144, C.P. Code. 92 Ind. Cas. 23=13 O.L.J. 731=1 Luck. 40=3 O.W.N. 65=A.I.R. 1926 Oudh 199.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope—Setting aside compromise decree.

Minor must sue within three years of his becoming major even to set aside a compromise decree sanctioned by Revenue Court. 77 Ind. Cas. 588=22 P.W.R. 1923=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 427.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope—Period for suit.

The period of limitation prescribed for a suit of the nature to which the provisions of Ss. 6,7 and 8 of the Limitation Act apply must be taken to be the period reckoned on the basis of the time provided for by the schedule and also of the provisions of S. 8 of the Act. 81 Ind. Cas. 484=11 O.L.J. 295=A.I.R. 1924 Oudh 385.

——S. 6—Applicability to Kumaun Rules.

S. 6 of the Limitation Act is made applicable to the Kumaun Rules by a notification of 1918 and it confers on a minor a larger period of limitation for instituting a suit to avoid a sale of Khaikari right. 14 R.D 635.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope—Local acts.

S. 6 applies not only to period of limitation prescribed by that Act but also to any period prescribed by a special or local Act. 71 Ind. Cas. 140=6 N.L.J. 1=A.I.R. 1923 Nag. 164.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope—Filing award.

An appliction to file an award does not become a suit by the provisions of Para. 20 (2), Sch. 11, C.P.Code and hence the applicant cannot claim the benefit of S. 6. 1 Rang. 256=A.I.R. 1923 Rang. 226=76 Ind. Cas. 493.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope—Application for re-admitting appeal.

Article 168 applies to an application for the re-admission of an appeal under O. 41, R. 19 under which if sufficient cause is shown for default, the Court is bound to readmit the appeal as such an application is outside the terms of S. 6. 60 Ind. Cas. 919=45 Bom. 648=23 Bom. L.R. 110=A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 20.

——Ss. 6 and 7—Applicability and scope.

Ss. 6 ad 7 of the Limitation Act are not mutually exclusive; the latter section supplements the former. 41 All. 435=17 A.L.J. 649=49 Ind. Cas. 990.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope—Application under S. 144, C. P. Code.

The section is an enabling section to enable persons under disability to exercise their legal rights within a certain time and it should be construed literally. The section applies to applications under S. 144, C.P. Code. 41 Bom. 625=19 Bom.L.R. 638=41 Ind. Cas. 238.

——S. 6, Arts. 44 and 144—Applicability and scope.

The section lays down a general rule for all kinds of disabilities and in all kinds of suit while Arts. 44 and 144 apply to only one case of disability, i.e., minority and one class of suits, i.e., a suit to set aside a sale by guardian. 10 M.L.T. 418=(1911) 2 M.W.N. 450=21 M.L.J. 1041=12 Ind. Cas. 695.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope.

S. 6 does not govern the applications made before the Act came into force. The S. 7 of the Limitation Act (1877) was not confined to applications made by minors after attaining majority but also applied to applications made by guardians during minority of their wards. 5 P.L.R. 1910=118 P.W.R. 1910=6 Ind. Cas. 488.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope—Idol not a perpetual infant.

An idol cannot be regarded as a perpetual infant and the shebait is manager for the purposes of S. 7 of the Limitation Act. 13 C.W.N. 805=3 Ind. Cas. 93

——S. 6 (S. 7)—Applicability and scope—Death of decree-holder pending stay of execution—Right of pending stay of execution—Right of minor to revive—Proceedings—Limitation.

Where a mortgagee decree-holder applied for sale of the mortgaged properties but on objection the proceedings were stayed, and before the stay order was removed the decree-holder died leaving a minor son, and shortly afterwards the stay order was removed and the application for sale also was struck off.

Held, that the minor heir of the decree-holder was entitled to the protection of S. 7 of the Limitation Act (1877) and an application for sale made on his behalf more than 3 years after was not barred by limitation. (1907) 11 C.W.N. 831.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope—The 'period of limitation'—Benefit of, to unborn reversioners and minor adopted sons—Cause of action accruing to an infant Hindu widow—Adoption—Suit by adopted son.

The words 'period of limitation' signify the period of limitation for the suit which the plaintiff or some one through whom he claims is entitled to institute. Where a cause of action in respect of a claim for possession of land by right of purchase at a putni sale accrued to an infant Hindu widow who adopted a son during the continuance of her minority.

Held, that the adopted son (an infant) in bringing a suit when no suit had been brought by the widow, was entitled to the benefit of S. 7(O.A.). There is no privity as between Hindu reversioners. The right of a reversioner to sue for a declaration cannot accrue before he is born, and if, therefore, he is an infant at the date of the alienation or is born subsequently, he is entitled to the benefit of S. 7 of the Limitation Act (1877). (1905) 2 C.L.J. 87=9 C.W.N. 795.

——S. 6 (Ss. 7, 17)—Applicability and scope—Minority of plaintiff—Right to sue, accrual of, to administrator pending minority—Effect.

S. 7 (O.A.) must be read in conjunction with S. 17, and the operation of the earlier section must be regarded as qualified by and subject to the exception provided in the latter section. Where pending minority of plaintiff, the right to sue accrued to the administrator on taking out letters of administration.

Held, plaintiff will not be entitled to the benefit of S. 7. 20 Cal. 15 Foll. (1905) 9 C.W.N. 537.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope—Shebait of an idol minority of—Right of suit.

The possession and managment of a property dedicated to on idol belongs to the shebait, and this carries with it the right to bring whatever suits are necessary for the protection of the property. Every such right of suit is vested in the shebait and not in the idol. Where the right to sue accrued when the shebait was a minor, the case fell within the clear language of S. 7 of the Limitation Act (1877) and the shebait might institute the suit after coming of age as provided in that section Although a guardian might have maintained a suit on behalf of the minor, that does not deprive the minorof the protection given to him by the Limitation Act, when it empowers him to sue after he attains his majority. 8 C.W.N. 809 =6 Bom.L.R. 765=1 A.L.J. 585=32 C. 129=31 I.A. 203 (P.C.).

——S. 6 (S. 7)—Applicability and scope.

Nor where a mother who is the guardian of her infant son lends money out of her son's estate, but takes the promissory note in her name. (1904) 15 M.L.J. 249=28 Mad. 205.

——S. 6 (S. 7)—Applicability and scope.

S. 6 (S. 7) does not apply to a case where some of the appellants are majors and are consequently able to apply to bring the representatives of the deceased respondent on record.

Per Subramanya Aiyar, J.—The right to apply to bring the legal representatives of a deceased respondent on record is a joint right vesting in all the appellants, irrespective of the question whether the right of the appellants in the subject of the appeal itself was several or joint. 27 M. 531, Foll. (1904) 28 Mad. 359.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope—Minor—Suit by guardian.

A suit was brought upon a mortgage bond. The original mortgagee was a guardian acting for a minor and the suit was also brought by him in the same capacity. The lower appellate Court held that the suit was barred and that the guardian could not claim any special benefit as regards limitation. Held, that the lower appellate Court was wrong. (1903) 7 C.W.N. 594.

——S. 6—Applicability and scope—Two minor heirs of a deceased Hindu—Suit for deceased's property and to set aside an adoption—One of the heirs barred—Effect of.

Where a Hindu left two daughters and one of them sued to recover his property and to set aside an adoption by her mother within three years after attaining majority, the fact that her elder sister is barred by limitation is no bar to her suit. (1902) 4 Bom.L.R. 140.

——S. 6 (S. 7)—Scope of—Minor—Bengal Tenancy Act (8 of 1885), S. 167—Application to bar encumbrance.

S. 7 of the Limitation Act (1877) extends the periods of limitation prescribed by the Act itself, but does not affect the limitation prescribed by S. 167 of the Special Act, viz., the Bengal Tenancy Act. (1902) 29 Cal. 813.

4. Burden of proof.

——S. 6—Burden of proof.

A plaintiff must prove affirmatively and clearly that his suit is within time. A mere entry that a son was born to a man of the name of the plaintiff's father does not necessarily prove that the entry relates to the plaintiff, unless the entry can be supported by evidence. 79 Ind. Cas. 211=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 41.

——S. 6—Burden of proof.

The plaintiff has to show that his suit is in time where a person after attaining majority sues to recover property alienated by his guardian, he must prove that he is within the time allowed by S. 6. 213 P.L.R. 1910=86 P.W.R. 1910=7 Ind. Cas. 505.

5. Child in womb.

——Ss. 6 and 8—Applicability—"Person"—"Minor"—Hindu son in mother's womb—Right to challenge alienation by father—Limitation for suit—Computation of limitation—Majority Act, S. 3.

The benefit of Ss. 6 and 8 of the Limitation Act can be availed of by a Hindu son attacking an alienation made by his father when he had been in his mother's womb, the period of his minority being computed from the date of his birth and not from the date of his conception. A son in his mother's womb must for the purposes of Ss. 6 and 8 of the Limitation Act, be regarded as a "person" and also a minor".

Under S. 3 of the Majority Act, the minority does not terminate until the age of 18 had been completed, and that age has to be computed from the date of birth of the person in question and not from the date of his conception. I.L.R. (1947) Bom. 750=49 Bom.L.R. 775= A.I.R. 1948 Bom. 150.

——S. 6—Child in womb.

Although, under certain systems of law, such as Hindu Law, a child en ventre sa mere is by a legal fiction and for certain purposes considered to be born in the sense that he has a right of inheritance in his father's property yet such a fiction does not govern the rule laid down by the law of limitation. The minority under Limitation Act begins at the date of birth and not at the date of conception.

Hence where a person challenging the alienation of the ancestral property was in the mother's womb but not born at the time of the alienation, he cannot be said to be a minor and cannot therefore claim an extension of time contemplated by S. 6. A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 290=42 P.L.R. 237=183 Ind. Cas. 451.

——S. 6—Child in womb.

While, for certain purposes, a child in the womb of his mother cannot be regarded as a person in existence for certain other purposes he may be regarded as a person in existence. Further, a person in existence must be either a minor or a major and obviously an infant en ventre sa mere cannot be a major and must therefore, be a minor. A suit instituted by a son, within three years of attaining majority, to set aside certain alienations made by the father while the son was en ventre sa mere, is therefore, within time. (1935) M.W.N. 920=42 L.W. 349=58 M. 886=A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 839=69 M.L.J. 425=159 Ind. Cas. 1 (F.B.).

——S. 6—Child in womb—Period of minority—Whether to be computed from date of birth or conception—Limitation Act (9 of 1908), S. 6—Applicability of.

The period of minority is to be computed from the date of birth and not from the date of conception of the child. S. 6 applies to the case. (1935) M.W.N. 920=42 L.W. 349=69 M.L.J. 425=58 M. 886=A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 839=159 Ind. Cas. 1 (F.B.). [Over ruling A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 456=60 M.L.J. 521=132 Ind. Cas. 816.].

——S. 6—Child in womb—Co-parceners.

A Hindu, challenging the alienation by his father, who is not born on the date of alienation, is not entitled to benefit of S. 6 merely on the ground that he was conceived on that date. If he was not born he could not be said to be a minor and therefore subject to a disability. A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 394=31 P.L.R. 305=127 Ind. Cas. 708.

——S. 6—Child in womb.

Where a cause of action accrued to a person when he was in embryo, he cannot get the advantage of S. 6 as he cannot be deemed to be a minor in existence on the date of the conception. 116 Ind. Cas 545=10 Lah. 713=30 P.L.R. 737=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 254.

6. Computation.

——S. 6—Three years' period—Computation—Day on which minor attains majority—If to be excluded.

The period of three years under S. 6 of the Limitation Act has to be counted not from the date of attainment of majority by the person under disability, but from the date of cessation of minority or disability. The date on which the minor attains majority cannot therefore be excluded in computing that period. A.I.R. 1950 Pat. 206.

7. Court of Wards.

——S. 6—Decree in favour of Court of Wards in name of manager—Execution of decree by minor after attaining majority.

Where a decree is in favour of Court of Wards but stands in the name of the manager of the Court of Wards, and the wards are minors, they are entitled to the benefit of S. 6 in regard to the execution of the decree. 1935 A.W.R. 1334=A.I.R. 1936 All. 63=(1935) A.L.J. 1336=160 Ind. Cas. 275.

——S. 6—Court of Wards.

Where the Court of Wards has assumed the supreintendence of the property of the minor, it can apply for execution of a decree passed in favour of the minor's father after the period of limiation and rely upon the provisions of S. 6. A.I.R. 1936 Sind 84=30 S.L.R. 30=163 Ind. Cas. 379.

8. Execution application.

——S. 6—Execution application.

A minor in whose favour a decree is passed can execute the same at any time within three years of his attaining majority. 16 Bom. 536, foll. 32 Bom.L.R. 1093=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 508.

——S. 6—Execution application.

Where a minor decree-holder makes an application for execution of his decree after he attains majority the period during which he was a minor shall be deducted for the purpose of computing the period of limitation. 117 Ind. Cas. 909=30 P.L.R. 398=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 661.

——S. 6—Execution application.

Where execution application is put in by the next friend of the minor beyond three years since the previous execution application, also by the next friend, such application is not barred by limitation because Ss. 6 and 7 import that during minority the operation of Limitation Act is suspended. 119 Ind. Cas. 39=1929 M.W.N. 158=30 M.L.W. 361=A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 394.

——S. 6—Execution application.

An application for the continuance or rivival of a previous execution proceeding struck off or suspended for no act or default of the decree-holder is governed by Article 181. Such an application is substantially an application for the execution of a decree within the meaning of S. 6 of that Act, which protects the minors, so long as the disability continues, and postpones the commencement of limitation till the date on which such disability ceases. 80 Ind. Cas. 775=26 O.C. 206=11 O.L.J. 133=A.I.R. 1924 Oudh 31.

——S. 6—Execution application.

Under S. 6, the last date for a minor decree-holder to apply in execution is within three years after attaining majority. The guardian of a minor can also apply in execution at any time during the minority even though his previous application is more than three years old. 32 Bom.L.R. 1299=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 593.

——S. 6 (S. 7, Arts. 178, 179)—Execution application—Execution of decree—Limitation—Minority.

On the 11th of May, 1886, a decree under S. 88 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, was passed in favour of one S.L. In June, 1888, S.L. dies, leaving him surviving three sons, all minors. On the 30th of April, 1889, these three sons, still minors, made an application for a decree absolute under S. 89 of the Act. Nothing further was done towards execution of the decree until the 1st of October, 1904, when the three sons, one being still a minor again applied for a decree absolute for the sale of the mortgaged property. Held, that the application of the 1st October, 1904 was not barred by limitation. (1907) A.W.N. 45=4 A.L.J. 145=29 A. 279.

9. Existence of guardian.

——S. 6—Existence of guardian—Decree by guardian on behalf of minor—Execution application dismissed as barred—Minor, if precluded from applying for execution within three years of his attaining majority.

S. 6 applies to every minor whether he has a guardian or not, and the existence of a minor competent to sue is immaterial.

Where, after obtaining a decree on behalf of a minor, the guardian applies for its execution but the application is held barred by time, the minor can apply for execution of the decree within three years from the date of his attaining majority and the order in the previous proceedings is not binding on him. A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 92=18 P.L.T. 989=4 B.R. 400=174 Ind. Cas. 193.

——S. 6—Existence of guardian.

Where the father of the minor plaintiffs was carrying on business without any partner and on his death, his minor sons succeeded him and the business was thereafter carried on through their agent or guardian in the name used by the father and the defendants drew up a hundi in favour of that name and the hundi became payable when they were minors:

Held, that the minor plaintiffs could avail themselves of the provisions of S. 6. They were not debarred from taking the benefit of S. 6 simply because the hundi under which they were suing was given, not in their own name but in a name by which they were known to those with whom they had business relations. The fact that there was a manager who could have sued during the minority of the plaintiffs made no difference. 16 P.L.T. 649=A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 194=1 B.R. 844=158 Ind. Cas. 25.

——S. 6—Existence of guardian.

The mere fact that there was a guardian on behalf of a lunatic who could have sued earlier will not deprive him of the protection given to him under S. 6. A.I.R. 1934 All. 434=(1934) A.L.J. 803=3 A.W.R. 671=148 Ind. Cas. 1166.

——S. 6—Existence of guardian—Guardian ad litem or next friend—Effect of existence of—Minor—Limitation.

The existence of a next friend or guardian ad litem cannot deprive the minor of the benefit of S.6 of the Limitation Act and a minor can apply for execution of decree on attaining majority within the time prescribed by S. 6. 16 O.C. 206=21 Ind. Cas. 365.

10. Interpretation.

——S. 6 (1)—Interpretation—S. 6 (1) explained.

There is no connection between the words " time from which the period of limitation is to be reckoned" and the words "time prescribed therefore in clause 3, of Sch. 1"in S. 6 (1). The section may be paraphrased as follows : " When a plaintiff is a minor at the time from which the period of limitation is to be reckoned, he may institute his suit within the same period, starting from the date of his becoming a major as (but for his minority) would have been available to him starting from the date prescribed for such a suit in clause 3 of Sch. I." For example if col. 3, provides two years from the date of the cause of action which means the original cause of action—then the plaintiff gets two years from the date of his majority. That is all that it means. A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 248=44 Bom.L.R. 522=I.L.R. (1942) Bom. 574=202 Ind.Cas. 196.

——S. 6 (3)—Interpretation—S. 6 (3), refers to physical death and nothing else.

S. 6 (3), itself, where it says "where the disability continues up to the death of such person" refers to physical death and nothing else, and the legal representative must be a legal representative whose title depends on the death of the person he represents. A.I.R. 1935 Bom. 420=37 Bom.L.R. 706=159 Ind. Cas. 272.

——S. 6—Interpretation—Alteration of words—Effect.

The effect of the substitution of the words "make an application for execution of a decree" in S. 6 of the present Act in place of the words "make any application" in S. 7 of the old Act, is that the privilege enjoyed by a minor of making an application within the prescribed period after the cessation of disability has been taken away, and now any application by the minor except an application for the execution of a decree has to be made within the prescribed period from that time when the right to apply accrued. 122 Ind. Cas. 201=49 C.L.J. 362=33 C.W.N. 519=56 Cal. 1117=A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 34.

11. Legal representative.

——Ss. 6, 8, 9—Devolution of mortgagee's right on minor son—Son dying during minority—Suit by mother—Limitation.

The mortgage was in 1916. A period of three years was fixed for payment of the amount. After the death the mortgagee which occurred in 1920 the right devolved upon his son, then a minor, and while he was a minor, there were two acknowledgments, one in 1924 and the other in 1927. The minor died and within 3 years of his death, his mother as his legal representative instituted the suit.

Held, that reading Ss. 6 and 19 together, when an acknowledgment was made, a fresh period of limitation was to be computed from the time of the acknowledgment and where a person entitled to institute a suit was, at the from which he period of limitation was to be reckoned, a minor, he may institute the suit within the same period after the disability had ceased. Under S. 6 (3) where the disability continued up to the death of the minor, his legal representative could institute a suit within the same period after the death as would otherwise have been allowed from the time so prescribed. The suit, therefore, was within time. (1945) 1 M.L.J. 3=57 M.L.W. 66 =A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 149.

——S. 6—Acknowledgment—Fresh limitation—Acknowledgee minor—Limitation for suit by minor—Minor dying during minority—Suit by legal representative—Limitation.

When an acknowledgment is made, a fresh period of limitation is to be computed from the time when the acknowledgment is made and signed, and if the person entitled to institute the suit is at the time from which the period of limitation is to be reckoned, a minor, he may institute within the same period after disability has ceased. If, however, the minor dies before the cessation of disability, the suit filed by his legal representative would be within time if brought at a time when it would have been within time if brought by the minor after cessation of disability. 57 L.W. 612=1944 M.W.N. 732=(1945) 1 M.L.J. 3=A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 149.

——S. 6—Legal representatives of minor—S. 6, if applies.

The provisions of the Limitation Act regarding legal disability and consequent extension of time are personal tothe minor and do not apply to legal representatives of the minors except as stated in S. 6 of the Act itself. A.I.R. 1943 Nag. 284 =I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 331=1943 N.L.J. 286=207 Ind. Cas. 338.

——S. 6—Legal Representative.

In a suit for possession, where a minor dies before attaining majority his representative would have either the total period of 12 years from the date of accrual of the cause of action or three years from the date of the minor's death, which ever is greater. 87 Ind. Cas. 315=6 L.R.A. Civ. 284=A.I.R. 1925 All. 692.

——Ss. 6, 7—Legal representative—Minority—Death of decree-holder, leaving a minor representative surviving him—Limitation.

Held, that the person whose minority would under S. 7, of the Limitation Act, 1877, save the operation of limitation must be the person who was entittled to bring the suit or make the application on the date from which the period of limitation for the particular suit or application was to be reckoned. 1886 A.W.N. 49, Foll. (1905) A.W.N. 163=2 A.L.J. 453=27 A. 704.

12. Non-execution application.

——S. 6—Non-execution applications—Decree barred by C. P. Code, S. 48—Effect of.

S.6 of the Limitation Act only applies to cases dealt with by the statute itself and does not apply to cases barred by S. 48 of the Code. Minority, therefore, is no ground for exemption from the operation of limitation provided for by S. 48 of the Code. 37 M. 186, foll. 37 All. 638= 13 A.L.J. 826=30 Ind. Cas. 512.

——Ss. 6 and 181—Non-execution applications—Application for final decree.

S. 6 of the Limitation Act will not save limitation inasmuch as an application for a final decree in a mortgage suit is not an application for execution. 40 All. 203= 16 A.L.J. 85=43 Ind. Cas. 870.

——S. 6—Non-execution applications—Application under O. 22, R. 3.

The section does not apply to applications under O. 22, R.3 of the C.P. Code to bring on record legal representatives of a deceased appellant nor to applications to set aside an ex parte decree on the ground of minority. 10 Bur.L.T. 27=35 Ind. Cas. 438.

——S. 6—Ss. 5, 6, 7, 8 and 14—Non-execution applications—Pre-emption suit.

A suit where the representative of one of two joint vendees is brought on record, after the period of limitation the suit being barred against the representative,is really barred against the surviving vendees. The period of limitation could not be extended as Ss. 5 and 14 of the Limitation Act were not applicable and the provisions of Ss. 6 and 7 did not extend to suits to enforce a right of pre-emption under S. 8 of this Act. 86 P.R. 1919=52 Ind. Cas. 587.

——S. 6—Limitation Act (15 of 1877), S. 7—Non-execution applications—Applications to set aside ex parte decree.

Minority can be successfully invoked as a plea only in suits and execution applications under S. 6 of Limitation Act of 1908, by which S. 7 of old Act is replaced ; and so the exception in S. 6 of the Act of 1908 does not include the case of an application to set aside an ex parte decree. 101 P.R. 1916=37 Ind. Cas. 292.

——S. 6 and Art. 166—C. P. Code (1882), S. 311—Non-execution applications.

An application under S. 311, C.P. Code (1882) to set aside an auction sale is not barred under Art. 166 though presented after one year by the guardian or next friend of the minor. The period of limitation is extended according to S. 7, Limitation Act (1877) as this section applies to applications made by guardians during the minority of their wards too. 5 P.L.R. 1910=118 P.W.R. 1910=6 Ind. Cas. 488.

——S. 6 and Art. 170—Non-execution applications—Application for pauper appeal.

S. 7 of the old Act does not apply to an application for pauper appeal made in the name of a minor by his next friend. It must be made within the time allowed under Art. 170 of the Act. 144 P.W.R. 1909=4 Ind. Cas. 1002.

——S. 6—Non-execution applications—C. P. Code, S. 48—Application under.

S. 6 of the Limitation Act, does not operate to extend the period of twelve years under S. 48, C. P. Code. 13 M.L.T. 79=1913 M.W.N. 114=24 M.L.J. 96=37 Mad. 186=18 Ind. Cas. 586.

——S. 6 and Art. 164—Non-execution applications—Application to set aside ex parte decree—New or old Act applicable—General Clauses Act, S. 6—Act enforced some months after its passing—Effect.

An ex parte decree was passed on 4th September, 1894, the third defendant then a minor, said that he attained majority on 16th January, 1909 and applied on 25th January, 1909, to set aside the ex parte decree. The new Limitation Act, came into force on 1st January, 1909.

Held, that the application to set aside the ex parte decree was governed by the new Act and under Art. 164 the application was barred. S. 6 of the New Limitation Act, applies only to suits and applications for execution and not to other applications. As the Legislature has deliberately modified S. 7 of the old Act so as to confine the operation of disability to suits and applications for the execution of decrees, minority should not be allowed, to operate as a ground of disability in case so deliberately excluded. S. 6 of the General Clauses Act and Ss. 3 and 13 and Art. 164 of the Limitation Act, clearly indicate that the new Act applies. The right to apply to set aside an ex parte decree is acquired under C. P. Code and not under Limitation Act. The Limitation Act merely limits the period within which the right given by the C. P. Code may be exercised. The new Limitation Act though passed in August, 1908 only, came into force nearly 5 months later on the 1st January, 1909 and thus gave ample notice to all who would be seriously affected by the change in the law to seek their remedy under the Old Law. 35 Mad. 678=(1910) M.W.N. 711=9 M.L.T. 75=8 Ind. Cas. 543.

——S. 6 and Art. 181—Non-execution applications—Application for order absolute.

S. 6 of the Limitation Act is not applicable to an application to make a decree absolute which is governed by Art. 181. 15 N.L.R. 36=48 Ind. Cas. 934.

13. Personal Privilege.

——S. 6—Personal privilege—S. 6, whether applies to assignee from minor.

The extended period allowed by S. 6 only applies to the case of a minor and his representatives after his death and not to an assignee from the minor. A.I.R. 1935 Bom. 420=37 Bom.L.R. 706=159 Ind. Cas. 672.

——S. 6—Personal privilege—Transferee of minor

An assignee cannot take advantage of S. 6. 90 Ind. Cas. 741=2 O.W.N. 811=A.I.R. 1926 Oudh 20.

——S. 6—Personal privilege—Transferee cannot take advantage of S. 6.

The general principle of law is that transferee from a minor cannot claim the benefit of S. 6 of the Limitation Act.

The transferee cannot, therefore, maintain a suit there being no reason for the distinction between a suit brought on the date of the transfer and a suit brought on a subsequent date. As soon as the transfer is made the special privilege which is vested in the minor is extinguished. 9 Cal. 663 ; 42 Mad. 637, Foll. 66 Ind. Cas. 101=9 O.L.J. 88=A.I.R. 1922 Oudh 31.

——S. 6—Personal privilage—Assignee of minor.

The purchaser of the property of a minor has not got, by the assignment, the rights of a person under disability under S. 6 of the Limitation Act. 9 Cal. 663 (F.B.), Foll. 22 C.W.N. 831=46 Ind. Cas. 802.

——Ss. 6, 7 and 8—Personal privilege—Assignee of minors.

S. 8 is ancillary to and restrictive of the concession granted by Ss. 6 and 7 and does not confer any substantial privilege. The assignee of a minor cannot avail himself of the privilege under S. 6 which is personal to the minor. 42 Mad. 637=(1919) M.W.N. 448=26 M.L.T. 147=10 L.W. 333=50 Ind. Cas. 380.

——S. 6—Personal privilege—Assignee from minor.

The Assignee of property from a Mahomedan minor cannot avail himself of the benefit of S. 6 of the Limitation Act. 14 P.W.R. 1918=44 Ind. Cas. 890.

——S. 6—Personal privilege—Transferee from minor.

The privilege conferred by S. 6 is personal. The privilege is not transferable and an assignee from minor must file the suit the suit either within the ordinary period provided for the suit or on the date of the transfer if the transferor's right subsists till that date. 10 L.J. 747=18 O.C. 34=27 Ind. Cas. 118.

——Ss. 6, 7—Personal privilege—Assignee of minor—How far section applicable.

S. 7 does not extend, in any case, to a purchaseer from the minor. (1902) 4 Bom.L.R. 513=26 B. 730. See also 1901 A.W.N. 12.

14. Plea under.

——S. 6—Plea under.

Point of minority for calling in aid S. 6 cannot be raised for first time in second appeal. A.I.R. 1941 Nag. 100=1940 N.L.J. 607=I.L.R. (1941) Nag. 144=194 Ind. Cas. 806.

——S. 6—Plea under.

Father doing business without partner under a name —Death of father—Minor sons carrying on business through guardian in name used by father —Defendants drawing hundi in favour of such name—Hundi becoming payable during minority—Suit on hundi—Benefit of S. 6 :

Held, that the contention that the plea of minority to save limitation was not raised in the plaint and it came to the defendants as a surprise at the time of argument was without force as it was clear from the pleading itself that the money was taken from the plaintiffs during their minority and that the money became due to them during their minority. 16 P.L.T. 649=A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 194=1 B.R. 844=158 Ind. Cas. 25.

15. Reversioners.

——S. 6—Two reversioners suing to set aside an alienation—Both born when alienation made—One a minor when suit filed—Suit of one barred—If suit of minor also barred.

Two sisters A and B inherited their father's property. A sold her share to defendants. Sons of B were both born when alienation took place. One of the two was a minor when the suit was filed. Both sought a declaration that the alleged alienation by A was nugatory as against them :

Held, since both reversioners were born on the date of alienation, and one of them was a minor when the suit was filed, the minor was not barred from suing merely because another reversioner who was also alive, when alienation was made, waited until his sight became barred. 59 M.L.W. 504=1946 2 M.L.J. 214=1946) M.W.N. 605=231 Ind. Cas. 143=A.I.R. 1947 Mad. 102.

——Ss. 6 and 9—Reversioners—Presumptive reversioner failing to sue—Remote reversioner minor at time of alienation.

If a presumptive reversioner has failed to sue, a remote reversioner, who happens to be a minor at the time of the alienation, can avail himself of the benefit of S. 6. Section 9 does not come into operation in such a case. Time, no doubt, will start running both against the major and minor reversioners but they will have their own periods of limitation and in no case will the one provided for a minor reversioner be affected by that of a major reversioner, whether of equal or of a different degree. A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 409=46 P.L.R. 316=I.L.R. (1945) Lah. 231=216 Ind. Cas. 10 (F.B.)

——S. 6—Reversioners.

There were in existence at the time of the alienation five sons of the alienor who was a limited owner and three minor grandsons. The five sons took no step within limitation to getthe alienation of their father set aside although they were the persons immediately affected :

Held, that a suit by other reversioners, minors at the time of the alienation, to set aside the alienation was not barred. The suit by the reversioner born after the alienation was not also barred. If the existence of a reversioner clothes an after-born reversioner with a right to sue, though an after-born reversioner cannot claim the benefit of S. 6 in his own right he cannot be deprived of the benefit of the extended period claimable by the reversioner in existence at the time of the alienation. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 1=40 P.L.R. 188=I.L.R. (1937) Lah. 769=175 Ind. Cas. 824.

——S. 6—Reversioners.

Minor son of the alienor and other major but distant collaterals living at the time of the alienation—No suit by such collaterals to challenge the alienation within limitation—Suit by minor after limitation but within 3 years from attaining majority :

Held, that the right of reversioners to contest an alienation is independent and individual. The suit is, therefore, maintainable and not barred. 39 P.L.R. 559=A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 653=172 Ind. Cas. 218.

——S. 6—Reversioners—Reversionary suit by minor in presence of nearer reversioners—Benefit of extended time.

Where a minor files a reversionary suit challenging alienation of ancestral property under custom notwithstanding the presence of nearer reversioners including his father, he is entitled to the benefit of extension of time under S. Limitation Act. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 866 =147 Ind. Cas. 399.

——S. 6—Reversioners.

The right to sue for a declaratory decree is vested in the whole body of reversioners in existence at the time of alienation jointly and severally and time begins to run simultaneously against them all and no subsequent disability stops it. 21 P.W.R. 1907 ; 22 P.R. 1907 ; 41 Mad. 659 (F.B.), Foll. 6 Lah. 405=26 P.L.R. 695 =A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 654=90 Ind. Cas. 1022.

——S. 6—Reversioner—Death of minor—Suit by reversionary heir for possession of property sold—Limitation.

The mother and guardian of a minor sold certain property belonging to the ward in 1873, and, the ward having died an infant in 1879 or 1880, she succeeded to his other property and died in 1921 without taking steps to set aside alienation. A reversionary heir instituted a suit in 1922 to recover possession of the property sold from persons holding under the original vendee :

Held that the suit was barred by limitation because of S. 6 (3) read with Art. 44 of the Limitation Act. The suit became barred on the lapse of three years after the death of the ward, notwithtanding the fact that he was succeeded by a female heir. 18 Mad. 193 ; 4 M.L.J. 275, Foll. 59 M.L.J. 196=1930 M.W.N. 708=32 M.L.W. 206=127 Ind. Cas. 801=A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 821.

——S. 6—Reversioner in Hindu Law.

A reversioner who is a minor at the date of the alienation or who is born subsequently during the life of the widow is entitled to the benefit of S. 7 (O.A.). (1904) 14 M.L.J. 209=28 M. 57. [Also 9 C.W.N. 25=32 C. 62].

16. Right to extension.

——S. 6—Right to extension.

Where any Court is of opinion, on the true construction of a document, that it is taken in the name of a minor or in the name of a minor acting by his guardian ; then the minor has got three years from attaining his majority within which to bring his suit on the document. But if on the other hand, a Court is of opinion that the document is taken solely by the guardian, then that extended period would not be open for the benefit of the minor. 10 Bom. 241, Foll. 100 Ind. Cas. 95= 50 Bom. 831=28 Bom.L.R. 1431=A.I.R. 1927 Bom. 61.

——S. 6—Right to extension—Adverse possession against minor—Minority—No ground to stop running of limitation—An extended period alone is given.

It cannot be said that there can be no adverse possession of property belonging to minor during the continuance of the minority. Section 6 does not prevent the possession being adverse or the running of limitation against a minor. It only gives an extension of limitation in favour of the minor after the cessation of disability on the death of the person subject to it.

Where on the death of a proprietor, the widow of his pre-deceased son enters into possession of half the property, mutation in respect of which is effected in her name, during the minority of his second son who subsequently dies she cannot be dispossessed of that share in a suit brought by a reversioner of the son after 12 years of her possession and she becomes the absolute owner of that shares by adverse possession in respect thereof for over 12 years. 113 Ind. Cas. 258=5 O.W.N. 832=A.I.R. 1928 Oudh 481.

——S. 6—Right to extension—Three years' extension after majority cannot be claimed by a person not born at time of alienation.

Where a suit is brought to contest an alienation of joint family property it is from the date on which the cause of action arose that period of limitation must be reckoned. Subsequent birth of a co-parcener does not create a fresh cause of action or a new starting point from which limitation should be reckoned. By the express terms of the section the extended period of three years after majority can only be claimed by a person entitled to institute the suit at the time from which the period of limitation is to be reckoned. A person who was not in existence at the time does not come within this description and therefore is not entitled to the three years' extension. 86 Ind. Cas. 249=29 C.W.N. 666 =26 P.L.R. 113=23 A.L.J. 176=27 Bom.L.R. 175 =21 M.L.W. 236=52 I.A. 69=6 L.R.P.C. 47=1925 M.W.N. 262=12 O.L.J. 74=2 O.W.N. 1=47 All. 165=A.I.R. 1925 P.C. 33=48 M.L.J. 29 (P.C.).

——S. 6—Right to extension—Subsequent birth of other members does not extend time.

If at the date of the transfer of property belonging to a Hindu joint family there was in existence any person who had a cause of action for a suit to set aside the alienation, time begins to run and cannot be extended by the subsequent birth of other members of the family who would also be entitled to challenge the alienation.

Time for a suit to set aside the alienation will expire either after 12 years from the alienation or 3 years after the attaining of majority of any person who had a cause of action on the date of the alienation. 87 Ind. Cas. 662=6 L.R.A. (Civ.) 320=A.I.R. 1925 All. 563.

——S. 6—Right to extension—Adverse possession against lunatic—Lunacy does not prevent limitation running but only gives the lunatic right to sue within 3 years of the ceasing of the disability.

Lunacy would not by itself prevent limitation from running against a lunatic. Where a person entering into possession of a lunatic's property was in no fiduciary relationship to the lunatic but entered into possession for his own benefit and in assertion of a title hostile to the lunatic, limitation would begin to run from the date when he so took possession though the lunatic would be entitled to sue for recovery of the property within 3 years from the date when his disability ceases; if he dies a lunatic leaving his widow as legal representative, then she could sue within three years of his death but if the widow fails to sue within the said period for recovery of the property, the reversioners to the estate of the lunatic would also be barred and they cannot reckon limitation from the death of the widow. 70 Ind. Cas. 678=45 Mad. 361=1922 M.W.N. 136= 15 M.L.W. 382=30 M.L.T. 128=A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 12=42 M.L.J. 262.

——S. 6—Right to extension.

The extended period under S. 6 can only be claimed by a person entitled to institute the suit at the time from which the period of limitation is to be reckoned. 22 P.R. 1907; 103 P.R. 1907 and A.I.R. 1925 P.C. 33, Foll. 97 Ind. Cas. 435=8 Lah. 19=28 P.L.R. 283=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 97.

——S. 6—Right to extension.

A person cannot take advantage of his minority when limitation has already begun to run before his birth. A.I.R. 1925 P.C. 33, Foll. 94 Ind. Cas. 180 (All.).

——S. 6—Right to extension.

A suit on a promissory note taken by the guardian of a minor must be instituted by the guardian within three years of its date. Section 6 has no application to such a suit. 80 Ind. Cas. 474=26 Bom.L.R. 426 =A.I.R. 1924 Bom. 468.

——S. 6 (Ss. 7, 28, Arts. 142, 144)—Right of extension —Separate property—Joint possession—Prescription.

Where the separate property of one member of a family, is for over the statutory period in the joint possession of himself and the other members of the family, these latter acquire a prescriptive right to joint ownership in such property. The statutory period is 12 years from the date of the joint possession under Art. 142 or 144, and where the cause of action arises in favour of a minor, it extends up to three years after the cessation of disability. (1901) 5 C.W.N. 545=3 Bom.L.R. 303 24 M. 387=28 I.A. 81 (P.C.).

17. Several plaintiffs.

——S. 6—Several plaintiffs.

Where a suit by Hindu co-parceners to set aside an alienation of joint family property is barred by limitation as regards one of the plaintiffs it is also barred as regards the other plaintiffs though they were minors at the date of the institution of the suit, if they were not in existence at the date of the alienation. A.I.R. 1925 P.C. 33, Foll. 86 Ind. Cas. 704=6 L.R.A. Civ. 302=A.I.R. 1925 All. 247.

——S. 6—Several plaintiffs—Applicability of section.

S. 6 applies only where a single claimant or all the claimants, where there are more than one, are under some disability. 25 M. 431, Relied upon. 31 All. 156 =6 A.L.J. 62=1 Ind. Cas. 824.

——Ss. 6 and 7, Art. 144—Several Plaintiffs—Disability of single plaintiffs—Joint interest of other plaintiffs.

In 1895 a Mahomedan mortgaged his property to defendant. The mortgagor having died, his widow sold the equity of redemption to the mortgagee in 1901, and placed him in possession. The three plaintiffs (sons and daughters of the mortgagor) who owned the remaining seven shares, sued in 1914, to redeem the mortgage. Plaintiffs 1 and 2 had attained majority in 1901 and 1908.

Held, that, as neither of the plaintiffs who attained majority more than three years before suit was qualified to discharge or release the equity of redemption and the right was indivisible, the suit having been brought within three years of the date when the youngest plaintiff attained majority, was within time, under S. 7 of the Limitation Act. 43 Bom. 487=21 Bom.L.R. 353=51 Ind. Cas. 79.

——Ss. 6 and 7—Several plaintiffs—Joint Decreeholders—One minor—Whether other can grant valid discharge.

A joint execution creditor is a joint creditor within S. 8 of the Limitation Act of 1877. Where one of two joint execution creditors is a minor the other execution creditor who is sui juris is not competent to grant a valid discharge so as to bind the interest of the minor. 15 Ind. Cas. 664 (Cal.).

——S. 6—Several plaintiffs—Time, when begins to run.

Minority does not prevent limitation running against minors except as is provided under S. 7 of the old Act. In the case of several minor plaintiffs extension of more than 3 years cannot be allowed after the date of attaining majority by the youngest. 100 P.R. 1909 =148 P.W.R. 1909=152 P.L.R. 1909=4 Ind. Cas. 854.

——Ss. 6, 7, 8 and 15 (2)—Several plaintiffs—Disability—Extension of time.

Where one of two plaintiffs attained majority more than three years prior to suit and was capable of giving a discharge for both, the suit is barred under S. 7 of the Limitation Act. 38 M. 118, Foll. S. 15 (2) of the Limitation Act does not refer to the extension of time allowed to persons under disability under Ss. 6 and 8. (1919) M.W.N. 440=10 L.W. 156=37 M.L.J. 256=52 Ind. Cas. 725.

——Ss. 6 and 7 and Art. 44—Several plaintiffs—Bar against elder—Effect.
